Legislature Meets at Noon to Consider Cotton Relief

WOODWARD PROPOSES 2-3 REDUCTION

AUSTIN, Sept. 8.—The farmers session of the Texas legislature met at noon today to enact cotton relief legislation.

Within an hour after legislature was convened this afternoon a resolution and three bills had been introduced. A resolution by Sen. J. J. Loy, of Sherman, would authorize a legislative investigation of the amount of untenderable cotton padding the federal crop estimate.

In his message Governor Ross Shaw Sterling said it was a question whether this relief could be brought about by legislation but said that all Texas hoped that it might. He said replies to his inquiry of the public indicated a majority favored a 50 per cent reduction in cotton acreage next year.

This was in line with what is considered the administration bill as prepared for introduction by Sen. Walter Woodward, of Coleman. Senator Woodward, however, revised his bill just before the session opened to provide for the planting of only one-third of cultivated land in cotton next year and 50 per cent thereafter.

WOODWARD PREPARES BILL

AUSTIN, Sept. 8.—State Senator Walter Woodward, of Coleman, arrived here today for the special session of the Texas legislature, bearing what is generally looked upon as the administration cotton bill.

Briefly the bill provided that no farmer shall plant more than 50 per cent of his cultivated land in cotton next year and that he shall not plant the same land in cotton two years in succession. There is also a provision to limit the amount of raw land that may be added to cotton acreage. Upon arrival here Senator Woodward revised the bill to limit acreage to one-third.

No enforcement bureau is planned. Each county tax assessor will be required to take two additional sworn statements from farmers when they make their tax rendition. One will be the amount of land he has in cultivation and the other the amount of land in cotton.

"The bill is sound economically, will stand a court test, is easily enforceable, and will meet the situation," said Woodward. "There will be no trouble in enforcing it."

HOOVER SAYS REPEAL OF DRY LAW ILLOGICAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—New pleas for beer and wine as a depression relief measure are regarded by President Hoover as illogical proposals which have no chance of being put into effect.

Efforts to legalize wines and beer have received new impetus because of the depression. It is argued they would bring in millions of dollars in taxes at a time when the federal treasury is facing a deficit. It is figured that manufacture and marketing of these products would give employment to thousands, stimulate numerous lines of business furnishing supplies, equipment and transportation, and provide an outlet for surplus grain and grapes.

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his three flying mates are shown here as they completed the first scientific air trip between Germany and Chicago over the northern circle route. It was Von Gronau's second Atlantic crossing. He flew from Germany to New York last year. Left to right, standing aboard their flying boat on Lake Michigan, are: Ed Zimmer, co-pilot; Von Gronau, Fritz Albrecht, radio operator, and Fanz Hack, mechanic.

MARKET IS STEADY AFTER CROP REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Although prices dipped 7 to 16 points to new lows for the season on the local cotton exchange today, an amazing demonstration of steadiness occurred in the afternoon dealings with prices rallying to the previous closing levels in the face of the increase in the government crop estimate and drastic weakness in stocks.

At mid-afternoon the list was practically unchanged from last week's closing levels.

CROP OF 15,685,000 BALES FORECAST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The agricultural department today estimated this year's cotton crop at a figure 101,000 bales in excess of the bumper prediction of a month ago which threw the cotton market into a panic decline. The department estimated the yield this year would be 15,685,000 bales.

Shortly before the crop reporting board issued its figures President Hoover discussed the plight of cotton producers and learners with W. L. Clayton, of Houston, Texas, and George R. James, of Memphis, a member of the federal reserve board.

Receiver for El Paso Bank

EASTLAND, Sept. 8.—O. F. Poltroff, a former Eastland man, has been named receiver for the First National bank of El Paso, which closed its doors about a week ago. Poltroff, who is a brother-in-law of Judge Cyrus B. and Snow Frost, passed through Eastland Monday morning en route to El Paso to assume charge of the bank's affairs.

Mr. Poltroff was connected with banks in Eastland in 1918, to 1920. Recently has been in charge of the defunct First National bank of Helena, Ark. While on in charge of that bank about four months he was able to pay in that time 25 per cent dividend. The assets of the bank were $2,000,000.

The bank at El Paso, which Mr. Poltroff is to be receiver of, had assets of more than $13,000,000.

Political Campaigns Due to Get Under Way Earlier in 1932 Than Formerly

It is evident that political campaigns, from those for precinct officers to that of president of the nation, will get underway earlier next year than usual, and taken as a whole, will be warmer than usual. The fact is many are now at work promoting the candidacy of their favorites for the higher offices. In the county of course the people are just beginning to discuss the qualifications of prospective candidates. So far the prospective candidates themselves are saying nothing, but are keeping their ears to the ground as it were to detect any favorable or unfavorable comment concerning them or the policies they contemplate working into their platforms.

Much interest is being manifested just now in who will represent this county in the legislature next year.

Nothing from either Tom J. Cunningham of Eastland, nor Victor B. Gilbert of Cisco, and the County's present representatives, would indicate whether they will be candidates to succeed themselves. On the other hand, Judge Elzo Been, who is credited with the statement that he will not be a candidate for re-election as district judge when his present term expires on January 1, is being talked as a prospective candidate for representative from Eastland county.

For judge of the 88th district court, the position now held by

CISCO ELKS HOSTS TO OIL BELT ASS'N

The Cisco Elks lodge was host last night to the quarterly session of the Oil Belt Elks association when more than 75 Elks attended.

Military work was put on and following the regular session of the lodge and the Oil Belt association, the Cisco Elks and their guests were entertained by little Miss Margie Linder in reading and dance numbers, and by the Dick Thomas orchestra, of Humbletown. The program was prepared by a committee of which G. W. Collum, organist of the lodge, was chairman.

Barbecued goat was served at the conclusion of the program.

Among those attending was Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, president of the Texas Elks association.

Legion to Have Buffet Supper

The John William Butts post of the American Legion will have a buffet supper Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, it has been announced. All legionnaires and ex-service men are invited to attend this meeting.

This will be one of a series of social affairs which the post will hold during the fall.

Judge Elzo Been, a number of men are mentioned as prospective candidates.

B. W. Patterson of Eastland, one of the most popular and undoubtedly one of the best qualified men in the county, is frequently and persistently talked as a candidate for this responsible position. Joe H. Jones, Eastland county's efficient county attorney, is also mentioned as a probable aspirant for Been's place. Jones is a capable lawyer and a good campaigner.

Still another man mentioned often for the 88th district judgeship is Frank Sparks of Eastland, former member of the Legislature, and former county attorney of Eastland county. There perhaps are other prospective candidates for this position, but the writer has not heard their names mentioned, at least not as often as those mentioned above.

Judge Geo. L. Davenport of the 91st district court, whose present term will expire this year, is considered a certain candidate to succeed himself, and it is also considered just as certain that he will have no opposition.

Apparently there will be at least three in the field for county judge. C. L. Garrett, present incumbent, is being talked by his friends as a candidate to succeed himself, while W. B. Collie, present assistant county

E-TEX FLOWS 362,825 BBLs. ON SATURDAY

KILGORE, Sept. 8.—Production of the east Texas oil fields Saturday the first day the wells were allowed to flow since the field was placed under martial law, totaled 362,825 barrels for 1648 of the 1842 wells, military headquarters announced here today. Thirteen violations of the order limiting production to 225 barrels per day per well were reported. No arrests were made, the evidence being simply turned over to the railroad commission authorities.

Meanwhile decline of domestic crude petroleum production under the influence of the Oklahoma and Texas military shutdowns continued last week. The Oil and Gas Journal reports today. Daily average crude production in the nation dropped 4,946 barrels to 1,736,007 barrels, the lowest level in many years.

600 GUARDSMEN LEAVE OIL FIELD

KILGORE, Sept. 8.—Six hundred Texas national guardsmen today evacuated the east Texas oil fields by train and bus.

A force of 120 men and 32 officers was left behind to enforce martial law and the proration orders of the Texas Railroad commission. The remaining cavalrymen are quartered as follows: 60 at Kilgore, 30 at Gladewater, and 30 at Overton.

EXPERT GIVES POINTERS ON DECORATION

An appreciative audience greeted Mrs. Christine Carter at the First Baptist church Monday afternoon, where she lectured on "Beautifying the Home." Mrs. Carter urged discrimination in arranging a beautiful home, which can be a vast cottage as well as a more pretentious dwelling place, and defined discrimination as the ability to choose the thing you want from an abundance of material. She advised against the ornate or over-furnished rooms, urged her hearers to take into consideration the special likes of father, brother, and sister, to group their special objects and work from that standpoint. She stressed the use of brilliant colors, using the wine, red, orange, or yellow in the north and east rooms, and the cool colors of blue, green, violet, and grey in south and west rooms. She gave a history of wall decorating since 1910, also telling the story of the hand woven tapestries of Athlida, wife of William the Conqueror, and how the use of tapestry was superseded by the use of imitations, when wall paper came into use. Mrs. Carter illustrated her lecture with wall paper and draperies that combined best in furthering designs or color schemes.

Preceding the lecture, Mrs. P. P. Shepard presided over an attractive program, introducing S. E. Steward, music director of Randolph college, who played Beethoven's "Sonata," also an original composition. Mrs. Olin Pierce, who sang "Pale Moon," and "Where My Caravan Has Rested," won hearty applause. Miss Blanche Van Horn appealed to the hearts of her hearers with "Romance of Gretchen Green." Mrs. A. E. Jamison and Mrs. W. W. Wallace sang the lovely "Crossing the Bar," after which Mrs. Shepard introduced Mrs. R. Q. Lee who introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon. At the close of the lecture, Mrs. Shepard, assisted by Mrs. Larry Waterbury and Mrs. O. W. Shepherd, served punch to those present during an informal after meeting.

BURKETT FINDS PRORATION IN EAST TEXAS BIG TASK

Omar Burkett, deputy oil and gas supervisor of the Texas Railroad commission in charge of proration of the vast east Texas oil field, is in Cisco today, winding up affairs of his former office here before returning to Henderson this evening. Mr. Burkett served as deputy supervisor for six years in charge of the Cisco office.

He heads a force of about 30 men organized for supervision of production in the east Texas fields under the commission's proration orders. His headquarters are at Henderson, where he has a force of six men. A. E. Capers is in charge of proration detail in Mr. Burkett's organization.

Supervision of the field entails a vast amount of detail, Mr. Burkett said. His force works under the authority of the military, commanded by Gen. F. Wolters, and all of this detail, amassed by the proration forces under the system as outlined by the commission for checking the production of the field, must pass through the office of Gen. Wolters at the military headquarters at Camp Parish, a mile south of Kilgore, where a part of Mr. Burkett's force is stationed. Gen. Wolters and the military and the commission force work in absolute harmony, Mr. Burkett said. The deputy supervisors, checkers and gaugers sent into the field by the commission gather all details and reports and submit them to Gen. Wolters who issues necessary orders in connection with the enforcement of the railroad commission's proration program.

Four Districts

For proration purposes the railroad commission has followed the military shut-down organization of the great oil field. Under this arrangement it is divided into four districts. Six men are stationed in the Longview district; six in the Kilgore district; 5 in the London district, and five in the Jolleville district. In addition one deputy supervisor is located at Tyler, one at Longview and four in Mr. Burkett's office at Henderson.

A complicated system of checking production and disposal of oil makes it practically impossible to evade the proration rules, said Mr. Burkett. Checkers and gaugers are assigned to specific areas where they are continually on the job. Both outlet and intake of flow tanks at Ray Coleman, 21, is not expected to live. He has a fractured skull, arm and leg.

C. of C. Directors To Meet Tonight

The chamber of commerce will meet this evening at the chamber of commerce offices at 7:30, it was announced. This will be a regular session of the board.

ACCEPTS POST OF PRESIDENT THIS MORNING

Dr. Lee Clark, eldest son of the founder of Texas Christian university, Randolph Clark, and one of Texas' foremost public school men, today announced formal acceptance of the presidency of Randolph college. Trucks from Cisco will move his family from Quanah, Texas, tomorrow. Dr. Clark resigns from the faculty of North Texas State Agricultural college, to accept the Cisco post. He will enter immediately upon his duties in preparation for the opening of the college September 22.

Dr. Clark was offered the presidency of the school at a meeting in Cisco two weeks ago. He tentatively accepted the post a short while later, receiving definite acceptance until the regents of the state school at Arlington could act upon his resignation. His resignation was accepted last night at 10 o'clock, according to a message this morning.

Dr. Clark, considered one of the strongest educators available for the post here, will add much prestige to the school, members of the board of trustees and others interested in the welfare of the school declared this morning. His acceptance of the presidency has brightened the outlook for the school to a great extent and optimism over prospects for the year was much in evidence as announcement of Dr. Clark's decision was made.

Prominent Educator

As a school man, Dr. Clark has held positions of great responsibility in many public schools of the state during his 30 years or more of experience. He is credited with the founding of two flourishing municipal junior colleges, that at Wichita Falls and that at Gainesville.

He founded each while superintendent of public schools in the city. In addition to serving as superintendent for several years at Wichita Falls and at Gainesville he served in the same capacity at Plainville and at other Texas cities. These experiences have served to broaden his already wide acquaintance in the state which will add greatly to the value of his services as president of Randolph college.

He will be here as one of the principal speakers on the citizens meeting in the interest of Randolph to be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the high school auditorium.

Preparations for the opening of the college September 22 are underway in charge of Dean E. B. Isaac and the school is anticipating registration of a large student body for the session.

At the mass meeting Dr. Clark and Dr. Tyndall will outline their plan for the future of the school and attempt to apprise the public of the opportunity that exists here for a junior college of the first order.

The body will lie in state at the church from 4:30 until 5 when the services will be conducted by the Rev. T. Edgar Neal, presiding elder of the Cisco district of the Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. H. D. Tucker, pastor of the church. Green Funeral home is in charge of burial arrangements.

Active pall bearers for the service will be Joe Wilson, George Winston, O. A. Umphrey, R. J. Little, H. S. Drumwright, T. J. Dean, Ike Parner, Lee Owen and W. H. Hayes.

PICTURE OF PEACE: — The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.— Isaiah 11: 6.

THE GOVERNOR'S RACE.

Dan Moody rode into the governor's chair in a fight with the Fergusons over road building. Jim Allred is headed in the governor's office. His fight is through the courts, and is aimed at trust-busting.

There are two in the race already—J. E. McDonald, the agriculture commissioner, and Paul Loven of New Braunfels, also-ran of two years ago.

What will Sterling do? There are many hundred candidates who would like to know. But he keeps his peace.

What will Allred do? Another many hundred would like to know. He, too, abides his time.

What will the Fergusons do? Didn't you hear the ringing challenge from his henchmen a few nights ago: "Pay your poll tax and get ready for next year."

Interesting, too, is a study entitled what will Tom Love do, Clint Small, the Davidsons, Barry Miller, and all the others in the also-rans, has-beens and never-was gang? And you mustn't forget the aspirations of Senator Walter Woodward, trumpeteer of the Sterling campaign.

Yes, pay your poll tax and get ready for next year. There will be plenty of candidates and enough issues to go around.

DUELLING GOES MODERN.

A German count challenged a British flyer to a duel because of a brawl they had over a girl in Berlin. The Tommy snatched up the challenge and chose his weapons: an airplane with a machine gun. The German went home.

They've had their publicity and we've had our laugh. After all, it is a merry old world.

INDIVIDUALISM MUST MEET CRISIS.

A recent release of the Socialist Party of America contains comment on "Red" Hunger Riots in Chicago," by Adolph Dreifuss, Secretary, Socialist Party of Cook county.

Mr. Dreifuss' account is startling. Three rioters were killed, many families have been evicted from homes and misery in densely populated negro districts in Chicago's south side "has become unbearable." He places the blame squarely on the city government, saying that if it had been really alive to conditions among its citizens it could have easily foreseen these riots and taken measures for relief.

Opponents of socialism must take an interest in such happenings. The hungry and homeless are ready to experiment with governmental theories that promise them Utopia. Our present form of democratic government and business must, in depressed times, justify themselves by actions rather than words, or the inevitable result will be a swing toward socialism.

A number of great businesses have taken steps to protect their workers and carry them through bad times. Every business which is able to do so should follow this lead. If they fail in the crisis, they are liable to awaken on some not-so-far-distant tomorrow to find that a new centralized governmental power is controlling their destinies, and that American ideals of private initiative and enterprise and personal liberties have been submerged in a sea of governmental paternalism.

ONE OF THE CHEAPEST AND BEST FOODS.

Campaigns to encourage the consumption of milk will, of course, benefit the dairy farmers of the nation—but a far greater benefit will come to the public as a whole, and particularly to growing children.

The value of milk as food can hardly be over-estimated. It has no effective substitute. It contains elements vital to sustain and nourish the system and provides them in easily assimilated form. Dr. Percy Howe, lecturer of Harvard Medical and Dental School, says a quart of milk a day will help prevent decay of teeth by furnishing necessary lime.

It may be said that the nation has never had a better or safer milk supply than at present. In most states rigid codes of standards are in force, and organizations among dairymen themselves are working in the interests of safe and wholesome milk. It is one of the cheapest foods—and likewise one of the most necessary.

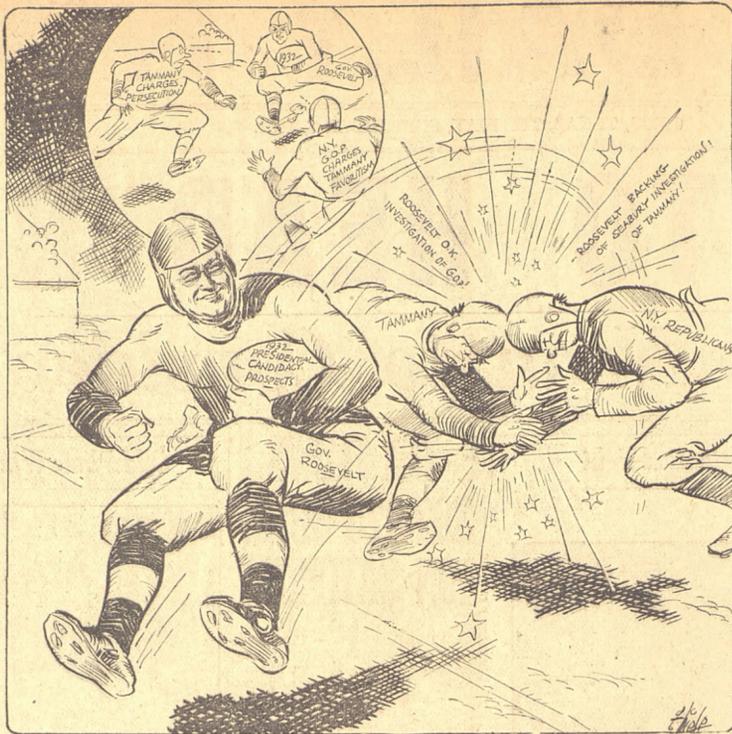

NARROW ROADS DANGEROUS.

Communities should pay more attention to the width of their new roads.

It is generally conceded that building one-lane highways menaces the safety of those who travel and constitutes economic waste. Two "half highways" built at different times cost a good deal more than a "whole highway" built at one time.

Nowadays modern low-cost, waterproof, bituminous surfaces, laid over local materials, can be secured for a nominal figure to serve rural districts with year-round secondary roads. Such roads pay for themselves again and again in a multitude of ways—in allowing farmers to go to market at favorable times, in giving farm children better opportunities to attend district schools, in limiting the hazard of fire in isolated homes. And while we are building them, we should build for the traffic of the future that will demand two-lane surfaces if the maximum of efficiency and safety is to be achieved.

HEADWORK!

OTHER OPINIONS

THE AMERICAN GOLIATH

Taxation and public expenditures have been referred to as our "fastest-growing industry."

Analysis of the figures show ample grounds for such a claim. Since 1913, public expenditures for federal, state and local governmental purposes have increased from three billion to twelve and a half billion dollars per year. Governmental expenditures per capita have increased since 1913 from $30.24 to $99.23. One person out of twelve is now on the public payroll, while in 1913, it was one out twenty-five. Fifteen per cent of our national income now goes to support the government, while in 1913, seven per cent of our national income was consumed by taxation.

Approximately the same trend of increased expenditures appears in our own local and state government. State expenditures have increased from about $2 per capita in 1913 to over $12 per capita now—a six hundred per cent increase in expenditures with about a fifty per cent increase in population. Some of our cities have bonded and taxed themselves beyond their ability to pay and have increased expenditures far beyond the increase in wealth and in population. It is estimated that taxes now consume 70 per cent of the net profits of agriculture and related industries; 35 per cent of the mining and quarrying industries; 30 per cent of the public service industries, and so on for the entire category of business. Everybody knows instances where taxes were more than the returns from the property. There is a greater tax delinquency than at any time.

All of the above has occurred in face of the fact that expenditures in private business during the last few years have been greatly decreased. Salaries have been cut, services have been discontinued, consolidations have been made, and everything possible has been done in private business to reduce costs. Increased public expenditures, however, go on and on while we are getting five cents for cotton as against thirteen cents in 1913, twenty-five cents for wheat as against ninety cents in 1913, and until recently, fifteen cents for oil as against $2 in 1913.

West Texas Today believes that before business can return to normal, public expenditures and taxation will have to come down. West Texas Today also believes that the blame for the present situation should not be placed upon the shoulders of our public officials, but that the blame instead rests more upon the shoulders of our business men and taxpayers. Our public officials, we think, for the most part fairly and honestly express and execute the will of their constituents. They have given us the kind of government we have demanded. It is true that we have been "howling" about taxes at each election for years, but it is also true that at the same time, we have been demanding increased services from the government; have been apathetic about bond elections and have shown very little interest in the expenditures for government. What interest we have shown has been in getting more appropriations rather than in decreasing and abolishing them. We have had the "cart before the horse." We "howl" about taxes and forget about expenditures. Let us get the horse before the cart. Let us get interested in the operations and organization of government, in the services of the government and in the appropriations being made. When expenditures come down, then taxes will come down. Let us quit fighting taxes for awhile and start fighting expenditures. It may be that after all Jefferson's idea of government is our cure when he said, "that government is best which governs the least." — West Texas Today.

TEXAS TOPICS

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. — Somebody in Texas with a craving for publicity, has imposed on a newspaper mail service editor of Cleveland, Ohio, and caused to be distributed a misleading broadside of praise for the "invisible track" highway between Temple and Belton.

The account says the strip has been free of accidents, and credits it all to the narrow brick runners on which cars are supposed to be driven.

This writer has driven the particular piece of road often. He can rise up in meeting and give this testimonial about it:

1. The highway was the highest-priced per mile of any in Texas.
2. It is the hardest to drive, the most uncomfortable and difficult to stay on of any surfaced highway in Texas.
3. It cannot be driven in safety at over 25 miles an hour.
4. It cannot be driven even at that speed without getting one's car out of the brick-runners.
5. It was practically impossible to get over until the administration which succeeded the Ferguson highway commission responsible for it surfaced the interstices between the four narrow runners. Nine-tenths of the driving is now done up on this asphalt surfacing.

At speeds of over 25 miles, one's car will jump out of the brick-bound runners and climb the high-side of asphalt. Before the asphalt was put on, the cars would jump out into the mud.

The highway has short turns in it, unsafe for any reasonable highway speed. It has lateral ditches for drainage between the runners that severely bump a car every few hundred yards. If you get behind a slow truck at Temple, you are probably behind it when you reach Belton.

This highway is the famous "10 per cent plus" road on which the contractor collected 10 per cent on the thermos water jug he bought for his office, and collected 10 per cent on the amount paid his stenographer.

One could not drive over 100 miles of this kind of road in a day without being completely tired out.

PONIES START SEASON GRIND ON THURSDAY

DALLAS, Sept. 8. — Next Thursday morning, Sept. 10, the sound of cleated feet upon the gridiron will again be heard when Coach Ray Morrison begins his activities for the current season. Forty nine men are expected to report for training. Practice sessions will be held twice daily throughout the training period which is expected to last for twelve or fifteen days.

With only fourteen practice days before they meet the Denton Eagles from North Texas State Teachers college, the Mustangs will have to bear down to be in shape for this opening encounter. In their last meeting with the Denton crew the Mustangs were held scoreless until the last quarter of the game. The final score was 13 to 3 with the Ponies on the heavy end, but they were forced the limit to win.

Both playing field and practice field are in the best of condition for the squad when they return. The grass has been well watered and cut throughout the summer, and the Mustangs will have a nice pasture to run wild in. The men that are expected to report for practice are as follows:

Backs: Bass, Gilbert, Beron, Jacobie, Johnson, Mason, McNutt, Oliver, T. Shaw, Sprague, Thomas, Travis, Walstad, Walker, Baxter, Cullen, Norwood, Strickland, Jordan, Woodward.

Ends: Dickenson, Hawn, Koontz, Mills, Davidson, Barton, Clayton, L. Smith, Webster.

Tackles: Bray, Fly, Jackson, R. Smith, Tate, Hammon, Ross, Lynes, A. Shaw.

Guards: Trant, McLeod, Neeley, Prince, Riley, Kelsey, Burlson.

Centers: Delcambre, Browning, Elkins, Hayes.

TON OF TACKLE MATERIAL FOR LONGHORN 11

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. — More than a ton of tackle material will report to the Longhorn training camp here September 10. Thirteen men, ranging in weight from Carl Tyson's 185 to Albert Cauthorn's 260, will give Line Coach B. James a lot of trouble this fall, but it's the kind of trouble coaches enjoy the task of picking a pair of starters from a whole raft of good football players. And if tales of Harvard's tackle-killing attack be accurate, the Steers will need these thirteen huskies and maybe more when Clyde Littlefield and his squad invade Cambridge October 24.

Wilson Cook, regular starting tackle on the champion '30 eleven, has been tentatively switched to guard in Ox Emerson's place. In this case, James will be left with four lettermen: Ox Blanton of Hewitt, 210-pound all-conference tackle last year as a sophomore; Herschell Moody of Austin, 195, another soph star of last season; Sonny Doell of Mason, 190, letterman in '29 and '30; Carl Tyson of Austin, 185, playing his last season. Five husky tackles from last year's freshman team will keep the old heads tending strictly to business. These are Arthur Niebuhr of Bellville, 195; Frank Fisherman of Big Springs, 190; Sid Millsbaugh of San Angelo, 190; Raymond Seals of Plainview, 200; H. E. Wheeler of Poteet, 215.

From this well-balanced crew Blanton, Moody, Doell, and Niebuhr are favorites to share the regular tackle posts. Tyson, Greear, Millsbaugh, or some other "dark horse" may upset calculations and squeeze into the regular line-up.

WAR VICTIMS DECREASE.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The number of German war victims shows a decrease this year for the first time since the war. The total of those, including widows of veterans, who had been in one way or another afflicted increased until last year, when the total was 840,000. This year it dropped to 838,360.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 8.—After having served in the British army in both Ireland and India, Thomas Connors, of Syracuse, has enlisted with the United States army. He is a native of Ireland, but became eligible for enlistment when he applied for citizenship.

WEBSTER IRKED BY SPELLING OF ENGLISH WORDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—How illogical and unequivocal spelling of many English words irked Noah Webster, the lexicographer, is revealed in a book edited by M. M. Mathews, entitled "The Beginnings of American English," published by the University of Chicago Press.

Webster was an advocate of simplified spelling as indicated by his first dictionary in 1806 which recommended such spellings as wether, lishand, lie, mold, ace, crum, fether, lither and other simplified forms. Not many of his suggestions were retained perhaps because, as he bitterly pointed out, "we must not deviate from the practice of our grandfathers even when they erred." Members of both the "either" and the "oyether" schools of thought may find interest in Mathews' theory of the origin of the two-century old discussion, "American English vs. The King's English."

Mathews indicates the controversy may have started in 1735 when Francis Moore, an English traveler, decried the "barbarous English" of the provincial Georgians who referred, he said, to the bank of a stream as a "bluff."

Mathews' book concerns itself chiefly with the development of a new language in a young and primitive country.

Slight Difference

Study of Mathews' world lists serves to substantiate his belief that "the really surprising thing about the English of England and that of the United States is not that they differ slightly, but that their difference is as slight as it is."

A few of these have survived: Helliferocious—very ferocious; Pestiferous—pesky; Snipitious—smart, spruce; Sockdolger—a decisive blow; Quiddites—tiffing niceties, odd behavior; Licksplittle—a bootlicker; Slang whanger—a noisy talker, or newspaper writer; Rumbunctious—hot tempered; Sizzledrunk.

BIG GREEN TEAM FACING HARD GAMES

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 8. — The Dartmouth Indian is mixing his warpaint this year with the knowledge that achieving national distinction on the gridiron the coming fall is not going to be so easy as in past seasons.

The extraordinary wealth of material that was available to Jess Hawley in the not long-ago days when he was head coach will not present itself to his successor, Jackson Cannell.

Graduation robbed the Dartmouth football squad of no less than eight first-string men — Andre, center and 1930 captain; Bomberg, guard; Nims, tackle; Creehan, guard; Goodwillie, tackle; and Wolf, Clarke and Johnson, backs.

To add to Dartmouth's woes, there is no certainty that Stan Yudicky, star end and captain-elect, will be fit for action. He underwent a major operation a few months ago, and while he doubtless will captain the "Big Green" this fall, he may have to direct his team from the sidelines.

The stars that should shine the brightest during the coming campaign are Bill Morton, quarterback; Hank Barber, tackle; Hoffman, guard; and Yucky, in the event that the captain-elect can play.

Morton and McCall probably will share most of the burdens of passing and kicking, the former especially

Analysis of Public Improvement Bonds Approved in Texas This Year Is Made

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. — In the current issue of the Semi-Weekly Bond Buyers' Bulletin published by The University of Texas, an editorial analysis of the various kinds of public improvement bonds that were approved by the Attorney General's department during the fiscal year just ended is given by Antoinette Kuehne, editor. This review and bond summary may be regarded as an index of business conditions prevailing during that 12-month period. Miss Kuehne said. The text follows: Bonds for various kinds of public improvements in Texas approved by the Attorney General's department during the fiscal year 1930-1931, which ended August 31, totaled $50,135,137.74, as compared with a total of $38,229,002.95 during the previous fiscal year, a decrease of $11,906,134.79. To carry the comparison still further, the total amount of bonds approved during the fiscal year 1928-1929 was $68,765,557.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Road Bands Approved, County bonds, Road refunding, Road and bridge, Total, Irrigation District Bonds, Water control and improvement dist., Irrigation district, Total, Total navigation district bonds approved, Total drainage district bonds approved, Conservation and Reclamation District Bonds Approved, Levee improvement dis., Levee improvement dist. refunding, Cons. and reclamation district, Fresh water supply, dis., Total.

An analysis of the different classes of the several issues discloses that most kinds of public improvements during the last twelve months showed a decrease of approximately $5,000,000 with the preceding fiscal year. There was a falling off of $12,299,167 in the amount of road bonds and road and bridge bonds. This perhaps may be accounted for, at least in part, by what was regarded by many people as the favorable prospect for a proposed constitutional amendment being submitted to the people, providing for the issuing of State road bonds, which would have superseded the issuing of county and road district bonds. There was also a decrease of approximately $58,000,000 in the amount of school bonds approved, as compared with 1929-1930, and a decrease of nearly the same amount in irrigation and water control district bonds. Waterworks improvements bonds decreased in total amount approximately $3,000,000 as compared with the previous year. Nearly all kinds of municipal bonds showed a falling off. Taken as a whole the decline of total amount of bonds approved during the fiscal year may be regarded as a reflection of slack business conditions. During the previous year, several bond issues approved for public works were said to have been largely based on the unemployment situation. While this factor may have entered into the plans for some of the public improvements for which the 1930-31 bond issues have provided, this reason has not been given as a primary motive in any of the proposals. There are, however, pending at this time, one or more large proposed bond issues in the larger cities of the state which have for their special purposes the providing of employment for a large number of men on public works during the present year.

There has been noted an improvement in the demand and the price of the better classes of Texas bonds during the last few months. This is evidenced by the activity in bidding on the better classes of issues and the prices offered as compared with the early part of the fiscal year and with the last six months of 1929-1930. With very few exceptions, the financial standing of Texas municipalities and other political units has shown an improvement during the year. There has been a general scaling down of the costs of government ranging from the school districts up to that of the state itself. County and municipal tax rates have been lowered in many instances — all serving to indicate that a more conservative and economical administration of public affairs is being attempted.

Summary of Bonds 1930-1931. School Bonds Approved: Ind. Sch. Dist., Com. Sch. Dist., Co. line rur. high sch., Cons. Ind. Sch., Com. County Line Sch., Esp. County Line, Cons. Sch., Cons. Rur. BLANTON WINS VINDICATION FOR OFFICER

ABILENE, Sept. 8. — A District of Columbia grand jury has contributed another chapter in the lone-wolf campaign by Thomas L. Blanton, West Texas congressman, to clean up the district police department. Blanton was advised yesterday by Washington newspapers that the grand jury had found that a young policeman, Orville Staples had been "framed" with perjured testimony by a police trial board presided over by Captain Guy L. Burlingame, in 1928. The grand jury recommended that Staples be restored to the metropolitan police department, with back salary to the time of his dismissal, and that all officials connected with his unjust punishment be removed. "That right will prevail" is an old adage. Another is that "chickens will come home to roost," was Blanton's comment yesterday. The Abilene congressman had conducted Staples' case — first against dismissal, then for reinstatement — without remuneration.

Pinching Conscience Staples' dramatic vindication came from a guilty conscience. Not his own but Fred Schenck's. Schenck's, a fellow policeman in Washington, was sent to the Leavenworth penitentiary for kidnaping. Three weeks ago, he wrote Judge Blanton from prison that he wanted to confess to his part in "framing" Orville Staples in 1928. The district grand jury sent for him, and he told the whole story. In 1925 Staples, a World War veteran and while a private in the United States park police, assisted Blanton in the congressman's investigation of that force and of the department of public buildings and grounds, forcing resignation of the superintendent and removal of Captain W. L. McMorris from command of the park police. In an attempt to punish him for informing against them, officials of the park police started a campaign of persecution against Staples. Blanton had him transferred to the metropolitan police. There Staples was denied his proper grade and salary. Going to bat again, Blanton appealed the case and won before the comptroller general of the United States.

Charges Filed Persecution continued. Charges were filed against Staples and he was tried before a police trial board. Blanton defending. He was acquitted November 12, 1928. Blanton continued his expose of the Washington police, producing sensational evidence of corruption that brought the impeachment of Police Commissioner Henning. Blanton showed there were more than 3,000 bootleggers plying their trade in Washington, having the friendship and protection of the superintendent of police, who obtained liquor from them. He also showed that two policemen, Fred Schenck and Joe Hunt ran a saloon near the White House, and that the foreman of the grand jury was protecting gambling houses. Police officials suspected Staples of assisting Blanton. He received many threats. Returning home one night he was waylaid as he ran his car into his garage, the bullet grazing his head and shattering the windshield of the car. The next day, on affidavit secured by Schenck and Hunt, charges were again preferred against Staples. He was tried before a police board with Captain Burlingame presiding. That time they "got" him, his dismissal following. Blanton briefed and appealed the case in which he showed that Staples had been framed and that Schenck was the man who had shot at him. The appeal was denied, and Staples remained off the force until last week's dramatic confession by Schenck. Burlingame has gone the way of other grafters, Blanton driving him from the police force after a woman Mrs. Helen Blaylock, had come to Abilene to ask the congressman to recover property which she claimed Burlingame had taken from her. Blanton recovered property for her valued at $25,000, returning to Washington to blast Burlingame out of the official picture.

Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place. Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western state. The young Saunders, with whom Norma shared Hart, Chris' employer, are witnesses at the wedding. Before this Norma has refused to marry Bob Farrell, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon. He and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs, where the young man takes delight in surrounding his bride with expensive luxuries. One afternoon Mark introduces Norma to Hollis Stone, an old friend. It is evident that she has known Stone before. She excuses herself and goes to her room. Mark believes Norma is ill. She endures a day of suspense and misery, then tells Mark she must talk to him about something.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII
Mark Travers threw down his coat and loosened his tie impatiently.

"I'm all in," he said, yawning. "It's too late to talk about anything now. Got to be up early to meet those fellows at the club house."

"But, Mark, this is—it's important." He had disposed of the necktie, was fumbling with shirt buttons. Mark did not even glance toward Norma.

"Nothing's so important tonight it can't wait. I tell you I'm dazed!"

The girl had not moved from where she stood. She seemed about to speak, then her lips tightened. Automatically she folded and unfolded an end of ribbon on her dress.

Suddenly, impulsively she rushed to Mark and put a hand on each of his arms.

"Oh, Mark!" she cried. "Do you really love me? I mean more than anyone else? Do you love me so much nothing will ever make any difference? If anything should happen—do you love me so much you're sure you'll never ever make you change? Do you?"

"Why, sweetheart!" Travers laughed and patted her cheek. "So that's what's been worrying you—that's what's so terribly important, is it? Of course I love you. Now, will you climb into your pajamas and get ready for bed? Honestly, I'm awfully sleepy!"

A long-drawn-out yawn clinched the argument. Obediently Norma turned away and began undressing.

She was not awake when he left next morning. Accustomed to sleeping late since their arrival in Blue Springs, it was after 10 o'clock before Norma sat up in bed and rubbed her eyes. Ruffled pillows beside her told her story. Mark had gone to keep his appointment at the golf course.

The girl arose and dressed slowly. She did not even bother to go downstairs to breakfast.

Just before noon there was a telephone call. Mark's voice came over the wire saying he would meet her for lunch at one. Yes, they'd been around the course but it was going to take a while to clean up and get back to the Inn.

Norma was looking very attractive and very sweet when she met him in the lobby. She wore her gray traveling suit with gray pumps and the saucy, tip-tilting hat that had come from Franchon's.

With Mark was Clint Halloran, one of the members of the foursome. Until two days before Mark had never seen Halloran. Now apparently they were the best of friends.

Mark introduced his bride and the three went in to luncheon together. At the table the talk was all of golf. Halloran was amazed to hear Norma did not play.

"You'll have to have lessons," he assured her. "It's a great game. Nothing like it! Golf keeps you fit."

That, so Norma had noticed, was the favorite argument of devotees of half a dozen sports. Men and women told her they played tennis, golf, polo, rode horseback and swam "to keep fit." The keep fit for what? She might have asked since none of them seemed to have any occupation other than their endless games.

Perhaps the girl was envious because Halloran and the other golfers had kept Mark from her for two entire half days. At any rate as the luncheon progressed she decided she did not like Clint Halloran.

Mark, on the contrary, seemed to find him most companionable. Halloran knew friends of Mark's, had been at school with Ted Patterson, who, said Mark, was his closest friend. It seemed odd that Norma had never heard Patterson's name mentioned before.

The two men left off to talk of other individuals who were unknown to her. As they talked even Mark seemed almost a stranger. He was discussing school pranks, sporting events, places and people who meant nothing to Norma. They were all familiar enough to Clint Halloran. Both men laughed frequently. Oh, they were having a great time!

Their table was the one Mark and Norma favored regularly—at the side of the dining room near the right wall. Sunlight had reached them from south as well as east windows. Mark's chair stood so that his back was toward the center of the room.

A shadow hovered over the table for an instant. Norma raised her eyes, nodded.

"Who was that who just passed?" Mark wanted to know.

The girl's lids fluttered faintly. "Mr. Stone," she said. "He's just come in to lunch."

Halloran turned his head. "I've met him." "Don't believe I've met him."

"He's from Marlboro," Mark explained. "Hollis Stone. Relative of mine in a way but we don't see much of him. What was that you were saying about Agua Caliente?"

Norma did not hear the rest. Was Hollis Stone keeping a watch over everything she did? Until the end of the meal she was preoccupied.

After Halloran left them Mark and Norma went outside to linger in the lazy afternoon sun. It was the hour when the Inn was at its quietest. Those with plans for an active afternoon had disappeared. Others were reading or resting.

Norma's discordant mood vanished. With Mark beside her everything was as it should be. "Feel like strolling over town?" he asked. "There's nothing to do around here."

Norma agreed. As she swung into step beside him she said, "You know, Mark, we've been married almost two weeks and you haven't really told me about your family. These people you were talking about to Mr. Halloran were all strangers to me. All I know is that you have a mother and father and a sister."

"Well, you married me—not the family. Oh, you're all right as families go. I suppose! What is there to tell you about 'em?"

"Tell me about your mother?" Three fine creases appeared between Mark's eyes. "I thought I'd have a letter from her by this time," he admitted. "Can't understand it. Mother's always been a good scout about coming through with the old cash roll when it would do the most good. Fact is, I've been expecting a check ever since I telegraphed we were here. Maybe it'll come in the late mail today."

There was a pause. "Do you suppose it's because of me you haven't heard from her?" Norma asked slowly. "I mean getting married in such a hurry."

"Well, what of that? Had the right to get married if we wanted to, didn't we? Oh, I suppose Dad blew up and said a lot to give Mother the wrong impression but she ought to get over that. He will, all right."

It was almost the first time they had discussed Mark's father's opposition to their marriage. Always before the youth had scoffed at Norma's concern.

"You haven't told me what your mother looks like," she reminded him. "You're like your father, aren't you?"

The young man grimaced. "In looks Alicia's like mother." (She knew Alicia was his sister.) "Not tall but taller than you are. Mother has gray eyes and her hair used to be almost black. It's gray now. She fusses a lot because she's lost her girlish figure. Tries to diet but she never does. She's terribly proud that she used to be in a Randolph and raves about the way the young set carries on. Just the same she's a good scout. You'll be crazy about Mother."

"Of course." But what is she going to think of me? the girl was wondering.

Mark told her how excited his mother had been over Alicia's marriage two years before. Alicia lived abroad and her husband boasted a title. He was Count Jules de Lauret. A Frenchman. The count and countess lived in a historic chateau where the plumbing and heating equipment were almost as antique and uncomfortable as the much admired furnishings. Alicia was two years older than Mark.

"That's another thing that burns me up!" he grumbled. "When Alicia and Jules were married Dad turned over $250,000 in cold cash for what they call a dowry. $250,000! Say—that wouldn't we do with that?"

"It's because dowries are the custom in Europe," Norma told him. "And your parents must have liked the Count. You know what your father thought about me! It's because of me they feel the way they do."

"That's no reason at all! They don't even know you." "But they know I worked for my living. And I haven't any family. They know that much."

"Well, we won't argue about it. Let's go back and see if the mail has come."

They turned back. The clerk at the inn reported there was nothing for Mr. and Mrs. Travers.

For the next three days Mark spent a good share of his time on the golf links. Occasionally when he was with Norma he was brooding and moody. Something seemed to worry him. Could it be about money? Mark had had more than $1,400 when they came to Blue Springs two weeks ago. Everything was expensive here, but $1,400—it couldn't possibly be gone!

She tried to question him about this, but found him impatient, even cross.

Thursday night they did not join the dancers after dinner. Mark had been on the links with Halloran all afternoon. He said something about a "little game with the boys."

"You don't mind, darling?" he inquired as an afterthought. "Not in the least."

How she did mind later when, alone, she looked out on the moon-drenched lawn and heard the melancholy, sighing wind! She was in their rooms. Too proud to let others know she was spending the evening alone she had gone upstairs immediately after dinner.

The "little game" could not last forever. Norma looked at the clock. It was 10:30.

She tried to read. An hour later she bathed, got into gown and negligee and curled up in bed.

davenport. By 1 o'clock she extinguished all but a single lamp, turned down the covers and got into bed.

She had not been asleep when nearly two hours later the scratch of a key in the latch aroused her. Mark at last!

The door opened. Pale and dazed, her young husband stood on the threshold. The girl gave him one startled look, sat up and cried: "Mark—? What's happened?" (To Be Continued)

PAINS At Monthly Times

By building up the general system to normal, or to an improved condition of health, women have overcome "painful times" in a wholesome manner, and in thousands of cases Cardui is given the credit. When they have found themselves in a debilitated condition after a severe illness, or from an ordinary run-down state of health, women who have taken Cardui have found it to be of great benefit. If you are weak, run-down, suffering monthly, take Cardui. Take it for a reasonable length of time—try it thoroughly. Sold at drug stores. 71-20 ty attorney, is said to be a candidate for the place. J. R. Burnett of Cisco his friends say, will also be in the running. Earnest Jones of Eastland former county clerk, is also talked for this place.

Grady Owen, it might be stated, is an avowed candidate for county attorney. He is present assistant to county attorney Joe H. Jones. Frank Judkins is being talked as a candidate for this office also.

Whether Sheriff Virge Foster will be a candidate for re-election depends, his friends say, on whether he is convinced that the voters want his services for another term. W. A. Hammett of Ranger, Jim Ingram of Ranger, W. M. Miller of Cisco, R. L. Todd of Gorman, Steel Hill and Loss Woods of Eastland are all mentioned as possible candidates for sheriff. Hill and Woods are deputies under Foster and it is consensus of opinion that should Foster be a candidate neither of them would run.

T. L. Cooper, present tax collector; Mrs. May Harrison, present county treasurer, will, it is generally thought, not have opponents.

Geo. Bryant, present tax assessor, according to many will have an opponent, but no one has as yet suggested a prospective candidate for his place. Bryant is serving his second term, but had an opponent for his second term. He also made two or three campaigns before being elected each time getting to within a few votes of election. Bryant has also been mentioned for county judge. For the positions now occupied by the members of the Eastland county commissioners court there will be, it is almost certain, numerous aspirants. Commissioner Gray of the Gorman precinct, and Commissioner Sneathley of the Rising

Star precinct, may not have opponents, but it is considered certain that Commissioner Cooper of Ranger and Britain of Cisco will have opposition. John Thurman of Ranger, J. C. Allison of Eastland are mentioned as possible candidates for Cooper's place. R. L. Jones, Walter Gray and Ed

Layton are mentioned for county clerk. Jones is the present clerk. W. H. McDonald, present district clerk may be a candidate to succeed himself. Milton Newman is also being mentioned as a possible candidate for the office.

Dumas—Construction of Dumas Independent School District's new $150,000 school building progressing.

Sierra Blanca—New service station opened on east side of town.
