Speculators Talk Famine, Hold Food in Warehouses

Investigation by Newspaper Man Reveals Billion in Edibles Held in Storage Places for Price Jump.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on the food situation in Chicago, written by John F. DeLaney, of the Chicago Evening American, for the International News Service.

By JOHN F. DELANEY International News Service. One billion dollars worth of food—one thousand million dollars' worth—reposes in the cold and dry storage warehouses, on the railroad tracks and in other secret places in Chicago.

Food speculators are reaping a financial harvest, the public in general is being excited over the possibility of a famine, and those handling food are sending forth propaganda indicating a shortage of sugar, eggs and other commodities.

The Chicago Evening American, after a thorough investigation by a staff of trained reporters, is enabled to give for the first time, a detailed account of the food situation in Chicago.

In presenting this remarkable array of facts I want to say that in a big city like Chicago it is absolutely necessary to keep its leaders well filled. Otherwise a radical strike, tie-ups because of weather conditions, or an unusual shortage of food production would soon bring about a famine.

But I have seen enough to convince me that there is unconscionable speculation in food stuffs, especially sugar, making the non-productive brokers rich at the expense of the ultimate consumer.

To give you an idea of the extent of this gambling, I refer you to the testimony of a sugar broker in New York before an investigating committee. The broker—his name is Lewis W. Minford—testified that sugar passed through nine hands from producer to consumer.

The facts, however, should reassure our readers who may have been alarmed at the statements which have been circulated regarding a coming famine and an unnatural shortage.

It also announced that all of the warehouses do not report to it and those that do only report certain commodities—five out of about 20.

Table listing various food items and their estimated values, such as Sugar ($75,000,000), Coffee ($100,000,000), Eggs ($50,000,000), etc.

one who hoards the food hoards is under suspicion unless he is known to the officials.

One has the feeling of approaching a government arsenal during war time when he approaches these storehouses. Here the food speculators of Chicago and the Middle West keep their supplies awaiting the arrival of a figure in the market quotations which causes an order to go on the warehouse to permit the removal of certain commodities.

An official of the West Side Warehouse, which has two buildings on the near North Side, informed me confidentially that the warehouse handles 50,000 sacks of sugar a day—5,000,000 pounds.

Notwithstanding this situation, the Chicago Evening American has photographs taken in the interiors of many of these warehouses showing catacombs of flour, millions of pounds of candy, dungeons of eggs, blocks of flour, mines of food stuffs, as well as other pictures showing strings of carloads of sugar, potatoes, butter and boatloads of sugar—hundreds of tons.

Getting lost in a million pounds of cheese may sound like a joke, but it actually happened to me in the Central Storage Warehouse on Austin Avenue and Dearborn street. There is approximately $50,000,000 worth of foodstuffs in this building alone—14 solid floors crowded so much in some places that the aisles that lead to the fire escapes are filled.

There are 33,000,000 eggs on two floors of this warehouse, 4,000,000 pounds of frozen pork sides on another floor, 3,000,000 pounds of frozen chickens on another floor, 5,000,000 pounds of steaks, porterhouse and sirloin, aside from millions of pounds of nuts, turkey,

TAKE DRASTIC STEPS TO MAKE CLEANER CISCO

POLICEMEN WILL BE STATIONED AT INTERSECTIONS OF STREETS.

ORDERS TO ARREST

City Officials Have Backing of Number Organizations for Cleaner Streets.

Representatives of four city and civic organizations came to the simultaneous conclusion this morning that a stop must be put to the practice of sweeping the refuse from places of business out onto the sidewalk or sweeping the refuse from the sidewalk onto the street.

The City Health department, officers of the Young Men's Business League, the mayor's office and the police department, flanked by the city attorney and assistant, have fallen into battle formation and have intimated that the means they will take to stop this practice will be so drastic as to be exemplary.

Police at Street Intersections. Mayor Williamson says: "I shall station a policeman at each of the intersections of the business district between the hours of 8 and 8 o'clock some morning within the next few days with orders to arrest any and all persons who are seen to violate the city ordinance prohibiting the sweeping of trash and dirt onto the sidewalk or street."

"I believe that this method will be fair to everybody concerned insofar as a warning has been given and it will not be a case of an officer swooping down upon some isolated instance of law violation, while others equally as culpable escape."

City Attorney in Line. J. J. Butts, city attorney, says: "The city commission adopted an ordinance some months ago prohibiting the sweeping of trash, refuse or rubbish from stores or buildings onto the sidewalks, streets, vacant lots or alleyways; or sweeping the refuse and trash from the sidewalk onto the street. Plenty of warning has been given everybody concerned and it is now time to act."

City Health Officer Cooperating. Dr. J. W. Gregory, city health officer, says: "Some of the very people who have been raising the hue and cry that the business streets are dirty are chiefly responsible for their being in that condition. From the standpoint of health I will no longer countenance the rotting banana skins and other decayed vegetable matter with which our streets are littered. The merchants and their employees know that the proper thing to do is to take up the dirt they have swept from their stores and put it into a closed garbage receptacle."

Y. M. B. L. On The Job. Stuart L. Williams, secretary of the Young Men's Business League says: "The Y. M. B. L. has been fighting for a clean Main street since the day of its organization. It has been attempting to formulate a public opinion which would not permit miscellaneous trash to be dumped into the city's main thoroughfare."

"A few careless persons persist in sweeping the rubbish out into the street and thereby set a bad example for neighboring firms who will adopt the same short cut rather than use the extra effort necessary to insure a clean street and clean sidewalks."

"We are gratified at the expressions from the city attorney's office and the city commissioners and expect to cooperate with them in every way to see that the law is enforced."

butter, lard, beef, canned goods and other commodities.

In the Ontario Warehouse there are millions of pounds of tea, ranging in price from $1 a pound to tea siftings at 25c a pound.

In the Monarch Refrigerating Company's warehouse there are 90,000,000 eggs, 33,000 pounds of cheese and upward of 2,000,000 pounds of poultry.

The Chicago Cold Storage warehouse, which adjoins the Soo Terminal at 12th and Canal streets, is another warehouse that is crammed with foodstuffs. In this particular storage place I saw millions of pounds of candy—surplus candy being put away to be sold for months because of the fear of keeping it in the open on account of the weather.

Looking down "Candy Avenue" in this warehouse where thousands of boxes of all kinds of candy, from chocolate-coated almonds to chocolate nut bars and from fancy box candy to chocolate drops are stored, one was forced to wonder why there is a reported shortage of sugar.

Close by the Soo Terminal warehouse with its floors creaking with sugar, flour, canned goods and eggs, furnished another estimate of approximately $50,000,000 worth of food stored. Here there were millions of eggs held by the Ames Bird Company, with heavy truck loads with eggs at the doorway. Across the gateway the Wall Commission Co. was so crowded with canned goods, sugar and other food stuffs that it was found piled ceiling high on the gangways on the elevator landings.

The South Cold Storage Warehouse furnished another monument of food stuff, with three warehouses, 12 stories each, crammed full of edibles.

Here there is easily $50,000,000 worth of eggs, frozen chicken and foal, mince-meat, fresh fruits and vegetable, apples, beef, pork, hams, bacon, lard, milk, cheese, raisins, etc.

At the subsidiary warehouse of the West Side Warehouse, at No. 344 North Canal street, there are five floors of a large building so loaded with flour, canned goods, coffee, sugar and other food that the rooms have become crowded, and the stair cases are used in many instances for storage places. Thousands of pounds of flour can be seen in the stairways of this building—we passed them as we hurried in here to get interior photographs.

An effort to conceal the amount of sugar and the consignee was made by the employees at the Canal Atlantic Dock Warehouse, at No. 245 East North Water street, and upon getting into this warehouse it was found that there were 520 tons of sugar in the warehouse. The cashier of this concern was asked to give the name of the consignee, and he replied that he was not allowed to do that.

At the warehouses of Griswold & Walker millions of pounds of sugar, coffee, cocoa, canned goods and other edibles were housed, and it is more than conservative to estimate that upward of $1,000,000,000 worth of food stuffs is stored in the various houses of this concern.

SPLENDID ROADS ARE BEING BUILT IN FISHER COUNTY

ROBY, Texas, June 9.—Fisher county is rapidly overcoming the serious defects of its early life by reason of the splendid roads which have been built to a number of its towns. Into Roby a splendid system of highways runs, and from Sylvester westward the gravelled highway has been found very valuable during the wet weather. The county is rapidly coming into note for its good roads. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in its campaign for better markings for roads, declares Fisher county stands high. It is almost impossible for an autoist to lose his way because of the prominence of the markings at road intersections.

EX-KAISER'S NEW HOME IS SURROUNDED BY WIDE MOAT

New Home of Ex-German Kaiser at Doorn, Holland.

International News Service. LONDON, June 8.—A Chelsea artist who spent a holiday in Holland paid a short visit to the Amerongen and Doorn districts and had an unusual opportunity of seeing the ex-kaiser at close range.

He was also successful in getting a glimpse of the moated Castle of Doorn, which will henceforward shelter the fugitive Hohenzollerns.

"The particular inducement which led the ex-kaiser to change his quarters to the somewhat forbidding Doorn, he said, was the fact that the castle is surrounded by an unusually wide moat—quite five and twenty feet wide. It is heavily wooded, but has a large and sheltered lawn, and the house at Amerongen, except for its low walls and heavy entrance gates, is quite open. The Doorn moat is at the present time being widened, and all the visible labor in the neighborhood is being commensured to effect improvements on the estate."

"It is not especially easy for strangers to approach either Amerongen or Doorn. It was just possible, with the aid of a tin, to be given the opportunity of seeing the ex-kaiser on his daily excursions from Amerongen over to Doorn, while he was inspecting the alterations and improvements under way."

"The ex-kaiser rarely drove to Doorn over this private road, but could be seen any morning about 11 o'clock, accompanied by an equerry, both in walking costume, making his way to the new residence. Gumpel, both Dutch and German, all well armed, were at every hand's turn. Wilhelm is taking no chances.

"Far from being either white or haggard, the ex-kaiser is not more gray than any ordinary man of 61, while his face is far more full than it ever was before the war—indeed, rather bloated. It is commonly said in the neighborhood that the fallen emperor has given way to the pleasures of the table."

Contrary, again, to common report, the ex-kaiser and the ex-Crown Prince, when at frequent enough intervals, enjoy the hot sunbath over to stay for a few days. He can only do so by official permit. He had a grain weevil problem but it being with it was no more visited from Berlin. Report has it that a semblance of a court was kept up at Amerongen. At Doorn it has probably reached more respectable proportions, since the new building is more adaptable for residential on a large scale.

"The only games played outdoors at Doorn are tennis and croquet, practice at miniature golf, which move on a wire frame, the ammunition consisting of sticks of broken clay pipes, projected catapult-fashion from a wooden gun. The ex-kaiser, who is a good pianist, devotes himself for several hours in the day to the game. We rarely see him on any walks, say the local townspeople, but when he meets us he is personally polite, and has thrown aside all his old pose."

comes from the fact, Mr. Hoffman said, that linseed oil is used in various varnishes and paints on account of its rapid drying qualities, and the mineral oils mixed with it are worthless as paint materials.

He announced that vigorous means will be adopted to stop this practice.

RANGER FIRM GETS EASTLAND ROAD CONTRACT

BID REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN $430,000 LOWER THAN ANY OTHER.

The commissioners' court at Eastland has let the contract for the building of the county road system, for which the people voted $4,500,000 in bonds last September.

The action was taken at a meeting held in Eastland last night, Tuesday.

The contract was awarded to Fleming & Stitzer of Ranger, who agreed to take the bonds and accrued interest for their work.

Their bid is reported to have been $430,000 lower than any of the other five or six bids submitted. They will build the roads on a unit basis, at a total stipulation of $4,654,521.61, which represents the bond issue with accrued interest.

The agreement is that the work shall start within the next ten days and shall be completed within the next two years and ten days.

Work will start simultaneously in each of the four precincts concerned. A camp to accommodate 100 teams is being erected near Cisco and will be ready for occupancy within the next five days, it is reported.

Because of the almost total shortage of cement and the exorbitant expense involved, the roads will be built of heavy macadam, instead of concrete as originally planned. It was found that it would cost $72,000 per mile to lay concrete of the proper grade, as compared with $55,000 per mile for heavy macadam. It was decided that the best macadam would be better than an inferior concrete at $70,000 per mile.

PHILADELPHIAN, ONCE A CISCO BOY, IS VISITING HERE

Carl Brannine of Philadelphia, who was born and raised in Cisco, was here this week at the home of his father, Charles Bacon.

Brannine gazed at the progress of the city with astonishment and searched in vain for the places he used to stub his bare toes when he went to school here long ago. All the sidewalks with their treacherous splinters had been replaced with concrete and brick and the old frame school house where he had carved his initials in a desk had been supplanted by a brick building. He likewise observed that the city hall was no longer the old barn-like building where he used to play in the band. On the whole, however, he was glad that these things had gone and that his home town was progressing so rapidly.

Would Deny Jobs to Women of Means

International News Service. SALEM, Ore., June 9.—Ousting of all married women from the state positions whose husbands are physically able to provide for their support is the objective aimed for at a proposed conference of the state officials and men prominent in labor circles of Oregon.

The conference will aim also to see that only women and girls are given state positions who are thrown upon their own resources for an existence. A representative of prominent labor organizations has been investigating these conditions at the capitol recently and reports that as many as twenty women whose husbands are employed at good wages are on the payroll.

A recent effort to present a bill in the state legislature to this effect was unsuccessful because the attorney general held that it was unconstitutional in that it would deprive married women of the right to work. It is understood that several of the large women's clubs in Oregon will give their support to this movement. While such a bill is held unconstitutional, the conference will strive to impress upon employers the need of taking into their services first the less fortunate sisters of married women who are unable to secure even the most humble employment.

International News Service. NEW YORK, June 9.—There is no high crest of living or other problems on Easter Island, the easternmost of the inhabited Polynesian group, according to Professor Alanson Bryan, zoologist and geologist of Honolulu, who arrived from Valparaiso by the Grace liner Santa Teresa, after a stay in this isolated repository of mystery in the South Sea, belonging to Chili, and 2000 miles off her coast.

Professor Bryan has been a year in the South Pacific Islands making an effort to determine the origin of their inhabitants, human, faunal and floral. He said he believed he had discovered evidence indicating that the island of Juan Fernandez, the mythical abode of Robinson Crusoe, about 400 miles off Chili, had been connected in a remote period with Hawaii.

Easter Island is distinguished for its monolithic heads, sculptured rocks and stone houses and the indolence of its residents, Professor Bryan said. Some of the 332 heads, formed of volcanic rocks, are more than sixty feet tall, and many are adorned with hats. The heads are as solid as those of the modern descendants of the natives, who seem to be indifferent to everything, except steaks.

When Professor Bryan's boat drew alongside the island pier, one of the 250 inhabitants was sitting on a box looking into space in a direction from the boat. Although there had not been a vessel at the island in eighteen months the Hawaiian did not even turn his head to look at the newcomers. The island is the queen of the dolce far niente group, and if there are folks lazier than his people, Professor Bryan has yet to see them.

Sheep raising is the principal industry, and the sheep are the only workers, the herders merely looking on and sleeping.

SMALL DISCREPANCY IS SHOWN IN STATE TREASURY AUDIT

Associated Press. AUSTIN, Texas, June 9.—An audit of the state treasury for the past 21 years by a legislative committee, according to the report made today, "shows some discrepancy in various accounts, none of which are large," which the committee said it believed was caused from the system of keeping the accounts, not from actual shortage. OKLAHOMA GRAIN CROP NOT INJURED BY PESTS

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 9.—The grain crop of Oklahoma is not endangered by pests, whatever havoc they may be doing among crops of other states, according to reports from many sections of Oklahoma given out by the state department of agriculture.

Reports indicate that the corn in Oklahoma may be lighter than usual in many places, but the blame is not to be laid against the pests, in previous years the Hessian fly, prairie dogs and other pests have made big inroads in the grain fields, but this year farmers have either exterminated them at the start or they did not appear during the spring.
