Veteran Approves "Foolproof" Plane

DEL RIO, Feb. 2.—Altho he's 85, Del Rio's "Old Man River", Uncle Jim McMahan, will not trap this winter. Falling eyes have cheated him of his favorite sport. Uncle Jim claims to have been the first white man to navigate the Rio Grande from El Paso to Del Rio in a four week's trip back in 1884. Bandits and Indians forced him out of the El Paso section where he was trapping. He drifted down the river in a row boat. He already bore scars of wounds inflicted by Indians. A particle of stone from an arrowhead is still imbedded in his cheek, there since he was 17. The octogenarian skirmished with both Indians and federal soldiers during the Civil war, but came out unscathed. The panic of 1893 kidnapped him. He sold his sheep for 75 cents each and went to trapping. While boats and burros have been his chief modes of transportation, he approves the airplane, but wants it made fool-proof.

Old Missouri Dispute Settled

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 2.—A dispute which has bobbed up every now and then at the University of Missouri for almost 70 years has apparently been settled. The question is: Was Benjamin Blake Minor, president of the university from 1860 to 1862, elected to that office by the board of curators, or did he come here through mistake and then was allowed to stay because the curators did not want to embarrass him by making the mistake known. It has been contended by some that the curators elected another Mr. Minor and that notice of the election was sent to Benjamin Blake Minor, then of Richmond, Va., through error. Then, according to the story when the new president arrived, the curators thought it best to let him take office. He served until the university disbanded in 1862, during the Civil War. An unpublished history of the university by Col. William F. Switzer, newspaperman and member of the university faculty at the time, says the report is utterly untrue, however.

WEATHER

West Texas.—Fair and colder to night with frost in the Rio Grande valley. Fair Tuesday.
East Texas.—Partly cloudy and rain in extreme east. Colder in west portion and along west coast tonight. Generally fair Tuesday.

Early Spring Says Ground-Hog

The ground-hog had to do some quick looking today if he saw his shadow during one of those infrequent and brief intervals of sunlight that filtered through low-hanging clouds. If the superstition is correct Cisco may look forward to gardens and exhilarating spring breezes and warm sunlight immediately. What we term "ground-hog day" grew out of a superstition almost as old as the Christian era. On the religious calendar the second of February is known as Candlemas day and the prediction developed that if the day is warm and fair a second winter would follow but if the day was dark and damp winter would be over and spring would arrive early. If the prediction is true the present state of the weather is welcome indeed.

DROUTH AREA HAS HAD NO FORECLOSURES

HOUSTON, Feb. 2.—"More than 95 per cent of the borrowers from the Federal Land bank of Houston living in the west Texas drouth area met all their installments up to December 31, 1930," said M. H. Gossett, president of the bank here today. "The bank has not found it necessary to make foreclosures in the drouth area to date. The officers of the bank have a sympathetic attitude and concern toward the plight of agriculture but they also realize that any relaxation of the policy of requiring payments would result in wholesale delinquencies and a serious menace to the bank's ability to meet its own obligations. "The farmers realize that the value of Federal Land bank loans is too great to be jeopardized by substantial delinquency, and therefore their purpose and performance to protect and perpetuate its service. "When the Federal Land bank was established under the Federal Farm Loan Act, back in 1917, there was no provision made for a cushion or surplus funds from which the banks could pay the interest on the bonds which they have sold to the public, in order to get funds to loan to the farmers. Therefore, the bank has no alternative than to urge farmers to pay their installments promptly, for the bank in turn has obligated itself to pay the interest on the bonds outstanding against the farmers' loans. Most farmers understand that the Federal Land bank of Houston is not a government institution in the sense that the government supplies funds which we lend, owns the stock, or is responsible for our obligations. They appreciate that the government granted a charter to the bank, and that it also has chartered their local national farm loan associations. The government further made it possible for the banks to sell bonds to the investing public, bonds which are tax-exempt. This was for the purpose, however, of making the rate of interest charged to the farmers as low as possible. "The farmers of Texas, through their national farm loan associations have built up and maintain sound local institutions, with few exceptions, which in turn, have made it possible to build a sound Federal Land bank which meets its obligations promptly. Appreciation of the long-term, low interest amortized loans such as this bank makes, is reflected directly by the fact that the great body of our borrowers are meeting their installments when due.

"The bank is closing loans now in volume of $1,250,000 per month at 5 1-2 per cent interest rate. We still must insist, however, that we cannot afford to approve applications which do not include solvent borrowers, substantial equity and complete farm or ranch units of unquestioned value." Approved: M. H. GASSETT, president, The Federal Land Bank of Houston.

VERDUM, France, Feb. 2.—The famous tunnel, which proved such a strategic point for the Germans during the 1916 offensive, has been classed as a historical monument by the government. Since the war it has been called the Crown Prince Tunnel.

The department at the same time said the specific charges against the general will not be made public until it is ascertained if Butler desires them to be published. HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 2.—Two young men were dead and four others were in a hospital here today as the result of an automobile collision on highway 10 near New Waverly late last night. The dead: Otis Carter, 18, and Thurston Dean, 25, both of Madisonville. The injured: W. M. Evans, 18, David Evans, 17, Reid Ferguson, 19, and Jimmie Burtis, 18, all of Madisonville. The young men were riding in a small sedan and when attempting to pass another car collided headon with a large car driven by L. A. Hancock, of Richards.

U. S. Now Owns Fort Humbug

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 2.—The United States government now controls Fort Humbug, on the highest bluff overlooking Red river. The fort, which took its name from a ruse carried out by Confederate soldiers, will be used as an radio station. The station, which will cost about $40,000 will be completed within the next two or three months. Fort Humbug has been in use as a park, prior to the time the government acquired it. The rusty and unfit cannon with which the Confederates deceived the Union soldiers approaching on a steamer, are still scattered about the grounds. They served their purpose when they were displayed on the bluff, many years ago, for the Yankees withdrew without a battle.

Fire Burns Upper Part of Dwelling

Fire, breaking out early this morning, destroyed the upper story of a residence at 209 West Second street. The fire department, summoned at 3 o'clock, extinguished the flames before the lower story of the building was destroyed. Origin of the fire was unknown. FRANKLIN, Feb. 2.—Several parties of hunters here have been seeking panthers or Mexican lions which have caused considerable loss to cattlemen in the Henry Prairie community in recent weeks. Hogs and sheep have been the principal victims.

The dead are D. K. Isaacs and his daughter, Mrs. Fred Schultz. The injured are N. E. Hardy and Hazel Schultz, 5. They were en route to Allen, Oklahoma, from their home in Wink, Texas, where Hardy's four-year-old daughter is ill.

Radio Amateur Aids Vessel

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 2.—Out of a maze of dots and dashes the distress call "S. O. S." pounded in the ears of C. R. Spicer, radio amateur, sitting at his short wave set at Agana, Guam. Out in the Pacific midway between Hong Kong and the Philippines, the motorship Hedwig was stranded on Pratos shoal. He attempted to telephone the Naval Communications officer on the tiny island but was unable to reach him. Then he hastened to the home of the Governor of Guam and obtained his authority to dispatch a "priority message" to the Commandant of the 16th naval district. The message was sent and the navy sent the U. S. Pittsburgh, flagship of the Pacific fleet, to give assistance. Spicer and W. H. Claxton of Paraki, Thames, New Zealand stood by in the amateur wave band relayed communications between the naval base and the stranded vessel until help arrived. The incident is only one of many cases in which radio amateurs have given their time and effort to save life and property, says a bulletin issued by the Radio Relay League Headquarters here.

Mrs. Standifer has had 21 years experience in home economics work and comes to Cisco well equipped by training and experience to help Cisco women solve their kitchen and

IDLENESS ON THE DECREASE SURVEY SHOWS

Road Contracts Aid Return to Normal Conditions

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Unemployment in the United States decreased slightly during the month of January, according to a survey today by the United Press in 30 of the 48 states. Almost without exception state labor commissioners and officials predicted that with the coming of spring further decreases in the ranks of the idle, estimated by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at 5,700,000 will be noted. Upwards of a half billion dollars is being spent on public and private improvements throughout the nation and state legislatures and congress are considering appropriations for additional expenditures, the survey reveals. Although official estimates were unavailable the employment situation in Texas was described as improved by various business leaders and economic agencies. The University of Texas bureau of business research estimated a 16 per cent decline in employment over that of a year ago. State Labor Commissioner Charles McKemy said conditions had improved and further improvement was predicted with contracts for $4,500,000 let for state highway projects.

Police Drive Parkers to Inns

SEATTLE, Feb. 2.—The mystery of the crowd parking lots adjoining roadhouses and chicken dinner inns has been solved. Back in the old days young lovers used to park their buggies along the highway, but now they park alongside roadhouses and inns, and it's all because state highway patrolmen chase them off the highways. "Too dangerous to have a lot of these cars cluttering up the road-sides," maintains Capt. Owen McGill. "Much better to have them all parked off the road at a roadhouse like that." Highway patrolmen have also invaded cemeteries, driving couples away from there, and roadhouse parking lots have become the only safe havens for necking parties. All roadhouses seem to have about the same activity—on the outside. At the more expensive places, the back seats of limousines are popular—girls with elaborate, long dresses; young men with nice clothes, sometimes in dinner jackets. Roadhouse proprietors complain of poor business, but from the appearance of parked cars the places should be crowded.

AUDITOR LYNN SENDS REPORT ON HEALTH DEPT. TO SOLONS

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, former U. S. collector of internal revenue at Chicago, is shown receiving nourishment from Hazel Sullivan, nurse at the Chicago Memorial hospital, where she is recuperating from a threatened breakdown. Mrs. Blackledge resigned her federal post as a climax to the publicity received when she lost $50,000 in a faro swindle at Springfield, Illinois.

AUSTIN, Feb. 2.—State Auditor Moore Lynn today sent to the state legislature part four of his state survey dealing with the health department where two resignations were asked and the state barber board where an employe was removed.

Farmers Urged to Test Seed

AUSTIN, Feb. 2.—With the advent of the planting season farmers were urged today by J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture to take advantage of facilities of the department for testing seed for germination. Any citizen of Texas, without charge may send seed to the state laboratory, supervised by Miss Wynona Robbins, or to J. B. McClung, chief of the seed division, for a free germination and purity analysis. State tested seed may be obtained McClung said, from dealers subscribing to the state's testing service. Tested seed is identified by a tag attached to every bag. Also seed dealers are not required by law to have their seed tested, the law does require that untested or unclean seed be so marked. The "tested seed" tags may be obtained only from the state on application of dealers. Germination and seed law has been in effect less than two years, but already has had the effect of establishing a basis for the improvement of the quality of seed, according to Commissioner McDonald. During its first year of operation the division made nearly 400 tests of seed for farmers, gardeners and seedsmen.

who use the highways must pay for them." It is to be an expensive luxury in the near future as the tax is to pay "all that the traffic will cost."

SNCLAIR IN THE EAST TEXAS FIELD.

Snclair has large interests in Texas. He has been in the East Texas fields. He made his way to his special car. He was interviewed by correspondents of the great news gathering associations. "This is the largest East Texas oil field is the biggest I have ever seen," he said. "I believe it has never yet been scratched. Reports I have received I believe gushers of tremendous proportions will be uncovered, even greater than the East Texas field of west Texas and the great gusher fields of Old Mexico. I am ready to spend several hundred thousands—yes, several millions in this new field. We drove all through the country getting here and it looks better than the Seminole or Oklahoma City fields."

It is a matter of history that 40 years ago Robert T. Hill, a Texan, a geologist, a product of the University of Texas, scraped sufficient coin together to pay the cost of printing a little pamphlet. He told the world in his little book that Texas had vast underground lakes of petroleum—the richest treasure trove to be exploited the American world over. His fellow Texans gave him the laugh. In order to be able to make a living he deserted Texas for other commonwealths. He was a prophet without honor in his own country.

OTHER OPINIONS

WEIGHTY WORDS

Any words of finance from a slender framed, white haired man in Washington rise quickly above the din and turmoil of the New York Stock Exchange.

Stock traders, financiers, industrialists listen and ponder. He speaks their language—only the statements he issues on financial conditions and general trends are few and far between.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury under three administrations, never has been accused of talking too much. His critics have attributed many financial twinges the country has had since he took office March 1, 1921, to him. They have never, however, accused him of shaking business confidence or leading to market excesses by rash statements.

He will give his view frankly on governmental expenditures, or proposals involving those expenditures, if called upon. There was no doubt as to his attitude yesterday when he denounced before the senate finance committee the plan to pay $3,400,000,000 to veterans in cash bonus payments.

If he has any financial fetishes one of them is a balanced budget. He faces a prospective deficit this year but even his critics have not laid the responsibility upon him.

Stocks have risen and fallen on rumors he would resign. Representations as to his attitude have caused hurries but they generally have been without his authority or his knowledge. Sometimes after a market incident is over, he will say a word or two designed to restore confidence.

He said after a sharp market recession in 1925 he thought it would have a wholesome effect. He said in the summer of 1929 only a little while before the cataclysm he thought it a good time to buy bonds.

In October, 1929, tremendous pressure was put upon him for the banking world for public reassurance. Secretary Mellon replied there was nothing for him to say. Part of his influence is ascribed to that reticence.

The depths of finance and the fluidity of money currents are simple to him. He was born a member of a wealthy Pennsylvania family and he built on the fortune given him until he is regarded as one of the wealthiest men in the country.

Legends have grown up around him and a reserve that is almost diffidence has not dispelled them. His intimates and people who come in contact with him daily, however, know him for a friendly and genial man.

Secretary Mellon is 75, but nobody thinks of him as old. He has been known to dodge an automobile in front of the treasury by a nimble footedness that a man of 40 might envy.

There is no contemplative melancholy about him. He said on his last birthday he found life full and interesting; that he was glad he had lived the years he had; would choose them if he had to do over and would make his home in America and in Pittsburgh.

WRITER STARTS FLIGHT TOWARD HIGHEST PEAK

By JOHN D. MONTGOMERY
At daylight, I waved good-bye to the City of Kings. We flew over a few isolated mountain rocks to the sea. Riding over the clouds is like riding above the water. The snow-capped Andes were the shoreline of the sea of clouds. In an hour the clouds had disappeared and we were flying over the Andes foothills. The mountain below were rough and rugged. As our plane sped on, I became more and more impressed by the barren country below me. I finally decided that Peru looks like the moon when seen through a telescope.

It seems that ever since the Panagra-Pan American Grace Airways line has been flying into Arequipa, second largest city in Peru, each plane has been met by three charming women mounted on thoroughbred horses. These three girls ride eye to the air field every time a plane comes in to have the pleasure of a 30-minute chat with American boys and to keep in touch with the outside world. It is almost a tradition that every lady dislikes. The cud goes like a bullet and must be rather pasty calling card.

Arequipa is noted for its beautiful climate but that isn't the only thing it boasts of. It was the birthplace of the revolution that swept President Leguia from his capital at Lima. It is also the home of Sanchez Cerro, revolutionary leader and now head of the junta ruling the country.

The main business section of Arequipa is built around a beautiful plaza. Nearly all the buildings are of Spanish architecture with stone and wooden balconies overhanging the sidewalks.

Arequipa is said to be the most Spanish city in Peru. Its cobblestone streets, elaborate churches, tiled plaza square, arched colonnade buildings and balcony-covered sidewalks make it the delight of the Spaniard.

I met a man named Faucett who told me how he started the airline serving the length of Peru. He wrecked his original plane but by making a racing car out of the wreckage and winning a race with it, he obtained enough money to buy another plane and pay for the wrecked machine. He started his company in 1923 and was favored by luck for the next few years. His line has grown so today it is now serving all Peru and paying dividends.

TOMBS GIVE UP SEERESS

CHALONS-sur-ROANE, France, Feb. 2.—The skeleton of a woman believed to be a prophetess of Pannonia, or Hungary, attached to the suite of Emperor Septimius Severus, has been found near here. During the plowing of a field, five ancient tombs formed of rough lava, were uncovered. One of them contained the bones of a very tall woman wearing a crown of iron tipped with silver.

TODAY'S YOUTH NEEDS PARENTS, PASTOR SAYS

"There is a great need today for more old fashioned parental authority in the home," Rev. H. D. Tucker told a large audience at the First Methodist church last night in delivering the first of a series of four Sunday night messages for young people.

The fifteen piece orchestra directed by Statham Ricks and accompanied by Miss Adele Anderson made its first public appearance at last night's service and received much praise from the congregation. Miss Ella Andress presented a solo before the sermon.

The service had been designated as a whole family night and many whole families were present at the service.

Continuing his message from the text, Luke 1:66 "What manner of child shall this be?" the Rev. Mr. Tucker said in part: "I believe in the young folks of today but they have some faults. In our effort to conform to the modern methods in dealing with youth, the pendulum is liable to swing too far the other way. When a six year old child tells its father to shut the door himself if he wants it shut, that boy needs an old fashioned daddy more than anything else."

"An old cow thinks more of her calf than many parents think of their children," the Rev. Mr. Tucker declared during his message.

"A cow will follow a wagon where her calf is to the jumping off place and jump off if necessary and many parents are not concerned about where their children are day or night," he said.

"Parents are to blame for a lot of law breaking today. Children who break the law of the home will in almost every instance break the laws of the school and society," the Rev. Tucker declared.

Youth Not Dangerous
"I am not afraid of the youth movement today, I am afraid of the youth that does not move," the speaker said. "The daring spirit of youth is to be commended. The young people are not going to put us on the rocks as many calamity howlers are predicting," he said.

"Where is the flapper of five years ago?" is often asked Mr. Tucker said and someone has answered, "At home keeping house for a good man and two fine babies." "A fine answer," the minister declared. "Flappers are not all bad," he said.

"Training is the most important factor that determines the future of youth," he said. "Parents need Jesus Christ in their task. Every child is entitled to a Christian father and mother," he said in closing his message.

The second of the series will be delivered next Sunday night from the subject, "Young people in school" and a special invitation is extended to teachers, pupils and parents.

ANNUAL SPRING BUYING SEASON FEBRUARY 4-5

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2. — Fort Worth Annual Spring Buying Season will be observed this year on Feb. 4 and 5, and arrangements are now being completed for entertaining the hundreds of visiting merchants that are expected from all parts of the city's trade territory. All wholesalers, manufacturers and jobbers of the city have united in planning to make this year's spring buying season one of the best on record, and have cooperated in the program of entertainment that will be provided free for all visiting merchants and members of their families.

This program of entertainment will center about a carnival dance, to be given on the night of February 4th, at the Texas hotel. The Crystal Ballroom and Blue Bonnet Court will be turned over to the visitors, good orchestras have been provided for the dancing, and a program of entertainment is to be prepared.

The second day of the season will be capped with a luncheon to be given in honor of the visitors, also at the Texas hotel. This will be held at noon, with W. B. Brown, general chairman of the Spring Buying Season, acting as toastmaster. Response from the visitors will be made by one of the out-of-town merchants.

Prizes will be distributed at this luncheon, one to the merchant coming the greatest distance to the event, and another to the largest group of visitors present from one town or city.

Visiting merchants and buyers will register at the chamber of commerce and free tickets to the dance and luncheon will be given them there, as well as free theater tickets, free garage parking tickets and courtesy traffic cards, which permit parking for any length of time regardless of police restrictions.

The town will literally be "turned over to the visitors" and in addition to this program of entertainment, individual firms have arranged entertainment for their buyers-guests. Special lines of merchandise have been secured by the wholesalers and jobbers, and new stocks will be shown by all of the merchants participating in the season.

Life was never dull with Ginger Ella Tolliver around. Whenever there was a threat of it Ginger got a new idea. Thus she suggested a Junior Country Club to save the younger set of Red Thrush, Iowa, from utter boredom. It was to be exclusive—no parents, no babies. According to Ginger, whose father was a minister but whose stepmother, the former Phil Van Doorn, was both wealthy and indulgent, purchased the Mill Rush farm, a 10-acre tract with an old house on it, which she proceeded, with the assistance of her friends, to overhaul and furnish.

Red Thrush seized the idea with enthusiasm. The younger set would paint Iowa nights deep rose red. One day, while the rehabilitation of the clubhouse was going on, an artist called at the Tolliver kitchen and offered to do a portrait of Ginger in exchange for a meal. After he had shaved off his beard, Ginger found to her amazement that he was both young and good looking. And he had talent. He had studied in Paris, and his name was Bard Holloway.

Ginger, never at a loss for ideas, thought it would be a good one if Bard remained a while in Red Thrush. She would see that he got enough commissions for portraits, which would be better than hobnobbing through the country, and he could do the mural decorations at the new clubhouse. So, very cleverly, she got her stepmother to prevail on Bard to accept an invitation to stay at the Tollivers', and with this accomplished she took him to Mill Rush and got him started on the decorations.

Bard thought "Joie de Vivre" would be a good name for the club. It was adopted. And he thought it would be splendid if they could import Nicolo Calleno from Chicago. For Nicolo was handsome and he could cook and sing and strum a guitar. He would make a picturesque addition to the club. So he sent for Nicolo. But on the morning of the opening dance there arrived at the Tollivers not one Latin youth but what seemed an army of them. Little Angelo was a musician and Pietro could cook. And Benito could sing. And how! Nicolo could not come, it seemed, and they had come in his place. They would work for their board. So they were installed at the club.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

"Phil, tell me, what shall I wear?" Ginger demanded. "That gold gown is the most expensive thing I have, but it is the most becoming."

"No, it isn't. And it is entirely too formal for a dance like this. I would wear the ivory chiffon with your sapphire chain and bracelets."

"Oh, but it is so—simple. It is just school-girlish. It doesn't begin to live up to what it cost. The red one is much more striking."

"But the other girls will be so much—brighter."

"They will not be more attractive."

"Oh, dear," mourned Ginger. She carried the investigation further.

"Father, which do I look nicest in—the white dress or the red one?"

"Which white one do you mean?"

"The ivory one that Phil brought me from New York—the one I wear with the sapphires."

"I do seem to remember it," he said, frowningly anxious to assist with his very best judgment. "What's the red one like?"

"Oh, father, you must remember the red one—that trails just a wee bit in the back."

"I can't seem to place it," he admitted.

"You come right upstairs," she said sternly. "You can't get out of this by quibbling. I'll try them on for you."

She resented him with a private shudder; the cold gown, the red, the ivory white. He studied them all anxiously, frowning over the rim of his glasses.

"They're just beautiful, every one of them," he decided cheerfully. "What difference does it make which you wear when they're all so nice?"

"Oh, father, ever so much difference. Now look especially at these two. Here's I'll put the red one on again."

"It's very pretty," he smiled approval. "I like red."

"Is it prettier than the white?"

"Well, no, I can't say that it is any prettier."

"Well, is the white prettier than the red?"

"Well, maybe in some ways it is. I like the blue beads."

"Oh, dear!"

"Why don't you ask Bard? He's an artist. He ought to be a good judge of clothes."

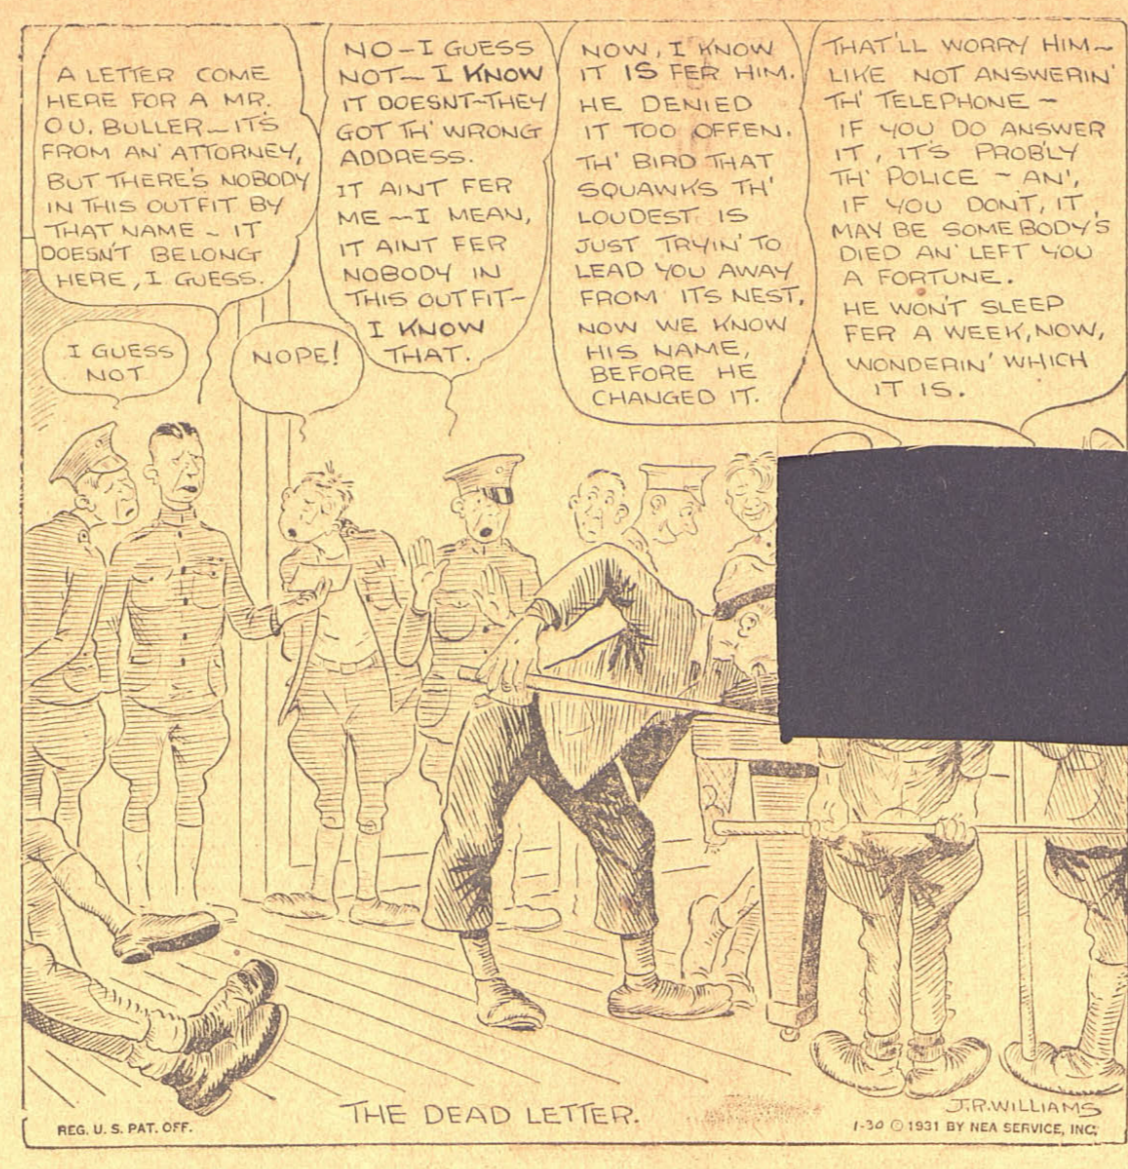

"Oh, father, I can't ask him. I want to show him."

That was entirely too deep for her father.

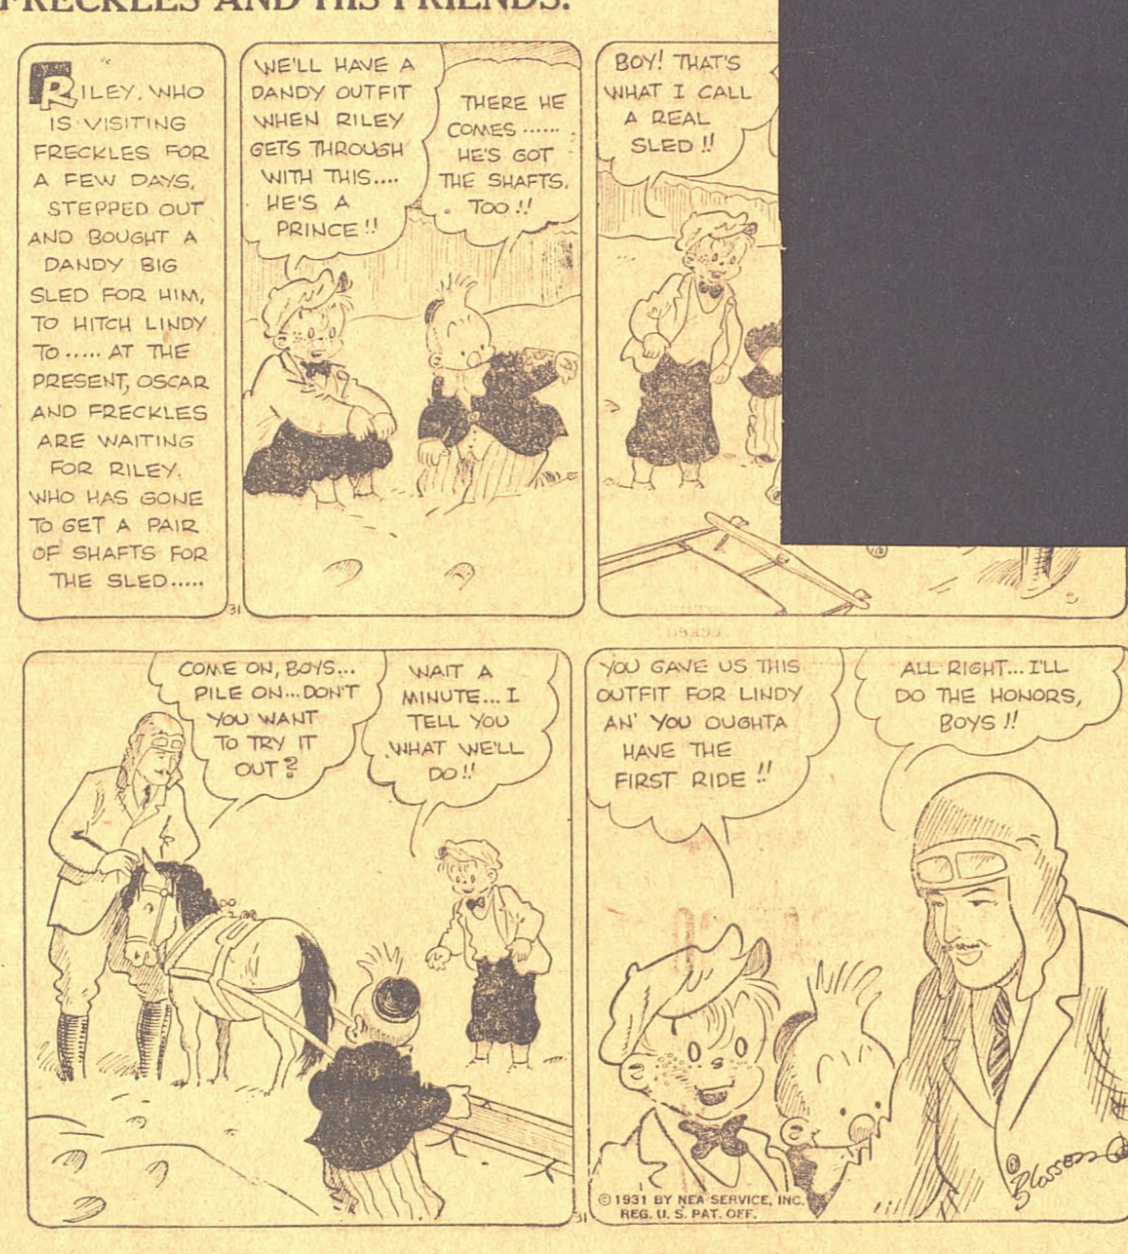

But in the end, for her confidence in Phil was very great, Ginger got into the ivory white that melted at the throat into a delicate lace that was like her own skin in its velvety softness.

She put the sapphire chain

Pennington Papers Given University

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. — Photostat copies of documents of the Pennington family, whose history in Texas dates prior to the Civil War, have been presented to the library of The University of Texas by Harry Pennington of San Antonio. The 1857 ticket of San Jacinto, headed by Sam Houston as candidate for governor, is represented among the relics. Certificate No. 35 of the Washington County Railroad company, representing two shares of stock issued to Elijah Pennington on June 3, 1853 is included.

Two documents connected with the Civil War are among the memorabilia. One is the amnesty oath. No. 1098, which Elijah Pennington signed at the close of the war; it is dated Brenham, Texas, July 26, 1865. Another was the parole, No. 567, granted to him by the United States government; it also is dated at Brenham, Texas, July 26, 1865. Both the amnesty oath, called by the Confederate partisans the "damnable oath," and the parole were required of all Confederate soldiers at the close of the civil war.

Elijah Pennington's certificate of membership in the Texas Veterans' Federation is also included in the documents which were copied by photostat for the library. It is dated at Independence, Texas, June 15, 1876.

The message was concluded with this thought: "I the prophecies of the past have been fulfilled to the letter and date, is there any reason to believe those concerning the future will not be also? Is there any better evidence desired concerning the actuality of God than that He has inspired man to foretell the future to the extent that not one prophecy has failed of fulfillment?"

Double-Header on Basket Ball Bill Tuesday Evening

BOYS GIRLS TO MEET LOCALS

Cisco Teams Each Hold Victory Over Visiting Squads

The Cisco Lobos continue their Oil Belt Basket Ball league schedule tomorrow evening when they meet the Ranger Bulldogs on the Cisco gym floor in a double-header program beginning at 7:30.

The Lobos and the Rangers set to furnish the other half of the double-header engagement. The Lobos and the Queens each hold one victory over their Ranger rivals this season and the meeting between the boys teams will be the final one on the league schedule.

Incidentally, since Cisco and Ranger are both in Eastland county, the boys' game will count in the county interscholastic league standing.

The Lobos completed a brilliant series last week, playing and winning three games on successive nights and quite upsetting the dope bucket handling the loop.

The Queens suffered a defeat in their excursion last week, losing to the strong Elaville sextet by a margin of three points.

BIG DAM CHATTER

The 1931-32 coaching question at Cisco high school is due to be clarified at least to some extent tonight when the school dads gather around the council table to sift through the almost two score of applications with which the office has been flooded since the resignation of Coach W. B. Chapman.

Selection of a mentor from this list of applicants is a real problem, any member of the school board will tell you. There are any number of things to be considered in employing a man to take charge of the athletic destinies of the high school and not the greatest of these is his ability to tell youngsters how to block and tackle, punt, pass, receive and carry footballs for yardage.

One observation to be drawn from the great list of applications for the local job is that Cisco has a reputation to sustain. One of those who is considered a leading applicant for the Lobo job, in town today, dropped comment which aptly illustrated this fact. "The oil belt has a reputation for supporting its football teams," he said.

That is the reason for so many applications for the Cisco job. Coaches want to be where they can depend upon the cooperation of the public. The success of their jobs depend upon this factor. The reason the oil belt is one of the strongest districts in the interscholastic league despite the fact that most of the towns are small is because its people get behind their teams in a determined and business-like way.

And the Lord knows that if Cisco has a team next year the coach must have cooperation and not criticism.

Looking forward to the prospects of the oil belt as a whole in the 1931 season this department expresses hope that the district has learned some valuable lessons from the season just past. Rivalry is a fine thing. The district has been built upon it. But like fire, it is dangerous when it escapes sans control and degenerates into jealousy.

The football strength of the district last year was depreciated to a large degree by the injudicious and crafty use of rules that were developed for a worthy and healthful purpose. The very spirit and purpose of the game was lost in the maladministration of the regulations confining it. Every one of the Big Four lost valuable men and there is a strong doubt that in any case was the disqualified player deserving of the ban.

Those who really love the game and wish to see it developed upon a sportsman-like plane are hopeful that the forthcoming season will witness a reversal of the sentiment that dominated the district last year—less suicidal throat-cutting and more real football.

BIBLE ART LECTURE IS ILLUSTRATED

The double-lecture, "Jesus the Minister," and "The Drama of His Death and Triumph," presented by the Rev. B. C. Boney at the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening, was declared by those who heard and witnessed the presentation the peak of the series so far. This series, "The Bible in Art," which began last Wednesday evening, started with the Bible story of the creation, and has portrayed by stereoscopic reproductions of world famous paintings by such artists as Raphael, da Vinci, and Rubens, in a veritable panorama of beauty, the sequential events of scripture or sacred history through the death and resurrection of Jesus. The favor with which the series has been received is demonstrated by the increased attendance. Sunday evening the auditorium was filled as for no other attraction since boom days. The concluding double-lecture, "The Christian Church Begins," and "How the Gentle Game In," will be presented at 7 o'clock until 8 this evening, regardless of weather, it was announced. This is open to the public; free-will offerings will meet its cost.

Morning Hour At the morning hour the minister preached on "What God Expects of a Christian." After reading from memory his scripture lesson, as is his custom, Mr. Boney took the commendatory exordium to the letter to Thyatira, found in Revelation 2:18-23, and concentrating on the statement, "Your last works are more than your first," expounded in climatic order God's expectation of those who have declared for Him: "works" heads the list of His commendation to every one of the seven churches addressed. An effortless Christian is an anomaly. Pure religion and undefiled before God is this, to be busy in our concern for the weak, even as we guard our own purity; and while salvation is by faith, faith without works is dead, or interpreted means is no faith at all; and further, the Lord ends the 23rd verse with "I will give unto every one of you according to your works. Charity is the second word and while it is true that the Greek word 'agape' means or is inclusive of love, it is not exclusive of giving of our means as an indication of that love. Service, the next word, admonishes us to put ourselves in Christian brotherly contact with those whom we would help. "The minister concluded with the thought of growth, or progressiveness in our Christian life and with that of growth, or progress, and when you abuse the law of progress, you render static the life intrusted to you by your Maker. We must progress, or retrogression takes hold of us. Let us go forward for God."
