Counterfeiting Ring Is Suspected With Arrest Here

FIVE-DOLLAR BOGUS BILLS CONFISCATED

Department of Justice agents today were expected out of Dallas to investigate alleged activities of a counterfeiting ring, evidence of which was uncovered by the Cisco police department with the arrest of one man who had three bogus five-dollar United States treasury notes in his possession at the time of arrest and was alleged to have passed at least two in Cisco.

Chief of Police Miller was of the opinion the bills were printed in a nearby city which is a possible headquarters for a suspected ring.

Investigation was started with the arrest of a man named as C. D. Clark, of Rising Star, by Cisco Officers Simpson and Hicks early this morning. The arrest was made at a residence on the Lake Cisco road where the man had been staying. He was booked at the city hall on a charge of drunkenness, and search of his belongings revealed three five-dollar bills claimed to be counterfeit, officers announced.

Two Victims.

The arrest was made following complaint of two local citizens, one a negro, that they had accepted similar bills from a man before discovering that they were counterfeit.

A bill shown by the negro was retained by the officers.

The bills, officers said were printed directly from counterfeit plates well engraved. Comparison of a real note and a counterfeit note revealed striking differences, but the bogus bills were so well made that their passage upon an unsuspecting victim would not be difficult. The printing, however, was blurred and poor, due perhaps to the character of ink used—government ink for currency printing is prepared under a closely guarded process—and to the inefficiency of the printer. A noticeable contrast, and one the most apt to attract suspicion without the presence of a real note for comparison, was the quality of the paper, which was much paler and thinner than currency paper, also prepared under a guarded formula.

The engraving was almost perfect. Checking by a genuine bill revealed, however, that the red seal appearing on the genuine money to the left of the face, was missing while the serial numbers, printed in red on the real five-dollar bill, were printed in green.

At 7:30 he will speak again on "The Parting of the Ways." Mrs. Maner and Mrs. Ullom will sing a duet for the morning services.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 25.—No significance was attached to information given in the Lindbergh kidnaping case by the Rev. Dodson Peacock and two other citizens of Norfolk, Va., the morning press statement of the police said. The statement denied any knowledge that the men, who called on Lindbergh Wednesday night, were negotiating for the return of the baby.

It said:

"The Rev. Dodson Peacock and two other citizens of Norfolk, Va., are not negotiating for the return of the Lindbergh baby so far as police know. They visited Col. Lindbergh Wednesday night, gave him information, which on being investigated was found to have no specific significance in the investigation. There has been no report made to the police as to the finding of any piece of the baby's clothing.

"We have had no negotiations with any underworld characters and the police have no knowledge of any arrangement made with them."

Search was started for Earl McDowell, one of the patrons of the speakeasy who, Taggart told police, killed Miss Renshaw with the last of a half dozen shots he aimed in drunken anger at the radio.

The jury reported about 9 o'clock.

In a previous trial of the case, about a year ago, Privett, who pleaded self-defense, low mentality and insult to female relatives, was given a 30-year term. The court of criminal appeals awarded him a new trial.

The second trial of the case started Monday morning and arguments to the jury were completed about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

AUSTIN, March 25.—An oil production program that provides increased allowances for Kansas and Oklahoma but reduces the production of Texas and California, was recommended today by the oil states advisory committee meeting here.

Allowances recommended included: Texas, 875,000 barrels daily, a decrease of 27,000; Oklahoma, 575,000 an increase of 29,000; California 475,000, a decrease of 25,000, and Kansas 130,000, an increase of 20,000.

A total daily production of 2,373,000 barrels for all the states was recommended. This is a decrease of 3,000 barrels from recommendations made at a former conference.

The new schedule recommended by the committee is to be effective April 1 to October 1.

After a meeting at a hotel the committee called on the Texas State Railroad commission. Only a few minutes social conference was held before lunch and an appointment was made for the conference during the afternoon.

Chairman Terrell, of the Texas commission had previously announced the commission has no power to enter into an agreement on production as a result of recent federal court rulings.

It is understood the Texas commission will not be asked to agree to any fixed production but only for assurance that there is no intention to turn loose the state's potential production.

The pioneer showman and rancher, his voice trembling with emotion, pleaded not guilty.

His physicians and attorneys stood about him in a semicircle as he stood before County Judge R. M. Parkhurst to enter the plea.

His friends had to help him up the steps of the court house. He was seriously ill, his physicians told the court, and the trip here endangered his health impaired by worry over the many futile attempts he had made to save his ranch from creditors.

Judge Parkhurst ordered his release on $1,500 bond which was promptly signed by lifelong friends. The court then ordered Col. Miller placed under $1,000 peace bond which also was signed.

Hearing on the charge was set for April 15.

Art Exhibit Attracting Attention as Plans for Display Are Being Completed

The art exhibit recently announced for Cisco by the First Industrial Arts club is proving to be a subject of much interest, not only to the people of Cisco, but to these of surrounding communities.

"It will be surprising to know that many of our best citizens have created real works of art in paintings and etchings, while others have excelled in handwork and needlework," said club officials in charge.

"Many of these will be on display at the Maxwell Building on Friday and Saturday, April 1st and 2nd. About 150 to 200 paintings alone are expected to be entered in this exhibit.

"Most people are attracted by things of beauty, but do we really appreciate art? It is with us everywhere. Its beginnings lie in the remote civilizations of the past. In art, more than in any other province of the world's history, we are indeed the heirs of all the ages.

"Love, sorrow and worship are the powerful human emotions that have inspired the theme of pictures the world calls great. In each passing century art has become more noble than before, loses more of the things that do not count, and grows to be a very real part of the life of a nation. Great men have spent their lives working out their ideals of purity in line and color.

"Almost every man, woman, and child has inherited, in some degree the instinct which is the beginning of art. There is a talent sense of beauty and imagination in the souls of all people. Art has been present, as a living force in the world for some sixteen thousand years. In a way, it has become a great science. We should never count an hour wasted that is spent in looking at these treasures—for every time our hearts are moved by beauty our souls are marching on.

"It is the hope of the club that this exhibit will be gratifying to all who see it, and that some boy or girl may be inspired, who will strive to achieve the unattainable in the realm of art."

Success Claimed for Anti-Hoarding Drive

FORT WORTH, March 25.—The anti-hoarding campaign in Texas was declared a success today by A. P. Barrett, chairman of the drive, who cited increased bank deposits, trade revival and a general trend toward business confidence as evidence.

An encouraging sign, he said, was the absence of bank failures in Texas during the last month. Prior to opening the drive, he pointed out, an average of one bank failure each week had been reported for more than a year.

NOTED MASON DIES

COMMERCIAL, March 25.—Aubrey H. Goff, 45 years old, well known in Texas Masonic circles, died here today. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon.

CONTESTS ARE STARTED AT 9 THIS MORNING

School children and teachers from all over Eastland county converged upon Cisco today for the opening events of the annual County Inter-scholastic league. By noon it was estimated that more than 1,500 visitors had arrived with other groups expected to come in during the afternoon for the remainder of the program today.

Saturday, the big day of the event, when the finals in all principal contests, both literary and athletic, will be decided, should see more than 2,000 in attendance, officials said.

Only a very few of the contests had been determined by noon. The morning program was devoted mostly to preliminaries with finals to take place either this afternoon or tomorrow.

The track and field meet which began at 10 o'clock will reach its greatest interest Saturday afternoon. None of the track events have been decided, preliminaries being run during the morning and will continue during the afternoon.

Cisco Girl Wins.

A Cisco entry won one of the events completed this morning. It was the junior girls' declamation contest for high schools and was won by Louise Statham, entry from the Cisco Grammar school.

Sammie Ruth Matthews, of Hodges Park, Ranger, won second place in this section and Doris Lawrence, Eastland junior high, third.

In the rural section of the junior girls' declamation Hazel Bowles, of Pleasant Hill, took first; Clarice Carter, of Yellow Mound, second, and Kathleen Webb, of Romney, third.

The Eastland south ward primary rhythm band won its contest with the rhythm band of the Rising Star schools.

Four schools tied for first place in the picture memory contests: Teams from Hodges Park, Ranger; Young Ward, Ranger; South Ward, Eastland, and Colony schools were so tied. Rising Star took second place; Eastland West Ward third and Cooper Ward, Ranger, fourth.

In the track and field preliminaries this morning qualifying contests were held in the 100-yard dash; 120-yard high hurdles and 220-yard low hurdles.

Lunch for visiting contestants and teachers was served at noon in the high school cafeteria with Mrs. R. N. Cluck and Mrs. E. H. Varnell in charge.

The high school auditorium was crowded with spectators overflowing into the corridors of the building at 9 o'clock this morning, as the assembly opened the meet. Hundreds of the visitors did not come to the building but went directly to the athletic grounds where the track and field preliminaries were started at 10 o'clock.

The contests are open to the public.

Supt. R. N. Cluck, of Cisco, is director-general of the meet, and Coach T. L. Jefferies, of Cisco, is athletic director, assisted by Coach Brummett, of Scranton.

THE END OF ENMITY:—When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.—Proverbs 16: 7.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT.

Former Sec'y of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo flew to Texas recently with a plan for enriching the American growers of cotton and wheat. With a flexible tariff as a working basis McAdoo would fortify the growers of the two major crops against depressionism in the domestic market by fixing the minimum prices at which they might be purchased. He would empower the secretary of agriculture, with approval of the president, to determine the status of crop and market factors and to fix annually, semi-annually or quarterly the minimum price for which cotton or wheat could be legally bought and sold.

He criticized relief plans that have been enacted by the American congress and brought forward a proposal that is even more baneful in the violation not only of the economic laws which cannot be ignored in any program of rehabilitation, but of a fundamental principle of individual rights.

Besides the fact that such a law would have the temporary effect of neutralizing those natural forces which govern a proper distribution of energy, by encouraging production out of relation with ultimate consumption, such a law would result in driving the wedge of governmental interference a little deeper into the complex national life that has been built up on the principle of personal initiative. It would be taking government yet further out of its proper sphere and bringing it into direct conflict with personal liberty, like a meddling parent whose paternalistic zeal defeats its own motives.

It seems to us that what is needed now is less regulation and consequently less burden, so that the national energy may be freed to work out its own salvation. It is not in the nature of things possible for government to guarantee prosperity to its citizens. The law of supply and demand is an inexorable reality in all economic relationships, and by no other means than an equitable adjustment of these two factors can prosperous conditions be assured. Any effort to support either out of its normal relationship with the other is doomed to failure.

Mr. McAdoo's plan is another instance of that futile reasoning that has brought the government more and more into conflict with the rights and interests of its citizens, in a paternalistic effort to serve those interests. The severest indictment of contemporary systems of government is their inherent lack of flexibility. By that is meant the quality of being readily able to adjust their functions and their burdens to the fluctuating levels of the national life which supports them. That fact has been no better demonstrated than in recent months of depression. Government is a slow moving mechanism at best, and the structural task involved in reforming it to meet unexpected conditions is appalling. In nation, state, county and city we are feeling the rigidity of this structure and discovering grave violations of economic laws which hinder efforts at recovery.

"The people least governed are the best governed." That is they are more able to work out their own well-being by natural processes unhampered by artificial restrictions out of harmony with the nature of things. Regulatory impositions upon business, justified by the end in view but impractical in the methods of application, demonstrate this. The Interstate Commerce commission has accomplished a worthy work, and its abolition is certainly not to be considered, but one cannot but feel that if its system of administration and the normal effects of competitive enterprise were less in conflict, the railroad industry would the sooner work itself out of the morass into which it has fallen along with other industries. This is but an instance in which man-made regulation, as excellent as it sometimes is, fails in critical moments to harmonize with natural principles. In the maintenance of rate structures, for instance, the method is such that charges are difficult to co-ordinate with the value of the service rendered as determined by the barometer of price levels and purchasing power.

The federal farm board, in its operations to assist the farmer, is an even more well-defined instance of the fallacy of attempting to govern the natural with the artificial means. In the organization of cooperative associations it has and is accomplishing a work that justifies its existence but in other directions where it has sought to bend economic principles to an end its operations have not been blessed.

It is true that similar conditions affect commercial transactions outside of governmental regulation but where the free play of natural laws is unchecked readjustment is more rapid. The principle involved is that the increasing artificial limitations imposed by government serves to interrupt rather than accelerate economic recovery, and Mr. McAdoo's proposal is but an instance of an attempt to push such limitations yet deeper into the machinery in the deceiving guise of obtaining relief.

HOW TO PUT AWAY HOME BREWERS.

Grand Island is a very progressive little city in Nebraska. Chlorination of the water supply of Grand Island produced results. Grand Island city officials found themselves severely criticized. It appears that home brewers are very numerous and are very outspoken. They made the discovery that the chlorine water retarded the manufacture of home brew in their cellars and imparted to the home product a peculiar as well as nasty flavor. Moreover, sellers of home brew ingredients growled about the falling off in their sales since the chlorination equipment was placed in operation. They said their former customers complained that the water made brewing impossible.

There is something new every day under the American sun. There is a way to destroy the art of the home brewer as well as his product in every American city and town. In addition to this the manufacturers of chlorine will be given a big boost in their combined output, there will be higher price levels, all the home brewers will go out of business, and thus the prayers of the righteous will be answered. Award Grand Island a larger place on the map of the nation. It has started something.

MR. DONOVAN'S GOLDEN RECORD

Since Mr. Donovan has invited the public to scrutinize his past record as a City Commissioner, we deem it wise before going to the polls and casting our ballots to return him, as a guardian of our civic welfare, to his former place on said Commission, to call the attention of Cisco taxpayers to a few of the high points in that record, which he points with seeming pride.

On July 12th, 1920, the sworn records from Austin, State Comptroller's office, show that Mr. Donovan was present and voted "yes" to a proposition for the issuance of bonds to be paid by the taxpayers of the City of Cisco, without their vote, knowledge or consent, in the sum of $100,000.

On the following Nov. 22nd he voted "yes" again and plastered another $300,000 on the same unsuspecting citizens.

Sell intoxicated, apparently, with the power of his lofty political position, he then, May 9th, 1921, proceeded to vote "yes" on another issue of bonds to the tune of $350,000.

Mr. Donovan's appetite for bonds being now partly assuaged, he tapered off on May 8th, 1922, with only an issue of another $100,000, making in all a neat $850,000 lien on the homes of our City, in violation of the statutes of the State of Texas and his oath of office.

Well, whether you wish to tell us or not, the people will answer these questions on next April 5th at the City Hall, and cast their ballots, we hope, for Burnett, Winston and Henderson, who are in no way mixed up with the past questionable finances of the city.

Any error in the above will gladly be corrected and given the same publicity as the foregoing article.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

It is said that the officials of railroads, power, gas, telephone, ice and water companies live a quiet life amid peace and plenty. The more they labor to uplift the communities they serve, the more their motives are questioned by a small but noisy part of our population.

If they take a hand in politics as private citizens, they are accused of being crooked. If they don't, they are accused of being cowards.

If they advocate public improvements, they are condemned and their motives questioned.

If they try to discuss fairly the merits of their business, they are considered liars.

Yes, indeed, the life of the officials of public service companies is made exceedingly pleasant.

Of course, we always must have something to kick about, to live for, to strive for, hope for, get mad about, boost, sit down on, show up, help along, or shout about. We can't all agree but just why a lot of people pick on the officers of public service companies as goats is more than I can see, for they are citizens the same as the rest of us.

Maybe it's because public service men are, as a usual thing, a pleasant, smiling, easy to talk to, look at and get along with crowd. Again, maybe it's because they are progressive and are town builders. Perhaps again, the big noise is caused by the very small portion of our population who would never enjoy living unless they had some fancied pet peeve to worry about. Some of them act as though they would like to have the home town a place where people forget their debtors and debtors forget their debts, where there is no business, no rain, no flowers, many tears, no smiles, no strength, nothing to pattern after and no temptations.

5 ways to use a telephone

Visit CHICAGO from your home ... for $1.90

Station-to-station after 8:30 p.m.

CHICAGO ... towering buildings ... roar of the Loop district ... beautiful Lake Shore Drive ... friends who live in this colorful city ... business associates there. And it's all as near as your telephone!

Just ask for "Long Distance" ... and you're there.

Fast ... you're usually connected while you hold the line.

Clear ... as a local call.

Low in cost ... you can call at reduced rates after 8:30 o'clock at night.

Use the fast voice highway between here and Chicago for three minutes tonight ... or any night. Call a friend. Call a relative. Call a business acquaintance. See for yourself how much pleasure and profit long distance can mean to you.

The best reason for having a telephone, as one telephone user says, is not having one. Here are some incidents that prove the point:

Little Bobby fell downstairs. He was hurt and mother was frightened. But she wasn't too frightened to know what to do. She called up the doctor ... and he was there in a few minutes.

It was only a stray cat in the basement, the policeman said. Mrs. Clark laughed ... a little nervously. But what a comfort it was to know the telephone would bring help so quickly!

Jim Mulvaney's back at work again ... after two months. Last night the Boss telephoned: "Jim, we landed a big contract. Be on hand first thing in the morning."

What else can you buy that every member of the family can use ... that will be a source of safety in case of fire, sickness, emergency ... that will be a convenience always?

The dime-a-dance girl

By JOAN CLAUTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ellen Rossiter, beautiful, 20-year-old, loves Larry Harrowgate, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl, Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay, 57 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Barclay. Barclay has been married before. A scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer. To avoid notoriety Ellen and Barclay are secretly married. They drive to his Long Island home, deserted except for Fergus, a butler. There Barclay suffers a heart attack. Louis Syms, Barclay's lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses. Barclay dies at dawn.

Syms tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers proving Barclay's divorce from Leda Grayson have been stolen. Ellen yields claim to Barclay's fortune to avoid scandal. Then she learns Larry Harrowgate is Barclay's nephew. Heartbroken, she returns home.

Ellen distrusts Fergus. She returns to work as a hostess at Dreamland, a dance hall. Larry comes there, tells her he loves her. He asks, "You weren't married, were you?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

Ellen's heart was beating tempestuously. Larry waited for his answer. Suddenly the girl said what she had not meant to say.

"No—I—I didn't get married." Over and over she had told her sick and gully soul it would be so easy to explain everything. Now it was too late. Ellen had never seen Larry more deeply moved, more desperately serious.

"You couldn't! You couldn't marry anyone else. Tell me you couldn't because you belong to me!" "That's an odd thing for you to say," she faltered.

"I know it is," he agreed with a short laugh.

She sat perfectly still, her blue eyes on his and one of her hands clasped in Larry's. He leaned nearer.

"You mean I hadn't any right to say that?" "I guess that's what I mean," she said, a little uncertainly. "You see you didn't say a word."

"It didn't occur to me," he said, faintly scowling. "It's damned hard for me to be honest now. It's hard for me to remember how smug and complacent I was during those days before I got that last note of yours. It's easy enough to remember how I've felt since—half crazy from thinking I'd lost you."

"Do you know why I came here tonight?" he demanded.

"No, I don't know." "It was because I thought it would help cure me—help me see this place again, my fairland. When I saw you and thought you were lost to me, I almost turned and ran. Then I thought I'd have to show you that you couldn't hurt me, though really you'd hurt me worse than anyone ever will. So I danced with Tony. She told me—and that's all there is!"

"That day you wrote the note to me at the store—you didn't feel this way then?" Ellen questioned.

"No, I didn't," Larry confessed, groping for the words. "I wanted mother to meet you because I liked you. I liked you a lot from the first, but I didn't realize I loved you, that you were my whole life. And then mother—"

"Didn't want to meet me," Ellen completed the sentence.

He went on, neither denying or affirming her statement. "It was content that things should drift along with us until you showed me they just wouldn't drift."

"But you were engaged," she pointed out, wondering that the fact that had once made all her days so wretched seemed now of no importance.

"True again. But that didn't seem important to me. I did think of

FRIEND TOLD HIM ABOUT ALL-BRAN

And It Brought Relief From Constipation

Those who are bothered with constipation should read Mr. Gelpke's unsolicited letter:

"I have suffered with constipation for years. A friend of mine told me to try ALL-BRAN. I have taken ALL-BRAN for the past six weeks as a breakfast food. It has regulated my bowels as clockwork. Now I would not be without a package at all times."—Mr. Leslie Gelpke, 273 Ridgewood Ave., Newark, N. J.

Common constipation—with its headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness—is due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Both are present in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Being a natural corrective, ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoons daily—serious cases with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

telling you, thought of it several times, but I never seemed to find just the right occasion. You know how that is, don't you?"

He stopped and then went on again. "You'd understand better if you knew Liz Bowers. She slips in and out of two or three engagements every season. There was a time when I thought I cared for her to be engaged, even to think of marrying her. Her family was delighted and mother was too. But then Liz came home from Europe. I had your last note and knew I'd lost everything, everything in the world, Ellen."

"I went out to your house that night, Ellen. Did you know that? Your mother told me you never wanted to see me again."

"Mother did what she thought was best," Ellen said slowly.

"You hadn't any idea what I went through that night," Larry said passionately.

"She shook her head in correction. "I think I do know."

"How do you know? Tell me how?" he demanded hungrily.

But she could only look at him her lips unsteady, her eyes bright with tears and her hands pressed in his.

"Can you understand, Ellen, how a man might unconsciously think a girl would wait when there wasn't any reason for her to wait except that she loved him? Can you imagine how a man might be so stupid and conceited and selfish? If you'll only forgive me you'll never be sorry."

Her heart overflowed with love and forgiveness and warm pain.

"Why, Larry, sweetheart, don't talk that way," she said gently. "I won't let you say such things about yourself. Of course I forgive you. I could forgive you anything."

He seized her hand and pressed it to his lips. "Ah, you're sweet, sweet, sweet," he muttered.

"Does this mean we're engaged?" she asked faintly.

"You bet it does," he laughed. "It'll be no long engagement, either. We'll go tomorrow to get the rings."

"Isn't this fun?" Ellen said on a long breath. "We're both of us crazy just plain crazy! Your mother will hate me. Don't tell me she won't because I know. The people you know will call me a taxi dancer. I heard Lona Clendenning that night you remember—that night at your studio. But all that just doesn't seem important! The important thing is that I love you, Larry!"

"The important thing is that we love each other and that we found it out in time," he amended.

After that they talked and talked. Dancers, chattering and laughing drifted past the little table but to Ellen the others were only dim shapes, vague as the music which seemed to come from so far away. Only Larry was real. Only Larry and the fact that he loved her and the swift plans they were making.

They arranged their own future and Molly's and Mike's. Ellen laughed at Larry's desire to adopt a ready-made family but she was touched by it, too. It would be the best thing in the world for him declared irresponsible Larry. He really meant it. They talked of his work and of how Ellen would help him. Mentally they hung his pictures on the walls of the Metropolitan and on the walls of the Louvre. They selected a place to live and furnished it completely. They talked of the years to come.

Afterward they stepped out on the balcony to watch the rosy flaring lights of Broadway and Larry laughed excitedly because the glow turned Ellen's hair to a deep sullen red. As she leaned dreamily against him, Ellen thought that tomorrow she would tell him of the one thing which had not been mentioned.

They met, as arranged, next morning on Fifth avenue. He was late and as Ellen sat waiting in the lobby of a smart hotel she grew absurdly nervous. What had delayed him? What could have delayed him? She tried to appear easy and as much at home as the others about her. She kept her small hands folded and her small feet quiet and averted her eyes from the clock.

All at once she saw Larry swing through the revolving doors. Again the day was glorious! He glanced hurriedly about and caught her eyes. Both smiled with infinite content and Larry moved swiftly across the room.

"We're starting out with the biggest chrysanthemum you ever saw," he said, tucking her hand under his arm. "It's in a window around the corner. An exact match, Ellen, for your hair!"

A moment later they were pointing out to an interested florist the bloom in question. The great shaggy, russet flower was pinned firmly to Ellen's coat collar.

She was in ecstasy on the trip down the avenue. To have Larry here, to know that he was proud of her and that he loved her was incredible. The day itself was incredible. The air was cool and sweet the sky a bright, electric blue and the sun so brilliant that all the bushes seemed freshly painted. The shop windows had never displayed merchandise more enticing, more tempting, more desirable. Ellen wanted to dance and sing. Instead she sedately matched her pace to his and felt the petals of the shaggy mum against her cheek with every step.

They reached Thirty-fourth street and a small select jewelry shop, a shop so aristocratic that for decades it had carried no sign to guide the shopper. As she walked down a long, silken rug into an atmosphere of almost cathedral-like austerity, Ellen tried to look casual and dignified but did not succeed. She looked exactly what she was—a rapturous, half embarrassed young girl with flushed cheeks and brilliant eyes.

Larry was as absorbed in the purchase as she was. The two bent their elbows on the shining counter and pondered over dozens of rings while the watching clerk suppressed amused smiles. The engagement ring was an easy choice, a clear blue diamond guarded by emeralds. Both exclaimed at once over it. Larry said they did not need a box. Ellen trembled, blushed, agreed. Glory flashed on her finger and glory flashed in her heart.

Selecting the wedding ring was more difficult. The clerk brought out a second tray and then a third. All the rings were dignified and simple, so similar that to any except lovers there would seem to be no choice.

"Here it is!" Larry cried out suddenly. He held up a slim platinum circlet set with diamonds. It might have been a twin of the ring at home that was locked in Ellen's dressing table. Her face paled with the memory.

"Don't you like it?" Larry asked surprised. "Try it on."

Ellen's hands were clasped behind her back.

"Why I—don't you think it would be better to have the wedding ring more simple?" she appealed, confused and horribly frightened.

"The young lady is right," broke in the clerk.

Ellen sent him a misty, grateful smile. After a moment of disappointment Larry agreed that perhaps they should choose something plainer. The "something plainer" was not platinum at all but white gold carved with minute orange blossoms. They left the ring to be engraved.

MRS. O'NEILL ENTERS RACE FOR ASSEMBLY

DOWNER'S GROVE, Ill., March 24.—Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downer's Grove, the first woman ever elected to the Illinois General Assembly, again is seeking a seat as state representative after an absence of two years.

Mrs. O'Neill is one of the 33 women seeking political office in Illinois this year. She was a candidate for state senator at the 1930 election, but was defeated by Senator Richard J. Barr, republican, Joliet.

After being defeated, Mrs. O'Neill became an independent candidate for election as United States Senator from Illinois in 1930. She had the support of the Anti-Saloon League and received approximately 100,000 votes.

Her candidacy for United States Senator served to emphasize a bitter enmity between her and Ruth Hanna McCormick, Illinois' first and, to date, only congresswoman.

The enmity started when Mrs. O'Neill was a legislator.

It was her enmity toward Mrs. McCormick that is believed to have caused Mrs. O'Neill to make the race as an independent candidate in the election of United States Senator two years ago. Both women were defeated by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, Chicago, by plurality of approximately 750,000 votes.

At the coming primary election Mrs. O'Neill will be one of eleven persons seeking the nomination for state representative in her district. Because of the large field, her local politicians concede she will win the nomination if she can hold her usual strong support among women voters, which she has heretofore always been able to.

WILBOURNE COLLIE CANDIDATE FOR 24TH TEXAS SENATE SEAT

EASTLAND, March 25. — Wilbourne B. Collie, of Eastland has announced his candidacy for state senator from the 24th senatorial district, composed of Callahan, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Mitchell, Nolan, Scirry, Shackelford, Stephens, Taylor and Throckmorton counties.

Mr. Collie was born in Cisco and reared in Eastland county, is a son of Rev. and Mrs. T. M. Collie, who lived in Cisco many years, later moving to Gorman. He is 31 years of age, married and has two children.

For the past three years he has been assistant District Attorney and prior to that was District Clerk. During his younger days he was in the newspaper business at Gorman. He was born of poor parentage in a commercial sense but rich in the distinction of having sainted parents, and he has the traditional southern conception of the family tie and relation. His father died when he was a lad of 4 years, he was left with a mother and sisters to help support, and during school days he worked in a newspaper office after hours and at night.

He came to Eastland and worked in the county clerk's office and in the abstract business, serving as deputy district clerk two years, receiving the largest vote of any candidate in the primary. He was re-elected without opposition and was admitted to the bar. He was appointed assistant district attorney, and served three years, resigning January 1st to enter the general practice of law.

I also favor constitutional amendment exempting homesteads from taxation up to a valuation of $3,000; more effective laws regulating public utilities; and stricter banking laws for the protection of depositors.

Land Titles

"There is a widespread disturbance in land titles in Texas, an increasing number of suits to invalidate titles too often instituted by the state. The state should set an example for common honesty and never repudiate a title she has sold, and I would therefore support the broadest validating and healing acts that can be drawn to forever set at rest the titles of the owners to Texas lands and homes.

"The creed of some interests is contained in one verse: 'to him that hath shall be given and he shall have abundance, while from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he hath.' I hold in my mind and heart a different view and by the vote of the people of this district I am elected to the office of state senator, I pledge now my efforts will be directed to changing the conditions and laws which have continually been enacted in the furtherance of this 'rapacious philosophy.'

Excessive Tax Burdens

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Collie said: "We must remove the excessive tax burdens from the shoulders of the farmer and home owner, and to force individuals and corporations holding intangible properties hidden from assessors, to pay their rightful share of taxes. I would favor making notes uncollectible that have not been rendered for taxes and such taxes paid — The owner of real estate to pay only on his equity therein. The concentration of wealth in the hands of the few and the absolute impoverishment of the masses is the cause of the industrial problem today. Something more has to be done than to argue the industrial millennium will be inaugurated and pauperism eliminated by placing shoe strings on the free list, or increasing the tariff on tooth picks! There should be no such thing in Texas as able-bodied beggar, or the unfortunates who are compelled to rely upon charity for existence. Until every arable acre in this vast commonwealth has been brought to its highest possible cultivation, all the oil and gas drained from the earth, mines fully developed, and forests made to contribute to the creature comfort of humanity, there should be remunerative work for all. Instead there are thousands starving in their nakedness. Overproduction? Until need is satisfied and Greed is gorged there can be no such thing as overproduction. There is no overproduction today, but we are experiencing need that is unsatisfied and Greed that is disgraced.

Cut Expenditures

"We cannot and must not permit expenditures in our various units of government to remain as high as they are, when revenues in many instances have fallen off as much as 50 per cent.

"The farm and home are the basic units of our civilization and I feel the greatest need today is the enactment by the legislature of Texas of such laws as will guarantee less tax on property and place the burden on that which is more abundantly able to pay. Believing that the same will materially aid, in meeting this need, if elected Senator I will do my best to have adopted the following measures:

"Refunding to counties money expended on state highways, and retiring out-standing county road bonds, to be paid from a portion of the gasoline tax; abolishing certain offices, boards and commissions and consolidating others; paying public officers reasonable salaries in lieu of enormous fee allowances; a general reduction in number and salaries of state and county officers and employees.

STEPHENVILLE EDITOR SEEKS CONGRESS POST

STEPHENVILLE, March 25. — W. H. Hawkins, who has spent the last forty-one of his sixty-six years in Stephenville, is a candidate for congressman at - large on the democratic ticket. He was born in Ellis county near Waxahachie, and most of the schooling he received was prior to his sixteenth year in old Marvin college at Waxahachie while Dr. John R. Allen, now of Dallas, was president.

Mr. Hawkins claims that the school was so thorough in the work it did in every department, that during the few years he was privileged to attend it, he became fairly well prepared for entry into the University of Experience, from which he fledged graduate since his fiftieth anniversary.

During his long editorial career as owner of the Stephenville Empire Mr. Hawkins in almost every issue of the paper sought to impress upon the boys and girls of the land the importance of acquiring an education and has had the joy of being assured by hundreds of young ladies and gentlemen that his editorial paired had rarely missed any of their annual state meetings for years. He cherishes the hope that many friends throughout the state will become interested in his welfare in this campaign in their respective communities.

EAGLE TRAPPED

MIFFLINTOWN, Pa., March 25 — Samuel Varner, McAllisterville near here, trapped a golden eagle, a rare species, with a wing spread of 6 feet, 11 inches. The bird was given to the State Game Commission at Harrisburg.

Regains Health

Due to the fact that he had been in ill health for a number of years and was not improving, Mr. Hawkins sold his printing plant two years ago and has since about regained his former health.

Although he has never held or sought an office of political preference, he has frequently been solicited to run for various places but could never get his full consent to do so while actively engaged in business, though he came near making the race for congress at one time but soon decided he would not be able to find the necessary time to canvass the district.

Mr. Hawkins is regarded in his home town as a veteran member of the Baptist church, democratic party and Knights of Pythias, as well as the Texas Press association, and up to the time his health became im-
