Record Increase in U. S. Oil Production Is Reported

498,000-BBL. HIKE IN ETEX OUTPUT CITED

TULSA, Okla., May 2.—The largest increase in crude oil production in the history of the petroleum industry was marked up last week when flood gates of the huge east Texas field were thrown open. The Oil and Gas Journal reported today. Today national production was up 510,557 barrels to 2,515,320 barrels daily. An increase of 498,020 barrels daily in the east Texas field accounted for most of the national increase. Daily production in other Texas pools changed little. West Texas produced 157,862; North Central Texas 75,247, and the Texas panhandle 48,335.

SENATE TO BEGIN HEARING ON BILL

AUSTIN, May 2.—Fate of the house bill to create a new oil governing body today rested in a committee of the whole of the senate which began a hearing on the bill this afternoon. Test votes in the senate indicated sufficient strength to kill it, despite the support given in a message by the governor.

The bill provides for an elective oil and gas supervisory body and the immediate ousting of the railroad commission from that function. It would give the governor power to appoint a temporary body to serve until the next general election. The governor offered to share that appointive power with the speaker of the house and the lieutenant-governor. Opponents of the bill, however, appeared certain the measure would be killed. The governor also asked that the railroad commission reduce the 750,000-barrel daily east Texas allowable and declared the commission's order was responsible for ten cents a barrel oil.

THOMPSON SUGGESTS R. F. C. COOPERATION

AUSTIN, May 2.—State Railroad Commissioner E. O. Thompson today suggested that operators can limit production by cooperating with the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation. The plan is for producers to secure funds from that organization on pledges to limit their oil production, just as farmers are obtaining loans on agreements to reduce crop acreage.

HUMBLE WITHDRAWS EAST TEXAS PRICE

HOUSTON, May 2.—The Humble Oil and Refining company today withdrew its posted price for east Texas crude oil. "Excessive production" in east Texas was said by President W. S. Farish to have occasioned withdrawal of the posted price which had been 10 cents a barrel since last Monday. Prices for crude from other Texas and New Mexico fields were slashed from two to 32 cents a barrel. Hereafter the company will pay flat prices only, disregarding the sliding scale based on gravity and paying only what the company considers to be the "going" price for crude.

DOCTOR'S TITLE CHANGED

EL PASO, May 2.—It was unlawful for Dr. Will Rogers to hold the office of assistant health officer of El Paso county so his title was changed to county alienist. His duties remained the same. He is pleased with the title. "It's a good high-sounding name," he said.

"Yes, we are off the gold standard—for the time being," was Secretary of the Treasury Woodin's summation of the administration's economic reconstruction plan. Woodin is shown, surrounded by newspapermen, as he emerged from a conference with President Roosevelt and his cabinet.

FRENCH AWAIT TOURIST INFLUX FROM AMERICA

By LAMAR MIDDLETON United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 2.—Beginning today French hotel-keepers and other purveyors to vacationing tourists took another hitch in their belts and scanned the horizon for the travelers.

Indications are that the customary influx from North and South America will shy away from France. Scouts reported from Cherbourg and Havre that Americans could not be described as darkening the skies.

Many are headed toward the Scandinavian countries, or for Italy and Spain. Only a few were headed for Paris, Deauville, Biarritz and the Riviera.

Despite knowledge that the tourist trade has been headed toward extinction since 1930, Frenchmen are nevertheless chagrined at the small quantity arriving as the season opens. Elaborate preparations had been made everywhere for their reception.

At Cherbourg a $5,000,000 pier has been constructed. This year the government is spending $1,000,000 in the United States for "propaganda."

The interested French hope that the disappointingly few arrivals are merely the harbingers of oncoming hordes later in the season. This year particularly, extraordinary efforts have been made to attract a profitable flock.

Rates in Montmartre have been sharply reduced, and good champagnes can be obtained for as low as $2 a bottle.

But the French realize today that the 1924-29 rush, when in one season as many as 500,000 Americans landed upon French territory, belong to the seasons of the golden past. The 1930 figure for Europe generally was $309,136,000, according to figures of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

This year doubtless will be valued at a figure even lower than 1932's but the French hope that in the next few weeks enough will arrive to pay at least the expenses of opening the season.

SALE INCREASED

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—Sweden's foreign sale of wood for 1933 delivery by the middle of March amounted to 225,000 standards against only 125,000 at the same time last year. The undertone of the international timber market is better than in 1932, according to a report published by the Swedish Wood Exporters Association. The total sales for the past year over 749,000 standards.

4 APPLICANTS FOR CIVILIAN CORPS CHOSEN

Four applicants for places in Uncle Sam's civilian corps, which is now being organized to absorb some of the unemployed of the depression and turn it to useful, reconstructive purposes in reforestation and flood control, have been released by the county R. F. C. relief committee, F. E. Harrell, registration officer, said today. Five young men were registered out to go to Fort Worth, headquarters of this area, but one of the five fell sick of the measles and will probably be displaced by another applicant and sent with a following allotment.

The five were selected upon receipt of instructions from Lawrence Westbrook, of the Texas Relief Commission. A total of 69 has been allotted the county by the commission and quotas of this will be released until the full allotment is reached.

The four boys who went to Fort Worth today for final approval by headquarters here are: Archie B. Martin, Albert B. Cloud, Weldon Calloway, of Cisco, and Fred D. Ford, of Romney. Each of these boys, if they pass physical examinations, will receive board, shelter, clothing and medical attention and $30 per month in payment for their work. Each has agreed to keep only $2.50 of his month's wages, sending the remainder home.

Mr. Harrell said that there are 57 applications on file in his office here. He did not know how many applications were received in other R. F. C. committee offices over the county. These applicants register with the R. F. C. committees here or in other towns of the county, giving names, ages, parents' names and other data. From these lists the committees select those to be sent to Fort Worth. Applicants must be single, between the ages of 18 and 25, of good physical condition and with dependents.

STATE BOND ISSUE LACKS THREE VOTES

AUSTIN, May 2.—The senate resolution for a $20,000,000 state relief bond issue today lacked three votes of adoption.

The vote was 18 to 12. A senate vote of 21 ayes is necessary to submit the measure. It can be brought up repeatedly, however, until the end of the session.

The resolution calls for submitting to statewide vote August 26 the question of issuing the bonds. The senate vote was taken in the face of warning by Lawrence Westbrook, state relief supervisor, that the Reconstruction Finance corporation would not advance May and June funds to Texas until the legislature voted the resolution.

NURSE IS HERE FOR SUMMER CHILD CLINIC

The services of Miss Beatrice Lott, R. N., bureau of child hygiene state department of health, have been secured by the Eastland County Council of Parent-Teacher association. Miss Lott will assist in the Summer Round-Up of children that is being sponsored by the Parent-Teachers groups throughout the state. The ultimate goal is to educate the parents to the need for early periodic examination of their children, by the family physician and dentist, in order to insure cessation of hampering defects which might not otherwise be discovered until the child starts to school.

Each year more than 200,000 children enter the first grade of school in Texas. Many of these children are suffering from some remedial defect that makes it impossible for them to keep pace with their fellow students. It was for this group that the Summer Round-Up was devised. Some of the defects most commonly found are defective vision or hearing, diseased tonsils, adenoids, and decayed teeth. This group should also be protected against smallpox and diphtheria. Out of 5,432 children examined last year there were found 9,611 defects; teeth and tonsils were the largest offenders being responsible for over four thousand defects.

Mrs. L. E. Ledbetter, state chairman of the Summer Round-Up, states that Texas has always been among the leaders in this movement. In 1931 Texas had more associations registered than any state in the union, while last year Texas lacked two registrations of leading in the United States. This interest shows that Texans realize that a child must be healthy to do satisfactorily school work and enjoy life.

Miss Lott will begin the examinations of the round-up at the West Ward school here on Friday of this week. She has urged the parents of all children who will attend school for the first time next fall to bring them to the clinic.

Experts See Playground as Important Factor in Recovery from Depression

By VERNON A. MCGEE United Press Staff Correspondent

FORT WORTH, May 2.—America must play as it never has before. The nation's recovery from the depression and its adjustment to a changing economic order will take place on the play-ground as much as in steel mills, factories, or the offices of big business.

That is the opinion of three experts in social trends who have prescribed recreation as a mental tonic to allay feverish worry over the rent, insurance premiums and mortgage payments.

Mrs. Mary K. Brown, field representative of the National Association of Community Chests, Washington, believes that most of the suffering nowadays is mental. Her district covers the southwest.

Fosters picturing a ragged urchin who looks hungrily into a baker's window may be the impetus for public contributions to chest funds. But only 20 per cent of such funds are expended for food to relieve the hungry.

LIVELY G. O. P. SENATE RACE SEEN IN UTAH

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY United Press Staff Correspondent

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 2.—Utah is brewing an interesting political fight involving among others, Reed Smoot, for 30 years U. S. Senator and a high-ranking Mormon churchman.

Smoot, a potent factor in the administrations of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, has caused the campaign to command national attention.

It centers around the seat of Senator King, democrat, who comes up for re-election in 1934. That King will be renominated may be taken for granted.

For a time it was assumed that J. Reuben Clark, Jr., former Ambassador to Mexico, would renew his senatorial ambitions, but that seems definitely out now as Clark was named second counselor of the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) church at this year's general conference.

The virtual self-elimination of Clark leaves Smoot and Frank Evans, former member of the Federal Farm board, in the republican line-up. Neither has admitted a desire to run, but neither have they denied their intention to run.

Smoot's defeat in the last election was surprising, although in line with the state's attitude. The democratic ticket swept everything before it. This gave Utah a democratic governor and solidly democratic congressional delegation for the first time in history.

A change in national and state sentiment is the hope of the republicans. The church, contrary to accepted belief outside the state, is not involved as Senator King, Senator Thomas and the three representatives also are Mormons.

S. M. U. Savants To Speak Here

IMPROVEMENT IS REPORTED BY RESERVE BANK

DALLAS, May 2.—Despite interruptions caused by the banking holiday, business and industrial activity in the eleventh federal reserve district was well sustained during March, according to the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas, issued Monday.

The review said that department store sales in March were 18 per cent larger than in the previous month, although they were 21 per cent under the corresponding month of last year.

"All reporting lines of wholesale trade showed an increase in business between February and March, which was in part seasonal, and in some lines the declines from a year ago were smaller than in the previous month," said the review.

"A better feeling is in evidence throughout the trade," it continues, "and consumer buying is showing some improvement. Reports indicate business in both wholesale and retail channels held up well in the first half of April and in some instances closely approximated the volume of the same period last year."

It is pointed out that that banking operations gradually resumed a more normal proportion during the past month. The daily average of combined net demand and time deposits of federal reserve banks in this district amounted to $602,323,000 in March, 1932.

The review said conditions in agricultural and livestock industries were generally favorable during the past month. Except in a few areas, moisture is said to be ample, although recent north winds have dried out the surface moisture.

Permits Higher The review says valuations of building permits in a majority of principal cities were substantially higher in March than in February, although the combined total of all cities reporting was 10 per cent lower than the preceding month.

"Production of crude oil in this district was at a high level during March, the total reported amounting to 2,773,950 barrels," the report said. "This compares with 24,686,200 barrels in the previous months, and 28,069,300 barrels in the same month last year. Although a material part of the increase over February was ascribable to the 3-day longer month, there was nevertheless a considerable rise of 78,800 barrels in the daily average output. Of the 437 new wells completed during March, 285 were successful and had an initial flush output of 1,126,900 barrels."

(By United Press) At least 100 persons were killed in tornadoes which swept the midwest and south yesterday, United Press dispatches showed today. The death list was expected to run higher when communications were restored to isolated communities in the path of the storm.

The worst storm tore through southern Arkansas and northwestern Louisiana. Minden, La., suffered most severely with known deaths at 80 and a large residential district almost wiped out. Most of the victims were Negroes. The same storm killed seven persons at Calhoun, Ark., and six at Arcadia, La.

Another twister swept a small area along the Missouri-Arkansas border killing four persons.

Three deaths were reported from a heavy windstorm in Illinois. Two children were missing at Canton and were believed to be dead.

Hundreds of persons were injured and heavy property damage to farms and villages was reported.

President Roosevelt has given congress a full speed ahead signal. He has asked the lawmakers to complete their program and adjourn before the world economic conference in London June 12.

In the two months that the administration has been in office it has accomplished more than the average administration has achieved in a full four-year term.

A STATE BOND ISSUE.

The Texas senate has engrossed a resolution proposing a $20,000,000 bond issue, proceeds of which would be used to relieve unemployment in the state.

Now the Reconstruction Finance corporation has announced that in the future the states must give as well as receive. They must "help themselves" if they expect to be helped.

They are the people who always suffer first when hard times come and retrenchment sets in. They are at the mercy of every wind that blows.

Bond issues and federal gifts to provide employment because there is no employment is the lesser of two evils.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — The topsyturviest of all the table-turnings that have been effected in this "new deal" administration is the appointment of John Collier as commissioner of Indian affairs.

A large number of Indian Bureau employees find themselves in the position of a fellow who suddenly learns that his most hated enemy has become president of his company.

For 10 years Collier has been the scourge of the Indian Bureau. He has attacked it ably and effectively, exposing the political machine which made Indian administration a national scandal.

away self-dependence and encourages the dole system. While it is being used leaders and legislators should bend every energy to effect fundamental relief measures.

Only when it is possible to remove this "relief," only when it is possible for the worker to get a job because the job needs him and not because he needs the job will something approaching prosperity come back.

But there must be no fiddling then.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, May 2 — Next to the document declaring Texas' independence, which rests in a glass-encased niche in the corridor of the state capitol, Austin visitors show keenest interest in the battle flag of Sam Houston.

The flag is exhibited in a frame behind a protecting glass. It is not the Lone Star flag which later became the emblem of the Republic of Texas. It is a picture flag.

Upon it is the likeness of a woman with a Greek profile and flowing Grecian garments that reveal much of the torso. In her outstretched left hand is a sword. Fastened to its hilt is a ribbon upon which appears the legend "Liberty or Death," which with "Remember the Alamo"

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONICA O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, is in love with DAN CARBON, one of the town's rich young men. At a local dancing place where she has gone with Dan she meets her friend, SANDRA LAWRENCE, with a handsome and mysterious newcomer, CHARLES EUSTACE.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

SOMETHING in the policeman's tone stiffened Monica's trembling backbone. She actually managed a laugh. "Bill arrested?" she echoed. "But that's absurd."

Bill's dark frown relaxed the moral trifle and Monnie had the satisfaction of seeing her mother straighten, look at her bravely. Absurd—of course it was absurd. Bill O'Dare under arrest. Why, he'd lived in Belvedere all his 22 years. He was honest as the day was long! Everybody knew that.

"Absurd, is it?" he bellowed. "And who, may I ask, are you?" "I'm his sister," Monica said, bringing the full battery of her flashing amber eyes to rest upon him.

"Several people began to talk at once. The big man silenced them. "Maybe you don't know," he began truculently. "That there's been a robbery down at the gas station—an' a big one. Maybe you don't know this young feller let them get away. Maybe you don't know we have positive evidence he conspired with them payroll thieves—"

The veins in Bill's forehead were swollen painfully. His scornful blue eyes flashed defiance. Was it fear that lurked behind those blue eyes? No, Monnie would not entertain that thought for a single minute!

"What evidence?" she demanded staunchly. "He was seen at Black Tree Inn with a lot of them last night," said the big man, enjoying the drama of this announcement. "He knew them. He was in on it. He left there early and he won't say where he went and who he was with. Guess that sounds guilty, don't it?"

Bill said thickly, fiercely, "That's a lie!" "It's not a lie you were drinkin' with the lot of them at the Inn?" "No." The monosyllable was wrenched from Bill. "No. But—" The big man cut him off abruptly. "None of your butts, young feller."

"I didn't know them. They just sat down at my table," Bill flung across at him. "I swear I didn't know—"

His eyes found his mother's haggard face, implored her to believe him. "Then when they drove up, brave as you please, at 11 o'clock didn't you fill up their gas tanks and pass the time o' day with them as happy as you please?" went on the big man. "When they says 'hands up,' didn't you let them get away with it? Don't tell me you aren't part and parcel of the gang!"

Monnie said in a low clear voice, "Don't worry, Bill. We believe you. We'll get a lawyer."

But Bill had been at Black Tree Inn. That alone counted against him. Her heart was pounding painfully. No matter what he had done the O'Dares would stand by him. Put how dreadful it all was. The tag end of a verse she had always loved came into her mind just then.

"The moon of my own stock, She had to be content with that."

She ran her fingers nervously through her hair. "You must believe my brother's innocent, Mr. Eustace!" she said.

Bitter bad they may be, But at least they hear the things I hear. They see the things I see— Bill looked oddly like their dead father at this moment. Daddy, the most honest man who'd ever lived. No, Bill O'Dare wasn't—couldn't be a thief. There must be a way out of this nightmare and Monnie would have to find it.

"Oh all the townfolk she could think of only one friend to appeal to. Judge Cory, Miss Anstice's father. He had been her grandfather's partner in the law firm of Kerrigan and Cory."

She found the judge in his dusty office above the First National Bank. Trembling, she told him her story. The old man looked at her shrewdly out of rheumy blue eyes. "I'll go down to see him. Don't you worry. Did they say anything about furnishing bail?"

Monnie threw out her hands. "We haven't any money, judge. I didn't dare ask about it even."

"No. No. I s'pose not." He contemplated the problem, stroking his white beard. "There isn't anyone, I suppose—"

Monnie flushed. She knew what he must be thinking. Everyone in town supposed her to be engaged to Dan Cardigan. Wouldn't the Cardigans help her out—that was what Judge Cory meant.

"No one," she said with decision. What the proud Cardigans would think when they heard that Bill O'Dare was in jail she did not dare to consider. It was Bill she had to fight for now. "I'll go right down and see the boy." The old man stood up, reaching for his battered Panama. "I'll do the best I can."

SOMEHOW she managed a smile for her mother, waiting downstairs. "He's going right over. Don't worry. I'm sure everything's going to be all right."

"Monnie, I'm sorry," the older woman said in a low voice, "but I'm not feeling very well—"

She swayed against the girl, her face lighted with a deadly pallor. Monnie felt the world swimming around her for one dreadful moment. Then she heard a friendly voice. Charles Eustace's.

"Let me carry her to the car, Miss O'Dare."

She saw him swing the slight figure of her mother over the running board. As in a dream, she followed him.

"That's right. You hold her head against your shoulder. She's just a bit faint. We'll stop by my uncle's office and get her something."

The car flew along. Monnie was conscious of curious faces along the way. How he had found her—how he had known where she was to be found or what the trouble was, she didn't even bother to consider. She was grateful from the bottom of her heart. She felt, in a very passion of gratitude, that nothing she might ever do would repay this man for his kindness.

ful difficulties we're in." If she said any more, she was certain to cry. And she must not do that. She must keep her head at any cost.

"I did, I'm frightfully sorry. Can I help?" "You have already, Judge Cory is going down there." She ran her fingers nervously through her bronze curls. "You must believe my brother's innocent, Mr. Eustace. He couldn't have done this thing. It's not in him—I mean he simply couldn't!"

Her eyes challenged him. "I'm sure of it. Look here, I'll run down to see him—I haven't another thing to do. I'll stop by and let you know what I've found out. May I?"

How kind he was! And she had only known him a few days. There was Dan who was supposed to be in love with her and Dan hadn't telephoned—hadn't rushed to her side.

She gave him her hand. "I will thank you all my days." He smiled at her. "It's nothing."

ALONE she paced the floor. What would this mean to all of them? They had been poor, they had been shabby, but no one ever had been able to point a finger of scorn at them. What would Kay say, who was so lovely and so proud? She glanced fearfully at the clock. Kay was due home from school at any moment. Someone might call to her on the street, might terrify her.

"Ya-ah, your brother's in jail!" And Mark, mischievous, friendly and loyal. Poor Mark! Of herself Monnie would not think. Of what it meant to her and her hopes.

She never knew, later, how she got through that dreadful afternoon. She had telephoned the store to say she wouldn't be able to come back that day. She made her mother drink some strong, hot tea. She kept up her pose of unflawed cheerfulness. When Kay and Mark came in she drew them aside and told them the story as kindly as she could. Kay's reaction was typical.

"But, Monnie, that's rotten for us." Her pale face blazed. "I'm going to get out of this town. I'm sick of it anyway. This—this'll finish us."

Sternly the older sister reminded her, "Don't you care at all what happens to Bill?"

"Oh, Bill!" There was a world of contempt in the girl's voice. "I knew something like this'd happen, with that crowd he's been running with."

Something in her tone arrested Monnie. It wasn't just Kay's ordinary threatening voice. "What crowd?"

Kay shrugged. "Oh, if you didn't keep yourself buried like an ostrich, you'd know. That cheap crowd from the Center—that candy-shop girl—married, too—"

Monnie's heart gave a great leap. This was worse and worse. "You mean Bill's been running around with a married woman?" "Of course, he has. Everybody knows it."

"Don't let Mother hear you," warned Monnie with a glance at the stairs. "You stay here. I've got an important errand to do—"

She snatched her hat from the hall stand and ran out. She must find Charles Eustace. This woman, whoever she was, must be the slew to Bill's innocence. Bill must be shielding her. That was why he wouldn't tell more about the night at Black Tree Inn. But maybe the woman would talk—and save Bill from disgrace!

CHIEF HOPES OIL WILL BE TRIBE FORTUNE

LIVINGSTON, May 2 — Chief Sun-Kee, tall 72-year-old leader of Polk county's Alabama Indians, lives in hopes that oil development will bring good fortune to his impoverished tribe.

Few Texans know that this little tribe is struggling for existence on a 4,300-acre reservation, 17 miles east of here. For nearly 100 years they have been there wrestling a hard living from the soil.

Now, perhaps, their lot is to be made easier. Oil men have come and erected their tall derricks among the pines. Machinery disturbs a silence that once knew only the bark of squirrels and cry of birds.

For a time Chief Sun-Kee and his people knew nothing of the development because it was miles west of them and they seldom travel far from home. Now a derrick has been built on their land.

"You think find oil there?" Sun-Kee asked an interviewer.

He was told there was a "pretty good chance."

"It is good if they find oil," he said. "My people need many things. Wagons. We have not enough, and these we have are wearing out. It is hard times. I wish they find oil."

C. F. Pain and associates, of Livingston, are drilling the well which his known as the No. 1 U. S. Alabama Indians.

260 In Tribe

There are 260 men, women and children in Chief Sun-Kee's tribe. About 90 per cent of them are descendants of a group of Alabama hunters who came to Texas from their Alabama homes in 1800.

The other five per cent are members of the Couchattie tribe, who held the East Texas lands that the Alabamas decided to take after they found the deer, beaver and squirrels so plentiful there.

Sam Houston was a friend of the Alabamas. When Santa Ana was pressing the Texans so hotly shortly before the battle of San Jacinto, Gen. Houston sent word to his Indian friends to leave their lands and flee to Louisiana for safety. After Texas became a republic, Houston sent for the chief of the Alabamas.

"This land is yours," he said, designating a strip of East Texas approximately where the reservation is today. "Take your people and move there. Hold it. Never let a white man live upon it."

When the federal government set aside the Indian reservation in Oklahoma the Alabamas refused to move. In time the state of Texas granted them 1,200 acres and later the federal government gave them an additional 3,071 acres. They still live on the land.

MARCH DEPT. STORE SALES SHOW GAIN

AUSTIN, May 2—Comparisons of sales at Texas department and clothing stores in March are considerably complicated by the fact that Easter did not come until after the second week in April this year, whereas last year it came on March 27. It is pointed out in a University of Texas bureau of Business research report. Nevertheless, in Texas, sales at department and clothing stores held up well in comparison with sales in the United States and also in comparison with other years in which Easter also came late in April, the statement said.

"March sales showed a gain of 18 per cent as compared with February," the bureau's report said. "In 1931 and 1930, when Easter also came late in April, sales in March were larger than those for February by 21 per cent and 16 per cent respectively; the seasonal increase this year is, therefore, just about what was to be expected. San Angelo, with a gain of 42 per cent, made the best relative showing, although Abilene, Houston, and the group of smaller towns, classified as tall others, showed a gain of 25 per cent.

"Sales in March were 22.6 per cent under sales in March, 1932," according to reports from 90 Texas clothing and department stores. "Abilene, Austin, Houston, Lubbock and San Angelo all showed declines of 10 per cent or less, the drop in San Angelo being only 1.8 per cent. According to the Federal Reserve board, in the United States, sales in March were 27 per cent under those for the corresponding month a year ago; only the New York federal reserve district had a smaller decline than did the Dallas federal reserve district.

"For the first three months of the year, sales were 21 per cent under those for the corresponding period last year. This decline compares favorably with the decline of 25 per cent in the United States as a whole.

"For the first time in several months, the ratio of credit sales to net sales increased, to an average for 66 stores of 59.6 per cent in March this year, from an average of 57.3 per cent in the corresponding month a year ago. The ratio of collections to outstanding was smaller than either in February or in March a year ago, averaging 27.8 per cent in March this year, as compared with 28.7 per cent in March, 1932; in some cities notably Austin, Galveston, and San Antonio, the ratio was more than 30 per cent, showing that accounts were being cleared every 90 days."

HOG LED WAY

ELKHORN, Wis., May 2 — A ground hog was responsible for the discovery of a rich deposit of lime rock being used as a fertilizer on southern Wisconsin farms. Two hunters found a woodchuck hole dug in limestone several months ago and an investigation resulted in the establishment of an unemployment relief project at the spot. Farmers of Rock and Walworth counties are being supplied with limestone.

Gotch Wins Mat Go From Jack O'Brien

RANGER, May 2—Fred Gotch, Boston sailor, won a scheduled three fall wrestling match from Jack O'Brien, Milwaukee, heavyweight, here last night when O'Brien's disqualification for fouling, O'Brien's slugging opened a deep gash over his opponent's right eye.

Handsome Jack Hendrix, 154 pounder from Chicago, took the place of Gotch for a one-fall bout and more than held his own until O'Brien won with a blow to the solar plexus and a body pin. Hendrix had previously wrestled Eddie O'Shea, New York, former junior middleweight champion to a draw in the opener Speedy Franks, San Angelo, won from Young Red Moore, of Dallas, with a body pin.

Been trying my best to figure out just what our politicians are trying to do us for, do for us, or what they are trying to keep from doing. The more you read the more confused you become.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious disease.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lee Tracy Star of the Hour

Lee Tracy, shown above in a dramatic scene from "Private Jones," feature of a road show program current at Palace Theatre, has been acclaimed by leading dramatic critics "the star of the hour." Mr. Tracy has chosen to remain a free lance and is unfettered by long term contracts to any studio.

"An entertainment gem!" thus Manager K. N. Greer characterizes the four unit R and R road show program which opens a two-day showing at the Palace Theatre Tuesday. This program comprises Lee Tracy's starring vehicle "Private Jones;" M-G-M's technicolor musical revue, "Hollywood Premiere;" Oswald, the Luck Rabbit, in "The Shriek" and Newsfilm.

Humor is preponderant in this program. It is a program arranged to be in tune with the gladsome spirit of spring and sent along its merry way in the R and R circuit to cheer and entertain amusement seekers.

The feature unit of the program,

"Private Jones," is the lustiest comedy produced in Hollywood since "The Cock-Eyed World." It is a most unusual picture that it throws all the traditional rules of drama out of the window by having as its hero a nasty-tempered, unpatriotic, quarrelsome, cynical young man. It is difficult to imagine one's self getting wild with enthusiasm about such a man, especially when one learns that he does not want to fight for his country, does everything possible to dodge the draft. Yet in "Private Jones" Lee Tracy does a "lead" that one will scorn and love; a "hero" so darned unheroic that audiences go crazy over him.

RANDOLPH NEWS

President Clark is especially pleased to announce that members of the faculty of S. M. U. will cooperate in the vocational guidance program that has been inaugurated at Randolph.

Dr. Donald Scott of the school of commerce and Prof. R. D. Campbell of the mechanical engineering department will address the students Wednesday and meet the interested groups in vocational conferences. It is possible that Dr. Potts, head of the school of law, may be a visitor at that time.

Dr. Scott has made a special study of inflation and will address the Ft. Worth Rotary club on the subject at an early date. He is available for an address before the citizens while here, if it is desired.

President Lee Clark and Dean E. B. Isaacks attended the annual meeting of the Association of Texas Colleges and the Texas Association of Junior Colleges at Dallas April 27-29. Randolph Junior College meets the standards of and is a member of both associations. Emphasis of the spiritual factors in higher education was especially stressed in the program.

A conference was held with the new college examiner of the State Department of Education, and favorable relations are retained with the department and an official approval of the summer school was granted. The summer session will open May 29.

Modern Theater Is Aim of Society

All the equipment of a modern theater is the goal of the Randolph Dramatic society. The stage has been relighted and a new set of scenery made and new drops have been acquired. The next objective of the club is to be a new curtain.

Friday night, May 5, at 8 o'clock, the Dramatic club is presenting "White Collars," a drama of the middleclass. The show comprises 3 acts and 5 scenes. The cast:

- Mr. Thayer ..... Marion Bruce
- Mrs. Thayer ..... Noia Gentry
- Joan Thayer ..... Ethel Boles
- Frank Thayer ..... Rodney Glasscock
- Helen Thayer ..... Lois Pulley
- Cousin Henry ..... Mack Statham
- Mr. Van Luyn ..... Travis McCary
- Sally Van Luyn ..... Iris Renfro
- Tom Gibney ..... Coleman O'Brien
- This play, under the direction of Theresa Weddington, McMerrill, promises to be the best of the year. The proceeds will go to pay for stage improvement and the new curtain.

Better business comes to the concern that helps itself by newspaper advertising.

Cramps and Pains In Side and Back

"I had suffered with cramping and pain in my sides and back," writes Mrs. J. V. Bourque, of Gonzales, La. "I was so weak I could hardly walk. Cardui seemed to build me up, and after about twelve bottles I was better and stronger than I had been in years."

Painful, nagging symptoms disappear as nourishment of the body is improved with the assistance of Cardui. Strengthening, harmless. Cardui is sold at drug stores here.
