Legislature Practically Ends Session This Morning

SUSPENSION OF 24-HOUR RULE REFUSED

AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—The 42nd legislature practically ended its third called session this morning when the house of representatives refused to suspend the 24-hour rule. With that rule in effect neither house nor senate can consider anything but conference reports and resolutions. Final adjournment by midnight was possible. The bill putting a $6,500 maximum on the fees any official may receive is dead. The house resolution to call on the highway commission to desist from building the "Mineral Wells cut-off" died in the senate when its highway committee failed to muster a quorum. The bill to reduce the poll tax to $1 and the west Texas land bill also died on the calendar.

MACHINERY FOR CATTLE LOANS IS PREPARED

FORT WORTH, Sept. 21.—A paternal arm of the federal government reached into Texas today and prepared to help lift farmers and livestock men from the sloughs of debt. A. E. Thomas, newly appointed manager of the 10th district, Agricultural Credit corporation, anticipates the task of refinancing Texas agriculture will begin shortly after Oct. 1. Thomas is vice president of the Continental National bank here. T. B. Yarbrough, president of the First National bank here, was named president of the new "farm and cattle bank." Feeder loans to livestock men probably will be stressed at the start of the bank's operation, Thomas indicated, although crop production loans will be available to farmers also. "The loans will enable livestock men with a large quantity of feed to increase the size of their herds and realize a profit from their low-priced feed," Yarbrough said. "If farmers get 8 cents or more for their cotton, they aren't likely to need loans as badly as first anticipated," he added. The bank also will provide funds for breaking land and buying seed. No attempt to fix prices will be made, regional officials of the Agricultural Credit corporation pointed out. Their efforts will be directed toward stabilizing prices at a normal level enabling farmers and stockmen to make "reasonable" profits. Applications for jobs connected with the task of financing farm and livestock owners have swamped local officials. A special employment committee will be created to consider these applications. William Straus will head the loan committee of the Houston branch bank, assisted by Ben S. Smith, Mexico. Dewain Hughes will be chairman for the San Angelo branch loan committee, and G. C. Magruder manager.

DR. TRUETT TO HOLD REVIVAL AT ABILENE

Dr. Geo. W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist church, Dallas, one of the world's greatest preachers, will be with the First Baptist church of Abilene, Texas, in a revival meeting beginning Wednesday, September 28 and extending through Friday, October 7. An invitation is extended to the people throughout this section to hear this great preacher. Services will be held at ten o'clock each morning, and seven thirty each evening. The song service will be led by Prof. I. E. Reynolds of the Southwestern Baptist Seminary of Ft. Worth, Texas. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Reynolds. Prof. Reynolds is one of the greatest artists of his line in the country. It is expected that the auditorium will be packed at each service. Large delegations from surrounding communities will be found in the services from time to time. Dr. M. A. Jenkins is pastor.

G. A. R. Faces Last March

The thin blue line of the Grand Army of the Republic, gathered at what is believed to be its last encampment, will pay its final tribute at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln in Springfield, Ill., during the week of Sept. 18 to 23. There is little chance that another encampment will be held, many of the leaders say, and practically none that Springfield again will be the scene of a meeting. Samuel P. Town, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., top, will lead the veterans to the grave of the organization's founder, Major Benjamin F. Stephenson, below, after services at the tomb.

"THE PREACHER WHO LOST HIS HEAD" SUBJECT OF LARGER CROWD HEARS SERMON OF EVANGELIST

Preaching to an increased audience last night, Rev. Ray N. Johnson, of Mineral Wells, who is conducting a revival meeting at the First Methodist church, used for his subject "Amazig Grace." The singing, directed by J. T. Elliott, was inspiring and the choir felt in the service. This morning the evangelist spoke to a congregation notably increased over yesterday morning's attendance, upon the subject "The First Revival of the New Dispensation." The power of the spirit as manifest in the wonderful results of the pentecostal visitation was invoked as the influence which will send a sweeping regenerative force throughout the present church and transform lethargy into a militant, victorious Christianity. After the sermon members of the congregation gathered about the altar dedicated themselves anew to the will of the spirit. Tonight the subject for the sermon will be "The Preacher Who Lost His Head." Such a subject, said the evangelist, may appear sensational but the theme is not. A general invitation is issued to the public to attend and take part in these services.

RING FOUND. ELKADER, Ia., Sept. 21.—Mrs. William A. Baars lost a gold ring in 1909. While walking across a ditch on her farm a few days ago, she spied a shining piece of metal. It was her ring—still unaltered.

MORE BIRTHS. CANON CITY, Col., Sept. 21.—Doc Stork's ten-year average is 22 better than his principal rival, the Grim Reaper. Investigation of statistics revealed that in a ten-year period, there were 22 more births than deaths here.

CURIOUS MAN ARRESTED. BERLIN, Conn., Sept. 21.—Because Edward DeRosa appeared too curious, he was arrested. State police, driving behind DeRosa's automobile, noticed he cast too many backward glances toward their car. They stopped him and found 200 lottery tickets in his machine.

CISCO GIVES FAIR PROGRAM THIS EVENING

The Eastland County Free Fair opens this evening at Eastland with Cisco in charge of the first program. The program will be presented from the platform erected at the rear of the Texas State bank building. The Lobo band, directed by G. W. Collum, will open the program with a 45-minute concert. There will be dances by little Miss Kathleen Collum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Collum; music by a quartet from Romney and other features. J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce will be in charge of the program. More cars are needed to transport the members of the band and others who have this evening on the program to Eastland. All those who plan to attend the program and have space in their cars to carry others are requested to meet at the chamber of commerce between 6:30 and 7 o'clock. It is planned to leave that place at 7:30 as to arrive at Eastland in plenty of time for the program to begin. It was also announced that Eastland boxers and wrestlers are challenging Cisco boxers and wrestlers to a series of bouts. Those who will accept these challenges may do so at Eastland this evening.

INSTANCES OF IRREGULARITY TO BE CITED

AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—Specific instances of election law irregularities will be cited in an amended contest petition to be filed here tomorrow, R. A. Stuart, of Ft. Worth, said here today after a conference with Gov. R. S. Sterling. Stuart is one of a group preparing the governor's contest of his defeat by former Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for the democratic nomination for governor. Rep. W. E. Pope, of Corpus Christi, one of the house members proposing that the house be convened Nov. 10 to investigate and possibly attempt to impeach the governor, today replied to Sterling's claim that it was all a "bluff." The election contest, Pope pointed out, can consider only election irregularities while a house investigation can go into "every charge that was made in the campaign involving the duties and responsibilities of the officers, boards and departments of the state government."

N. O. EXCHANGE ASKS PROOF OF TEXAS CHARGE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—The New Orleans cotton exchange demanded that the Texas legislature furnish proof of charges it made on September 15 that "vicious and unwarranted manipulation by operators in cotton exchanges" had caused the recent heavy decline in the cotton market. The demand was signed by Russell Clark, president of the New Orleans exchange.

"DEMAND" IS NOT RECEIVED. AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—Neither Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt nor Speaker Fred Minor, of the Texas house of representatives today had received the "demand for proof of cotton manipulation" reported to have been sent to them by the president of the New Orleans cotton exchange.

Witt pointed out that the resolution of the Texas legislature called for congressional investigation. "It would seem the proper time to present that proof when congress begins the investigation," he remarked.

REQUEST REFUSED. LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 21.—Ed Limbeck, 26, wanted to go where his father was. He told the judge so, but instead of sending him to the state penitentiary, the judge sentenced him to 18 months in the state reformatory, for larceny.

LITTLE PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED FOR GOV. STERLING'S CONTEST

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 21.—There has been but one previous contest of a state-wide election in Texas that is recalled in the state capitol. It affords little precedent upon which to go for the contest filed by former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, certified winner by nearly 4,000 votes of the democratic nomination for governor. The former contest was between the late W. P. Lane of Fort Worth, and Jeff McLemore, Houston, for congressman-at-large, in 1914. The contest was tried in district court in Harris county, taken to the court of civil appeals and dismissed on the ground the court had no right to pass upon it, as the office is federal rather than state.

Most of the questions being asked as a result of the contest will require court rulings to answer. Leading points seem to be: Governor Sterling as the contestant must finance the bringing of contested election boxes and witnesses to Austin. Estimates of what this will be run from $12,000 to $50,000. Unless the contest is decided against Mrs. Ferguson by Oct. 9, Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum must send her name as democratic nominee to the county judges for the Nov. 8 election.

$8,000 Bond. If Governor Sterling wins the contest and Mrs. Ferguson appeals, she can take office while the appeal is pending, by posting $8,000 bond to insure the salary will go to the eventual winner. In event of adverse decision in the court of civil appeals and appeal to the state supreme court she can also take office by continuing that bond.

Reports that some candidate other than Mrs. Ferguson or governor Sterling might be named as the democratic nominee seem to fall before a provision of the election law saying: "No executive committee shall ever have the power of nomination, except when a nominee has died or declined the nomination."

Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt has been renominated and, according to all probabilities, will be re-elected. He could become governor only in case of the "death, resignation, removal from office, inability or refusal of the governor to serve, impeachment of the governor or his absence from the state."

If Governor Sterling does not win the contest, it is safe to assume there will be no impeachment movement, because his term ends on January 17. If he wins the contest and is impeached Lieut. Gov. Witt would take office to act as governor until the impeachment charges were either sustained or found unsupported. Special Election. If an unfavorable verdict were returned before Jan. 17, Witt could serve only until then. Governor Sterling could not enter for a new term as conviction on impeachment charges prohibits later holding office—the ruling that resulted in Mrs. Ferguson's candidacy. A special election to name a governor would seem to be the only legal step.

McGanegal Freed On Robbery Charge

FORT WORTH, Sept. 21.—Barney McGanegal, hoodlum under life sentence for murder, today stood acquitted of robbing Jere Green, 23, Stockyards National bank messenger of $19,600. Trial of Andrew Jones on charges in the same robbery was indefinitely delayed today. The case will not be acted upon until after the appeal of McGanegal from a 99-year murder sentence if finally passed upon by the court of criminal appeals.

17TH DISTRICT DEMO GROUP IS ANNOUNCED

AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—The campaign for the national democratic ticket in the No. 17 congressional district will be conducted by a committee composed of the loyal democrats, who will be chairman: Will St. John, Cisco; Milburn McCarty, Eastland; Mrs. John Perry, Sweetwater; and Miss Carrie Reeves, Brownwood, according to an announcement received from democratic headquarters at Austin. Complete responsibility for the success of the democratic nominees in this district will be vested in the committee, it was indicated in a statement by Roy Miller and Senator Margie Neal, accompanying the announcement. Mr. Miller and Senator Neal are in charge of national democratic activities in Texas. It will be the duty of the congressional committee to organize the district in such a manner as to bring out, as a tribute to John Garner, the largest democratic vote it has ever cast; the statement continued. No doubt of the outcome was expressed, the only question being the "size of the majority."

FATALLY SHOT WHILE IN CAR WITH WOMAN

AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—A verdict of murder was returned by a coroner today as detectives and Texas rangers sought to clear up the mystery of the slaying here last midnight of Edgar C. Arledge, 21-year-old University of Texas student. Police were without clues. There was some doubt that the attacker was a holdup man as he fled after shooting Arledge without robbing him or his companion, Miss Margaret Jean Trull of Palacios, university graduate visiting here. The youth was shot to death while seated in an automobile in the northwest part of the city. The assailant approached the car, flashed a light on them and ordered them to put up their hands, Miss Trull said. When Arledge raised his hand to shade his eyes from the glare of the light, the attacker shot him. The bullet entered the left eye and came out behind the right ear, grazing and slightly injuring Miss Trull. Arledge was dead when the girl arrived at a hospital with him. She said today she had been unable to clearly see the assailant and could not describe him. Arledge's home was in Crockett, Texas.

SIMPLE RITES ARE SAID FOR MRS. GARNER

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, mother of John Nance Garner, was laid to rest this afternoon in the family vault beside the body of her husband and a son after simple funeral services in the quiet little cemetery at the edge of town. The democratic nominee for vice-president, his two brothers, his sisters, acquaintances and townspeople were at the cemetery. There were no services at the home or at a church before those held in the cloistered cemetery. Rev. T. F. Herndon, pastor of the First Christian church of Paris, Texas, mentioned briefly the hardships which Mrs. Garner had encountered as a pioneer mother of her family and of the place she had held in this little community where she was regarded its most distinguished woman citizen. Business houses and schools were closed throughout the day. An expression of sympathy was received from President and Mrs. Hoover; "I regret to learn of the death of your mother. Both Mrs. Hoover and I wish you to know of our deep sympathy in your loss."

MARKETS SOAR UPWARD WITH HEAVY VOLUME

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—All markets roared upward today. Stocks soared one to 10 points, bonds one to five points wheat 2 1/2 to 2 5/8 cents a bushel; cotton more than $2 a bale. Stock tickers fell behind. Trading volume expanded to around 4,000,000 shares.

Two Charged In Murder of Pair

ST. JO., Tex., Sept. 21.—L. H. Reynolds, farmer, and his stepdaughter, Amanda, 25, were under murder charges today in connection with the killing late yesterday of O. P. Goff, 45, and his wife, Nettie.

Widespread Farm Strike Is Begun

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 21.—A widespread farm strike characterized by its leaders as the "last resort" of thousands of farmers whose lands are being sold for tax and to satisfy unpaid mortgages, began in the mid-west today. The strike was designed to raise the price of livestock and grain to the "cost of production." The National Farm Holiday association hopes to avoid violence by discouraging picketing.

CHILD KILLS SELF

BLAYTHEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 21.—Three-year-old Robert Paul Ellis was killed instantly when he shot himself through the chest with his father's pistol. The child apparently thought the pistol was his toy one. His family lives at West Plains, Mo.

FEDDER CATTLE PAPER HANDLED BY TEXAS BANKS

Frank Kell is one of the outstanding citizens of Texas. He is one of the builders of Wichita Falls and the West. He is chairman of the banking and industrial committee of the 11th federal reserve district. He knows his Texas, and all that concerns Texas. He wired the executive secretary of the banking and industrial committee of Washington that the federal reserve bank and other banks in the Texas district are prepared to handle all sound feeder cattle paper that may be offered them from his district and that all sound feeder cattle paper is being adequately taken care of throughout the Southwest.

Most encouraging to the livestock producers of the Southwest, as well as a bit discouraging to the professional calamity howlers to be found in the Southwest. There is a bright side of the picture as well as a gloomy side and the men who are doing things in America may be found on its bright side.

KINGFISH TO RESIGN AS STATE BOSS.

Kingfish Long of Louisiana, with all the scalps of his political enemies hanging from his girdle, has decided to resign as state political boss of the democratic party of Louisiana. Kingfish has announced that he will devote all his time in future to national affairs, that he is booked for a hundred speeches the country over and is going to tell it to the world why America can get along without multi-millionaires. If Kingfish were a multi-millionaire, he would be the loudest and most brazen defender of princely fortunes under the American sun. As he isn't a multi-millionaire, he knows the value of making his appeal to the bleachers and not the reserved seats.

ROOSEVELT IN MOUNTAIN COW COUNTRY.

Wyoming is one of the Rocky Mountain states. It is a great cow country. It is a great sheep country. It is a famous producer of petroleum. The New York governor was given a magnificent reception everywhere on his way to the Pacific coast. The truth is, he knows his America. He knows his Americans. He knows their needs, and he isn't a fence rider. Citizens of Wyoming, thousands of men and women voters greeted him everywhere and applauded his utterances. It was at Cheyenne that he repeated the nature of his mission. Really his tour was for the primary purpose of learning first hand the conditions throughout the nation. Roosevelt is a nationalist and not a shrivelled localism of a state. This excerpt from his Cheyenne speech is worthy of reproduction.

"If the prices for cattle are too low, the hardships upon the cattle raisers is reflected not only in this locality but upon industry and agriculture in general. That is one reason why I am here. When recovery begins under the proper leadership, I want it to be nation-wide in its scope."

U. S. Sen. John B. Kendrick is the democratic leader of Wyoming. He was among the first to greet the national standard bearer. Kendrick is a native Texan. He began life early as a range rider in the then great cattle domain of Texas. He moved to Wyoming in early manhood. In time he became one of the largest cattle and sheep raisers in the Rocky Mountain country. Ever a staunch democrat, he became the leader of the minority party in Wyoming. As a democrat, he was elected governor of this republican commonwealth. He served two terms. Then the voters of Wyoming sent him to the United States senate. He is serving his third or fourth term. He is more than interested in the campaign that is on. He has a warm affection for John Nance Garner, and he was one of the first of American senators to declare for Franklin D. Roosevelt as the democratic nominee for president.

SPEAKING OF SOCKING IT TO THE RICH.

Samuel Insull is in Paris on a pension of $18,000 a year. Martin Insull is in Canada, broken and down and out. Before the crash of 1929, Samuel Insull was the possessor of a princely fortune. Martin Insull was reputed to be 20 times millionaire. Now the receivers of the Middle West Utilities company, once a $3,000,000,000 holding company embracing the vast Insull utility system, reported in federal court that earnings report had been enhanced by profits from sale of securities, although in many cases they were merely exchanges of stock-subidiaries. These receivers approximated the Middle West liabilities at $310,000,000 and assets at $299,000,000. Samuel Insull was a very remarkable man. His investments in Texas were very large. He was behind the Hamilton dam project and financed many other projects in the Lone Star state. He was looked upon as one of the kings of finance, and one of the greatest builders in his field. Now he is under foreign skies. He has a life pension. Martin, his brother, is in Canada a down and outer.

A reminder that socking it to the rich may be a very pleasant pastime of demagogues of the political brand, but it played the devil with the pockets of thousands of wage workers who are kept busy in prosperous times and able to provide high standards of living for their families and to get some luxuries of life as well as the necessities. In their sane moments the wage workers of America realize these important facts.

CAR KILLS COW.

CHILHOWIE, Va., Sept. 21.—Talk about automobiles getting out of control! Heal Push parked his coupe on top of White Top Mountain. To his horror, it started running down the steep slope, hit a rock, gave a leap, and landed squarely on the back of a cow in the road, killing it. Not satisfied, the car continued its course down the road for a half mile farther, not turning over or leaving the highway.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

"Worry, worry, worry," as says the king of Thimble Theater. Our football case is still in a state of dubiety and doubt. We are in but we are out. It begins to look as if the defendants, represented by Mr. Roy Henderson the czar of the league, are going to take full advantage of their constitutional privileges and keep the Lobbes in suspense as long as possible. However, Cisco has some constitutional privileges of its own and the league, if it proves more vindictive than wise, may wake up to find a mighty heavy cost bill hanging over it.

What is difficult to understand is the attitude of the district committee as the Lobbes. Of course, standing on this side of the decision, we can see that fact. It may be a little more difficult to stand on the other side and appreciate it.

But it occurs to me that the opinion offers an admirable basis for settling this mess without loss of dignity for anyone.

It is a primary fact of human nature to love company. When we are miserable we feel better to discover that someone else is also miserable. We laugh better when someone else laughs with us. And we husbands cook breakfast better to discover that another husband is likewise tired to that early morning duty.

I have discovered that City Sec'y J. B. Cate cooks his breakfast as his share of household responsibility.

There is no disgrace in cookery. It is one of the greatest and finest of the arts. Alexander Dumas, the great French novelist whose swashbuckling characters illuminate the pages of literature with a vividness that puts them in the front rank of all-time fictional creations, was one of the most artistic cooks who ever mixed batter. It was said of him that he got a greater thrill out of concocting successfully a new recipe than he did out of writing a story. His story-writing was work, but his batter-mixing was a recreation. He applied himself to the pen throughout the day as a matter of making a living; but at the conclusion of his labors he wrapped himself in an apron and went into the kitchen with the enthusiasm of a boy going to a football game.

The private lives of many other famous men reveal a like affinity for the kitchen. Hence, Mr. Cate, you and I are in mighty distinguished company.

Crippled Woman Runs Business

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—A little crippled woman, who carries on her business over the telephone as she sits in a wheel chair in her home, is quite confident that "the worst of the depression is over."

Miss Agathe Zimmer decided a decade ago to go into business. Left invalid at nine after an attack of infantile paralysis and spinal meningitis, she was hard put to find something she was able to do.

She decided to enter the magazine subscription business, and her success is indicated by the fact that she started with 25 customers, and has built up her clientele to more than 2,000. Her customers live in practically every state.

"Personality" in the telephone voice is one of the requisites for success," she said. "You can't see the face of your prospective customer and you've got to be very careful. The sound of the other person's voice must tell you the kind of a person you are soliciting. Otherwise you might recommend a motion picture magazine to someone whose latest tastes ran to travel, or literature."

An elevator in the Zimmer house conveys the business woman to her upstairs office, complete in every respect. Miss Zimmer lives with her mother, Mrs. Felix Zimmer, a

The latest official figure by the Government Central Bureau of Statistics, is 6,162,446, an increase in comparison with the preceding year of 20,875, or 3.4 per cent. This increase is comparatively low, since previous statistics show that out of the preceding ten years only five showed a smaller proportionate increase.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Stan Ball, an agent for cattle interests, faces Asper Delo in his office in the city. Asper is accused by the cattle men of infringing on their range with his timber cutting. Ball accuses Delo of crooked work at his Three Rivers camp. He accuses Delo of having men shoot who try to check up on him. Ball says he is going up to make a check himself. Delo retorts that he will personally see that Ball does not.

Standing before the office building Sam Ball sees kidnapers slip a girl into a car. He catches the car and saves Dona Delo, Asper's daughter. When he learns who she is she slips away after telling her he is Stanley Black.

Dudley Winters in love with Dona, agrees to get Asper Delo back off his wild trip to Three Rivers if she will marry him. She gives him some encouragement.

Dona goes with Dudley. They stop at Seth Doby's place. Doby refuses to help Dona but says Asper has been there and that he was ready for a killing.

Dudley puts a plan to Dona. She is to marry him at Doby's place. Asper can hardly go on with a man hunt under those circumstances. Reluctantly, Dona agrees. Dudley has a license, obtained the night before. While he is seeking a man who can marry them. Stan Ball, who is on his way to Three Rivers, steps out of the night and kisses Dona.

Dona says she cannot go through with the marriage and puts Dudley off. They go on to Three Rivers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI

The dusty roadster slid down off the divide and entered a dense stand of pine and spruce. The green fastness of the forest was in strange contrast with the dry valleys behind. The road was rutty and Dona had to slow their pace. After winding down hill for a mile they came abruptly to a slope that was cut clean of timber.

"They sure disrobe mother nature proper when they cut timber," Dudley observed.

Dona frowned. "I didn't know the government allowed clean cutting," she observed. Suddenly she remembered. Seth Doby's reluctance in offering help to the Delo interests. She was sure her father could not have given such orders. The slope was cut clean of everything.

They drove slowly over a ridge and found themselves almost in the timber camp of Three Rivers. Sheds and houses of unfinished lumber lined the road, while at the far end of the little settlement stood a large building set back in the only grove of trees left standing.

Dona headed the roadster toward this building. Bearded men gazed after the car and smiled as it passed. Several waved their stouche hats. With a gripping of brakes the car came to a halt.

"This is headquarters, hotel and lodge of the Delo Lumber company," Dona explained as she opened the roadster door. "Get ready for the fireworks."

Dudley leaped over the side and stood waiting on the bottom step for her to lead the way. She moved rapidly as though eager to settle something that had been troubling her.

A wide door stood open. Dona stepped inside with Dudley close behind her. The room they entered was large, had a big fireplace at one end. It was plainly a lounge room for the officials and bosses. Along the north wall three doors led to offices.

The room was empty and Dona crossed rapidly to one of the doors. She had almost reached it when it opened and a big man with broad shoulders and a thick neck stepped out. He surveyed her without a word for a full five seconds. Then his big mouth spread in a grin.

"Miss Dona?" he rumbled. "Your Pa said he half-expected you. Said to tell you he was out hunting." "And you are Swergin?" Dona did not like the appraising way the big man looked her over from her trim boots to her dusty and windblown hair. An employe of her father should show more deference.

"Yes, I'm the boss up here." He let his chest fill out and his narrow eyes twinkled.

"This is Mr. Winters, Mr. Swergin," Dona presented Dudley. Dudley grasped the huge fist that was thrust at him and almost danced as Swergin clamped down.

"Pleased to meet you," the timber boss growled.

Dudley could only nod, he was as busy rescuing his hand.

Swergin gave his attention at once to Dona. He smiled widely as he shoved a chair out for her.

"Your Pa is sure on the warpath, Miss."

"Are you sure he is not here?" Dona fixed the big man with a cool stare.

"Now, he's out gunning," Swergin laughed until the rough sound rasped on his listeners.

"Why did you let him go?" Dona demanded.

Swergin considered this amusing and laughed again. "You can't stop the big boy when he gets a notion," noticing the look in Dona's eyes he leaned toward her and thrust out his chin. "But I'll take care of this business just like I've been taking care of it for three years."

"What do you mean?" Dona asked sharply. Swergin's little eyes made her skin creep and she felt almost as though he had placed his rough hands upon her.

"Your Pa can hunt but when I get set I'll ride out and shoot this guy down in his tracks." Swergin snapped his jaw shut and doubled one enormous fist.

"Why shoot him? Let him take all the notes he wants to. This is government inspected cutting," Dona was beginning to be angry.

The flush that mounted in her satin cheeks seemed to spur Swergin on. "Sure I'll shoot him down. Only yesterday or the day before he killed Gilette, the government ranger. Shot him in the back with a high-powered rifle. I'm the law up here and I've posted Ball of Blind River. Dead or alive, but double bounty dead." Swergin got up and stood before Dona.

"This Ball must be a tough guy," Dudley put in.

Swergin answered but he did not pay any attention to Dudley. "He's one of them two-gun cow punchers who thinks a lumberjack is easy pickings."

Dona rose and faced Swergin. "There is more than a desire for a report back of all this. What is it?" Her words snapped out and she resembled her father as she faced the timber boss.

Swergin laughed again, this time shortly. "Well, maybe there is. We cut clean and the cowmen say we ruin the range, but we have Gilette check everything. What he says goes — or did go until yesterday."

"How does it happen they allow you to cut clean?" Dona persisted.

Swergin wiped his mouth with the back of one hand and assumed a heroic pose. Dudley stepped close to Dona's side. He did not like the big boss and the bold way Swergin looked at Dona made him furious.

"Give us the straight of this, my man, quit playing to the gallery," he snapped.

Swergin looked Dudley over for the first time. "You're pretty much of a tenderfoot to be talking out of turn up here. This is a hard man's country and has to be run that way. I've been handling Delo Timber for quite a while and I know the ropes."

He glared at Dudley but could not make the city man's dark eyes falter.

"Swergin is a good boss but his speech and ways are rough," Dona tried to placate the timber boss.

Her words irritated Swergin visibly. "I'm a gent who knows how to take care of timber and a woman too, if I fancy her."

Dona almost jumped at his words. She had met many of her father's trusted men but this was the first one who had ever spoken with such boldness and equality. Three Rivers was indeed a different camp. She resolved at once to keep her manner toward Swergin quite normal.

"Go on. Tell us what you know," she urged in a different tone. The big fellow before her demanded equal treatment by his powerful presence.

"You asked why they allowed clean cutting? Well, that's the only way any money can be made on this stand and the government knows it. Next season we move over on the Blind River side and we'll cut the same way there." Swergin's jaw thrust out and his narrow eyes snapped.

"This is a feud then between timbermen and cowmen?" Dona spoke slowly.

"It sure is and it's getting good!" the big boss went on.

"Why are the cowmen so eager to get that report on your cutting?" Dona wanted the whole story now that they were at it.

"They want to send it to them white collars in Washington and that might get us into trouble that would tie up the cutting," Swergin fished a blackened pipe from his pocket and began to load it from a leather pouch.

"You should be able to settle this dispute in Washington," Dona insisted. "I don't think Dad will stand for needless bloodshed. I intend to make him stop all this."

Her eyes met Swergin's in a spirited clash.

The big boss grinned as though he had found something very much to his liking. "Me and Asper Delo has fought our own battles and cleaned our own timber where we found it. I don't guess we'll stop now."

Dona still refused to believe her father would stand back of such a program. She knew that he had been a fighter in his time, that he had won their fortune by hard hitting and some straight shooting; but that had been before there was a law covering timber rights and he had always won by fair means.

"When will Dad be back?" She plainly wished to end the conversation.

"Oh, most any time," Swergin was evasive.

"Can't you send someone to tell him we are here and want to talk to him?" Dona insisted.

"Wouldn't do any good. He'd come in when he got ready. I can't send out no men to run loose in the hills the way things is," Swergin argued stubbornly.

"You send a man after my father and tell him we are here," Dona snapped. "The timber boss was verging on insolence."

Swergin stepped to the door and called loudly. "Mike! Get a move on and take the war bags of these visitors to the hotel." As an afterthought he added, "And if Delo comes in tell him he has company."

English Song Made Chevalier Famous

"How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm. After They've Seen Parree?"

He didn't know it at the time, but when he sang a song of that title in English in a Parisian music hall one night, Maurice Chevalier was laying the foundation for his movie career.

The French star, whose latest picture, "Love Me Tonight," comes to the Palace theater Sunday learned English as a prisoner in a German camp during the world war.

Ronald Kennedy, an English soldier incarcerated with him, taught it to him.

When he escaped and returned to Paris, Chevalier got himself a job singing in a music hall. British and American soldiers on leave from the battle front made up a large portion of his audience.

One night he had an inspiration. Why not sing them a song in their own language?

Chevalier racked his memory and get together the words of the one English song he knew: "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down On the Farm. After They've Seen Parree?"

Encouraged by his first success, he repeated night after night, learning more and more English songs until he had a large repertoire. Even after the war ended and the soldiers went home, he kept on singing in English because French audiences liked it, whether or not they understood the words.

It was the knowledge of English that enabled him to accept a contract with Paramount, in America, and develop into one of the English-speaking screen's most popular personalities.

"Love Me Tonight," his latest picture, finds him cast as a tailor who falls in love with a princess and he sings several new song hits. He goes through many amusing circumstances removing the boulders blocking their path to happiness.

Benjamin Mankiewicz directed the production, with Jeanette MacDonald, Charles Ruggles, Charles Butterworth and Myrna Loy in chief supporting roles.

FAVORS TIGER AS SUPERIOR IN CAT FIGHT

The greatest battle of the animal world has never yet been filmed, declares Clyde Beatty, leading animal trainer of the circus, and the moving pictures, in an article published in the current issue of Collier's Weekly. This "greatest battle," he says, is one between tigers and lions. It is a battle which never takes place in the jungle, because lions and tigers come from different parts of the world, and therefore never meet except in captivity.

"In a fight between a full-grown lion and a full-grown tiger," he writes, "I'd bet on the tiger — this despite the fact that the lion has certain physical advantages. His mane, for instance, protects his throat. The tiger has no such protection. The average lion is also a little bigger and heavier than the average tiger. But I should rely upon the striped cat's superior speed and unexampled ferocity — a savagery which in a fight borders on the diabolical.

"In a two-sided free-for-all — a given number of tigers against an equal number of lions — I also believe the tigers would have the edge. In such a mythical combat, the superior speed of the tigers might well prove the deciding factor leading to victory.

"The scraps that accidentally take place in captivity do not furnish an accurate gauge. For they are usually characterized by circumstances that give one side or the other the advantage — this advantage generally being on the side of the lions, owing to their incurable tendency to 'gang up' against any foe.

Three Against One

"I have had a good many opportunities to observe this ganging characteristic of lions. For instance, I was about to start putting my lions and tigers through their paces at a recent performance. I was working forty cats at the time — twenty-four lions and sixteen tigers. Roger, a big tiger, had taken his accustomed perch on the highest pedestal in the arena, eleven feet above the floor level. Prince, one of the heaviest lions in the show and a bad actor, suddenly decided to make trouble. Without warning he took a tremendous leap and, just managing to sink in his claws, dragged the tiger down from his roost.

"The two animals had hardly hit the floor when Caesar, Prince's brother, ran over to join in the scrap and assure a lion victory. Roger fought himself clear of his two assailants and backed up against the iron bars of the big cage. It was a clever move, for it meant that he would not have to worry about an attack from behind.

"When followed a sort of animal boxing match. Roaring their murderous intent, the lions closed in on the tiger but were temporarily frustrated in their attempts to inflict real damage. Roger gave them a boxing lesson, slashing away so effectively with his paws that it was impossible for either Prince or Caesar to get set for one of those deadly bites at the throat that are always the main objective in such a combat.

"A few seconds later Brutus, another lion, decided to get into the scrap. Now the struggle was more one-sided than ever. Three lions against one tiger!

Audience Got Thrill

"Having sustained tiger casualties many times as a result of the ganging up of lions, I knew I had a serious situation on my hands. — But nothing can be done in the early moments of such a battle. The combatants lose their heads and go temporarily mad. So I waited, watching not only the fighters, but also the other animals. All of them were nervously alert with a realization of what was going on, but unable to decide whether to join the scrimmage. Meanwhile the vast audience was getting a thrill, but most of them naturally thought it was all part of the act.

"Rogers seemed undaunted by the arrival of his third adversary. He was lashing out in all directions so fast that it was difficult for the eye to follow the lightning-fast movements of his paws. And thus he managed to keep his attackers away until I succeeded in getting the lions to fight me instead of him. I did by poking them with a heavy stick — my pokes repeated in rapid fire fashion until the lions could no longer ignore me. Then, when they came at me, I blanked them with my gun, a harmless proceeding that always gets the lions' attention. The purpose of the blank cartridge, of course, is to startle the beasts and get their minds on something else. Only in rare cases, where a desperate situation is involved, is it necessary to blank an animal smack in the face. I usually point the gun over the animal's head or to one side. Soon the three lions were perfectly willing to call it a day.

"I could give many other instances of a single tiger fighting off a group of lions. In fact, one of my striped fellows that I call Chester fought off seven lions before a crowd at Collinsville, Pennsylvania, and emerged from the scrap little the worse for wear."

"Look at that Baby roll 'em"

YOU would be astonished too, if you could see this machine that turns out 750 Chesterfields a minute... and every one as near perfect as cigarettes can be made.

But please bear this in mind. It is what happens before the tobacco goes into this machine that matters most. Rolling and packaging are important, but not nearly as important as the selection, blending and treatment of the tobacco.

That's why we keep telling you about the tobaccos used in Chesterfields. They're fine, mild, and pure tobaccos. We tell you about ageing and curing the tobaccos... about blending and cross-blending them... because they are things that count.

Chesterfields are milder. They taste better. Prove it for yourself... Just try a package.
