COMMON FOLKS PAY HONOR TO ROGERS

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

We read in today's papers of the last respects that are being paid to the memory of Will Rogers and Wylie Post.

The family of Will Rogers, the most widely known man on earth at the time of his death, going to their ranch home in California... the old chair which faces the West... empty... the few last funeral arrangements that will be made by Mrs. Rogers... the lonely and quiet of the old home that will echo no more to the jests of the beloved father... and a loving father, he was... Then tomorrow he will lie in state under the pines as his friends pass by for the last farewells.

A few more front items and then he will be forgotten so far as publicity is concerned... other passing matters will demand the front page attention... Will Rogers will be a memory of the past... Soon we, too will pass and be forgotten... like the coral that builds with its dead body on to others of its kind so that reefs are thus builded.

If we have raged about in our little cages of activity, and have left our memories in the hearts of our fellowmen, it is well... But if we have left the world better than we found it, it is still better... If we have harmed no one, but have done something constructive... it is still better... But... if we have tried to destroy the good name or character of some one we are breeding death in our own bodies and in the sacred memory which should remain when we are gone... life is so short... so uncertain... that we often wonder why we should spend the precious hours that God has allotted us in cursing our competitors or those who might oppose us... instead of leaving them and their faults to the condemnation of others and spending our time, not in telling others how smart we are but trying to actually do something in the world worthwhile so that those who live on will be glad of the heritage we left for them to build on to... If we have labored well, our friends who are not dumb than we, will know it without our telling them... so life is so short, why worry about the other fellow and his mistakes, anyway?

And then in another place we CONTINUED ON PAGE TWO

PLANS MADE FOR MINSTREL TO AID LIONS

At a meeting last night of the heads of committees appointed by President E. L. Smith of the Lions club, it was decided to stage a minstrel show at the high school auditorium Thursday, Sept. 12, at 8 p. m., for the benefit of the Lions convention fund.

Admission charges will be: reserved seats, 45 cents; adult, 25 cents; and children 10 cents, no children tickets will be reserved. It was further decided that inasmuch as the funds were to go for a worthy cause, only actual performers would be admitted free. Mr. Moreno, of Eastland, who has staged a highly successful performance for his town, has been secured to direct this minstrel. Having a background of a very successful career as a performer of magic, Mr. Moreno will bring this added attraction in connection with his other talent, a fact that should make this a treat worthy of the attendance of every man, woman and child in Cisco.

Texan Tells of Being Beaten by Gangsters

KANSAS CITY POLICE SAID IN ON RACKET

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Aug. 22 — Joe Steph, 30-year-old oil field tank builder, claimed today that he and three companions were arrested, beaten, and robbed of their car at Kansas City after they won a small sum by playing road house slot machines there.

Steph blamed gangsters for the attack. The men apparently mistook him and his friends for rival gangsters of Chicago, he said. He said before they were picked up in the roadhouse by two constables. They were taken to Independence and questioned for over an hour and released. The constables drove them back to the road house and let them out, saying "well, boys, here you are."

"I thought at first that he was talking to us, but I looked around and saw about 15 men waiting outside the roadhouse. The constables drove away."

Kids Wear Smiles, Papas Whiskers As Water Is Shut Off

Cisco youngsters this morning were wearing bright smiles on their faces, while their papas were wearing a frown and an extra-heavy crop of whiskers.

The reason, it was discovered, was that the youngsters did not have to wash their faces, while the papas were unable to have their whiskers before breakfast. There was no running water for either.

The city was without water this morning, following a break last night in a water main between Lake Cisco and the city. The water department was at work most of the night and still at it this morning.

The break was said to have occurred on the hill south of Lake Cisco, near the spot where another break interrupted the service recently.

While the break was being repaired, the city was switched to Lake Bernie for water, and everything went well until a mishap caused the power there to be shut off, bringing about the smile on the youngster's faces and the whiskers on those of their papas.

The city promised this morning that the murky water coming would soon give way to the usual clear water which patrons receive.

SCHOOL BUSES SEEN AS GREAT AID TO CITY

The installation of two school bus routes to bring in high school pupils of eight outlying districts today was viewed as a forward move on the part of the school board.

It was pointed out that the fact that pupils are coming in to Cisco to attend high school will bring their parents here to trade. A school board spokesman said that business men would probably reap a great benefit from the increase in enrollment, and urged merchants here to get acquainted with the families of the districts now served.

Contracts for two International buses were awarded to Grist Hardware company yesterday. The buses, one and a half ton chassis with all steel bodies, will have every safety device, including shatterproof glass and a safety door at the rear. They will have a capacity of 50 persons each and will be equipped with cross-center section seats.

Presbyterians To Have Annual Picnic

Members of the First Presbyterian church will enjoy their annual picnic tomorrow afternoon. Those expecting to go on the picnic are urged to be at the church at 4 o'clock. From there they will go to the Lake for a swim returning to the Lion-Rotary park for a picnic lunch at 6:30.

Texas To Wage War On Bookie Shops

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Aug. 22 — Texas will wage relentless war against the bookie shops until they are closed, Governor Allred said here today.

The governor stopped for a few minutes enroute to Weatherford where he is at an old settlers' reunion.

"Continued arrests and prosecution will close the shops. They can't stand the continued expense of making bond and attorneys' fees," the governor said.

Allred Is Offered Peek At Nudists

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 22 — A free peek at nudists when at the California exposition was offered to Governor James Allred today to "see for himself that we are just leaving the clean healthful life that nature intended."

Zorine, nudist queen, was unperturbed by Allred's statement that the nudists would have to wear more than a Texas sun tan if they intended to visit or establish headquarters at the Dallas Centennial exposition.

SICK MAN IS IDENTIFIED AS POKER SLAYER

DALLAS, Aug. 22. — Top ill to be removed from a hospital to a jail, Fred Batson, 26, Cleburne, was identified today by two witnesses as one of three men who held up a poker game which ended in the killing of Robert Williams.

Batson was suffering from pneumonia, believed to have been contracted while sleeping in the woods evading officers. He was arrested last night in his mother's home in Cleburne.

The Cleburne youth was charged with murder. Also charged were Buck Terry, 19, and Jack Terry, 23, brothers of Fort Worth. They were remanded to jail without bond after a brief examining trial.

Batson's arrest came after Deputy Sheriff Bill Decker and Deputy Ted Hinton had trailed him 10 days. Hospital attendants said his condition was not serious. Permission to move him to Dallas was granted by Batson's own physician and from the Johnson health officer.

George Swor, one of the poker players and George Threadgill, Dallas, another player, identified Batson as the third member of the party which obtained $30 from the game and searched Williams after he was shot.

Italian Consul Is Accidentally Shot

By United Press
ADIS ABABA, Aug. 22 — Noble Falconi, Italian consul at a small town near here, accidentally shot himself today while hunting, the Italian embassy reported officially. The consul was said to be out of danger.

The report cleared up definitely that the consul had not been shot in a brush with Ethiopia.

THOUSANDS IN LINES FILE BY HIS CASKET

By United Press
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22. — Will Rogers, always expressed the wish that his body should not be viewed after death and that was the reason his coffin was closed as he lay in state, prior to his funeral today, a spokesman for the Rogers family explained.

By United Press
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22. — The "common folks" who regarded Will Rogers as one of them, paid their last respects to him today in a gigantic but orderly demonstration. At the rate of 15,000 an hour they marched through Forest Lawn Memorial park where his funeral services were to be held late in the afternoon to get a glimpse of the plain bronze coffin in which the humorist's body lay in state.

A hot sun beat down on the procession. The marchers had to stand in line for hours. They were denied a last look at the actor but there was no grumbling.

Toward the coffin, blocked by decision of the widow these "middle class" admirers tossed touching if humble offerings.

"From Omar to Bill in passing through" read a note attached to a coiled lariat and a bunch of flowers thrown from the procession by an unidentified man with a weather-beaten face.

From the crowd, prodded along two abreast, were flung faded looking flowers picked from backyard gardens.

Here and there a man wept openly or a woman put a handkerchief to her eyes but there were few emotional demonstrations.

POST'S BODY LIES IN OKLAHOMA CAPITOL

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 22. — The body of Wiley Post today lay in state at the state capitol. Tonight it will be laid away in a mausoleum for possible burial in Arlington National cemetery.

Thousands passed the massive bronze casket for a final view of the aviator who rose from lowly surroundings to become world famous and termed by man, "the greatest flier of all."

The casket rested between two pillars on the second floor of the capitol. Beside it stood a military guard of honor with 50 men.

Shortly before noon, Gov. E. W. Marland and other officials met in a group and went to view the body. The governor's address later and the funeral services at the First Baptist church this afternoon were to be broadcast locally.

BRITAIN PUTS OFF ACTION ON ITALIAN WAR

By United Press
LONDON, Aug. 22. — The British cabinet, in an anxious special session, decided today to withhold any punitive action in Italy, pending renewed international efforts to avert war in Ethiopia.

It was learned reliably that there is no reason to expect a change in the date for the League of Nations council meeting set for Sept. 4 or that of the assembly on Sept. 9 when the small nations will have their say.

The cabinet appeared determined to maintain its cooperation with France. After Capt. Anthony Eden delivered a report on the breakdown of the recent British-French-Italian conference, the cabinet delved at length into the whole Ethiopian controversy.

COTTON PUTS GOVT HEADS ON HOT SPOT

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22. — Cotton put the administration on the political hot spot today in New England and the south.

Democrats and republicans from the industrial northeast grumbled against the cabinet cotton textile's committee report, endorsing the processing tax against which mill owners are rebelling.

A protest vote against that tax was a factor this month in making Rhode Island's first district republican in a by-election test of political strength which revealed the New Deal to be weakening in New England.

Southern planters and their representatives found comfort in the processing tax endorsement. Cotton states officials also promised the government will continue its policy of lending to cotton farmers at the rate of 12 cents, although the market hovers now around 11 cents.

Go to the Polls Saturday

Voters of Cisco and of Texas Saturday will be faced with making choices on seven issues, which are submitted to them for ratification as amendments to the state constitution.

All are important issues, although not all of them should be passed. Tomorrow's Daily News will give a brief resume of each resolution.

This year, for the first time, the amendments are numbered and will appear on all ballots in the state in the same order. Following are the seven amendments, according to number.

- 1 — Providing for old age pensions.
- 2 — Temporary commitment of insane preliminary to trial by jury.
- 3 — Repeal of state prohibition.
- 4 — Submission of amendments at special sessions of the state legislature.
- 5 — Suspended sentence authority of the courts.
- 6 — Abolishing fee system of pay for public officials.
- 7 — Providing free text books in private and parochial schools.

The important thing, just now, is to get a representative vote of the people. An amendment election does not ordinarily bring out as heavy balloting as that of public officials, although it is perhaps more important. It is imperative that the people, rather than a small group of interested parties, go to the polls Saturday. It will be well, also, for each voter to familiarize himself with the issues upon which he is to decide.

Cutting the Roots of Evil

Governor Allred is showing Texas that he knows how to attack evil in a way to destroy it. His injunction fight on the sources of information used by operators of illegal bookie shops is a case in point.

The surest way to destroy a tree is to sever its roots. If, as and when the governor can cut all communications between race tracks and illegal bookie shops one of the greatest schemes for trimming the sucker public will have been abolished.

The governor might have had in mind, though he probably didn't the famous saying by the late lamented Will Rogers: "Money, horse racing and women are three things that the boys just can't figure out."

No one knows the truth of that statement any better than the gentry who have operated bookie shops illegally and with enormous profit from those who can least afford to stand the losses suffered daily. Right thinking people all concede the righteousness of the governor's war on bookies. More power to him and all public officials who fearlessly join him in doing their duty.

Freedom for Men

The young New Yorker who compelled the managers of a big office, building to have him arrested, rather than submit to their rule that he could not ride in their elevators on a hot day without his coat, ought to endear himself to a great many perspiring American males.

Men have a great deal of fun criticizing the foibles of feminine fashions; yet women, after all, do have sense enough to wear cool clothing in the summer time, while men continue supinely to put up with the rule which says that a

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The tax bill is about as popular as a can of sour milk at a picnic. Your correspondent cannot find anyone who is even mildly enthusiastic over any tax program which is likely to emerge out of this Congress.

Nevertheless, President Roosevelt, despite all the horrible mismanagement of the program, remains relatively serene, and the chief secret of his serenity is this:

Roosevelt has high hopes of going into the election next year with a balanced budget.

As soon as the derisive laughter has subsided, your correspondent will proceed to admit that such hopes are not shared by everybody in the administration. But the president has a very distinct idea that business is going to pick up very rapidly, that the national income will go booming, that unemployment and its costs will be materially reduced, and that the yield from current tax rates plus those of the new schedule—which would bring in less than $300,000,000 additional revenue, under last year's conditions—will produce a Treasury status to which he can point with pride.

The idea is that as corporation and individual incomes begin to rise, a geometrically enlarging proportion of the increase will be scooped off in taxes.

BUT it is still worth remembering that revenue was only incidental in Roosevelt's mind when he called for "soak-the-rich" tax legislation from a startled Congress. He was primarily interested in establishing a social principle and hurling a defiant brick at the "big fellows" who had been attacking him savagely.

By failing to meet progressive demands—and the desire of many in his administration—for a comprehensive program biting deeper, Roosevelt avoided widespread accusations that he was burdening business—as well as the bad effects of whatever there may be in that contention.

AN embarrassment of riches faces the administration as candidates over the country announce themselves against Democratic members of Congress who have opposed the New Deal.

For instance, five men have already decided to enter the Democratic congressional primary against George Huddleston of Alabama, leader of the fight against the administration on the holding company bill. Already it begins to look as if the anti-Huddleston vote would be spread around sufficiently to let George walk back in.

Congressmen Josh Lee, Will Rogers, and Wesley Disney of Oklahoma are all openly coveting the seat of Senator Tom Gore and other entries are likely.

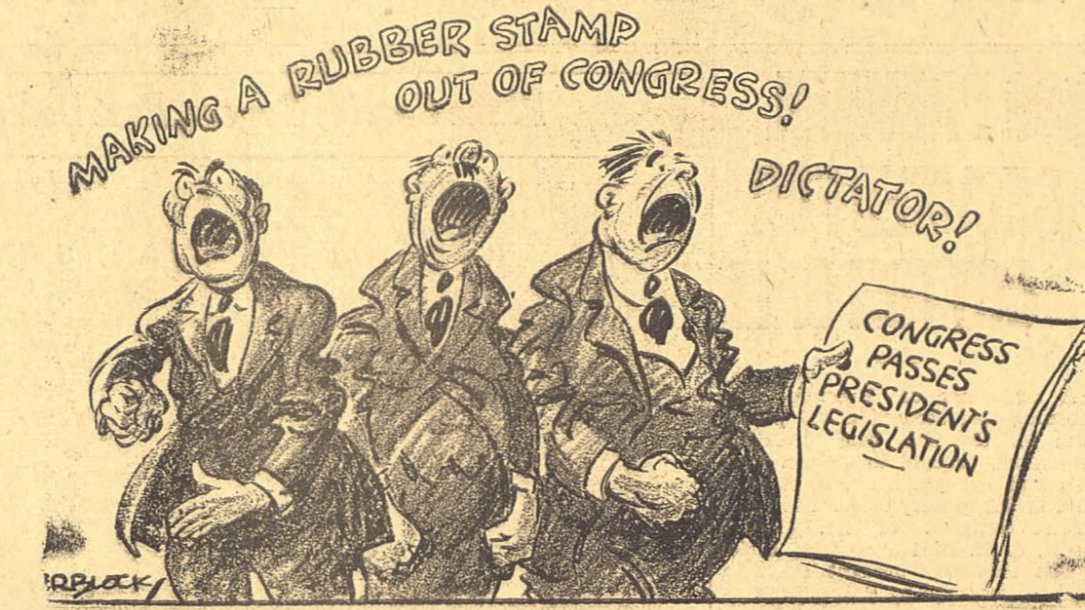

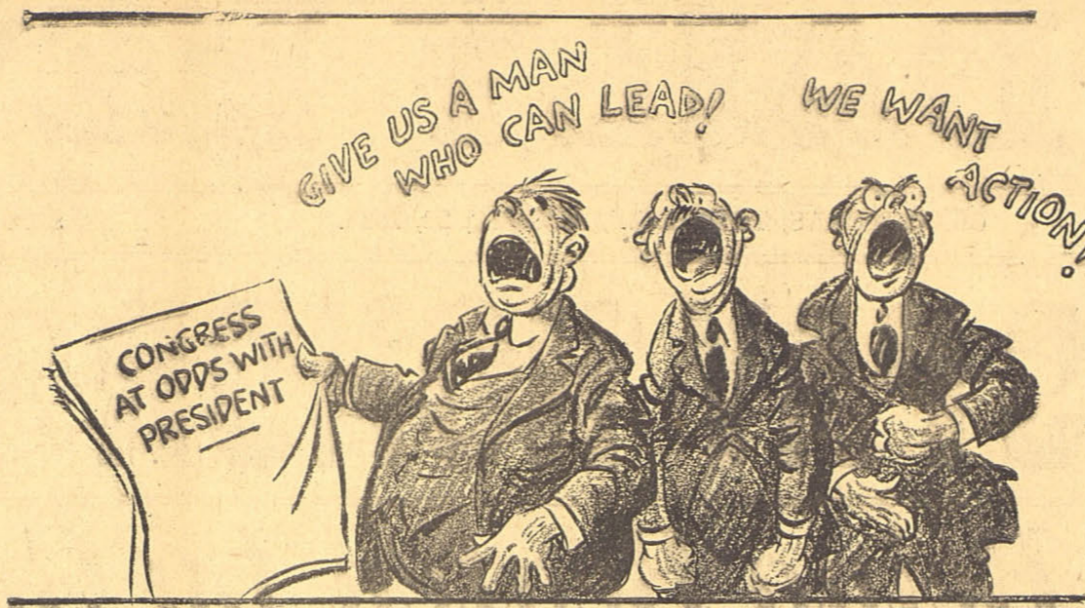

Reports of the candidacy of Rogers, who got to Congress because voters thought they recognized a familiar name, caused an unbelieving but amused newspaperman to ask Rogers:

"Why don't you stop all these silly rumors about your running for the Senate?"

"That's no rumor," Rogers replied. "Ever since I got here I've considered this a training school for the Senate."

Two Views on the President man is not properly clothed, even on the most sweltering day, unless he has a coat on.

If women can go about their business on a torrid day with nothing between their bodies and the great outdoors but a few ounces of thin cloth, it ought to be possible for men to be presentable in their shirt sleeves. This young New Yorker seems to have struck a blow in a good cause.

New Era in Gambling

This depression has more peculiar angles than you can shake a stick at, and one of the most peculiar seems to be provided by the new craze for gambling.

Thus we learn that race-track betting in such a representative state as Massachusetts recently attained an all-time high, with 90,000 patrons of three Bay State tracks wagering the amazing total of $956,343 in a single day.

This summer, an unofficial tabulation shows that New England bettors have put up approximately $30,000,000 at various New England tracks.

This flood of money to the race tracks is a hard blow to understand. The depression is not over—not by many millions in relief expenditures. Yet someone, somewhere is more able to bet on the dogs and horses than ever before. What's the answer, anyhow?

CISCO MAN HEADS COUNTY ADULT TEACHERS ATTENDING COLLEGE

A report has been made on the Adult Education Teachers who are attending classes at Texas Tech. Mrs. M. D. Bailey wrote the following letter to the Cisco Daily News:

The teachers of Adult Education now attending the teacher training classes in Texas Tech met and organized the Eastland county club with Lee Humphreys as president. J. F. Connell of Ranger, vice president and Mrs. M. D. Bailey, secretary.

The club is composed of all teachers in Eastland county. They meet three days each week with an instructor to study ways and means of meeting the needs of Adult Education in Eastland county. Each teacher from our county is doing his best to benefit from the subjects taught so as to convey to the public that which he has learned.

The morale of the group is good despite the fact that most of the teachers represented had to leave their families and break away from the routine of home life to spend thirty days in dormitories attending classes from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Among the best instructors in the state are teaching at Texas Tech during this session.

Teachers from Eastland county present are: Frank Fleming, Pioneer; Miss Elizabeth Speegle, Dan Horn; Mrs. Ruby Ezzell, Atwell; Mrs. Mable Patterson and Mrs.

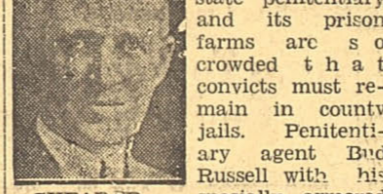

Blanch McGaughy, Rising Star; J. F. Connell, Ranger; Roy Holliday, Ranger; Mrs. C. E. Rountree, Ranger. From Cisco are, Mesdames C. O. Pass, Essie Robart, Homer McDonald, L. M. UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
Unite Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Aug. 22 — Men are trying to get into the penitentiary now—as well as get out.

Numerous pleas for admittance have come to the governor's office.

All because the state penitentiary and its prison farms are so crowded that a convict must remain in county jails. Penitentiary agent Bud Russell with his specially armored vehicle makes regular trips but he is taking only negro prisoners on the long rides to Huntsville. There is no place for whites.

That convicts should want to get into the penitentiary may seem strange. They receive credit on their sentences while they are in jail, awaiting removal to the penitentiary, but still they want to go there.

Ed Clark, governor's secretary, is the guardian of the prison gates. Applications to pass in or go out reach his desk. Those who want out have their pleas referred to the Board of Pardons and Paroles. Those asking entry receive Clark's personal attention.

Jail prisoners send letters of request for transfer to the penitentiary. Then there are follow-ups from relatives and friends.

Clark finds that the chief reason the prisoners want to move from jail to penitentiary is the close confinement they undergo in jails. They prefer prison with its hard work to idleness in jail without fresh air and exercise.

Rheumatic twinges cause some of the requests for transfer to the penitentiary. Most of the jails are camp idleness in them soon stores up the poison that normally would be passed off, and rheumatic cases become acute. Some look forward to treatment in the prison hospitals.

Governor's clemencies are making room in the prisons for a rapid turnover of inmates, but not fast enough to admit all who are in additional clearing out is expected when the Board of Pardons and Paroles is transferred to Huntsville next month. It is expected the board can work faster there.

With the board's slower work now Gov. Allred is equaling the normal parol record of the Governors Ferguson, except for the days before the end of Mrs. Ferguson's term. Gov. Allred is issuing his paroles strictly on pardon board recommendations. If the board reports adversely, there is little hope.

Strings are kept on the prisoners after their release. Allred has no ambition to find that a convict he has released has later committed a murder, or has turned outlaw. The free men are paroled to sheriffs and chiefs of police, with instructions that they are to be returned the first time they stray again from narrow path.

Attorney General William McCraw, 39, keeps intact the state record for young heads of his legal department. Dan Moody, Robert Lee Bobbitt, James V. Allred, all, were attorney general before 40.

The General will be wearing many new neckties. It seemed like Christmas in his office after his birthday. Gifts were scattered over his desks with ribbon running to a toy airplane pendant from the chandelier. A huge watermelon was the centerpiece.

Celebration of his birthday was delayed because he had flown to Dallas and visited San Antonio. Mrs. McCraw has the same birthday anniversary, though she was born many years later than her husband. She spent the day in classes at the University of Texas where she is working for a degree.

A shoeless woman in the state capitol attracted second glances from many people. She walked about insensible of the interest she aroused, as she gazed at the portraits of governors and the battle scenes that hang upon state capitol walls. She was not shoeless from poverty. Apparently her shoes had been left in her automobile for comfort. She wore silk stockings. An out-of-state license was on her car.

It took exactly 511 pages, law-book size, to list and annotate the Texas laws on taxation. John T. Smith, tax author and former legislator, performed the task in an attempt to clarify the many puzzling questions about state taxes. He was assisted by Judge J. A. King, former state tax commissioner and by Lawrence Smoot, digester of state supreme court decisions. State Auditor Orville Carpenter also has made a recent state tax digest. It lists taxing agencies. It found nearly 9,000.

School's Records To Be Mechanical

AUSTIN, Aug. 22 — Robot like machines will make student records at the University of Texas from registration day to graduation. The machines, now being installed, will have their first trial at the University of Texas, first school in the world to install such equipment.

Heretofore a mixed system of tabulating machines and punch cards has been used to keep track of the progress of the nearly 7,000 students.

Beginning this fall the machines will do it all. Relentlessly they will check off absences, laboratory, library and auditor's rolls. In previous years 40 typists were employed to keep records. All will be done mechanically.

The equipment probably will be used 24 hours a day. Assistant Registrar Max Fichetbaum said, using three shifts of operators throughout the first week of the new college session.

At midyear the machines will turn out the student's semester report, addressed to his parent or guardian.

Cemetery Is Opened For Burial of Pets

READING, Pa., Aug. 22 — The love of man for his dog is represented in a new cemetery established near here.

Dr. Earle E. Romberger, of the Reading Veterinary Hospital, had a "cemetery" on the Philadelphia pike for many years, but found that it was inadequate. Another tract was obtained.

The bodies of more than 400 dogs, cats, a canary and a duck buried in the original cemetery were disinterred and moved to the new plot. Headstones for the most part are uniform in size and arranged in neat rows. A few owners purchased fairly large stones. Each has the pet's name, year of birth and death.

YOUNG TELLS HIS REASONS FOR REPEAL

AUSTIN, Aug. 22. — Appealing to Texas voters to cast their ballots for repeal of statewide prohibition next Saturday, Representative J. D. Young of Cuero, chairman of the liquor traffic committee of the Texas house, Tuesday night enumerated the reasons why he believes Texas should erase constitutional prohibition from its statutes. His address made here was broadcast over Station KNOW.

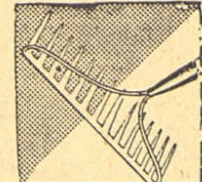

"I am asking you to act in recognition of facts known to every well informed citizen of this state," he said. "Texas is wet. That fact has been officially recognized by state agencies in their reports on law enforcement and by the United States government in the issuance of thousands of tax receipts paid by Texas liquor dealers."

Representative Young said the issue was whether Texas would by strict regulation confine the sale of hard liquor to those sections where public sentiment is in favor of allowing the sale of alcoholic beverages. "In voting repeal," he said, "we will consign the open saloon and the speakeasy to common oblivion; we will take the business of supplying the demand for alcoholic beverages out of the hands of the law breakers and give it into the hands of law-abiding, tax paying citizens operating only in wet communities. We will increase the state's revenue by $10,000,000 annually and thereby take a grievous load from the shoulders of all classes of our people paying existing taxes."

As proof that prohibition can not be enforced, Representative Young recalled the time when Texas even resorted to martial law to enforce the dry laws and failed even with the assistance of local authorities, federal agents and state rangers. After thousands were killed and millions of dollars spent in futile enforcement efforts, many sincere prohibitionists joined with realists to vote national prohibition out of the constitution, he said.

"Believing that every fair-minded person will admit that prohibition has failed and has developed into a shameful disgrace and a mockery, I am asking the citizens of Texas to vote for repeal. Give us a chance to try our method. Those who want control and to regulate and tax liquor should vote for repeal. Those who believe in state rights and local self government and prohibiting the open saloon should also vote for repeal," he said.

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY JO DARREN breaks her engagement to BRETT PAUL, college athlete star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Great Lakes Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Brett arrives as life guard. Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attentions and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLA MONTEZ, film actress. Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and files there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where she cannot find her. Lola Montez offers to help Jo find a job. SILAS DRANN, the director, asks Jo to come to the studio for a screen test. She goes. When Lola bears of this she warns Jo not to rely on Drann's promises. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XL

NEXT morning Lolita appeared bright and early, stopping on her way to the studio. But she had to decline Jo's invitation to come into the upstairs room and finish their discussion of Drann and his screen test.

"I'd like to talk to you about a number of things," Lolita told Jo, "but I've plenty on the schedule today. And I'll talk to you later about that sandwich shop." She reached into her bag and drew forth a letter. "Here... I just dropped by to deliver this. I never dreamed I'd be cast in the role of Cupid!"

Jo took the letter and glanced at the handwriting. It was from Bret, and addressed to Jo "in care of Miss Lolita Montez, Atlas Pictures Corporation, Hollywood."

"Thanks so much," Jo said. "I'm afraid I'm being a terrible nuisance to you." "Forget it," the actress advised lightly. "Have to run now... I'll see you later."

The moment she had said goodbye to Lolita, Jo turned back into her room and shut the door. Then she glanced again at the familiar, sprawling handwriting of Bret Paul—the handwriting she remembered so well on notes and themes and book covers, from their days together at the University. She had thrilled once over those heavy, masculine pen-strokes, but now she was curiously calm about them.

She opened the letter and read: "Dear Jo—I don't know whether this will reach you, but I'm taking the chance and sending it in care of Lolita Montez at the Atlas studio. I haven't any idea why you left Crest Lake—whether it was because you are in love with Fragonet or for some other reason. But Bubby wrote me that later that it was I who yanked you out of the lake that day. It wasn't much of a stunt, I'll admit, but it did hurt a little when you never mentioned it. But now I know why."

"I'm leaving here soon, for Marsh is talking about closing the place for the season. I hear that he and Babs are to be married, and perhaps that's the reason for all the rush to close. But I don't mind, for I've made more money here than I would have at Placid Beach."

"Why shouldn't I come to Hollywood, Jo? Remember the two weeks we planned for Placid Beach? Why couldn't we spend them together in Hollywood?

You see, I can't believe you'll really go for Fragonet. And I still love you, Jo. I suppose I always will—Bret."

BELOW his signature was a hasty postscript which made Jo smile. "When Drann was here he told me I ought to get something in the studios in Hollywood."

She found that postscript more than amusing. It was so filled with masculine ego; and when compared with the rest of the letter it was so irrelevantly concerned with Bret Paul in Hollywood—and not Jo Darren. Slowly Jo read the letter again, trying to determine what there was about it that alienated her. The words were right, but something was gone—something that should have been there if he really loved her as he said. "Why shouldn't I come to Hollywood, Jo? Remember the two weeks we planned for Placid Beach? There was something cold and calculating, something almost repulsive to Jo in those two short questions."

But she put the letter carefully into the top drawer of the bureau, telling herself that, after all, she had given Bret little cause to write a revealing letter. And he had never been romantic with words ("like Fragonet," she thought). Perhaps she had no right to doubt this one letter which had reached her in Hollywood.

About all Bret's letter did was to remind Jo again, this time with effect, that she must write her parents. She sat down now and wrote the long overdue letter, being rather vague about why and how she had left Crest Lake, and fibbing a little about her prospects in the City of Cinema. It was not until she had finished this letter that she framed a note to Bret. The answer was more difficult than she'd imagined. She tore up five or six beginnings which had led her into saying things she did not really want to say. At last she wrote only half a dozen lines. They were lines telling him that she appreciated his kindness and his interest, but saying nothing about his professed love and suggesting gently that there was no need for him to come to Hollywood on her account.

"I really don't know whether I'll stay here much longer," she wrote, "so perhaps it will have to be some summer at Placid Beach, after all—if it's going to be anywhere."

SHE was thinking of Dila Saunders when she wrote that last—a brightly blond Dila Saunders in the arms of a too eager Bret Paul. Hurriedly Jo folded the note paper into its envelope, dampened the flap and sealed the answer with a definitely punctuating blow from her small fist.

Remembering a letter-box at the corner, Jo took the two missives immediately and dropped them into the clattering green slot. Returning to the little stucco bungalow she saw Drann's roadster draw alongside the curb. The director hopped out rather breathlessly and raised his hat.

"I've some news for you, Miss Darren," he told her. "Surely not about the screen test?" Jo's voice was carefully cool. He nodded vigorously. "Yes... about the test. It's an excellent one."

"I'm glad you think so," Jo said, quietly incredulous.

"Not only do I think so," Drann assured her, "but Boleson saw it, too—and he is tremendously excited about your possibilities."

"Boleson?" repeated Jo. "The chief," Drann assured her. "And several of the production heads had a look at it, too."

Despite her resolve to keep her hopes in hand, Jo felt her blood warming with triumph. Then Lolita had been wrong in her suspicions!

"Boleson will want to see another one," Drann went on. "He's definitely interested and you are sure of a minor contract in any event. But I want you to have a test taken which displays a little more versatility. I'll get you some real dialogue to speak with another person." He stopped, gave her that disturbing smile of his. "You see, I want you to go over big, Jo Darren!"

Jo was chiding herself for her doubt. "I—how can I thank you enough?"

"Thank me?" said Drann. "You will repay me a hundredfold if you have become a great star." He reached out for the door of his car. "I am late already at the studio, but I had to tell you in person about this. And," his voice lowered, "one word of caution. It isn't wise to say much about these matters until the contract is signed and sealed." He smiled confidentially. "The jealousies of Hollywood, you know!"

JO nodded, watching the big roadster move away and into the traffic. For a moment or two she was rooted to the pavement, her mind torn with conflicting thoughts. It couldn't be true—it couldn't be so easy. And yet... Drann had said it was true; he had shown her the test film to Boleson and the production chiefs, and they hadn't turned thumbs down.

Drann had said she should tell no one, but Jo knew she should let Lolita into the secret. There could be no possible harm in letting the actress know, and Jo felt she owed it to Montez for all her kindness. Besides, there was the possible chance Drann was not telling the truth. Perhaps, Jo cautioned herself, that was why he suggested secrecy.

But before the morning was much older Jo received a telephone call from the Atlas studio. A woman's voice, carefully modulated, said, "This is Mr. Boleson's office at Atlas. Is this Miss Darren?"

"Yes," Jo's voice was trembling. "One moment, please. Mr. Boleson wishes to talk with you."

Jo wondered if she would be able to speak at all when Boleson took the wire. In a panic, she was tempted to test her voice; then suddenly she heard a deep masculine, "Miss Jo Darren?"

"Yes." "Miss Darren, I am very anxious to talk with you. Could you possibly come to my office at 3 this afternoon?"

"Good! At 3, then. It's very kind of you, Miss Darren. Good by."

Some experts said sodium-vapor lights were advisable because they don't glare and are economical. California is reported to have experienced success with them in high illumination.

Victims of Alaskan Crash and Families Shown

As a boy in Kemper Military Academy, Will Rogers (top) showed traces of the humorous smile that later was to bring him to high fame in the theater. The dryly-humorous commentator with the exciting lasso is shown in the lower picture—Will Rogers as he looked in the Follies of 1922.

Devoted always to his family, Will Rogers' wife and children returned that devotion in full measure. At top is the prostrated Mrs. Rogers who was the humorist's constant companion. His two sons, Will, Jr., shown in the lower picture—center, while below is daughter Mary, who inherits stage talent.

The infectious, boyish and genuine smile that made Will Rogers popular not only among audiences of stage, screen and newspapers, but also endeared him to all who knew him as a gentle, kindly and lovable friend. This smile graced not only his stage and screen characters, but his own life.
