CANDIDACY IS ANNOUNCED AT WTCC MEETING

SWEETWATER, May 12. — State politics were injected into the opening session of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting today by the appearance and speech of Gov. Ross Sterling and Clint Small, state senator and vowed candidate for office should the governor not seek re-election, and by a flurry of political announcements made here and elsewhere in the state.

The governor, refreshed after a night's rest at Abilene and by a quick overland drive to Sweetwater, addressed delegates after the annual report of Houston Harte, prominent Texas publisher and president of the chamber.

Harte, while confining his remarks largely to affairs of the chamber, mentioned forcefully the political situation when he emphasized the need of curbing governmental expenses.

12 ARRESTED.

SWEETWATER, May 12. — Twelve persons were arrested and large quantities of alcohol, beer and whiskey confiscated here today when five Texas rangers, led by Ranger Capt. Albert Mace and Ranger Sergeant M. T. Gonzales, and assisted by local officers raided six establishments.

The administration was soundly defended by Gov. Sterling who said saving of $4,000,000 had now been effected and that by next year the state would be on an even keel. This, he said, would come notwithstanding the administration had a deficit of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 when it opened office.

Statement Soon

"It looks very much like they are planning to make me serve longer than I planned," the governor continued. "I'll have a positive statement soon. I won't keep you waiting very long. For reasons personal to myself, I am withholding it for the present. I just assume you're going to put me back any way."

Governor Sterling said oil has been raised from 5 to 98 cents per barrel in east Texas as a result of martial law. He said auditing of courts had saved the state $500,000 annually.

"I have no apology to make to the people of east Texas or anywhere for sending the national guard to east Texas," said the governor. "It was necessary. They did a good job and I'm proud of the outcome. I'm very proud of our national guard. Brigadier-General Arthur Wolters' cavalry brigade ranks first in the militia service of the nation."

Gov. Sterling's announcement yesterday from Fort Worth that he would seek reelection was widely discussed by the delegates.

OKED WITH SENATOR SMALL

SWEETWATER, May 12. — "That suits me fine," was the comment made here today by State Senator Clint Small, of Wellington, in connection with Gov. Ross Sterling's announcement of his candidacy for re-election.

"I didn't want much to make the race this year," Small, who was an avowed candidate for the office had not Gov. Sterling announced his desire to hold office again. "Conditions are far from ideal."

WITT TOO BUSY FOR COMMENT

WACO, May 12. — Announcement of the candidacy of Gov. Ross Sterling for re-election has come at a time when Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt is too busy with "other matters" to comment on the race he told the United Press today.

"I have no announcement to make," Witt said when asked about Sterling's announcement.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

GUARD YOUR THOUGHTS:—Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Philippians 4: 8.

EXPORTS OF AMERICAN COTTON.

"Exports of American cotton this season will be the largest, with one exception, in 18 years," writes H. D. Stafford, vice president in charge of sales for the American Co-operative association. "In every year since the farm board was created exports have been in excess of any of the nine years from 1915 to 1923. This year the foreign market, which, it was alleged, is being lost for American cotton, will take around two million bales more of American cotton than it did last season. This happened at the same time that our own domestic mills are increasing their consumption practically none."

Vice President Stafford insists that this season has evidence that foreign consumers are ready, or readier than ever, to buy American cotton. It is predicted by the official of the co-operatives that there will be gain at around two million bales exported as compared with the previous year.

HELL RAISER HATCHER IN THE RACE.

There is going to be a battle royal for the domestic nomination for rail commissioner. W. Gregory Hatcher has announced as a candidate subject to the July primary. Col. Hatcher served as state treasurer three terms. He was speedy with his typewriter as well as his tongue and won for himself the title "Hell Raiser" Hatcher. A Virginian by birth, he rode a white bull from the farm to the city of Richmond in his youth to celebrate the election of Grover Cleveland to the presidency. A very interesting personage is the aforesaid "Hell Raiser" Hatcher. He is going to cover the state from the Gulf of Mexico to the Rocky mountain foothills telling the people why he should be elected to the office which he is seeking. July and August days are going to be very warm under the skies of Texas.

DIGGING INTO THE RECORD OF GASTON.

Government sleuths are digging into the records of Gaston B. Means' previous escapades. Their objective point is the vault wherein reposes the $100,000 handed to Gaston by Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington and New York and Denver who enlisted in the army determined to restore the Lindbergh baby to its parents.

Gaston must be a magnetic personage. He must have a most insinuating address. He had the ear of Warren G. Harding and most of his cabinet officers. Former Atty. Gen. Harry M. Daugherty was his close friend and pal. Gaston has been a wizard worker for many years. He has an alibi. He handed the $100,000 to a person whom he supposed to be the representative of the wife of the somewhat noted publisher of American newspapers. Will that alibi go with an American jury?

WHEAT ACREAGE IN THE NORTHWEST.

Theodore Christianson is a republican who was for six years governor of the wheat producing state of Minnesota. Theodore is on the warpath. He says to pay taxes and interest the farmer must plant more wheat. Thus the spring wheat acreage of Minnesota, Montana, and the Dakotas, this year, will be nearly 3,000,000 acres more than in 1931. Get this from the book of Theodore:

"It now takes 1200 bushels of wheat to pay the interest on a $10,000 mortgage; in 1920 it took but 240 bushels." Mortgages are not being paid, according to this former governor, and "there will be no restoration of buying power until prices get high enough to pay debts; and until that power returns unemployment must continue."

Speaking of inflation and the charge that it would defraud the creditor, the voice of Minnesota wheat growers answered, "No. He lent dollars worth a hundred cents. It would be unjust if he should get back dollars with the purchasing power of 200 cents." Well, just now it appears to be the age old contest between the growers and the makers of things—the latter the beneficiaries of the highest tariff in American history and the former clamoring for markets for their surplus products in the nations beyond the seas.

Snake Oil!

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The commencement season is upon us. Within a few days more than 60 young hopefuls will have completed their high school work ready for a job, idleness or college. Each of those odd youngsters had the opportunity for learning much greater than his or her forefathers who were fortunate enough to attend the colleges of their day. They were able to stay in their homes and enjoy greater educational benefits than students of other generations who went away to school.

For all practical purposes in this fast moving civilization of ours their education is sufficient. They have a good foundation for special study, and this is an age of specialization. Such a mass of learning, such an array of vocations have been evolved during the long centuries to contribute to the well-being of our multi-lateral civilization that the "Jack-of-all-Trades" has long ago passed into the limbo of tradition. No one person is capable of retaining all the knowledge pertaining even to one branch of a profession. We are always on the move, learning and doing and never finishing. The wise man or woman does not try to keep in the head what he or she knows. They systematize knowledge and simplify it and learn where to find the facts they need after they have trained themselves to put two and two together and reach an unerring result. Heads crammed with facts may serve as pretty good encyclopedias but they are not always good thinking machines and good thinking machines are essential to success and happiness. In other words they learn to read the markers on the highway and can travel pretty fast.

We all have heard the hard-working parent declare that he purposes to give his son or daughter a good education so that the child will not have to work for a living as the father has had to do. One of the main reasons that we are having such a depression as we are now experiencing is because we tried to get out of working hard. What the fond parent should have said was "I am going to give my son the best education possible so that he can work more intelligently." There is only one way to get a living without work and that is to rely on another's work. This country certainly should not want to curse its citizens with idleness, and if an education means idle subsistence all the money that we have spent upon training youth has been wasted.

The boy or girl who gains knowledge and skill at the expense of society owes to society a fair return upon the investment that has been placed in each of them. Educational costs in America mount into staggering billions and there is no justification for this unless it assures a clear-minded, securer and stronger nation. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing. It is unfortunate that we do not teach understanding along with some of the knowledge we impart. Understanding is a vital component of education.

Some time ago I said that the activities of the Interscholastic league have become one of the most important phases of our Texas educational system. I repeat that statement for the reason that the activities carried on under the banner of the League serve to train the students in the use of the knowledge that they have acquired in the school room. I do not care how much one knows of an art, trade or science, that knowledge is practically useless unless the knower is trained in the application of it.

The carpenter, knowing his tools, must also know how to use them. In that experience is his only teacher. It is surprising to discover in this school of experience the difficulty one must undergo in really mastering his tools. The most brilliant student, having fortified himself with a mass of learning, is chagrined to find that learning awkward in his hands when he plunges into the highly competitive society about him. He finds that the tools have been given him but that master craftsmanship depends upon the acquirement of skill in their use.

The young lawyer, brilliant in academic halls, finds his brilliance attractive but futile against the skill of the veteran solicitor in the courts. The young intern, with high grades to his credit in the university, finds that all the knowledge in the world will not guide his finger unerringly in the wound, or his mind in the diagnosis of a disease. The ability to do these things comes only from the difficulties and disappointments that he meets in actual experience.

The finest lesson that any young student can learn is that hard work, honesty with oneself and constant application to a purpose are the only assurances of success. One does not need to be brilliant to succeed. Glenn Frank, president of Wisconsin university, very wisely said: "I do not cover for my sons any brilliant or any personal magnetism that will open the doors of opportunity to them at a touch. I cover for them firm muscles and hard jaws, the ability to stay with a task an hour after their more brilliant companions have given it up as hopeless."

That at least is the gist of what he said. Our defeats are worth more than our successes.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—A fundamental factor in Democratic presidential politics, which explains the present trend and is likely to explain the result of the convention contest, is the contrast between the strength of Governor Roosevelt's position and the weakness of the position of Al Smith.

There is some question whether Smith's candidacy should be called a candidacy at all. But, whatever it is, it is supposed to be the backbone of the movement to "stop Roosevelt" and if it sags to the point of collapse the "stop-Roosevelt" movement will collapse along with it.

The apparent strength of the Roosevelt position as compared with the weakness of the Smith position seems all the more remarkable when you recall their respective positions four years ago. Smith was the fair-haired hero of Democracy and Roosevelt was the nice fellow who had the privilege of placing him in nomination at the convention.

How Times Have Changed

BUT today—Roosevelt is so far in the lead as a contender for the nomination that, although he is not certain of victory, no one else is more than mentioned as a serious possibility. If he does not enter the convention with a majority of delegates or enough to put him over on the first ballot, he will at least come very close to a majority and if he should lose the nomination he would certainly come near dictating the eventual choice.

The distinguished political analysts who were unanimous in reiterations a few months ago that Smith would control the nomination have all tossed that tune out the window.

He's a Vote-Getter

ROOSEVELT is governor of New York and his party always looks to New York when it has a governor there. He is popular with the voters, as was so well demonstrated in his 1930 re-election majority of 750,000. For years he has been in contact with party leaders—he was once assistant secretary of the party and he has cultivated the contacts rather than let them lapse. He has always been progressive enough to appeal to the more forward looking element of the party now and to provide a contrast with the political philosophy of President Hoover and most other aspirants.

His popularity extends through all sections. He has few bitter enemies. One does not mean to suggest that the masses of voters are rising up spontaneously to demand Roosevelt, but his strength is spread over the country and not sectional.

The Name's Attractive

HIS name is attractive to voters and, as a former government official and lately governor of the largest state, he is experienced in large public affairs. His general availability, from almost any standpoint, is obvious. There is a debit side of the picture, of course, but this summary, coupled with the fact that Democrats are above all else anxious to pick a winner will help explain why Roosevelt is marching along to what looks more and more like victory.

Al Smith on the other hand, has let himself for plenty of criticism and a loss of prestige. He announced that he appreciated the efforts of his friends to elect Smith delegates, but has done or said nothing to indicate that he considered himself a candidate or hopes to win. The result is that while Smith's friends are permitted to use his name they are very seriously handicapped in all their efforts by a widespread belief that Smith only entered the picture in order to help the movement to block Roosevelt.

The New Hampshire Case

WHETHER this common attitude toward Smith is entirely fair is beside the point. It represents a distinct comedown for Smith which is accentuated by such events as his defeat in the New Hampshire primary, in which Smith's name was entered after the leaders virtually had it rigged up for Roosevelt. And whenever the political stature of a rival leader such as Smith or Speaker Garner seems to diminish, Roosevelt automatically looms larger in proportion.

100 per cent progressive, ask yourself if it does not mirror yourself. It is edited especially for you. How many columns of advertising does it carry? Are its editorials carping or constructive? All these things intimately concern you. If it does not carry a representative volume of advertising it is perhaps because local traders believe that everybody knows them. If you believe that you are too well known to need advertising try to ask the way to the leading store in your home-town. You will be surprised to find how many people reply, "I can't say, sir. I am a stranger in these parts."

JONES TO OPEN CAMPAIGN AT COMANCHE

Formal opening of the campaign of District Attorney Joe Jones of Eastland for congress from this district will take place in Comanche Saturday afternoon when he will speak at the courthouse at 2:30 o'clock.

How the people's money is being wasted by congress and what can be done to relieve the people of the present economic hardships will be discussed by Jones, who is an eloquent and entertaining speaker.

He has made a swing through the seventeenth district and finds an encouraging response to his slogan, "A Change Won't Hurt."

A large crowd is expected to hear the opening of Jones' campaign. Many citizens of Eastland county planning to attend.

During his boyhood and early manhood, Jones lived in Gorman, only a mile from the Comanche county line, and he has many friends in the county where he used to take part in exciting baseball games and has participated in the trial of important cases in later years. Jones' career has been spectacular.

From shining shoes in a Gorman barbershop as a lad, he has become one of the best known and most vigorous prosecuting attorneys in Texas, having conducted such trials as the Santa Claus bank robbery, the Shook brothers murder at Leray and the Cisco gravel pit murder case.

When Judge Thomas L. Blanton, present congressman, visited in Gorman years ago, Jones shined his shoes. While in high school, Jones recalls that Blanton made a speech to his class in which Blanton said: "Boys study hard and apply yourselves because some of these days one of you boys will have to take my place." This speech inspired Jones to become a lawyer and to aspire to go to congress. Now he is campaigning with the war cry, "Send a fresh soldier to Washington."

In 3 months I reduced from 205 to 179 pounds and feel stronger than ever—no more wheezing or gasping for breath — friends say I look 100 per cent better."

Bear in mind, you fat man, that there is danger in too much fat — try the safe way to reduce—one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats and sweets —one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—get it at Moore Drug Co. or any drug store in the world.—Adv.

DALLAS GIRL IS HAILED AS GREAT SINGER

DALLAS, May 12. — A pretty Dallas girl recognized by the crew of a freighter as an able-bodied seaman and hailed as one of the few natural mezzo-sopranos in the country, is following in the footsteps of Marion Talley, Kansas farm girl who once sang in Metropolitan opera and retired.

But 22-year-old Elizabeth Gerard, who like Miss Talley was sent away from her home for training with funds supplied by fellow-citizens, has no thought of retiring.

Music lovers, of Dallas who raised $10,000 for Miss Gerard's education abroad, after her "welcome home" recital recently hailed her as one of the southwest's finest singers.

Miss Gerard and her mother returned to this country early this year aboard a freighter. Stormy seas tossed the ship, but the auburn haired Dallas girl was on deck and about the ship daily. She left ship in New York with an "A. B.'s" ticket in her pocket, given her by the crew.

Miss Gerard's home-coming recital was given exactly four years to the day after her going-away recital. It was the night of May 4.

Talent Plus Work

Miss Gerard's success has been achieved because of natural talent plus hard work.

Her mother, the former Miss Waitt Evans of Abilene, Tex., wanted her daughter to become a dancer. Mrs. Gerard was pianist in a dancing school here. Miss Gerard conceded and was once hailed as a coming dancer. Then one day she made her first trip down town alone and came back with sheet music for which she had expended all her allowance money. From then on she studied music.

The opportunity of singing before Giorgio Polacco, then musical director of the Chicago Opera company, which was secured by the girl's mother after much difficulty was almost lost when Miss Gerard could not be found. Her mother thought she was at a theater, and one theater manager whose name is now forgotten complied with the excited mother's request to have Elizabeth paged. She was in the audience, and Polacco said that the girl's voice was the finest he had heard in 15 years. His criticism and advice resulted in the education fund being raised.

A recital in Fort Worth and another later in Waco are planned.

UPSIDE DOWN WOMAN CURED BY PHYSICIANS

LONDON, May 12.—The extraordinary case of a woman who spelled backwards, and read books and drew pictures upside down, is recorded in the current "Lancet," British medical journal, by Dr. R. Eager and Dr. J. W. Fisher, of the Devon Mental Hospital.

After a cure by hypnosis, the woman found that she was unable to read passages which she had written before her treatment.

The woman, a house servant in Devonshire, was subject to such trembling of the hands that she broke more than the usual number of cups and saucers. After an illness, she was committed to the hospital for examination. She had previously been classed as a congenital mental defective.

In the hospital, failure of speech necessitated her writing her wants on a slate, but the nurses could not understand the script. Each word was written backward, though put down from left to right in the customary manner and with the right hand. The letters were correctly oriented, though in reverse sequence.

Thus, requested to write "policeman," she put down "nameitlop"; for "Devon" she spelled "Noved";

SOLO PIANIST WALKS STREET AND PRACTICES

By MARTIN KANE
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON, May 12.—A pianist, who practices his art while walking along the street, is Jesus Maria Sanroma.

Sanroma, who holds the unique position of solo pianist to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, a post created especially for him by Conductor Serge Koussevitzky, does much of his practicing mentally — away from the piano.

"Often," he says, "I take a walk and go through a composition. This is a great help to memorizing. I can't explain how I do it, for I don't see my fingers striking the notes, but in my mind I seem to be playing the music."

Stuck on Chopin

"I remember once when I was to play a Chopin piece and didn't feel very sure of it. As I walked along the street I went through the whole business in my mind. At one place I got stuck and couldn't get out of the difficulty. As soon as I could lay my hands on the music I turned to that part, saw what was wrong, and it never bothered me again."

Sanroma was born in Porto Rico 28 years ago. At nine he had shown such remarkable gifts for the piano that he was hailed as a boy prodigy and toured the island in concerts. Governor Yager of Porto Rico became interested in the result was a two years' government scholarship to study in the United States.

He studied in Boston under David Sequeira and then under Madame Admamsowska-Szumowska at the New England Conservatory of Music.

Studied in Europe

He then studied in Europe for two years under Schnabel and Toch, concertized with great success and got particular enjoyment out of a concert visit to his Spanish parents' native Catalonia. He returned to Boston in February, 1929, becoming the first official pianist in the 50 years' history of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Sanroma's intimates call him "chu-chu," common Spanish nickname for "Jesus." He does not think jazz will die but that "it will advance and refine, and good will come of it."

A SOW WAS HANGED FOR MURDER, AND HER SIX PIGS WERE PROSECUTED AS ACCOMPLICES. .. 1932 ..

ANDREW JACKSON,
IN HIS DUEL WITH CHARLES DICKINSON, PURPOSELY WORE A COAT SEVERAL SIZES TOO LARGE, AND DICKINSON MISJUDGED THE LOCATION OF HIS HEART.

ANDREW JACKSON knew that his opponent was one of the best pistol shots in Tennessee, and that he, Jackson, would be hit first. Being an extremely thin man, he dressed himself in a large, loose-fitting frock coat, hoping that it would mislead Dickinson as he aimed for the heart. The plan worked out just that way. Dickinson's bullet went where he aimed, but Jackson's heart was not there. Only a rib was broken.

IN OLDEN TIMES it was quite the custom to punish animals for crimes. In France, a sow was convicted of murdering a child, and was hanged. Her six pigs were accused of being accomplices, but were acquitted because of lack of evidence.

all words were similarly reversed. In mathematics, she wrote all the figures upside down, and did the same thing in drawing elementary objects like dogs, cats, and houses. In cleaning up a room she turned pictures and vases upside down.

After certain tests of vision based on the theory that the psychic shock which had temporarily deprived her of speech had upset the co-ordination of other closely related centers of the brain, the physicians put the patient under light hypnosis.

The cure seems to have been complete, and the woman has spent a large part of her time lately writing normal letters to her friends, ridiculing her previous eccentricities.

THE NOISE OF THE ERUPTION OF THE VOLCANO KRAKATOA TRAVELED AROUND THE GLOBE THREE TIMES.

AN OSTRICH LAID TWO EGGS WITHIN THIRTY MINUTES. MARCH, 1932

The AIR WOULD APPEAR AS BLACK SPACE IF IT WERE ENTIRELY FREE OF THE "FINY PARTICLES" WHICH IT CONTAINS.

© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. 4-23

THE ERUPTION OF KRAKATOA, in 1883, was heard 3000 miles away, like the roar of distant guns. Delicate instruments recorded the sound waves three separate times, as they passed round and round the globe from their starting place in the Sunda Strait. EVERY CUBIC INCH OF AIR contains thousands of minute particles. Even pure air has them. If they were not present, there would be nothing to deflect the light rays.

QUEENIE, an ostrich in the Detroit zoo, laid over six pounds of eggs inside a half hour. Ordinarily, an ostrich lays only one to two dozen eggs in a season, with several days between each egg.

VETERAN ENDS 40 YEARS WITH ARMY MAY 23

FT. WORTH, May 12. — A 57-year-old colonel who joined the army "just for the fun of it," will complete forty years of military service on May 23.

The quest of adventure started Col. Allen F. McLean on a military career that carried him through two major wars, landed him in foreign capitals as a government representative and in 1922 brought him an assignment as official translator at the Washington naval limitations conference.

As a youth, barely 18, he "stretched" his age to 21 to join the Connecticut State Militia at Norwich, Conn. That was May 23, 1882. The same spirit of adventure caused him to resign as captain in the Second Ohio Cavalry to enlist as a private in Brig. Gen. T. M. Anderson's forces assigned to the Philippines at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war.

A military life that fourteen times took him across the Pacific Ocean was nearly blighted in peaceful tactics in 1904 when he was thrown from his horse while assigned to the First Cavalry at Marfa. His back broken and his hip crushed.

Lay in Hospital

For 23 months, the man who had seen much action in the field, without serious mishap, lay in a hospital at Fort Sam Houston and Hot Springs.

He was transferred to Fort Worth as head of the military science and tactics department in the city's schools.

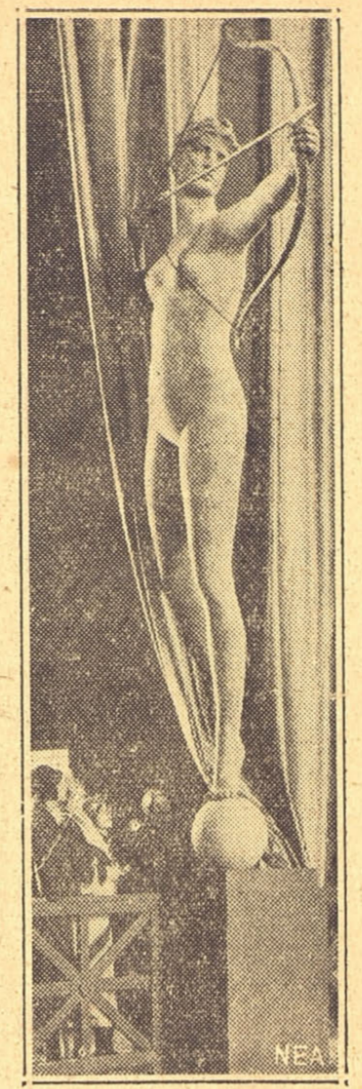

His hair-silvery supporting himself with a cane, he goes about his less strenuous duties with a gusto of leading a cavalry charge.

Colonel McLean was born in Philadelphia, April 2, 1875. The lure of the cavalry caught his youthful fancy. Joining Anderson's forces as a private, he was a sergeant at the close of the Philippine expedition. He received his commission as second-lieutenant in 1902.

After two trips on garrison duty to the Philippines, he was assigned to the American Embassy at Tokio in 1914. In 1917 he returned to the United States, joined the Third Cavalry and spent two years in France. There was elevated from captain to colonel.

A soldier, yes, but Colonel McLean hates war.

Liana Hunts --- For a Home

Though noted as a huntress, Diana finds spring house-hunting is no joke. Evicted from New York's old Madison Square Garden when that famous structure was razed, she has been wandering for several years and now has found temporary quarters in the Philadelphia Art Museum, where you see her here. She's still hunting for a permanent home for herself and her bow and arrow.

LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTES
"It's Toasted"

INHALING has long been an "untouchable" a "sacred cow"! Why? . . . Because in every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

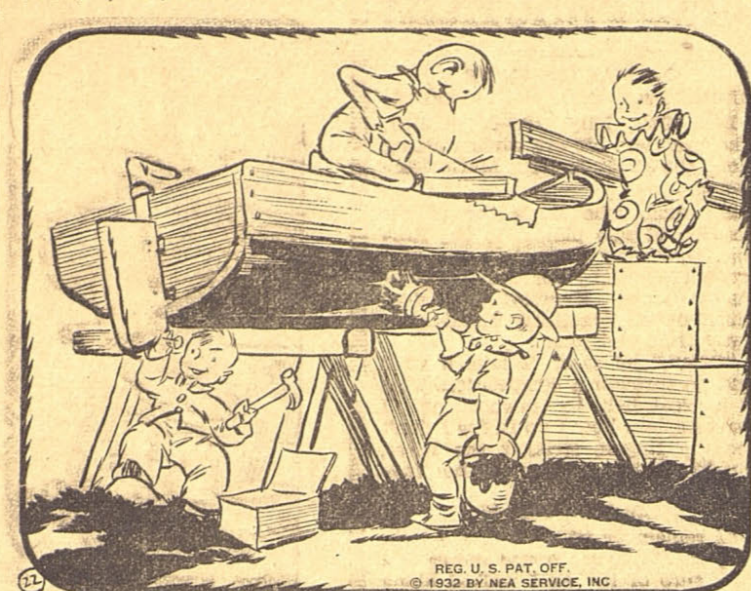

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, we all inhale some part of the smoke from our cigarette—Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

Now that the sky cop's his way, let's all join in a bit of play," said Scouty. "I like hide and seek. To start the game, I'm 'it.'"

"I'll count one hundred. Then I'll shout, I'm coming now, so all look out! Thank goodness, while I'm counting I can flop and rest a bit."

"We've run a lot and there's no doubt that running makes you all tired out. Let's play about a half an hour and then all take a snooze."

A skinny said, "That plan sounds great. But, come, let's play! Why hesitate? If we are going to have some fun there is no time to lose."

The game went on until they all from tiredness, were about to fall. Wee Duncy dropped down by a tree and said, "I'll play no more."

The others drifted to his side. "Well, mighty night," wee Windy cried. In just about a minute the whole bunch began to snore.

MENUS FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
 NEA Service Writer

With the picnic season upon us, the question of "how much" becomes important—how many sandwiches, how big a cake, how much salad, how much lemonade and coffee.

Outdoor appetites are usually above normal, and for service "a la buffet" larger quantities may be needed. But if the cook calculates on the basis of the needs of her own family, she can arrive at a fair conclusion.

The following calculations are estimated for the average occasion but may help in gauging the quantities required for individual needs:

One large cake ten inches in diameter will serve 16 persons.

One loaf of sandwich bread will make 24 sandwiches which have been cut in half.

Two-thirds cup creamed butter will spread both sides of 24 sandwiches.

One pint sandwich filling will fill 24 sandwiches.

One quart of salad will serve 10 persons.

One four-pound chicken will yield about three cups of diced meat.

One 2 1/2 pound lobster will yield when boiled enough meat for one quart of salad in combination with other material.

One-half pound of coffee and four quarts of boiling water will make enough of the beverage to serve 15 people.

One and one-half dozen lemons will make lemonade to serve 20 to 25 persons, depending largely on the size and juiciness of the fruit.

One quart of a frozen mixture

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Strawberries, cereal, cream, ham omelet, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Onion and celery soup, toast sticks, cottage cheese and shredded vegetable salad, date and nut bread sandwiches, lemonade.
DINNER: Veal loaf with mushroom sauce, potatoes in parsley butter, new asparagus, cress with French dressing, pineapple shortcake, milk, coffee.

will serve six to eight persons. When ice cream means the main part of the refreshments a larger serving is needed.

One pound of salted nuts will serve 25 persons.

One pound of cold-boiled ham will serve six to eight persons, and one pound of meat loaf will provide for about the same number.

These suggestions are made with a balanced picnic meal in mind. If baked beans, potato salad, cold-boiled ham, meat loaf, meat sandwiches, cheese sandwiches, pie, cake and cookies are all in evidence with lemonade, ice cream and watermelon for the "grand finale," the quantity of each viand should be very small indeed.

"Charleston Special" For 15 Days 5 for 25c; 50c per dozen WALTON'S STUDIO

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY Susan Carey is in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son. Denise Ackroyd, society girl, tries to break up the attachment and succeeds at a house party which she gives, Ernest Heath, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of his affections but changes her mind when Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, produces an incriminating letter. Ray Flannery, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "Sky" Webb has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrel on a Christmas Eve over some home. Denise learns of her interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce decree becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security. Ben follows Susan and Heath and shoots at the latter, wounding him slightly. Then Ben turns the gun on himself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

When Jack Waring took Denise Ackroyd away from the Gledidines' party on New Year's eve he had formulated an exact plan. He was by nature a meddler and his quick prying mind had seized on the little drama as something entertaining. He could see the triangle: Susan, the poor working girl; Denise, the spoiled child of fortune; and young Robert Dunbar, whom each hoped to win. The visit to Tony's proved rather dull. There had been too much noise and the overheated place had made them both ill-tempered with out quite knowing why. The man had learned little more of the story. He was determined however to know the rest. Driving back in the cold air he said lazily to the girl. "When shall I see you again?" The pale, petulant face stared straight ahead. The childish, fretful voice answered sleepily. "Don't know. Never, probably, the way I feel now. That champagne Laura fed us must have been poison. I feel wretched."

"That," countered Jack Waring, "was the lobster you insisted having at Tony's. And the ice cream." "It was the champagne," Denise insisted solemnly. "That's my story and I'll stick to it." "You're a little muddle, aren't you?" asked the man, laughing. Denise drew her wrap around her regally. "We Ackroyds have wills of our own," she said so pompously that Waring could scarcely manage to maintain his gravity. More than ever now he was certain she had been reading Michael Arlen.

"And do you always get what you want?" He was very grave. "Yes, we do," she eyed him suspiciously. "Why do you want to know?" "Oh, I was just wondering." He steered the talk into other channels. It was a week later that he met Bob Dunbar in the drawing room of the Ackroyd's apartment in town. High above the outer drive it was, with great windows overlooking the lake. Denise was entertaining. The room was filled with beautifully dressed girls and bored looking young men. "You know Bobby, don't you?" Denise said. "Yes, of course." The two men shook hands. Waring thought the boy looked thinner and older than when he had last seen him.

"Denise said, 'I'm warning you! Don't climb into a corner and talk business, because I won't have too many females.' She drifted on to another group, a slim exotic figure in a black frock that molded every line of her figure. "She looks lovely today, doesn't she?" Waring asked. "Who? Oh, yes, Denise." The boy focused himself from some abstraction to reply. Waring appraised him shrewdly. That he was not in love with this girl was plain to the dullest onlooker.

"It's my job to find out just how the land lies," Waring observed to himself. Skillfully he led the talk around to the office. The house at Half-Day was working out interestingly, wasn't it? He had some new plans sketched for the stables. He would like Bob to stop by the office some day and see them. Keenly he watched the boy's eyes. Some new emotion darkened them for the instant. "Yes, Bob said. He'd do that. Waring was shrewdly silent. "By the way," blurted Bob. "I don't suppose Miss Carey is still with you. She was married, wasn't she?"

Waring did not need to assume astonishment. "Married? No, of course not. What put that into your head?" "I was given to understand," Bob said slowly. "Wait a minute — let me think this out. I was certainly told she was going to be married to that orchestra fellow and go to California." Waring shrugged. "I've heard nothing about it," he said, "and I don't believe there's a word of truth in it since she's not the sort of girl to leave without giving notice. Who told you?" he pursued again. "Honestly, I don't know," Bob said, but involuntarily his gaze strayed to the little group of which Denise was the center. She was being very gay this afternoon. She was in her element. O pasty-faced fellow who had earlier advertised a vague connection with the latter was telling a story and Denise's shrill laughter was the noisiest of all.

"Let's clear out of this," Bob muttered. "We'll never be missed and I know a way we can slip out through the service entrance without being caught." Waring agreed, smiling to himself over the success of his shot. They swung along Michigan avenue side by side. The winter wind seemed good after the scented, hot-house atmosphere they had just left. Bob squared his shoulders and Waring, glancing sidewise at the fine profile, applauded Susan's taste. "Do you mind if I stop in tomorrow morning to look at those things?" Bob asked him at parting. "About 11?" "Not at all. That will be splendid," Waring told him heartily. As he went back to the hotel where he lived he felt a glow of conscious righteousness. "I was a Boy Scout before," he reflected. "Now it looks as though I am going to be a blooming cupid."

America's Colony of

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE. change. The younger generation is tired of living in an atmosphere of 200 years ago, under customs like those that existed when the sect was founded in Germany in 1714. They want automobiles, movies, electric lights, radios and other modern things that the ancient laws of the colony forbid. Ambitious ones among the young members also want a chance to get ahead in the world. They are tired of seeing individual industries and initiative stifled under a system that offered no more than the bare necessities of life. Already, the change has begun. The women's kitchens in the seven villages of the colony, where the women took turns at cooking the food, have been abandoned. Members now dine in their homes instead of in the community dining halls, where the men sat on one side of the room and the women on the other. The ancient bells in the meeting houses which summoned three generations of colonists to their work in the community fields every day except Sunday are silent now for the first time in 90 years. They are now planting individual gardens. It is hard to tell now how many changes in social customs will follow the changes in economic methods at Amama colony, but these doubtless will be equally revolutionary. For one thing, the young people of the community are said to be very much dissatisfied with the present system of marriages in which all engagements must be approved by a vote of the trustees. After the engagement is approved, the girl and the boy must live in separate villages for one year prior to the ceremony and conduct no courtship of any kind. The chief object of the ancient rules of the colony which requires them to wear the plainest of dresses and wear their hair in braids. Some, bolder than the rest, have already bobbed their hair and modernized their attire, despite the protests of the gray-bearded elders that such things are "sinful." The Amama colony traces its origin to a religious organization founded in Germany in 1714. It added communism to its program when the group established itself in this country in 1842, on a 5000-acre tract near Buffalo, N. Y. In 1854 they sold their lands at a profit and moved to Iowa. It is not only the oldest experiment in "pure" communism in the United States, but has been the most successful. For many years it prospered while similar colonies, promoted by other religious sects, tried it and failed. It continued to prosper until a few years ago, when the third generation began to lose interest in the religious fervor that had inspired their forefathers in founding it. Under the rules of the colony, all property was held in common and the proceeds administered by the trustees. The latter selected youths for doctors, dentists and teachers and sent them to college at the colony's expense, but upon graduation they were required to return and serve the community. Families lived in community-owned houses, each person over 16 being entitled to a private room. Meals were cooked in community kitchens, serving in community dining halls. Furniture and clothing was supplied by community-owned factories, as were blankets manufactured by the Amama colonists in their blanket factory. These blankets also have found a ready sale on the open market and added greatly to the colony's income. Everything else that the colonists needed for their daily lives was bought for them by the trustees out of the general fund.

dropping to very low levels and with no chance of a comeback. A democratic house was coming in as successor for a republican lame duck congress. A senate controlled by democrats and progressive republicans was to cooperate with a democratic house and the work of saving the nation by balancing the budget, economy slashing all along the line in the matter of appropriations and a revenue producing measure placed where the public goose would not squawk when its feather were pulled, were to wipe out a huge deficit and maintain the mighty American dollar at a premium all around the world. Time in its flight makes changes. There are cycles of time as well as business. In March of this year the Hoover political barometer continued to fall. There was gloom in the republican administration camp and the political undertakers had ordered crepe for the White House door. Well, things have been happening. Congress has been grinding. A sales tax was defeated by the house, and all the happenings have shown to the world of men that a world-wide depression cannot be throttled in a day by a presidential Moses or the lawmakers of a nation. As time rolled on the people began to forget their burdens and began to feel sorry for the man in the White House who had been held responsible for all economic disturbances under the flag. Why was he held responsible? Well, the leaders of the republican party for years and years claimed credit for all the prosperity which had come upon the people and for placing the American nation at the head of the procession of governments the world over. Then came the mightiest crash in history. If the republicans were responsible for all the prosperity of the ages of American life, likewise they were responsible for the depression which had been caused by a world slump in finance and commerce and trade. Indeed, the philosophy of the psychologist is responsible for the Hoover political barometer making slow progress upward. He was reputed to be a multi-millionaire when the crash came. He was in the pink of condition and his cheeks were rosy. Now it is said that like thousands of others his fortune slumped as values slumped and the lines in his face indicate that he has aged 10 years in as many months as the chief magistrate. All this is winning sympathy for the man. All this has convinced many thinking people that the vand of a mythical magician, Hoover or any other political conjurer, cannot brush the dark clouds away and create prosperity by official messages, or glittering generalities or laws which would create wealth in a single day or restore the almost fabulous conditions which erstwhile existed under the American flag and the flags of the world. Irish Solons May Go Dry BELFAST, Ireland May 12. — Thirsty legislators in the North of Ireland may find themselves in the same position as their American confreres on Capitol Hill when the new Parliament House opens next autumn. The Prime Minister, Lord Craigavon, announced notions ago the Cabinet's decision that there would be neither beer, nor bar, in the new House of Commons. Alarm, indignation, and protest met this statement. Two days later the Joint Kitchen and Refreshment Rooms committee brought in a recommendation that members might be served alcoholic refreshments in the members' dining room. Under the declaration that the Cabinet had no power to override this Parliamentary committee, a situation arose which some of the more conservative sections of opinion here have called "piquant." Colonel E. G. Sherman Crawford, a former member of the Imperial House of Commons, declared in the Senate that members who wanted a glass of beer at lunch should have it. Others did not agree with him. Ad decision one way or another is awaited with interest and in some quarters not a little anxiety.

STARS, in their youth, are red. Later on, they become yellow. In middle age, they are blue and white, and as old age comes, stars again appear red. Red, then, is the color of both infancy and old age. . . . But young red stars are large, while old ones are small. THE BITE OF THE Tsetse fly conveys to the human system a small protozoan parasite that causes sleeping sickness, and large areas in Africa are uninhabitable because of this insect. It once was supposed that the bite of the fly itself was poisonous, but experiments have proved that it is not. Horses, cattle and dogs die when bitten by it, but wild animals and sucking calves seem not to be affected.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD. A bard of olden has written into the literature of the ages that "coming events cast their shadows before." In less than 60 days the conventions of the great political parties of America will be grinding out national standard bearers and platforms for the aforesaid standard to stand on, walk on or run from. There are political barometers as well as barometers of finance and commerce. Herbert Hoover will be given the republican nomination by acclamation. He has sufficient delegates from the 48 states and territories to nominate him on the first ballot. Indeed, there will be no opposition if the political signs have been correctly interpreted by the makers of delegates to the national convention. A year ago President Hoover was heartily and roundly criticized not only by democrats but by independent republicans as well as many leaders and rank and file of his own party. Everywhere in the North and East and the South and the West the Hoover political barometer was dropping to a very low level and so great was his unpopularity that everywhere wise leaders of the republican party, especially the leaders of finance and commerce, were quietly seeking for a Davies or a Coolidge as the standard bearer for 1932. He was jibed by the press; he was berated by the spokesmen of his own party; he was classified as an exploded man of mystery, or a mythical personage made by propaganda by democrats the nation over and all in all it was prophesied that he would be a one term president. Then came, A Demo House. A political barometer has its high levels; it has its medium levels; it has its low levels which indicate defeat and despair. It was the same last fall. Indeed, the psychology of the hour was that Hoover stock was
