Brownwood Won 1924 Convention of West Texas Chamber of Commerce—Cisco Man Is One of Vice Presidents

The greatest convention in the history of the West Texas chamber of commerce came to an end Wednesday night. According to Mayor Yaney, of San Angelo, the big meeting drew upwards of 13,000 visitors to San Angelo.

The contest for the next meeting was spirited indeed, but Brownwood finally won out over plucky Mineral Wells, although the latter city was a strong contender at the finish.

Postmaster R. A. St. John, who arrived home from San Angelo Wednesday, stated he had been present at a great many conventions during the past twenty years, but enjoyed the trip to San Angelo more than any similar jaunt in his recollection. The enthusiasm of the great throng was beyond description and the hospitality and good fellowship of the San Angelo people unbounded.

A. B. Spencer, of Crosbyton, was re-elected president, while the following were named vice presidents: W. D. Cline, Wichita Falls; Carl Guinn, Ballinger; Dr. P. C. Coleman, Colorado; R. Q. Lee, Cisco; Houston Harte, San Angelo; Leon Shields, Coleman; Dallas Scarborough, Abilene; M. E. Rosser, Snyder; F. W. Greber, Brownwood; W. J. Posey, Lubbock.

Among the important resolutions adopted by the body before its adjournment was the following concerning taxation:

"We believe in the doctrine that all taxes should be provided by the constitution of the state. We also insist upon the collection of delinquent taxes that have for so long been upon the tax rolls of the several counties of the state and are firm in the conviction that with proper equalization of taxes and adequate provision for the collection of taxes now delinquent and due to the state the financial difficulties of the state will be minimized."

DANIELS-TUNNELL

The reception given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Daniels last Thursday honoring Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Crawford, and culminating in the wedding of Miss Venita Daniels and B. A. Tunnell, was one of the most beautiful social affairs of the season.

The porch was a flower garden scene, with ferns, vines, pink and white sweet peas and hanging baskets everywhere. The lights were all shaded with baskets of cut flowers and from these were twined white ribbons to the big columns.

The guests were met in the garden by Mrs. R. L. Bettis, who introduced them to Mrs. Daniels and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford. Mrs. A. C. Green escorted the guests into the house, where Miss Maybelle Daniels received them and presented them to Mrs. T. J. Dean, who was hostess over the living room, and introduced them to Miss Venita and Mrs. J. S. Tunnell and out-of-town guests, Mrs. G. L. Rice, of Strawn; Mrs. R. H. Bruce, of Valley Mills; Mrs. J. S. McDowell, of Ranger; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Tunnell, of Dallas; Mrs. John West of Breckenridge; Mr. and Mrs. Will Craddock, of Parks, and Mrs. W. H. Bowling, of Springfield, Ky. It was at this point that the guests began to wonder what was going to take place, there being so many out-of-town guests present. Mrs. Connie Davis introduced the guests to Mrs. Ralph St. John, who was in charge of the coat room and then Mrs. K. H. Pittard, in her gracious way, invited them into the dining room where they were received by Mrs. J. H. Brice. The light which hung over the table in the dining room was a hanging basket of ferns and sweet peas with white ribbons flowing to the four corners of the table, where they were tied in big bows to the handles of cut glass baskets filled with white roses. In the center of the table was the bride's cake, covered with vines and sweet peas (which was soon to be revealed). At the ends of the table sat Mrs. C. H. Fleming and Mrs. Lloyd Winston, who served pink and white brick cream and cake. On each plate was a miniature bride which again caused everyone to feel that this was more than an ordinary reception.

Misses Mary Fee, Lucile McCrea, Zenie McDonald, Bess Shelton and Mrs. Miller, dressed in beautiful evening gowns, assisted in the dining room.

Mrs. Gene Bell ushered the guests to the music room, where Mrs. Guy Dabney was hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ben McClinton and Miss Irene White. The only decorations in this room were baskets of roses, the fragrance of which filled the house.

Mrs. A. D. Anderson and Mrs. Bill McDonald invited the guests to the punch bowl, where Mrs. Glenn D'Spain welcomed them and presented them to Misses Addie Fee, Louise Snoddy, Lorena Smith and Lucille Bedford, to be served. Opposite the punch bowl, on the other side of the porch P. L. Kelly and assistants furnished music, which was rendered most beautifully.

At 9:15 o'clock Miss Irene White, one of Cisco's most talented and charming young ladies, gave a reading, at which time the bride stole upstairs to prepare for that which most everyone by this time was expecting.

Next to appear was the bridal party. Mrs. Ben McClinton, accompanied by Mrs. Dell King, sang "Because I Love You," at which time silence fell upon the crowd. Mrs. Fleet Shepard broke the silence with the familiar strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Master Robert Bruce, nephew of the groom, dressed in white and carrying a pink rose with the platinum band in center, was first to be seen of the white carpeted stairway which was bedecked with trailing vines and sweet peas. He slowly descended while behind him came the two little flower girls, little Misses Dorothy Mae Dean of Wichita Falls, and Zona Miller of Cisco. The fairy-like children were dressed in lace and hand-embroidered organdie dresses. Little Zona came first, carrying a blue basket tied with a big moline bow and strewn with pink and white rose petals, while a few steps behind her followed little Dorothy Mae with a pink basket tied with moline and strewn with white rose petals for the bride, who followed.

The bride wore a magnificent white taffeta and lace dress over georgette and a long white tulle veil caught with orange blossom and pearls and carrying a large shower bouquet of bride's roses and fern. At the foot of the stairway she was met by the groom who escorted her to the flower garden, where a most impressive ceremony was given to the sweet music of the "Flower Song." Rev. J. E. Crawford, of Fort Worth, officiated. After congratulations were extended the young people went to the dining room, where the hidden cake was revealed, and their fate was to be told. Miss Lucile McCrea got the ring and Miss Lorena Smith cut the tumbler. Much merriment was found in cutting the cake. On leaving the dining room the bride tossed her bouquet, which fell in the hands of Miss Zenie McDonald, who gracefully divided it with her girl friends.

Late in the evening the bride slipped away to make ready for their departure. She wore an elegant suit of navy blue with beige accessories. The bride's gifts to her attendants were hand-made handkerchiefs. The little flower girls received bracelets and Robert Bruce a signet ring. Mr. and Mrs. Tunnell left that night for a two week's honeymoon in New Orleans.

The bride is the charming and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Daniels, one of the oldest families of this city. Mr. Tunnell is Cisco agent for the T. & P. railroad and is well known in business and social circles.

Judge and Jurors Busy Wednesday in Grinding Out Justice to Locals

Wednesday was a busy day in City Judge Williamson's court and three cases, all tried by jury, were disposed of. The first was that of Newt Mahaney, who persists in operating a service car without securing the customary license. The city, in fact, refuses to issue a license to Mahaney, but he operates anyhow, and ever so often is tried and fined. Mahaney, in spite of the efforts of an eloquent attorney, drew $5 and costs Wednesday, the costs amounting to about $15.

Ross Marchman faced a jury on the same charge and was assessed $10 and costs. Mr. Marchman seems to have taken the position that if Mahaney can operate without a license he, Marchman, should be permitted to do the same. The jury did not agree with him.

The third case was that of Miss Winnie Brooks, who was tried before a jury some weeks ago, the jurors being unable to agree. Miss Brooks, while driving an automobile, was unfortunate enough to collide with a car driven by Earl Ohnston. Wednesday's jury placed the blame on the young lady and she was fined $10 and costs.

INCOME BILL DEFEATED

AUSTIN, May 23.—By a vote of 64 to 50 the house late Wednesday voted to indefinitely postpone the Dinkle income tax bill. A motion to "reconsider and table" was adopted 57 to 54, thus practically killing the bill for the session. Action followed an all-day debate, in which the bill was attacked and defended at length.

Luther Parks, oil man and stock raiser of Putnam, was in Cisco Saturday.

SIX KILLED; TWELVE INJURED IN RAILWAY WRECK AT DOTHAN

A terrible head-on collision of two passenger trains occurred at Dothan, 7 miles west of Cisco, this morning at about 2:30 o'clock.

It seems that eastbound train, No. 16 was on the switch, awaiting the passing of the westbound No. 15. The switch, however, was locked and turned the westbound train headlong into the slowly moving eastbound. Both trains were wrecked, being set on fire and three baggage cars were totally burned. Six young men were killed, and a negro porter from the eastbound train who was waiting to throw the switch was run over and killed.

Two of the men killed were E. C. Reynolds, of Fort Worth, who wore a California chauffeur's badge, and E. A. Stewart of 911 Allen avenue, Ft. Worth. Both young men were reported to be riding blind baggage. Two other boys, who were burned after being killed, had gotten on at Eastland and were also beating their way. Their bodies were so badly burned that there was no way of identifying either of them. They had talked with some of the train crew and hence were known to have boarded the train at that place.

Young Stewart lived some time after being crushed, and was tenderly cared for by Mrs. Richardson, sister of Mrs. J. H. McDonald of Cisco, and an unknown lady, who was on the train at the time of the wreck. A very beautiful story of mother love is this touching scene. It is said that this unknown lady was caressing and soothing the wounded youth when someone asked if it was her son. She replied that she did not know him, but that he was some poor mother's son. These good ladies remained with the dying boy to the last and his final words were to thank them for their kindness. They took the place of an absent mother.

The Cisco fire department was called upon to render assistance in putting out the blaze and recovering the burned bodies, which was willingly given. The mayor, doctors, nurses, undertakers, police and private citizens, all vied with each other in rendering any assistance possible to the wounded, which as near as can be ascertained, numbered twelve.

The wounded were later placed in a rescue train and sent to Fort Worth.

W. L. Simpson, engineer on the westbound train, had both arms broken; H. H. Bailey, engineer on the eastbound train had his right arm broken and was badly bruised.

Bob Edwards, of Fort Worth, had his leg cut off.

There was talk to the effect that the wreck was the result of the switch being tampered with and a young man, whose actions were suspicious, has been arrested and placed in the Cisco jail.

An American reporter talked to this man, who gave his name as Jack C. Smith, and got his side of the story concerning his actions. Smith said he was 21 years of age and his residence was 305 Rockwood street, Dallas. However, he was beating his way to Fort Worth from California, where he had been since last June. He left there about 8 days ago. He was standing on the steps of the slowly moving train when the crash came. He was thrown to the ground after being slightly bruised, and then got up and walked to the rear of the train. As he got near the rear pullman, a woman asked him what the trouble was. He replied that a head-on collision had occurred. He was seen to cross the right of way and head for Cisco. When asked by the reporter why he ran away, he shrugged his shoulders and replied that he figured that some one would be hurt and he did not like to view such scenes. Later he was picked up by the police as he was getting up out of the weeds, where he said he had been asleep. When the reporter asked him where his folks were he replied that his adopted mother, Mrs. L. R. Minifie, was in Los Angeles the last time he heard of her. When asked who lived at the address that he gave in Dallas, he said that the place had been rented out. He is being held for further questioning.

Charles Gray, a negro porter on the eastbound, who was killed, had a watch and $92 on his person. He was taken to the H. C. Wippen undertaking establishment.

It was a never-to-be-forgotten scene! The great pile of burning wreckage with the roasting bodies of the dead partly in view. One man with his head completely cut off and another with his foot severed and the foot being picked up from the wreckage. When the fire had been cooled sufficiently, the roasted fragments of three bodies were recovered by Fireman Floyd Shepard and other members of the Cisco department. These brave boys deserve special mention because of their being almost the first ones on the scene and for their faithful work after their arrival. We wish that we could mention every one of their names. Part of the backbone and shoulders of a poor boy was brought out of the burning debris, while the charred remains of another were visible, partly hanging from the mass of wreckage.

English Labor Party Threw Its Weight To Stanley Baldwin, Who Is Now Prime Minister of England Instead of Bonar Law

London, May 22.—The rise of the labor party to a commanding place in English politics is reflected in King George's selection of Stanley Baldwin as prime minister to succeed Bonar Law, resigned.

Premier Baldwin's principle opponent for the highest office under the crown was Lord Curzon, who, sitting in the house of lords, could not make the same direct appeal to labor that might be made by a member of the house of commons.

Lengthy discussions among the leaders of the Conservative party resulted in the decision that the prime minister must be a commoner, for with a peer as premier, the labor party would be denied an opportunity for advancing criticism directly to the head of the government.

It is believed that King George's decision Tuesday to make Baldwin premier was based partly upon knowledge that the labor party preferred Baldwin to Lord Curzon.

Labor's boast of "a labor cabinet in five years" has caused anxiety in high political circles, and it was considered that any step that might tend to suppress the party's voice would have disastrous effects.

That voice had already been heard, for when Lord Curzon was discussed as a possible premier a spokesman of the labor party had declared:

"The entire labor party would resent the appointment of a premier from the house of lords, an institution which is alien to democratic aspirations. If a peer should be appointed, members of the labor party would use every political device to precipitate the dissolution of parliament, necessitating a general election."

Events in the ministerial crisis moved rapidly Tuesday. At noon the king arrived at Buckingham Palace from Aldershot.

His majesty was soon after closeted with Lord Stamfordham, who for the last two days has been busy sounding out conservative opinion. Stamfordham told the king that conservatives had agreed on Baldwin, whereupon the latter was summoned to the palace and offered the premiership, which he accepted.

Lord Stamfordham meanwhile conferred with Lord Curzon, and it is presumed that at this talk the foreign minister finally reconciled himself to the sacrifice of his ambitions or the altar of democracy and agreed, it is understood, to support the new premier by remaining in his present post as foreign minister.

Threat of opposition to the new government came swift on the heels of the announcement of its formation when Lloyd George speaking at Llanfairfechan, commented on the ministerial change, declaring that while he had not opposed Bonar Law's cabinet both because of his personal friendship and the grave condition of world affairs, "the consideration extended Bonar Law will not necessarily be extended to the new government, which has no mandate from the people."

He declared that he felt no assurance regarding the future as Bonar Law's colleagues had not inspired him with confidence.

Doctors declared Tuesday that Ex-Premier Bonar Law's condition was "about the same," adding that he had passed a comfortable night. In a letter to Sir W. T. Russell, chairman of the Glasgow Central Unionist association, the Ex-Premier declared: "My decision to resign was a sudden one. I had hoped when I went away that there would be a sufficient degree of recovery to make it unnecessary, but I suffered continual pain, and returned in a really worse condition. The doctor's decision left me no choice."

Stark Urges Taxes Conference In Order To Get Wealth That Is Now Escaping--Net Deficit $8,819,902

Starkey Is Indicted By Grand Jury for Murder of Pet Brown—$7,500 Bond

The special grand jury summoned by Judge Davenport of the Ninety-first district court Friday afternoon returned an indictment against L. J. Starkey, charging him with murder of Pet Brown, well known Cisco man and contractor. Starkey, who had been out on a $5,000 bond since his preliminary hearing two weeks ago, again made bond, this time in the sum of $7,500.

His sureties are Messrs. J. J. Ray, E. A. Merritt, W. T. Rutherford, W. E. Bradshaw, J. J. Livingston, P. P. Barber and Dr. D. S. Rumph.

The grand jury was in session four days and investigated a number of matters other than the death of Pet Brown.

Starkey's trial has been set for June 27, in Judge Davenport's court, at Eastland.

The grand jury was again called together Friday morning, but so far as known nothing of special importance was done and the body recessed Wednesday afternoon.

Three bodies were known to be in the burning wreck, while a late rumor is to the effect that five bodies have been recovered. This has not been verified.

Williamson Says Lucher Stark's Taxation Plan Is Full of Sound Sense

The suggestion made by Lucher Stark, of Orange, to Texas legislators, that a state taxes conference be called and ways and means devised to get at the wealth that is escaping taxation in Texas, is unanimously concurred in by Mayor J. M. Williamson, of Cisco, who says this is the only sensible, equitable way to meet the big deficit at Austin, and at the same time maintain the state's forward march.

"It is likely that a great deal of money is being wasted by needless expenditures here and there, and of course this should be stopped," said the mayor, "but the fact remains that there is lots of constructive work yet to be done in this great state, and the fair way to provide the money for purposes of this kind is to equalize the cost by organized effort to place all property on the tax rolls. There will be just complaint and dissatisfaction on the part of the average taxpayer until this is done."

HOUSE UPHOLDS ACTION ON TECH. APPROPRIATION

AUSTIN, May 23.—The house Wednesday upheld the action of the committee which reported unfavorably the fields bill, which would repeal the $1,000,000 appropriation for the establishment of the Texas Technological college. Mr. Fields charged "that the committee was committed against the measure before it was sent to them and did not give it a fair and proper hearing." He asked unanimous consent to have the bill recommended to the education committee.

The house voted, 56 to 40, to refuse reconsideration and recommitment to another committee. A motion by Mr. Barmeister to reconsider and table, which would have killed the measure finally, lost by one vote, leaving it in position to be called up again by a two-thirds vote.

GREEKS MENACING CONSTANTINOPLE, May 23.—A Greek fleet is cruising about the entrance to the straits of the Dardanelles, and the Turkish government has formally called the attention of the British to the incident, lodging a protest against the presence of the Greek vessels. Reports from various activities on the part of the Greeks are causing much uneasiness in Constantinople.

BRYAN WINS HIS FIGHT FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 23.—William Jennings Bryan Tuesday won his fight for a demand that every Presbyterian minister, church official, church member and the faculties and students of the denominational schools sign a total abstinence pledge.

An effort to limit the pledge signing to church members and students was rejected by the general assembly.

FARMERS INVITED

The Hedpath-Hornier chautauqua will open its Cisco engagement next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The first number on the seven-day program will be "Is Farming a Business?" All farmers and their families will be admitted free of charge on this occasion and all are urged to take advantage of the invitation. Sunday week Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, will be a drawing card.

AUSTIN, May 23.—"I am in favor of the Texas legislature adjusting the taxes equitably and I am strongly in favor of paying the bills we have made for our state," declared Lucher Stark, chairman of the university of Texas board of regents and member of the Orange family of multi-millionaire family of lumbermen, in speaking with legislators. "The fact is," continued Mr. Stark, "the average citizen with a house and lot is taxed to the limit, while there are millions of dollars of wealth in this state which is paying too little or nothing at all. The tax on real property is too much and I do not blame the farmer, the real estate owner and the home owner for objecting to more taxes."

We have not been overgenerous in any direction. We do not stand foremost in education, in the care of our insane or in any of the things of government, therefore, I am strongly in favor of paying all the bills and adequately supporting our institutions of government in the future.

Legislature Has Power

"Texas does not need a constitutional amendment to enable the legislature to adjust the taxes. This legislature has sufficient power. I think an income tax is a fair measure, but I am not wedded to it. What I would like to see is a law that will get the wealth that is now escaping."

"This legislature might call a conference of representatives of leading business lines in Texas, such as bankers, railroads, manufacturers, wholesalers, merchants and all others, tell them the problem, that the state needs $45,000,000 and must have the taxes to meet the obligations. They might fuss at first and each declare he was paying his own share and the other fellow was not, but after they had been together awhile, with the understanding that unless they produced desired results they must stand the whole bill, they would eventually emerge with a fair tax scheme that would get everything equitably arranged, and one that they would stand behind to a man, instead of fighting, as they now do."

Net Deficit $8,819,902

AUSTIN, May 23.—State Tax Commissioner Willacy, collaborating with Representative Wallace of Freestone county, calculates that if all appropriations stand and no new revenue measures are enacted the net deficit in the general fund on August 31, 1925, will be $8,819,902. The state board of control thinks it will be even more.

Messrs. Willacy and Wallace estimate the general revenue for the two years at $33,100,000, out of which comes the August 31 next deficiency of $3,419,097, leaving net $29,680,903. The net appropriations for the two fiscal years being $39,756,907, the deficit on August 31, 1925, is fixed at $1,075,994, but because of the anticipated increase in the oil tax of $1,225,092 the net deficit is reduced to $8,819,902.

An analysis of the prospective oil tax increase estimates the average price of oil at $1.50 per barrel and that the output will be 100,000,000 barrels for a total valuation of $150,000,000. At 2 per cent, the newly adopted tax, this would yield $3,000,000 annually.

Of the production tax collected one-fourth goes to the school fund and three-fourths to the general fund.

ACTING HEAD TEXAS UNIVERSITY MAY BE NAMED SAYS REGENT

AUSTIN, May 23.—Lucher Stark, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Texas, said Wednesday that if the regents did not elect a president next Friday, which was hardly expected, they probably would name an acting president so as to fill the complement of the committee to locate the Texas Technological college.

Inspection of proffered sites is expected to begin some time in June and Mr. Stark believes the regents will designate an acting president to fill the place of Dr. Vinson, who retired as president of the university on June 30, and who can not make the inspection trip.

"It is considered likely that either Dr. Benedict of the College of Arts, or Dr. Butte of the law department, will be made acting president."

NEW TRACK RECORD INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 23.—Whizzing around the huge Indianapolis motor speedway oval at the rate of 106.4 miles an hour, Joe Boyer set a new lap record for the course. Stop-watches and official timers showed that he had made the two and a half mile course in 1:25.8. The previous record was made Sunday by Harry Hartz.

STARTING RIGHT IN HOG RAISING

(R. B. Rushing)

Despite his reputation as a debt exterminator and mortgage lifter, the hog is still a very much misunderstood animal, and often is abused and mistreated. In the hands of those who refuse to understand him, the hog feels the heat of the summer sun and the winter wind, and often he knows what it is to be hungry, thirsty and a prey to pests that make hog life a misery. Before fattening time, in such cases, he has too much or too little, depending on the prevalence of forage, and when fattening time comes he is often fed on one feed alone. Such a ration is unsatisfactory and expensive, and often the hog is compelled to overeat of this to provide heat for his body when frost falls on his unprotected and foul pen.

There are several little details of the business that must be carefully attended to if we are to get the best returns from the hog business. It is for this reason that it is always safer to start in the venture with only two or three sows, and later increase operations. We can give the smaller number of hogs better attention than a larger number and probably make as much from the few as the many. Certainly when we have learned the ropes and have got everything arranged so that we can care for a larger number of hogs with a very little extra trouble; in other words, when we have learned the efficiency secrets of the business, it will be time to extend the business, for there is no more profitable branch of farming than that of keeping hogs.

Eliminate Lice

One glaring example of the way some people refuse to understand the hog is that they believe that it is natural for hogs to have lice, whereas lice are natural enemies of hogs. Another erroneous idea is that hogs like mud, slush and filth. The time to start giving hogs the attention that they deserve is when they are pigs, and this is the time to start getting rid of lice. Lice are easily gotten rid of by using some of the prepared dips. The pigs may be dipped, but it is sometimes necessary to spray the hogs when we are unable to prepare an elaborate system of dipping. If the spraying is done thoroughly, it will serve.

We should give the sows careful attention at farrowing time, but we may overdo the thing here. If they have a good grassy lot with a shed and bedding and a watering place in it, conditions are about ideal. The sow may need a little help at actual delivery, but seldom otherwise. It is generally conceded that the sow should be in good flesh at farrowing time, but not fat. My system is to breed the sows when they are rather thin in flesh and then allow them to gain in flesh right up to farrowing. The sow should be fed lightly just before farrowing, and nothing at all for twenty-four hours after; but she should have access to plenty of fresh water. After this the sow may be put on a light ration and kept on it for about ten days, when she may be put on full ration again. Teach the pigs to eat as soon as possible. They will begin eating with the sow in about two weeks if she is fed clean slops. Teach them to eat grain as soon as possible, for it is cheaper to have them make gains on feed than it is on the milk of the sow, and it enables the sow to get in condition for breeding again just that much sooner.

The health of the hog depends largely on the cleanliness of his environment. If the hogs are kept in clean pens or lots or in roomy, sunny pastures, there will not likely ever be an outbreak of any contagious disease in the herd; and if one does break out it will be easily stamped out. It should be remembered, too, that the hog should be kept in good condition so that he will be able to resist disease.

Worms are likely to occur in any herd. I keep them down by feeding prepared worm medicines. The health of the hogs demand that they be kept on pasture as much as possible. Have a winter cover crop for them in winter. Plant spring wheat or oats for them in spring and later make use of the land for some other crop. Let them have some summer crop planted especially for them, and let them clean up the fields after harvest. Keep them in the permanent pasture when not grazing some special crop.

The best breed of hogs for any man is the breed that suits him. But he should also endeavor to suit the market on which he will have to sell his stock. Cross-breeds are not recommended, for when we cross-breed we tear down the work of specialists for years and years who have perfected breeds for all the purposes for which we need hogs. Likewise, inbreeding does not pay.

Edgar Harris Is Trying Out the O. I. C. Hog—Crops Very Good Shape

Edgar Harris, who is farming out ten miles northwest of Cisco, came in Saturday and asked that the Cisco American be sent to his address for a year. He says he must have the news and he knows no better way to get it than through the columns of the American.

Mr. Harris has about 130 acres of land in cultivation, consisting of corn, wheat, oats, barley and about twelve acres in cotton. Insects seem likely to eat his cotton, he reports. Wheat is not so good, but the other crops are fine. He finds barley to be a fine feed for hogs and chickens. Friend Harris thinks his chickens pay him better than anything else on the farm. For the past five or six years he has not sold less than twenty-five dozen eggs each week. He is therefore a strong believer in the poultry business for the farmer.

About ten acres is fenced hog-proof and pays him mighty well for a few good-blooded hogs. This year he is trying out the O. I. C. hog. This is a good hog for the north central states and doubtless Mr. Harris will like him for his own use. A good live farmer is always on the lookout for something better.

R. W. West Has Twelve Acres Cotton Ready to Chop—Vegetables, Too

R. W. West, who lives 10 miles south of Cisco, was in the city shopping Saturday. Mr. West reports that he has plenty of vegetables large enough to eat. Besides his peanuts and other feed crops, he has twelve acres of cotton up and ready to chop. Such farmers as raise plenty of vegetables for themselves and feed for their stock, and then have a money crop in addition, are farmers who are not much affected by the high cost of living. Neither are they always talking hard times, nor cursing the government and saying it owes them a living. After all, a man gets about what he earns. If he doesn't at one place he will at another.

BERRIES AND COTTON

A. H. Belew, who lives seven miles west of Cisco, was in the city Saturday. He is putting his faith in cotton and berries this year. A pretty good combination if the weevil does not get the cotton, but the berries are always a safe bet. No farmer ever goes hungry when he puts out a berry patch.

Sid J. Beard, of Nimrod, Will Soon Have Luscious Strawberries for Cisco

Sidney J. Beard, of near Nimrod, was in the city Friday. He says that he will be furnishing the people of Cisco some mighty fine berries soon. Another good farmer who has found that it pays to have something to sell when he goes to town. A farmer who can have a little home produce to sell each time he goes to the city is the kind of a farmer the banker is glad to know. And he soon will know him, because that farmer will soon have money to put on deposit.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY

In speaking of a person's faults, Pray don't forget your own; Remember those with homes of glass Should never throw a stone. If we have nothing else to do Than talk of those who sin, 'Tis better to commence at home And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man Until he's fairly tried; Should we not like his company, We know the world is wide. Some may have faults—and who has not— The old as well as young? Perhaps we may, for aught we know, Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan, And find it works full well— To try my own defects to cure Ere other's faults I tell. And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know, My own shortcomings bid me let The faults of others go.

Then let us all, when we begin To slander friend or foe, Think of the harm one word may do To those we little know. Remember curses, sometimes, Like our chickens, "roost at home;" Don't speak of others' faults until We have none of our own.

The Vagabond Days Have Come

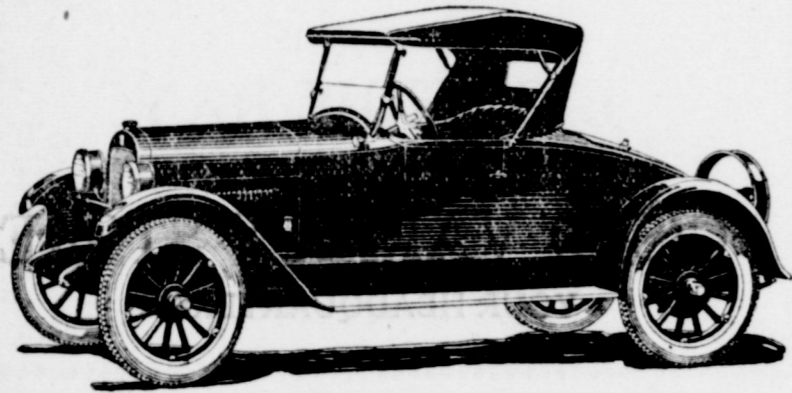

These happy days of May when the soft green of dawning summer is lit by the golden sun—forget the town—its turbulence and fame—and bid the world goodbye.

Idle the twilight hours away in a DURANT, light-footed, silent, flying free—companions, chums, camp followers of spring.

This nimble car of fascinating ease scuds through the large and solemn world—making one golden hour out measure a long drab year. A car of striking beauty on the road—it thrills you with its gratifying style, crowds your pulse with its urge of power—and satisfies your need for a reliable companion.

Economy of course—in tires and gas and care—the successor to the bulky car of other days.

A delight to drive on business errand—out to view the "Big Dam" or out on some of our nice driveways, on pleasure bent—a friendly pal for business and your freer hour.

All-Cotton Farmer Faces Loss of Profits

(P. Green)

Cotton at this writing is down from the peak price of the season $20 per bale. With the prospect for a good acreage yield and an increased acreage planted to cotton, the gamblers are going to have an easy time plucking the farmer when he again has cotton to sell, unless by concerted action they refuse to offer cotton to the buyer below a price that will give a reasonable profit.

Because of late frosts, cool nights and excessive rains, many fields have been planted a second time and in certain sections even as many as three plantings have been necessary to get a stand. Wages for cotton choppers, when they can be secured, are high and weeds and grass are growing luxuriantly while it is too wet to cultivate. Those who have clean fields this season must get up and be at it early and work until darkness sends them home.

Insect pests will be fought with machines and poison at great expense. If the farmer succeeds in cultivating properly and checking the ravages of boll weevil and other pests, he will be at increased expense and, if a majority do it, a big yield of five hundred pound bales will result and unprofitable prices will be paid to those who have produced the crop at heavy expense.

I was talking yesterday to a farmer whose low land had been prepared for cotton before the rains, but up to the time of our meeting had not been planted because it was "too wet." I said, "It's pretty late to plant cotton. What will you put in to take its place?" He replied, "The best cotton crop I ever made was put in after June 1st." So you see that late season and excessive rains are not going to reduce the acreage or quiet the hope for a big yield. Many who do not produce cotton, yet make big, sure profits on it have said we need a big crop to supply the needs of the world's demand. They claim there is a real demand for sixteen to eighteen million bales, and that producers should make an effort to produce that many. If the producer succeeds in making as many bales as they say are needed it will put them in the red on the cost of production. A ten or twelve million bale crop, if properly marketed, spells profit for the cotton producer and a larger crop means a price below cost of production. Those who plant feed crops, raise chickens, pigs, keep milk cows, have gardens and fruit, a big feed crop, will say to the all-cotton farmer: "I told you so."

Four Arrests Followed Auto Wreck on Eastland Highway Saturday Night

EASTLAND, May 22.—Four arrests were made in connection with the accident on the highway west of Eastland Saturday night. The parties who were in the Chandler car were first arrested on charges of drunkenness and speeding and later they were charged with transporting whiskey. Those arrested were Harry Scott, W. T. Ferguson, Harvey Spooone and Jewell Halzer. They were still in jail Monday morning, none of them having made bond. Scott, Spooone and the Halzer woman were all badly bruised but none of them were seriously injured and they were put under arrest immediately after leaving the sanitarium Saturday night.

W. H. Zindell, who was also in the wreck and who was driving a Ford car, has recovered sufficiently to be taken to his room at the Engleman hotel. While badly bruised, his wounds appear to be of a surface nature only, with no indications of internal injuries and it is thought he will soon be able to be out again.

This accident happened about 9:30 Saturday night when there was a head-on collision between two cars a short distance west of the city limits. Zindell was coming east in a Ford roadster and had just passed a Packard car driven by R. E. Sikes, when he was crashed into by a five-passenger Chandler driven by Spooone. It is claimed the Chandler was going at a rapid rate, probably fifty miles an hour. Both cars were badly damaged and the occupants were bruised and shaken up and cut by flying glass.

NIMROD

Misses Willie, Ina and Ethel Leveridge and their brother, John, motored to Eastland Sunday.

Eston, R. C. and Virgie Hardin were absent from school Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Clark were shopping in Cisco Saturday.

Rosa Williams was absent from school last week.

Among the number of boys who were in Cisco Saturday were Buford Sharp, Garvin and Lester Clark, Buford Cozart and L. D. Standifer.

The school of this community will come to a close Friday. A play entitled the "Hoodoo Coon" will be presented along with other interesting features. Everyone is invited to come to this recital Friday night.

Next Wednesday the teachers, Misses Willie and Ina Leveridge, will take their pupils on an all-day hike and picnic. Of course we will all have a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Bennett and family, of Eastland, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Sye Carmichael spent Sunday night with their mother, Mrs. G. A. Carmichael, of this community.

The little two-day-old babe of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Williams passed away last Sunday week. Funeral services were held at Cook and the little babe was laid away in the Cook cemetery last Monday afternoon.

Grandpa Poff spent Sunday afternoon with his daughter, Mrs. Robert Hagerman.

Elsie Sharp spent the night with Esta Lee Clark Monday night.

Miss Faye Townsend of Cisco spent this week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Townsend.

Walter Hock was in Cisco Friday. Robert Hagerman was shopping in Cisco Saturday.

Little Miss Katherine Johnson of Cozart visited the school Monday.

Crops in this community are looking very nice since warm weather. Plenty of clouds and sandstorms are prevailing this season.

Remember, everyone is invited to the recital at the Nimrod school house Friday night at 7:30.

Transporting of Liquor Caused Arrest Two Men at the County Capital

EASTLAND, May 22.—One arrest was made Saturday night and another Sunday on charges of transporting whiskey. Deputy Sheriff J. T. Beck arrested L. C. Spratling coming in from Pioneer. Spratling had several bottles of "choc" beer in his car. State case has been filed against him.

Sunday afternoon City Officer Ed Sparr arrested a man named John Moore in this city and both state and federal charges have been filed against him for transporting whiskey. There were 12 bottles of red whiskey found in a Studebaker car, which it is alleged Moore had been driving. The car and the liquor were turned over to Prohibition Officer McDonald. Mr. McDonald took the liquor to Cisco and placed it in the care of the Cisco police department temporarily.

FIVE DENOMINATIONS MERGE IN ILLINOIS

METAMORA, Ill., May 22.—The Presbyterians, the Baptists, the members of the Christian church, the Congregationalists and the Methodists of Metamora began Sunday to worship together.

Congregations of all five denominations have amalgamated into one, to be known as the Christian Union.

This church, the first consolidated church in Illinois, was dedicated Sunday with Rev. J. D. Calhoun as pastor.

THE HOME-OWNING MOVE

A brand-new film is to be released soon for use throughout the country in "own your home" campaigns. The practical details of home ownership are woven into a story of the typical city wage-earning family struggling from rented quarters into a home of their own.

Rent raises, troubles with landlords and quarrelsome neighbors, unsatisfactory locations, illness and a score of other incidents help to make up the plot which leads to the desire and finally the determination for home ownership. Then follow the experiences of the family fulfilling their dream. These include every step in the common process, from consulting with agents to making financial arrangements, talks with architects and study of plans, and finally the building and moving in.

Such a movie has great possibilities. It should do a world of missionary work in stimulating interest in home-building and crystallizing the determination of the wavering. The information and the suggestions as to the problems involved should be generally helpful. When the movie turns to such purposes as these it can be forgiven some of its less profitable revelations.

Banditry in China is not what it used to be, judging from the delays reported in connection with the recent capture of Americans and others there and the bold attempt to collect a million-dollar ransom from their friends and relatives. The object was to get the money. So far this has not been accomplished, or at least it had not been up to the time this was being written. In all probability, the bandits responsible for the recent outrage will pay dearly for their devilry. What organized government China has realized full well the results likely to follow from this outrage unless its perpetrators are found and brought to task. Instead of getting a million dollars, they are more apt to get the block.

IN FLOWERY MAY

In this bright time it is a crime to mope around and worry. If you're not gay in flowery May, the doctor ought to hurry. There's some strange call that gets us all in this month good and shining; that gives a gent a merry bent and says skiddo to whining. To think of pains and sordid gains and cares and cranks and bosses just can't be done when May in fun a million garlands tosses. E'en does the grouch forsake his couch to wander mid the bowers; the chronic bore, the hasbeen sore, go out and smell the flowers; the pessimist throws down his grist, the howler quits his clamor, the knocker grim forgets his flim and junks his maul and hammer. It's 'gainst the law to growl and jaw when May unfurls her banners; and any guy who heaves a sigh lacks good and polished manners; there's not a code along the road that lifts the lid from wailing; and any gink that's on the blink most certainly needs trailing. In flowery May gloom sneaks away and joy sings gleeful chancies; if any bloke turns loose a croak let's call the vigilantes.

those costing more than $2,500 were bought or are being bought on the time-payment plan. Many of the others are bought for cash, but with a second-hand car traded in.

The average purchaser, according to the figures, buys a $1,361 car and pays $698 down, agreeing to pay the balance at the rate of $95.60 a month. Usually his notes to the dealer cover insurance costs, financing charges, etc.

The average buyer has a net equity in real estate of $4,268 and an equity in personal property of $2,079. His income is $349 a month.

Of this group 74 per cent. are married, 82 per cent. have bank accounts and 69 per cent carry life insurance. More than 65 per cent. have owned automobiles before.

Here is a collection of figures very different from those presented on popular-priced and low-priced car sales. Equities in property are larger and so is income, but the biggest difference is in the matter of insurance. Sixty-nine per cent. of the buyers of $2,500 cars are protected by life policy, and barely 30 per cent. of those who buy the less expensive cars. That means something.

SCHOOLS IN MEXICO

More than 600 new schools were opened in various parts of Mexico in January and February of this year, and the establishment of others is still going on. These are not big city schools with handsome equipment and elaborate design. A good many of them are located in villages and hamlets where there have never before been schools of any sort. Yet they are taking care of more than 50,000 children. The present plan of the department of education is to provide school facilities for the children of every village and hamlet in all Mexico.

Schools for all the children and every child in school is an ideal very far from attainment in Mexico, and even in this country of education and wealth. Yet it is an ideal toward which educators and far-sighted citizens should aspire. Mexico is setting a very good example and demonstrating its new spirit in the finest possible way when it undertakes to bring education to all the youngsters who will some day be its responsible citizens.

"NOT AMERICAN TERRITORY"

One of the striking things about the supreme court's prohibition decision is its statement that American ships are "not American territory." The popular view has always regarded them as such, and has taken for granted that there was legal basis for the belief. The court dubs it a mere "fiction" and "figure of speech."

Strictly speaking, it appears, a vessel of American registry can only be considered "American territory" when it is within the three-mile limit. And even then, the phrase is only figurative, because it is really the three-mile belt of water-covered land that is American territory. The ship is not territory at all. American laws, it appears, do not apply there unless they are explicitly made for ships.

This is sadly disillusioning. The court has done its duty, but a certain poetic quality is gone from the sea. No longer can the homesick passenger in far waters or in an alien harbor look up to the flag flying at the masthead and say to himself, in a quiet rapture, "This is my country. Here I am at home." He has no country beyond the three-mile line.

MACHINES INSTEAD OF MEN

It was pointed out when the present business revival began, that the shortage of labor would increase the use of labor-saving machinery. With immigration severely restricted and a demand in every industry for increased production, there is only one thing to do—install machinery instead of men.

The change is spoken of by representatives of the American Foundrymen's association as ushering in "an industrial revolution." They foresee the passing of hand-labor in iron-working in the next ten years, and the elimination of the small foundry and factory in favor of huge mechanical plants capable of mass production. The engineer and the trained technician, they say, will take the place of the old-fashioned bosses of old-fashioned workmen. The "all-round artisan" will disappear.

The tendency is already marked in the automobile industry, of which the highly specialized and standardized Ford factories are perhaps the most striking examples.

This is unfortunate in some ways. It tends to make the men little more than machines, each going through certain limited motions. But there are compensations. Vastly greater production enables employers to make greater profits and share them with their employees. Workmen's high wages today are the result of this very process, and so is the leisure they are able to enjoy along with the financial reward.

INDECENT DANCE RUINOUS

CHICAGO, May 22.—Thousands of young girls are sacrificed each year in Chicago on the altars of jazz and modern dancing, Phillip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance Association, asserted today. The big city dance call, he said, "is the greatest moral danger facing a young, inexperienced girl."

On the average of 15,000 couples seen on the Chicago dance floors nightly, 12,000 dance suggestively," Yarrow said.

He said there has been a "great let-down" in the standards of the American girls.
