Three Men Held as Suspects in Little River Slaying

TRIO TAKEN BY OFFICERS IN MINNESOTA

Reported to Have Confessed Filling Station Burglary

BELTON, Feb. 28.—Efforts to connect the three men being held by Buffalo, Minn., officers with the brutal slaying of Will Sanderford in his filling station near Little River on February 12 were begun by Bell county officers today.

The trio was arrested in Buffalo on suspicion of another charge, but officials there notified Bell county investigators that they had confessed burglarizing a filling station at Georgetown, Texas, an another north of there.

Officers said no other filling station had been reported entered during the time of the Georgetown and Little River burglaries.

Evidence gathered by Sheriff John Bigham and his deputies revealed that the men arrived in Georgetown on the morning of February 12, the sheriff said. They left there that night.

Sheriff Bigham said he learned the three drove from the Georgetown-Belton highway to the Taylor-Temple highway passing directly by Sanderford's station.

The slain man was the brother of Ghent Sanderford, prominent Eastland attorney.

Approximately 250 head of Eastland county livestock were entered in the show which opened Friday morning at 10 o'clock. While the dairy cattle section was not as large as expected entries in other departments of the exposition more than made up for the lack.

Particular interest was the vocational and club boys department entries in which will be left in the building until Monday.

Judging was begun Friday afternoon and completed Saturday. This was done by R. B. Cleveland, vocational teacher of Garland, Texas, and R. Reese, agricultural agent for the M. K. & T. railroad.

Son of Golden-Voiced Enrico Caruso Hopes to Sing Like His Great Father

By RONALD W. WAGONER HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 28.—The golden voice of the late Enrico Caruso, greatest of all tenors, may live again in his son, Enrico Jr.

Young Caruso is studying in Hollywood under Adolfo de la Huerta former president of Mexico and recognized as one of the leading voice teachers in the world.

An hour each day at the home of de la Huerta the son of the famous Italian singer sounds his scale and takes exercises to strengthen his chest and throat.

"It is work," explains Caruso. "Like running across country. My father used to be very fatigued after an hour's practice. Sometimes my back and even my legs ached. When I am finished I light a cigar and relax completely. No, all is not as easy as it looks in singing."

Young Caruso hopes to succeed in the field in which his father was the recognized peer. De la Huerta believes that his pupil has great possibilities.

Within three months Caruso will make his debut over a Los Angeles radio, singing the famous duet, "La Forza del Destino," with Andres de Segurilla, baritone and lifelong friend of his father. If young Caruso feels he has scored he will continue his studies for an operatic career.

Caruso lives in a bachelor bungalow in Hollywood. He does some of his own house work and calls in a Japanese boy now and then to help.

Caruso came to Hollywood nine months ago. He had been on the stage and in vaudeville and was counted a fair tenor singer.

"I thought I had no more voice than a crow when I met de la Huerta," the youth said. "It is magic but he has given me a voice. Within three lessons the range has increased five full notes."

Caruso has many of the physical characteristics of his father. He is short and stocky, with a full barrel chest. His eyes are dark and expressive. He was born in Sicily and educated in England.

A normal life appeals to Caruso. He likes to drive his automobile, swim and play tennis. Golf is not a sport in which he participates. Occasionally he goes for a horse-back ride.

JONES SAYS VENUE CHANGE IS NECESSARY

Jury Discharged at Eastland Saturday Morning

Possibility of another trial of the Robert Hill case will depend upon whether or not the public desires such a trial, County Attorney Joe H. Jones said Saturday night. In case of a new trial, he said, a change of venue would be necessary.

Failing to agree upon a verdict after deliberation since Thursday evening at 6:30 the jury trying Hill, last of the notorious Cisco "Santa Claus" bank bandits, for murder in connection with the death of Police Chief G. E. Bedford, of Cisco, was discharged Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Judge George L. Davenport, of the 91st district, discharged the jury after it had reported it was unable to reach a decision.

Hill, who received a sentence of 99 years for his part in the holdup of the Cisco First National bank, December 23, 1927, and who subsequently escaped from the penitentiary and was retaken at El Paso a short while ago after 16 months of liberty, was being tried for the fatal shooting of the Cisco police officer during the bank raid.

The case opened last Monday and testimony began Wednesday. The jury stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal, it was announced. The jury not able to agree on the guilt or innocence of the defendant, did not reach a vote on the penalty to be assessed.

Another Trial? County Attorney Joe H. Jones, approached Saturday upon the probability of another trial of the case, said that he had been requested by a number of citizens to prosecute the case further. He said, however, that it will be practically impossible to secure another jury in this county and that a change of venue would be necessary. While apparently disfavoring another trial of the case the county attorney announced that if the people of the county desire another trial he will continue his efforts to secure conviction on the murder charge against Hill, moving for a change of venue.

Rumors said to have been received at Austin and Fort Worth that mob violence was threatening in Cisco and at Eastland if Hill failed to receive the death penalty. Never at any time either in Cisco or about the court house at Eastland, was there the slightest agitation in favor of mob action, investigation by the Daily News and others revealed.

FARMER WILL CALL HALT ON "LOCAL BILLS"

AUSTIN, Feb. 28.—Notice that he will call a halt on local laws which require 30 days home publication slipping through the legislature under the guise of general laws was issued tonight by Rep. C. E. Farmer of Fort Worth.

The usual mode of evasion is to take the bill general and to insert a provision that it shall apply only in counties or municipalities or districts within specified ranges of population. This population is then stated so as to exclude all other places. Sometimes the range is less than 100 people.

Farmer today cited court decisions holding that legislature can not adopt arbitrary classes under the constitutional provision against class legislation. He said he will insist that when any bills of local application are offered there be evidence that there has been the home notice required on strictly local bills.

At Saturday's session the house passed finally a bill to permit Corpus Christi to pledge its municipal gas income to raise funds to repair the Mathis dam which supplies Corpus Christi with water.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON Jesus Sending Forth Missionaries.

Text: Luke 10:1-11, 17, 21, 22. After these things the Lord appointed other 70, also and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.

Therefore, said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.

Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.

And into whatever house ye shall enter, first say, Peace be to this house.

And if the son of peace be there: your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again.

And in the same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the laborer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house.

And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go thence, and shake the dust of your feet against them: and say, Thy kingdom come.

But into whatsoever city ye shall enter, and they receive you not, go thence, and shake the dust of your feet against them: and say, Thy kingdom come.

And the 70 returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.

In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father; for it seemed good in thy sight.

All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is but the Father; and who the Father is but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

SAFETY OF THE PERFECT—Behold, God will not cast away a perfect man, neither will he help the evil doers.—Job 3:20.

PRAYER—O Lord, Thou art good to all, and Thy tender mercies are over all Thy works.

BUS SCHEDULES.

Proposed changes in schedules of the motorbus lines serving cities on the main line of the Bankhead highway through Palo Pinto, Eastland, Callahan and Taylor counties were supported and opposed by interested cities at Mineral Wells Friday. Under the applications presented by the Southland Greyhound lines four schedules now dead-ended at Cantey and at Abilene would be made through schedules via highway No. 1 thus eliminating the inconvenience caused through traffic on these schedules by the necessity of changes en route. Incidentally the revision would provide Cisco, Eastland and Ranger with a better spaced series of schedules, a change of considerable importance to the cities affected.

Breckenridge, naturally, is opposed to the revision on the ground that the bus service through that city, deprived of the revenue obtained by the transportation of through traffic over the gap between Cantey and Abilene, would affect the quality of service maintained through Breckenridge, Albany and Caddo.

The railroad commission should keep in mind, in considering its decision, the interests of the greatest number of people. Breckenridge logically is entitled to a service commensurate with its requirements. But no city is entitled to a surplus of service at the expense of other cities. Where Breckenridge benefits from extraordinary traffic, which makes possible a character of service above the requirements of the section, Ranger, Eastland and Cisco are provided with inadequate schedules.

What profit a city or section will derive from the operation of bus lines is not the basis upon which to found a decision. On the contrary the question to be answered is clearly what is necessary to take care of the needs of the territory to be served.

TEXAS LEADS.

Last week one of the oldest and most widely known National organizations interested in land reclamation and the conservation of flood waters and their employment for various useful purposes, the National Drainage, Conservation and Flood Control Congress, met in twentieth annual convention at Dallas. Speakers were present from many parts of the United States, including such representative men as Major General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, United States army, war department, at Washington; and aside from three other officials connected with different departments of the federal government, addresses were made by state officials and prominent citizens from fourteen states, dealing with every phase of conservation, reclamation and flood control effort, indicating that what Texas is undertaking to do is but a part of progressive movements that are nationwide in their scope.

An interesting feature of the convention was that presented the visitors in a special half-day program, giving a brief review of the different important conservation, reclamation and development projects under way in this state, which proved something of a revelation to those not familiar with the state. These included the stream unit Brazos river conservation and reclamation district project, the Red river improvement program, the extensive Trinity river program, the new movement for the control of the waters of the Rio Grande, the Tarrant county water district, the Inter-Coastal canal, and the other projects and movements. Especial interest was manifested in the purposes of the Brazos river district, which is understood to be the outstanding example in the United States of the conservation, control and use of the waters of an entire watershed for the advantage of all the people of the area. Texas leads in constructive policies to make her public water resources an asset and benefit to the largest number of her citizens.

GERMANS OF THE WORLD.

According to a Berlin Handbook of all Germany, of the 91,500,000 Germans in the world, 11,000,000 or more than one-ninth live in the United States. There are 62,500,000 Germans in the homeland. There are thousands of men and women of Teutonic blood under the skies of Texas. Are they successful in Texas in country and city? Why ask the question?

A STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

Clarence Wharton, Texas lawyer and author, appeared before a senate committee on constitutional amendments and made this declaration: "The people's backs are being broken by local taxes. If the state would cut its budgets and trim down its bureaus and boards it would not need to hunt new ways of raising money." He said something else to the point—that the change to the income tax by California 20 years ago had been found a failure and the state has returned to the ad valorem method and bluntly informed the members of the committee that "173 counties of Texas are getting more than they are paying in taxes." His remedy: A state board of equalization that would obey the constitutional mandate "Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

SEED FOR RELIEF.

A large Texas seed concern, through the Red Cross, has donated several hundred packages of garden seed to be distributed in Eastland county. Each package contains eighteen varieties of seed embracing all substantial garden products grown in this section of the state.

People who are unable to purchase seed for their gardens will be welcome at the local Red Cross headquarters in the chamber of commerce where one of these packages, containing enough seed to plant an acre, or such part of it as the applicant desires, will be given to them.

This contribution represents the most substantial form of relief based upon the sound principle that the person who is not willing to help himself deserves no aid. If all this seed is planted in Eastland county, and there is a "power" of it, truck gardens would shortly bloom a message of prosperity over the backyard fences of innumerable homes and wan faces would disappear from the tattered bread lines that press hungrily into the depots of relief temporarily established in our cities.

OTHER OPINIONS

YES—REALLY, YES—NO BANANAS!

"Yes, we have no bananas," promises to take on a serious meaning in California, where the State legislature is considering a bill which would banish every bright yellow cluster of this luscious fruit, and make not only the sale but the possession of a single specimen illegal.

The reason given for this proposal is not the well-known hazard of the banana peel cast carelessly on the sidewalk, nor the temptation to overeat which the presence of bananas in the home affords little Johnny, but, according to the State Senator who introduced the bill, the possibility that if people did not have bananas they would be more inclined to eat peaches, apples, pears, apricots, and other soft fruits grown in the Golden state.

"Bananas are not a California product," he is quoted as saying. "We should protect our home industries first."

Here, apparently, are all the materials for a first-rate legislative debate. The lowly banana is bound to have its staunch protagonists, who will defend it to the last ditch with logic, oratory and honest gustatory friendship. Some valiant lawmakers may even assert that the absence of bananas will not of necessity promote the consumption of fruit which has no resemblance in taste, shape or texture to this foreign invader.

Most temerarious of all, however, will be the legislator who advances the theory that this is a day for the breaking down rather than the building up of commercial restrictions and that California has enough of such prohibitions in the banning of all citrus from Florida and some other sections, and restrictive quarantines against a large number of products from a variety of places.

It might also be argued that bananas represent a human experience which should not be deflected by the rising generation on the Pacific coast, too often forced, as it is, to come to voting age with out knowing the joys of frosty winter mornings or the changes of season common throughout most of the world. Imagine little Johnny saved from the peril of first-hand contact eagerly to the time when he may strike out as a world traveler, perhaps across the mountains to Nevada, and so partake of that mysterious elongate yellow fruit which he has seen pictured in his geography book—if, indeed, the schoolbooks are not also to be censored for the protection of home industries.

Or is it more likely that if the bill ever comes to a vote, its vote will be neither "aye" nor "no" but "ha ha ha ha!"

In the Political Arena

By HUGH N. FITZGERALD

Prohibition is to be forced as an issue by the leaders of 33 national dry organizations of America. They have served notice upon both political parties they would exert all pressure at their command to obtain dry planks and dry candidates for the 1932 presidential race. They have appointed a new board of strategy of 15 members to attend both party conventions with this end in view. In 1928 they had a strategy board of 30 members. Supt. Dr. F. Scott McBride of the national Anti-Saloon League organizations, speaking of the 1928 convention, said, "The two platforms contained exactly what we had asked, but one of the candidates fell off his platform." In other words Herbert Hoover said the 18th amendment was a noble experiment and Alfred E. Smith declared that enforcement of the pro laws was a farce and pledged himself to name a commission of research and report its findings to the president and the congress.

Herbert Hoover was elected. He named the Wickersham commission to investigate the workings of his noble experiment. That commission has submitted one multiple report. There are ten additional reports said to be on the way and the Wickersham grind will continue until after presidential election day in 1932. Republicans follow the flag of their party. Democrats split into factions. Republicans control the government and the spoils of government. Democrats continue to devour the husks and damn the party in power. Queer old world and queer people ever calling themselves the followers of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson—all four anti-prohibitionists.

Henry W. Anderson, eminent lawyer and republican leader of old Virginia and a member of the Wickersham commission, appeared before the New York Merchants association and described prohibition as "this highly emotional question." He pointed out that a majority of the citizens of the United States believe in temperance but opposition to prohibition even by abstainers "arises out of fundamental beliefs which are deeply rooted into our political life" and added "the attitude of public opinion is beyond the control of government."

He ventured this reflection as well as prediction: "At a former period in our history when the strain upon our social and political structure was much less severe than it is today the prolonged agitation of the inflammable question of slavery under interperate leadership on both sides threw us into an unnecessary war. So today, in the face of more dangerous conditions, the continued agitation of this highly emotional question in the spirit of intolerance may lead to disastrous consequences." He warned that the problem must be approached in a "broad spirit of tolerance. In other words neither the left wing nor the dry wings of the republican and democratic political parties should be permitted to control or dominate the national conventions of the future. Henry W. Anderson of Virginia may not know it but he has taken possession of the platform announced by former Gov. Dan Moody of Texas in his farewell address to a Texas legislature. Unless the signs in the political heavens are misleading the voters of America are in for another wildly and savagely acrimonious campaign in the coming year.

Lest we forget prohibition, the world court, education, use of radio broadcasting and federal aid for education were given a ringing endorsement by the committee on resolutions of the department of superintendence of the National Education association in annual convention in the city of Detroit. A delegate from New Jersey offered an anti-prohibition resolution. It was rejected without a dissenting vote and in its place the committee presented one asking the school superintendents to reaffirm their belief in the 18th amendment as the most effective means yet devised to curtail the distribution and use of alcohol. If the delegate from New Jersey was seeking a place in the sun he won it and with it a scorching.

Sunday Services at The Churches

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

CHURCH OF CHRIST

This being the beginning of a week program we are confidentially expecting an extra good congregation for the day. The regular minister will fill the pulpit for the day but for the next few nights we will have visiting ministers together with their home congregations to take charge of the services. You will enjoy hearing these different preachers, so don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity. A new man in the pulpit each night all next week and some wonderful talent. You will also enjoy the singing. The subjects for the entire week will be on the church, and principally to the church. Subject for the day with the local minister in charge will be "The Workings of the Church." The evening subject: "It's Name." One night during the week we will have a missionary from Japan to tell us something about the work we are doing and should be doing along that line. Every body welcome. Try to be on time for the classes, as we have a wonderful time studying in these classes. This work begins at 10 o'clock. The women will meet for their study Tuesday at 3 p. m. as usual, but no Bible class Wednesday night, because we will have preaching that night.—J. PORTER WHITE, minister.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sixth street at H Avenue. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m., and Young People's Leagues at 8:30 p. m., with a hearty invitation to all who wish to come. Why go on yourself and permit your children to grow up in ignorance of the spiritual side of life? There is no easier way to learn than through the Sunday school, and church services. The minister is preaching a series of vital sermons in Revelation; why not avail yourself of the opportunity of listening to two sermons today on "God's Message to the Church of Brotherly Love"? These messages are not fanciful, ethereal, impracticable, or exhortations pertaining to the future merely, but are messages that walk by our sides every day, to strengthen, to guide, to bless. The time of worship is 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.—BRUCE C. BONEY, minister.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Monday March 2nd is the anniversary of Texas Independence and should be celebrated by all especially with prayer for the continued success of the state. March is the month specially set aside for devotion to St. Joseph the foster-father, of Our Lord.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Christ Jesus" is the lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 1. Zechariah 9:9 furnishes the golden text: "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold, thy King cometh unto thee; he is just, and having salvation." The following passages from the Bible (Isaiah 42:1,4) are included in the service: "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth; and the isles shall wait for his law."

Some Observations by a Modern Home-Manager

"The management of a home in these modern and progressive days isn't what it was in Grandmother's day—or even in Mother's. Now we have all manner of efficient and labor-saving appliances and accessories designed to simplify our daily tasks—and they more than do the job, not only quickly and efficiently, but economically.

"For instance, in my home I have literally dozens of electrical servants—all of them low in cost and unusually inexpensive to operate. These servants give me hours and hours of leisure time each week—time that I am able to spend doing the more enjoyable things; being a better mother to my children, a more interesting wife, a more efficient Home Manager.

"My Electric Range, Electric Refrigerator, Electric Water Heater, Electric Washing Machine, Electric Dish Washer—not to mention the smaller Electric Appliances, such as Vacuum Cleaners, Fans, Toasters, Waffle Irons, Percolators and many others, have made my house-keeping tasks thoroughly enjoyable and delightfully easy.

"I'd suggest that you have a West Texas Utilities Company representative call on you. He'll show you how to modernize your home with electric service. The cost is small—the convenience great. Call him today."

J. T. ELLIOTT ANNOUNCES FOR CITY COMM'N

Announcing his candidacy for election as a member of the city commission of Cisco in the election called for April 7, J. T. Elliott, issued the following statement Saturday:

"I herewith submit my candidacy to the voters of the city of Cisco on a platform of honest, fair and business-like administration of the public affairs without reference to group or faction.

"I have been a citizen of Cisco for seven years and in business here for that period. I have taken a close interest in civic affairs and believe myself equipped, both by knowledge of local needs and acquaintance with Cisco affairs to discharge intelligently the duties of the office I seek.

"I stand for an economical administration. I believe in a speedy settlement of the city's financial problems on a basis equitable alike to Cisco and to the city's creditors. When that is accomplished I regard other problems as comparatively easy of solution.

"Insofar as is consistent with the integrity of the public service and the dispatch of the public business I am convinced that the citizens should be continuously and faithfully informed of the details of administration.

"I am in a position to devote the greater part of my time to the responsibilities of the office and I propose to face every proposition that arises in a frank and business-like way, keeping in mind the best interests of the citizenship.

"Sincerely,
"J. T. Elliott."

PLATFORM IS OUTLINED BY JOE CLEMENTS

To the Citizens of Cisco:

As a candidate for city commissioner, I think it my duty to tell you how I stand on the important issues or matters which I shall be called upon to act, if elected. I think you have a right to know this before you vote.

If elected I will try to cut out all extravagance and unnecessary expenses in the city affairs. I think the taxpayers' money has been wasted in many ways in the past.

I will endeavor to build up the city, and promote its progress in every way. But I will not vote to pave one residence street, and make the people on an unpaved street pay for it.

I will vote to have the city books kept so that the condition of the city's finances can be known at any time; and will have the books audited every year, as the law provides.

If elected, I will not be a party to, nor vote for, issuing city bonds of any kind, unless the matter is first submitted to a vote of the taxpaying voters of the city, as the law requires. If bonds are issued, even by a vote of the people, I will vote to have them advertised and sold to the highest bidder, and at not less than par value, as provided by law; and in no case permit them to be handled by private individuals at a great profit. I will always vote against the city commissioners' giving themselves big salaries not provided by law or the charter.

I will be opposed to trading our water system, lake and our sewer system off for void bonds, not voted on by the people; and I shall oppose issuing of our sewer system for any price or purpose.

I will certainly oppose mortgaging our entire sewer system, water system and lake, franchise and all as has been attempted in the past. If the city affairs cannot be conducted in a business way, all transactions and contracts made in such way as to let the taxpayers who pay the bills, know what is going on, and where their money goes. I will resign and move out of the city.

I have faith in our city yet. If we clean house entirely and start all over again, and do our business openly and "above board," and in a business way, we can get out of this mess yet, and build Cisco as any successful undertaking is done.

Respectfully submitted,
Joe Clements.

E. P. CRAWFORD ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSION

In announcing as a candidate for the office of city commissioner, I want to say to the citizens of Cisco, that I appreciate the fact that the office, particularly at this time, is one of great responsibility.

In my judgment the accomplishments of the incoming administration will determine, to a large extent, the future destiny of our fair little city. Realizing this fact, and the further fact that there are others who are better fitted to serve in this capacity, I have hesitated to make the race. However, having been solicited by numerous citizens to run, I have decided to do so, and will appreciate the support of every voter who feels that I can serve the people better than the other two candidates. If, however, your judgment tells you that there are two other candidates in the race who will better serve the interests of Cisco, it is your duty to vote for them.

Certainly this is no time for us to consider our personal preferences and petty prejudices, but rather, we should be governed by our better judgment. If elected, I promise you my best service.

MODERN JAIL IS COMPARED TO DUNGEON

DENVER, Feb. 28.—The Rt. Rev. Irving P. Johnson, Episcopal bishop of Colorado and new head of the State Board in Control of the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City, believes the nation's modern prisons compare to medieval dungeons.

"We must substitute sunlight, recreation, good food and intelligent prison personnel for stone walls, iron bars, and punishment, to solve the nation's penal problems," Bishop Johnson told the United Press.

"Not more than 25 per cent of the 1,100 men in our penitentiary at Canon City should be kept idle in cells. Only the most dangerous should be kept confined. The others should be occupied with gainful tasks.

"We should have an intelligent system of paroles, devoid of favoritism and political influence, administered regularly and impersonally on the basis of conduct and development.

"This would avoid prison riots, serving as an incentive to behave to those imprisoned."

The bishop's program of more non-political paroles and development of prison industries, also includes segregation of first offenders.

Bishop Johnson favors executions by lethal gas instead of by hanging if the general assembly turns down a proposal to abolish capital punishment entirely.

CAVERN ADDS ELEVATOR TO ITS WONDERS
CARLSBAD, N. M., Feb. 28.—The longest single lift elevator in the world is nearing completion in the famous Carlsbad Cavern, recently made a national park.

The construction is an interesting engineering feat, unique in the fact the digging of the shaft is being done from the bottom up and from the top down at the same time, the workmen to meet somewhere near midway.

The hole is 8 by 16 feet to accommodate two elevator cars each, a single lift of 740 feet from the "Big Room" of the cavern to the surface.

The National Park Service will expend approximately $100,000 in the construction work.

As no blasting is permitted the work is being done entirely by pneumatic hammers. Two crews, totaling 30 men, work above and below the surface. The men in the lower portion work on top of a scaffold built like a hopper which fills with the falling rock broken away by the pneumatic hammers and is drawn out to bottom as more space is needed for the workmen.

A second series of caverns in the region the shaft must pass was discovered by Prof. Frank Ernest Nicholson, but was only partially explored and not surveyed at all.

Whether or not the shaft will strike these empty pockets is a matter of doubt and will cause difficulties if reached first by the lower crew due to the necessity of additional scaffolding to reach the ceiling to continue digging upward. On the other hand, if reached conveniently first by the upper crew it will accelerate digging.

The shaft is expected to be completed by the latter part of April and the elevators and machinery in running order by June.

PLAYS LAWN BILLIARDS.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—Lawn billiards are claiming attention of winter vacationists this season, and they got away to a literally big start when Primo Carnera, huge Italian fighter, whipped Lew Tindler, former lightweight, oneup, recently. The game combines golf and billiards, and is played on a "table" by means of mallets instead of cues. The Carnera-Tindler match was the first recorded open air event of the game.

HOW MUCH PAST DUE IS YOUR LAST PHYSICIAN'S BILL?

It is almost a certainty that if the average family will look in their file of unpaid bills that they will find the one with the oldest date is their physician's statement. Why do you pay most of your other accounts before you think of your physician? Is it because you feel that he will not press his claim? If this is the reason do you think it is quite fair?

Your physician is your friend and real folks treat their friends squarely. Only a friend would leave his family or his snug bed on a winter night to answer a call without complaint. And only a friend would give freely of his time and experience until the crisis was over, without thought of payment.

Your physician has the same problems that you have. He has an expensive overhead. He must have, to render the service he does. He must meet his bills promptly to retain his credit standing. He must maintain an elaborate library. He must attend special clinics, do special research work, attend post graduate courses. All of these things cost a great deal of money.

Yet he devotes himself almost unreservedly to the needs of others and places his skill and experience at their command on the shortest notice and at any hour.

Such a man is entitled to your consideration. The least you can do to show your appreciation for a service whose value cannot be measured in money, is to pay your physician promptly when a statement is rendered.

Treat your physician fairly.

KLEIMAN'S

For GINGER'S SAKE

by ETHEL HUESTON
©1930 THE BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
To keep life from growing too dull in Red Thrush, Iowa, Ginger Ella Tolliver, daughter of a minister and stepdaughter of the wealthy and indulgent former Phil Van Doorn, organized a Junior Country Club.

Bard Holloway, a young artist who was hobnobbing through the country, stopped in Red Thrush. Attracted by Ginger, he agreed to stay and paint portraits and decorate the clubhouse. He suggested sending to Chicago for Nicolo Caleno, who could cook and sing and strum a guitar.

But Nicolo could not come. In his place came three of his countrymen. Angelo could play; Pietro could cook; Benito could sing. Ginger took them on. Beginning to realize he was in love with Ginger, Bard suggested leaving. But Phil persuaded him to stay longer as their guest, and the wily Speed Roney, a former friend of Ginger's, and invited him. She felt he would give Bard some competition.

Ginger met this move by inviting Patty Sears to take care of Speed. When Speed wired that he was bringing his sister she also persuaded Eddy Jackson to come, and Eddy decided to ball things up by keeping Ginger and Bard separated. This he did. Speed's sister's nickname was Cotton. Eddy devilishly contrived to keep her and Bard together while he stuck to Ginger and paired Patty off with Speed. Everyone had a miserable time.

Meanwhile, Benito had made a trip to Chicago and returned with presents for all and a plan to kidnap Ginger and hold her for ransom. He bided his time. When Speed, not knowing how matters stood, told Bard that Ginger and Eddy were engaged, Bard determined to leave. And at that point of the proceedings Ginger disappeared. Shortly afterward a note was found, containing a demand for $30,000. Phil immediately wired to Chicago for the money and a pair of private detectives. When the detectives arrived they disclosed that Cotton was Speed's sister, and Speed confessed they had been secretly married. Angelo, Pietro and Benito were questioned and their stories tallied with the detectives' reports on them.

A basket containing a carrier pigeon was delivered at the Tolliver home with instructions to fasten the money in its pouch and release it. While they talked the pigeon escaped in the room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII

Bard stood on a chair and gently released the bird. He held it firmly against his arm, his hand caressing it.

"Oh, it's frightened," he said. "It's not to be worried. We must quiet it—carry that money back for Ginger."

The others were white with fear. If the pigeon had returned to its loft without the ransom money, would the abductors have taken it for curd refusal? And in that case, what of Ginger?

"Be careful, my dear boy," said Phil faintly. "Put it back in the basket."

"It's a regular pigeon basket," said Bard, carefully closing the door. "See how it is built for air. I'm going to take the bird away where it is quiet and give it water."

So he took it in the basket to a corner of the quiet veranda, filled a small saucer with cold water, tried to tempt it with seeds and specks from the kitchen. But the bird would neither eat nor drink. Bard seated himself near it, tipped back his chair, and set up a silent guard.

"You don't have to stay there, Bard," called Phil from the window. "It is quite safe in the basket."

"I shan't let it out of my sight for a minute," declared Bard. "I'm afraid something might happen. It's terribly important."

For half an hour he sat there, smoking, silently ruminating. In spite of his terrors for Ginger his thoughts were less bitter than when he had sat alone and thought of her at Mill Rush. What a fool he had been! How could he have doubted the sincerity in her big eyes? Poor Eddy! He was a good sport—putting the best face on it. Of course he loved Ginger—as who did not?

He tiptoed suddenly over and got down on his knees before the basket. Through the loosely woven door he peered in, to assure himself that the pigeon was not hurt—that it would be able to carry the money back whence it had come.

It was crouching in the corner—a fat bird—strong—its head rumped down into its hunched-up throat—its feathers ruffled up protectively against some unknown fear. A sudden flicker of recognition stirred in Bard's memory—he stared and stared. Blue-gray—the shine of green at the throat. Conviction surged over him. He stood up dizzily, his hand against his forehead.

"Phil," he called, and his voice stammered.

"The bird—it is all right?"

"He took her hand in his with a grip that bruised her fingers. 'Sh!—don't speak,' he whispered. 'Have—have you ever seen that bird before?'

"Bard, you frighten me! Of course not."

"Well, I have. Listen, don't at all ruin everything. We must do it alone. I saw that bird at Mill Rush. On—Benito's window. Phil, she's in terrible danger. Benito—the monster—he's got her."

"Bard—no—"

"Come up-stairs. I will prove it to you. Sh! Tell them it is nothing."

They moved toward the stairs,

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS.

MOM'N POP.

Walking stiffly, trying to assume an air of nonchalance.

"Don't let Bard scare you, Phil," called Eddy reassuringly.

Phil shook her head, trying to smile. She could not force her voice. If, indeed, Benito had Ginger—if he were so clever an actor and so cruel a man—Alas, poor Ginger!

Bard closed and locked the door of his room behind them and opened his case of drawings. He ran through them quickly, one after another, until he found the one he sought, Benito's shingled corner of the old house, with the flaming flowered vines, the slurring shadow of a hummingbird pantingly poised for a moment, the gnarled old trees, the queer low attic window under the eaves, Benito's birdhouse, and on the sill, a fat, ruffled, crouching pigeon.

"B-Bard!" she faltered. "It is!" But doubt came quickly. "We can not be entirely sure, Bard. All pigeons look alike—"

"No, no, look, it is the same. He said they were doves. Did you notice the bird down stairs? That color—the way she swells her throat—look at the wings—they are longer than the wings of ordinary pigeons—very strong. See what a rugged, shiplike build—no ordinary pigeon, Phil! No dove. That is the bird from Benito's birdhouse. He put that basket in ransom for Ginger."

"Oh, my poor child! What shall we do, Bard? You are right."

"He must have accomplices," said Bard, thinking quickly. "I am sure Ginger is not on the place. The accomplices have got her somewhere, but the bird will take the money to Benito. As soon as he gets it, he will doubtless rejoin his companions and they will try to get away with the money. If we watch Benito and follow him we will at least find where they've got her."

"It must be the three of them—Angelo and Pietro. They are all in it together."

"I suppose so. Let me go and be there—to see where they go to follow."

"But Bard, if they see they are suspected won't they get some signal to their accomplices and put Ginger in great danger?"

"I won't let them know I suspect them. I will pretend we know nothing. Let them have the money—let them get away—but I must find where they have her—make sure they do not harm her—unless it is too late. Let me take Eddy."

"Would Marker be better?"

"No. If he goes they will know they are suspected. Let us try what we can do."

Tears streamed down Phil's face. "Go, my dear boy," she said, "and God help you. Do not let him know what you suspect. Let him have the money. Just try to find her. I will set the pigeon free at one o'clock—with the money."

"When Bard suggested to Eddy that they take a run out to Mill Rush in Ginger's car, he demurred, at first. He was sure the next development would be at Doornick and he wished to be in the thick of it. He felt there would be more need of their assistance there—where Marker was—and the money."

"Eddy, my friend," said Phil, with white lips, "I want you to go with Bard."

Eddy had no more to say and within five minutes they were speeding along the county road toward Mill Rush, with Bard giving him a cryptic account of the last disclosure.

"Hum, not so good," said Eddy thoughtfully. "Thanks for letting me in. I'll take orders. How are these pistols? O. K.? I'm afraid we'll have trouble. Well, Holt's there. That will give us even numbers unless they bring up the accomplices. Where under heaven do you suppose they've got her?"

With no notion of how things would develop they could make no plans in advance, only determined to keep Benito in sight every moment, and to follow up every chance clue that might lead to Ginger.

Advised of their approach by the roaring motor, every one at Mill Rush was waiting for them at the gates and at first sight of the familiar faces Jenky broke into nervous tears.

"What news, what news?" demanded Holt.

"Phil says they are to call for the money at one o'clock. She wouldn't tell who was to come for it, doesn't want to scare them off. I guess. She wouldn't even tell Marker and he's pretty sore. But she thinks they'll probably bring Ginger here, or turn her loose on the road somewhere and she may come alone. So she asked us to come and wait in case she does. Everything's O. K. here, eh?"

"Still in the grave," growled Holt discontentedly. "Like Marker to bury me here alive so he can take all the credit. There won't be anything going on in this dump. We'd be more help in town."

"We didn't want to come either," confessed Eddy. "But Miss Phil asked us and we couldn't refuse. I suppose there is a chance that Ginger may be somewhere in the neighborhood."

When after a few minutes of disconnected talk of the possible developments the others drifted away on their own affairs, Benito followed the boys to the landing.

At The Theater

BARBARA STANWYCK IS SUPERB HEROINE

Barbara Stanwyck achieves the supreme triumph of her career in "Illicit," the startling comedy-drama of modern love and matrimony which opened today at the Palace Theatre.

She plays the part of a Park Avenue society girl, who, while stringing the love of her special young man-about-town, objects to his insistence that they conform to convention and marry, fearing that the ceremony will be the end of romance. Though she finally does consent to marry, it is with many scruples.

That the calamity she feared did happen, may be well imagined, but what happened after she went back to live in her own apartment to regain her individuality—and what didn't happen—is the gist of one of the most consistently entertaining plays of the year.

The lover is played by handsome James Rennie; his father by Claude Gillingwater—the first courtly old gentleman that sterling actor has created for many a day. Charles Butterworth—most unique of all Broadway funny men—acts the part of an incandescent and woolly friend of the family—with big-eyed Joan Blondell as his companion in ribaldry. Then there is that blonde menace of all bonde menaces, Natalie Moorhead—and Ricardo Cortez successfully playing an unsuccessful suitor. Don't miss "Illicit"—intriguing, sophisticated, human, and different.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Stanley C. Wilson, governor of Vermont, says:

"That a man who does not speak well of his home town and his home state generally is not of much benefit to either. There are always good things that can be told about our neighbors, where they live, and their ways of living and if we will only remember that we are all neighbors and kin, the business of government will be much easier.

Not many years ago our neighborhood extended only so far as we could go, driving the old gray mare, and return in the same day. Today, with the transportation and communication available, there is no limit to the neighborhood. We can travel thousands of miles in a day. We speak and our voices are heard on the other side of the world. These facts ought to bring us closer together and the imaginary lines that divide us should be disregarded.

We should be loyal to and speak well of the particular localities in which we live and should ever remember that our neighbors have homes that are just as dear to them as our homes are to us.

As our neighborhood has increased in size, there should be a corresponding improvement in the breadth of our understanding and appreciation.

Let us be loyal to and speak well of the particular localities in which we live and should ever remember that our neighbors have homes that are just as dear to them as our homes are to us.

As our neighborhood has increased in size, there should be a corresponding improvement in the breadth of our understanding and appreciation.

TEXAS COMPANY DEALERS HOLD SESSIONS HERE

A meeting of the Texas company dealers, including dealers from Cisco, Rising Star and Moran, held Friday evening in the Red room of the Laguna hotel, was called by E. L. Crawford, representative of zone 9 with headquarters at Abilene.

The principal address of the evening was made by Mr. Crawford, and among other interesting side lights on the progress of the company, he stated that the company employed 25 people in the beginning, and today has more than 30,000 people on its pay roll. It began with a capital stock of $3,000,000 owned by 119 stock holders, and today has more than 65,000 stock holders with a capital stock of $350,000,000. Thirty-six per cent of these stock holders are women. No one stock holder owns more than two per cent of the stock.

Mr. Crawford drew an illustration showing the process of refining various products, especially the manufacture of Texaco oil. Then after explaining the advertising campaign, he took up some methods used in modern day marketing, calling to the attention of the dealers how necessary it is to keep a clean service station and the importance of giving prompt and courteous service. This meeting was enthusiastically enjoyed by all present, each one present expressing himself as being thoroughly sold on Texaco products, and proud of the fact that he is connected with the company so well equipped with nationally advertised products and for carrying on their business in the 47 states. Those present were: Jesse McAdams, wholesale agent, Rising Star; J. B. Montgomery, wholesale agent, Moran; William Reagan, wholesale agent, Cisco; Fred Cooke, Cooke's Garage, Putnam; H. Reagan, truck driver, Cisco; R. B. Gustafson, service station agent 14th and Main street; J. C. Garrett, Garrett Motor company, Cross Plains; S. B. Dupriest, Dupriest Service Station, Pioneer; W. E. Pringle, Butler Service Station, Rising Star; T. L. Haggard, Haggard Service Station, Sedwick; A. Angus, B. & H. Motor Co., Cisco; C. J. Stevens, Texas Service Station, Cisco; J. H. Fore, Fore Brothers, Pioneer; H. E. Cobern, Red Top Service Station, Cross Plains; Joe B. McAdams, assistant agent, Rising Star, and John A. Smith, Carroll Auto Supply, Cisco.

Miss Garrett Interested in Cooking Since "Mud Pie" Days of Childhood

Rada Sue Garrett, a little girl, spent not so much time with her dolls and doll dressing, as she did in making "mud pies." Her return toward the oldest of arts—cooking, was natural from childhood and at an early age she was relied upon by her family for her menu ideas and cooking expertise. As she grew older, Miss Garrett became interested in the science of cooking and determined to eliminate, personally, all matter of "guessing" in her beloved art. She graduated with high honors in the home economics department of Oklahoma public schools. She then entered upon an arduous but interesting course in the school of Home Economics of Oklahoma A. & M. college at Stillwater. Her first three years were spent largely in the laboratory, where she mastered the chemistry of foods, their relation to health, dietetics, practical physiology; with her own hands she resolved basic food substances into their original elements and saw their reaction under varying conditions. She studied marketing, home cooking, the finer points of food service for the hostess, and amassed a great wealth of information concerning every phase of scientific cooking. Her first two years, Miss Garrett spent delving into higher scientific research in cooking and finally gave an entire year to child nutrition and proper foods for children, specializing particularly in this field.

The four following years Miss Garrett spent enlightening the high school girls of Oklahoma in home economics departments. Her abilities, ambition, and expert training in cookery soon attracted the attention of large food concerns, and she gave considerable time to this phase of her calling, holding cooking schools in Oklahoma City, Dallas, St. Louis, and other large cities of the southwest. She has also demonstrated Battle Creek Health Food products through wide sections.

Desiring to acquire a better insight into real business life, Miss Garrett travelled for some time as booking agent for the Wayne P. Sewell organization of Atlanta, Ga. It was from this service that she came back into her present cooking school work, which she now definitely knows as her chosen life's calling. She conducts cooking schools for our organization throughout a wide territory of the United States, and all of the larger cities of the southwest are included in her territory.
