Arson Law Ruled Unconstitutional by Abilene Jurist

FORMER JUDGE OF APPELLATE COURT FREED

BRECKENRIDGE, March 21.—Judge W. R. Chapman, of Abilene, sitting in district court here after Judge C. O. Hamlin had disqualified himself in the case, today held a senate bill approved in 1931 to further define the arson laws of the state, unconstitutional and sustained a motion of Defense Attorney Jed C. Adams to quash an indictment against Tom B. Ridgell, who was charged with "aiding and counselling" another party in attempted arson. Ridgell, a former associate justice of the eleventh court of civil appeals at Eastland, was discharged.

BRECKENRIDGE, March 21.—Jed C. Adams, Dallas attorney, defending Judge Tom B. Ridgell, charged with attempted arson, today attacked the constitutionality of a senate bill, approved in 1931, "further defining arson" as the case opened here today. Ridgell, originally scheduled to hear the case, disqualified himself after Ridgell objected to his serving. Ridgell is at liberty under $1,000 bond charged with "aiding and counselling" another party in an effort to burn a building here owned by Burch Investment company and occupied by the Hassen Dry Goods company.

GEORGE VISITS HIS OLD NURSE AT HER HOME

LONDON, March 21.—Sister Black, who nursed King George back to health in 1928-29, was in town today to visit her old nurse, who is a patient suffering from a minor foot ailment. He went over to her bedside where he stood chatting for a quarter of an hour and wished her a speedy recovery.

Recognized Porter. During his 90 minute inspection of the new building the royal visitor met another old acquaintance in Frost, the head porter. The King recognized Frost among the 30 ex-service men porters lined up for inspection. He recalled that he had seen the head porter at shooting parties many years ago when Frost was in private service. The new home cost nearly $2,500,000 to build and will accommodate 241 patients. It is the largest nursing home in the country and contains private suites, rooms, operating theaters, X-ray department, consulting rooms, staff rooms and nurses' apartments. Queen Inspected Equipment. The most modern scientific appliances are included in the equipment and these occupied much of the Queen's attention. Surprised in the midst of making butter-cream by the entry into the kitchen of the royal visitors, the chef hastily dropped his job and began wiping his hands. The Queen, however, told him to carry on with the job in which she appeared most interested. Another delightful incident occurred when the two-day-old baby boy of one of the patients greeted the Queen with a happy smile.

JAP WAR ON RUSSIA WOULD UNITE OVERWHELMING MAN POWER AGAINST NIPPONESE, SAYS TROTZKY

By J. D. QUIRK, United Press Correspondent. (World copyright 1932, by The United Press.) ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 21.—A Japanese war against the Soviet Union probably would unite "an overwhelming man power and resources of Russia and China in a historic struggle against the island empire, in the opinion of Leon Trotsky, the exiled Russian revolutionary and military genius. In an interview with the United Press, bearing on the present conflict in the Far East, Trotsky said that Japan is going to stick up to the knees in the "rat soil of Manchuria."

The energetic little revolutionist, who performed a modern military miracle by creating the Soviets' Red army when he stood beside Lenin at the head of the Bolshevik state, is well qualified to analyze the Russian position in the Orient conflict, which has now spread along the Siberian frontier. His conclusions on the present situation are: 1—Japan is aiming to colonize China—but she will fail. 2—Many Japanese statesmen and others besides the Japanese are convinced that a conflict with Russia is inevitable. 3—Russia does not want war and it could develop only if Japan, with consent of stronger allies, provoked it. His conditions on the military situation in event of war are: 1—Japan could strike at Russia only after consolidating her position in Manchuria. 2—While there might be some Japanese successes in an advance westward, the difficulties of Japan would greatly increase with every mile of advance and her successes would be swallowed up. 3—Japan would face the danger of a crisis at home after which the revolutionary party would lift up its head. 4—China, with her millions of men, would fight. 5—With the aid of Russia, China could put 1,000,000 men in the field in 12 to 18 months; and another 1,000,000 in the next six months. They would be as efficient as the Japanese. 6—The Soviets and China would have the advantage in fighting morale. 7—That vital element, "time," is working in favor of Russia. Trotsky stroked his chin and smiled as he talked of the possibility of arousing the Chinese nation with its 450,000,000 population on "the grand scale."

JAPAN AND CHINA NEAR AGREEMENT

SHANGHAI, March 21.—China and Japan reached a temporary truce in their conflict over control of Shanghai today when both sides agreed to refer details of a peace pact to a joint commission. Japanese counsellors paved the way to an understanding by according to Chinese demands that all Japanese troops withdraw from Shanghai, leaving Chinese defensive forces in their present positions outside the city. It was expected the commission would be composed of four Chinese and four Japanese and four neutrals.

infinitely greater than the questions of the Chinese Eastern railway and Manchuria together," he said. "Certain French newspapers hasten to predict that 'Bolshevik would perish in the Steppes of Siberia.'" "The Steppes and forests of Siberia are vast enough for many things to succumb there, but it is so certain that it would be volshnev that would perish?" I met Trotsky at his palace of exile in Prinkipo Island where he has spent most of his time since he was driven from Russia because of his opposition to Josef V. Stalin. "The day was cold and stormy and, instead of going to Trotsky's home as first arranged, I met him at the docks as he was en route to Istanbul. He said he was "paying a periodical visit" to his doctor, but the fact that he had been granted admittance to Czechoslovakia, where he hopes to receive better medical treatment, may have had some bearing on his visit to Istanbul. He came swinging down to the docks, a short, sturdy figure in dark-grey overcoat and dark-grey striped suit, with a cream-colored muffler twisted loosely around his neck. He carried a light-hued Malacca cane and was the picture of good health.

He went on board the ferry—a primitive and dirty boat that has only the virtue of riding the sea well—and to the cabins which were once for the veiled Turkish harems. We sat opposite each other in a tiny cabin, so small that there was hardly room for two of us to sit facing each other. Trotsky had been accompanied by his Austrian male secretary and also several other "secretaries" who were selected by the secret police. They remained outside. The man who stood with Lenin in the terrible days when the Soviet republics were being born, the man who spent the greatest days of his life on a train that whirled him across Russia's battle fronts during the civil war, was smiling and friendly as we walked. His hair is still black and thick, his moustache a little grizzled. He spoke in English, expressing himself with remarkable precision. "The military action of Japan in China," Trotsky said, "is developing according to the system of a spiral; its range is increasing from month to month. This system presents political and diplomatic advantages; it draws into the war little by little first her own people and then the enemy, placing the rest of the world before a succession of accomplished facts. "It proves that the military clique is at present obliged to overcome not only external but also internal

CISCO GOLFERS WIN SEASON'S OPENING MATCH

In a match featured by a dodo and a 20-hole struggle, between two of the two clubs, the Cisco Country Club golf team initiated its 1932 Oil Belt Golf association schedule yesterday with an 8 to 7 victory over a Breckenridge team, a protested pairing not considered. The protest was lodged by Breckenridge against 4 and 2 victory of J. R. Almond over J. H. Boyle, who arrived late and was afterwards claimed by the visiting captain, C. C. Curry, not to be a member of the Breckenridge club but a Tulsa visitor. Boyle came in with C. V. Lyman, after the rest of the players had gone out, and it was not until the conclusion of the matches that the Breckenridge captain was aware of his participation. The hole in one was accomplished by C. D. Dofflemeyer, betred, with L. Thornton, on the No. 2 hole, a distance of 168 yards. The feat was not enough to win the match, however, Thornton taking the decision with a three and one.

"God-Robbery" Blamed for Depression by Wealthy Jeweler Who Tithes Religiously

By TOM MAHONEY, United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS, March 21.—Arthur A. Everets, wealthy Texan and former president of the American National Jewelers association, is confident that the causes of depressions are ecclesiastical rather than economic. The solution for them, he believes, is a return to the Biblical custom of tithing. "Even in normal times, 40 of every 100 Americans or broke or partially dependent upon others, for daily bread before the age of 65," says Everets. "Really there is almost a 50-50 chance that the average American girl who marries the average American boy will have to take in washing or rent rooms to help support her husband when he is an old man. "Without doubt, the great foundation cause is that we are dishonest, with God, and under the curse of God-robbery. Malachi, last of the prophets, warned 'ye are cursed with the curse for ye rob me, even this whole nation, in tithes, or tenths, and offerings.'" Everets says a survey of Mormon tithers made by Bishop David

COMPROMISE IN SALES TAX IS OFFERED

WASHINGTON, March 21.—House members from New England and Atlantic coast states today formally organized a fight against the one cent a gallon tax on foreign oil and gasoline in the new revenue bill. Rep. McCormack, D. Mass., a member of the ways and means committee, was delegated to offer a motion eliminating this tax from the bill when that section of the measure is reached in the house. The first sign of a break in the house fight against the 2.25 per cent sales tax came today when the leaders offered to compromise by exempting from taxation all foods, wearing apparel, and medicine.

Directors of the opposition indicated that the basis for their objections was being removed. Both Rep. LaGuardia, R. N. Y., and Rep. Doughton, D. N. C., asked for time to think it over. LaGuardia particularly gave signs of softening his opposition. Majority Leader Rainey said he believed an amendment would be offered to the tax bill raising first-class postage from two to three cents, thus providing $135,000 additional revenue.

CUTTING OUT DEAD TIMBER AND REDUCING TAXES.

Mayor Daniel Webster Hoan of Milwaukee is a socialist. He is American-born, college-bred, and appears to be a man among men. Moreover he has a national reputation as a foe of "the interests" and as a rough and tumble fighter in political wars. Milwaukee is said to be the best governed city in America. Milwaukee has $4,000,000 surplus in its treasury. Milwaukee never defaults in salary or interest payments. Mayor Hoan has been mayor since 1916. He became a candidate for another term. A primary election was held. Four ambitious politicians entered the list as candidates against Daniel Webster. A tremendous vote was polled. Daniel received 10,000 more votes than all his opponents combined. Joseph P. Carney, a so-called non-partisan, was the runner-up. Now the finals will take place. In the first primary Hoan received 75,178 votes; all others 37,536 votes. Of course in the round-up Daniel will remove the scalp from the head of Joseph. Daniel appealed to the people to elect socialists as his aides. They rejected his appeal. They did not elect a socialist except the mayor but they gave their chief municipal magistrate a tremendous vote of confidence.

Governor Harry H. Woodring of Kansas is a democrat. He is a practical economist and a reformer. He has announced a $2,000,000 economy program calling for a 25 per cent reduction on legislative appropriations and expenditures by state departments and institutions during the next fiscal year. His salary is $5000 with an additional $6000 allowances for expenses and upkeep of the executive mansion. He has taken a 10 per cent cut in his salary. He has cut to the bone in the cost of upkeep of the executive mansion. State schools of Kansas will be trimmed $605,000 by the budget committee. Shrinkage in property values in Kansas will total between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000.

There is going to be a cut-to-the-bone in Texas unless all the signs are misleading. There will be salary reduction and there will be sweeping reductions in all departments of the state government. Higher institutions of learning will not escape. Salaries of educators and employes of the state will not escape. Moreover, the state board of education and the state board of control will sit around the big table and evolve a plan for eliminating duplication of effort in the various institutions of learning supported by a tax-paying people.

Houston, speaking of its municipal government, has cut to the bone. Dallas through its city manager form of government is cutting to the bone. Port Arthur, which has just ushered in the city manager plan, is cutting salaries and appropriations for the various departments of government. All this is a reminder that in the selection of senators and representatives in July, the people should cut out the dead and inefficient timber offerings for legislative places. There are too many commissions and bureaus, according to the political economists of Texas. There are none too many, speaking from the viewpoint of the practical politician. Farm staples and all food products have been reduced to low levels, speaking of prices. Why shouldn't all the appropriations be trimmed to meet the revenue in sight and why shouldn't bedrock methods be employed in a period of history which has hit bedrock foundation and its leaders battling to move out of the ditch in order to win a fair share of prosperity to be enjoyed by all classes and conditions of men.

GLASS OF VIRGINIA ON THE ROAD.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia has hammered into shape a 54-page measure designed to help both bankers and depositors. This huge document or bill represents the conclusion of more than a year of study by the senate sub-committee headed by the brilliant Virginian and proposed sweeping changes in the national banking system. Establishment of a liquidating corporation with $200,000,000 of government capital and authority to issue securities for $80,000,000 more is proposed for the aid of depositors in closed banks and banking institutions. Moreover legislation to ban the use of federal reserve facilities for stock speculations and to speed payments to depositors in closed banks has been given approval by the Glass sub-committee. William Jennings Bryan was responsible for the state banking guarantee system for protection of depositors. Thomas gave it a long trial and then repealed the statute. Oklahoma gave the system the acid test and then repeal was the order of the day. Nebraska, for many years the home of the orator or the Platt, adopted the system, gave it long trial and then lawmakers disregarded it.

Senator Glass is said to have made many improvements on the Bryan plan. He is going to place the federal government behind his act and the federal government includes the federal treasury.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES SUCCESSFUL IN EARTHQUAKE PREDICTIONS

YOAKUM, March 21. — L. G. Wade, a postal employe here has successfully predicted five earthquakes in 19 months as a result of his hobby of studying such earth movements, warned today that tremors may be expected at any time along the Louisiana and Texas Gulf coast.

Wade has evolved the theory that the prediction of tremors rests upon the composition of matter which responds to variations in gravitation and magnetic influence. Gravitation and magnetic attraction are both governed by the rotation and weight of earth matter. Wade theorizes. If a certain matter is shifted, Wade maintains that would be a decrease in the force of gravitation along the area where shift occurs. Using this theory, Wade reports that the coastal area of Texas and Louisiana now appear to be shifting to the southeast, with a source of pressure from the underground strata to the northwest. These conditions cause him to predict a quake in this region in the near future.

Can't Be Exact.

Although Wade has been able to accurately foretell five tremors in 19 months, he says it is not yet possible to determine future occurrences to the exact minute and hour. He believes he can define the areas where they will occur and fix the time within a few months or a year, however.

By the use of his theory, Wade wrote an article in the spring of 1931 predicting that tremors would be felt in Southwest Texas in the fall of 1931.

On Sunday morning, August 16, 1931, earth tremors rumbled through Southwest Texas, with the most severe shocks being felt at Valentine. A year previously, this amateur scientist announced that he had discovered an area subject to immediate tremors in Western Oklahoma. He prepared an article about it and had it copyrighted Dec. 10, 1929. Nineteen days later a quake occurred in the area he defined.

Wade's explanation of the Valentine quake is that a slow and continuous decline of an elevated area comprising several counties to the north and east of Valentine met irresistible strata formations existing in a curve around the Big Bend, in Mexico.

These forced the slipping area back to the northwest, where they encountered the main break near Valentine, he explained.

Hickman Takes Up Polo for Thrills

FORT WORTH, March 21. — For "thrills" Ranger Captain Tom Hickman has taken up polo. Tame, this trading shots with bank robbers, quelling riots and running gamblers in vice dens, is the veteran ranger, in the service 13 years and now in charge of the north Texas territory has organized his own polo team.

Most any fair Sunday when he is not on a 100-mile jaunt after bandits, Hickman and his companions may be seen chasing a white ball over the 91 Ranchito polo ground between Fort Worth and Dallas. He dresses for the occasion. For polo he wears polo clothes but for making arrests his garb varies.

"Well, the checkered suit, spats and acting like a tin horn gambler gathered in 99 gamblers in an East Texas raid," he recalls.

Hickman's face is so well known, however, that only rarely can he succeed in disguising himself. He had to have two men with him to help in East Texas.

"That was where the thrill came," he said. "Leading the raid. Maybe polo will give me a few.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, March 20.—A large, knotty, old Norse farming man, Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, on March 23 will break the past record for continuous service in the House of Representatives.

He arrives at that distinction nearly 73 years old, after a life spent in agriculture and in the service of agriculture as a member of Congress since March 4, 1899. He was chairman of the agriculture committee of the House in the period when farm relief became a foremost national issue and his name was perpetuated in legislative history by his co-sponsorship of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Didn't Know of Record

ON March 23 Haugen will have been a representative for 33 years and 20 days. When I called on him he didn't know that would constitute a new record. He was accustomed to being the member of longest service in recent Congresses, little interested in any additional honors of the sort.

For 20 years Congressman Henry Harrison Bingham of Pennsylvania held the record which Haugen now surpasses. He died March 22, 1912, after 33 years and 19 days in the House.

Haugen looks out of kind, blue eyes from under shaggy white hair. Sharpening a pencil with a jack-knife, he says he hopes to be here many more years and feels as if he would. No longer chairman of the agriculture committee, thanks to Democratic control, he still hopes that the equalization fee which he devised as the chief piece of machinery in the McNary-Haugen bill will yet be used to save the farmers.

Cites Case of Wheat Farmers

"WITH the equalization fee, farmers in the last year would have received from 20 to 35 cents a bushel above the world price for their wheat," Haugen says. "The Farm Board has done all it could, under the present act, but it has had no method by which to make the tariff effective.

The Spanish-American War was just over when Haugen came here and Speaker Tom Reed had just left. D. B. Henderson filling his place in the chair. "The farmers were doing fairly well then," Haugen recalls. "I went on the agriculture committee at once, but you didn't hear much about farm relief. I'd say the first step in that direction was the packers and stockyards act in the Roosevelt administration. That was when the western insurgents began to appear as such. We were fighting the battle of the ranchmen and the small, independent packers in the west."

Remembers Cannon Fight

THE next high spot in Haugen's memory is the famous House insurgent revolt against the "boss rule" of Speaker Joe Cannon about 1909, led by the now Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. Haugen says, proudly, that he was in the ranks.

He recalls no more spirited uprising in congressional history. These, he says, are days of harmony. Meanwhile, however, he had begun to study the competition of oleomargarine with butter and became one of the first proponents of oleo legislation. He became chairman of the agriculture committee in 1919.

The real farm relief drive of the '20's, he says, began with the Norris-Sinclair bill, which he compares with the present act under which the Farm Board operates. But he insisted that the surplus crops must be sold rather than held and that the costs and benefits must be equalized among the producers. Hence the equalization fee which caused the McNary-Haugen bill to be vetoed, no matter how often it was passed.

Says Tariff Issue Now

"THERE'S no issue today between the parties except tariff," Haugen says. "I don't remember that there was ever any other."

He owns more than 4000 farm acres in Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and Canada and superintended them until the war. Now he leases them to tenants and "this year, with expenses paid, didn't make half enough to pay taxes."

He has been a widower since 1912 and lives here in a hotel. A son works at the National City Bank in New York and a married daughter lives in Iowa. Out of active farming, he likes flower gardens and sometimes picks flowers to take to his office.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, March 21. — How much they would take out of the gasoline tax to run the state with next year will be a lively issue between candidates this year for the legislature probably for governor, and for other state offices.

It will be under the guise of cutting taxes that they will propose taking part of this assured income and diverting to general revenue several million dollars of highway money.

There probably will be less said than was two years ago about assuming $7,000,000 a year of accruing county and district highway bonds.

Treasury Charley Lockhart advocates taking enough highway money to wipe out the general revenue deficit and put state warrants back where they can be cashed without discount. And many a low salaried state employe will support that idea. It also, he points out, will improve Texas' reputation abroad and ultimately its markets for bonds since the treasury every day is now turning down warrants of the educational institutions or other approved funds, offer for small amounts, deposited in banks of other states by firms selling the institutions their goods.

Some of the candidates for governor will be sure to get on the proposal of taking the highway building money to pay operating expenses of the entire government.

Many candidates for the legislature will offer this as their panacea to avoid increasing property taxes, and perhaps to meet the lowering of taxes by the homestead exemption.

The state has no driver's license law, and in the general protest against creating more state jobs probably will not have for years; but the suggestion has been tried on at least one or two insurance men—not casualty insurance agents however—as to a money-making system by which the state could couple a compulsory, state-issued bond to each car license, and hold over the owners the penalty of suspension of driving privileges for such accidents as would necessitate the state's paying on the bond. The state, by making the penalty section drastic enough, and by making its rate high enough, would collect millions of dollars of profits by this scheme. Of course it would collect the money from the same people now sweating under property taxes gasoline taxes and license fees.

We foresee that former Gov. Hobby, president of the Houston Post, who was a close business associate of Gov. Sterling when Mr. Sterling was controlling owner of the newspaper, will be general director of Gov. Sterling's re-election campaign this year. And a most astute campaigner he is.

Gov. Hobby will have a very large voice in the democratic state convention in Houston May 24; and he is sure to be among the high council of the group that will lead the delegation of a hundred or more to Chicago to cast Texas' 46 votes for the nomination of a president and vice president of the United States. Gov. Sterling will go to the Chicago convention, and will in all probability be chairman of the delegation.

W. O. Huggins, state chairman will go. Jesse H. Jones of Houston, who received the 40 Texas votes for president four years ago, will go and will hold whatever title in the delegation he may happen to fancy.

The Texas delegation will vote for Speaker Garner on the early ballots. If the ballots string out in number, with nobody nominated, the position of the Texas group will become one of immense strategic importance to the political ambitions of candidates for president, and to the future governmental leadership of the nation.

Texas nominated Woodrow Wilson. If the Texas delegation holds the line firmly after the first tests between Gov. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith and the other topnotchers, they will be in position to start the swing toward the Texan. If they weaken, they may be instrumental in naming the presidential nominee by abandoning the Texan. If they uphold the tradition of the "Immortal Four" they will stand hitched until Garner is the nominee. This subject to the discovery whether there will be anything to stand hitched for after the first ballot.

HOSPITAL CONVENTION

SAN ANTONIO, March 21. — Officials of 260 hospitals in Texas will meet here April 8 and 9 in an annual conference which precedes the national nurses' convention which begins April 10. Dr. Robert Jolly, Houston, president of the Texas Hospital association, will preside.

IS CANDIDATE

LUFKIN, March 21. — John S. Reddit, local attorney has announced his candidacy for the state legislature from the third district. Reddit is a former law partner of the late Rep. I. D. Fairchild. W. E. Thomason, Naacogoches banker, now holds the place.

100-YEAR-OLD PAPER

FORT WORTH, March 21. — Dr. A. J. Lawrence here owns a 100-year-old Cincinnati, Ohio, newspaper. It contains an account of the inauguration of Andrew Jackson, a great grandfather of Dr. Lawrence as president and is dated 1829.

Beware the COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with Larry Harrowgate, an artist whom she met at Dreamland where Ellen works as a dance hall hostess. Larry is engaged to Elizabeth Bowes, debutante, but she shows attentions to Ellen until his fiancée returns from Europe.

Believing Larry is lost to her, Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay, 7 years old and wealthy, who has paid hospital expenses for her brother, Mike, injured in a street accident. Ellen knows such a marriage will provide for her mother, Molly Rossiter, and make it possible for her sister, Myra, to marry Bert Armstrong.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied this divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer, and Ellen agrees to keep their marriage secret until they sail for Europe. Barclay wants to settle a fortune on Ellen but she persuades him to wait until after the ceremony.

Barclay's lawyer, Symes, regards Ellen as a gold-digger. In a double marriage in a small Connecticut town Barclay and Ellen and Myra and Armstrong are married. Barclay and his bride drive to his Long Island home. The girl is terrified, knowing her marriage to be a mistake. She reads in a newspaper that Larry's engagement to Elizabeth Bowes is broken.

That night when Barclay comes to her bedroom Ellen faints, recovers consciousness to find Barclay has suffered a heart attack. She calls for help. Doctors, nurses and Symes, the lawyer, attend to Barclay. Symes has been trying to reach Barclay all day. He tells Ellen the papers proving Barclay's divorce from Leda Grayson have been stolen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

Symes looked at the white-faced girl. He cleared his throat. "It's not so bad as all that," he said awkwardly.

"It's as bad as it can possibly be," Ellen declared passionately. "That's—that I should drag Steven's name through such a scandal!"

"Now you're being foolish, my dear," the lawyer protested. "Steven was one of my closest friends; you know that. But you and I must think now of your position. That is what Steven would want us to do."

He frowned, considering the practical aspects of the matter, and then spoke again.

"Unfortunately appearances count for a great deal in law," he began reluctantly. "Appearances are against you. Steven in his anxiety to spare you disagreeable publicity, made the marriage appear—well, rather unusual. He went to great pains to keep the marriage secret. The license that was not to be filed, the newspapers who weren't informed, the newspapers left in ignorance of his intended marriage. You can see how it looks."

"I can see," said the girl.

There was silence. Ellen's body trembled as though she were having a chill. Her tortured eyes did not leave the lawyer's face. "I'm imagining all this—it's not true—I'll wake up soon," she tried to tell herself. Then she would become conscious again of Symes' troubled face.

She sat very still while the bitter thoughts thronged upon her. The marriage with Steven had been no marriage at all. The world would believe either that Steven had deceived an innocent girl with a mock marriage or that she, Ellen Rossiter, in her eagerness to capture a rich man, had been reckless of the fact that the man was the husband of another woman.

If only Steven were alive—but Steven was dead! And because a cruel, grasping woman, had crept to Mexico and bribed a court, his name was to be dishonored and with it the name of the girl he loved.

"But the divorce was announced in all the newspapers nearly two years ago," Ellen said in a voice that was without life, without hope. "I know it," Symes agreed with a short laugh. "But you underestimate miss Grayson's ingenuity. Steven announced the divorce. All the proceedings, if you remember, were kept secret. Miss Grayson was abroad at the time, had gone even before Steven went to Mexico. She's been dancing there ever since. She admits there'd been a separation—a sort of trial she calls it. But she's back in New York now to tell the world she never consented to a divorce."

"She even has an explanation for her long silence," he continued. "Says she knew nothing of the divorce until a few weeks ago, and then sailed at once to have it set aside. A barefaced lie—but we can't prove it, I'm afraid."

Ellen said nothing at all. There was nothing at all to be said. "If only Steven hadn't been such a rich man—" she heard Symes' voice from a long way off.

"Can't we do anything?" she asked pitifully.

"We can save you from reporters for a while," he said, frowning. "We'll keep mum until the whole thing comes up in court."

"Why do we have to go to court?" Ellen cried.

"Leda Grayson will fight to the last ditch and be delighted at the chance."

"Fight for what? Steven loved me. She can't take that away!"

"The girl's voice was courageous and steady now."

"She won't take the money, either," Symes responded grimly. "We have plenty of witnesses to his wishes. No matter how you come out in the fight to be recognized as his wife, you'll get the money. I have those settlements all drawn up. God, if I'd only let him sign them when he wanted to!"

"We can prove any way," he continued, "that you had no suspicion that the marriage was bigamous. Your mother was there, your sister—"

"Stop! Stop this instant!" Ellen broke in with shock and pain. "I don't want the money! I've told you again and again. It's not the money that's driving me frantic."

"My dear child, that money belongs to you," he protested, startled. "Steven wanted you to have it. That was almost the last thing he was thinking of—your future. You can't throw away a fortune."

"I can't!" Ellen repeated hysterically. "Why can't I? Is that what you were thinking of? Is that what you meant by court. Steven gave me everything and now—now that he's dead you think I'd fight for more, drag his name through the newspapers, have people thinking that he thought so little of my honor—?"

Symes was genuinely amazed by the girl's earnestness. Patiently he pointed out that the money was hers, that only a court battle stood between her and possession. Patiently he pointed out that with the money she could go anywhere, seek new scenes, new people, new interests. But Ellen stopped him. She looked up to him and asked, "But if it weren't for the money you and I could do for Steven this thing that—he can't do for himself."

"Keep the marriage with you a secret," he answered thoughtfully. "I suppose it could be managed. Yes, I'm certain it could be managed but it's a mad idea. Are you sure of what you're doing?"

"Quite sure," she said steadily. "I don't believe I've ever met so quixotic a young woman."

"It's not only Steven I'm thinking of," Ellen admitted in a shamed honest voice. "I'm thinking of myself. I don't think I could bear the publicity. I want to get away—I want to go back to being the girl I used to be."

Small and dazed, in a crumpled white linen dress that was no whiter than her exhausted face, Ellen sat looking at the lawyer and pleaded that this part of her life should be blotted out as though it had never been.

"Certainly you can," he said gruffly, untruthfully.

She knew that he had lied but was grateful for the falsehood.

"In the first place I'll arrange to get the license for you," Symes went on practically. "I saw the Rev. Mr. Scowley yesterday and I know he'll be only too ready to forget his part in the ceremony. He was considerably upset when I spoke to him. But about the license—how long was the filing of it to be held up? Do you know?"

"Until after we'd sailed," Ellen said on a half sob.

"Steady—steady," Symes warned her, but she was silent again and composed. "How many people know of the marriage besides your immediate family?"

"Why, no one," Ellen began and then stopped. "Mrs. Clancy, a neighbor of ours, knows," she amended. "Mrs. Clancy and Lorene Elliott."

"Can you trust them?"

"I'm sure I can."

"You understand that a situation of this sort is extremely difficult to keep hidden," Symes said. "You understand that any newspaper would be eager to buy such a sensation. Can you trust Mrs. Clancy?"

Ellen nodded.

"I can answer for myself, for the nurse, and for the physicians. Dr. Wescott doesn't think any way—"

"I know," Ellen interrupted. "I know that he didn't think I was married to Steven. I could tell from the first."

"Physicians see such strange things," Symes put in uncomfortably. "How about Ferguson?" she whispered.

"I'd forgotten him. But he had

Twice a Queen

ly counts. He'd never seen you before, had he? Doesn't know your name, or where you live?"

"I gave him Mrs. Clancy's phone number and asked him to say that Ellen wanted her mother but—that's all."

Even as Ellen spoke Ferguson entered quietly, softly. Seeing him frightened the girl vaguely. Ferguson seemed to menace her frail security. She felt he distrusted and disliked her as much as she disliked and distrusted him.

"What is it?" Symes asked.

"Dr. Wescott is just leaving, sir," Ferguson said. "He going to report Mr. Barclay's death and wanted to see you first."

"All right. I'll see him," Symes answered, rising. "By the way," he continued, "do you know if Mr. Barclay's sister is in town or not. She should be notified."

"Mrs. Harrowgate returned from Europe several weeks ago," Ferguson replied, noticing as Symes did not that the girl on the divan seemed to grow white as he spoke the words.

"Well, get in touch with her son and notify him of his uncle's death. His number's not listed but I have it here."

Teacher Urges Mountain Play

MARION, Va., March 21.—Professor I. C. Greer, of Boone, N. C., who has been teaching a mountain school for many years, become through lifelong study one of the foremost authorities on the music of the natives of the Southern mountains, believes that a "Mountain Passion Play," modeled to some extent on that of Oberammergau, Germany, should be established in the hills.

"I do mean that I think the 'Mountain Passion Play' should be of a religious nature," Greer commented while visiting his relative, Mayor R. T. Greer, of Marion, "but that some organization or society interested in preserving our native folk lore should endow a mountain theater. It might be an amphitheater.

"Hundreds — thousands! — of people would visit the mountains each year to see plays portraying the native speech and the native songs of the people who are now the world's most nearly connecting link with life as it was in the days of Elizabeth England, and they would like to see the mountain people at their daily work," Greer said. He pointed out that some 3,000 people came from many states last August to attend the Folk Music Festival on White Top Mountain, situated in the southwestern extremity of Virginia.

Greer's many years of devotion to mountain music began when he was a boy, but he resolved to dedicate himself to studying and collecting it when a college instructor urged him to return home and collect the songs of his people.

allies who could largely finance the war, it is doubtful if Japan will decide to cross the frontiers of Manchuria. How far Tokyo can count today or tomorrow on military loans in billions, can be better judged at Paris, London or New York than at Prinkipo.

"Every attempt to accuse the Soviet government of aggressive aims in the far east falls to the ground owing to its inherent inconsistency. War would be a very rude blow to the economic plan, with which the whole future of Russia is firmly bound up. A factory of which only 99 per cent is finished is not a factory, and in the U. S. S. R. there are hundreds and thousands of factories still building. War would transform them for a long time into dead capital. All this is too evident to need emphasis.

Difficulties Increase. "If we admit that a military conflict in the east is, nevertheless, inevitable—and such is the conviction of many Japanese statesmen and not of the Japanese only—even in that case the soviet government has no reason to force the issue. Japan has entered China in pursuance of a grandiose enterprise which will have incalculable consequences. She may have, and will have, partial military and diplomatic successes, but they will be transitory, whereas the difficulties will be permanent and will go on increasing.

proach to the green landed in the sand trap where he made a wonderful recovery for a five, allowing for the penalty. Lyman, who showed exceptional control under strain parred the hole with a four evening the match.

Driving from the 19th hole—green No. 1—Lyman laid a 225-yard tee shot down the center of the defect but McMahon, who had been hooking, allowed for his 250-yard drive went straight and ended in the rough. His exceptional play, however, enabled him to halve the hole in spite of Lyman's sensational putt, which he sank from the edge of the green where his approach landed after his second shot had fallen to the left and considerably short. McMahon's second shot fell to the right of the green, still in the rough but nearer than his opponents and from this point he dropped the ball within a foot of the pin. Lyman conceding the putt for a par.

Putting Wins. Another spectacular putt won for the Breckenridge player on the 20th hole. His tee shot landed on the green about 12 feet from the cup. Bill's drive was high and drifted with the strong wind to the right where it was stymied by a tree. Again a remarkable recovery gave him an easy par put Lyman sank birdie to end the match.

The result of the matches were: C. V. Lyman, Breck., defeated Bill McMahon, Cisco, 1 up 20 holes. Oliver Wragg, Breck., defeated Fortes Wallace, Cisco, 6-5. O. L. Stamey, Cisco, defeated Joe Murphy, Breck, 6-5.

KILLS SELF WITH GRENADE. PRAGUE, March 21. — T. Stava cabinet-maker of Brunn, decided to resist execution of a confiscation order against his shop. When the bailiff appeared Stava threw a hand grenade, which he had kept since the war. The bailiff escaped with slight injuries; the front of the shop was blown out. Stava drew the pig from a second grenade, stretched himself over it and was blown to bits.

FLREW 1,900 MILES. OMAHA, March 21. — George W. Brown, contractor, flew 1,900 miles to give consent to the marriage of his daughter, Louise, to James W. DuBois, hotel man. Consent was needed because the girl was not of legal age. Brown was in Sacramento, Cal., when reached by telephone. Although he had never flown before, he unhesitatingly hopped into a night airmail ship and arrived in Omaha in 20 hours.

known, under the direction of Soviet instructors, the experiment of the military school at Whampoo—if founded on other political bases (here I am not entering into that question)—might have developed in enormous proportions.

The Siberian railway would then—part from the necessary military stores—have transported not merely an army, but the quintessence of an army.

"How to improve troops out of an awakened and excited human material, this the Bolsheviks have learnt thoroughly, and they have not yet been able to forget it. I have no doubt that in from 12 to 18 months it would be possible to mobilize, equip, arm, train and put into the fighting line the first million combatants, who would yield in nothing to the Japanese from the point of view of fighting morale.

"The second million would not even take six months. I am speaking of China. And apart from China, there remain the U. S. S. R., the Red army and its colossal reserves—no, really, the leading French newspapers (the most reactionary in the world) are too hasty in burying the Soviets in the steppes of Siberia; blind hatred is usually a bad counsellor, and particularly so when it is a question of historical prediction.

"But (you ask) if the prospects are so favorable, why is the soviet government doing its utmost to avoid war? I have already answered this question: In the Far East, the factor of time is working against Imperialist Japan, who has passed her culminating point and is now moving toward her decline. Apart from that—and this is not the least important matter—the world does not consist of the far east only. The key to the world situation is at the present moment, not at Mukden, but at Berlin. The advent of Hitler (the Fascist leader) to power would present for the U. S. S. R. a danger infinitely more direct than the ideas of the military oligarchy at Tokio.

"However—'Trotzky broke off'—we decided from the first to limit our talk to the Far East, so permit me to put a full stop here."

We got off the ferryboat at Galata bridge and the former Red army leader hurried away—to see his doctor.

DISTURBANCES ABROAD AFFECT STOCK MARKET

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions The Wall Street Journal says:

American security markets again came under the shadow of foreign disturbances during the past week. Unsettlement on the principal European stock exchanges following the Kreuger suicide found reflection in Wall Street where Kreuger & Toll, International Match preferred, and other issues affected by Kreuger's monetary difficulties experienced severe declines.

This episode was the outstanding feature of a period in which the financial community displayed a general tendency to mark time, pending a survey of the progress already made in the reconstruction program and the prospects held forth for business during the spring months.

With regard to the steps to stabilize banking conditions, and restore public confidence, the findings were definitely encouraging. Banking failures during the earlier stages of the present month were reduced to the lowest average levels reached in virtually a decade. Moreover, it was estimated that during the time from February 10 to March 16 a total of more than $100,000,000 had been lured out of hiding and returned to circulation, affording testimony to the waning of the financial fright that actuated the hoarding movement.

While the marked improvement in sentiment illustrated by these factors was reassuring, there was nothing to indicate that the calm state of the public nerves was finding translation into quickened business activity. This was the darker side of the economic picture, and its effect was mirrored in pronounced heaviness in Stock Exchange dealings at various stages of the week.

With the steel industry operating at extremely depressed levels, car loadings running substantially below a year ago, and electrical consumption statistics showing no signs of betterment, stocks felt the absence of the confident buying that proceeds when business men are optimistic over the outlook. However, the action of the market demonstrated that it was no longer subject to the general liquidation of several months ago when the deflation of bank credit was setting a headlong pace. What seemingly controls these are list at present is a period of waiting until trade improvement begins to appear, and the financial district resigned itself to this prospect as the week drew to a close.

Steel operations during the week gave tangible evidence of the failure of business thus far to respond to recent constructive efforts in Washington. Influenced largely by the failure of Ford to enter the market with sizable orders for his new car, operations slipped nearly 2 points to around 25 per cent of capacity.

Realizing the impasse that has been reached, steel producers are improving the price structure for steel products and are not attempting to stimulate purchases through concessions, which would only aggravate their situation. When business develops in larger volume they are determined to demand a price which will return them some operating profit, for the complete earnings statements for 1931 have impressed them with the futility of competing in a destructive way for tonnage.

This week's range of the Dow-Jones averages follows:

	High	Low	Close
30 Industrials	$81.12	$78.82	$78.82
20 Railroads	34.37	32.66	33.09
20 Utilities	33.56	32.11	32.11
40 Bonds	81.77	80.58	80.58

Raccoon Coats

Beat Farming

GENEVA, N. Y., March 21. — The college students, flair for raccoon coats has made Seward Dean's hobby of domesticating the fur-bearing animal a profitable venture, which has displaced his farming interests here.

When Dean, a middle-aged Yates county farmer, captured several live coons year ago and set about taming them, he little thought that soon he would abandon his farm work to devote his time to raccoon breeding. But he did and now, although Dean's farm is the breeding place for 68 female raccoons, he cannot raise enough young to supply the demand.

Although the domesticated raccoon is as docile as a cat, a full-grown one is a worthy match for any dog on land, and a superior adversary in the water, Dean said.

"I have known of cases where raccoon, attacked by a pack of dogs has retreated to the water and has systematically strangled each pursuer. The coon's long, sharp claws sink deep into the flesh, and its fangs scrape the bones when jaws snap on the body of an attacker."

The young bred in captivity, all are much sought as pets, and each year the demand exceeds his supply, Dean said.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., March 21. — Major John W. Bean, who is in his 100th year, claims to be the oldest retired U. S. Army officer. He is commander of the local G. A. R. post. In the Civil War he was wounded thrice.

"The participation of the U. S. S. R. in the war would open before the Chinese people new perspectives and arouse in it a national movement on the grand scale. To anyone who understands the logic of circumstances and the psychology of popular masses, this admits of no doubt. In China there is no lack of human material. Millions of Chinese have learned to handle a rifle. They do not lack the will to fight but only a regular military education, an organization system, and an instructed command.
