Jefferies Accepts Head Coaching Job at Wichita Falls

CHOSEN FROM FIELD OF 100 APPLICANTS

Climaxing a rapid rise in his profession, Coach Ted L. Jefferies today was offered and accepted the place of head coach at Wichita Falls school.

Jefferies came to Cisco from Corsicana one year ago and guided the destinies of the Lobo football team last fall with an ability and success that immediately won him recognition in a field where good coaching is a prerequisite. His work attracted the attention of the Wichita Falls authorities and upon resignation of Barry Holton, coach at that high school for a number of years, Jefferies was approached by representatives of that school with tentative negotiations for his acceptance of the vacant post.

Today he was informed that he had been selected out of a field of more than 100 applicants and after hurried conferences with members of the Cisco board announced his acceptance. His duties with the school next fall.

At Corsicana
Jefferies was at Corsicana for two years as assistant coach and was largely responsible for the success of the Corsicana teams of 1929 and 1930. He is a graduate of Centenary college and was a star fullback on the Centenary teams of 1925, 1926, 1927, and 1928. He went from Centenary to Corsicana.

His home is at Jacksonville, Texas. He is married and is the father of a son, five years old.
Jefferies was re-elected to the place of athletic director and football coach of the Cisco high school at a meeting of the school board several weeks ago. He deferred acceptance of the post, however, in view of tentative offers that had been made him elsewhere.

Miss Powell Is Lions Entertainer

Betty Lou Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Powell, was featured on the Lions club program presented today under direction of Nick Miller. Her readings were generously applauded by the Lions who demanded encores.

A visitor, Minor Huffman, of Dallas, associated with regional Boy Scout headquarters, spoke to the club on the Boy Scout movement. Accompanying him as visitors were E. P. Crawford, of Cisco, and Guy N. Quirk, scout executive and Will Talbot, both of Brownwood.
As the concluding event the club was divided into spelling teams captained by H. Brandon and W. H. LaRoque. Mr. LaRoque's team winning.

Her husband, David Hutton, a singer, said his wife collapsed due to strain of her religious and charity work.

In Wake of Capital Storm

The savage wind that swirled up the Atlantic seaboard, impelling shipping and leaving widespread property damage in its wake, took its toll at the nation's capital, too. This picture shows how some of the famous trees near the Capitol building were uprooted and hurled to the snow-blanketed ground while the storm raged. It was Washington's fiercest gale in nearly ten years.

BANK PLANS TO PAY OFF DEPOSITORS

The Cisco Banking company will liquidate.

Decision for this action was taken at a stockholders meeting Monday afternoon and in a circular letter addressed today to all depositors in the institution, which for more than a quarter of a century has served the people of Cisco and surrounding country, it is announced that the stockholders are transferring all of their personal assets to a trustee "and have made plans whereby we are confident that we can raise enough money within thirty to ninety days to pay at least 60 to 75 per cent, if not all, of our deposits."

The transfer of individual properties is being made in such a manner, it was announced, that the sale of these properties must be agreed to by the trustee, and the proceeds therefrom used only for the purpose of paying off the liabilities of the bank until each depositor receives his money in full.

At the meeting Monday the stockholders said that they would welcome a depositor's committee to sit in their conference and work with them in all matters pertaining to raising the money and paying the depositors. "It is not at all necessary," the letter today states, "for you to hire an attorney unless you desire to do so. Your interests will be as fully protected by the trustee and by the stockholders of the bank as they would be if you paid an attorney to represent you."

It was announced that plans for continuance of business as the Cisco Banking company, without incorporation, had been lately under consideration, but that satisfactory arrangements had not been worked out.

"Last fall," the communication explains, "at the time we closed the Cisco Banking company for reorganization, we made a statement in good faith that we would again be open for business within 30 or 60 days.

"We immediately filed an application for a national bank charter. The Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas and the Chief National Bank Examiner of this district, through whom such applications must be made, recommended to the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington that the charter be granted, and assured us that they believed it would be granted. After ninety days, however, we were advised by Mr. J. W. Pole, comptroller at Washington, that his department did not deem it advisable to grant a national bank charter in Cisco, as Cisco had ample banking facilities under the then existing conditions.

"We then applied for a state bank charter, which has not been refused. The State Banking Department has, however, made some requirements which we consider unjust and which, should we undertake to operate a state bank, would handicap us in the future.

"We have lately been considering plans for the continuance of business as Cisco Banking company, but have been unable to work out satisfactory arrangements.

"A meeting of the stockholders was held on Monday to consider the situation from all angles. We agreed that under present conditions the best plan was to raise the money to pay off our depositors from our personal assets, which assets amount to a great deal more than the liabilities of the bank. This plan will allow an orderly liquidation of the bank and put us in position to carry on with good men who are unable to pay at present. To this end, we, the stockholders of Cisco Banking company are transferring all of our assets to a trustee and have made plans whereby we are confident that we can raise enough money within thirty to ninety days to pay at least 60 to 75 per cent, if not all, of our deposits, and any lacking will be paid this fall. The transfer of our individual properties is being made in such a manner that the sale of these must be agreed to by the trustee, and the proceeds therefrom must be used only for the purpose of paying off the liabilities of the bank until each depositor receives his money in full."

The cooperation of each depositor in order to hasten payment of the full amount of deposits is asked. "We sincerely appreciate the patience which you have shown and the confidence you have evidenced," the statement concludes.

No announcement was made with respect to the trustee to be appointed.

5,000 civilians from the ruins of Shanghai's Chapel sector, which was bombed for days by the Japanese. This picture was taken at the height of the dramatic rescue effort.

Kidnaper Given Life Sentence

WARREN, O., March 16.—Dowell Hargraves, charged with kidnaping for extortion James DeJute Jr., 12-year-old Niles school boy was sentenced to life imprisonment here today.

The sentence is the maximum under Ohio law.
John Demarco awaits trial on the same charge.

THREE ABDUCTORS ARE CONVICTED

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Ralph Sheldon, Louis Frank, and Jesse Orsatti, alleged Chicago gangsters today were sentenced to prison terms of from 10 years to life on their conviction of kidnaping E. L. Cares, race track official, and Mrs. Cares.

MUST SERVE 10 YEARS IN SHOOK CRIME

AUSTIN, March 16.—A ten-year sentence given Thomas Davis at his third trial on charges of having a part in the killings of Lucian and Leon Shook during a hunt in Eastland county was affirmed here today by the court of criminal appeals.

Clyde Thompson, also charged with a part in the slayings is serving double life sentence for both killings.

In the case affirmed today Davis was convicted of killing Leon Shook. He received a five-year suspended sentence at a retrial on a charge of killing Lucian Shook, after having been given a death penalty. Davis was only 17 at the time of the killing which occurred September 7, 1928.

The case affirmed today was tried in Shackelford county on a change of venue.

A death verdict against Estanislado Lopez, convicted of the slaying of Jesus Villareal in Willacy county was affirmed.

New trials were ordered for Port E. Stages, former alderman of Strawn, and Charles A. Foosee, of Fort Worth. Stages had been given 12 years in Palo Pinto county in connection with the slaying of Frank Yell, May 2, 1930. Questions by the district attorney caused the reversal.

Improper admission of a statement made by Foosee to the Tarrant county sheriff resulted in reversing his case. He had been given a ten-year sentence in Tarrant county on a charge of killing his wife, Mrs. Billie Foosee, December 14, 1930.

Other proceedings of the court today included:

The case of Tim Ingram, from Eastland county, was affirmed.

KITTENS END HOME SEASON WITH LUCAS

The last chance of the season to see the Randolph college Kittens in action on a local court will be provided tomorrow evening when the Cisco Collegians entertain the Fort Worth Lucas Funeral home team at 8 at the high school gym.

The Lucas team ranks as one of the four leading sextets of the Fort Worth loop. Evidence of its strength is seen in the fact that the Oklahoma Presbyterian college six, after defeating the Cyclones two games, was only able to eke out a bare three-point victory over it.

Following tomorrow evening's soiree the Kittens entertain Saturday for Shreveport and the national tournament via Fort Worth where they take on some lively opposition in the shape of the Bowden Ice company team, another ranking Ft. Worth aggregation, Saturday evening.

Garden Plots Are Sought for Poor

People who have plots of unused ground which they are willing to have utilized as gardens in the move to provide employment and food for destitute people, are asked to notify Mrs. Phillip Pettit or Mrs. Charles Brown at the Cisco Charity and Welfare association headquarters.

By use of such spots a great many vegetables may be raised which will materially assist in solving the food problem for destitute families, she said.

Those who have seed to contribute to this cause will find it welcomed at the association headquarters, also.

Recent appeals for clothing have met with a gratifying response, Mrs. Pettit said.

G. N. Quirk, scout executive, will have charge of the work and will make regular visits to all towns in the area giving leadership to the program. The local scout work is under the direct supervision of O. L. Stamey, and T. C. Williams.

New Dry Goods Store for Cisco?

Stock of "Blanche's" local women's and children's ready-to-wear store, was sold yesterday at a trustee sale to F. B. Altman, of the Altman grocery. The Altmans maintain a dry goods store at Abilene and it is understood they contemplate establishing a dry goods store here, probably in the Winston building formerly occupied by the men's furnishing department of the John H. Garner's department store.

Definite announcement of any such plans, however, has not been made.

The sale of the Blanche's stock was handled by J. H. Chramnell, of the Chramnell Investment company as trustee.

Ideal Mate of College Girl Is Doctor Who Smokes, Drinks and Plays Cards

DENTON, March 16.—The ideal husband of the 1932 college girl is a college-bred doctor who drinks moderately and plays cards, according to the vote of 250 students at the Texas State College for women here.

Lawyers ran second to physicians as desirable mates in the vote. Next in order came business men, civil engineers, bankers, journalists, oil men, teachers, ranchers, dramatists, financiers, geologists, manufacturers, archaeologists, landscape gardeners.

Farmers, preachers and "loafers" received one vote each as husbands and one girl said her husband had to be a professional man or one engaged "in an honest occupation."

Nearly all stipulated that the ideal man must play cards and one girl required that he be a bridge expert.

LINDBERGH'S STILL BELIEVE CHILD IS SAFE

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 16.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh clung today to the belief that their kidnaped son is still alive and well, according to unimpeachable information given to United Press.

Reasons for this belief were not given in detail, however.

Meantime authorities untiringly ran down scores of leads and clues without contributing positively to the mystery of the child's fate.

Stanley Crandall, questioned by Rochester police at the request of New Jersey authorities, was released today having satisfied local officers of his movements since the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

Crandall, a paroled kidnaper, detailed for police every movement he made since February 4 until today, officers said.

Pullman Denied Two-in-One Charge

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The Interstate Commerce commission today ruled that the Pullman company may not place an extra charge on sleeping berths which are occupied by two persons.

The company asked the extra charge on the ground that their case is similar to the hotels which charge extra for more than one person in a room.

16 Men Rescued From Ice Floe

PINEHURST, N. Y., March 16.—Sixteen men, trapped on a floating ice floe when it broke away and drifted into Lake Erie, were rescued today. The men had been marooned on the ice since dawn.

Practically all of the ideal men will smoke. One girl wrote: "He'd better." A little more than the majority said their husbands could drink but some of the remaining said they would allow it on holidays and special occasions.

Ten of the girls said it would not be necessary for their husband to be Christians as the term is usually applied. All of the 250 agreed that the ideal husband must be a college graduate.

The questionnaire was distributed following the discovery of the record of one distributed 25 years ago by a Topeka, Kans. minister to 100 young women of his generation. In contrast with the 1932 result, the composite ideal man of 1907 was a handsome young fellow who didn't drink, or play cards, or smoke and was a Christian.

ANTI-HOARDING APPEAL SHOWS EARLY RESULTS

The anti-hoarding program of the Citizens Reconstruction organization is already accomplishing its purpose in all sections of Texas as today announced by A. P. Barrett, Texas chairman from state headquarters in the aviation building at Fort Worth, Texas.

Appointment of Barrett was approved by President Herbert Hoover to direct in Texas this far reaching campaign against the lazy dollars hoarded by over-cautious people who have in recent months withdrawn actual cash, from circulation, carried over to statisticians of the United States treasury department over $1,250,000,000 has been taken by its owners from banks and investments and hidden away in safe deposit boxes, tin cans, mattresses, sugar bowls, old sacks and such containers.

"In this campaign," Barrett said, "we are seeking to marshal the fighting spirit of our people to arouse their interest, to inspire their efforts to take advantage of the unrivaled opportunities of every man, to better our economic conditions in this state."

"Listen, Texans, to the clarion call of bigger and better days for they are here," he said, "Let's go forth to meet and welcome them and forgetting to enumerate the all too many ills that beset us, we'll come out finer and stronger as a nation."

Splendid Reaction.
This message, the Texas chairman, using his private Belanca airplane, carried over Texas, covering 1920 air miles in 840 minutes of flying time, landing in fifteen cities where motor police escorts rushed his party, including pilot "Swede" Rhenstrom, and news reel photographer, W. C. Brown, to waiting mass meetings of bankers, farmers, business leaders. Radio stations placed their microphones before the stalwart leader of Texas finance and his message of cheer, faith, hope and courage for Texas business filled the air, as municipal and college bands appropriately played "Happy Days Are Here Again." Such was the response.

"Results of the campaign are this week widespread in Texas with practically every city showing increased business transacted as shown by bank clearings increase over the period prior to March 1st. Increased bank deposits generally and the continuous strengthening of all security markets are definite indicators that the slump is over, and we are headed for the greatest era of development Texas has ever seen."

Barrett announced today.

He added, "From a detailed analysis in our office, I expect to see soon increases in all trade indicators in every city in Texas, and especially in those cities surrounded by rich agricultural lands, mineral resources, or alert and industrial plants; where the business leaders are aggressive to step out and claim for their town its just share of new development that is coming to Texas."

350 POUND STURGEON.

FORT FRASER, B. C., March 16.—A sturgeon measuring nine feet, four inches was taken in Fraser Lake by William Roberts. The fish weighed 350 pounds.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

OUR OWN SALVATION:—Wherefor, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.—Phil. 2: 12.

WHAT IS AMERICA GOING TO DO?

Col. Arthur Brisbane, who uses the columns of hundreds of newspapers over the nation to advertise California and (formerly) Florida real estate through his widely syndicated daily column, recently paid a visit to Al Capone in his jail quarters. The ex-king of the underworld swelled with a vast pride when the editorial director of the Hearst chain of papers interviewed him at length on the Lindbergh kidnap case. The newspaper colonel was interested in knowing just how his underworld Majesty would go about securing the release of the Lindbergh child if he was freed.

There was a time when men, without elaborate systems of legal procedure and complicated laws, laid down homely rules of conduct in the interest of the common good and observed those rules. The stretch served by many a predatory ruffian in those days was a short one with a limb at one end and a neck at the other. Law enforcement, was a short and sweet process. There wasn't much time nor opportunity for delay and none for loopholes in the simple code. If a man was a criminal he was an outlaw and that was all there was to it. There wasn't any such thing as a maudlin sentiment. Newspaper colonels didn't visit glorified gangsters in the plush-lined seclusion of a jail apartment and discuss sensational crime cases. The ranks of the outlaw weren't appealed to for go-betweens to do what the officers and the citizens could not do. Whenever such a situation arose and the representative of the law couldn't do anything about it he had his breeches smoked and a new regime moved in with fire and brimstone in its soul. Any smart-aleck with a lust for mayhem could get all the trouble he was looking for but he found out daburned quick that the people ruled. There was plenty of mischief and enough devilry of the bloody variety to make life excitable but there wasn't any such thing as a compromise between those that did it and those that stopped it.

In contrast to that day of the supremacy of the law and the honest elements what do we have? A gang of outlaws invades the privacy of one of America's most prominent homes and kidnaps a sleeping child. As if that was not enough outrage against the sovereignty of the people the felonious rascals taunt the baffled authorities and offer their own agencies to solve the mystery—for the price. The amazing honeycomb of crime beneath the sovereign will of 120,000,000 people clutches the babe in a putrid gasp and dares the law to do anything. Out of the sordid maze a couple of low-browed gentlemen are put forward who offer to contact the criminals with a promise of immunity and full compensation.

That kidnaped baby is one of the most fearful menaces that ever faced free America. Its return alive and well isn't the concern solely of one family, but the concern of every American of honest heart and mind and a love of home and the patriotic blood that has been spilled in defense of American liberty and institutions since the first expiring bodies crumpled on Concord green. Yet the felons are threatening to get away with it, to set a precedent for a nefarious trade that even before the sensational Lindbergh case, had reached alarming proportions. Parental love for a child, in this instance, cannot be condemned in sympathy, but the fact stands out as glaringly as white on black that if the kidnapers of this child are permitted to go scot free and filthily recompensed, there will be hardly a home in America on which a cross-mark will not be placed. The ancient practice of impaling the heads of decapitated criminals upon poles by the market gate from which their staring eyes could look down in fearful warning upon incipient outlawry would be none too severe a penalty in this case.

What is taunted America going to do about it?

A STORY OF JUNGLE JUVENILE SAVAGES.

Three Dallas boys, said to be news sellers, did not like the smell of a fourth boy. They tied his hands, they saturated his ragged clothing with gasoline, they applied the torch, and then they vanished. Their victim died. Now the Dallas police are investigating the case. They hope to capture the young savages. Death by fire is agonizing. Now how would it be possible for the punishment to fit the crime?

GOV. STERLING AND COUNTY AID.

Governor Ross Sterling served four years as chairman of the state highway commission. In his campaign for the office of governor his main proposal was a huge bond issue. Now he would ban county aid in highway building; that is, he is an advocate of relieving counties from the requirement of paying money into state highways. His viewpoint is that the people of Texas should not vote any more county or district bonds to be invested in highways in the state system of roads. Now his theory is that Texas highway funds and federal funds should be sufficient to finance all highway construction without county aid. In other words the Pennsylvania slogan goes: "Those who use the roads should furnish the money for their construction and maintenance," via the gasoline tax route.

Now why should the gasoline tax payers be compelled to throw a large chunk of their money to the big chest of the state school fund? Why should a man be taxed twice for the same cause?

MAYOR PINK LOGAN VOTED OUT OF OFFICE.

Port Arthur, one of the fast growing cities of Texas,

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The rising wave of kidnappings which culminated in the abduction of the Lindbergh baby is part of a general crime increase which has its roots in community inertia and dishonesty and inefficiency in government.

That view is shared by Senator

George W. Norris of Nebraska and Congressman Hutton W. Sum-ners of Texas, chairman of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees which have considered the bills to make interstate kidnaping a federal offense punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Attorney General Mitchell agrees that "the breakdown of state authority" in kidnaping cases is "disturbing."

People Laying Down

THE Lindbergh incident holds the possibility of arousing people to the fact that they have been laying down on the job by allowing their states and local officials to do so," says

Summers, a former district attorney.

"There is basis for the request for federal assistance when kidnaping victims are taken across state lines, but kidnappings occur within the states themselves and no kidnaper remains sitting on a state line."

"Not only kidnappings, but all crimes, are on the increase," says

Senator Norris, who has been both a prosecutor and a judge. "That, incidentally, is one reason I haven't blamed the many prohibition violations on prohibition itself.

Blames Corruption

MY own idea is that corruption in high places is an important cause of disregard for law. Where corruption exists all the people are affected. They see those high in official or social life getting away with it. Then men who have been partially dishonest and those with criminal leanings become dangerous criminals. When one class doesn't receive justice and another does, there is speaking through the ballot box, changed the form of municipal government to adopting the city manager plan to replace the present commission form. The vote for the change in the charter was overwhelmingly automatic. Mayor J. Pink Logan was automatically ousted. He was not a candidate for the new council. In a statement to the press

he said he had favored the city manager form of government for years. In the city election last year he scored a comeback.

Why not a city manager form of government for every progressive city?

Why not consolidation of county-city units wherever it is possible in Texas or elsewhere?

Why duplication of servants or taxes or high costs to the taxpayers when a consolidated government would keep money in the pockets of the people and make it possible in time to bring about simplicity in local government, efficiency in local government, and all at a low cost to those who pay the price?

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

In 1928 the Old Bay State of Massachusetts landed in the democratic column. Alfred E. Smith wrested it from the republicans. In 1930, the democrats elected Marcus

Coolidge senator of the United States. Joseph B. Ely is the democratic governor of the commonwealth. There are four democratic congressmen. Now the Smith leaders have nominated a slate for delegates-at-large. Their tickets is perhaps the strangest that will be named in any New England state. A governor, two U. S. senators, and four democratic congressmen, constituted a formidable array of vote getters. In addition, there are five democrats on the delegate-at-large ticket who are men of more than state-wide prominence and have been successful vote getters.

Smith has greater popularity in Massachusetts than in any one of the 48 states unless it be the Empire

State of New York. He consented to the use of his name and he flatly declined to recall or rescind his action in giving power of attorney to the state chairman to place his name on the ticket for delegates-at-large.

Mayor James M. Curley of Boston made a direct appeal to the former governor of New York to keep out of the contest and give a free field to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Smith refused. Mayor Curley has been a vote getter himself. He doesn't take orders from the state leaders. He is a prominent layman of the same church as Smith. He is just as aggressive a fighter as Smith. It is up to Roosevelt. He consented to the use of his name in order that a ticket of delegates-at-large pledged to his candidacy may be put before the democrats of the Old Bay state. In this old world of ours aggressive fighters are the successful battlers; that is, if they fight with intelligence as well as always a crime increase. Realization that justice is often partial has grown in the last 15 years.

When justice becomes expensive it often goes astray.

"Economic conditions have had something to do with increased lawlessness and with a power larger factor than usually supposed. War tends to increase inequality and the power of wealth to dominate and control. War is a brutalizer. It is mass murder and lowers everybody's standards.

When a whole people goes in for destruction of life and property their hearts are hardened to the finer sensibilities that should be in all hearts."

Voted Against War

NORRIS is the only senator who voted against the World War,

but has nevertheless been continued in office by his state.

"If dishonesty in government were speedily punished and law administered to all alike, the powerful and weak, it would have had a wonderfully good effect despite

The dime-a-dance girl

BU JOAN CLAUTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with Larry Harrowgate, an artist whom she met at Dreamland where Ellen works as a dance hall hostess. Larry is engaged to Elizabeth Bowers, a debutante, but she shows attention to Ellen until his fiancée returns from Europe.

From a sense of gratitude the girl agrees to marry Steven Barclay, a kind and wealthy man of 37 who has paid hospital expenses for her young brother, Mike, injured in a street accident. He finds a job for Bert Armstrong, engaged to Ellen's sister, Myra.

Barclay has been married and divorced from Leda Grayson, a dancer, and, fearing this talk may be reversed, scandal accompanied his marriage secret until after they sail for Europe.

Barclay wishes to settle a fortune on Ellen. They go to the offices of Symes & Prendergast, Barclay's attorneys, but the papers are not ready and Ellen refuses to wait, saying they can be signed after the ceremony.

On the wedding morning Ellen feels she can not go through with the ceremony. Myra persuades her that she must. The two couples drive to a small Connecticut town where the marriage is to take place. Barclay is aware of Ellen's fears and asks her if she wishes to postpone the marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Ellen was overwhelmed with relief. Steven's question struck the chains from her very spirit. To postpone this marriage, to defer it until Steven's return from London—weeks in which to conquer her problem. She need not go ahead. The man who loved her had himself set her free.

Then she looked at Steven and saw in his eyes the despair he could not hide. She knew she could not take advantage of such quixotic generosity. She understood Steven had made the offer because he was the person she was, understood that she must refuse it because she was the person she was. She saw Steven again as a beloved friend. He was not a stranger whom she could hurt.

"Why postpone it?" she demanded courageously.

"I thought you might like to, my dear."

"I wouldn't," she told him on a note of high courage. "I want to be married today with Myra. That's what we came for."

And Barclay was content. They were married in a tiny white painted church with green leafy branches rustling against the windows and letting through spots of sunshine that speckled the red carpet. The minister's wife cut flowers from her garden for the altar and played "Oh Promise Me" at the organ just before the ceremony.

The minister's wife was a romantic soul. She did not dream that the last note of the song made Ellen think of an ocean liner's whistle and of the final warning, "All ashore that's going ashore." She did not guess that as the organ wheezed to silence and Ellen fought down the sheer panic that made her want to rush from the church and the pale, beautiful bride was thinking it was too late now to go ashore. The gangplank was raised.

Then as the minister began to speak Ellen saw Steven's adoring eyes smiling into her's, and was afraid no longer. How could she be afraid of one who loved her so?

Her response was clear and steady. She heard Steven's voice. Then there was a frosty circle of platinum and diamonds on her finger and Steven bent to kiss her. The minister smiled his congratulations and Ellen heard Molly sob. It was over. She was Mrs. Steven Barclay.

Steven called her that first and left the Rev. Mr. Southey disappointed. Molly rushed up to kiss her and to kiss her new son. Myra who had become a bride five minutes earlier was kissing them, both and comparing her ring with Ellen's while Bert, a little in the background, looked shyly on and thought his own bride the most beautiful girl in the world.

Ellen, still in a world of unreality was resolving to be the best wife in the world to Steven. She accepted the arm he offered clung to it and looked up confidently at her husband, her eyes luminous and solemn as a child's eyes. Together they walked out into the sunshine.

There was rice after all—a small bag of it flung by Mrs. Southey from the steps of the church. The spell of solemnity disappeared in a burst of hysterical laughter.

Refreshments had been prepared in the parsonage, a tiny, white house in the shadow of the church but the wedding party was too hurried to stop, much to Mrs. Southey's disappointment. She stood on the sidewalk, shaded by a great oak tree, and waved until the big car was out of sight.

They had scarcely been gone a quarter of an hour before Louis Symes, Barclay's lawyer, leaped from a roadster that had come roaring down the highway, frantically rang the parsonage door bell and demanded to see Steven at once. Mrs. Southey, in a fever of interest and excitement, told him the marriage had all ready taken place. No, she did not know where the bride and bridegroom were bound. She thought perhaps—

"Let me see your husband," Symes cut her short.

Almost before she had pointed out her husband's study, Symes was striding across the room, knocked on the door and was inside. Within five minutes the study door burst open again. The lawyer raced from the house and down the shady sidewalk to his car. The Rev. Mr. Southey came from his study and paced the floor, a sign that he was deeply agitated. He did not respond to Mrs. Southey's anxious questions. He only told her that they both must hope Mr. Symes could locate his client.

A few hours later while Symes was scouring New York for them Ellen and Steven made their last visit to Mike at the hospital. The boy was excited and nervous because of the crowd in his room. He did not know whether to laugh, cry or be cross. When Ellen attempted to take him into her arms, Mike wriggled free to demand if she would bring him something from London.

Ellen assured him she would. But she felt the familiar pang the child had been so adept at causing lately. Just then he did something with the peculiar graciousness of childhood which made her forget. Mike stretched out one brown little paw and grabbed Steven's cuff.

"I'm awful glad Ellen married you," he announced frankly. "I like you."

They all laughed. Myra demanded to know if he were not glad she had married Bert. In a fit of shyness Mike refused to answer. Ellen had been made proud and happy and despite Mike's protests she gathered his head into her arms and gave him one of their old bear hugs. She did not know just why she should feel so grateful to him.

There were tearful goodbyes on the hospital steps and one horrible moment when Ellen felt she could not leave Myra and Molly and almost said so. Then the next minute she and Steven were in the car. There was no chauffeur now.

"I wanted to be alone with you," Steven said as they whirled away.

They were driving to his country home—now her home, too, a great house on Long Island that had been put in order and opened just for that night. It was not so many miles from Manhattan, just a pleasant drive through the still, breathless evening. When they were clear of traffic and on the long, silver road Steven pulled her close to him. She dropped her head to his shoulder.

Strange that she had never before thought of Steven driving a car. She felt safe and secure as she watched his hands, steady at the wheel. Would life with him be always safe?

Suddenly she knew that she was hungry.

"We're almost there now," Barclay told her, almost as if he read her thoughts. "The place isn't staffed—just the butler. But he'll have food for us. I don't believe you've eaten today?"

"I haven't," she admitted. "I'm awfully hungry."

"We'd have eaten in town if I'd only thought! But I was so anxious for you to see the place that is to be our home, Ellen."

They drove on through the September night.

Ellen felt small and insignificant not married at all, as the car turned through high iron gates, cracked up a smooth driveway that was like a long, white ribbon, and at last hesitated beneath the porte cochere of a great stone house. Lights burned from all the windows on the lower floor.

They had driven through landscaped grounds and she had caught a glimpse of the swimming pool gleaming with stars. Stevens had pointed out the stables and tennis courts, had spoken of golf and boating.

Could this be home? Could this ever be home to her?

She had a sudden hysterical notion that he and she might be dropped into separate wings of the great house and be unable to find each other for days. When they were inside it was not like that at all.

They entered a long, softly lighted living room with strange gleams of copper from the walls and the soft shine of old and well worn furniture. The room was perfect even on the coffee table beside a rosy wood fire lighted against the chill outside. Ellen looked about her, silent with delight. Why had she been so afraid of wealth when this was

Seeks Franchise For Army Officers

SAN ANTONIO, March 16.—Legal opinion on the right of army officers to vote in city elections is being sought by Mayor C. M. Chambers here.

In the mayor's opinion, officers should have the privilege of voting if they have lived in the state and county long enough to qualify. He will seek the advice of William Mitchell, United States attorney general, and James V. Allred, Texas attorney general.

If legally possible, Chambers proposes to submit an amendment to the city charter extending to officers the voting privilege. If their voting can be legalized by amendment of the state constitution, he will ask Texas legislators to submit such an amendment at the next session.

Texas is one of the few states where a retired army officer cannot hold office.

HISTORIC MEAT PACKING CASE IN HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The historic case of the Chicago meat packers will be revived late this week in Supreme court.

The nation's highest tribunal will be asked to decide whether changing economic conditions, particularly the enormous growth of the chain store food business since 1920, justify altering the decree of 12 years ago, which forbade the "Big Five" of the meat packers, to deal in unrelated food products.

Although the court less than a year ago handed down a decision considered inimical to chain store retailing, the relationship between that decision and the packer's case is so remote as to deny comparisons. The decision was in the Indiana Chain Store tax case which upheld a chain store tax as a proper state regulation.

Ask Liberalized Decree.

The packers, who in 1920 agreed not to handle unrelated food articles, but to confine their business to meat packing and the production of meat products, want the 1920 consent decree liberalized to permit them to handle these goods. In defense of this plea they charge that other packers are not hampered by their restrictions and that chain stores have in some occasions gone into the meat packing industry.

The District of Columbia Supreme Court more than a year ago approved this stand and liberalized the decree to permit wholesale, but not retail, dealing in food products not related to meat packing. It is this ruling the government is appealing.

First Court Action.

The first court action was begun against the packers in 1923 when the government brought a Sherman Act suit to restrain them from conspiring to control the purchase of livestock and the sale and distribution of meat products. An injunction was issued.

The entire proceeding was accompanied by widespread debate and public clamor in and out of congress. In 1917 President Wilson ordered a Federal Trade Commission investigation into the industry and from this inquiry the government's complaint on which the present action was based was filed.

The suit was aimed at Swift & Company, Armour & Company, Morris & Company, Wilson & Company and the Cudahy Packing Company. In 1925 the Secretary of Agriculture permitted Armour to take over Morris & Company despite the decree.

On the basis of this complaint the packing companies signed a consent decree forbidding them to hold interest in stockyard companies, stockyard terminal railroads or market newspapers and from engaging in the manufacture, sale or distribution of certain enumerated foods, and from holding an interest in public cold storage warehouses.

Only Swift and Armour brought the proceedings seeking liberalization. The other packers, however, joined to have whatever modification might be made apply to them.

SOVIET DENIES IMPORTATIONS OF SPECIALISTS

By EUGENE LYONS
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW, March 16. — Exaggerated reports abroad about a huge influx of foreign specialists and skilled mechanics to the Soviet have been denied by economic officials. They pointed out a story in the American and European press estimating that 1,000 foreigners were arriving to start work every week. "The absurdity of that report," one official said, "may be seen from the fact that less than 1,000 foreigners have been accepted on jobs here in the last three or four months. Stories untrue.

"I also recall a story in American newspapers to the effect that 6,000 American specialists were being hired. The truth of the matter is that there are only about 6,000 foreigners working here of all nationalities at present and the Americans among them total less than 1,000."

While the aggregated accounts sound flattering to the Soviet industrial leaders, they create a certain amount of difficulty too. Trade representatives in foreign countries are swamped with tens of thousands of applications for jobs, and great numbers of letters reach various Soviet organizations here directly.

Use in Second Plan
In his recent speech before the conference of the Communist Party Premier Molotov asserted that the second Five Year Plan would use foreign specialists even more extensively than the first. There is, however, no indication of such expansion. On the contrary, fewer foreigners are being employed and many contracts with foreign firms are allowed to lapse.

The policy, both in renewing old contracts and making new ones is to limit the amount of "valuta" or foreign currency so far as possible on a ruble basis. The writer knows of foreign engineers and other specialists who have been asked to cut the "valuta" part of their salaries by 75 to 80 per cent accepting rubles instead, if they wished to remain.

CIRCLE 1 MEETS AT CHURCH.

Circle 1 of the Ladies Aid of the First Christian church met yesterday at the church to quilt. At noon a delicious luncheon was served to twenty-one members and guests.

Members present were Mesdames W. P. Bruce, J. C. Burnam, C. B. Fowell, H. R. Garrett, W. K. Johnston, Ford, F. E. Shockley, J. A. Tune, Troy Powell, L. C. Moore, Rex Moore, V. E. McCharen, H. L. Dyer, and Miss Alice Bacon. Guests present were Mrs. J. Mobley, Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Harrell, Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Miley and W. K. Johnston.

Soviet Writers Ask Shaw's Aid

MOSCOW, March 16. — Five leading Soviet writers have just published an open letter addressed to E. J. H. Shaw, George Bernard Shaw and Stephan Zweig, urging them to use their enormous intellectual influence to shield the Soviet Union against plotting enemies.

The appeal is signed by Vsevolod Leonov, Vladimir Lidin, Uri Olesha and Alexei Fadeyev. Their letter appeared on the front page of the Moscow "Literary Gazette." The letter recounts recent world events particularly in the Geneva, to prove that the forces of capitalism and imperialism are being mobilized to crush the first socialist nation.

"In the days," the letter reads in part, "when the honor and independence of the Chinese people are being tread upon with unprecedented ed cruelly, we writers of the Soviet Union turn to you, our older comrades and our friends.

"You read, of course, with the same indignation as we do, the news of thousands killed, of burned cities, of populations being shot without even sparing women and children about transcripts of new armed forces to the occupied territories. At the same time that in the Far East a war is being practically carried on endless meetings of the League of Nations and disarmament conferences are under way.

"You probably know, as we all do, that this is directed against the Soviet Union. In the complicated game of diplomatic intrigue, the principal idea is emerging convincingly: to provoke the Soviet Union into war. In the days when the capitalist world is seized with this shameful fever, we feel sure that you will add your courageous voices of protest and active struggle against this plan."

Educational System Blamed for Waste

SAN ANTONIO, March 16. — Texas' system of higher education and the state legislature both are blamed for waste of funds by Mar Washer, president of the state board of education, here in revealing the results of a preliminary educational survey.

Duplication of work in numerous state schools; classes with one pupil and a high-priced instructor; high schools virtually maintained for communities under the guise of state colleges; and training of five times as many teachers as the state needs are major points.

Washer said the legislature directed the state board of education to make a survey to eliminate unnecessary duplications but made no adequate appropriation for the work.

3 Per Cent Goes To Buy Coffee

"Three per cent of all the money the average family spends at the grocery store in a year goes to buy coffee, according to recent figures given out by the United States Department of Commerce," said E. B. Moore, Ranger, representative of "Seven-Day Coffee." Knowing the important place that coffee holds in the home and also the necessity for economy on the part of the housewife, Arbuckle Brothers, importers and roasters of coffee for over 70 years, deliberately set out to devise a coffee blend which would incorporate a maximum of quality at a moderate price.

"Coffee from practically every continent on the globe were blended, re-blended and then blended again before official coffee tasters were satisfied. It was not particularly difficult to get a delicious blend in price could be forgotten. But it was Arbuckle Brothers' goal to keep the price moderate thought aiming high for quality.

"Experience and concentration won their reward, Arbuckle Brothers were successful and arrived at the blend which they are now offering to the public as "Seven-Day Coffee." That the public agrees with the coffee experts is shown by the wide wide preference being shown for Seven Day Coffee wherever it has been introduced."

Airmen to Practice at Port Lavaca April 1

SAN ANTONIO, March 16. — Bombs and bullets will shower the gunnery range near Port Lavaca for a six-week period beginning about April 1 as air squadrons from Brook's Field here are sent into target drills.

The 22nd Observation Squadron will be the first to leave. Their practice will require two weeks of firing for record. Each plane will fire about 21,000 rounds of ammunition and drop 27 dummy bombs loaded with sand.

Machine guns will be used on ground and plane towed targets.

Elser Signed K. P. Charter at Abilene

ABILENE, March 16.—Max Elser of Cisco, oldest past grand chancellor of the Texas Knights of Pythias order, was a visitor at the regular session of the local chapter Monday night. As state leader in 1882, Mr. Elser signed the charter of the Abilene chapter No. 42, awarded 50 years ago. Mr. Elser has been a Pythian 58 years.

Another member for a long period of time who was a visitor at the Abilene meeting was H. Schwartz of Baird. He has been in the order 49 years. Accompanying Mr. Schwartz were Lee Estes and Mr. Dallas of Baird.
