STEVENSON ELECTED HOUSE SPEAKER

National Railroad Reorganization Undertaken in House

MOVEMENT TO EMBODY VIEWS OF ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A non-partisan effort to re-organize the nation's twenty billion dollar railroad system and establish it again upon a sound financial basis was begun today in the House.

It was understood the plan would embody many of the views of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. The program was discussed at the recent New York conference between the incoming president and his party leaders.

The drastic reorganization resolution of Rep. LaGuardia, independent republican of New York, was adopted as the framework for the attempt to rehabilitate the railroads.

The program would involve a tremendous deflation in the securities of railroads affected by a reissuance of all bonds, notes and stocks. While it would cause heavy losses, it was regarded by some experts here as more to be desired than large scale receiverships.

LaGuardia described the resolution as "the greatest hydraulic press ever invented. It will squeeze the water out of railroads for the next 70 years."

80-Year-Old Writer Of Hymns Is Here

The song writer who composed "Be Kind to a Man When He's Down" and "Keep Close to Jesus" is in Cisco. Rev. John Lane, a Baptist minister and composer, is spending a few days here before going to California.

Rev. Lane, now 80 years old has visited Cisco several times in the last 15 years. A traveling preacher, he has traveled eight times across the continent holding meetings in the towns he passed through. All his services are held in the open air.

Having no salary and taking no collection, Rev. Lane makes his expenses by selling his book, "The Helo Round Road," and small novelty devices containing The Lord's Prayer and a picture of a little girl praying.

During his stay Rev. Lane has announced that he will preach and sing every afternoon at 2:30 on the corner of D avenue and Seventh street.

COLEMAN COPS CISCO GAME BY 36 TO 19 SCORE

By W. WINSTON COPELAND

AUSTIN, Jan. 10.—Prohibition and horse-race betting, matters confronting the 43 forty-third legislature as it opened today, were the questions that attracted a capacity gallery for the opening of the thirty-first legislature, 24 years ago.

That was in 1909. Women, comprising about half the house gallery, bedecked in their long trailing skirts and expansive, heavily-feathered hats, scarcely noticed the courtesies of mustached gallants, trimmed in four-button suits with the tight-fitting trousers.

Their interest was in a proposed plan for submission of statewide prohibition and a law to bar betting on horse racing. Beer and betting were on the block. Half the men in the gallery were ministers. Many of the others were lobbyists.

Before that session closed, a law making it unlawful to "engage or assist in pool-selling or bookmaking of any horse race" or take or accept any bet or aid in betting" relative to horse racing was written on Texas statutes.

There is strong indication a concerted drive will be made in the forty-third legislature to abolish that law since efforts to get around it have failed.

Groundwork Laid.

The submission question did not carry, although the ground work was laid for its approval a decade later. Strict liquor laws were passed in the regular and first called session of that legislature. An act was passed making it illegal to sell "intoxicating liquor" in local option territory, taxing saloons and dispensers of liquor, and prohibiting its sale to minors.

That session also defined "intoxicating liquor" to mean "fermented, vinous or spiritous liquors or any composition of which fermented, vinous or spiritous liquors is a part." That liquor was as much a vital question then as now was shown not only by the packed galleries and

Today's Legislature Confronts Same Issues as 31st Session 24 Years Ago

By inclusion of a submission plea by Gov. Thomas M. Campbell in his address to the legislature; for Speaker A. M. Kennedy announced "no person who drank or gambled would be employed in the house."

An idea of the import given the liquor question is revealed in an excerpt from a paper of that time: "The submission question is occupying much of the thought of the members and distracting them from other things."

Congressman-elect Sterling P. Strong, then head of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas, was one of the fighters for submission. Modification of the state liquor law, which owes its birth a great deal to that session, is certain to be a strong issue in the forty-third legislature.

Different System.

Probably few of today's spectators, dressed so contrastingly and viewing the situation from so different an angle from that of 24 years ago, realized as they watched the balloting in the heated battle for speaker that a different system of voting was invoked in that "old-fashioned" day.

Before 1909, representatives had written the name of their choice for speaker on the ballot and tellers read them aloud to the body. The ballot was supposed to be secret but tellers became so adept at recognizing the handwritings of house members it was not a secret. So in 1909 printed ballots were used.

Perhaps even fewer persons who watched today's opening in the senate realized that Bob Barker, gray-haired but apparently young and vigorous senate secretary, was clerk of the house on that long ago day.

Most of those watching the house begin today's work, however, would have enjoyed Speaker Kennedy's crisp acceptance speech after his brisk battle in the thirty-first legislature with John Mobley of Henderson county and W. C. Davis of Brazos county for the speakership.

"Thank God, gentlemen, the people still rule," Kennedy shouted. That was his entire speech.

Violence that has cost two lives, listed 14 wounded, and brought National Guard troops to the Taylorville, Ill., mine area, was heightened by bombing of the home of John Corbo, union miner. Wreckage of the Corbo home is shown above. The family, who were in the home at the time, narrowly escaped injury. Snipers' shots killed a woman and a man before Illinois troops reached the area.

STUDENTS GET RECESS

MISS FLAHERTY TO PLAY LEAD IN OPERETTA

Miss Pauline Flaherty will have the title role in the operetta, "The Sunbonnet Girl", presented tonight by the Cisco high school choral and glee clubs, according to Miss Ella Andrus, who, with Miss Lucille Robinson, is directing the production. The music study club is sponsoring the operetta, which will begin at 7:30 in the high school auditorium.

A great deal of comedy will be furnished by Bobby Kilpatrick and Marion Waters. Waters is the small town constable who represents "the law and order of the town and all the writs and ordinances thereunto pertaining." Kilpatrick, his son, also does some dance numbers.

Build Stage Sets

A great deal of time and effort has been spent in building stage sets, it being necessary to construct a house for a part of the scenery. The scenery arrangement has been under the direction of Miss Robinson.

The cast of the operetta will be made up of amateurs, members of the high school choral and glee clubs. The directors have stressed the fact production is given to increase the music interest in Cisco. They believe that only through such programs as this, offering both entertainment and a chance for participation, can the city become thoroughly music conscious.

"The Sunbonnet Girl" will require two hours for presentation. It will be the first operetta of this length attempted in Cisco by the Cisco choral and glee clubs, Miss Andrus said this morning.

The proceeds from the operetta will go into a fund for new scenery for the high school stage, Miss Robinson has announced.

House Painter May Be Labor Comm'r

Friends of W. B. Arnold, San Antonio printer, first reported slated for the post, conceded today that Flynn will be the appointee.

Believes Slayers Are Hiding in W. Texas

DALLAS, Jan. 10.—Dallas county officers today believed Odell Chandler and Clyde Barrow, suspected in the recent killing of a deputy sheriff here, were hiding in west Texas.

Officers believed the suspects eluded posess in Dallas yesterday and headed for west Texas in an 8-cylinder coupe.

4 PRODUCERS SEEK TO STAY R. R. COMM'N

FORT WORTH, Jan. 10.—An injunction against enforcement of the state railroad commission's oil production orders was asked in federal court here today by four producing companies.

Present orders limit many Texas wells to a production of 20 barrels daily. Some companies hold contracts to deliver as much as 1,000 barrels of oil per day. Attorneys argued before the court that oil for which a market exists cannot be classed as waste.

Federal Judge James C. Wilson set a hearing for January 24. He directed the commission, governor and the attorney-general to show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

1,000 Go to Work In Montana Oil Field

CUT BANK, Mont., Jan. 10.—More than 1,000 men and $2,000,000 will be thrust into the Cut Bank oil field during 1933, when it is expected that at least 100 new wells will be drilled and completed in the area, according to A. J. Hazlett, dean of Rocky Mountain oil news editors.

This employment and investment will be connected entirely with drilling operations, Hazlett said, with an estimated $1,000,000 to be spent in addition on other connected operations.

Operations at the field will take a decided spurt when weather conditions permit.

Discovery of high grade oil in paying quantities was made late this fall in the Cut Bank area, 34 years after a government geologist had declared there were large quantities of oil and gas in the region. The first well in the district was drilled in 1904, encountering the first oil found in Montana at a depth of 1,500 feet, but the property was not exploited because of the smallness of the oil deposit found.

Blackfeet Indians of the area, whose reservation adjoins the proven Cut Bank area, anticipate great financial returns from oil drilling on their land, and already have received some $40,000 in oil lease and rental payments.

Funeral Planned For Scientist

WACO, Jan. 10.—Funeral services were planned today for John K. Strecker, 53, noted authority on reptiles and amphibians of the southwest, who died at his home here late yesterday after an extended illness.

Strecker was curator and head librarian at Baylor university, past head of the Woodman of the World of Texas, a past president of the Texas Academy of Science and a member of many other scientific societies.

Major Battle Is Waged in China

PEIPING, China, Jan. 10.—A major battle along the Great Wall of China was announced by the Chinese today after Japanese forces opened a drive apparently intended to cut off the northern province of Jehol from China and add it to Manchuria.

At noon, reports said, four Japanese bombers operated over and behind the Chinese lines after which the Chinese received reinforcements and held their positions. At dusk the Chinese continued in their trenches, it was claimed, although prepared for an attack they were expected to withdraw within the wall about 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Coolidge Will Be Filed Tuesday

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 10.—The will of Calvin Coolidge will be filed in county probate court here next Tuesday, bequeathing the entire estate to his widow.

No mention of their only surviving child, John, was made in the brief will. A trust fund said to amount to $100,000 was established by the former president for his son at the time of the latter's marriage.

Reveal Triangle in Kidnap-Murder

Chicago authorities believe they are nearing a solution in the mysterious murder of Captain Edwin Schildhauer, school bandmaster.

BIG YATES OIL FIELD PASSES 6TH BIRTHDAY

McCAMEY, Tex., Jan. 10.—The Yates oil field, west Texas area wherein are some of the world's deepest wells and the biggest one, has just passed its sixth birthday with an unofficially estimated production of 170,000,000 barrels since discovery.

Some engineers have computed the flowing life of the field at between 19 and 20 years and its total flow at approximately 450,000,000 barrels of oil. They expect it to yield an additional 155,000,000 barrels by pumping. The field is scientifically handled to conserve gas and increase the ultimate recovery.

The discovery well was drilled on the ranch of Ira G. Yates, in Pecos county. As a cattle man, Yates had weathered droughts, and depression and financial straits which enabled him to make good use of the fortune the oil brought him. His 25,431-acre ranch was transferred to a corporation controlled by himself, his wife and his nine children. Its worth approximates $9,000,000.

The discovery well was brought in Christmas Eve, 1923, by Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., which owns No. 30-A well, claimed to be the world's greatest gusher. In one hour the well flowed 8,528 barrels of oil, a rate of 204,680 barrels daily. Oil men say the pool, if opened wide would produce in one day more than twice the amount now produced in the entire nation in the same time.

GARNER SAYS DEMO PROGRAM IS ESSENTIAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Speaker Garner today said that action to secure increased taxes at the short session of congress would largely depend upon the success or failure of the democratic program of beer and farm relief.

"If we don't get our program passed and signed," the speaker said, "what's the use of taking up taxes?"

Garner's statement came on the heels of a bitter attack by Republican Leader Snell in which the administration spokesman predicted democrats would fail to secure enactment of either beer or tax legislation.

Hoover Advises Embargo on Arms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—President Hoover sent to congress today a modified arms embargo message, urging that he be given authority to limit or forbid shipments of guns for military purposes, provided other nations cooperate.

The president has had upon his desk a message in which he asked for such authority for perhaps two weeks. The opposition of America's gun manufacturers was understood to have caused him to rewrite the message.

ELECTED OVER JOHNSON BY 82-68 COUNT

AUSTIN, Jan. 10.—Coke Stevenson of Jackson, Texas, was elected speaker of 43rd Texas legislature here this afternoon.

The complete vote was Stevenson 82, A. P. Johnson 68.

FAIL TO SOLVE BRIDGE PARTY DISAPPEARANCE

MEMPHIS, Jan. 10.—Mrs. F. Harry Long, left a bridge party at 5 p. m. two years ago, thus creating a "perfect mystery" that has baffled police.

Her whereabouts have not been discovered since she drove away from the home of Mrs. W. Cole Early, to go home and feed her two-months-old baby.

That was Jan. 4, 1931. Her disappearance is just as baffling to police now as it was when they first were called into the case.

Her husband, an insurance broker, has reconciled himself to the theory that Mrs. Long drowned herself in the Mississippi river—although he can think of no reason for such an act.

Policeman's Hunch.

But police Inspector Will Griffin, who has solved many mysteries, believes that some day she will appear. He has no evidence to support that belief—it is just a hunch.

When Mrs. Long failed to appear at her home that night to care for her baby son, her husband notified police. Some hours later, her automobile was found on the Harrahah bridge, which spans the Mississippi river. It stood near a small flight of steps that led down to the river bank.

Mrs. Long's coat, gloves, cigar case, purse, with $7.57, and her hat were neatly piled on the automobile seat. There were no signs of a struggle. The key was in the ignition lock.

Woman's Footprints.

With daylight, detectives found a woman's footprints in the mud between the river's edge and the lower end of the steps from the river. A pair of Mrs. Long's shoes fitted the tracks perfectly.

Strangely, the footprints led through the river's edge. There two prints stood even and close together, as if the person who made them stood contemplating the muddy waters. Then these footprints turned and trailed back toward the car.

Whether Mrs. Long decided to leap from the bridge instead of jumping into the river at the shore level is only conjecture.

Little Hope Held For Burned Rancher

FORT STOCKTON, Jan. 10.—Physicians held little hope today for the recovery of J. L. Kites, rancher, burned severely in a fire which razed his home last night at Buena Vista, killing 5 persons.

Kites was brought 40 miles to the sanitarium here by neighbors.

REORGANIZATION RECOMMENDED.

A Texas legislative committee's recommendations on organization and economy for the consideration of the 43rd legislature has been tossed into the laps of the outgoing governor and in-coming governor and lawmakers. Reduction of the number of governmental bureaus and commissions from 131 to 19 is recommended. It is said the proposed reduction would be effected through elimination of obsolete branches of the government and the consolidation of branches whose activities overlap. First, the railroad commission would be placed in the department of public service and under the plan outlined the only state offices that would ultimately be elective, would be governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general. A most sweeping innovation would be the recommendation for the centralization of authority in a commission and administrative board to direct the affairs of most of the departments. This recommendation is passed on to the educators, major and minor, as well as to the lawmakers and laymen; consolidation of the higher institutions of learning into two main systems, the University and the Texas A. & M. college, and four independent colleges, each under a president approved by the board of education. This for all who are engaged in agriculture and its sidelines; the department of agriculture would be abandoned and its functions taken over by the extension service of the Agricultural and Mechanical college. Really, unless the signs are misleading, the incoming legislature will be buried beneath an avalanche of recommendations from legislative and executive personages. There is going to be a royal battle under the big dome through the winter and spring months.

BOARD OF CONTROL TRIMS BUDGET.

The state board of control has recommended to the legislature a budget of $32,519,557 net from the general revenue fund for support of the judiciary, eleemosynary, departmental and educational branches of the government for the biennium ending Aug. 31, 1933. Gross recommendations of the board are $38,260,074, including items chargeable to the general revenue fund and other special revenue accounts. This is $14,983,499 less than the requests made to it for appropriations. A reminder that the total requests was $53,243,573. Speaking of salary recommendations, all salaries in excess of $1200 a year, except those fixed by the constitution, were cut from 6 to 15 per cent, based on a graduated scale of the amounts received. Now the legislative pruning knife may make another slash. As Grover Cleveland remarked in the long ago, in a message to the lawmakers of the nation, "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us."

A NEAT REFUND FOR OGDEN.

Ogden L. Mills is secretary of the treasury. As a campaigner he was a high ace in the political battle which resulted in the defeat of his chieftain and the overthrow of the republican party. His father, a distinguished financier, died several years ago. Now the head of the internal revenue bureau announces an abatement of $5,869,950 and a refund of $45,443 to the Mills estate. According to the bureau announcement, it had been determined after an investigation that the transfer of certain property by the decedent during his lifetime was not made in contemplation of death. Fair enough if the facts are as stated. Many refunds have been made to corporations and individuals. If the assessment was unfair or faulty, then there is no reason why justice should not have been done.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The next Congress will be a "mob" and the wets are doing their best to preserve prohibition, says Representative George Huddleston of Alabama, who will be a member of the next Congress and is also something of a wet.

The remarkable Mr. Huddleston, a Democrat, and member of Congress since 1915, deprecates the loss of various Republican members whose ability and experience made them more valuable than any green Democrat is likely to be.

"We are going to have about 200 congressmen, ignorant and inexperienced," he says, "which includes those who are still new in the present Congress. They will just go demagoguing around for re-election. Lots of them are just accidents. Not having any influence individually they will be largely concerned with patronage, which means that the administration will have a completely free hand.

"The Congress will thus be a mob. Government is a profession requiring long years of arduous work. It's a damn sight harder to make a good legislator than a good lawyer, which takes at least eight or ten years."

Huddleston finds little comfort in the fact that the "mob" will be led by a Democratic president to whom it will give full rein.

"I don't know that Roosevelt's world-beater," he explains. "Although a man of ability, he has had no experience with the federal government except in a subordinate capacity. Being governor of a state is no qualification for the presidency." Huddleston voted against the 18th amendment and stood on his record for years before other southern congressmen turned wet.

But now—"This Congress has done two important things—voted on repeal and a beer bill. Those votes were sops to an unthinking, but harassed people—bandering, demagogic sops to the ignorant. If I wanted to keep national prohibition I couldn't think of any surer way to do it than the present program of the extreme wets."

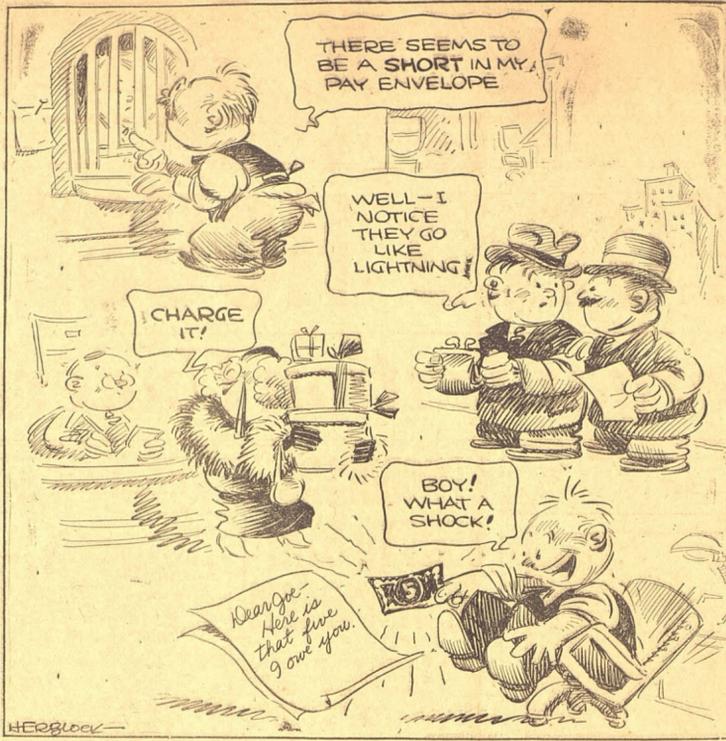

"I voted against beer on constitutional grounds and against the repeal amendment because its provision for ratification by conventions is dangerously unsound and likely to delay repeal."

"THE beer tax is a lot of damn foolishness. It may possibly bring in $100,000,000 or $150,000,000. It's a sales tax decreed by those who won't levy a sales tax, to be paid by the poor. It won't begin to balance the budget even if the supreme court lets us have it.

"If we get by with beer we're likely to have no repeal. The brewers will then oppose repeal and we'll have a division between wets such as helped the drys put over the amendment in the first place. Opening beer saloons will give the drys something to point to and holler about and will stiffen the opposition to repeal."

"I am willing to vote for flat repeal whenever we can have it before us in proper form. We have always ratified amendments in the legislatures. Proposal for state-created conventions would delay and obstruct repeal and impose a double hurdle because dry legislatures and dry governors won't call the conventions."

The object of my sympathy today is R. W. (Bob) Mancill who chose the tag end of the epidemic to pile up in bed with the influenza. Bob has been consorting with the malady for the past week. According to Mrs. Mancill he is not feeling so well about it.

Nobody feels well about the "flu," Bob. It is the most weakening affliction that ever cursed the world not to be any more serious than it is. The trouble with the stuff is that it not only weakens the bones but it seems to have a peculiar effect on the brain. Be careful, Bob.

I call him "Big Un." Watching him busy about the streets selling his papers I have a great desire to pick him up and put him in my pocket. But this wish of a boy carries around with him a lesson in thrift and industry for most of us grown-ups. He sells the Daily News and he is as business-like in his trade as Alex Spears is in the First National bank or Elgdon Edwards in selling Magnolia gasoline and oil.

His name is Fred Roe, Jr., and he is seven years old. He hasn't been selling papers so very long but the lad tells me that he has saved more than $15 of his profits.

It takes lots of paper sales to make a profit of $15.

Here is something new. The King Features syndicate has developed a feature called "Crypt O' Gram." It consists of a series of measures in cipher for the reader to solve. I am going to borrow one of the syndicate's ciphers of this column today so that you may try your hand at it. This particular cipher is an easy one.

See if you can solve it. To the first boy or girl under twenty years of age to bring me the correct solution I shall give a ticket to K. N. Greer's Palace theater. I shall also give credit to the first few solvers to bring in correct solutions.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

A home town booster is an asset; a knocker is a liability.

It must be admitted that at election time many things are said and promises made which are promptly forgotten as soon thereafter as it is possible.

It is a habit among a lot of people who live selfishly to sneer at the folks who take an active part in community work. If that sour-faced few knew what the rest of the people thought about them, many of them would change their ways or hide their faces.

One dramatic symptom draws more public attention than masses of statistics and dry dissertation.

The man who does not take a newspaper and read it will always remain behind the times.

Too many people prefer dabbling in theory rather than the facing of hard facts.

Some cities need more business men in business.

We are all familiar with the post office pen. It has been productive of more bad language than anything we know of. Most of the time it does not function at all.

If a lot of people would spend half the time getting men back to work that they do in getting them out of work, better times would come sooner.

One of the best ways to cut down the cost of living is to buy from the merchants who advertise. They sell the best for less.

City Marshal Stops Thievery With Dogs

ALVIN, Jan. 10. — About twice a week the farmers and the dairymen around Alvin lift their heads and listen to a sound that is beginning to grow familiar to them—the long-drawn bay of bloodhounds on the trail.

Rural negroes look at one another and grin knowingly when they hear the pack.

"Mister Will" is Alvin's city his dogs," they say, and resume their work.

"Mister Will" is Alvin's city marshal, Will Uzell, and the dogs are Tom and Jerry and Lottie, man hunters, who with Marshal Uzell constitute the little city's police force.

"We used to have a lot of petty thieving going on around here," Uzell explained, "but somehow or other, since I got my dogs, it has plumb quit."

Tom and Jerry and Lottie arrived about three months ago and promptly tracked down three youths who had burglarized a dairy farm on the outskirts of Alvin. Uzell trains them on a "run" on an average of twice a week.

The dogs are his personal property. He tried to persuade the city council to buy them but an economy program prevented the investment. So he bought them himself.

Cisco School Head Shows America's Need Of a Balanced Budget of Human Welfare

A note of education for the people rather than people for education was sounded today by Supt. R. N. Cluck of the Cisco public schools in a statement he made calling for balancing of "the budget of human welfare."

"There are budgets other than the dollar budget to be balanced in America and Texas today," Cluck said. "There are the budget of human beings, the budget of health, and especially the budget of little children. Mixing all these together in one big budget of human welfare, let us balance it as follows:

Debit

1. Less taxation for war.
2. Less education in higher abstract knowledge.
3. Less striving for wealth.
4. Less special privileges.
5. Less theory.
6. Less prejudice.
7. Less meddling.
8. Less shifting from the home of parental responsibility.
9. Less social aspirations of families.
10. Less quibbling and backbiting over trivial matters.
11. Less feeding of the mind on gossip and the baser things of life.
12. Fewer calamity howlers.
13. Less magnifying of the bad in people.

Credit.

1. More taxation for school.
2. More education in how to live.
3. More striving for real human welfare.
4. More equality of opportunity.
5. More reason.
6. More tolerance.
7. More planning.
8. More parental control in the home.
9. More family circles in the home.
10. More brotherly love and unity of purpose.
11. More wholesome food for the mind.
12. More prosperity singers.
13. More magnifying of the good in people.

In the list of debits and credits Cluck stressed the importance of a return to parental control in the home. Too often, he said, parents are glad when their children reach the school age because they expect the school to control them when they themselves cannot.

He stressed, also, the practical in education to balance the budget, and advocated a departure from the vast amount of theory as opposed to the small amount of practice to which it is put in the schools.

BIG DAM CHATTER

The needed cog appeared to be added to the Lobo basketball machine Monday night with the return of Bill Rutledge at center. Cisco has been needing a tall center for some time, and with Rutledge in the game things may look different for the Lobos.

Coleman Williams and J. L. Cearley, who were first used at the pivot position were simply not tall enough to control the tip against such tall men as they had to face. Rutledge, a tall, rangy man with a lot of natural jumping ability, will probably make the team a good center. He has not yet worked out enough this season to time his jump accurately, but that will come with time and hard work only.

The best shot seen here in a good while by the way, was one by Coleman Williams Monday night. Williams took a pass and, closely guarded, whirled and dropped a perfect one hand shoulder shot into the basket.

Ray, by the way, managed some good basket shooting, most of his goals being from a long distance.

SHEILA SHAYNE is, whose parents were well known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for work. Sheila is a dancer. She has spent almost her entire life on the stage, first traveling with her parents, now dead, and later in vaudeville and road shows. Sheila lives at 14A LUTWELL'S theatrical rooming house.

MARY, a vaudeville performer also out of work, lives there, too. Over the breakfast table one morning Sheila confides to Mary that her great ambition is to marry and have a home like those she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

AT about the same time two wealthy young men, TREVOR LANE and DICK STANLEY, are discussing plans for the night. They decide to go to Paris' office to hire some entertainers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

SHEILA walked across 49th street to Broadway and ran lightly up the stairs to Joe Paris' place. There was an elevator—it one cared to wait for it. Sheila could delay to buy flowers from a street peddler but now a minute was too much to waste on the likes of breath-savers such as elevators.

To be sure the job in prospect wasn't much—filling in for Daisy. But it was a job nevertheless. Daisy couldn't dance but, being married to Roscoe, leader of his own band and crazy about her, it had been easy for her to win a place in the show. Sheila could fill the part far better than Daisy and knew it. She wondered—not unkindly—if Daisy's sprain was serious, if it would lay her up for some time. Sheila devoutly hoped that it would.

She was a little excited about coming to Joe Paris' place. Joe was the "King of Tin Pan Alley." He was the singing water from the Bowers, married now to a society girl. Joe Paris' name on a song was like sterling on silver. His praise meant instant success! Joe of course had not hired Sheila for the part with Roscoe. Roscoe must have telephoned to Bill Brady and asked for suggestions. Bill had remembered that Sheila was not working. Frequently Joe loaned his practice rooms to dancers learning a routine—especially when they plugged his songs.

Sheila was sure Joe Paris had never even heard her name. She was right in thinking Bill had suggested her but wrong in thinking Joe Paris did not know her. He had heard her sing and when the time came that she could be useful he would know where to find her. Until then there was no use getting her hopes up, as a call from Paris himself would have been sure to do.

UPSTAIRS in Joe's shop every one was busy. There was a long counter behind which a girl answered incessant calls from the telephone and took care of visitors. Planos jangling. Jazz throbbing. Someone crooning. Down the corridor were little practice rooms, a

"Lo, kid," Brady said. "Running his eye over her figure in reluctant approval he grunted, 'You are taller than Gleason.'" planos in each. Dance producers shouted to overworked, perspiring performers. Someone was trying out Joe's latest song.

Sheila, ever entranced though it was all so familiar, loved the blare of melody, the jangling discordant sounds. She loved the raucous voices, the sight of sleek-hipped, busy dance arrangers moving briskly here and there, the swartzy pianists, thick cigars hanging from the corners of their mouths, whose pudgy hands, lingering over the keys, could squeeze out unguessed melody.

Sheila had often been at Joe's to see Blind Timmy. Timmy worked there and drew a fair salary, though whether from the kindness of Joe's heart or from actual worth Sheila did not know.

She had seen Joe himself, slim, dapper, sleek of hair, abstract of expression, wandering about the place, his hat on the back of his well-groomed head, hands in his pockets. Or walking briskly toward his private office, deep in conversation with an assistant. She had seen him pause by Blind Timmy's piano, pat the bent shoulders, whisper words which seemed to bring happiness to the patient old face. Sheila loved to see Blind Timmy's face glow at these scant words of praise. Joe was a big shot now but he remembered when he had been obscure, struggling. Unlike many others who had risen to success he was constantly on the lookout for talent to match his own.

At the counter the blond, smartly groomed girl looked up from the telephone long enough to inquire of Sheila what business had brought her hither, to nod absently and shuffle a handful of cards, abstractedly murmuring "Shayne" as she did so.

"Lo, kid," he vouchsafed in her direction and broke into a fox trot, clumsy for all his slenderness. Running his eye over her figure in reluctant approval, he grunted, "You are taller than Gleason."

"Sure. But my feet are just as near the floor."

"An' Gleason is Roscoe's wife.

Stagefight Gone

Although playing a slow game, the Lobos appeared to have lost much of the stagefight which marked the first two games. They were controlling the tipoff more than before and breaking a little faster.

The game was marked by the large number of personal fouls committed by both teams. A checkup showed that there were 22 fouls, Cisco making 15 and Coleman 7.

Following are the starting lineups: Coleman: George and Campbell, forwards; Carrol, center; Jack Burleson and Hollinger, guards. Cisco: Williams and Cearley, forwards; Rutledge, center; Ray and Harrison, guards.

FAMED PRIEST OF SOUTHERN ISLANDS DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Father Emmanuel Rogier, "King of Christmas Island" and wealthiest man in the South Seas, was dead today and another link between the old and modern life of the archipelago was severed.

Father Rogier was sent to Tahiti three-quarters of a century ago as a Catholic missionary from France. For years he labored among the Polynesian natives, converting them from their ancient faiths and aiding them in developing their arts and industries.

At the time of his death he was known as the wealthiest man in the South Seas. He realized early that a fortune was to be made in the tropical territory and began investing.

Copra Interests.
His interests first centered in the copra plantations in the vicinity of the Society Islands, but they soon spread to other islands. At that time most of the copra was shipped to San Francisco in small sailing schooners.

Father Rogier decided it would be more profitable to have his own ships. As his activities and interest expanded, he purchased Christmas Island to the south of the Hawaiian group, and 1,220 miles from Papete. With four whites and 35 natives on the island he set up his own little kingdom, which he ruled in a tolerant and patriarchal manner.

Bought Grey's Yacht
From Zane Grey, the novelist, he purchased the yacht Fishermen, and renaming it the Marshal Foch, made it his flagship.

Through his activities Father Rogier accumulated several million dollars. He was owner of thousands of coconut trees and a number of small islands and atolls. On Christmas Island, which is 700,000 acres in extent, he planted 600,000 coconut trees.

His money sent many of the island natives to California educational institutions.

UNITED PRESS WILL PROVIDE READERS WITH NEWS OF LEGISLATURE

A trained staff of United Press correspondents will give the readers of the Daily News news of the Forty-third session of the Texas legislature.

One staff correspondent will be assigned to each house of the legislature, there to report not only the "spot" news from the floor of the chamber, but to write interpretive articles, interviews with leaders, character sketches of members and their families.

The work of each important committee, under whose scrutiny every measure must pass before it is considered on the floor of either house, will be carefully watched by men personally acquainted with each member of the legislative body.

Their dispatches will be published in the Daily News throughout the session as a part of the regular United Press service.

In addition, these men will be on constant watch for bills of special interest to this community, activities of members of the legislature from this section, and other news of special interest to the readers of the Daily News.

Shearer, manager of the Austin bureau of the United Press for five years, is one of the "veteran" correspondents at the capitol. He is personally acquainted with each and from there to Rising Star, where it will be displayed at the County Federation meeting on the third Saturday of the month. She also announced that Mrs. Meyers of Henrietta, child welfare representative, with headquarters at Austin, will speak at this meeting. These pictures are all works of West Texas artists. In her talk, Mrs. Perkins called attention to the frames of the pictures, pointing out that some detracted from while some added to the attractiveness of the work. At the close of Mrs. Perkins address, Mrs. Theresa Weddington McMerrell gave two clever readings, and Mrs. P. L. Ullom delighted her audience with two vocal solos. At the conclusion of the program, tea was served by members of the Arts club.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodner Bedford and children of Brownwood visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Pierce, here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Murphy of Eastland visited Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Kunkel here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Dawkins attended the funeral of E. L. Perkins in Abilene Sunday.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS CLUB SPONSORS EXHIBIT
The First Industrial Arts club members were sponsors of an art exhibit yesterday afternoon, at a meeting of the City Federation at the clubhouse. Mrs. G. B. During the short business session, reports of officers were given, and Mrs. Kelly requested that all clubs pay their dues and pledges immediately in order that the school taxes now pending may be paid.

Mrs. H. G. Bailey, president of the Industrial Arts club, welcomed the guests, and expressed her appreciation to Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Kelly for their part in making the exhibit possible. This collection of eighteen oil paintings has been assembled by Mrs. A. C. Hoover, chairman of the art department of the Sixth District Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Bailey introduced Mrs. Joseph E. Perkins of Eastland who explained the exhibit. Mrs. Perkins had the collection in her home for two weeks for the benefit of the Eastland people. She announced that the exhibit will be taken from here to Ranger.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Perkins had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Lyles of Breckenridge.

Robert Stelle of Ranger visited his mother, Mrs. A. M. Williams, here Sunday.

PARIS STYLES
By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Jan. 10.—Well, well, well—back again on my skates doing the town with an eye and an ear for the latest developments in fashions. I am more firmly convinced that ever that France is the country of ingenuity and inspiration, and that America is the land of the expert copyist and adapter of the mode.

So many things to write about—the new frocks popping out from all the smart shops—I scarcely know which to select for a brief description. I've decided, however, on a black velvet afternoon tea frock with a turned-down collar and cuffs of old ceru lace. This is owned by Miss Audrey Kilvert of New York. Other versions of it also are the property of the Marquise de la Gandara, the aunt of Prince Pio di Savoia, who is to marry Donna Vittoria Colonna this month; and by young Madame Bachin, who has it in dark green.

An attractive cocktail frock also is of black velvet with a little jerked of silver Irish crochet lace, and it is worn by the Duchesse de Levis-Mirepoix. These both are Chanel selections.

WINTER PLOTS A WICKED CRIME

THE VICTIMS: Those Motors Using Ordinary Oil that Drains Away from Heated Working Surfaces.

THE TIME: Those Cold Starting Minutes While Precious Motor Parts Must Run Dry at Warming Speed Until Oil is Pumped from Below.

GET THE "hidden quart" in time *

THE QUART THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart never drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself; worth its weight in gold.

CONOCO

The One Oil that Gives You Perfect Protection for Winter's Worst Days Ahead

Drip! trickle! drip! through long night hours, ordinary oil drains away. When the pump quits, ordinary oil quits, leaving the motor's parts high and dry. You touch the starter. The motor roars. The pump strains at the sluggish oil. It is only a few minutes till circulation is completed. But, in the meantime, working surfaces only partly lubricated are in contact, while the motor makes three to five thousand revolutions. This causes 50% of all motor wear.

Prevent this loss. Choose not merely a quick oil, but an oil that never leaves. Choose the oil with the "hidden quart" that penetrates and combines with the metal surfaces of the motor itself. In the emergency of an empty crankcase, users have driven many miles, without damage, on this "hidden quart alone. This proves that your motor need never suffer while waiting upon the pump. Don't remain in doubt. Drain and refill with the "hidden quart oil today.
