Order of Municipal Ballot Is Arranged Saturday

MAYOR AND 2 COMM'RS TO BE CHOSEN

The official ballot for the municipal general election to be held Tuesday, April 7, was prepared by a committee of four named by the city commission yesterday afternoon. A mayor and two commissioners are to be chosen, succeeding Mayor Williamson and Commissioners Crigger Paschall and Luther McCrea. Drawings for places on the ballot resulted as follows: For Mayor: J. T. BERRY, J. R. BURNETT, For Commissioners: (Vote for Two) E. P. CRAWFORD, H. S. STUBBLEFIELD, JOE CLEMENTS, J. T. ELLIOTT.

BAN JOHNSON SUCCUMBS AT SAINT LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, March 28. — Byron Bancroft Johnson, 65, former president of the American League died here today after a long illness. Johnson was one of the most colorful and best liked characters in organized baseball. He helped organize the American League and served as its president until 1927. His death followed closely that of his successor to the American league presidency, Ernest S. Barnard, who died in Rochester, Minn., late yesterday.

Father's Attack Is Fatal to Youth

HONOLULU, March 28. — Dudley Wallace, 12, died in a hospital here today from injuries inflicted by his father, a wealthy New York stock broker who committed suicide after attacking his two sons with an ax. Donald, the other son, was reported in a critical condition.

STUBBLEFIELD GIVES VOTERS HIS VIEWS

TO the Citizens of Cisco: 1. There have been several who want to know my views on certain things pertaining to the city. 2. If I am elected as one of your commissioners I am in favor of paying every bond voted on by the people. The bonds issued without the consent of the people is a problem to be worked out by the commission. 3. I am opposed to selling our lake, water works, sewer lines or anything that belongs to the city to satisfy the bond buyers. Our water is one of our largest assets and if used rightly, will help pay our debts. I believe in cleaning the city hall from top to bottom and those who are worthy, let them go back to work for the new administration. 4. I believe all commission meetings should be open to the public so the people will know what is being done with their tax money. I don't believe in giving the big tax payer a reduction and at the same time bring suit against the little fellow to foreclose on him for his taxes. Treat them all alike. I believe we have people who can fill any position that we would have to let, so let's give our work to Cisco people. I believe we should appoint a Tax board and instruct them to cut our taxes on Real estate $1,000,000 — and more if possible. Let's cut every expense possible.

Cisco and Sane Citizenship. (AN EDITORIAL)

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation, in an article recently published in the Saturday Evening Post presents an interesting and sound exposition of the economic situation in which this country now finds itself. Mr. Taylor's attitude is at once conservative and hopeful and no doubt represents to a considerable extent a consensus of well qualified views upon the point. He points out that this country has been, during the past two years, swept by successive waves of economic hysteria which have carried the public mind from one extreme to another. Elaborating this viewpoint he suggests that the economic history of mankind has been marked by periods of apparent depression after each of which standards of living have benefitted and mankind has learned important lessons which have been applied to the improvement of the conditions with which he has surrounded himself. What will be the improvement after the present period he declines to predict but he does assume a confident attitude of optimism.

It is infinitely more promising to improve upon an existing system than to destroy and create anew, says Mr. Taylor in condemning frantic agitation from some quarters for junking an economic system that has been built up through thousands of years of earnest, faithful toil. Such agitation has been a concomitant of every period of depression he asserts.

What has been said with reference to the country at large is proportionately applicable to Cisco. There never was in the history of this city a time when clear, sound thinking and honest, sincere action were more needed than now, or when better opportunities existed for the person who is conscientious, diligent and faithful. Individually we are apt to forget what is real and sound when the public mind is moved by hysterical which a healthy consciousness would recognize and agitation, and to pass over innumerable opportunities improve upon. It is those who are mentally strong enough to keep their bearings and see beyond befogging circumstances who emerge triumphant. These are the people who recognize that there is no magic formula for success, no panacea for economic, social and political ills save common sense and work; who realize that improvement is at best a slow and laborious process.

Cisco, as a city, is in a most strategic position. From the standpoint of facilities for civic development it is superior. There are problems, serious problems, confronting us, but the most serious of these is not finances, not commercial status, but THE STATE OF MIND OF OUR CITIZENSHIP. Once this is satisfactory, once we recognize that personal loyalty is the only road to the public welfare, which means individual welfare, the other difficulties are comparatively of no consequence.

There is no need to enumerate what Cisco has. So far as our commercial status is concerned it is enough to say that we have no surplus from flush times to slough off upon a readjusted market. If the so-called depression has done anything it has forced business to a foundation from which it can readily take advantage of improved conditions.

The repeal of the dangerous receivership law by the present legislature has removed the only serious impediment to a satisfactory solution of the city's financial problems and the way is now open for a sensible settlement of this question.

We should not allow ourselves to be deflected from our real goal by petty bickerings, by foolish agitation actuated by personal political ambitions and shortsighted policies which look not to the common good but to selfish personal elevation. We are not concerned with personalities, but we are concerned with those things which, projected now, are destined to affect what Cisco is to be in the future. We should see to it that whatever we do is in harmony with this program; that we are not caught in a backwash of hysterical sentiment that pushes us from our true course.

We should employ every energy of thought and action toward solution of the problems confronting us, realizing that after all, the problems of one are the problems of all. The world is looking at us and weighs our reactions. If it approves we become, in a sense, a magnet, attracting business and enterprise which aid in the realization of our civic destiny; if it disapproves we have repulsed, instead of attracted, and our progress and the prosperity of our citizenship is hindered materially.

We are not radicals, neither are we progressives, in the sense that we are seeking a thing, but in the sense that we employ certain methods.

Above all things let us dedicate ourselves to harmony and cooperation in the working out of our civic destiny. Let us be certain that our feet are placed on solid ground and that we do not sacrifice to a momentary mood those advantages and opportunities which are the result of years of faithful and earnest effort.

ANNUAL CITY CLEANUP DUE ON APRIL 1

Cisco's annual spring clean-up will be started on April 1, according to plans of the city health board and the City Federation of Women's clubs which are cooperating in the movement to keep Cisco the cleanest city in the state.

The drive is ordinarily held later in the spring but the early season this year has prompted an earlier campaign, it was announced. The object of the drive will be to remove health hazards and will require the cleaning off of vacant lots, yards, alleys and other premises, the removal and burning of all kinds of rubbish and junk, growing vegetation.

"A checkup of the condition of garbage cans has been made," says the city health board, "and up to this time it has been found that some of the citizens are not complying with our request concerning cans with bottoms while others have not made cans accessible. We are again asking the citizens to fill these requests and as much as we desire to make personal calls in the enforcement of the regulations it will be necessary to take this step if the regulations are not complied with at an early date."

Further information concerning the plans for the clean-up will be announced at an early date, the board said. They urge that the citizens do not wait for the start of the campaign to do those things that should be done but that actual cleaning up be started immediately.

CISCO GOLF TEAM TO PLAY THURBER HERE

The Cisco country club golfers will entertain the Thurber club team in a return match this afternoon at the local links. Team Captain O. J. Russell Saturday said that the Thurber players will be here in time to start the match promptly at 1 o'clock and that Cisco golfers are expected to be on hand at this time. The time required to complete the matches requires that the play begin promptly at this hour, he said.

JOE CLEMENTS STATES STAND FOR ELECTION

To the Citizens of Cisco: As a candidate for city commissioner, I think it my duty to tell you how I stand on the important issues or matters which I shall be called upon to act, if elected. I think you have a right to know this before you vote.

If elected, I will try to cut out all extravagances and unnecessary expenses in the city affairs. I think the tax payers' money has been wasted in many ways in the past.

I will endeavor to build up the city and promote its progress in every way. But I will not vote to pave one residence street, and make the people on an unpaved street pay for it.

I will vote to have the city books kept so that the condition of the city's finances can be known at any time; and will have the books audited every year, as the law provides.

If elected, I will not be a party to, nor vote for, issuing city bonds of any kind, unless the matter is first submitted to a vote of the tax paying voters of the city, as the law requires. If bonds are issued,

PRINCIPLES OUTLINED BY J. R. BURNETT

In order that people may thoroughly understand the principles for which I stand in my race for mayor of Cisco, I wish to reiterate these principles if the Cisco Daily News will be kind enough to print them. Briefly here they are:

1. An honest, business, and economic administration, based upon a minimum expense account with maximum efficiency.
2. That all public documents and records pertaining to city affairs shall be open at all times for inspection and examination, and that the citizenship of the town shall be informed of the proceedings of the city commission.
3. Lower tax valuations made possible by economy in administration which will induce more business enterprises to locate in our midst, and encourage our people to own their own homes.
4. A greater maximum limit of water gallonage allowed, in order that our people may be encouraged to beautify their homes; also a lower water rate, if at all possible.
5. A sincere endeavor to serve my constituency whenever and wherever possible, and assist in the promotion and advancement of all laudable civic enterprises.

In all probability I shall not be able to solicit each voter personally so I trust you will consider this entire program.

Former Nominee Has Operation

MIAMI, Florida, March 28. — James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and democratic presidential nominee in 1920 was operated on for appendicitis here today. Cox was stricken suddenly early this morning and was taken to St. Francis hospital where an emergency operation was performed.

Former Cisco Girl in Speech Recital

Miss Katherine Moss, formerly of Cisco, a junior student at the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, was presented in junior speech recital Tuesday evening in the college auditorium. Her selection was James Barrie's "Barbara's Wedding". Miss Moss will receive degrees from the departments of both speech and physical education. She was among the 133 students to receive letters of commendation recently from Dean E. V. White for attaining an average of A or B during the past term.

Many Ciscoans Go to Nat'l Tourney

A large number of Ciscoans attended the national A. A. U. tournament at Dallas last week to witness the Randolph Kittens in their games. Among those going to Dallas were: Dean and Mrs. E. B. Isaacs, of the college, Mrs. H. R. Garrett, all of whom returned Friday night; Mrs. Ina C. Query, preceptress of the girls' dormitory at the college, Miss Nina Watts, a member of the faculty and students of the college.

EVIDENCE IS SAID TO POINT AT HATHAWAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 28. — Fingerprints found on the neck of Verma Russell, strangled student nurse were held by state authorities today as important evidence in case Ellicott (Phunky) Hathaway is charged with her murder.

After conferring with state fingerprint expert, Dominick Langlo, Attorney-General Benjamin McLynn said:

"We have enough evidence now to convict Hathaway of first or second degree murder."

Hathaway, young son of a Massachusetts legislator, remained at the county jail in Cranston today awaiting a court hearing on a charge that he murdered the girl whose bruised body was found beside a lonely lane in Tiverton early Tuesday.

PLATFORM IS OUTLINED BY J. T. ELLIOTT

Since my general statement, in announcing for commissioner, I have been asked several direct questions by many prominent citizens of Cisco as to how I stand on important matters confronting our citizenship at this time. Feeling they are entitled to know this as much as they are entitled to know the acts of the commission after their election, I make the following statement:

I made the general statement that I stood for an economical administration. By this I do not mean that a city of the size of Cisco can grow and prosper or even exist without spending money, but we all know we are passing through the greatest depression and economic readjustment the world has ever known—and that the business world is being forced to readjust itself to meet changing conditions. I can see no sound reason why cities or municipalities should burden their struggling citizenship with the same inflated tax values and general expenses as when times were good. With this firm conviction, I shall, if elected your commissioner, strive to cooperate and foster reduction and curtailment of expenses every way possible.

With this in mind I shall favor the lowest possible rendition of property for taxes, in harmony with commercial values at the present.

If at all possible, without impair-

YOUTH FACES CHARGE IN BRASS THEFT

Wesley Thurman, 19, was charged with possession of stolen goods in Justice of the Peace McDonald's court Saturday after Constable R. L. Wilson had arrested him in the possession of 131 brass valve stems said to have been taken from valves in the warehouse of the T. P. Coal and Oil company at Ranger several days ago.

The 131 stems represented a total weight of about 1,000 pounds of brass, officers said. Thurman was arrested in a truck seven miles west of Cisco Friday evening about 6:30 and the brass taken to the city hall. Constable Wilson had information, he said, that the stems were being taken to Sweetwater.

Thurman was taken to Eastland and lodged in the county jail.

19 SURVIVE IMPRISONMENT BY BLIZZARD

TOWNER, Colo., March 28. — The harrowing story of 19 children who watched five of their chums die when their school bus was stalled in a blizzard was told here tonight. For 30 hours the 19 survivors themselves fought off death as the blizzard raged.

Many of the survivors probably will lose their hands and feet which were frozen during the terrible wait for rescue.

The children were exhorted by the bus driver to keep from freezing by moving about in the bus. They did playfully, thinking at first that their plight was a great joke.

In their play one of them accidentally shattered a window in the bus. Then the bus filled up with snow driven by a savage wind.

Those nearest the broken window complained. The youngest children among the 23 shared their clothing with the younger ones.

The joke became a horror. Frantically Carl Miller, the driver, herded his charges. He endeavored by every possible means to keep them awake, fearing sleep would mean death.

Cried Quietly One by one the children became exhausted. They slumped in their seats and cried quietly to themselves.

The older children sat white-faced realizing the seriousness of their plight.

Then one of the little girls died. Miller's crude examination with his numbed hands convinced him of that. Then another toppled over and finally Miller saw his own daughter, May Miller, 7, die.

Miller told the older boys he was going to try to reach aid. He must have known he faced certain death but if he did he kept it to the children.

"God bless you all," he said. "Pray somebody will find you. I don't believe I'll ever see you again." Then he left.

Tonight Miller's prophecy apparently was fulfilled.

His prayer that the children would be found, however, was answered.

Abe Stonebreaker and Ernie Johnson, frantic over the absence of their children who had been dismissed from the Pleasant Hill school and sent toward home in the bus Thursday morning as the storm threatened, discovered the stranded bus late last night. The men, who had fought their way through 15 feet of snow found the children and rescued them.

PROCLAMATION OF PEACE—Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.—Luke 2:14.

PRAYER—Father, may the song of the angels become the anthem of all nations.

"IT IS GREAT TO BE A TEXAN"

Texas bonds are bringing in a minimum of "par and accrued" and in several cases premiums in recent sales, according to the head of a very watchful bureau of information.

Texas produces one-third of the American cotton crop, but has only 280,000 spindles for spinning that product. North Carolina, leading southern textile state, has 6,236,320 spindles. Thirty years ago North Carolina was one of the most poverty stricken of all states east of the Mississippi river.

Texas produced in 1930 one-fourth of the American pecan crop. In 1929 it produced almost one-half the total American crop—17,496,000 out of 38,000,000 kilowat hours.

A drought of 1930 played havoc with the pecan growers. Texas in 1930, despite curtailed production and reduced prices of its principal products, led the states of the union in value of agricultural products. California was second and Iowa third.

Texas again in 1930 ranked eighth among the American states in electrical output and was one of the few states to show a substantial gain in the total—2,918,000,000 kilowat hours. Texas again in 1930 ranked first among the states in production of natural gas and, according to former Representative Frank Baldwin of The Waco News-Tribune, "natural gas is produced in Texas at the rate of $26,000,000 value annually, at the source of production and after it gets to Kansas City, Chicago and elsewhere that $26,000,000 value increases to over $100,000,000."

In order to make himself thoroughly understood this former lawmaker and present editor makes this very caustic comment: "If you own something other people wanted, you wouldn't give it away, would you? The Texas public owns that natural gas. Texas schools, universities, asylums, public administrations—own that gas. Forefathers who wrote the constitution tried to protect us in ownership, reserving us the potential earning power; but we developed into a race of saps and gullibles and, contrary to the constitution's intent we are giving away our resources."

All this is a reminder that the governor signed the resolution passed by the 42nd legislature calling for appointment of a committee to investigate oil, gas and mining conditions "and make recommendations to the legislature for enactment of laws to conserve natural resources." This resolution was introduced in this legislature by Senator Thomas L. Pollard of Tyler and Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock. The committee was charged with conferring with similar committees of other states relating to drafting a uniform code for oil, gas and mineral production and the states to be conferred with are Oklahoma, California, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kansas and Wyoming.

As a committee it will be composed of the governor, attorney general, chairman of the railroad commission, four senators and five members of the house. Theodore Roosevelt was the first apostle of the conservation of the natural resources of America. He died and Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania drew down the Roosevelt medal. Conservation of natural resources is all important to many of the American commonwealths. Now a committee has been named to do a lot of research work, and Governor Sterling has recommended to the lawmakers creation of a state conservation commission. First, the resolution was a long step forward and next, the creation of the state conservation commission is one of the most important proposals submitted to the lawmakers by the successor of Dan Moody. Editor Baldwin is reminded, "We may be happy yet."

BUILDING ACTIVITIES THE COUNTRY OVER.

In the centers of population of the north and the east building activities were 40 per cent greater in the month of February than they were in the corresponding month last year. In all the industrial centers mills and factories are taking on employes and increasing their output. Spring is here. In town and country the wealth makers and the wage earners are getting busy and the outlook is certainly a great deal brighter than it was a year ago.

In the financial centers bonds are having the call. There is demand for the gilt-edged. If Texas is the bright spot on the map then the city of Austin should be given its proper place. There is building everywhere. Public works are being pushed and the outlook is exceedingly bright for a very busy season.

OTHER OPINIONS

RED CROSS DRIVE SUCCEEDS.
The Red Cross in spite of being handicapped by getting mixed up with the United States Senate, and despite the fact that its drive for $10,000,000 was for drought relief, was made at the time when local committees were being hard pressed to take care of their own needy cases, has announced that a little more has been subscribed than that asked for.

It is not so much to the credit of the Red Cross that it thus maintains intact its record of never having failed in a campaign, as it is to the people who have continued to support the organization. The answer the public has given gives emphasis to the fact that there is an unquenchable feeling of kinship in the helplessness into which some find themselves because of forces over which they have no control. The Red Cross is simply a means to an end which the American people have adopted. Its success this time in raising the vast sum was made possible because in meeting previous disasters it had won the confidence of the people.

A strong effort was made to get this great organization mixed in politics. It was asked to distribute a proposed appropriation that congress would make for the drought sufferers. This the organization refused to do and brought down on its directors furious maledictions of some brave Senators. But the Red Cross was right. It had at that time to bear severe criticism but since the political question has been eliminated this has all ceased. It was charged on the Senate floor that thousands of people were starving to death. Senator Caraway even saying 1,000 were dying daily in his state of Arkansas from starvation.

Here was the defense of the Red Cross: "The Red Cross has set up its committees of relief in every drought stricken county. These committees were composed of people living in the county and they were told to feed the hungry and the Red Cross would pay the bill." If any body suffered it was because their friends and neighbors would not write out orders for food. As soon as the political picture faded there was no further criticism.

But if the Red Cross had accepted the government aid it would have been subjected to political intrigue to get relief extended to this Senator's state or this Congressman's district and a dozen investigating committees would now be hampering its work.

As it is the Red Cross has done a good job, done it in its own way and has the confidence of the public as evidenced by the successful raising of the $10,000,000.—Marshall News.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Penrose Metcalfe, representative from the San Angelo-Concho river county, put over his congressional redistricting bill in the house. That is, he put it over with an amendment tacked on by Rep. Fritz Englehard of Eagle Lake, who happens to be a friend and loyal supporter of Cong. Joseph J. Mansfield of the 18th congressional district. The lawmaker from the Concho river country placed Mansfield in a district where he did not care to go. Indeed in the shuffling of the political cards Mansfield found himself in the Wurzbach district. After he had recovered political consciousness he found himself in the Buchanan of Austin district. Then he hurried to the capital from his home town and Englehard amendment was tacked on to the Metcalfe scheme of things and the gentleman from the old ninth found himself in the same district as Clay Briggs, representative from what is known as "the Galveston district."

There are 150 representatives and 31 senators and it is dollars to dimes that Lawmaker Metcalfe will be unable to recognize his banishing after the grave and return of 31 redistricting schemes all their own. Texas has 18 congressmen. Texas won three additional in the allotment to states. A house bill has been sent to the senate. A senate bill will be enacted. Then there will be senate and house conferees to iron out the new districts or a deadlock will call for the election of three congressmen at large.

Rep. Mansfield is an outstanding national lawmaker. He is the ranking democrat on the very important house rivers and harbors committee. He was elected in 1916 and he has been on the job ever since. He is admittedly one of the best informed lawmakers of the country on the subject of rivers and harbors as well as of their importance to the shippers of America. Harry M. Wurzbach loses a district but he is fixed. He is going to move from Guadalupe to Bexar and announce as a republican candidate from the one-county district unless Pres. Hoover names him as the successor of Fed. Judge Duval West.

There is a presidential election coming next year and the directors of the republican party of Texas are engaged in personal as well as political fence building. Col. R. B. Creager of Brownsville is the republican national committeeman. Eugene Nolte of Seguin is the republican state chairman. E. C. Toothman of Dallas is the director of republican state headquarters. Well, the big three held a conference in the city of Dallas. Col. Creager predicted that in the next presidential election Texas would again vote for Herbert Hoover "against a wet democrat, probably either Alfred E. Smith or Franklin D. Roosevelt." He considered the business depression a greater political issue than either tariff or prohibition, brushed aside the progressive movement as unimportant and made the bold prophecy "that business would improve by the next election." Since it will improve by the next election, Business hit the bottom early in 1926, remained close to the bottom of the ditch in 1930 and now it is said to be crawling out of the ditch and should make the landing before the coming of the fall months of 1931.

Chmn. Nolte makes no bones of his part of the program. He is for sending a Texas delegation to the republican national convention in 1932 "which would vote for a platform plank advocating repeal of the 18th amendment." He made it plain, if correctly quoted, that he was not making the suggestion that the republican convention insert such a plank in its platform. He expects to see Pres. Hoover nominated for reelection in 1932 and believes the Texas delegation will be instructed for the Hoover candidacy. Chmn. Nolte is not an ultra-dry. He is not a die-hard champion of the 18th amendment or the Volstead act. This is his viewpoint:

"If the question of inserting a plank for the repeal of the 18th amendment were to come up in the convention I favor having the Texas delegation vote for its insertion. I have always been an anti-prohibitionist. I also am a strong believer in states rights. Here in the South we always have believed in states' rights and I see no reason to abandon that doctrine on this question. However I want it distinctly understood I am not making the suggestion that the national convention go on record as favoring repeal. I think Texas is entitled to be heard in republican councils. In fact we should wield a good deal of influence there, since we will have the fifth largest delegation at the convention."

Gen. Harry M. Wurzbach did not attend the Dallas conference. He is the only republican congressman from Texas. Is he a repealer, a modifier, an ultra-dry or does he come in the classification of the Thomas B. Love — Cato Sells "nullifier"?

New a repealer is not a nullifier. A modificationist is not a nullifier. Speaking of nullification away back in ancient days the 14th and 15th amendments became realities. They have been ignored ever since. Is this nullification? If so, why? Chmn. Nolte lets it be known that he is a staunch advocate of the dogma of states' rights. Well and good. States' rights were shot to pieces on the battle plain in the long ago, but the dogma of states' rights was not shot to pieces on the field of battle. Sons of the men who wore the gray shot the dogma to pieces in national halls of legislation as well as in state halls years after the finish of that bloody contest known as "the war between the states."

For years and years there has been a strong central government on the banks of the Potomac. For years and years the so-called rights of the state have been mangled beyond recognition by republican followers of Alexander Hamilton and democratic senators and representatives from southland who had deserted the so-called principles for which their fathers had risked their all and who had fought and died on the battlefield. Why mumble and mutter or murmur this late in the day over the rights of the state?

Electric Refrigeration is True Economy

Modern Electric Refrigeration is a wise household investment, for it not only adds immediate value to your home—bringing new comforts and new conveniences into your daily life—but actually saves money every day in the year.

Bride-elect Is Honored At Buffet Supper Wednesday

Mrs. W. J. Armstrong and daughter, Miss Jourdain, were hostesses Wednesday evening at a beautifully appointed buffet supper honoring Miss Thelma Newton, bride elect of Henry Grady Sharp of DeLeon.

Miss Armstrong greeted the guests at the door. Pastel shades of pink, blue, lavender, and green were artistically developed in the decorations of the living and dining rooms. Bowls and vases of lilacs and other spritz flowers were used profusely. As Miss Agnes Collins played a familiar wedding march, Mrs. Newton led the guests into the dining room where the supper was served buffet style. The table was laid with a beautiful fluted cloth over pink satin, and was centered with a miniature bride, groom, and minister amid a bow of lilacs. Blue candles in pink crystal holders were placed at each end. Mrs. Armstrong was assisted by Misses Nelle Waters and Dot Chambliss in the dining room. After being served the guests found their places marked by place cards of a pretty and appropriate bridal design in pastel shades at small tables laid with madras cloths over pink and each centered with a green bowl of lilacs.

After supper the honoree was given a string and told to follow where it led. After winding through three or four rooms and a hall, she found a large number of lovely and useful gifts of linens and glass ware. The remainder of the evening was spent in games, singing, and music as the guests chose.

Guests present were: Misses Tommie Carroll, Nelle Waters, Dot Chambliss, Laura Rupe, Leila Mae White, Athylene Looney, Mary Elizabeth Chitt, Lillian Shertzer, Agnes Collins, Lucile Clements, Mrs. Claud Newton, and the honor guest, Miss Thelma Newton.

NEW RULES ARE DEMONSTRATED BY KITTEN 6

The Randolph college Kittens and the O. P. C. sextet last night played an exhibition game just before the final contest in the national A. A. U. open girls' basketball tournament at Dallas, demonstrating the new rules which were devised by the rules committee at the tournament. Coach H. R. (Pop)

Garrett, of the Kittens, was one of the four members of the committee. The new game involved a combination of present girls' and boys' rules. The two division court play was retained, the three-second passing rule and the one dribble. Technical fouls for overguarding and such minor violations were abolished and the players allowed four personal fouls each as in a boys' game.

A test was made with a 12-foot center circle designed to eliminate congestion at the jump-up. During part of the contest only the two centers were allowed in the circle. Later a guard and a forward from each court were allowed and still later all players as in a boys' game were allowed to invade the tip-off sector. The idea was to try to determine which style is best fitted for the game.

For years girls' basket ball coaches have sought a uniform set of rules to govern pay throughout the country so that at the end of the season national tournaments could be held without teams in different sections changing their playing methods. These new rules will eliminate the girls using the straight boys' rules and also the old three-division game used in many of the high schools.

The Kittens were eliminated by the Dallas Cyclones in a hard-fought contest Thursday evening. The Cyclones, featuring Babe Dickrickson, declared the most sensational forward at the tournament, went on to the finals which were scheduled for last night. Pat Patterson, Cisco guard, was claimed by many observers the best guard in the tournament and the only guard who was able to hold the sensational Cyclone forward in check. An injury to her in the final minutes of the first half of the Kittens game with the Cyclones was held largely responsible for the Kittens' defeat. McGeehee, Cisco forward, was declared by sports writers the best free tosser in the tournament. She threw 18 out of 21 chances against the Cyclones. Says the Dallas News columnist:

"The best free tosser in the current tourney undoubtedly is Miss McGeehee, forward on the Cisco Kittens' team, who Thursday night missed only three of twenty-one chances. Her tosses never hit the board, but sailed high into the air to loop perfectly through the fishnet. She is a fairly large girl with a smiling face."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus, the World's Savior.

A Review of the Quarter's Lessons... Golden Text: Jesus of Nazareth... who went about doing good...

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 29, Jesus, the World's Savior...

By W. M. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. The lessons for this year deal during the first six months with the general theme "Jesus, the World's Savior..."

In the 12 lessons of the past quarter we have seen the preparation for the coming of Jesus in the birth and brief career of John the Baptist...

In our study of the childhood of Jesus we have seen him growing in stature and in wisdom, increasing in favor with God and man.

His Real Humanity. We have had occasion to study his real humanity in the story of his temptation and we have followed him as he has gone about doing good...

We have seen the Master as the world's teacher, giving forth the eternal truths applicable to daily life in such great teachings as are found in the Sermon on the Mount and the remarkable parables.

We have seen Jesus himself as an itinerant preacher of the Gospel, going about from place to place proclaiming the good words of life, and teaching and training others in the work of publishing the good tidings that we call the Gospel.

We have devoted the study of one lesson to the human aspect of religion—the neighborliness and love for one's fellow men that mark a religion that puts in the foremost place the message concerning God as a Father of love and mercy.

Called Them Friends. We have seen Jesus among his friends and his foes, drawing about him not only disciples responsive to his teaching, but friends who were drawn to him by his personality and by his acceptance of them into his confidence and his guidance.

But we see, also, coming on the horizon the hostility that ultimately was to send Jesus to the cross. He sees the hypocrisy of

There in high places making great perfection but using even religion to support the injustices and tyrannies of the time.

Like a true prophet, even though he be a man of gentleness and kindness, he speaks out in denunciation of wrong; and no man can do that without rousing the forces of sin and bigotry against him.

We move toward that central tragedy of history in which also is enshrined for humanity its highest truth and its hope of glory.

at 5920 and plans are to pull this, plug below 4841 and shoot with 100 quarts between 4819 and 4841. The well is the Swenson Oil and Gas company's Swenson Land and Cattle company in section 173, BBB and C. R. R. survey. News want ads brings results

Your Gas Supply

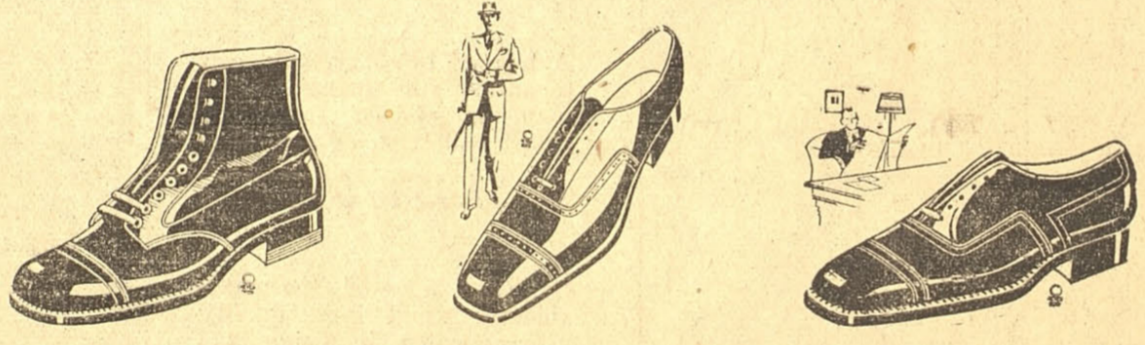

The Lone Star Gas Company hopes you kept warm in this cold spell. This is the coldest weather of the year. It came suddenly, following several days of spring weather.

As a result your heating requirements were more than doubled overnight and yesterday they were four times greater than they were last Monday. Your demand for gas Friday was equal to the combined demands for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday all put together. This shows the sudden and unexpected demands that your gas company must meet.

Despite these sudden changes your homes and offices have been warm because back of your gas service is a pipe line system that depends, not on a few gas wells in a single field, but upon a thousand wells in thirty-two fields. The temperature dropped many degrees in a single hour but the organization necessary to meet your demand was ready. Hundreds of men worked yesterday and last night along the pipe lines in order that your homes would be comfortable. This organization of men, thoroughly trained and equipped, was not gathered overnight. The men and the machinery had to be ready the instant you needed the gas.

Remember this cold spell when it comes time to pay your gas bill. It probably will be warm weather then and you will have forgotten the freezing weather of these days. But your gas company cannot forget. It must always be ready for these emergencies. And this is the difference between gas fuel at the well and gas service at your burner.

WAIT-WAIT-WAIT!

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS WILL BE CONTINUED

Evangelistic meetings will continue at the First Christian church every night this week except Saturday night. Meetings begin at 7:30 throughout the week. Bible school at 9:45 on Sunday morning and preaching at 10:45.

The subject on Sunday morning will be "Palm Bearers" and at night "Such as I Have". All members and friends are urged to make special effort from now until Easter to have a part in these meetings. Several of the churches in Cisco are having meetings this week and it behooves every church member to urge non-church-goers to attend some of these services. The critics of the church are every busy criticizing church members for their short-comings and no doubt many deserve it and yet people who do most of the criticizing are doing nothing to uphold the many faithful Christians who are heroically doing their best to make a Christian community where truth and righteousness shall reign. No one gets nearer heaven by criticizing the poor hypocrite as an excuse for neglect of duty. God will take care of them at the proper time. Let all who believe in righteousness stand by the churches and the earnest workers for Christ during the next week and be a positive force for good rather than a negative influence. Fill the churches; attend some church; do your duty regardless of the criticisms of others; don't be a negative knacker, be a positive puller. Every pastor in the city is worthy of the cooperation of every good citizen, and the city needs the regular preaching of the gospel. May the citizens of Cisco make themselves happy by leaving the Lord.—E. L. Miley.

MAD MARRIAGE

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of HEART HUNGRY, etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

She told him about the party next week.

"Oh, Lord—another one of those!" the young man grumbled. "Listen, this gang of relatives of mine is pretty terrible. Maybe we can crack up an excuse for not going."

Gypsy shook her head. "I'm afraid not. It seems we're at least one of the reasons the party's being given. It's to introduce me to the family."

He nodded. "Oh, yes—sure! I know all about that. And sit around for three hours listening to Aunt Sophronia tell over again how Uncle Ezra suffered in Andersonville prison and how the Wallaces won the Civil war! You don't know as much about these gloom fests as I do!"

He was so mournful she laughed at him. "That's not what your aunt said," she told him. "She says the Wallaces have traditions to maintain."

"Forget the Wallaces." Together they entered the living room. Jim's left hand slipped into his coat pocket.

"Gypsy," he began, "I've got something I want to show you."

"What is it?" "Well, I'll tell you—"

Before he could continue they heard Miss Wallace's voice from upstairs. "Oh, Gypsy!" she called. "Will you come up here a minute?"

"I'll be right back," the girl said, turning to answer. "I'll hurry."

Jim glanced over his shoulder to assure himself that she was out of the room. From the coat pocket he drew forth a small black plush box. The lid snapped back, revealing a square-cut diamond.

For an instant he held it so that the light fell on the gem, multiplying and transforming its rays to white fire. He moved the ring. The jewel grew more dazzling. Smiling, Jim Wallace closed the case and returned it to his pocket.

He walked up and down the room waiting. There was a book in the chair where Gypsy had been sitting. Jim picked it up. Edna Ferber's new novel. He turned through the pages carelessly, came to a marker. It was a kodak print. The face of a young man, handsome and wearing a French beret, smiled up at him.

CHAPTER XX

"Here I am," Gypsy called as she entered the room. "What was it you were going to show me, Jim?"

Wallace's back was toward her. He stood at a window, staring out across the lawn. At the sound of her voice he turned.

"Didn't you say you had something to show me?" the girl asked again.

"Why—did I? Couldn't have been anything important. I guess I've forgotten it!"

He was making an elaborate effort to seem casual. Gypsy watched him, puzzled.

"What time are the movers coming tomorrow for Aunt Ellen's things?" he asked lamely.

Gypsy told him they had promised to arrive at 9 o'clock. There was more talk of inconsequential things and then Wallace excused himself. Gypsy noticed he was quiet throughout dinner. Afterward when they all went to the living room he said something about having work to do. He left them and went into the library. Gypsy waited until 10:30 but he did not reappear.

The moving van was still backed up in the driveway at 10 o'clock next morning when the doorbell rang. Gypsy opened the door upon a tall, heavily built woman wearing a black plush coat and blue hat.

The woman extended a card. "I'm from the Reliability Agency," she said.

The card bore the name "Mrs. Inez Cooley" and the printed slogan of the Reliability Employment agency, "We never fail."

"Come in," Gypsy invited. She led the way into the living room. "Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, Ma'am," Mrs. Cooley sat down. "They told me you wanted a cook."

Gypsy nodded. She had never been on the employer's side in such an interview. "You've had experience, I suppose."

"Yes, Ma'am. I've cooked in restaurants and hotels and private homes. I was with Mrs. Hockaday over on Maple street for five months. Party cooking for parties is my specialty. How many are there in the family here?"

"Just myself," Gypsy told her, "and my husband."

moving van and disappeared down the street a half hour later. Harriet had gone ahead to see that the things were unloaded properly. Aunt Ellen, her black hat poised squarely on her head, coat collar about her chin, paused in the hallway.

"Well," she said, "I'm leaving."

"Goodby, Aunt Ellen. I hope you're going to like the new house."

"I hope so too," said the older woman. "If there's anything I've forgotten I'll send Harriet back." She put her black umbrella under her arm and stepped outside.

The big house seemed quiet after the noise and bustle of the movers. The rooms looked half-stripped and barren. Familiar pieces of furniture were gone. It was a melancholy scene but Gypsy's heart was singing. At last this was her home!

She telephoned the employment company and two more applicants arrived. The first said she could cook but admitted her only experience had been a ten room warehouse. Gypsy was too skeptical to hire her. The third introduced herself as Matilda Schwartz. She was a small, sturdily-built woman who looked well up in the thirties.

"Are you married?" Gypsy asked. Matilda shook her head. "Not now," she said. "I had a man but he's gone. Took the money I worked to save for three years. After he left I went to see a lawyer. I didn't get the money back but I got a divorce."

They settled upon the salary. It was agreed that Matilda was to have Thursday afternoons and Sunday evenings off. She left, promising Gypsy to return next morning with her trunk.

Left alone, the girl hurried to the kitchen. It was shining and spotless as Harriet always kept it. Gypsy inspected the refrigerator. There were butter, eggs, a head of lettuce and two grapefruit. Half a bowl of cold cereal left from breakfast occupied one shelf. That was the extent of the larder.

"Why didn't I think this morning?" she chided herself. "Oh, well—"

Once more she went to the telephone.

When Jim Wallace arrived home at 5:30 he found Gypsy in the kitchen enveloped in a huge apron that had been discarded by his aunt.

"Hel-loh!" exclaimed Jim. "What's going on here?"

"The cook I hired couldn't come until tomorrow. Don't you like beans?"

"Sure. Wait a minute—I'll open that can for you."

Gypsy relinquished the can opener and rushed to the stove where the chops were sizzling. She grabbed the skillet from the flame and lowered the blaze.

"What do you want me to put these in?" Jim demanded.

"Anything. You'll find a dish in the cupboard." The chops were safe again and Gypsy turned back to the table. By the time Jim had found a dish to hold the baked beans she had them heating over the fire.

He lounged awkwardly against the table while Gypsy set out plates and dishes.

"Listen," Jim suggested, "what's the use of carrying all that stuff into the dining room? Let's eat out here!"

"Do you want to?"

"Why, sure. What's the matter with that?"

"Nothing," said Gypsy. "I think it will be fun. Here—I'll give you a job if you want."

She set him to whipping cream in a big crockery bowl and to keep him from spattering himself wrapped an apron similar to the one she wore about his shoulders.

Presently they sat down before a meal of baked beans, fried pork chops and a rather desultory salad. There were hot rolls and steaming coffee that was delicious. For dessert they had apple pie from the delicatessen with thick cream poured over it.

"All terribly fattening!" Gypsy said with a sigh.

"Best meal I've had in a long time," declared Jim staunchly. "Is there any more coffee?"

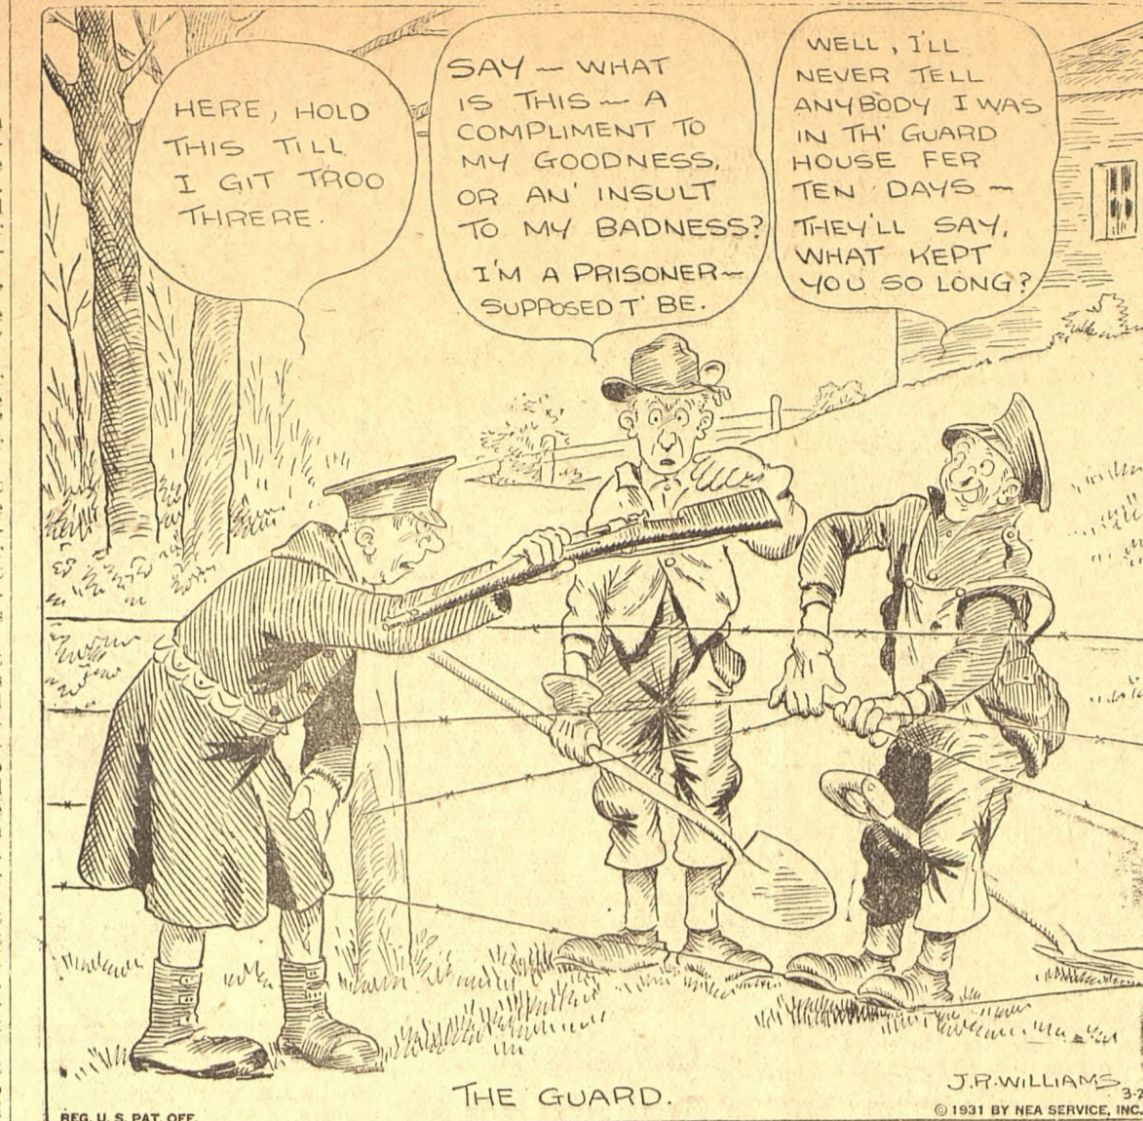

"Sure," she poured him a second cup. Scarcely a crumb remained when the meal was finished. Jim leaned back in his chair contentedly and crossed his knees.

"Looks as though that Graham case is going to turn into a good row," he announced. "I told you about that, didn't I?" For half an hour more they sat at the table while Jim explained details of a law suit. Gypsy asked questions. She found the pits of information Jim dropped about courts and legal tangles very absorbing. It impressed her to think that every day at his office Jim was dealing with the lives of men and women, fighting for their rights and trying to defend them in their difficulties.

Gypsy cleared away the dishes. Later she washed and Jim dried them. He dropped the cream pitcher, picked it up with the handle missing, displaying the two parts with so much humility that the girl laughed at him. There was more gaiety in the Wallace home that night than there had been for months.

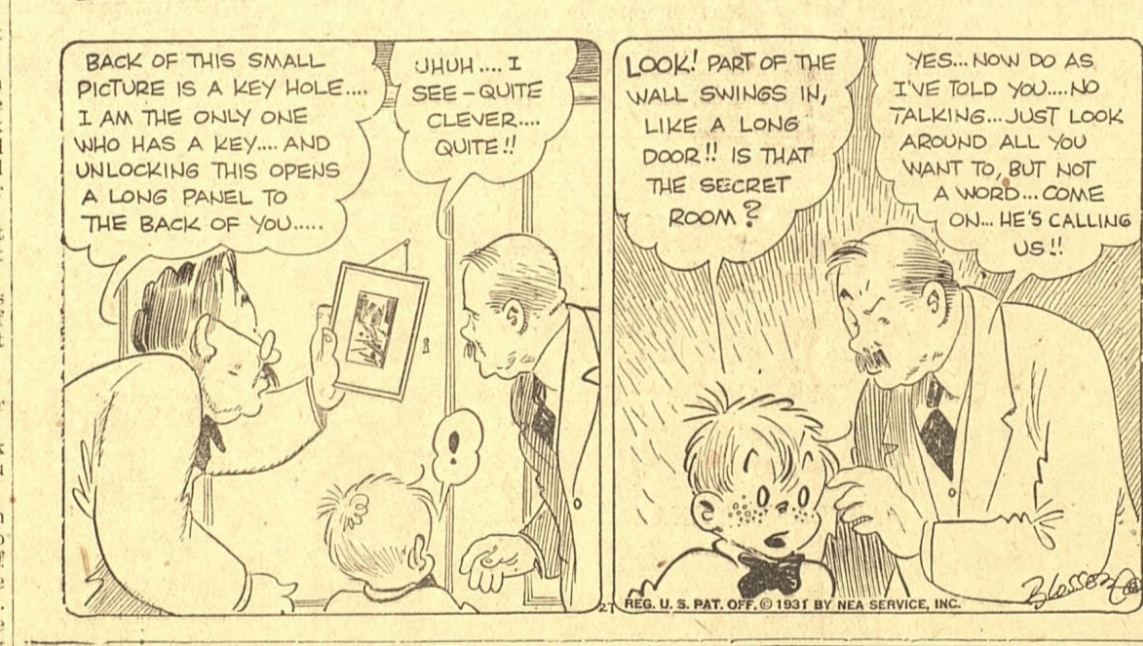

Breakfast next morning was likewise served in the kitchen. At 9 o'clock Matilda Schwartz arrived and Gypsy turned over to her the reins of the household. There were minor instances of friction but in the main affairs moved smoothly. Matilda worked slowly and was likely to have breakfast on the table at 8:30 instead of 8. She had to be reminded regularly to check up on supplies before Gypsy gave the daily order or 10 minutes before meal time something was sure to be

PHOTOS ADD MYSTERY TO MURDER CASE

CHICAGO, March 28. — Two photographs introduced suddenly into L. V. Brothers' trial on charges of murdering Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, added today to the mystery of the case as his attorneys had left them unexplained when they obtained an adjournment until Monday.

The photographs were produced by Louis Biquett, defense attorney while Marcus David, shipping clerk was being cross examined late yesterday on his story that he saw Brothers fleeing from the Illinois Central subway after Lingle was slain.

Biquett concealed the pictures from the jurors as he asked David if he ever seen "this man." David shook his head vigorously. The photographs were returned to a portfolio without comment.

Tyrell Krum, another of Brothers' counsel, said after adjournment that the photographs were of Frank Marco or Mario, New York and Chicago gangster who was slain in New York recently.

"Come in," Miss Wallace said brusquely, "the others are all here." Jim took his wife's coat and hat and the hostess led her forward. A woman with a sharp nose and small dark eyes turned at their approach.

development, and that these functions shall render service as economically as possible.

I have no private ends to promote. Neither do I owe allegiance to any group or faction. It is apparent to me that now of all times should we approach solution of our problems wisely and carefully and with regard to the interest of the greatest number of our people; not with a mind to destroy or plunge into untried and dangerous methods that may lead to even more serious consequences than now confront us, but with a determination to improve, and to work out our problems in a way that will provide the most benefit for each of us.

even by a vote of the people, I will vote to have them advertised and sold to the highest bidder, and at not less than par value, as provided by law; and in no case permit them to be handled by private individuals at a great profit.

I will also vote against the city commissioners giving themselves big salaries not provided for by law or the charter.

I will be opposed to trading our water system, lake and our sewer system for old bonds not voted on by the people; and I shall oppose disposing of our sewer system for any price or purpose.

I also feel that Lake Cisco belongs to the people and my opinion is that $1.00 per family, per season should be sufficient charge for the people of Cisco enjoying the fishing privileges.

I will certainly oppose mortgaging our entire sewer system, water system and lake, franchise and all has been attempted in the past.

I strictly favor the referendum and recall, and want to see it applied to all city officials. Any time my services prove unsatisfactory the people are invited to apply it to me.

If the city affairs cannot be conducted in a business way and all transactions and contracts made in such a way as to let the taxpayers who pay the bills, know what is going on, and where their money

If elected, the first thing I want done is give the people double the amount of water they are now getting for the same price they have been paying heretofore, so they can water their trees, lawns and gardens without feeling like they are being robbed.

ing efficiency or creating further drain upon the general fund of the city, I will endeavor to reduce the minimum charge for water and to raise the allowance during the summer months.

I am firmly of the conviction that the citizens who are paying for our lake should be the first to receive the benefits from it. Therefore I shall endorse any action looking to a reduction of fishing permits to our home people. Non-resident permits should be sufficiently large to take care of the burden of expenses necessary for patrolling the watershed and maintaining regulations rather than enforcing a heavy charge against home people.

I favor speedy settlement of our public debt question upon an equitable basis without sacrificing our city utilities.

I am strongly in favor of reducing the expenses of our chamber of commerce particularly by eliminating the fixed charges which consumes the major part of its annual budget. In this respect I favor transfer of the zoo from the chamber of commerce to the city where its administration can be combined with a department already existing and the expense of operation curtailed.

I believe that, under present conditions, further economic gain can be attained by reorganizing certain of the city departments upon reduced budgets, payrolls cut down and expenses of operation reduced through combination of various offices.

I am not the candidate of any particular group, but a candidate on my own merits and as such I appeal to the voters at large, to all of whom I pledge my time and best efforts in the discharge of the duties I am seeking to assume.

This is no time for discord or factionalism. It is time for cooperation and earnest work toward the solving of our civic problems. In offering for a commissioner I am actuated by a desire to be instrumental in bringing about a readjustment of our public affairs upon a sound basis of benefit to all, favors to none and the most that can be hoped for in the welfare of all of us.

WHAT IS A GUARANTEE?

Is the Safety it Insures Worth Consideration; or is its Value Overrated?

Millions of dollars are spent annually to acquaint the public with the stability of institutions, the dependability of their products and the protection afforded the public or investor when it purchases merchandise or services. This publicity has made many slogans, signs, emblems, etc., public by-word. Has this been worth while? If so, to whom; the institutions or the public? Those in a position to know, state that the public has been saved billions of dollars by being educated to expect and demand service of a dependable character. Most banks are safe banks, but the ones displaying the tiny emblem "Member of the Federal Reserve Bank System" are KNOWN beyond the shadow of a doubt to be absolutely reliable.

So it is with the letters M. D. which only physicians who are fully qualified are permitted to display after their names. M. D. represents to you the same character of dependability that the bankers' sign guarantees. It tells you that the physician has devoted about eighteen years to the preparatory study, work and experience that are essential to enable one to intelligently diagnose and treat disease.

Certainly no service is more important than that you expect when your health and perhaps life itself is endangered. There is no occasion when the character of service should have more careful consideration than when you need medical attention. To refuse to accept a substitute in merchandise or other service and not heed the emblem of responsibility when in need of medical service is not only inconsistent but many times dangerous.

M. D.---These two letters offer you protection, knowledge, experience and dependability. Will you say that you or your family are entitled to less?
