400 TO 600 EXPECTED HERE FOR BAND CLINIC

Loboes Win First Game of Title Series Narrowly

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Whenever the deity whose duty it shall be begins the distribution of awards for merit on earth I am positive he will award an Oscar to J. C. McAfee. For "Mac" has that quality which we define in various terms, according to our reaction to its influence, but which we instinctively admire as the ability to get things under the most adverse circumstances.

Now "Mac" is the owner and the operator of the Oil Belt Advertising Service. This is the service which clutters up our highways with those "arty" works of advertising appeal. "Mac" and we are supposed to be in violent competition between ourselves. This supposition accrues from the theory that the more he gets of the advertiser's money the less we get and vice versa. "Mac" denies that any such state of affairs exists in reality, maintaining, on the contrary, that outdoor advertising and newspaper advertising sort of complement each other and by working together we can cultivate more advertising than by working singly.

He is one of these fellows who practices what he preaches. And to make matters worse, he is a persuasive scamp with a laugh that starts somewhere around the solar plexus and rumbles up in the most convincing sort of manner.

So this morning he comes into the editorial sanctum with a poster replica of a famous painting almost big enough to cover him and a nicely typed story that he suggested we run in the Daily Press. The poster is a replica of the famous Gainsborough "Blue Boy" painting which was brought to America in 1921 at a cost of $800,000 and now hangs in the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery at San Morina, California.

"Blue Boy" is considered among the greatest if not the greatest painting by Gainsborough. Its subject is Master Jonathan Buttall, son of a wealthy London ironmonger.

What "Mac" wanted me to tell the public is that a large poster reproduction of this famous painting is now on view on the poster panel of the Oil Belt Advertising Service for their enjoyment at D avenue and 13th street.

But I aint agonna do it!

Besides, he had to come to the newspaper to get attention for his old boards.

Incidentally, and as a matter of news, "Mac" has just purchased the poster services at Dublin and Stephenville, enlarging a territory that now extends from Cisco to Weatherford and Cisco to Stephenville.

Prowler Frightened From Cisco Home

A prowler who early this morning gained entrance to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Ball, 709 West Fourth street, and fled precipitately when his movements aroused Mrs. Ball made off with a small purse and keys belonging to Mr. Ball. The purse, Mr. Ball told police, contained only a small amount of money.

Police were summoned immediately but were not able to trace the flight of the intruder, who entered the home through a screen door.

Mrs. Bob Key and Miss Kate Holland have returned from a visit in Brownwood.

SECOND GAME TO BE PLAYED THIS EVENING

Scranton Five Proves Strength in Hard-Fought Bout

The Cisco Loboes, probably expecting a lamb but finding a lion, had plenty of trouble with the Scranton high school basketball champions of the county Class B circuit last night before they finally subdued them 34 to 30 in the first of a series of three title games at the Cisco high school gym.

Only once in the course of a hard-fought game did the Loboes forge into anything like the margin of leadership by which they have taken most of their contests this year. That was in the fourth period when they pulled to an eight-point advantage, that quick-shooting genius of a lad by the name of Carroll Purvis, one of the best hard-work performers to be seen in action in these parts. Purvis, with 18 points, was the chief thorn in the Lobo flesh last night.

Foul Route

Two Cisco players went out via the foul route in the third period, and their dismissal gave the Scranton players an advantage that nothing but the furious play of the Cisco team kept from being turned into victory for the visitors.

The banished players were M. and C. Harrison. M. Harrison rang up 14 points before he was sent from the game.

Gordon Sherman, big Bertha of the home squad, was bad on his aim last night, his long shots bouncing off the basket rim with a persistency that kept Cisco fans groaning. He scored not a single shot until the last two minutes of play when he found the netting with three brilliant tosses that gave his team six points and the margin for victory. O. Harrison scored 10 points.

At the half the Loboes had only a two-point advantage, leading 16 to 14.

The second game of the series will be played here at 8 o'clock this evening. If Cisco wins it will give the home quint the all-round county championship and mark their final home game of the season.

Senate Takes Up Farm Bill; Quick Vote Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—The senate, amid predictions of its passage before nightfall, took up the revised administration farm program today. It laid aside the anti-lynching bill for the time being, quieting temporarily the filibuster that had been going on since the opening of the session. The house voted approval of the farm bill yesterday.

Veterans Will Commemorate Maine Sinking

Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of foreign Wars and the American Legion will meet in the 88 district court room at Eastland Wednesday evening, February 16, at 7:30 o'clock, to commemorate the sinking of the Maine in Havana Harbor which brought on the Spanish-American War in 1898, and also to observe National Defense week which comes between the birthdays of two national heroes—Abraham Lincoln, Feb. 12, and Geo. Washington, Feb. 22.

The chief speaker of the evening will be John Lee Smith, of Throckmorton. Mr. Smith is a veteran of the World war, having seen service in Great Britain and France as an enlisted man. He has for the past 19 years taken an active interest in veterans' affairs. He has been delegate-at-large from Texas to two national conventions of the American Legion. For two years he was chairman of the Legion's state committee on Americanism. In 1936 he was active in the presidential campaign and served on the veterans' national committee for Texas. He has always taken an active interest in civic, church and fraternal matters, was for four years a member of the state department of education, for three terms served as county judge of Throckmorton county and is a past grand chancellor of the Pythian Order of Texas. As an orator, speaking the language of the veteran, he has a national reputation.

Department heads of all three of the organizations above mentioned have also been invited.

A special invitation has also been extended to veterans of the Civil war, both Confederate and Union, and transportation will be provided for those who express a desire to attend.

A feature of the evening will be the singing of some of the songs of all American wars and the

FDR REQUESTS 250 MILLION RELIEF FUND

Recent Increases in Unemployment Are Cited in Letter

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today for an immediate appropriation of $250,000,000 to meet relief needs during the next four and a half months.

"Funds available at this time," the president wrote Speaker Bankhead, "will not only take care of the additional burden, but will require a sharp reduction in the near future of the number on WPA rolls."

WPA officials said that most of the money would be used in industrial centers, especially in the automobile manufacturing cities.

The president said that estimates showed that approximately three millions had lost their jobs with private employers in the last three months. The relief request indicated that the treasury's deficit would mount to $1,544,000,000 by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

General Provisions of New Farm Bill Explained

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—Here is a general explanation of the permanent crop control bill the house passed yesterday and sent to the senate:

It is designed, its sponsors say, to prevent unusual surpluses or deficits in the supplies of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice.

Its base is the existing scheme of benefit payments to farmers who co-operate with the government's "soil conservation" program of crop control.

Imposed on this is a system of controls by which Secretary Wallace may regulate the marketing of the five crops, if two-thirds of the growers participating in referendum approve. This provision carries stiff cash penalties for sale of above quota production.

The bill sets up machinery or a $100,000,000 crop insurance program, starting with a $20,000,000 program for the wheat crop. It also authorizes certain commodity loans, limits soil conservation payments to $10,000 cash, provides for local administration and exemptions for new production, and authorizes Secretary Wallace to seek new uses for farm commodities.

Briefly, provisions for each of the crops include:

Cotton: The government will fix national, state and county allotments, sufficient to fill the nation's normal requirements for the next year, considering carryover. Growers can market all production from their allotted acreage. If the agriculture department finds production will exceed 107 per cent of normal, marketing quotas may be imposed, restricting cotton sales. Above quota sales will mean a 2-cent-a-pound penalty. The 1937-38 cotton allotment must yield between 10,000,000 and 11,500,000 bales.

Wheat: Acreage allotments to fill normal requirements plus an additional 20 per cent for reserve. The 1938 allotment will be 62,500,000 acres. If prospective supplies reach a peak 35 per cent above normal, marketing quotas may be imposed. Above-quota production will draw a 15-cent-a-bushel penalty.

CONDUCTING REVIVAL
W. M. H. Benford, of Dallas, colored evangelist, is conducting a revival at the Antioch Baptist church. The public, both white and colored, are invited to attend.—S. E. Edwards, pastor.

Picture Mix-Up Causes Stir

CLYDE D. GARRETT.

The other day the Washington Star published pictures of five republican committeemen named to handle a republican party program at Washington. One of the GOP committee is a Washington lawyer by the name of Clyde D. Garrett. In the filing room of the Star pictures of the Washington attorney and of Clyde L. Garrett, democratic representative from the 17th Texas district, were, of course, filed in the same section and when the editorial office sent instructions for a picture of Clyde Garrett the filing clerk mistakenly produced that of the Texas representative, which was included in the group of republican committeemen in the paper of that day to the consternation of the friends of Mr. Garrett, the democratic representative and the Star, which hastened to amend the error. The storm of protest evoked by the mistake, said the Star, quickly and convincingly proved the standing of Clyde Garrett in congress. Above are pictures of the two Clyde Garretts.

Union Leaders Are Guarded in Probe

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10 (AP)—Bodyguards were assigned to two union leaders as a grand jury opened investigation today of alleged communism in strikers' ranks on the 11th day of the peacemakers strike. Chief of Police Kilday said that guards would be given Donald Henderson, international president of the United Canners and Packers and Agricultural and Allied Union and J. A. Crossland of Houston, secretary of the state federation of the CIO. Police sprayed tear gas into a crowd of 50 persons during the first violence.

Spirited Debate by School Teams at Rotary Club

A spirited debate between teams of boys and girls from the Cisco high school on the question: "Resolved That Texas Should Adopt the Unicameral Legislative System" and songs by a group of freshmen students formed the program presented at the Rotary club today by R. L. Ponsler.

J. M. Hazlewood and Gerald McCrary were the boys teams which took the affirmative side of the question and Mary Lou Prange and Daisy Wood were the girls team who debated the negative side.

The quartet of girls who sang were Earlene Johnson, Winnie E. Johnson, Melba Thames and Marian Elmore, all students attending Cisco high from outlying common school districts.

Supt. Cluck presented the students at Mr. Ponsler's request and served as debate umpire.

Visitors at the luncheon were C. E. DeWitt and Bob Holland of Dallas; Walter E. Jarrett and E. R. McDaniel of Abilene and Earl Bender of Eastland.

Mrs. J. C. Dyer, Jr., and Miss Lillian Skiles of Pueblo were shopping here today.

BAND LEADERS TO MEET HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Col. Irons to Direct Clinic as Program for Session

Responses to more than 40 invitations sent to band directors of the West Central Texas area today indicated that between 400 and 600 visitors would be here Sunday for the band clinic to which Director K. L. Maddox, the Lobo high school band and the band parents and boosters club will be hosts.

The clinic, organized in connection with the regular meeting of band directors of this area, will be directed by Col. Earl D. Irons, nationally noted band director and one of the judges of the divisional national contest to be held at Abilene in May. Irons is director of the North Texas Aggie band at Arlington.

The clinic will begin at 1:30 in the high school auditorium and the program will conclude around 6:30. The Lobo band, now religiously practicing for the event, will be the clinic band, to be directed by Col. Irons in studies and demonstrations of music which will be used in the various regional and national contests this spring and summer.

Contest music for Classes B, D and C will be studied.

The clinic will be an outstanding event in west Texas, Mr. Maddox said today.

Visiting directors and their wives will be served refreshments by the Band Parents club.

Among the band directors to be here is Pat Howard of Coleman who said he will bring his entire high school band.

W. Ross Hodges, guardian of the estate of Doris Meekie Rice, minor, vs. Trona Ames et al, plea in abatement, overruled. Leave granted American Indemnity Co. to withdraw its original answer to file plea in abatement.

City of Ranger vs. W. H. Lobough et al, plea in abatement of O. D. Dillingham and Hardin-Simmons university. Pleas sustained, and it was the order of Judge Davenport that the citations on Dillingham and the Hardin-Simmons university were void for the reasons that a judgment rendered in the 91st court Aug. 6, 1929, rendered this case no longer pending litigation, styled O. D. Dillingham vs. O. D. Gordon et al.

The plea of intervention filed May 25, 1937, by the Land Title Bank & Trust Co., trustee, as well as the first amended and original petition and citations served on defendants are void. Exceptions made and notice of appeal given.

This action originated as one of the paving suits in Ranger, in which the City of Ranger filed suit on behalf of the paving contractor, Lobough, who subsequently intervened. Then Dillingham sued Gordon in the 88th court on his vendors lien for deferred payments incurred prior to the paving lien. Both the paving suit and that of Dillingham vs. Gordon were consolidated in the 91st court by agreement. Lobough then asked that his case be dismissed, and the case was decided in favor of Dillingham, on his prior lien. This ended the litigation, as was understood by parties at the time. The attempt to revive through this last procedure, the court ruled as void.

Sheriff's Department

Deputy Sheriff Tug Underwood stated Friday that capiases had been served on all defendants indicted at the last sitting of the grand jury with the possible exception of one, but the Sheriff's department was informed that he would likely be in custody before this appears in print. These defendants have been arrested and are either in jail or at liberty on bond, according to Sheriff Woods.

"But several of them are in different jails over west Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana," Woods said.

Deputy O. D. Carroll returned Saturday with Alfred Loggins, who was held for the sheriff's department in Sweetwater. Loggins is wanted here for the theft of Dr. George Blackwell's car at Gorman on the night of Dec. 26 last.

Sheriff Loss Woods reported a raid on a place near Romney Thursday, in which he captured 300 gallons of mash and two gallons of untaxed whiskey. A woman was placed under arrest and turned over to federal authorities, who conveyed her to Abilene Thursday, Woods said, where she filed bond for the offense of having in her possession untaxed liquor. The husband of this woman is now serving a term in federal prison on a similar charge. The irony of the situation is that the husband will be released in June, Woods said, just about the time she will begin serving her sentence, if convicted. He said he failed to locate the still, but found the coil used in making the liquor.

Woods said extradition papers are now in preparation on which he will bring back to Eastland Roy Crow and Bill Thompson, who are in the Lea county jail at Lovington, N. M. Red Thompson, also indicted on the same charge of robbery and burglary in connection with the removal of the doors and windows of the Ward ranch house, came in this week and made bond for his appearance at this term of court. As soon as the extradition papers are perfected the sheriff said he would have the men brought from New Mexico.

HE SEES WHO BUYS WHAT TOBACCO

Like so many other independent experts, Bill Whitley, Tobacco Auctioneer of Henderson, N. C., smokes Luckies

WILLIAM D. (BILL) WHITLEY sold over 15 million pounds of tobacco last year. It's easy to see that he's an expert who knows tobacco.

So it's important to you when he says... "At 14 different markets in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, I've seen Luckies buy the best tobacco. I figure it's good tobacco that makes a good smoke. So my own cigarette is Lucky Strike!

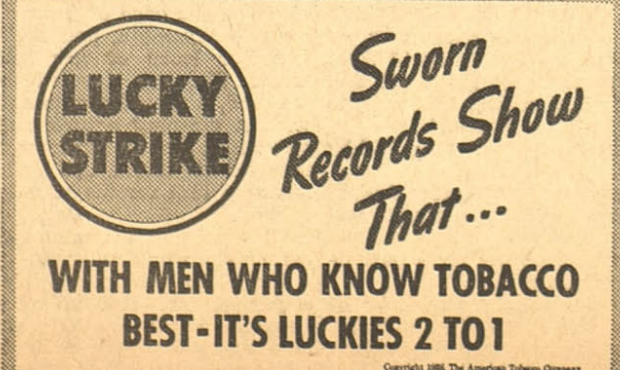

"I've noticed, too, that independent buyers, not connected with any cigarette manufacturer, smoke Luckies more than any other brand."

Mr. Whitley is correct. For sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes put together. Remember: The men who know tobacco best smoke Luckies 2 to 1.

HAVE YOU HEARD "THE CHANT OF THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER" ON THE RADIO?

When you do, remember that Luckies use the finest tobacco. And also that the "Toasting" process removes certain harsh irritants found in all tobacco. So Luckies are kind to your throat.

We Are All In the Oil Business

The West Central Texas Oil and Gas association shortly will begin a campaign for memberships. Through associate memberships the opportunity to participate in the program of the association is extended not only to those directly involved in the oil business, but to the thousands of merchants, professional men, landowners and farmers who are indirectly concerned.

WE are all in the oil business. The state of Texas as a political entity and as a great collection of individuals, is very much involved in the oil business. The production and processing of the natural resources which ages of time have deposited in the strata of Texas earth is of vital importance to the welfare and the prosperity of every person in the state. From the development of these mineral resources has come a great part of the means for the present development and the prosperity of this state and its more than six millions of people. Every person who owns lands, sells goods or services, owns royalty or leases or profits in any manner or consequence from the development of oil and gas resources; every person who buys gasoline or other petroleum products, or products in the production of which oil and gas play a part; every laborer who depends upon economic conditions for employment and for the rate of pay he receives—in fact, every person in Texas in some direct or indirect way is in the oil business and should be deeply concerned for the welfare of that business. When wells are plugged because high costs and high taxes make their operation unprofitable, when drilling is restricted because the profit on oil is too small to justify the drilling, when leases are forfeited, and when workers are discharged, everybody in the community affected suffers in actual cash income to some extent.

THUS it behooves every person, and particularly those business men who depend upon oil resources for business support and those landowners who expect to gain profit from production on their property, to thoroughly understand the oil man's problems and to appreciate what hinders and what helps the industry to be successful and profitable. The West Central Texas Oil and Gas association—an association of independent operators in our own section—is the proper medium through which we of this section can secure this essential appreciation. Cisco business and professional men, especially, should be as nearly unanimously represented as associate members of this organization as possible.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Here is a little girl, as I used to know her, bright eyed, and bashful, but now editor of her high school paper and reporter for a small daily. How these youngsters grow! And what unexpected talent they are apt to develop. Some of them will make good without encouragement and help. But some of them might give up if the way to success is too hard; or may settle into mediocrity where the higher rounds of the ladder would not be too high for them. Anyway why should we not lend every encouragement? Parents, teachers, and other influential factors in the child's circle of environment have that responsibility, preferably called a privilege, to help discover hidden talent and bring it out to where it may serve its own generation, I have been surprised, sometimes, and saddened, at some unusual talent shining through a coating of indifference or of mediocrity in some out of the way place where it was going to waste. Sometimes the individual lacks the initiative to develop the gift that has been intrusted to him; he is too lazy to make a success. Sometimes he loves a good time; his energy is all used up in a round of pleasure which might be turned into a more serious activity. Sometimes the hindrance is poverty; avenues to success are closed because of lack of means. Some benefactor might happen along to help them out. And some determined individuals triumph over adversity. Anyway there is a double loss. The individual loses the thrill that comes from fulfilled ambition and exercised talent. And society loses the important service that this talent would be to its own needs. The humblest position is not to be despised if that is where we reach our goal and do our bit. But any position is too low if it is beneath our best effort and our highest achievement.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS POLLY CHELSEY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out. JERRY WHITEFIELD, hero; the Yankee who sees her through. CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

CHAPTER VIII JERRY went into the public room and sought out Mr. Toby, the innkeeper. "I'd like you to make out the bill for myself and my cousin, Miss Chelsey," he said. "We're leaving by the Dover coach in the morning."

"Sit down and drink an ale on the house," Mr. Toby invited. "I count none too fast."

Jerry accepted the offer and sat down at a table near the door, and when Mr. Toby had made out the bill he brought it there, accepting Jerry's money and making out a receipt.

The host had no sooner retired than Jerry Whitefield found himself with a companion. A large fellow with a battered face and torn ear, very unpleasant to see, came into the room from out of doors. He was wearing a hackney driver's uniform and he sat down beside Jerry without invitation.

After Jerry had finished his ale the man spoke to him. "It be a pleasant evening, sir, I'm sure."

"Yes," replied Jerry absently. His thoughts were with Polly above stairs. It was then that the bewildering thing happened. A young woman came in from the street and looked around the room uncertainly. She was the woman in the blue bonnet who had waved to Jerry. She was looking for someone, and it surprisingly turned out to be the man at Jerry's table who was drinking grog.

"Oh, there you are!" she said to the man in an imperious way. "I told you to wait in the hack! What do you mean by going off and leaving your vehicle this way, to drink grog in a tavern?"

"Mam!" replied the cabby thickly. The young woman's face flushed and she stamped her foot with impatience. "Haven't you any feeling of responsibility for a passenger when you get one?" Jerry stood up. "Can I be of some service, Mam?" he asked. The young woman looked at him and her face lighted in a quick smile. "Oh, it's you! How comical! How awfully comical!"

"Why is it?" Jerry asked, puzzled and embarrassed.

"Because I saw you on the street an hour ago and mistook you for a friend of mine, a lieutenant in His Majesty's Navy. I waved at you as brazen as could be, and you looked surprised. There was a girl with you, such a tall pretty thing, and she was none too pleased, I noticed."

The strange young woman laughed so contagiously that Jerry joined in.

He said to her then, "This man seems to have too much rum under his skin. I'd better find you another chaise."

She considered this for a moment. "No, wait. All my parcels are in this fellow's hack. Couldn't we sober him up?"

"We can try," Jerry replied. He went to the barmaid and asked her to get a mug of strong coffee from the kitchen. "No, get three cups," he added, thinking he could do very well with some coffee himself and probably the young woman would feel the same way.

THE coffee sobered the cabby remarkably. He seemed to remember his responsibilities as soon as he had downed it.

"Do you think he's all right now?" the girl asked Jerry.

"Yes, I'll put you in the hack," Jerry said, offering her his arm. He was still thinking of Polly, and how a thing like this must never happen to her.

And so it was that the young woman in the sky-blue bonnet and the sky-blue dress that was cut square at the neck walked out of the Unicorn and Crown Tavern on the arm of the American seaman, Jeremiah Whitefield, whom she had been paid to dupe.

Her name was Mazie Miller (or so she had called herself on the stage) and her love of money frequently got the better of a natively soft heart. She had been a fairly good singer in the music halls before she married the owner of the Sheaf of Wheat Tavern that stood on the edge of town on the road to Plymouth, and she'd not lost her looks or her fetching ways. She was devoted to her husband, a gross handsome fellow with a grasping nature; she not only aided him by serving as barmaid of his tavern but by hiring out as a lure for the press-gangs as well.

smiled up at him impersonally, and said:

"This is mighty good of you, sir. I just wish my husband could thank you personally. . . . Where's the hack, Cabby? I'm so turned around I can't remember where it was I got out of it."

"Down this way," the man said. "What? Down that side street?" Jerry said, "You wait here, Mrs. Smith, I'll fetch the rig to you."

"Oh, no," she answered hastily. "Just take me to it. That will save time."

THE street was dark, so surprisingly dark that Jerry Whitefield commented on it. "London's a poorly-lighted city, it seems to me."

"Sometimes the sperm oil gives out in a lamp," the girl said, "and then the lighters have to go fetch more. . . . You're not a Londoner, I take it, Mr.—Mr.—"

"Whitfield. No, Mam. I'm used to smaller places."

The driver walked to the rear of the hackney coach. To the crouching figure he encountered there he spoke a few hissing words out of the side of his mouth.

Mazie Miller knew what went on there, and her heart revolted. There was yet time to save this kind, blundering young man who had risen to her distress as a fish rises to bait. She thought of the girl who had been with him today in the park and on the bridge—the tall pretty creature who evidently loved him with all her heart. . . . No! she would not think of that girl! She would think only of the five pounds that this business would yield her and that she could proudly take home to her husband.

It was thought of this unworthy mate of hers that brought Mazie to earth and turned her again into a woman of business. She pretended to grope for the hack step. While Jerry was pointing it out to her, the crouching figure back of the hack moved in a cautious orbit through the darkness and closed in on him. . . .

A cudge wrapped sparsely in rags came down on Jerry Whitefield's head from the rear and he crumpled without knowledge of what had happened. Never did man lose consciousness with so little concern for himself. But through the confusion of his mind, before utter darkness engulfed him, there passed the terrible meteoric thought of Polly Chelsey waiting for him. . . . waiting. . . .

"A fine job, Miss!" the torn-eared man said to Mazie. "Hush!" she sobbed furiously, "and give me my money! This is my last job, do you understand?" (To Be Continued)

ATWELL

Everywhere we look we can see people working. Here a farmer bumping along on a stalk cutter, preparing his ground for plowing; another farmer down the way riding his tractor from dawn 'til dusk, making rapid progress while there is sunshine. Just over the way we see another farmer with one mule and a "Georgia Stock," laying off rows in the garden for early plantings of onions and cabbage. Everyone seems to be busy, and with that air of "it's good to be alive," about them that speaks of their interest and pleasure in their work.

The Callahan County Singing convention met at Atwell Sunday. A large crowd was here and everyone enjoyed the good singing. Among the visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. Mark Burnam, Mr. and Mrs. Mayburn Tatom, Mr. and Mrs. C. Tatom, all of Union, Mr. E. Erwin and family from Sabanno and Mr. and Mrs. George Morgan of Albany.

Range Improvement Program in Eastland County Is Described

Following is the program presented over Radio Station KRBC at Abilene by County Agent Elmo Cook and three Eastland county ranchers Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock:

Great headway was made in Eastland county in 1937 on practices to improve the range or pasture land of the county by ranchers and livestock farmers of the county in cooperation with the A and M college extension service. A large part, but not all of the improved practices, can be attributed to the 1937 range conservation program which encouraged range land operators to apply one or more of thirteen recommended improved practices to their land. Some of these practices were construction of earthen tanks, pasture and contour furrows, re-seeding by deferred grazing, and eradicating range destroying plants such as mesquite, prickly pear, and cedar.

There are approximately 200,000 acres of range or pasture land in Eastland county, 105,000 of which was signed in the range program by 101 ranchers and livestock raisers.

Seventy-three of these men complied with the range conservation program on 95,000 acres of land. They are due benefit payments totaling $15,000, which they expect to receive soon from the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

93 Tanks Built
Records in the county agent's office at Eastland show that in 1937 93 tanks were built with a total dam volume of 75,000 cubic yards of dirt, 400 acres of mesquite were eradicated by grubbing and use of kerosene, 700 acres of prickly pear were eradicated, 40 acres of cedar were cut, and 90 acres of land infested with prairie dogs were cleaned of this grass-destroying pest. Twenty-five hundred acres of pasture land were re-seeded to native grass by keeping off all grazing animals for six months, and 150 acres of pasture land were terraced and contoured to hold rainfall on the land where it does the maximum good.

Mr. Frank Harrell of Cisco has one of the most practical demonstrations in Eastland county of what can be done to improve range land, particularly brushy land. He will now tell you of some of the things that he has done.

Mr. Harrell—"My place just west of Cisco consists of about 1500 acres, 90 acres in cultivation, of which about 30 is irrigated from gravity flow of water from a tank built on higher ground, at the southwest corner of my valley field.

In this valley is grown principally corn and alfalfa, harvesting up to 100 bushels of corn per acre and seven cuttings of alfalfa.

No Soil Lost
On the other tilled land grain and feed are grown, all of which is consumed at home. Most all of these fields are terraced and rarely ever lose any water; never any soil.

This 1500 acres is mostly rough hilly land and when I began on it some 20 years ago it was about as worthless as you could find in this section, its livestock carrying capacity being practically nil. I first stocked it with Angora goats and when they had killed out the underbrush I began giving wood away to anyone who wanted it and would cut it as I wanted it cut, that is, cut down everything except an occasional well-shaped thrifty tree to be left for shade and looks. The goats have held down sprouts and on a good deal of the pasture land the stumps are now dead and we knock them out and burn them in the fireplace.

There is no doubt in my mind that goats on this type of land are the very best investment, whether any money is made directly on them or not, and they will pay better than cattle over a term of several years if properly managed. Last year the range inspectors found that I had good turf of curly mesquite and buffalo grass and fixed the carrying capacity of the place about as high as any in Eastland county.

As a matter of fact, it will carry considerably more animal units than was fixed in the 1937 range conservation program and is getting better every year.

Sheep Pay Better
I am also running sheep and cattle and I find sheep pay better than either cattle or goats. I've always liked cattle but because of results I'm a sheep and goat enthusiast and firmly believe that if Eastland county were stocked with these two animals we would have one of the most prosperous counties in Texas.

Being a native of west Texas, I have always had a mania for storing up water and in the last 20 years I have built twelve tanks on my place, varying in size from a quarter acre to twenty acres; I think I have learned that the principal objective in building a water storage reservoir is depth rather than acre. Last year I built one tank as a cost of about $100. It won't cover much ground but will hold water 25 feet deep and I expect it to always have water in it, once it gets full.

In building this tank I used three work animals to a Fresno for about two weeks taking dirt out of the basin and finished up with a tractor and killefer supplied by my county commissioner with a down hill and level haul. The dam is 10 feet wide at the top and three feet above the bottom of the spillway. We should realize that water can be stored up in more than one way and that water is the one thing that we must have to grow grass or any other vegetation.

Densest Turf
For years I have noticed that the densest turf was along abandoned roads or cow trails, but it took the range conservation program to get me started in helping nature by contouring pasture land on a level. In 1937 I contour turfed about 50 acres of rolling land and cleaned a couple hundred acres of prickly pear. From now on I intend to do as much of this kind of work as we can find time to do, whether Uncle Sam pays me anything for it or not. I have already contracted cleaning a 300-acre pasture of prickly pear in 1938. Men are now working at this job.

Last year I received 5000 pounds of T.V.A. triple superphosphate fertilizer through my county agent and distributed it on the contour tilled pasture land at the rate of 100 pounds per acre. We had so little rainfall afterwards that results are not yet very noticeable but I am expecting to rest the land this year and anticipate a worthwhile spreading of turf as a result.

We have had, during the last four months twelve and a half inches of rainfall. The contour tilled pasture land has not lost so much as a tub full of water and the ground is wet deeper than I have ever known it to be.

Practical Demonstration
County Agent Cook—"Mr. Leslie Hagaman of Ranger has conducted some practical demonstrations in eradicating of range destroying plants in 1937. I will let him tell you about it."

Mr. Hagaman—"There used to be a saying among ranchmen that mesquite trees did not sap the ground of moisture sufficiently to hurt grass. This might have been true years ago before the mesquite spread from a few scattered trees and clusters to a menace that was making a jungle of our best grazing land, for that is where the mesquite grows. As a refutation of this I will cite my observation last summer, which was very dry, on the sapping power of mesquite.

I had a feed crop on a field, the fence row on one side of which I had killed the mesquite and on the other fence row the mesquite had not been killed. The side on which there was no mesquite had an average crop to the fence. The other side made a failure for as far as 75 feet from the fence in places, showing that one big tree would sap the moisture from a circle 150 feet in diameter, or you might say eight trees or clusters of scrub mesquite would ruin an acre of ground.

This spreading menace of mesquite had me worried, for as I would clear my pasture of underbrush with goats, mesquite would come in. And goats will not eat mesquite.

When I asked advice of the county agent he said that the only economical way he knew of was to spray the mesquite with kerosene and also that at that time, the spring of 1937, most of the reports he had were hearsay but that it was supposed to be successful.

Taking advantage of the 1937 range program I decided to do some experimenting of my own.

Sprayed Trees
In the spring of 1937 I purchased a four gallon portable pressure spray, and as soon as the mesquite had leaved out started to work.

The method used was to adjust the spray to a heavy mist that would carry three feet without spreading more than eighteen inches, then spray the entire trunk of the tree from the ground to a height of eighteen inches to two and a half feet, depending upon the size of the tree. I was careful to saturate the entire circumference of the tree. Where several trees sprouted from one stump or limbs branched off close to the ground I was careful to spray all of them.

I considered the results very satisfactory, getting a kill of better than 95 per cent on all mesquite sprayed in April and May. Some land sprayed in May and June did not result as favorably. The best results were noted on the larger, coarse barked trees. Good results were obtained on the small slick barked trees, especially if there was a broken place on the bark. The best results were noted when there was no dew, or if so, on the afternoon spraying.

Some trees showed signs of sprouting in the late summer and I went over the ground again, spraying the sprouts.

Some trees showed the effects of the spraying in three or four days while others were two or three weeks showing results. I would advise that the trees killed not be cut down until the second fall. This will give any parasites in the dead wood a chance to work to the roots. Also, do not leave any trees for shade as they would be a source of re-infestation for the clean pasture.

Cost of Spraying
The cost of spraying is slightly under the government allowance. The ground I sprayed that classed as heavy mesquite was mostly land that had been cut over and consisted of many small trees from one old stump. This condition doubled the cost. I also hired labor entirely.

I sprayed about 80 acres classed as heavy and one hundred thirty acres classed as medium mesquite. In 1938 I am going over this land again and spray any sprouts that come out and as

Range Improvement

(Continued from page 6) much additional land as I can get over in April and May. In 1937 I also cleared about 30 acres of prickly pears. The method used was to dig the pears up with a hoe and then pile in convenient piles. This work can be done at any time of the year. The cost of this work by using hired labor entirely, is about the allowance in the range program. This year I intend to continue this work and also watch the ground cleared in 1937 against any re-infestation. I earned my range allowance entirely on mesquite and pear work. This year I intend to do the same. If there is no range program in 1938 I do not plan to stop but to continue this work until my ranch is clear of mesquite and pears. County Agent Cook—"Mr. Ed Castleberry of Eastland, who not only did some good pasture terracing in 1937 but also saw all of the other improved range practices instituted, as he served as Eastland county range supervisor, will give you some of his 1937 range experiences." Mr. Castleberry—"Terracing, contour listing, and eradication of noxious plants and rodents on pasture lands is fast becoming one of the most important problems of the ranch operators of Eastland county. Of the many reasons for this manifestation of interest in conserving and building up the grazing capacity of our range lands, apparently the most outstanding is the four demonstration plots located in various parts of the county made by the Extension Service and N.Y.A. cooperating. Each plot demonstrates one or more practices recommended by the extension service for compliance in the range program. Plot number one, a five acre tract on a two per cent incline, located two miles northeast of Cisco on the George P. Fee ranch on Highway 89. This plot was cleared of all mesquite, prickly pear, and bush cactus. Pasture ridges were built level by pushing the dirt from both sides and it was contour listed or furrowed between the ridges, furrows four feet apart, immediately on the north of this plot a two acre block of heavy mesquite was killed by Mr. Fee, the operator of this ranch, by applying kerosene with a pressure spray in the early spring of last year. Plot number two, a seven acre tract on a four per cent incline, located five miles west of Gorman on the Dr. Stubblefield ranch, Highway 67, was cleared by grubbing and burning all shrubs. Pasture ridges were built level by pushing the dirt from the up-hill side only. Contour furrows between ridges spaced four feet. Plot number three, a six acre tract on a two per cent incline, located one mile north of Rising Star on the W. S. Carter livestock farm on Highway 23, was cleared of all brush, contour listed, furrows spaced three and a half feet and re-fenced for deferred grazing. Plot number four, six acres on a one per cent incline, located one and a half miles north of Olden on the R. H. Hodges ranch was cleared of all mesquites, prickly pears, and bush cactus, contour furrows spaced four feet. In Eastland county, where lack of moisture is the most important limiting factor in the grazing capacity of our lands, it is generally conceded that practically all pasture ridges and contour furrows be run level to conserve the rainfall. The precipitation is great enough every year to produce good grazing if all the rainfall were properly conserved. Our spring rains often fall very quickly, and on un-terraced land runs off without wetting the soil to any appreciable depth. It has been demonstrated to an extent at least, that terraces will check the run-off enough, so that a fair crop of grazing can be produced, when on adjoining non-terraced land a complete failure results, in many instances where the slope is not too great furrowing of the slopes will help very much to hold the water on the land. But in this county, Eastland, where the major part of the range land is hilly and broken it has been thoroughly demonstrated that the better method in most cases would be to use both the terrace ridges and furrows on the same area.
