"Trifling With That Bird" May Cause The Offender Much Grief

The public has been warned by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that none must "trifle with that bird," yet there are those venturesome souls who are manifesting a questionable degree of sportmanship by taking a chance. We presume it is because "trifling is taboo, that they want to show the administrator that they can do it.

And while the world is watching the operation of the NRA many are asking the question: "What will Henry Ford do?" We are frank to admit we do not know, nor are we informed of the motive that prompts the motor car manufacturer in the course he is pursuing, but we presume that the administration is big enough and wise enough to handle the case, so we are not losing any sleep over what Ford will do, or what disciplinary measures if any, the government will adopt. If he does not sign the code some few may buy other makes of cars that might purchase Fords—but not many, we believe. The trouble with the public there are too many whose patriotism begins and ends with their pocket book. Some of these we have in Cisco, and locally is as far as the Citizen will stray afield in helping to put the NRA over. The editor is only a buck private in the volunteer army—has no rank as an officer in this militant aggregation—but we are doing quite a bit of scout duty as a privateer in slacker waters. And it is to these we direct our small artillery.

Stopped the "Bonus"

Last week the Citizen mentioned a matter of evasion of the general in administering the affairs of the string newspaper, cutting the pay of his employees 10 per cent. According to street rumor we have been informed that the general has stated that it was not a cut, but discontinuance of "the bonus" he has been paying his men since last May—before the NRA became a law. Call it what you will, the employees were not given the usual 30 day notice of its discontinuance, and had planned on the extra 10 per cent in their August pay check, but were disappointed—so were some of their creditors who expected payments of current obligations.

But be it "bonus" of a cut in salary, to initiate a salary cut at this time, es-

County Agent Advises Manner of Marketing Hogs to Government

Hog raisers are again warned by J. C. Patterson, County Agent, that it is necessary to have a permit before hogs, to be sold under the government plan, can be received at the Fort Worth yards.

"Pigs shipped without previous permission will not receive the government price. Each of the 20 commission firms operating at the Fort Worth stock yards may sell only 100 pigs per day under this plan, and growers planning shipments must first apply for permission from their commission men authorizing the shipment of a definite number of hogs, giving the approximate weights. The accumulated surplus of pigs offered for sale to the government are being fed $1.20 corn by stockyard hands at ruinous rates.

"A new ruling requires permit to be made out to original owner of the pigs, and this permit must be presented at time of sale or no sale to the government. Cooperative shipments may be made provided permits in the name of growers themselves accompany each lot.

"Permits are not required for piggy sows. Weights for piggy sows have been revised so that sows weighing as little as 240 pounds may be sold, bringing the government bonus."

pecially without warning, was an evasion of the spirit of the NRA, if not the letter. And it ill becomes the general in command of the volunteer forces to set the example of evasion, and expect the buck privates to face the cannon. He should be the man that all can point to and say "look at our leader! Let's follow him." Wouldn't it be a nice pickle if everybody did that very thing? It would take the standing army to back General Johnson in enforcing his orders. If the general did not want to get his feet

Randolph and City Mourns Passing of President Tyndall

The tragic death of Dr. John W. Tyndall, president of Randolph College, educator, Bible authority, author and minister, was a distinct shock to every citizen of Cisco and friends of Cisco's junior college, when it became known here Monday night that he had been almost instantly killed in an automobile accident early Monday evening when his car was in collision with a heavy truck at an intersection of the highway near Altus, Okla.

Telephone communication bringing the sad message here, and the press reports of the tragedy Tuesday morning from Altus, stated that:

"Dr. John W. Tyndall, president of Randolph College, Cisco, Texas, and Dewes Davenport, 22, of Clarendon, Texas, were killed and two others critically injured in an automobile collision 12 miles south of that city Monday.

"H. H. Tompkins of Fort Worth and Paul McDonald, 20, of Clarendon, are in an Altus hospital. Both were riding in the Tyndall car when it collided with a heavy truck at a highway intersection. Coy Byerley, driver of the truck, was released after he was questioned by county authorities.

"Tompkins is not expected to recover.

"It was believed here that Davenport and McDonald were hitchhiking and were picked up by Dr. Tyndall."

The above was practically all the information that reached here where both Dr. Tyndall and Tompkins were well known. Tompkins, it was learned, was accompanying President Tyndall to Altus, Okla., in connection with plans of the college executive to establish a broom factory at the college to enable students to earn their expenses while attending the school. The other victims of the accident, as the press report stated, are believed to have been two young men picked up on the road by the Tyndall car. Dr. Tyndall and Tompkins left Cisco about 1 o'clock Wednesday.

Enthusiastic Departure

In perfect health and spirits was he as he departed from his wife and friends Monday afternoon, full of enthusiasm for the success of his plans and for the ultimate success of Randolph, there was cause why his enthusiasm was shared by his wife and those with whom he last came in contact, none of whom had reason to think this was the last meeting with their friend and husband in this life.

The editor still retains a picture in memory's gallery of Mrs. Tyndall, at a local service station, the radiance of happiness reflected in her countenance, as she assisted her distinguished husband in preparing for his journey, just before he left Cisco. It was another picture, photographed in memory's gallery that I would, if I could, turn to the wall. A picture of a crushed and broken widow, mourning beside the bier of her distinguished dead, bearing her burden of sorrow alone, for hers is a grief that none can share—no verbal condolence of friends can soothe—for tis only time and God's grace that can assuage such sorrow that is all her own, for which she must rely upon divine support, in time, to heal. With both pictures before me I can realize and understand why the perspective is so black and cloudy now. But there is divine assurance that God's grace is sufficient to heal all wounds, and that "divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need."

So, the news could be nothing but a shock, the full horrible significance none could readily realize. "Surely, there must be some mistake," was the mental suggestion we all entertained, until forced by the presence of death to admit the awful truth.

Brought Back Here

The remains of President Tyndall were conveyed to Cisco early Tuesday morning by Mr. A. C. Green, of the Green Funeral Home, he leaving here in company with Prof. W. F. Bruce, of Randolph, immediately after the telephone message was received announcing the terrible tragedy, and returned with the body at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, where the remains were prepared to be buried at St. Louis, Mich., the native city of Mrs. Tyndall, to which place they were conveyed by rail, leaving here on the Texas & Pacific fast train, the Texan, at 10:15 Thursday morning, following the funeral services at 9 o'clock, at the Randolph chapel. The services at the chapel were conducted by Rev. M. J. Johnson, pastor of the Christian church at Erick, Okla., with whom Dr. Tyndall expected to visit on this trip. The mother of Tompkins left Cisco Tuesday morning for Altus to be at the bedside of her son.

Is the automobile Randolph's voodoo? Dr. Joseph Keevil was killed in an auto accident near Pecos soon after being elected to the presiden-

If an Institution Works for You, You Should Support It

Were some outsiders to come into Cisco and tell our business men that he will operate on a plan that will stimulate business, help collections, make business safer and induce slow creditors to pay back debts, don't you think all would be foolish if they did not throw in with that bird and give him wholehearted support? Provided, of course, that he would back up his promises by delivering the goods.

Such is the province of the Retail Merchants Association. It is a bureau of information. It has the rating of most of the people who come into Cisco. It knows whether the new old citizen is prompt pay, slow or an obligation evader. It gives favorable reports on all wishing credits if their past record entitles them to this credit. It protects its subscribers against dead beats. It induces careless and tardy payers to be more prompt in their obligations, and often non-members are the beneficiaries.

Two Examples

A couple of examples has come under the observation of the Citizen:

A lady, going to another city where she expected to make some purchases, and wanted part credits for the merchandise she expect to buy. She requested the local association to give her a letter that would entitle her to accommodations from the city merchant. The manager told her she would give her an answer after making some investigations. Doing so she found this candidate for favors owed a local grocery bill that had been charged off; a dry goods bill that was relegated to the P. & L. assortment; another account that had expired by limitations; and told the candidate that she could not get the letter she requested.

This peeved the candidate, who flared up and said:

"Well, I don't care for your letter. I will refer them to those with whom I have been trading lately, and they will tell the city merchant that I pay my debts."

"But the city merchant will not write to pour references. They will communicate with the Retail Merchant Association," the manager told her.

The lady never got her letter, neither did she get the credit from the city merchant she desired. But she found it would be to her interest to satisfy those local people who had charged her accounts off, and began paying these back obligations as fast as she could.

Paying An Old Debt

Another party contemplated buying an automobile. The dealer was a subscriber to the R. M. A., and applied for the record of his would be customer. The manager told him the party owed a debt of some two or three hundred dollars that was barred by limitation, and though he had a job had made no effort to clear his record. The auto dealer told him he would have to clear up his record before he would sell him. The debtor called upon the R. M. A. manager and asked what he could do?

"Pay up this old obligation and the R. M. A. will give you a clean bill of health," he was told.

"But that debt is barred by limitation," he replied.

"Yet, you owe it, and its being barred does not make you honest."

"But I only have $200 in cash, and if I pay this debt I will have nothing for the cash payment on the car, which I need."

"Better pay $100 on the old debt, make a note for the difference, give the dealer the other $100, and make your payments so you can meet them," the manager advised the man.

Thinking the matter over the prospective car buyer decided that honesty was the best policy and proceeded to do as he was advised by the R. M. A. manager. The result of this episode was the outlawed debt is being paid; the man has his car; is meeting his payments promptly and his record is clean on the R. M. A. books.

The beneficiary of this conversion—

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.---Col. 1:10.

*O striving heart, thy pure desire
In sanctuary hold;
Deny that sin has power, let Soul
Thy pathway mold.*

---Margaret Wingfield,

Often mortals turn more readily and radically to Truth, Spirit, and away from materiality when in distress; when they are laid low with sickness or find themselves caught in the toils of sin, or, perhaps, when beset by lack, loneliness, or sorrow. Then, it may be said, is Love's opportunity.---Duncan Sincclair.

CITIZEN'S BIRTHDAY

This is the Citizen's birthday. The youngster is three years old with this issue, and considering it was born in a storm, deserted by its progenitor, and weathered the storm of depression under the nurture and care of its adopted parent, it believes it has won its right to live.

The Citizen was born Sept. 8, 1929, its founder, Editor Rafferty, was supported by a coterie of progressive individuals who wished a newspaper that would champion the cause of the people, rather than be the mouthpiece of the special interest, and above all a publication not owned and controlled by non-residents. They desired that Cisco should have a newspaper identified with Cisco, and one that would champion those progressive policies of local interest advocated by local people, that would give all a square deal and a fair play.

With these ideals as its objective it is not unnatural that it has survived.

But its career was rather stormy. When the adversities of depression swept over the land the infant was deserted by its founder, and would have died of inanition but for the nurture and care of its foster pa-ent, C. M. Nichols, who nursed it through the most trying period of the depression.

Then the present owner came into the picture. Returning to Cisco we acquired the Citizen by lease, and after one year it passed into the present hands by purchase.

From its birth it has championed the cause of the common man, and advocated those policies it believed for the weal of the entire city. It supported the progressive movement that prevailed here soon after its establishment, and elected a majority of those men it supported as progressive officers.

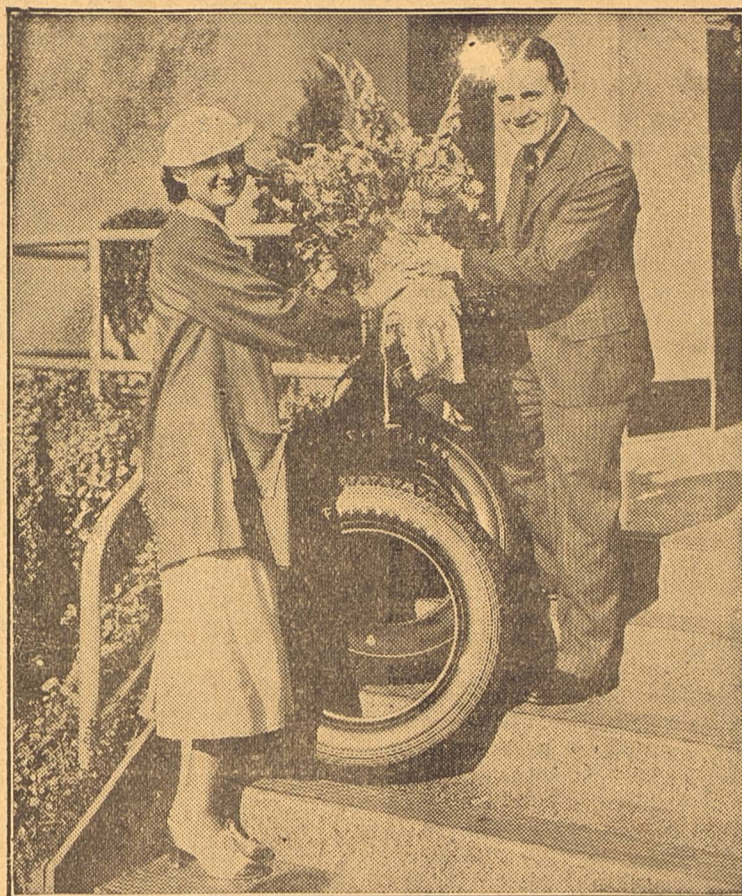

But like all popular movements there are self servers, who aligned themselves with the progressive element only for positions of personal profit and preferment. These the Citizen has not hesitated to repudiate when they were wrong, but have always supported them when they were right.

In the future, as in the past, the Citizen will follow that policy of supporting those men and measures that are for the general welfare of the community, and will not hesitate to denounce those selfish souls whose patriotism is limited to their personal gain.

It is not strange that a newspaper advocating such policies should live. In fact, one would think all would rally to the support of a locally owned publication that had for its objective the greatest good for the largest number of the citizenry in the community in which it lived. Now that it has reached that stage of maturity and stability, its experimental status is past, and it has taken its place among those permanent institutions that are fixtures of the city and county.

So the Citizen, on its third birthday, extends greetings to its many readers and business patrons, and pledges its continued support to those measures that have as their objective the betterment of the entire people, and the general good of

Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., Presents Prize to "A Century of Progress" Visitor

As Miss Alice Ochenslager of Aurora, Illinois entered the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building at the World's Fair to see tires made, she was suddenly halted and pronounced the three-millionth visitor to the building. The crowds paused as she was presented with a set of five tires just out of the molds. Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., who was attending the Fair during Farmers' Weew, made the presentation.

If you are for Cisco, believe in supporting Cisco farmers, Cisco merchants, Cisco industries and local public institutions and not self-servers who would profit by your official trust, the Citizen is for you and with you. Otherwise this paper will use every ounce of its influence to block your game and retire you from public life.

CHAIN BUSINESS TAX BILL

One of Governor Ferguson's platform pledges was a graduated tax on chain businesses. A bill passed the house covering this measure, but like many other meritorious bills was slain in the house of lobbyists—the senate. It seems that is the proper appellation to the upper house of the legislature, for surely it is dominated by the representatives of special interests. Members of that body who are not "retainers" of the special interests are usually "approached" by the lobbyists, in the employ of that class of business that want to exploit the public. The Citizen does not mean to infer that there are not honest, loyal and patriotic men in the upper house, but judging by the measures favoring monopolies that passed that passed the senate, and the burying of those bills whose objective was the protection of the public, the honest senators were in the minority. Nor do we mean that the majority are directly in the pay of public service and big business corporations, but those that are "packing monopolies that passed in the senate, and the burying the most influential members, whom the younger and less experienced members learn to follow. Then, too, those that are controlled by the lobbyists augment the hirelings of the special interests, making it easy for their pet measures to pass, and hard for any bill in the interest of the public welfare to see the light of day.

We take House Bill No. 337, for instance, known as the Lotief bill, which passed the house by a safe majority. It was killed in committee in the senate. One of the leading executioners of the Lotief bill was the Hon. Walter Woodward, whom it seems, convinced the senate committee that the bill was unconstitutional, when as a matter of fact every provision of the bill had been passed upon by the courts and declared constitutionally clean.

But why should the members of the senate take the word of Woodward? He is known to be one of the hirelings of the gas trust. Woodward represented the gas monopoly in its fight to kill the independent gas company of Santa Anna. But the courts ruled against the trust "retainer" from Coleman, and upheld the right of Santa Anna for an injunction restraining the gas trust from promulgating rates that would bankrupt the independent gas company of Santa Anna. Yet, this minion of the trust, who with the oath of office yet echoing from his lips, pleads the unconstitutionality of the Lotief bill only a few months after the court had ruled its provisions constitutional in a case in which Woodward's clients were defeated. The Lotief bill contained the provisions ruled upon by the courts, and declared constitutional on all material points.

The Lotief bill will be reintroduced at the called session if the governor can be induced to submit it, but of course the friends of the special interests will see that it dies in committee or slaughtered on the floor of the senate or house.

The Citizen hopes Governor Ferguson will submit her plank advocating a graduated tax on chain businesses of every kind. There is a disposition on the part of capital to hog it all, and to tax business greed would make it safe for individuals to live. There is no place in a democracy for monopoly, and every business establishment, more than one, should be taxed so high it cannot thrive. This applies especially to newspaperers, which are the most vicious of all chains, whose purchasing power should be curtailed by taxation to that extent that would place them on an even footing with the individual

MORRIS HAYS

Kittrell Alone of

Mourners Remains

"Passing away" expresses my thoughts as I contemplate the "passing away" of Cisco's old landmarks—early settlers.

About five years ago my old friend, John Broyles, left us, and on the Sunday afternoon of his burial among other friends gathered at his home were Bill Hittson, John Brown, George Huesties and the writer. Within three months Bill Hittson died while sitting in his chair; the next year John Brown suffered a stroke and followed him; the present year George Huesties passed on with a stroke, and the last of the quintet, save the writer, John Stamps answered the death summons and passed over the border by the same route. The writer alone, of these five "old landmarks," remains to tell of the passing of his former contemporaries.

"What is your life but a vapor that appeareth but a little time and passeth away," says the Apostle James.

The writer, aged 82 years, was the eldest of five, and some one must speak of him when the "appointed time" comes.

With all these the writer was on friendly terms, but more intimately with John Stamps, whom he had known for more than 40 years, and esteemed him with warmest friendship, and shall miss sadly the friendly greeting we always exchanged.

Farewell, John, and all, till we meet again—when? where?

There is one who knows, of whom Job says (12:10) "in whose hand is the life of every living thing and the breath of all mankind."

Firing Squad Gets Busy Again; Ruins
Mrs. White's Hedge

Another case of ruined shrubbery is charged to the firing squad when Mrs. May White, living on Leggett avenue, in a communication to Mayor Berry reported that a hedge in her yard had been destroyed by those burning grass in that section. Mayor Berry read the letter to the commission at the last meet, together with Mrs. White's request for water free for the next two months to aid her in saving the residue of the hedge, which she thought was not entirely killed. On motion the water department was authorized to make no charge for water against Mrs. White for three months, to cover damage done.

The communication to the mayor said she had cautioned the firing squad not to permit the fire to spread to the hedge, and that she had raked the trash away for six feet, but the flames got beyond control of the squad, and the hedge was destroyed.

It is nice to clear off the dead grass from lots—better, perhaps, to cut it when green—but if it has to be burned extra care should be used to keep it from destroying trees and shrubbery.

Commissioner Foxworth thought that some one responsible should be present when fire is put out in the city limits, and his opinion was shared by other commissioners.

This summer the firing squad has probably killed more shrubbery and trees than can be grown back in five years. Yet, the city gives reasonable water allowance to make the city beautiful, and has permitted the firing squad to kill more trees than the water has saved.

Sidney, Iowa, Aug. 16—Shorty Ricker of Ranger, Texas, bettered the world's record in bulldogging a steer in 3.8 seconds here today in the annual Sidney Rodeo. Officials said the world record is 4 seconds flat. Bill Buschley of Topeka, Kansas, and John Jordon of Carlsbad, N. M., were injured. Buschley by a horse and Jordon by a steer. "Trifling With That Bird" May Cause The Offender Much Grief wet why did he get in the water?

So far as the Citizen is informed the extra 10 per cent the employees of the string newspaper expected to pay out on local debts has not been restored to them, but diverted to the coffers of the Austin owners of the string sheet.
"You mustn't trifle with that bird," is the admonition of General Johnson, but the general seems to have "found a way to get around it."
If the president of the chamber of commerce expects his appointees to enforce the NRA in Cisco he had better do a little missionary work at the top, or accept the criticism that may be directed upon his devoted head. The Citizen believes that President Poe expected those whom he named as top officers of the army to obey the regulations by example, as well as precept. But he has the power to demand obedience. The power to reduce to ranks any disloyal officer is vested in the authority that created it.

Other Evasions

But other unauthenticated rumors have come to the ears of the "privatier." One employe stated that he had staidy work till the volunteer army began to function, but was "let out" in a few days after the drive got under way. Since that time he has worked only part of four days, and the last time he was paid at the rate of 25c per hour. This employe is a member of a group that recently raised prices.
Two other rumors of evasion—rather profiteering. Neither of these cases, have been verified, and for the present no names will be called. One employe was receiving $7 per week, but his pay was increased to $14, for Blue Eagle consumption only, as it seemed there was a string tied to the raise, for after cashing his pay check his employer told him that he was expected to remit the extra $7 back to the cashier, which he did the first week. He told of the transaction to his father, who instructed his son to do the same thing the next pay day, but to ask a receipt for the money returned. The employe was again told that he was expected to return the extra $7, and he asked for a receipt, but "anything that is written may be read," so the employer told him to keep the entire $14. The Citizen is not sure but it is our opinion this employe is not working on the same job now.

Another of a similar episode was where a workman was given a raise from $11 to $14. A party to whom he owed a small bill, learning of his good fortune, asked him for the debt, as he had gotten a raise. The employe replied:

"Yes, I have been given a raise. That is, I am receiving a check for $3 more than I formerly received, but the extra $3 goes back to my employer, and there is no increase in my net salary."

Can you beat it?
"Trifling with that Bird won't put the NRA over in Cisco."

cy of the college in 1930; Dr. Randolph Clark, for whom the college was named, was seriously injured when the car in which he was riding, overturned on the highway near Houston about two years ago, from which, fortunately, he recovered. The last victim being President Tyndall, in which Mrs. Tyndall has been twice bereaved from the same source, as her first husband was killed in an auto accident about 13 years ago this month.
Dr. Tyndall came to Randolph college about three years ago as dean of the Bible department, continuing in this capacity with the faculty till his election as president this summer. Since his assumption of the presidency he has been actively working out plans and projects for the school, among which were several industrial projects to give young people employment to enable them to attend the college. The first of these was the pants factory, in which those students who desired to do so, might be employed. In this the thoroughness of his plans were disclosed, as he had contracted for the entire output to be taken and marketed. This and the broom factory projects were to be supplemented by other industrial plans, some of which being private projects that he had expected to foster, and which have not yet been revealed.

In his passing it is felt that both the school and the city have suffered an irreparable loss, as his projects would have insured the success of the school, and meant much in a material way to the entire city. It is announced that so far as can be done all of President Tyndall's plans will be carried out, and his death won't delay the opening of the school next Tuesday morning, as originally intended.

President Tyndall was born in New Bern, N. C., July 2, 1877, and besides his widow is survived by his father, J. Z. Tyndall, a son, Rev. John W. Tyndall, Jr., of Corinth, Miss; a daughter, Mrs. Ward Green, of Atlanta, Ga., children by a former marriage; a stepson, Harry Dole, son of Mrs. Tyndall also by a former husband. Two brothers and two sisters also survive.

GUNMEN OPEN DOVE

SEASON WILL FEED

A number of shooters opened the dove season last Friday, with a hunt in the Virgil Heyser pasture, where the bag was around 75, with game plentiful and the shooting good. None were brought in, however, as the kill was dressed and cooked on the ground, barbecue style. In fact this was the original intention of the party, as they look for a barbecue feast of the famous colored barbecue artists, who prepared a most tempting feast of the toothsome birds. Those in the party were R. W. Mancill, Henry Drumwright, Homer McDonald, Forrest Wright, Andy Anderson, Dr. Chas. C. Jones, J. V. Heyser, and the indispensable Bill Lacy.

CISCO BOY ORDAINED A BAPTIST MINISTER

The rites of ordination were administered to Elwin Skiles at the First Baptist church of Cisco, Sunday afternoon, when this ceremony was held by a presbytery of about a dozen ministers. The ordination sermon was feelingly delivered by Rev. George W. Parks, grandfather of the new minister.

Reverend Skiles is a native of Cisco, a graduate of the Cisco High School, and studied at Simmons and Baylor Universities. Elwin begins his ministerial career excellently equipped for service of the Master in his chosen profession, and we predict a brilliant career for the young gentleman.

One of the objects of the meeting will be plans to reinstate those whose pensions have lapsed, and that appeal blanks will be supplied to those entitled to reinstatement.

Other matters of interest to the veterans will be transacted, and a program of entertainment has been arranged. The meeting will be held in the early afternoon.

the man whose account was outlawed—is not a member of the Retail Merchants Association.

Can you beat it?
A local retail merchants association is an asset to any community. What of it if you do not happen to like the manager? What difference does it make so long as the manager protects you from frauds and dead beats, whether the personality of the manager is just your type? You are in business, and if the manager can safeguard your interests, induce bad paymasters to clean up their record by paying the account you hold which you had charged off, that manager is a better friend to your business than you are. Probably you have customers whom you are not in love with; would not care to pal with them, but you appreciate their business.
Are you fair to yourself by denying yourself this protection?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH SERVICES

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 10, including First Church of Eastland.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 135: "Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations."

Included with other passages from the Bible is the following from Proverbs 22: "By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honour, and life."

The Lesson-Sermon also includes citations from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Take away wealth, fame, and social organizations, which weigh not one jot in the balance of God, and we get clearer views of Principle. Break up cliques, level wealth with honesty, let worth be judged according to wisdom, and we get better views of humanity. . .

"To ascertain our progress, we must learn where our affections are placed and whom we acknowledge and obey as God. If divine Love is becoming nearer, dearer, and more real to us, matter is then submitting to Spirit. The objects we pursue and the spirit we manifest reveal our standpoint, and show what we are winning" (p. 239).

Mr. and Mrs. John Shertzer and two interesting daughters, Misses Lillian and Marilyn, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Cliett have returned home from an extended vacation spent in Chicago and several of the Western states.
