FFA Camp Advertises Cisco

Yesterday at noon the seventh annual tri-district encampment of the Future Farmers of America closed at Lake Cisco and more than 300 boys went back to their homes over West Texas to tell their families, their friends, and their F. F. A. Chapter members about the grand time they had at Cisco and how they are looking forward to next year's camp.

The annual encampment does something for Cisco and the recreational facilities here that nothing else has ever been able to accomplish. It contacts the persons over the state who are most interested in recreation spots and in just such a recreation spot as Lake Cisco affords.

Young people naturally are more interested in the biggest swimming pool in the world than are their parents. When they get home they will talk it up, and many families which would otherwise not pay a great deal of attention to the pool will come here to enjoy a vacation. The parents are going to listen to what their boys have to say about a good time. They will have to listen. At the same time other boys and girls in the communities represented will hear about the F. F. A. camp, and the Future Farmers, returning, are not going to fail to tell that they "slept inside the biggest hollow dam in the world and went swimming every day in the biggest swimming pool."

This type of publicity is going to help Cisco in building up a resort, as it has helped in the past.

Just to make sure that the boys will have something concrete to take back to their families and their communities, the Daily News Thursday presented to the F. F. A. officials enough papers for each boy to take home a souvenir copy. In this issue there was a general story about the F. F. A. encampment, a front page editorial of welcome, and a welcome from officials of the city government, Chamber of Commerce, and Cisco Boosters. The idea, of course, was that the boys will take the papers home as souvenirs of the great time they had at Cisco, and will help spread the word that Cisco is really "The playground of West Texas."

J. M. Bird and his assistants, as well as all other persons who have had anything to do with the encampment, deserve a great deal of credit for their work. Outside from the inestimable value of the camp upon the boys and upon the future of agriculture in Texas, it has done perhaps more than any other thing to advertise the recreational facilities here.

Reconsideration of Farm Colony

Eastland county officials Friday were seeking a reconsideration at Austin upon the farm colony, estimated to cost $375,000, to be located at one of five sites. The project had failed to receive approval.

Much hard work had been expended at Cisco, Eastland, Ranger, Gorman, and Rising Star, and the county had been hopeful of securing approval for the project. Saturday was the last day for a reconsideration.

Such a colony, if approved, would mean a great deal to the county, outside of the actual money spent here. Not the least of its benefits would be the effect of removing families from relief rolls and of pointing a better agriculture program to other farmers of the county.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON. — After Congress goes away from here, you'll be seeing some important changes in Roosevelt's official family.

The most probable cabinet resignation is that of Jim Farley as postmaster general.

Even Jim has finally got it through his head that he is something of a liability as long as he continues, under constant fire, to hold both the postoffice job and chairmanship of the national and New York Democratic committees.

He is convinced that he can be of greater value to Roosevelt as boss of the re-election campaign than as boss of the postal service, assuming he drops one role or the other. And of course one of his close associates can handle the department the same way Jim has been operating it.

The fight of Huey Long and the progressives against Farley is bound to continue and to become more embarrassing as the campaign nears.

It wouldn't look well for Jim to quit right now, lest Huey acquire the credit and gain too much prestige from the "victory." But you can look for the resignation some nice quiet day this summer.

During the last two or three weeks, Jim has been conferring with western Democratic politicians, trying to size up the popular strength of the progressives, third party possibilities, and other political conditions. Some of them, at least, suggested that progressive protests against his dual job weren't to be laughed off.

FRIENDS and associates of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins fear that she, too, may be quitting within the next few months.

Madame Secretary has been inclined to brood over the frequent snubs her labor policies have received at the White House. Behind the scenes she has fought militantly for the interests of organized labor.

She has been ignored in the administration's planning for continuation of N.R.A.—a large part of which she believes comes within her field. She hasn't observed much administration support for the Wagner labor disputes bill, the essentials of which she favors.

And if the Wagner bill should pass without placing the National Labor Relations Board under the supervision of her department, as she desires, that may prove the last straw.

ATTORNEY General Cummings may still be expected to be switched sooner or later to another job, unless the Justice Department shows a burst of speed under leadership of its new solicitor general.

And lately Uncle Dan Roper of the Department of Commerce has been the subject of persistent resignation rumors, inspired by the fact that his administration of that department and other activities has pleased no one other than himself. Passage of the work-relief bill will lead to some refiguring, as Roosevelt assigns the four billion dollars for expenditure. Not even Harry Hopkins or Secretary Ickes knows yet just what responsibilities he'll have under the plan.

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athlete, because Bret objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH.

Jo goes to Crest Lake. Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes her and causes difficulties. These are increased when PETER FRAGONET, film actor, arrives. Fragonet begs marked attention to Jo, asks her to marry him as soon as he can secure a divorce.

Bret Paul comes to Crest Lake as life guard. BABY MONTGOMERY school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo, is also there. Fragonet leaves and returns when his film company undertakes to make part of a motion picture at the resort. He asks Jo to return to Hollywood with him. She delays her decision.

Jo becomes friendly with LOLITA MONTEZ, actress. During scene on the lake Lolita narrowly escapes drowning and is rescued by Bret Paul.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

JO'S realization that it was Bret Paul and not Peter Fragonet who had rescued her from the lake was momentarily swept away in the excitement. As Bret dived from the speedboat Jo surged forward with the rest of the crowd straining to catch a glimpse of Lolita Montez on the bright sunlit surface of the lake. Drann, thoroughly frightened and excited now, was leaping up and down in the boat, shouting unnecessary directions at the top of his lungs.

Then Bret bobbed into view, and beside him Jo saw with relief the bedraggled dark hair of Lolita Montez. An involuntary cry went up from the crowd on shore as Drann helped Bret lift the inert figure into the boat. Then, as Fragonet struggled aboard, the cry stopped abruptly—as if there was only the silence of contempt for him.

Queerly, despite her feelings for Lolita, Jo was sorry for Fragonet. They had no right to lift him up, then dash him down in silence just because he'd never learned to swim well enough. Drann had driven him, just as he'd driven Montez from that tower. And Fragonet had argued with Drann. Suddenly hate welled up inside her for this stocky, egotistical Drann who could gamble with lives to gain a few seconds' effect on the screen.

There was no more "shooting" that day, and as Jo and Tubby walked back to the Inn they were strangely silent. On the veranda Jo said, "I wish you'd come up to my room, Tubby."

Inside Jo's room she faced Tubby Davis. "Why didn't you tell me Bret Paul saved my life that day on the lake?"

"Why, I thought you knew," Tubby exclaimed. "I—who did you think did it?"

"I thought it was Fragonet," Tubby sank into a chair. "Well, am I relieved! I was wondering what had got into you. It didn't seem like you to ignore the fact that Bret had saved your life. Not even to thank him for it. I tried to open up the subject several times, but you always cut me off."

"I didn't even know Bret was at Crest Lake then."

"He'd come just that morning," Tubby said. "He was standing on the shore having his first view of the lake when Babs hit your sailboat."

JO stared at the wall. "I wonder what he must think of me? I can understand a lot of things now."

"I don't know what Bret thinks of you," Tubby said. "But I know darned well what I think of this Fragonet. Letting you believe he saved your life! Why, it's all he can do to keep himself afloat. He proved that today."

Jo smiled. "He didn't let me believe it. I'm sure he thinks I knew it was Bret Paul."

"But haven't you ever mentioned it to him?"

"I started to thank him when I regained consciousness after the accident, but he wouldn't let me talk about what happened. He didn't want me to get disturbed about it—and I suppose I thought he was being modest about what he'd done. So I never referred to it again."

"Well, don't you think it's time you were referring to it—to Bret?" Jo nodded soberly. "You don't have to remind me of that, Tubby. That's something I'm going to do right now."

But Bret was neither at the lake nor in his cottage, and one of the house boys explained to Jo that "Mistah Paul" was in conference with Silas Drann. "He take place Mistah Fragonet in swim tomol!" The little Oriental grinned knowingly.

"If you see Mr. Paul I wish you'd tell him I'm very anxious to see him," Jo instructed.

She returned to her room and found Tubby sprawled on the bed, munching chocolate creams. Hurriedly swallowing, Tubby looked at her questioningly. "What did he say?"

"I didn't get to see him. Apparently he's going to double for Fragonet in that scene tomorrow. He's with Drann now."

"That's lucky for Montez," observed Tubby, "as well as for Bret. Come to think of it, why wouldn't Bret Paul make a swell movie hero?"

"I guess he would, Tubby."

JO awakened next morning without having heard from Bret. She wondered if he had received her message and was ignoring it. Perhaps he did not want to talk with her at all, now that he was so contemptuous of the man he thought she cared for. Perhaps he believed that a girl who would be interested in Fragonet deserved nothing, not even common courtesy.

Jo could understand his contempt for Fragonet. No two men, she thought, were ever more unlike. To a boy like Bret Paul who had worked hard all ways for what little he could gain from life, Peter Fragonet must appear to be the epitome of worthlessness. And now Bret, proud of his own physical prowess, had seen Fragonet branded with cowardice.

It must have hurt Bret that Jo had said never a word about the day she was pitched unconscious from the sailboat. And it must have hurt still more when he saw her accepting the attentions of Marsh and Barston—and Fragonet himself. Whatever was to happen in the future between her and Bret, she must find him and patch up the past.

Her resolve was easier made than carried out. All that day Bret, with his hair darkened, and dressed to resemble Fragonet in the role of a forester, was busy with Drann's company. While Fragonet kept to his room, the company went through the scenes which had resulted in such a fiasco the day before.

Jo hung about the lake shore with Tubby most of the day, pretending interest in the filming; in reality she was hoping to have a word with Bret. But Bret, quite literally, spent most of the day in the lake or in Drann's speedboat. The only member of the company Jo had a chance to talk to was Lolita Montez, looking none the worse for her experience of the day before.

"You don't know how frightened you had me yesterday," Jo told her.

Montez smiled. "Those things will happen. And it certainly wasn't Fragonet's fault. Drann goes insane sometimes when he gets an idea into his head, and Fragonet had told him he didn't think he could handle the scene."

"You knew it, too?" asked Jo amazed.

The other nodded. "And yet you went ahead with it."

The actress shrugged. "It's part of the business," she said.

THEN Montez was called by Drann, and Jo saw her no more that day. Neither did she see Bret. The director worked his outfit like mad until the sun was weak behind the trees, and it was rumored that he planned to leave for Hollywood sooner than he had originally intended. The near-tragedy had disturbed his ego, for he knew that almost all who had seen it held it against him. Drann found it no longer pleasing to show off before the spectators who lined the shore of the lake. And he knew, too, that Fragonet would probably be relieved indeed to get away from the stares of the men and women to whom he had been a hero one day and a coward the next.

Unable to have even a moment with Bret during the day, Jo told herself that she must go to his cottage that night. She mustn't let another day go by without telling Bret she appreciated what he had done. Even now he was likely to believe she was turning to him only because Fragonet had made a fool of himself at Crest Lake. "But it isn't true that Fragonet made a fool of himself," Jo thought stoutly. "It was Drann who made a fool of him."

She had dinner earlier than usual, to escape the guests in the dining room and the long after-dinner conversations which usually went on over the coffee and cigars. Then, smiling her thanks at the house boy who had served her, Jo left her table.

But in the lobby she encountered Douglas Marsh.

"Hello, Jo! Had dinner already? I hoped you'd take it with me. Have you anything planned right now?"

"Why, . . . no."

"Good! Join me in a demi-tasse, at least. We must have a party for the movie crowd and I want to talk it over with you. Drann has decided to leave day after tomorrow. That means the party has to be tomorrow night. Rather short notice, but—" he grinned at her. "I guess we can show 'em a good time."

"Of course," Jo said down with me and we'll make plans."

Silently Jo accepted Marsh's arm and returned to the dining room with him.

LETTERS FROM READERS

"I desire to commend your editorial in Wednesday's paper upon 'Taxation on Ability to Pay,' in which you heartily support the president's 'tax-the-super-rich' plan. One might ask why commend a paper whose subscribers are in middle class and poor and are now paying the bulk of the taxes for supporting the president in his efforts to make the super-rich pay their part of the taxes. But there is so much propaganda by these super-rich and their newspapers, that we should show our appreciation for the editor who fights on the side of his own people.

I wonder how the president's critics would raise the seven billions of dollars per year now being spent to run the government and feed the hungry? They have offered suggestions. Borrow from the 'big boys' they say, 'and give them tax-free, interest-bearing bonds' in which to hide their billions from the tax collector. Or, enact a sales tax so the people would be sure to pay all the taxes.

The government is annually collecting about $3,300,000,000 revenue. Who pays it? Let's see.

From income taxes: $1,100,000,000

From excise taxes: $1,673,000,000

From processing taxes: $526,000,000

We know that the people with incomes less than $3,000 per year, and who own less than 15 per cent of the national wealth, pay the last two items, making two thirds of the total taxes. Then as to the income taxes the other third. We know that corporations pay half of that third, and they still, at least half of that to the stockholders, and with $100,000 sa-aries and an equal amount in "bonuses", they unload their personal half on the people in the end. Yet these "big boys" who own the 85 per cent of the wealth of the nation pay less than one-sixteenth of the taxes to support the national government, and yet they and all their parrot mouthpieces are howling because the president wants them to help support the government.

And when we consider how some of these "big boys" get their many millions, making from 100 to 1,200 per cent on their investments by manipulation of stocks, holding companies, public officials, government contracts for battleship contracts, mail contracts, forging telegrams to congressmen and taking names by the thousands from directories when we consider these outrageous doings of the "big boys" revealed by congressional investigations (and doubtless we fail to get the worst of it)—we think some of them should be in the pen instead of paying incomes taxes.

If they were in Russia and paid such stuff as congress has shown that they do in America, those Bolsheviks would cut their heads off. Why they should be willing to give the government all their income for protecting them in the wild, "high financing" which has all but ruined the once greatest nation on earth, I say "once greatest nation", because ten years ago our national wealth was estimated at four hundred billions of dollars, and under proper economic management, it should now be about five hundred billions. But it is now estimated at less than half that. The brutal selfishness of the super-rich, and the contagious desire of all classes to imitate them by getting rich without working for it, have about ruined a great people.

Yours for a better world to live in. EUGENE LANEFORD.

Secretary of State Gives Resume of Aug. 24 Amendments

Says Motive Is To Explain Measures To People Rather Than Direct Votes

AUSTIN, Aug. 10. — Gerald Mann, Texas secretary of state, has issued a resume of the seven amendments to be voted upon in the August 24 election. In commenting upon the measures, Mann said that he was doing so merely to explain anyone how to cast his ballot.

For the first time the amendments will appear on the ballot in numbered form, so that tabulation can be more speedy than in previous elections.

Following is Mann's outline of the amendments:

1—Old Age Pensions

The first proposition to be found on the ballot in the August 24th special election on constitutional amendments is the so-called Old-Age Pension Amendment. This year for the first time, the amendments will be numbered, according to Secretary of State, Gerald C. Mann.

The Old-Age Pension Amendment proposes to give the legislature the authority to pay these pensions to persons over the age of 65, who are not habitual drunkards nor habitual criminals nor inmates of any State supported institution. Those who are eligible must have lived in Texas at least 5 years, during the nine immediately preceding application and in the State continuously for one year.

All other restrictions and limitations would have to be set up by the legislature.

The amendment authorizes the legislature to accept money from the federal government for the same purpose. It is presumed that federal funds would match state funds. The maximum amount to be paid by the State would be $15 per month per person. It is presumed that the federal government would match State funds. The total pension per person per month in this case it is presumed would be $30. The amounts might be smaller, however, but not larger.

It is estimated that the cost of this pension to the state would run between forty and fifty million dollars annually. No provision is made for the income. It would be up to the legislature to determine where the money would come from. The legislature would have to enact such laws as it deemed proper to utilize the right granted by the amendments. The legislature might do this at once or some time later—or for that matter, not at all. The amendment is permissive and not mandatory, though few doubt that some form of old age pensions would be enacted if the amendment is adopted in August.

2—Commitment of Insane

Proposition No. 2 on the August 24th special election ballot has to do with the temporary commitment of insane persons, preliminary to a trial by jury.

Under the present constitution whereby everyone is guaranteed a jury trial, it is impossible to commit a mentally ill person to an institution for treatment or observation without the necessity of a jury trial. It has been pointed out that this is often very inconvenient and embarrassing.

The proposal, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann if passed would authorize the legislature to pass such laws as would permit mentally ill persons to be confined by county courts in institutions, presumably, or under the care of physicians or experts for a period of ninety days prior to a jury trial. It is presumed that the ninety day period of confinement would be for the purpose of observing such person.

The provisions would apply only to persons not charged with a criminal offense.

The amendment specifically sets out that the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, but that in the particular case of insane persons a confinement period of ninety days for observation may be prescribed without the necessity of a trial by jury. At the end of that time a jury trial would be had.

3—Repeal of Prohibition

Probably chief interest in the August 24th special election on the seven proposed constitutional amendments will center on Proposition No. 3 on the ballot—the repeal of prohibition, according to Secretary of State Gerald Mann.

The constitution at present, prohibits the sale, manufacture and transportation of alcoholic liquors (except 2.2 beer). This prohibition would be stricken out by adoption of the repeal amendment.

The proposed amendment specifically prohibits the return of the open saloon—and it would be up to the legislature to define the term "open saloon."

No machinery is set up for sale of liquor. The legislature would have the authority to determine just who and just how liquor is to be done by State monopoly or through private channels. The legislature also would have the authority to pass laws regulating local option elections.

If the amendment is adopted, all counties, cities and precincts that were dry in 1919 when statewide prohibition was adopted would be dry now—at least until local option elections were held to determine otherwise.

It is well to remember, Secretary Mann points out, that there will be an election next year in November to determine whether the State shall sell liquor through a State monopoly system. If the repeal amendment is adopted in August, the State MAY establish a State control and monopoly system. If the repeal amendment is defeated in August, it will in effect be submitted again in November, 1936, in the State Monopoly amendment which says the State SHALL have a liquor monopoly. To retain the present dry status both the August 24th amendment and the November, 1936, amendment must be defeated. Passage of either will repeal the present prohibition section of the constitution.

4—Amendments at Special Sessions

At present the legislature can submit proposed changes in the constitution only at regular sessions—held every two years.

Proposal No. 4 on the ballot for the August 24th election would revise the constitution to permit the submission of amendments at special sessions. It is pointed out that in emergency cases, particularly on relief matters that it might be necessary for the Texas voters to vote on an emergency measure at a time when the regular session of the legislature is quite far distant in the future.

The original purpose of the provisions which makes the submission possible only at regular sessions was to make the fundamental law hard to amend and change. Two schools of thought are at variance here. The one believing that the constitution should be easy to change—particularly in emergency cases and the other that every safeguard should be placed around it to make it difficult to change.

Davis Cuppers Go Down to Defeat Trying

The American Davis Cup team was beaten in the finals, but it was not because they didn't give all they had in an effort to win. Here's the do-or-die example set by Captain Wilmer Allison for play in the critical matches. In a desperate effort to return, he throws himself toward the riding ball. At left it's apparent he can't stay on his feet. And there at the right you see him on the turf—down but not dismayed.

If the proposed amendment is adopted the legislature in any special session can submit proposed amendments to the voters—provided such amendments are submitted by the governor for the legislature's consideration. If the amendment is rejected the present system will obtain; that is constitutional amendments can be submitted to the people only at the regular sessions of the legislature.

The 44th legislature submitted thirteen amendments to the voters—seven in August of this year and six in November of 1936. These were all submitted during the regular session. Under the proposed change the 44th might yet submit additional amendments for the voter's consideration.

5—Suspended Sentence

Proposition No. 5 on the ballot of the August 24 election reads: "For (and against) the amendment to the State constitution authorizing the courts to place defendants on probation."

Proponent's claims that if this amendment is passed, many who are now sent to the penitentiary for first offenses will be permitted to enjoy suspended sentences under restrictions of the court.

The only restriction under the present suspended sentence law is the fact the defendant must not be convicted of a felony—that is, a crime punishable by confinement in the penitentiary. The judge or court has no control nor can it set up or impose any other restrictions.

It is the understanding of those who have studied the amendment that if passed, it would permit the legislature to pass laws giving the courts the right to suspend sentences and place defendants on such probation as the court might deem proper. In other words the court could suspend sentences subject to certain limitations. If those restrictions or limitations were not observed the court would have the authority to have the defendant committed to the penitentiary without further ado. Many courts now refuse to grant suspended sentences for the reason that they have no control over the defendant after the same is granted. It is pointed out that this would prevent many first offenders from having to go to the penitentiary and reclaim many of them for society.

If a suspended sentence is given under the present law the only limitation is that the defendant must not be convicted of a felony. The court has no control over him nor can it impose other conditions.

6—Abolishing Fee System

Two years ago a senate investigation committee discovered a number of flagrant abuses of the fee system as practiced in Texas for recompensing certain public officials. The fee system was established and written into the constitution at a time when it was impossible to pay salaries and the theory was that an official was entitled to "all he could make." Since the senate committee discovered and revealed the malpractices existing under the system there has been a demand for a constitutional change on this score, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

Proposed amendment No. 6 on the ballot provides that the fee system as a method of paying certain precinct, county and district officials shall be abolished in counties having 20,000 or more population according to the last federal census. The legislature will if the amendment is adopted, set the salaries for officials now receiving fees, in such counties of under 20,000 population the commissioners courts may set their county and precinct officials on a salary basis if they so desire. The amendment does not specifically state who shall set the salaries of such officials in this case.

If this amendment is adopted all district officers must be compensated on a salary basis. The amendment provides that fees shall continue to be collected as at present but they will go to the county instead of the officer. The evident purpose of this amendment is to place as many public officials on straight salaries as possible and thus abolish, insofar as is possible the payment of officials through the present fee system.

7—Free Text Books

The Texas constitution at the present time provides that the state is without authority to furnish free text books to other than public schools. Proposed Amendment number seven on the ballot for the August 24th election would permit the State to supply free textbooks to all schools, private and parochial. Such textbooks, it is presumed to be the same as used in the public schools.

Advocates of this amendment state that this would entail no additional expense because the State now purchases more books than are necessary. However, this point is merely one of the claims made and has not been substantiated by the Secretary of State. Advocates point out that they pay taxes to support public schools but that if they choose to send their children to private or parochial schools the least the State can do is to supply the books free.

Probably the most important and least published provision of this Amendment is the fact that it proposes to rewrite Section 5 Article Seven of the Constitution so as to permit the apportionment of school funds on some other basis than scholastic population.

For many years there has been considerable agitation in certain quarters to abolish the 'school census' or scholastic population system of apportioning school funds and substitute in lieu thereof the "average attendance" basis or some other basis. The legislature would determine just how this was to be done, if this amendment is adopted.

If adopted this proposed amendment, Number seven would mean, in effect: (1) that the State would furnish free textbooks to pupils in all schools of Texas; and (2) that a new basis for apportioning school funds other than the scholastic census basis, could be set up.

61 Shrub Types In Erath County Alone

STEPHENVILLE, Aug. 10 — Miss Lulu C. Gough, associate professor of biology at John Tarleton college, names 61 different shrubs and trees native to Erath county.

"Since the trees in this region generally follow the streams, leaving pastures, lands and fields free," Miss Gough said, "there has been little extensive clearing."

Cedars and mesquites, she pointed out, are comparative newcomers to the county. She says the mesquite came to Texas along with the Spaniards, via seeds mixed with feed brought for horses.

They grew up in a line from Mexico to San Antonio and have spread across the state, she explained.

"Cedars are migrating trees, and are moving slowly across the country now, their seeds borne by the winds," Miss Gough said.

Of the trees in this part of the state the pecan has the greatest value, according to Miss Gough who has made an extensive study of the tree situation.

One of the most prominent trees of the Erath region, she pointed out, is the greese wood, or creosote bush, which resembles a cactus and burns with a fierce heat. It is a favorite with campers.

Philadelphia Sure Of Plenty of Water

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 — There is no need to increase the city's water supply, the Bureau of Municipal Research reported.

Now the city can supply 2,300,000 persons if the average of 180 gallons daily per person would be maintained. The output for the first five months of this year was 748,000,000 gallons under the same period last year.

CISCOANS BACK FROM FUNERAL OF OIL DRILLER

O. G. Lawson of Gallagher, of Gallagher and Lawson, and S. H. Montgomery of D Avenue, and Charles Lee of Desdemona, drillers for the firm returned Saturday morning from Oklahoma City where they had gone to attend the funeral of J. G. Wilson, a driller who had been employed for the last several years in the vicinity of Cisco.

Mr. Wilson, familiarly known as Jack, was an old time driller, having learned the business as a young man in Pennsylvania. He had worked for many years in West Virginia and later in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. He was 63 years of age. He is survived by his widow and five children.

When Mr. Wilson started out as a young man it was the custom for all drillers and tooldressers to work 12 hours a day and methods and machinery were extremely crude. Everything was done the hardest way, and the wages were very small compared with present day wages. He was considered one of the best drillers to have ever worked in Eastland county. He and Montgomery, while employed by Gallagher and Lawson, drilled the biggest gas well to ever be completed in the vicinity of Cisco. It was the Groves Number Seven, owned by Lone Star Gas company just north of Lake Cisco. The volume of gas was 62,000,000 cubic feet per day. Mr. Wilson's education was very limited, his sole interest being his family and his work.

DYNAMITE ON RAIL WRECKS FREIGHT CARS

By United Press
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 10 — A roaring blast of dynamite planted along the main line of the Illinois Central railroad today tossed a locomotive and 10 freight cars from the track in what to be a fresh outbreak of the bloody Illinois mine war. Two members of the trains three-man crew were injured when the locomotive, lifted from the track by a time bomb, bounded over the rails. The dynamiting, tying up all rail traffic on the line between Chicago and St. Louis, was the fifteen train bombing attributed to the mine feud.

The war, a bitter three-year fight among coal operators and rival unions, has claimed 36 live sin the bituminous field circling Springfield. More than 200 bombings — trains, trestles, mine shafts, and homes — resulted in damage aggregating close to $1,000,000.

He was a second cousin of Charles Ashcraft, employee of the Ranger postoffice.

O. R. Ashcraft moved to Ranger in 1916 and lived until 1933, when he moved to Breckenridge, where he was employed as a pipe line worker.

TWO OIL TESTS TO BE MADE IN DUSTER AREA

DE LEON, Aug. 10 — A Kansas concern has signed to drill two new oil wells in the Duster area, nine miles west of De Leon, according to reliable information. One of the tests will be on the Woody tract, 300 feet south of the Sloan well which was completed a small flowing producer in 1934 and has continued to flow 20 barrels daily for a year. Machinery was moved on the Woody location August 6, and rigging up is in progress, actual drilling to commence under this contract by August 15. The Woody location is one mile north of Duster.

The second new location is on the Sloan place and the contract calls for spudding in within 90 days from August 1st. The same Kansas firm is drilling this test also, and the Woody well will be finished before this one is spudded in. However, the second Sloan well will be drilled regardless of the outcome of the Woody, a cash forfeit to guarantee the well having been posted.

The Sloan No. 1 has sufficient wet gas to cause the well to flow freely from the 2,700-foot level, which is the strata of the Desdemona and Ranger pay. The company has a block of two sections under lease, including the Sloan and Woody tracts. Land owners other than Sloan and Woody in the block are receiving $1.00 per acre lease money.

Powell Introduces Cleaning Process

Powell's Cleaning Plant, ever on the lookout for the best and most approved modern methods for their business, has introduced in Cisco a new process that it is claimed will clean clothes cleaner than it was ever thought garments could be handled without injury to those of delicate texture.

This process is known under the trade name of Dri-Sheen. Fine knitted bedspreads and dresses are made even whiter than when crocheted and delicate garments are cleaned, as are coat linings, with no injury to the fabric.

This process, in connection with Hi-Tone, enables this firm to offer a quality of service surpassed by none, not even in much larger cities where many thousands of dollars have been expended for the most modern equipment, Powell said. Their many years in Cisco is a guarantee of their dependability and they are soliciting new business on the merits of the quality of service rendered during the past years of doing business in Cisco at the same location.

BACK IN THE 80'S— the Saturday night bath was no joke!

How Junior howled when mother led him firmly by the ear to his Saturday night bath! Poor mother! how exhausted she would be after heating the water teakettleful at a time, until each member of the family had had his turn at the wash tub. Now, with an automatic electric water heater, no home need be without an unlimited supply of piping hot water day and night. The cost is so trifling . . . only a few cents a day. Low down-payment, easy terms.

Intensify Hunt for Utility Wizard

Alyce McHenry's Sister Rebels

The social value of an upside-down stomach was revealed by Jean McHenry, 15, elder sister of Alyce Jane McHenry, whose topsy-turvy interior brought national attention. Life for Alyce in New York had been a succession of parties, says Jean, while she spent most of her time alone at their hotel. Here's Jean about to hop into a plane at Newark airport to fly home to Omaha, where she hopes to enjoy herself.

Disturbing Japan's Peace of Mind

This is the cartoon that caused the Japanese Foreign Office to order Ambassador Hiroshi Saito at Washington to take "proper measures," in protest against the "insult" to his emperor, thus turning a good natured caricature into an international incident. Published in Vanity Fair as one of five unlikely events, it portrays Emperor Hirohito drawing a wheelbarrow.

How the Quins Grow! 40 Feet High—in Fireworks!

Isn't it amazing how those amazing quintuplets have grown! Forty feet high they appear here, in the striking fireworks set piece that was an outstanding attraction of the Cleveland, O., summer festival, attended by thousands. Size of the display, showing the quins "in conference," is shown by the lofty framework, visible through the brightly gleaming outlines of the set piece.

Princess Just a Toiling Actress

A member of royalty to whom homage is paid in every European court, Princess Natalia Paley, niece of the late Russian czar, shown here in an attractive pose, takes orders like any other movie actress in Hollywood. And she's enjoying her new status, her mind set only on success in the films.

Recruits Flyers for Ethiopia

Claiming to have enlisted a dozen aviators already, Hal Duberrier (above), of Chicago, who says he was a member of the famous Lafayette Escadrille, is recruiting an air force in France for service with the Ethiopian army in event of war with Italy. Eight of his airmen are Americans, he says.

Rogers Heiress

Mrs. Arturo Ramos, the former Millicent Rogers (above), was rewarded for loyalty to her father in his divorce action several years ago by being bequeathed a one-third interest in the estate of the late Colonel H. H. Rogers. Her brother receives only $500,000 under the will.

First Pictures of Italian Troops at Ethiopia Gates

The camera goes into tense Eritrea to give you the first pictures of Italian troops concentrated for possible offensive against Ethiopia—men of the 215th Blackshirt Legion on the march across a rough valley.

Back to See Grandson

Cameras refused to be routed by the matchbox Enzo Fiermonte, former fighter, hurled in response to his wife's command to "Knock 'em down, Enzo!", so they finally posed quietly. You see them here on arrival at New York from Europe, where they reached a reconciliation. Mrs. Fiermonte, the former Madeleine Force Astor Dick, will get her first glimpse of her newly-born grandchild, the son of John Jacob Astor III.

LOUIS' HOOKS LAND TERRIFIED KINGFISH

peddler's eyes glazed, his knees buckled, and he sank to the floor, victim of a technical knockout after two minutes and 21 seconds of the first round.

Mumbling in a confused manner to Referee Norm McGarrity, Kingfish Levinsky, changed from the boaster who said he'd knock out Louis in five rounds to a gibbering hulk by the fists of the Brown Bomber, decided to call it a day after being floored four times in the first round of their Chicago fight. Here he is shown on the ropes in a corner, while the stolid, stalking Louis stands away waiting panther-like for the helpless King to arise. Forty thousand spectators pair nearly $200,000 to witness Louis score the 20th knockout in his career of 24 professional fights.
