DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE REWARD:—Verily, there is a reward for the righteous: verily, he is a God that judgeth in the earth.—Psalm 58: 11.

HOUSE OF STEEL PREDICTS PROSPERITY.

Hallelujah! "The low point has been passed"—again. Charles Abbott is the executive of the American Institute of Steel Construction. He pushed his face into the prosperity picture in the city of Chicago. He declared the United States is approaching a "greater era of prosperity than it has ever known." He said huge orders in the steel industry are being held up but are bound to come out in the future. He pointed out railroads, construction companies, automobile and farm implement manufacturers, "and others" will have to buy steel. He has made a coast to coast survey of the nation. He found that sentiment has changed from one of fear to one of confidence and hope in the future. He predicted, with all the passion of sincerity of an inspired prophet, "the low point has been passed; the reconstruction program has added confidence, business begins to feel its affect. Prophecies and economic predictions have fallen flat thus far on the ears of the people. Now they should be ready to welcome "a greater era of prosperity than the republic has ever known."

A representative of the House of Steel said so.

FEDERAL MILLIONS FOR TEXAS HIGHWAYS.

Democratic leaders of the house of representatives have put over a huge appropriation of federal aid for state highways. Texas will be entitled to about $15,000,000 additional through enactment of the democratic-sponsored emergency road construction bill. This measure has been sent to the senate. Republican stand-pat leaders say President Hoover will veto it. This money, $15,000,000 additional federal aid, can be used by Texas to match regular federal aid funds now to its credit in the treasury, but unexpended because the state cannot raise sufficient money to carry its half of the burden. In the Lone Star state this amounts to $6,687,000. The emergency fund under provisions of the house bill is to be repaid from regular federal appropriations over a period of 10 years beginning in 1938.

Aid has been furnished the railroads, the big corporations, the banks, and other industries. Aid has been pledged to the farmers of America in the shape of loans. Now why shouldn't the hand workers of the country be given employment, speaking of the highway legislation, in order to carry them through the period of passing depression? Democratic congressional leaders say that the enactment of this bill of highway relief for the state will furnish employment to 1,000,000 unemployed workers. Isn't it just as important to feed the minnows as to fatten the whales? No, feed is not the word—employment in order that they may be able to feed themselves and their dependents.

HENRY FORD AS THE KING GLOOM LIFTER.

Uncle Andy has gone to the Court of St. James to strut in gold lace and knee breeches. He is a billionaire. Uncle Henry has not gone abroad. He is a billionaire. He is going to risk everything he has in an effort to start an industrial revival. He has outlined a possible production of 500,000 a year. He will invest $300,000,000 in Detroit and Michigan alone for raw and fabricated materials, freight and shipping cost, and labor. His purchases of raw materials and manufactured parts will aggregate $52,000,000 throughout the nation. He expects to be making from 5000 to 6000 cars of the new models a day in the very near future. The Detroit area alone a hundred thousand men will be employed at the standard minimum wage of $5 a day and upward. In addition, 5500 suppliers of parts and materials throughout the United States will give employment to 300,000 more men. He has made $16,500,000 worth of steel in his own mills and he will purchase $47,000,000 worth of steel in the open market. This is not all the program. He is going to buy $14,000,000 worth of bodies to supplement the $60,000,000 to be made in his own plant.

Uncle Henry is more than a billionaire. If he puts his program over he will be one of the greatest public benefactors as well as a gloom lifter extraordinary. He is not planning a radical change in the sales plan, such as $100 down and 24 months to pay the balance. Moreover, he says the best way to buy an automobile is to pay cash. However, some buyers prefer to make instalment payments and the Ford standards of the past will remain unchanged. Uncle Andy and Uncle Henry are known the world over. They are billionaires and ever very busy billionaires. Uncle Andy is a large employer of labor; that is, Uncle Andy's "family interests" employ an army of labor and never forget that Uncle Andy at 77 is the kingfish of the family. There is a lot of bunk in the political world, including the world of the Hoover administration, the lawmaking branch of the federal government, and behind the scene where the political or financial kingfishes pull the invisible wires. Henry is going to attempt something that is not bunk. He is going to do his best to give employment at high wages to an army of jobless who are clamoring for employment and not for the so-called dole. More power to his elbow, his head and his heart.

140 LIFERS IN PEN
BOSTON, March 5.—The Massachusetts State Prison now houses 140 lifers. This does not include the nation's oldest lifer in point of service, Jesse Penney, who was transferred to Bridgewater State Farm about three years ago, after serving more than half a century at the state prison.

EXPERT STUDIES MICE
ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 5.—Dr. Lee D. Dice, curator of mammals at the University of Michigan, is making an intensive study of the habits of mice, in the hope his findings will be of value to physicians combating human diseases. He has collected 3,000 mice and housed them in 1,000 cages.

Candling the Eggs!

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Dallas democrats organized and sounded the slogan "down the line for the party and John Garner." Col. Muriel L. Buckner, chairman of the Dallas county committee, was elected president of the Garner club; Hattie Hennenburg, a member of the national campaign advisory committee was elected first vice-president; Lewis Carpenter, second vice-president; George Quillan, secretary of the county committee; and Patrick Orksee, treasurer. Many of the leading democrats of the county were named on the membership committee and their leaders predicted a thorough organization of every ward and precinct in city and county. Former State Sen. J. Hart Willis is the chairman of the committee. Gen. M. M. Crane was the principal speaker. He was elected lieutenant-governor on the ticket with James H. Hogg; he was attorney general two terms. He is a life-long democrat, a regular, and a life-long prohibitionist. He was a delegate to the Baltimore convention in 1922 and again in 1920 to the San Francisco convention where he was the Texas member of the committee on platform and resolutions. He said:

"There is no prohibition issue in this campaign. I know that many people here voted for Hoover because they thought him in favor of prohibition, but don't be fooled any longer. The president has nothing to do with it. It rests entirely with congress. The democrats, as usual are frank and outspoken on the issue and all the country knows how its leading candidates stand. The people who are insisting that the democratic candidate take a very definite position might well ask Herbert Hoover to take one too. Frags Hoover supported the late Dwight Morrow in his race for the senate from New Jersey, a race that Mr. Morrow ran and won as a wet. He did not support Ruth Hanna McCormick who ran for the senate from Illinois as a dry against a wet democrat, James Hamilton Lewis, who was elected. Both parties are divided on this issue. The republicans never put a dry plank in their platform. Why should the democrats? Let us support John N. Garner, but let us vow now, wherever the nominee that we will vote a democratic ticket to the end."

Those who attended the Braumton convention in the month of May, 1928, will recall Mrs. A. C. Zehner. Mrs. Zehner attended the Garner rally. She gave the speaker a most enthusiastic endorsement. Mrs. Zehner is a militant prohibitionist. She declared that economic issues are predominantly important now and that the need for leadership is of vital importance. Many of the judges and office-holders and ex-office-holders of Dallas county are members of the club. All this is a reminder that the Brownsville Herald has an editor who writes to the point. For instance: "Another thing we are wondering about? What conceivable difference does it make if this or that candidate for presidential nomination is for or against prohibition. The president neither makes the laws nor does he appropriate the money for their enforcement. No president can repeal the eighteenth amendment or make it stronger. Of much more importance, it would seem to us, are the views of a president toward our relations with Europe and the relation of the federal government with its own people."

It is remarkable as well as significant that many eminent men since the organization of the first congress have wielded the gavel of speaker. Many had presidential ambitions. It is a matter of history James Knox Polk has been the only speaker of the house of representatives who later became president of the United States. He was first elected to congress in 1824 and served as speaker from 1835 to 1839, when he retired from the national legislature to become governor of Tennessee. In 1844 he was elected president on the democratic ticket with George M. Dallas as vice-president. Polk declined to be a candidate for renomination. Dallas, a proud Texas citizen, was named for the running mate of James K. Polk who was a history maker while he was president of the United States, a fact well known to native Texans as well as adopted Texans who are familiar with the birth of the republic, the wars fought by the republic, the annexation of Texas, the Mexican war, and the vast territory which was taken from Mexico as the result of the aggressiveness of Anglo-Saxons, and Anglo-Celts who were determined that the Spanish flag should be fumed from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific ocean.

Incidentally Sen. W. A. Williamson is in charge of Garner headquarters in the Alamo city, and Sen. Walter Woodward of Coleman is the chairman of the state organization. All this is a reminder that Cullen P. Thomas is a member of an important organization, committee of the democrats of Dallas county who have organized the Garner-for-President club and are going down the line for that favorite. Roosevelt headquarters will be continued in the city of Waco. Walter Collins of Hill county spokesman for the Traylor democrats, has advised that the Traylor men will fall in line and will be loyal to Garner. Former Lieut.-Gov. T. W. Davidson of the Roosevelt state organization has announced the program of those who organized early for the great governor of New York.

"There is no band wagon jumping as far as the Roosevelt forces are concerned but simply the recognition of our fellow Texan. If Garner is not the nominee, it is our firm belief that Roosevelt will not only be the nominee but the next president. Our faith in Gov. Roosevelt is a great American statesman has in no way been diminished and he would have been the overwhelming choice of Texas but for the advent of our own fellow citizen—John N. Garner."

Gov. Roosevelt's friends and supporters have not in any state opposed the candidacy of an outstanding favorite son. Roosevelt leaders say: "The big inescapable party problem is whether at Chicago the democrats shall assemble in a spirit of unity and victory." Charles F. Guenther

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Bravery, ability and sincerity is a combination not common among the job-holding politicians of Washington. It is likely to mean defeat in the next election when the constituency finds out about it. But there are a few such men here who manage to stay on the job.

Congressman Charles Robert Crisp of Georgia, usually called "Judge" or "Charlie," is one. Lately he has been getting a vast amount of attention because he became acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee when Chairman Collier of Mississippi took sick. He is in command of the task of devising methods of raising new taxes amounting to billions of dollars.

Where Are His Enemies

You find, in checking up, that Crisp doesn't seem to have any enemies at all. Republicans who have wrangled with him in years past quickly start telling you that he has more brains than any other Democrat in the House and even that he is the "backbone" of the House Democrats. Anyway, Crisp is certainly the "brains" of Ways and Means.

He might have been Democratic floor leader this year, if, when party policy seemed to demand a northern man, he hadn't withdrawn in order to avoid a bitter intra-party fight. He would do a lot for his party because he is sure the country's welfare depends on it.

Now he serves as a party leader without a title and often advises Speaker Garner and Leader Rainey. He is famous as a presiding officer and parliamentarian; he himself was House parliamentarian under Speaker Champ Clark. This session he has been of exceptional value in pulling people out of bad parliamentary jams, on the floor as well as in committee.

A Genius For Essentials

He has a keen business sense and a genius for getting at essentials. He studies deeply, works hard, and is familiar with a wide range of governmental problems.

He is conscientious and far-minded, with a liking for compromise and conciliation, though he sometimes flames into "righteous indignation." More progressive than most southern members, he doesn't let his district or sectional viewpoint obscure his national viewpoint.

Probably the biggest thing in his career was his service on the World War Debt Funding Commission. He presented all the debt agreements to the House, explaining them clearly and effectively.

It was Crisp, outstanding expert on procedure, who forced through the rules liberalization by which 145 members may now seize bills in committee and bring them to the floor.

When drys objected that it would mean a prohibition vote, Crisp, politely dry, said he favored votes on prohibition as well as other important issues. Of course he is a low tariff man. He now urges taxes on gas and electricity.

What Farm Relief Means

HIS human qualities attract everyone—from elevator man to president. He is under medium height, with serious lined face and quiet dress. Smokes cigars, lives in an apartment, says farm relief to him means getting someone to rent his 100-acre cotton-vegetable farm at Americas for a nominal sum.

His Father Was Speaker

HE is 61 years old. His father was Speaker Charles Frederick Crisp. Other Crisps were Shakespearean actors. The present Crisp was elected first to fill the unexpired term when his father died. He was then city judge at Americus from 1900 to 1911. When Champ Clark was looking for a parliamentarian an old negro messenger who had served Speaker Crisp told him what a smart boy Charles Robert was. Clark sent for him and he held the job until his election to Congress in 1914.

For 12 years no one in his district has ventured to run against him.

His recent strong speech for a balanced budget, in which he warned of the stiff taxes which must come and scorned possible political dangers, brought an extraordinary outburst of applause which demonstrated the respect which everyone has for him.

is chairman of the steering committee of the Roosevelt-for-President club in the Alamo city. Speaking of his organization Chmn. Guenther says: "We desire to cooperate in the movement for harmonious support of John N. Garner but if he is not the nominee, it is the belief of the committee that Roosevelt will not only be the nominee but the next president of the United States."

ZAMORA PARTY EXISTS ONLY SHORT TIME

By WILLIAM H. LANDER
United Press Staff Correspondent
MADRID, March 5.—After a brief existence of less than two years, the political party founded by Don Niceto Alcalá-Zamora — once thought of as potentially being one of the leading Republican parties — has almost disappeared.

Originally known as the Right Wing Republican party, and later as the Progressive party, it now has been through another change. Its members have divided into five factions, but the most important of these has gone over bodily to be aligned with Miguel Maura in organizing the new "Republican Conservative Party." This party has a voting strength in the Cortes of 14 deputies; the total strength of the Progressive party in Parliament, before its dissolution, was 22 votes.

Interesting History.
The history of the party which has just disappeared is interesting, for it is symptomatic of the big swing to the left which the Spanish Revolution has taken, although many of the persons who voted Republican in the municipal elections of April 12, 1931, wanted only a political revolution of a very moderate type.

Alcalá-Zamora, now President of the Second Spanish Republic, did not become a Republican with the advent of the Dictatorship of General Miguel Primo de Rivera in September, 1923, as many believe. Alcalá-Zamora, all his life a liberal; a descendant of liberals; naturally could not look with favor at the suspension of constitutional government in Spain. The longer the Dictatorship lasted, the more Alcalá-Zamora became its enemy, and finally Primo de Rivera resorted to keeping him under surveillance, and at times, virtually a prisoner on his farm.

After Primo's Fall
This was in 1927. It was not until after Primo's fall, and the attempt of King Alfonso XIII through his second Dictator, General Damaso Berenguer to restore constitutional government of the old sort, that Alcalá-Zamora publicly announced his profession of faith as a Republican, in a speech in a theater at Valencia, on April 13, 1930.

Shortly after this address the Right Wing Republican party was established, with Alcalá-Zamora and Miguel Maura its principal members. But success in overthrowing the monarchy doomed the party. Don Niceto became Premier of a coalition government, and his standards of conduct and political morality are so high that he deemed it incorrect to engage in party propaganda or electioneering while he held such a position.

Manager Named.
Such being the case, it was agreed to name a party manager, who would handle its organization and development. In doing this a major political blunder was made. An open rebellion immediately developed in the ranks of the Right Wing party.

This was the situation when the campaign preceding the general elections of June 28, 1931, was carried out. Furthermore, in many villages open hostility was manifested to the speakers of the Right Wing party, because their program was too conservative. In spite of all this, Alcalá-Zamora and Alejandro Lerroux, leader of the Radical party, in a friendly conversation on the eve of the elections each predicted that his party would emerge the stronger. The next night the story was different—the Radicals won nearly 90 seats in the Cortes; the Right Wing only a little more than a score.

Government Crisis.
After the government crisis of October 14, 1931, Alcalá-Zamora resigned from the cabinet on account of the religious question. Alcalá-Zamora, when being groomed for the presidency of the Republic, has to abstain from participation in the party councils. Soon its leaders decided that the name was unwieldy, and it was converted into the Progressive party. Soon thereafter Miguel Maura began his propaganda for the organization of the conservatives forces of Spain who accept the Republic, and his program attracted the support of half the Progressive deputies. The other deputies split four ways, and shortly Maura's "Conservative Party" was officially listed with the President of the Cortes, starting off with a membership of 14 members of parliament.

El Paso Girl Places Self on Marriage Market to Be Rid of Economic Worries

EL PASO, March 5.—Red-haired, blue-eyed Alberta Louise Ross, 25-year-old El Paso girl, has placed herself on the marriage market. "Tired of work and worry, she has announced she will marry any man who will give her the following:

1. Five thousand dollars for the support and education of her young brother and sister.
2. Freedom from economic worry for herself.

"I'm just tired," she explained. "Since I was 17, I've had to worry about supporting my brother, 10, and my sister, 13. My mother is dead and my father is too old to earn a living."

Miss Ross, at present earning $100 a month at a job here, is not particular about the kind of man who becomes her husband. She says she can learn to love anybody. "I don't care what he looks like or how old he is, if he is over 25," she said. "He must be clean, congenial, and must not fuss, or nag, or remind me of what he has done for me. I'll do anything a wife should do to make him comfortable and happy."

"Love is merely kindness, goodness and understanding. I do not believe in the soul mate stuff. One can get used to anybody and learn to love anybody. He need not be bothered with the children; I'll put them in a school somewhere."

Plays bridge. Doesn't smoke. Takes only an occasional drink to be sociable. Is affectionate. Says "darn" sometimes. Weighs 115 pounds and is five feet six inches tall.

"I'm ready to marry today," she said.

High winds blew down the smoke-stack of the stove in the kitchen of the Manhattan cafe and forced flames back to ignite grease about 5 o'clock Saturday morning. The fire department responded to the alarm but the flames burned out without damage.

Menus For the Entire Family

BY SISTER MARY

NEA Service Writer

THIS time of year is a sort of "hockey" season in poultry. Not that "hockers" are available, but they are high in price and not plentiful, so the housekeeper depends on what she can get for her "fowl" for her family dinner.

If these chickens are not more than ten or twelve months old, they can be cooked in numerous ways that produce well flavored, delicious dishes. Loins, slow cooked in milk, are tender and moist. Consistent by any method such as stewing, broasting or casseroling can be used.

The prolonged cooking usually required to make the flesh tender is apt to develop a strong flavor. To avoid this, let the fowl stand in cold water for one hour before cooking.

Low Temperature Important

Be sure to maintain a low temperature throughout the entire cooking period. Begin to cook the fowl at a low temperature and keep the heat moderate. Too often after poultry is hard and dry even after it has been cooked for an hour or more, it is still too hot to eat. It is better to roast or stewed, the advantage of a low temperature must be remembered.

Quick surface broasting improves the taste and taste of casseroles. Dishes are done in a low temperature of the meat, for the best results to penetrate.

Chicken stew is an economical dish and generally popular. The liquor in which the chicken is cooked makes a delicious soup. Plain stewed chicken with gravy is a small piece of fowl and browned and baking powder biscuits is very easy to prepare and makes an appetizing and satisfactory meal served with mashed potatoes and buttered bread.

noodies also are favorite accompaniments for chicken stews. Vegetables can be combined with canned corn, canned or cooked milk, coffee.

BRICKLAYER'S. Baked bananas, cereal, cream, baked French toast, marmalade.

LUNCHEON. Spinach soup, milk, mushroom sauce, fish, hot potato biscuits, radish, mint, pineapple dessert, milk, tea.

DINNER. Savory chicken stew, salad of mixed greens with Roquefort cheese dressing, apricot Charlotte, milk coffee.

dried lima beans, tomatoes and mushrooms are suitable vegetables.

Savory Chicken Stew

Savory chicken stew is a simple and delicious dish. It can be made from the oven to the table without any last minute fussing. Cooked on top of the stove, the stew is served on a hot deep platter.

1 whole chicken, 2 slices onion, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-2 cup canned corn, 1 cup minced lima beans, 1-2 cup stoned and mixed dried fruit, 3-4 cup water, 1-4 cup teaspoon pepper, teaspoon salt, 2 whole cloves, 4 peppercorns, salt, 2 Disfont fowl and cut larder pieces into two. Cut bacon in some and make a bed of fat in kitchen. Add pieces of fowl and brown. Add pieces of onion, salt and pepper. Add remaining ingredients and season to taste. Remove bag of spice and serve on a hot platter.

HOW JESUS TAUGHT HUMILITY

Text: John 13:1-15
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 6
By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

There are lessons the teaching of which might be put in any secular school. This lesson certainly is of universal application, and there are no people more in the modern world, but the scene itself is essentially eastern and very definitely biblical. There are modern Christians who have exhibited the same attitude of pride and selfishness which the prophet of Nazareth had in mind when he washed the feet of his disciples.

Without at all overlooking that practice one may raise the question of the reality and appropriateness with which an incident related to a peculiarly eastern environment of primitive times can be perpetuated in modern environments which are so essentially different.

There is no environment, however, to which the teaching of this lesson does not apply, and no time or place to which it is not applicable. It is a lesson which should be followed in the spirit of the disciples' feet.

Let us endeavor to represent not only the historical scene, but the spiritual background. Here we are led to the inner circle of discipleship. They undoubtedly were men who were free and progressive and who were not bound by the traditions of their fathers. They were men of force of character and courage or they would not have left all to follow Him. They were men, apparently of humane devotion to Him personally, yet they were men in whom such fierce ambition moved that again they quarreled about precedence and preference, and in their comparative measure of their zeal and devotion to Jesus.

Repeatedly Jesus rebuked them, and again He sought to teach them the lesson of humility and by example to suggest that in their selfishness and in their lack of love and in their lack of strength in the kingdom He had come to reveal and establish.

Yet in spite of all this, seemingly clear teaching the disciples showed the error. Even in the solemn hour of the Passover, they still were unprofitably arguing, and selfishly and ignorantly trying to gain the upper hand in this physical act of learned that lesson, we may be sure that others in that upper room were equally blind.

Do we marvel at these disciples? How much like them are we ourselves? Do we grasp any better in our daily life in our environment the lesson that Jesus sought to teach them?

Have we learned that in loneliness and in comparative measure of our strength and in our highest manifestation of His love and greatness. If Peter had not of love?

Rats Feast Off Fives and Tens When Farmer Hides Bank Roll

(By The Associated Press) LITTLEFIELD, Jan. 13.—These are distressing times, especially for the agricultural profession, but Farmer W. T. Cooper has decided that, after all, a bank is a safe place to hide money.

Some time ago, Cooper came into possession of $150. Fearing a bank failure, he took the money home and hid it.

More recently, he returned to town bearing a roll of what had once been legal tender.

The rats ate most of it, he explained to the bankers. "I had put away in what I thought was a safe place. The money had disappeared."

A formal report from Washington has not been received but it was believed that $60 had been nibbled too prominently for identification.

Don't Let the "Rats" Get Your Money!

GUARDED money is never safe—as witness the above newspaper story—but the danger isn't always from "rats." Money that's not at work becomes truly "slacker dollars," and that is an economic waste. These slacker dollars are one of the chief reasons for the present depression.

Just like manual or mental workers, capital is entitled to a "salary" commensurate with the job for which it is employed. And, as with human workers, money is best employed safely, at a reasonable salary, and for constructive work.

West Texas Utilities Company $6 Preferred Stock is a sound investment which puts your money to work building West Texas—adding to the value of your country, your city, your home, your job. The $6 annual dividend per share is a fair "salary" for the use of your surplus capital or earnings, and your money is secured by one of the strongest public service corporations in the nation.

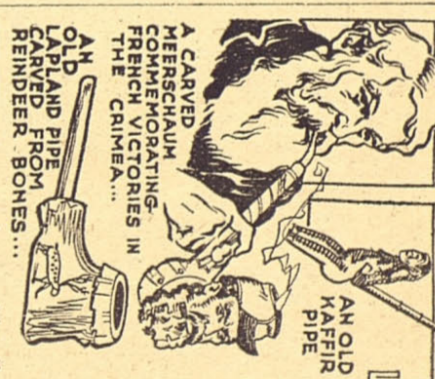

So don't let the "rats" get your money! Put it in the bank or invest it wisely, safely and constructively.

No Time Now For Big Pipes

THE modern smoker, seeking the best of many generations of pipe devotees, each with its own peculiarities. Improvements in the manufacture of special piped changes in pipe since the days when Sir Walter Raleigh and his friends started London by putting out clouds of smoke from the precious just discovered in Guatemala of the Elizabethan and Georgian periods could give plenty of time to pipe smoking, so they had portions, comfortable pipes that automatically cooled the smoke. Persons "Smoking" diminished in those days, teaching the art of blowing smoke rings and how to load a pipe, for a price. In the bustle of modern life the old-time extravagance of long parts of the East, where men still take their pleasures and their businesses seriously. There the hookah, or water pipe, still finds favor.

The chief reason, however, for the excellent reason, however, for the improvement in manufacturing processes which make it unnecessary for the smoke to pass through a long stem in order to be cool enough for smoking is comfort. Colonel James S. Wellman, in his little factory in southern Illinois, perfected a process which gave to pipe tobacco a flavor and a mellowness it never had before. The new pipe smoking habit and entire new industry that has been born into the world has left no stone unturned, which every confirmed pipe smoker recognizes as one of the signs of interior tobacco.

His discovery is said to be largely responsible for the present popularity of short-stemmed Rough Cut. The name of the pipe is "Rough Cut," "Rough Cut" Buntley tobacco than any other kind.

The dime-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Beautiful Ellen Rossiter, salesgirl in Barclay's Department store works at night as a dance hall hostess at Dreamland. She lives with her extravagant mother, Molly Rossiter, her elder sister, Myra and her young brother, Mike.

Steyen Barclay, 57 and owner of Barclay's is in love with Ellen. Twice she refuses to marry him because she loves Larry Harrowgate, an artist. She loses her heart to Larry in spite of the fact that his engagement to Elizabeth Boves, a debutante, has been announced. Ellen agrees to pose for Larry. At his studio she sees a photograph of Elizabeth Boves. He explains casually that Elizabeth is a friend.

Ellen decides to break with Larry but he comes again to the dance hall and asks her to lunch with him and his mother the following day. For the first time he kisses her. Next day at the store she receives a note saying he will be unable to keep the date.

In a newspaper she reads that Elizabeth Boves is back from Europe. Broken-hearted, the girl flings herself into her work at the store and at Dreamland to forget. Gradually she comes to think less of Larry and more of Steven Barclay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI
 The morning at the store had been a happy one for Ellen. The pleasantness of the evening before lingered through the opening hours of the day.

Noon came. Ellen and Lorene glanced at each other in congratulatory and began tidying up for lunch. Lorene tentatively suggested a newly discovered tea room with a bangup 75-cent luncheon.

"I've decided to let you try Blumstein's yourself this afternoon. I hear they have some cute sports dresses at $8.10 — a new line. Carney & Co., has a whole window display from there."

"Oh!" said Ellen, flushed and thrilled.

"Get three or four. Green is a good bet, I think. And nothing to fancy. Use your own judgment. Afterwards, if you want to, you can go on home and not bother coming back till tomorrow. Your lot won't be delivered till morning anyhow."

"You don't know how proud I am," Ellen began inarticulately.

"Forget it! If you make any bloomers I'll come down hard enough! Not that, I think you will."

It was 4 o'clock when Ellen finished with the manufacturers and walked up Pine street toward home. She reviewed the purchases she had made and found them good. Underneath lay the blessed consciousness that she was through with Barclay's for the day. Myra should be home from the library. Tea and muffins in the kitchen, perhaps. Ellen's steps hastened.

She entered the dusky hallway and had started up the stairs when Myra, wearing an old faded apron and bedroom slippers, her head wrapped in a towel, came flying down. Ellen saw disaster in her sister's eyes.

"Ellen! Mike's been hurt. Accident!"

"Mike?"

Ellen leaned against the banister. Her heart seemed to stop. Her brain — everything — seemed to stop for a terrible timeless moment.

"He's unconscious. They carried him in our bedroom."

Myra was gone. Ellen ran up the stairs and into the shabby familiar living room filled with silent people, women in dust caps and aprons, a few careless perspiring men. Mike's bicycle was propped against the wall. They were all looking at it.

"It's the other sister," Ellen heard someone say.

"Poc' thing! Let her through." Stirring, moving uneasily, they made a path for her, all the curious, kindly neighbors, but Ellen did not notice. She ran past them to the bedroom. Mike lay unconscious on the bed. Mrs. Clancy, concerned and anxious, was leaning over him. Molly sat still and white in a chair drawn close. She did not move as Ellen entered.

"Oh, Ellen, it's you! I thought Myra — Mrs. Clancy turned and spoke quietly.

Ellen's breath came in great gasps. She could not speak.

Myra tried to make her leave but she would not. Ellen knelt beside the bed, not daring to touch Mike except to take one of his stubby nailed hands, still grimy from play. She hardly-knew what went on about her. She was not aware that Myra had at last succeeded in getting Molly into her own bedroom. She was aware only of Mike and his death-like pallor and his deathlike stillness.

Dr. Ellis came. Another doctor came. Ellen hardly understood that they had forced her from the room so they could make the examination. After a long while — it was dark outside now — the doctors reluctantly announced they still could not say how gravely the boy was injured. Internal injuries undoubtedly — the persistent coma due to that — one leg broken, perhaps his spine affected. The child should be in a hospital. They wanted another opinion before moving him.

"How soon will we know the best — or the worst?"

It was the ghost of Molly's voice. "Well," Dr. Ellis hesitated, "if he holds out through the night we should be able to move him by morning. An immediate operation would be too dangerous."

Ellen returned to her vigil beside Mike. Myra moved in and out, but most of the time she stayed in the next room with Molly who lay sleepless, staring, tearless. Sometimes Mike's breathing grew heavy and the strange, stertorous sound filled the watcher with panic. Yet never would Ellen allow her hopes to flag. Toward morning Mike stirred for the first time and murmured something incoherent about a bicycle. Ellen looked quickly toward Dr. Ellis at the other side of the bed.

"That's good," he said.

Presently the doctor gave a deep sigh. "You can tell your mother and Myra we'll be moving the young man to the hospital in an hour or so."

He bent and fumbled for Mike's pulse, looked across at Ellen and smiled wearily.

The ambulance came for Mike. There was a crowd on the street when they carried him out into the morning sunshine. Molly rode in the ambulance. Ellen and Myra followed in a cab and told each other with courageous lips and frightened eyes that everything would be all right. Dr. Ellis had said —

They reached the hospital and saw Mike wheeled away. In a long, white, brightly lighted hall, heavy with the smell of ether and iodine, the three women waited.

Again and again Myra or Ellen would importune a crisp, starched nurse for news that did not come. They started at every ring of the telephone and then sank back looking at each other with bleak eyes and faltering hearts.

The great hospital seemed to have swallowed up little Mike as though he had never existed. At 11 o'clock Ellen, haggard and heavy-eyed, remembered that she had not notified Lorene of her absence from the store. She whispered to Myra and slipped to the telephone, haunted by a vision of Molly's face. If anything happened to Mike, she was afraid that Molly Lorene answered the call and Ellen tore her thoughts from the unthinkable future. She explained what had happened and was back on the bench again. Hours had never been so long or so empty.

It was 12 o'clock. Then 1, 2, and nearly 3. Still no word. Dr. Ellis appeared but he could tell them nothing. At 3 o'clock he approached again.

"This time Ellen read the news on his weary face before he spoke. Good news! She had not known until that moment how great her fear had been.

"He's going to pull through," the doctor told them. "We were afraid for a while that he wouldn't rally from the operation."

"Oh!"

Molly began to sob. She struggled to her feet, tears raining down her face, the first tears she had shed since the accident. Her cold, desperate fingers tugged at the doctor's sleeve.

"Where is he? Let me go to him — at once."

"I'm afraid you can't now," Dr. Ellis said gravely.

The nurse, standing at his elbow, intervened. "That will be impossible. The little boy is very tired now and sick. He's in a ward with a number of other children who also cannot be disturbed. Our visiting hours are on Tuesday and Thursday at 3 o'clock. In view of the circumstances if you come early tomorrow we might make an exception."

Ellen's eyes appealed to Dr. Ellis. "But won't Mike need a room by himself, special nurses and all things?" she asked.

"I don't think it will be necessary," he answered slowly.

She knew that he was thinking of their poverty. She stepped nearer, said in a low voice that Mike must have every attention.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

A big business in Texas that has held its volume as disclosed in the annual report of the state insurance commission on fire insurance coverage written for the year ending Dec. 31, 1931.

During that year's period, there was $4,200,000,000 of fire insurance policies written in the state, according to this report.

Premiums paid amounted to $26,983,704, and losses paid by insurance companies were reported at $1,725,417.

This meant that of every dollar collected in premiums, the companies paid out 60.4 cents in losses, and saved 39.6 cents for operating costs, agents' commissions and profits.

The reports showed that the average of losses on all forms of protected brick buildings was 58; that on protected frame buildings, 64.5 per cent; on unprotected brick buildings, 45.6 per cent; and on unprotected frame buildings, 73.6 per cent.

It is the ratio of losses to premiums, figured over a three-year period on which is fixed the "credit" and "penalty" ratings of Texas cities. Each March 1 these credits or penalties are made effective for a year. The maximum is 15 per cent added to or deducted from the final fire insurance rate.

The following is the three-year average of loss ratio on which the various credits or charges are made:

Losses	Credit	Penalty
Under 35	15	..
35-40	12	..
40-45	9	..
45-50	6	..
50-55	3	..
55-60	0	..
60-65	0	..
65-70	0	..
70-75	0	..
75-80	0	..
80-85	0	..
Over 85	0	12

These charges and credits, if they balance evenly now, would indicate that the state could, by shifting to maximum penalties, add over $3,000,000 a year to the premium costs in Texas. But they are not balanced now, as the credits exceed penalties about two to one, giving another possible million dollars of latitude for penalties if losses should rise generally.

Times may not change so much after all, though, since in all things change is taking this epidemic of "ball in the hole" games in hotel lobbies. It is a form of shooting, and we can remember that hotel lobbies in the lurid early days were favorite places for shooting of another sort.

If Texas gets the vision of a Centennial such as that which Former Governor Pat M. Neff is able to paint upon the imagination with the magic brush of oratory, then we shall have a celebration that will make the Columbian and the world's fairs of past times pale in comparison.

Texas will have a fairly stiff job of passing the Centennial amendment; but ought to adopt it by an overwhelming vote. If Governor Neff is able to carry his message of vision and inspiration to enough people, success of the amendment cannot be in doubt.

W. J. DONOVAN ASKS ELECTION AS COMM'R

W. J. Donovan, who has served a year on the city commission in charge of the police and fire departments as an appointee commissioner serving out the term of Mayor J. T. Berry, elevated from commissioner in the last election, Saturday announced for election to that post. He declared that he seeks the election on the basis of his record on the commission and upon his promise to continue to do all in his power to bring about a more economical and businesslike administration of city affairs commensurate with the best service to the public.

He said:

"During the past year I have endeavored to give the people of Cisco the best service that I could without regard for politics or personal favors. What I have done is known to most of you. Those who wish to investigate further are welcome to do so. The record is open. "In view of my record and in view of the fact that I have been on the commission only one year, which is not time enough to really accomplish very much, I believe I am entitled to come before the people and ask their votes. I am a property owner and a tax payer. "I believe in tax reductions based upon present property values instead of boom day values and will use my influence to secure reductions upon that basis. I favor economy in every department and I believe that my record will show that I have put that principle into practice. "I have been a citizen of Cisco for 46 years—since 1886—and can conscientiously say that I believe I understand our city's needs and am deeply interested in its welfare. "The votes and influence of the citizens will be appreciated. "W. J. DONOVAN."

J. R. BURNETT AGAIN SEEKS COMM'N POST

J. R. Burnett, who for the past two years has served Cisco as commissioner of finance, Saturday announced that he again seeks election to the commission. Declaring that he has made only one campaign promise, and that is to work for the best interests of Cisco at all times as he sees them, Judge Burnett stated his platform in the following brief announcement:
"To the Voters of Cisco:
"I take this method of announcing my candidacy for the office of city commissioner to succeed myself in the city election in April.
"If the voters of Cisco feel that I have worked for our city's best interests sufficiently to merit a second term, I shall be glad to have their support.
"I favor economy in administration, lower water rates if at all possible, with maximum efficiency in all departments. I do not favor withholding any of the proceeds of the city commission from our citizens who have a right to be informed in all these affairs.
"I have made only one campaign promise and that is to work for the best interests of Cisco at all times as I see them.
"Your vote and influence are respectfully solicited."
"J. R. BURNETT."

VIRGE FOSTER ASKS VOTES FOR SHERIFF

The Daily News was authorized today to announce the candidacy of Sheriff Virge Foster for re-election upon a platform of impartial and unimpaired law enforcement.
"I am placing myself before the voters of the county upon the record that I have made as sheriff, a record which I firmly believe entitles me to again seek that office. As an officer I have fulfilled my obligations to the best of my ability and, although I perhaps have made mistakes, they were not mistakes of intention.
"My record is open to inspection and I shall be glad for anyone who wants to exercise the privilege of his vote conscientiously in favor of whom he considers the best man, to go thoroughly into that record. The public is entitled to know the qualifications of the candidate for whom it casts its vote and I welcome the investigation.
"In conducting the affairs of the office to which I seek re-election I have endeavored to enforce all the laws firmly and impartially, regardless of personal or political prejudices or desires. In conducting the office on that basis I have, of course, made enemies along with friends, but in each case I can safely say that the misunderstanding or prejudice arose because I endeavored to perform my duty as I saw it. I am willing to let any impartial citizen be the judge of my conduct.
"I am confident my record will bear out the statement that I have honestly sought to keep my earlier promises to the voters and to live up to the responsibilities of the of-

GEO. D. FEE IS CANDIDATE FOR COMM'R

George D. Fee, water commissioner of the city of Cisco for the past two years, Saturday announced his candidacy for re-election. Declaring that his record as commissioner was his platform and that he would endeavor to work for the interests of Cisco as earnestly and impartially as he has done during the past two years, Mr. Fee declared that he felt his record entitled him to re-election. His announcement says:
"I have been a resident of Cisco for 40 years. My interests and my sentiments are closely bound up with Cisco's interests and I feel that I am, therefore, fully qualified to fill a position whose duties demand a constant regard for the welfare of the city. There is no need to introduce myself to Cisco, because most of the people know me. I am, of course, a property owner and taxpayer here.
"I favor strict economy in the administration of the municipal affairs, property renditions on a basis of present property values, low water and utility rates, and will work to the best of my ability to secure the same.
"I have endeavored to put into practice the principles for which I stand and upon which I am seeking re-election and will welcome any investigation of my record that the citizens desire to make. My record is my platform and I feel that that record entitles me to reelection.
"I will appreciate the votes and influence of the citizens and can assure them that, if elected, the welfare and betterment of Cisco will be my first motive."
"GEO. D. FEE."
