KILGORE DESERTED BY LAWLESS

Instructions for Vet Loan Applications Are Received

FIFTY CISCO APPLICATIONS ALREADY MADE

Local Legion Post Has Necessary Forms and Blanks

Detailed information upon the proper procedure to be followed in applying for adjusted service certificate loans under the new law passed by congress, has been received by officials of the John William Butts post of the American Legion, Crigger Paschal, service officer, and W. C. McDaniell, adjutant, have all the necessary forms and application blanks for the assistance of ex-service men who wish to apply for loans and will give their services free of charge, it was announced. C. E. Yates, at the Blease Motor company has also announced that he will be glad to assist in such applications without charge.

So far about 50 ex-service men of Cisco have made applications for loans under the new law.

The following information with respect to securing these loans has been provided by Read Johnson, regional manager of the Veterans bureau at Dallas:

Many veterans are under the impression that regardless of the age of their certificates they may obtain a loan under the recent bill. In this connection you are advised that no loan can be made on an adjusted service certificate unless such certificate is two years old.

The rate of interest to be charged on such loans as may be made will amount to 4 1/2 per cent per annum. All applications for loans on adjusted service certificates should be executed on U. S. Veterans' Bureau Form No. 1185, a supply of which will be furnished your organization upon request, or to the individual veteran if he will contact this office either by letter or in person.

In applying for additional loans, that is to say, where a man is now asking for a loan on his adjusted service certificate and has previously made a loan on same, Form No. 1185 should be completed by the veteran with the exception of the certificate of identification. You have been previously advised that the certificate of identification is not necessary in executing a note for additional loans. However, if it is possible the veteran should submit with his request for an additional loan the pink memorandum slip which he received with his previous loan check. In executing the new note due care should be exercised in its preparation and wherever possible the numbers of the certificate and the date of issue should be stated, and the application should be forwarded to the office holding the certificate inasmuch as a loan cannot be granted by any agency of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau unless the certificate is on file in that particular office.

Original Loans.
In making applications for original loans Form No. 1185 be completely executed, including the certificate of identification. When this has been accomplished the note, Form

CONDUCTS COOKING SCHOOL

MISS RADA SUE GARRETT

Cisco Women Pleased With Cooking School

The initial lecture of the Free Cooking School sponsored by the Cisco Daily News and held in the Continental Oil company's building directly across D avenue from the Cisco Banking company building, yesterday afternoon drew a large and representative crowd of women who were charmed with the wonderful personality of Miss Rada Sue Garrett, noted home economics expert who is conducting the school, and impressed with her ability to "get across" her message of emancipation to a thing of real enjoyment.

W. H. LaRoque, of the Cisco Daily News, in address formally opening the school, introduced the Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, who introduced Miss Garrett. Mr. James was at one time pastor of a church which Miss Garrett attended.

Miss Garrett, in her opening lecture, demonstrated the preparation of six recipes. In the actual preparation of these items she revealed to an interested audience which filled all available chairs, numerous "short cuts" and artful methods which contribute at once to the quality of the food and to the ease with which it is prepared.

The recipes she demonstrated were: Brown Bread, Scalloped Corn and Ham, Cheesed Carrots, Pear Salad, Lady Betty Cake and Maple Parfait.

"I have come with the aim of helping the housewife," Miss Garrett declared. During her lecture she laid particular emphasis upon the importance of being an American housewife, showing that it was more of a privilege than a duty.

Miss Garrett not only tells how to cook. But she tells what to cook, in order that the housewife may be able intelligently to prepare a well-balanced diet for her family. She discussed the food value of each item which she used in the preparation of yesterday's menu, explaining how vitamins and food values were considered in arriving at a perfectly correlated whole.

Food Elements
Discussing carrots, a food of great value because it contains vitamins A, B, and C, she promised that in future lectures she would reveal numerous ways of preparing this food so that they

TEXAS-EXES HEAR MESSAGE OF OPTIMISM

Annual Oil Belt Banquet Held at Ranger Monday

A message of optimism was brought by Roy Bedichek of the University of Texas faculty to the gathering of nearly 75 who attended the March 2 banquet of the Oil Belt Texas-Exes association last night in the basement of the First Methodist church of Ranger.

The speaker enumerated 17 topics which various persons at Austin had suggested as subjects for his address. One of the themes was "Is Oil Emerson Eligible?"

The question, "Is Drinking Among Students on the Increase?" was asked by Bedichek and was answered by the speaker with an emphatic "No." He declared that, first as a student and later as a faculty member, he had known the university for 30 years and at the beginning of that long period, the boys of the university—then numbering only 400—would fill Austin's 16 saloons on Saturday nights. There are now 3,000 young men attending the university and the speaker declared he had seen only one intoxicated student in the past 15 years.

Truthful on the subject of fraternities and sororities, Bedichek said they aided in solving the problem of housing students and that the "rushing" period had been changed from autumn to mid-winter and the length of the period had been reduced.

Athletics Dealt With.
Athletics was interestingly dealt with added significance being given to Bedichek's words as he is head of the State Interscholastic league. Almost all boys are born with a fighting instinct, he said. "You can turn this instinct loose and make a brute; you can repress it and make a coward or you can control it and make a man," he declared.

The building program of the university was briefly touched upon. The most beautiful and best equipped chemistry building in the south has recently been constructed at a cost of $800,000; the Gregory gymnasium, newly completed, has a sufficient room for five or six basketball teams to practice at the same time, has a large swimming pool, 14 handball courts and can seat 2,000 or 3,000 people; the woman's gymnasium is nearing completion; the Waggoner hall, when completed, will do away with all the shacks on one side of the campus, and the first unit of the new library building will cost a million dollars.

Eastland was chosen for the next annual banquet of the Oil Belt Texas-Exes and Judge J. E. Hickman of Eastland was elected president of the association. Other officers are: E. P. Littlepage of Breckenridge, vice president; Leon G. Maner of Cisco, vice president; B. H. Peacock of Ranger, vice president; Mrs. John W. Turner of Eastland, reporter.

Bountiful Meal.
Invocation was given by the Rev. C. H. Gentry.

Cisco Students on Texas Honor Roll

48 CHILDREN ARE GIVEN FREE MILK

Through the efforts of the West Ward Parent-Teacher association 48 undernourished children in Cisco public schools are being supplied with a portion of whole milk daily. To supply this need requires three gallons of fresh milk each day. With each glass of the milk graham crackers are supplied.

The 48 children are students in the West, South and East ward schools.

Milk bottles placed in various business houses and other well-frequented places in the business district are depositories for pennies, nickels and dimes with which generous-minded Ciscoans are making possible this humanitarian service in the cause of properly nourished childhood. A voluntary contribution of $5 from the American Legion has been a big help while the generosity of the Radford Grocery company in supplying the graham crackers at cost and the Cisco Creamery in furnishing milk at a great reduction has helped wonderfully.

Another instance of voluntary cooperation for which the P.-T. A. is thankful was the action of K. N. Greer, manager of the Palace Theater, in giving a midnight show last week the entire proceeds of which was turned over to the milk fund. Interest in the movement must not abate if this service to the undernourished in the schools is continued, members of the P.-T. A. said today.

"CLEAN-UP" IS STARTED BY RANGERS

Other East Texas Oil Field Towns to Be Combed

KILGORE, March 3.—Ten Texas Rangers bent on removing the lawless element from this mushroom oil boom town found speakeasies, gambling parlors and rooming houses of ill-repute deserted today. Three hundred suspicious characters lured here by traditional easy money and morals of oil fields were missing. They were arrested by the rangers in a wholesale drive yesterday.

Twenty were held in the Longview jail. The others disappeared after they were fingerprinted by experts from Dallas and released.

Prisoners arrested by the rangers included the following: Willie "Hotshot" Ash, at liberty under bond facing charges of highway robbery in Winkler county and also under appeal bond after conviction and sentence of a year on liquor charges;

Max Teague, under indictment charging murder in Winkler county;

Oille Dumas, facing charges of robbery with firearms in Union county, Arkansas;

Capt. Tom Hickman said today that the ranger force will remain in Kilgore several days and will then move to other oil boom towns in east Texas.

Sweep Into Town
The rangers swept into town in force during the afternoon. They had been mobilized from all parts of the state at a meeting point in Gladewater.

Five from the Mexican border rode out to the mud-isolated Newtown section and at dusk rode in with more than a dozen prisoners herded on foot before them. These Rio Grande guards came here under command of Capt Albert Mace, who was Mexico's chief of police during that oil town's heyday. Sergeant Manuel T. Gonzales of Dallas, who has been on duty in this area since the oil boom began, directed their raiding in the mushroom shack town west of Kilgore. Several men with criminal records were in the Newtown lot, Ranger Sergeant Gonzales said.

A police patrol wagon borrowed from Longview was pressed into service and it screamed through the mucky streets picking up the arrested men. Their ranks included many who came here hunting for work and those who could tell whole-cloth stories to Captain Hickman were released. If shady, they were kept behind doors.

The prisoners were put under guard in two Kilgore church buildings and records were written against lounging men who found diversion in reading the Sunday school attendance records and honor rolls on the bulletin boards. The early raids caught only men.

Raiding of the rooming houses and "flop" tents and shacks set in at nightfall.

Detective Captain Leonard Pack of Dallas and three of his officers, two of them identification experts, worked with the rangers at the makeshift prisons.

Police Chief P. K. McIntosh, newly appointed by Kilgore's first Mayor, Malcolm Crim, put his force at the services of the rangers.

"There has been some hijacking going on and these men are the principal ones we want to get out of circulation," Mr. Caldwell said.

Color of the old frontier days was given the raiding as the border patrol units booted and spurred and wearing chaps swished through the streets and alleys on their ponies.

CREDIT MADE SELLING FORCE IN RETAILING

AUSTIN, March 3. — From a courtesy to customers, credit has been made a selling force in retailing and an incentive to induce buying, declared Arthur H. Hert, assistant marketing specialist in the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas, in the introductory to his bulletin, just published, "An Analysis of Credit Extensions in Twenty-three Texas Department Stores by Occupational Groups."

In this study, which purports to show the relationship between the highest amount of credit extended and the length of time taken to liquidate it by persons engaged in the various occupational groups, Mr. Hert presents the results of a survey of a total of 31,250 credit accounts in 23 department stores in six key cities of the state. These stores are located in Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Austin, San Antonio and El Paso.

The data collected by Mr. Hert for this study show the actual credit experiences which have been found to exist on the ledgers of leading department stores of the state. It is expected that credit managers will be able to use this information in an evaluation of present, past and potential credit risks based on past experience within the occupational groups. The study was made at the suggestion of Leopold L. Meyer of Houston, past president of the National Retail Credit Association, who is also a member of the advisory committee of business men for the University Bureau of Business Research.

Special Privilege
"Not long ago, credit was considered a special privilege granted to those of considerable wealth," Mr. Hert said in the introduction to the bulletin. "In recent years, however, it has developed into an every-day, convenient means of shopping for anyone of good character and earning ability. From a courtesy to customers, to save them the trouble of carrying large sums of money and enable them to settle their bills with one payment, credit has been made a selling force in retail and an incentive to induce buying. Credit has become part of our system of living and retailers have set up the machinery to take care of it in their business."

"Many things have contributed to the credit laxity that exists today on the part of the people of the United States. Mass production with the need for mass consumption has played an important part in the comparative freedom with which credit has been extended during the past few years. National advertising, radio, increased leisure and social life, as well as the rising standards of living, have all combined to fan potential buying into actual buying. There seems to be a growing tendency for people as a whole not only to buy necessities but also to buy luxuries beyond their means. The result has been that many have involved themselves beyond their capacity to pay in accordance with established credit terms."

"Formerly, the credit manager was able to conduct his department without much credit information about his customers because he knew most of them personally. During the past few years, the use of retail credit has increased, and now more information concerning prospective customers is essential to the proper granting of credit. A woman who had four or five charge accounts ten years ago now has ten or twelve."

Sales Increase
Credit sales have increased from 48.6 per cent of total sales in 1922 to 57.9 per cent in 1929, according to statistics compiled for the Eleventh Federal Reserve District, including Texas, Southern New Mexico, Southwestern Arizona, Northern Louisiana and Southwestern Oklahoma, Mr. Hert pointed out.

"It will be noted that in the past eight years the ratio of credit sales to total sales increased 9.3 per cent," Mr. Hert continued. "If the use of credit increases at the same rate during the next eight years, credit sales will be approximately 67.2 per cent of the total sales by 1937."

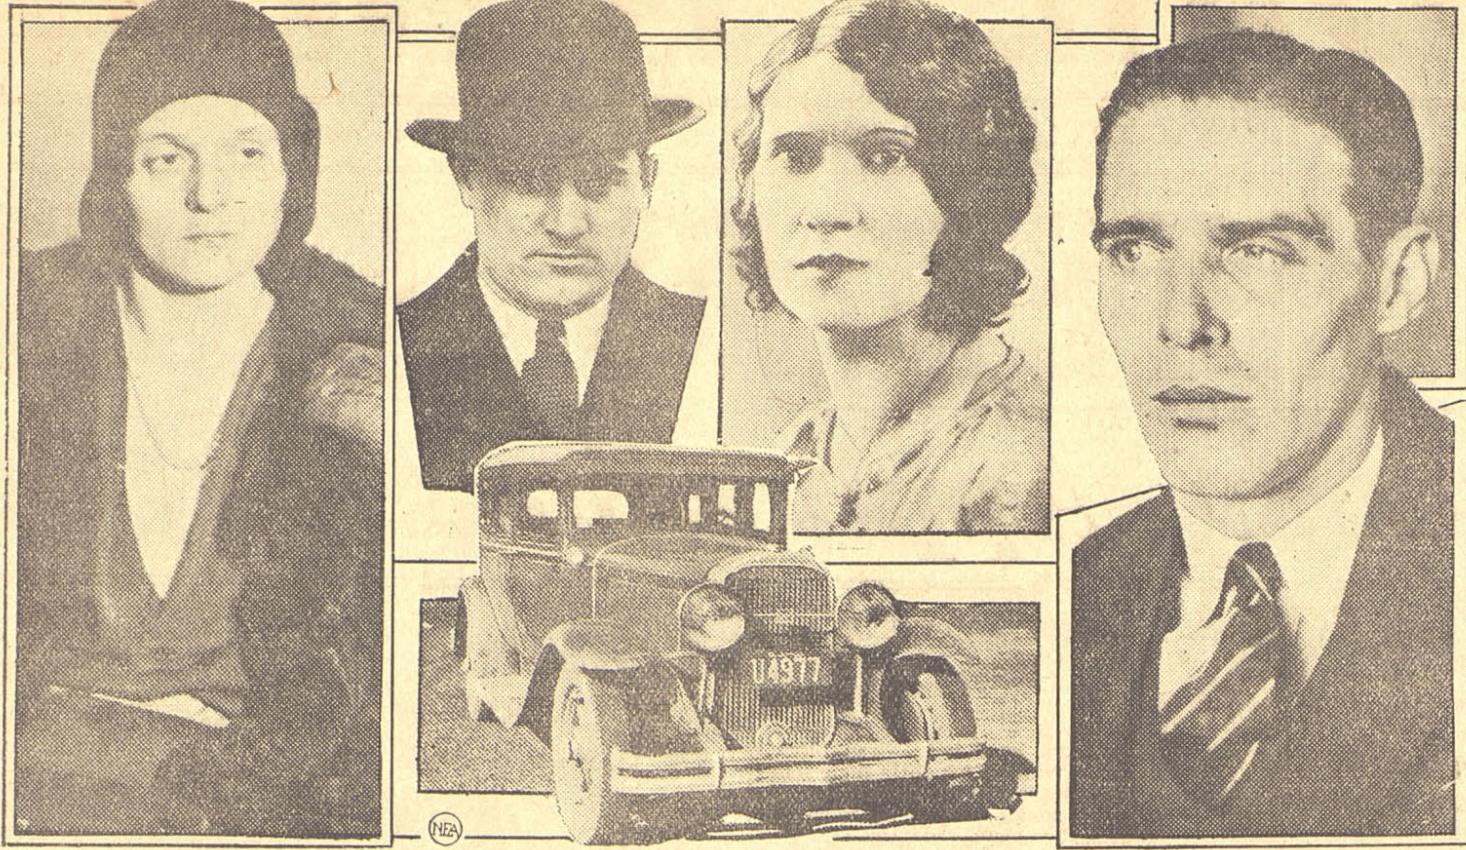

The 23 stores included in Mr. Hert's survey sell practically the same lines of merchandise. They represent more than three-fourths of the sales of the 31 comparable stores in Texas which reported to the University Bureau of Business Research in 1929. The sales of the 23 stores during 1929 amounted to $57,254,597, while the total sales of the 31 comparable stores were $74,122,334; therefore, over 77 per cent of the total sales was made by the 23 stores included in this study, Mr. Hert indicated.

The classifications of Mr. Hert's study contain 108 occupations, classified into fourteen occupational groups, among which are professional men and women, business executives, proprietors, clerks, salesmen, tradesmen, railroad employees, public employees, farmers, students and widows.

IN WEIRD NEW JERSEY MURDER DRAMA

Here are the principal figures in New Jersey's "death ride" murder case. While authorities sought to piece together the facts of the killing of Mrs. Phoebe Stader (right center) of Rahway, New Jersey, her former lover, William M. Frazer, (right) steadfastly refused to confess the murder. Frazer, a retired restaurant operator, was arrested in Raleigh, North Carolina, at almost the same time that Philip Stader (left center), husband of the slain woman, identified her body which was found hidden in a heavy underground near Bowling, Virginia. Frazer was alleged to have admitted the crime to his own wife, Mrs. Hilda Frazer (left), before taking flight southward. And pictured below, in the center, is the automobile in which Frazer was believed to have driven for 350 miles in his escape from Rahway with the body of the dead woman propped up in the seat behind him.

ANSWERS WILL TELL PERSON'S DRY FEELING

CHICAGO, March 3. — A psychological test of an individual's instinctive feeling toward prohibition has been inaugurated by the International Council of Religious Education as a new method of teaching temperance in Sunday schools.

The instinctive feeling toward prohibition is tested by crossing out as rapidly as possible the words which the youth finds disagreeable in the following list:

- Anti-saloon League, bootlegger, beer, alcoholism, law enforcement, saloon, Canadian plan, padlock, wine, cocktail, temperance, hooch, propaganda, prosperity, beer stein, Capone, coast guard, home brew, pledge signing, racketeer, Volstead, local option, W. C. T. U., Jones law, rum runner, machine gun, personal liberty, Hoover commission, law observance.
- The word test should be followed, says the Council, by rapidly indicating the truth or falsity of the following statements:
- Alcohol is a poison.
 - A cocktail or a glass of champagne promotes sociability.
 - Alcohol is a stimulant.
 - Beetle liquor is dangerous.
 - Drinking is not a sin but alcoholism is a disease.
 - Alcohol increases happiness.
 - All moderate drinkers tend to become heavy drinkers.
 - Alcohol is a narcotic.
- The new method, according to its sponsors, will be used in 42 denominations, representing 85 per cent of the Protestant church membership of the country.

FOSHAY TOWER BUILDER FACES COURT TODAY

By HILLER KRIEGBAUM
United Press Staff Correspondent
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Mar. 3. — Wilbur B. Foshay, who two years ago was hailed as the financial genius of the northwest, was to be arraigned today on charges of using the mails to defraud arising from the collapse of his $29,000,000 public utilities concerns.

With Foshay will be six of his associates in building the W. B. Foshay company into one of the largest financial organizations in the northwest. Investors from all over the country bought in the company or its subsidiaries.

Fourteen years ago an unknown young man by the name of Foshay opened an office in Minneapolis. He had been associated with public utility concerns at Tarrytown, N. Y., Wichita, Kansas, and Portland, Oregon. After being associated with other utility organizations in the northwest for a short time, Foshay started his own office with a stenographer as his staff.

$25,000,000 Chain
Success came to him. He married Miss Leota Hutchinson, whose father was one of the founders of Hutchinson, Kansas. In 1925, Foshay sold his chain of holdings in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska to eastern financial interests. He founded another chain which was sold for $25,000,000. The third grouping of public utilities began after the second sale in 1927.

Foshay's most spectacular activity was the opening of the 32-story Foshay Tower, which is modelled after the Washington monument at the national capital. James W. Good, then secretary of war, came out from Washington to speak at the ceremonies. Sousa's band furnished music. It was a gala occasion which attracted governors, public officials and citizens from northwest states.

Wall Street Collapse
Caught along with many other financiers in the collapse of the Wall street market in the fall of 1929, Foshay made a hurried trip east, supposedly in a vain effort to enlist financial aid.

Less than two months after the dedication of the Foshay Tower on November 1, 1929, the collapse of the Foshay enterprises was announced. Foshay accepted voluntary receivership. With the failure of the W. B. Foshay company went subsidiary concerns including three banks.

Foshay's holdings included lumber interests and shipping lines in the Pacific northwest, stores, public utilities, banks and real estate holdings.

Favorite Story
One of Foshay's favorite stories was how he had started in business because his father had failed while he was studying art at Columbia university. He went to work for the New York Central railroad and a few years later first became associated with public utilities.

The others who will be arraigned along with Foshay include H. H. Henley, executive vice president; H. E. McGinty, secretary-treasurer; C. W. Salsbury, vice president; R. J. Andrus, president of the Public Utilities consolidated corporation, a Foshay subsidiary; Palmer B. Mabry and H. F. Welch, assistant secretaries.

Would Replace Chair With Devil's Island
BUFFALO, N. Y., March 3. — Dr. Amos Osborne Squire, chief physician at Ossining for 30 years, made the suggestion that a Devil's Island prison be constructed in the depths of the Adirondacks to replace the death chair at Sing Sing.

The statement was made before the Greater Advertising club in the Lafayette hotel. Dr. Squire said that fear of the chair did not halt criminals.

"In all my years at Sing Sing I don't recall ever having to carry a man to the chair. Men are not afraid to die," he declared. "Electrocution, I fear, has not proved the deterrent to murder, its advocates hoped it would."

"Take away visiting privileges, writing privileges. Lock them up in an isolated place in the Adirondacks. Make them work and support their dependents in the outside world. And keep them there until they die. That's the answer."

Sees Enforcement Under State Gov't
PITTSBURGH, March 3. — Transfer of prohibition enforcement to state and local governments, on the basis of the Wickersham report and similar investigations, is predicted by Dean A. B. Wright, director of graduate studies of Duquesne University.

"Our country began life as a 'hard drinking nation' and a solution to the binding amendment cannot be had in one report," Wright declared.

"As an authentic and unbiased report, the Wickersham survey should establish, indirectly, the need of local and not national enforcement," he said.

DEAD TO SPEAK
PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 3. — Three voices, stifled by death but preserved in wax, will speak through a dictaphone at the final dinner of the Last Man's club of West Philadelphia. Just to test out the records, which were made of each member, when the club was organized, the voices of the three dead members were heard at a special dinner on Friday the 12th.

MAY TAKE LAND RUSH CASE TO SUPREME COURT

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 3. — The recent land rush to seize the abandoned railroad right-of-way through Oklahoma City's business district may be fought out in the United States Supreme court.

The land rush was made several weeks ago when the Rock Island Railroad abandoned a right-of-way bounded by skyscrapers of this southwestern metropolis. Several of those staking claims were pioneers of the 1899 run. They announced ownership by crude placards under the old townsite act of congress. Claims were published and the city's title to the land was clouded.

The several score cases will be determined in the test case of Luther Keys and Robert W. Higgins, Longstreet Hill, municipal counselor, and his assistant, Judge W. H. Brown, said today when they announced plans for fighting the reversionary claims.

The city purchased that even after the city purchased land from the railroad with a $4,000,000 bond issue the federal government maintained a partial control such as mineral rights — as it does over all railroad routes through public and Indian lands. It further contends the city has the surface rights and that individuals have no claim on railroad lands which never were thrown open to settlement.

SO... mix a salad dressing appropriate to the salad

FOR GREENS
Simple greens served between the meat course and dessert at dinner, respond most readily to a tart dressing such as French Dressing, Bachelor Club or Vinaigrette Dressing.

VINAIGRETTE DRESSING
One teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of pepper, a little paprika, six tablespoons of Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Beat with a fork until thoroughly blended. Stir in a small sour pickle, chopped fine, and a teaspoon of chopped parsley.

BAR-LE-DUC DRESSING
One teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, six tablespoons of Wesson Oil, two tablespoons of lemon juice and six tablespoons of a jelly that is not too firm . . . such as Bar-le-Duc. Beat the mixture with a fork until thoroughly blended.

FOR FRUIT
Fruits, fresh or canned, with a more pronounced flavor than the simple greens, call for a dressing less sharp. With perhaps a dash of sweetness or the tang of cheese, or the richness of nuts to encourage the fruits to give us back their sunshine and full fresh flavor. Fruit Dressing, Cheese Dressing, Nut Dressing or Bar-le-Duc Dressing.

SEAFOODS
If your salad is to be the main part of the meal, for luncheon let us say, and boasts of the full flavors of lobster, crabmeat or shrimp, marinate first and just before serving add Lemonade.

TO MARINATE
Mix six tablespoons Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Add a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Pour this over seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemonade Dressing.

SO MANY different foods, under the guiding hand of the clever cook, come to the table as salad. Each one has its own flavor, and there is a right dressing for each kind of salad. If you are interested we'll send you a book, "Appropriate Salad Dressings," that shows more ways to fix salads, new dressings, and new ways to serve them; address Wesson Oil & Snowdrift People, New Orleans, La.

CAMEL CONTEST DRAWS FLOOD OF ANSWERS

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., March 3.—A flood of letters arrived in the first mail following publication only Wednesday of the initial announcements of the $50,000 Camel cigarette contest for the best answers to the question: "What significant change has recently been made in the wrapping of the Camel package containing twenty cigarettes and what are its advantages to the smoker?" R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, makers of Camel cigarettes, disclosed today.

The first day's answers came from all nearby states and caused an immediate addition to the clerical staff of the Winston-Salem post office. Practically every daily newspaper in America, more than 2,000 county seat weeklies and college periodicals, are being used to promote the contest, which closes at midnight March 4.

A first prize of $25,000 will reward the winner, the second prize is $10,000 and the third prize is $5,000. Thirty-five additional prizes, ranging from $100 to $1,000, also are offered contestants.

Elaborate precautions are being taken by the contest judges Charles Dana Gibson, the artist and publisher of Life, Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, and Ray Long, president of International Magazine company and editor of Cosmopolitan magazine and staff, to insure impartial and careful consideration of every contest entry.

A wing of one floor of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. office building in Winston-Salem has been cut off completely from the rest of the floor, where only members of the judges' staff are permitted. This staff consists of experienced clerks, especially employed in New York City and brought to Winston-Salem for the period of the contest. Contest mail, handled by extra clerks added to the staff of the local post office, is being delivered in sealed pouches to the contest judges' staff and each answer, together with its envelope, is given a serial number and filed alphabetically.

O. G. Lanier of Ranger and all present sang "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You." A bountiful meal, prepared by the ladies of the Methodist church, was served. During the repast, a number of beautiful selections were rendered by Miss Gillian Buchanan's orchestra. The decorations, in orange and white, were beautiful and the table was arranged in the form of a huge "T."

R. F. Holloway, the toastmaster, introduced Judge L. H. Flewellen of Ranger who made a characteristically humorous address and closed with a cordial welcome.

Recollections of former Gov. O. M. Roberts were given by Judge J. R. Stubblefield of Eastland, who was a student at the university when Roberts—after serving four years as governor—accepted a place in the faculty of the law department. Roberts' most enduring claims to fame were his decisions as a supreme court judge and his influence among the young men of the university, said the speaker.

Robert E. Powers of Breckenridge made a brief address and R. C. Giles represented Cisco on the program.

A message from President Benedict of the university was read by the toastmaster. John W. Turner led the audience in singing. Mr. Holloway gave a splendid address in which glowing prophecies concerning the progress of the university and the development of Texas were made.

The Tickville band of the Ranger American Legion post delighted with an elaborate program of songs, dances and instrumental selections which aroused mirth and applause.

Those attending the banquet were (the class of the former students being given): J. R. Stubblefield, 1894, Eastland; N. N. Rosenquest, 1909, Eastland; L. H. Flewellen, 1913-1915, Ranger; Mrs. N. N. Rosenquest, 1908-10, Eastland; Carl P. Springer, 1915-1916, Eastland; John W. Turner, 1910, Eastland; Mrs. John W. Turner, 1921, Eastland; O. C. Funderburk, 1903, Eastland; V. T. Seaberry, 1915, Eastland; W. B. Perkins, 1924, Eastland; J. A. Bates, 1920, Breckenridge; S. M. McAnelly, 1920, Ranger; E. D. Catron, 1908-1917, Breckenridge; L. R. Pearson, 1908-1912, Ranger; E. GOV. MURRAY OF OKLAHOMA HAS A PLATFORM.

Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma journeyed to Topeka, in the heart of bleeding Kansas, and was introduced to a vast audience by William Allan White, republican free lance and editor. Governor Murray advanced a platform "to restore the little man and give him renewed hope in the struggle of life." He was introduced by William Allan White "as a man in the shadow of the white house." These are the planks proposed by Murray for incorporation in the platform of 1932:

A government of laws and not a government of men; a perpetual union of indestructible states and local self-government in fullest measures consistent with general public order and stability; enforcement of the federal and state constitutions and all amendments thereto; and an administration of honest, economy and efficiency; that all citizens, Catholics, Protestant, Jews or people of no belief, whether white or black, rich or poor, or high or low estate, are under the same obligations to, and are entitled to equal protection of the laws and of the impartial rights of the constitution and the poor and the weak always the subject of special care and solicitude of the government.

Governor Murray appears to have caught the presidential itch or perhaps he is angling for second place on the ticket. In all events his fame is nation-wide and the press of America is doing its utmost to make him a national figure.

TEXANS SHOULD KNOW THEIR TEXAS.

Publicity is the thing and a publicity man who distributes or disseminates facts and figures knows his business and should be given the right of way. For instance, when he points out that Texas has 1,323,774 families living in 1,213,474 homes. Texas has a county, Winkler, which showed a population gain of 8,775.3 per cent between 1920 and 1930, respective totals being 81 and 6,784. In the preceding decade it showed a loss of 81.7 per cent. Texas has three counties showing population increases of more than 5,000 per cent in the 1920-30 decade; Winkler, 8,775.3 per cent; Hockley, 6,686.9 per cent, and Crane 5,902.7 per cent. Texas showed mineral production in 1929 valued at $438,707,554. Petroleum contributed $323,540,660 of the total. Investment of life insurance companies in public utility securities increased 1,250 per cent in the United States between 1906 and 1931 and that particular kind of investment now represents almost one-tenth of the insurance companies' total investments and reserves. Texas is a great gas producing state. During 1929 the American public bought 1,130,000 new gas ranges. In petroleum a valuable product? Is gas a valuable product? If in doubt, glance at the figures.

WOOL AND MOHAIR ADVANCES.

It is announced via Washington that the federal farm board has fixed the amount of advance on mohair at 20 cents for old hair and 30 cents for kid hair, landed in Boston. This rate of advance will net the grower in Texas 16 cents for old hair and 25 cents for new hair and the board agreed to hold off the market at the present time the 1930 mohair now on hand until the spring 1931 mohair is disposed of. This plan is said to be satisfactory to the goat men of Texas. Indeed wool and mohair producers are very optimistic of a business revival this year. There is a season in the ground and Texas farmers are in a happier frame of mind than they have been for months and months.

OTHER OPINIONS

DISREGARDING EXPENSE

It is not so many months since we had a congressional primary and a general election. It is not too far back for us to recall some of the promises which the candidates made to the voters. Of course that congress has not been seated, but the present congress is made up of the candidates, defeated and undefeated, who stood upon the campaign platforms and told us what they would do.

If there was any one argument that each candidate dwelled upon with honest faced vigor, it was how he was not going to squander the "people's" money. Economy has been a bait for votes since the days of George Washington.

The New York Times in its issue of February 22, contains an editorial upon this subject which all voters should read. We print it below. Its heading is "The Lavish Habit."

"That total disregard to expense, which Dr. Johnson so greatly admired in a country estate, has been surprisingly displayed by both the congress of the United States and the British Parliament. Each of them has sung the praises of abstract economy but has then turned to the concrete and congenial work of spending more money than ever.

Chancellor Snowden, a year ago assured the Commons that the slight increase in the income tax would be the last one necessary, and that he expected to end the fiscal year with a surplus of $10,000,000. In fact, he is ending it with a deficit of $150,000,000 and is warning the country that additional burdens of taxation will have to be placed upon the shoulders of those best able to stagger along under them. Our own treasury is in a plight even worse. Month by month declining revenues and mounting expenditures have forced it to revise its estimates, so that they have now jumped from the forecast made in December of a deficit of $180,000,000 to a shortage of $500,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year. By the time it comes the deficit may well be even greater. In England the latest returns from income taxes show an ominous falling off. All the indications in the United States are that a similar or larger decline will be noted after March 15, when the first quarterly payment of taxes is due. Thus both nations seem headed for such a balance on the wrong side of the public accounts as will necessitate increased taxation and this at the very time when the limit of productive rates seems to have been reached, so that we may have soon the unpleasant spectacle of higher taxes yielding smaller revenue.

The extraordinary thing is the calm indifference with which the legislative bodies of both countries holding the power of the purse, disregard solemn and urgent warnings by their chief financial officers. In congress especially in the senate this has reached a pitch of actual levity. Why pay any attention to the reports and remonstrances of Secretary Mellon? He has often underestimated the revenue, and is probably doing it again. Don't tell us that the richest country in the world will not have enough for all its needs. Just look back at the enormous surpluses of the post-war years down to 1930 and all reason for financial alarm, or for retrenchment, will at once disappear. The old song used to be, "Uncle Sam is rich enough to give us all a farm." Certainly he must be rich enough today to give us all a pension.

"What we are witnessing at Washington is, in part, the persistence of a lavish habit. We have been so long able to spend as much as we wished, that extravagance has lost its meaning and ceased to frighten anybody. Because we have always floundered through somehow or other, it is argued that we shall be certain to do it again. If all the available figures are against us the thing to do is to snap our fingers at them and trust to luck. In this matter there has been a marked difference between the attitude of individuals and that of their representatives acting in a collective capacity at Washington. Since the great depression began, a year and a half ago, all prudent persons have been taking in financial sail. Luxurious living has been curtailed. Individual budgets have been cut down. Savings have been made and put away where they can be drawn upon in case of need. Doubtless such practices have been common among members of congress as respects their own private affairs. But when it is a question of public finance, of spending money wrung from taxpayers, the old way of regarding the treasury as an inexhaustible mine of wealth has been pursued. We are apparently in for a rude awakening from these golden dreams but it is now congress's scene to believe that it still has the Midas touch.

"There need be no fear of national bankruptcy. Even Turkey, even China, has always been able to make some kind of arrangement with her creditors and keep on as a going concern. There has been recently in Australia some wild talk about repudiating national debts, but the overwhelming sentiment there is that this would be a suicidal action. In time, the wholesome instincts of individual citizens, in a time of economic distress must have their effect in restraining the largesses which congress and parliament are so ready to vote. Just at present, one can only wonder how long they will continue to act as if they had unlimited resources to apply to limitless demands."

—San Angelo Times.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That continuous advertising of quality wins public favor.

There is a great difference between quality merchandise and just merchandise.

Continuous advertisers have built their reputations on the best quality possible.

Advertisers feature quality, because that is the only kind that brings customers back for more.

Merchandise that is continuously advertised is better merchandise. It is the kind that gives you real value for your money.

You can't go wrong when you buy well advertised products—they are of proven merit.

No business can survive long that does not use the aid of advertising.

The growth of any business depends upon the quality of the merchandise offered and the advertising service it renders its customers.

Advertising is as necessary to the buyer as it is to the seller.

Advertising does much in bringing together the buyer and the seller.

Buyers expect the sellers to present the cold facts about their wares through the printed page. Those who do not just think they are in business; their time is short and they will soon wake up to find themselves out of business.

Slender Clues Lead to Noose

LONDON, March 3.—Scotland Yard needs only the slenderest clue to send a man to the gallows, or to prison.

Recently a fleeing burglar left the tip of one of his little fingers on an iron fence. A few hours later he was under arrest. This incident recalled other famous criminal investigations by the Yard.

A man who enticed a governess to a violent death at Bournemouth spelled the word "expense" incorrectly in a telegram. He died on the gallows.

William Podmore who killed Vivian Messiter, formerly of Denver, Colorado, in a Southampton garage made a reckless statement while in jail on another crime and was executed later.

A cloakroom ticket brought the hangman's noose around the neck of Patrick Mahon, who killed a girl in a bungalow at Eastbourne. Sidney Fox, salesman, applied too often for the renewal of an insurance policy and was convicted of his mother's murder and executed.

Other persons have been convicted by discovery of a penny lantern a soldier's button, shreds of cloth, microscope bloodstains and even a street-car ticket.

Wealthy Residents Try to Save Deer

AUGUSTA, Me., March 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Edsel Ford are among wealthy residents of Bar Harbor who have petitioned the Maine legislature to declare a perpetual closed season on deer on Mount Desert Island.

The rocky, heavily timbered island affords excellent deer hunting but summer residents claim last season's hunters blazed away at everything that moved and considerable blue blood was in danger of being spilled.

The island containing more than 100 square miles of granite hills and virgin forest, teems with deer. Maine plans to trap some of the animals and release them in other sections of the state.

FUTURE FIRES TO BE FOUGHT MECHANICALLY

HARTFORD, Conn., March 3.—It looks as though the fireman of 50 or 100 years hence is going to lead a pretty drab existence, if the opinions of Fire Chief John C. Moran, who has just completed 45 years as a smoke-eater, are correct. In his opinion there will be no more shiny apparatus with miles of hose and wailing sirens, thrilling rescues from burning buildings, no sliding half-dressed down a brass rail on a cold winter's morning for a high-speed race to the blaze.

Here is Chief Moran's conception of a typical fire of the future: A fire breaks out in an office building in which hundreds of men and women are working. Huge fire doors, operated automatically, close off the room in which the blaze is "caged" while smothering gasses are released from sprinkler devices. The fire is extinguished before it has a chance to gain headway. The occupants of the building, secure in the knowledge the structure is completely fireproof, continue their work.

There will be firemen, but they will be "white collar" workers who will arrive leisurely after the fire is over to check up loss and report to headquarters.

Municipal regulations will force incorporation of safety devices against fire in all buildings, Chief Moran believes.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 3.—Nazareth College will present The American Passion Play, fashioned after the world famous Oberammergau play, March 15 and on two following Sundays. The play, dealing with the death of Jesus Christ, has been an annual feature at Union City, N. J., for the last 17 years.

LIBRARY GETS 450 BOOKS.
DURHAM, N. C., March 3.—The Duke University Library has received a gift of 450 volumes owned by the late Senator Lee Slater Overman of North Carolina. Senator Overman was a member of the class of 1874 at Duke, then Trinity college and was a trustee of the institution.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

By POLITICAL ANALYST

AUSTIN, March 3.—Echoing the same sentiments expressed in the house by T. H. McGregor, a former senator, that "there should be in a democratic nation only two bodies that are secret—a grand jury dealing with crime, and the United States senate dealing with foreign relations," members of the senate are now investigating to see what it takes to abolish the anachronism of "executive sessions" on confirmations.

Now the senate, not by the choosing of any present member, is compelled to cast its vote on the confirmation of public officials behind locked doors.

Some have found ambiguous expressions which they construe to mean the state constitution requires the shut-door proceedings. Others believe that only a change in the senate rules is necessary to follow the example of the United States senate. The United States senate, it will be recalled, laughed itself out of a proceeding that to it became ridiculous of shutting the doors when it started transacting this phase of public business.

Until the action develops into a resolution to change the rules, or to amend the constitution, senators favoring the abandonment of the present plan will not be quoted; but in the house members are free to express opinions on the subject without their relating to any particular case "before the bar." House committee "executive sessions" have been discussed in resolutions.

So far, only newspaper publishers or editors have fallen under the senate's disapproval. Perhaps the senators have reflected that the difference may not have been the lack of holding decided views on particular subjects but the lack merely of a medium for expressing them.

It would not take many consecutive examples of throwing out each newspaper man appointed to public office by a governor to convey the impression to the people that the hint of exclusion from appointive public service was implied against frank expression of public opinion

Technicalities such as criminal appeals court pointed out that prevented it from reversing the death penalty of Dave Goodwin, Bowie county, despite substantial injustice to him in the trial procedure, will be stricken from the law under a procedural bill being drawn by Rep. A. P. C. Petsch of Fredericksburg.

The court in affirming Goodwin's death penalty for murder in connection with a shooting over some hogs, pointed out that the law's technicalities often worked to the disadvantage of the accused, as well as the prosecution.

Goodwin's case is pending on rehearing.

After hearing Rep. T. H. McGregor's tribute to the late Joseph Weldon Bailey, it could hardly have been possible that a majority of the state affairs committee voted against the bill to create an art commission because they feared the women members might obstruct placing of a monument to Bailey in the capital grounds. For Mr. McGregor is author of the art commission bill in the house.

No, could the Texas bar object to it in connection with its Georgia marble monument to the first supreme court, because that monument already is provided for and beyond review of any art commission.

Rep. C. E. Farmer of Wt. Worth raised a hair-line distinction in urging his chain-store tax bill. In other states, he said, the tax was levied upon the stores. In his bill he proposed to define the occupation of chain store operator, and to tax all within that class for the privilege of engaging in the operation.

It is a privilege tax, he insisted, equal upon all those in the class, and thus qualifying under court rulings.

Lumber yards operated by Texas firms are to come under the classification of chain stores, and they, like others, do not want to be subjected to a chain store tax. G. H. Zimmerman, vice president of the William Cameron company organization has told the house revenue committee.

If sudden great values develop in tracts of university land, the land leasing board will not be obliged to lease to the highest bidder, regardless of amount, under the leasing law in the university legislative program. A choice of auctioning off the leases to the highest bidders is provided.

The regents may now reject bids if they choose—but this is not flexible as to single tracts. Ordinarily rejecting bids on one of a set of tracts would involve rejecting bids on all, when the price level seems conspicuously low on even one.

WTCC TO SEEK FARM HELP APPROPRIATION

STAMFORD, March 3.—A committee headed by Frank P. Holland, Dallas, publisher and agricultural leader will represent the West Texas chamber of commerce before the appropriations committees of the state house of representatives and senate in a hearing on March 5 and present a request for a legislative appropriation for carrying on cattle feeding tests and demonstrations at the state agricultural experiment stations in West Texas.

Arrangements for the west Texas group to appear before the appropriations committees were made by Adrian Pool, member of the state board of control.

Sponsoring the development and enlargement of the practice of feeding Texas grain to Texas cattle in finishing them out for market is one of the objectives of the west Texas chamber for this year and the effort to further the idea by having the state agricultural stations determine the most efficient and practical methods to follow in that work has been widely encouraged.

Agricultural leaders point out that there is much lost motion and other uneconomic items involved in the present arrangement of west Texas producing cattle, shipping them to the northern states for finishing on corn and other grains, and then having the beef shipped back into Texas—while millions of tons of Texas grain sorghum and other feedstuff are being sold at low prices.

The basic idea in asking for the feeding experiment appropriations is to make possible arriving at a way to get Texas cattle and Texas grain together in Texas so as to make the business of producing both commodities mean more to the state.

Bible of Exiled Empress to Mexico

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—From Philadelphia, where the "Empress" Charlotta, who once ruled Mexico, ended her life as an exile, to the National Museum in Mexico City is travelling a Douay Bible, once, perhaps the valued possession of the Empress herself.

The Mexican embassy here received the Bible from its owner, Walter Harris, of Philadelphia, and sent it on to Mexico City after establishing the fact that it actually was, at one time, the property of the Empress's family, the Iturbides.

For 20 years the book had been in the possession of Harris, who had no idea of its historical value. A janitor in the office building where Harris worked as a young man found the Bible among other cast off papers in an office vacated by a tenant. One cover was missing. The other was sewed on. Several leaves from foreign plants were pressed between the pages. In place of the family record there were several entries which enabled Harris to connect it with the Iturbide family.

He kept the volume, however, merely as an interesting antique. It was not until last October that he read an article about the Iturbides and the Empress's exile in Philadelphia in a newspaper.

He immediately checked dates and data in the article with the notations in the Bible, and finding that they tallied, communicated with the Mexican embassy.

As the result, the Mexican government is at least one Bible head.

Some of this is conducive to tenderness and mercy. You can draw no tears from Soviet eyes by recounting the horrors of "liquidating the kulaks" or of suppressing the remnants of former ruling orders. The Soviet population was more deeply shocked by the reprieves granted to Prof. Leonid Ramzin and his fellow-plotters than by the 48 executions which preceded it.

The creative intellectuals, in literature, theater and the arts generally share this burden of mistrust. Not one of them even if a member of the party, is permitted to work except under strict supervision by the working class.

THE SCLE TEST

Independent creative effort is unthinkable in the present stage of the Bolshevik undertaking. The scler test of any work of art is its usefulness to the Five-Year plan and the other immediate objectives of the revolution.

ONE PRICE $5 MILLER - LAUDERDALE "The Man's Store"

For GINGER'S SAKE

by ETHEL HUESTON
©1930 THE BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

To keep life from growing too dull in Red Thrush, Iowa, Ginger Ella Tolliver, daughter of a minister and stepdaughter of the wealthy and indulgent former Phil Van Doorn, organized a Junior Country Club.

Bard Holloway, a young artist who was hobnobbing through the country, stopped in Red Thrush. Attracted by Ginger, he agreed to stay and paint portraits and decorate the clubhouse. He suggested sending to Chicago for Nicolo Caleno, who could cook and sing and strum a guitar.

But Nicolo could not come. In his place came three of his countrymen. Angelo could play; Pietro could cook; Benito could sing. Ginger took them on. Beginning to realize he was in love with Ginger, Bard suggested leaving. But Phil persuaded him to stay longer as their guest, and she wrote to Speed Roney, a former friend of Ginger's, and invited him. She felt he would give Bard some competition.

Ginger met this move by inviting Patty Sears to take care of Speed. When Speed wired that he was bringing his sister she also persuaded Eddy Jackson to come, and Eddy decided to ball things up by keeping Ginger and Bard separated. This he did. Speed's sister's nickname was Cotton. Eddy devilishly contrived to keep her and Bard together while he stuck to Ginger and paired Patty off with Speed. Everyone had a miserable time.

Meanwhile, Benito had made a trip to Chicago and returned with presents for all and a plan to kidnap Ginger and hold her for ransom. He hid his time. When Speed, not knowing how matters stood, told Bard that Ginger and Eddy were engaged, Bard determined to leave. And at that point of the proceedings Ginger disappeared. Shortly afterward a note was found, containing a demand for $30,000. Phil immediately fired to Chicago for the money and a pair of private detectives. When the money arrived they discovered that Cotton was not Speed's sister, and Speed confessed they had been secretly married.

A basket containing a carrier pigeon was delivered at the Tolliver home with instructions to fasten the money in its pouch and release it. While they talked the pigeon escaped in the room. Bard recaptured it and identified it as Benito's bird. They put the money on the bird and released it and waited and watched Benito, who said he was going fishing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XI

"You be careful in that old tub of yours," said Bard, "She looks pretty groggy to me."

"Maybe she'll sink with me and maybe she won't," muttered Benito. "What do I care? I'd rather drown than endure this suspense any longer."

As he slowly drew in the old boat at the end of the bow-line, it was listing badly.

"Be careful, Benito," said Eddy. "It doesn't look at all safe."

"I don't care if it's not safe," declared the Italian passionately. "I'd as lief be drowned as not."

As he stepped gingerly into the boat it rolled under him so that he lost his balance and fell over half into the water. But he righted himself, muttering grimly between his teeth, readjusted the big stones which he said he carried for ballast, and banged the oars into the locks. With one terrific pull of his great arms he sent the lumbering craft half-way across the river.

"God, what an actor," muttered Eddy. "If he really did it."

"He did it," declared Bard grimly. "Cut up into the woods, will you, and keep an eye on him? He may pull up-steam, and we don't want him to see that we are following."

Eddy stood up and lighted a cigarette.

"How's she working?" he called to Benito.

"She's sprung a leak on me, but it's not much," he roared back. "Getting my bed wet, though. I'll just get a fish or two for our supper and pull in."

He pulled the boat across the river and directly into the heart of the deep pool which lay in the shadows on the other side and carefully lowered a flat stone on the end of a chain as an anchor.

"I'll call up the girls, Bard," said Eddy. "Back in a minute."

He disappeared into the house, and Bard, watching, saw that he crossed quickly through the disappeared into the woods on the upper side. But Benito had already settled himself to his fishing, hunched up on the board and pulling upon the old pipe Ginger had bought for him at his suggestion as becoming a river man.

"God, he is an actor," thought Bard. "You wouldn't believe it of the sort he is—fond of birds—fond of flowers—fond of fishing—and such a devil at heart. I wouldn't believe it myself—I didn't know it. Catching fish for our supper down here, and that ransom money for Ginger upstairs in his window. God!"

He thought of Ginger. They would have her back—they must have her back! It was not possible, it was no crime that one so lovely, loved so much, should be snatched like that from all the light and love and laughter in the world. They would have her back. He would tear her away from Benito if he had to do it with his bare hands.

A sudden shrill cry brought him quickly to his feet.

"Throw me a rope! A rope!" Benito boomed in a voice of terror. "She's sinking! Throw me a rope!"

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS.

MOM'N POP.

When Bard came to the surface for air, with his huge hands Benito made a great show of assisting, but his stout legs under water pinioned the young man fiercely and slowly dragged him down, Bard trying in vain to fight free of his vise-like hold.

"Bard, what is it?" shouted Eddy.

"It's all right!" boomed Benito. "I've got him! Just lost his head a little—I've got him."

Bard reappeared for a moment. "Eddy—the boat—" he cried, and Benito's powerful legs drew him out of sight once more.

"Boat sank on us!" shouted Benito, striving to tighten his grip on Bard's struggling body.

At the moment that Bard's head and shoulder reappeared, an oar that had drifted loose from the lock rose slowly to the surface. With a choking cry Bard seized it and struck the Italian a terrific blow across the head.

That was enough for Eddy. With one great dive he was half-way across the river and making for the pool.

"Oh, God help us!" cried Jenky, running up and down the shore and wringing her thin hands. "He's gone mad! He's killing poor Mr. Benito!"

Benny, hearing the uproar, realizing afresh his helplessness, did the only thing he could think of. He felt his way along the walls to the telephone and called Doorn, and for once his diffident voice did not falter.

"Miss Phil, come quick!" he said. "They're killing each other."

Bard, freed from Benito's deadly grip, dived down at once and found the boat, explored it swiftly with his hands, found great stones in the end of it and tossed them out, found a flapping plank that Benito had prised loose to let the water in—was forced up for air.

"Bard!" called Eddy at sight of him.

"Help!"

Bard went down again. His hands found the pile of old blankets and rugs, just beginning to float loose in the water—tore them away—touched firm flesh—a hand found taut ropes—a hand fainting he rose to the surface.

"Oh, my god, Eddy," he cried, "bring up that boat!"

Eddy was with him without a word, and between them they bore it to the surface, tore away the last of the soaking blankets—found Ginger! Rigidly bound with tight ropes she lay, her face and arms blackened with oil, the flesh swollen and dark where the ropes had cut. Bard felt, half-flung himself, into the boat beside her, but Eddy dragged him away.

"Wait—wait!" he begged him. "I'll do it. Bard, hang on to the boat! You'll sink it again!"

Swiftly, with his sharp knife, he cut the rope and released her lying motionless, her arms limp and lifeless at her sides. Eddy left it for Bard to draw her gently into his arms and carry her in to shore. Weakened as he was from his struggle with Benito this was no easy matter, and Eddy swam close alongside to lend a strong arm when it was needed.

"Oh, my gosh," he muttered, as they staggered at last upon the solid shore. "I've forgot Benito! I hope he's drowned!"

But Benito had not drowned. Holt had been drawn from his book in the hammock just in time to assist Pietro and Angelo in pulling their unconscious countryman ashore.

Half-blind, half-mad, stumbling like a drunken man, Bard carried Ginger into the house and laid her gently down upon a bed while Eddy put in a frantic call for doctors.

EASILY TIRED, WEAK, NERVOUS

"I Took Cardui, It Built Me Up and I Felt Like New," Says This Lady.

Clarksville, Tenn.—"When I was a girl at home, my health wasn't very good," writes Mrs. Della Pentecost, of 945 Charlotte Street, this city. "I suffered quite a bit from pains in my side and back. My mother thought I ought to take a tonic, and knowing Cardui was good, I decided on that. Just two bottles cleared up my skin and eased the pain, and I felt much better."

"After I was married, I was weak and run-down, and at times very nervous. I would get tired so easily, and did not feel like doing my work. I took Cardui again, two bottles, and it built me up and I felt like new. I am glad to recommend it as a reliable medicine."

If you are run-down, nervous, or suffer every morning, take Cardui, a purely vegetable reconstructive medicine of long established value. Experience of several generations has shown that Cardui helps women to health.

Get a bottle of Cardui, today, and try it in your case.

CIVIL WAR JOURNALISM ILLUSTRATED

AUSTIN, March 3.—Civil War journalism is illustrated by a small newspaper of that era recently given to the University of Texas library by M. H. Parker of Austin. This paper, The Gonzales Inquirer, is dated December 9, 1864, and is the first copy of this particular paper that has come into the possession of the University.

Ten by fifteen inches in size, the paper is comprised of only one sheet. On the front page are stories carrying such headlines as "War News by Tuesday's Mail," "Defences of Richmond," and "The Texas Stock Directory." On the back page are smaller stories without headlines. Eighteen different kinds of type are used to call attention to the various stories, articles and advertisements.

War news and advertising make up the largest portion of the content of the paper. Most of the former classification consists of comments on news printed in the large metropolitan papers or in small, Texas papers. Subjects for the advertisements vary from the announcements of piano music selling at five cents per page to a letter asking for payment from debtors.

DOG GUARDS CASH

GLOBE, Ariz., March 3.—Al Gregory, merchant of Springs Creek near here, has found an effective way to avoid loss by hold up men who have been numerous in Arizona in recent weeks. Ranger, a big Police dog, has been trained to watch the cash register when ever Gregor is absent from his store. While the dog is on guard it is risky business to approach the money box.

Ideas for Dining Rooms

HERE'S a saying among interior decorators that dining rooms are always the hardest rooms to plan. That's because there is not much chance for originality in the arrangement of the furniture.

If the homemaker can create an atmosphere of leisure and comfort—a "lived-in" aspect for her dining room—she has helped to make this difficult room charming. Many of the best interior decorators are now using an occasional cozily upholstered chair in the dining room and sometimes even a sofa.

Another new style note in the furnishing of dining rooms is the use of ensembled furniture instead of sets or suites. Many dining sets of period inspiration are, of course, far too lovely to resist. Yet it is thoroughly correct to use pieces which do not match but whose design has some similarity of feeling. Chairs of two or even three styles are often charmingly grouped around a table. The sideboard, serving table and china cupboard need not match, providing they look harmonious together.

One of the most important elements of charm in the dining room is the beauty of wood surfaces. The table, waxed to a satiny sheen, is, of course, the center of decorative interest in the room. Now that table runners and doilies of delicate lace and linen are so much in vogue the regular waxing of the table to protect it from heat marks and water rings is more important than ever before.

The rug in the dining room may have a larger pattern than is sometimes suitable for other rooms, because the table obscures so much of the design. This room is an ideal place for the cheer and freshness that growing plants supply. Colorful china, new or art-burnished copper will add a gracious charm to the informal dining room.
