Lausanne Looks to U. S. as Reparations Pact is Signed

REVISION OF WAR DEBTS IS REFERRED TO

By STEWART BROWN U. S. Staff Correspondent. LAUSANNE, Switz., July 9.—The Lausanne treaty ending Germany's world war reparations payments was signed today with Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald, of Great Britain, declaring "Our agreements must have response elsewhere."

Collection and payment of inter-European war debts was declared suspended until ratification of the treaty. Prime Minister MacDonald was the first statesman to sign. As president of the conference, he declared the treaty open to signatures, walked around a square formed by tables and signed the document which lay on a translator's table in the center of the square.

Chancellor Franz von Papen, Foreign Minister Baron Constantin von Neurath and Finance Minister Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk signed for the Germans.

MacDonald referred directly to a future settlement with the United States, the country most fitted to withstand economic shocks, is now as severely hit as any European country. "We have already said that any agreement we reach must be placed in a world framework."

"It is no good collecting sums from one government or any country which disturbs world trade," MacDonald said. "The United States, the country most fitted to withstand economic shocks, is now as severely hit as any European country."

"We have opened a new book. There are no more reparations. Those great payments, sums which represented no transfer of goods, have not been a punishment to one nation, but an affliction to all," the prime minister said.

POWER CO. 9 PLAY SECOND GAME TODAY

The last game of a two game series with the Louisiana Power Company will start this afternoon for the Red Sox. They were victorious in the first game by the score of 2-1. The game was tied until late in the game when a perfectly executed squeeze play scored the winning run for the locals.

World amateur edition of School Boy Bowls of Beaumont, will probably be on the mound for the visitors. The nineteen year old high school youngster, is the possessor of a nice fast ball and a sharp breaking curve. It is likely that Satch Edson will do the twisting for the Red Sox. He was victorious over the Swift and Co. of Fort Worth last week, coming from behind in the ninth inning the Red Sox tied the score and finally won the game in the eleventh inning.

Next week another strong Fort Worth team will be in Cisco. Efforts are being made to get Sproles, one of the strongest teams in the City Leagues. It is also probable that the Red Sox will meet a team from Overton later in the month. This team was through Cisco yesterday on their way to the Denver tournament and are reputed to be the class of the East Texas Oil Belt.

Garner's Mother at Fireside in Little Texas Home

Far from the turbulent convention hall where her son was honored with the democratic nomination for vice president of the United States, Mrs. Sarah Garner, 85, is pictured here resting contentedly in her cheery little cottage near Detroit, Red River county, Texas. It was by this fireside she taught John Nance Garner to read and from here he set out 40 years ago a

OVER 100 AT BRECKENRIDGE SCOUT RALLY

Over 100 scouts were in attendance at the rally held at the Y. M. C. A. outdoor playground, Breckenridge Friday night. Troop number 9 of Ranger took first place in the events which consisted of first aid, fire building by friction and flint and steel, row war, knot tying, harmonica contest and other scout activities.

Troop No. 3 of Eastland placed second and troop 18 of Breckenridge placed third. Troops from Cisco, Ranger, Eastland, Caddo and Breckenridge participated in the rally. Officials attending were Russel B. Jones, commissioner, E. P. Crawford, vice president and G. N. Quill, scout executive of the Comanche Trail council; Lloyd Boyd, troop committee; and Durwood Boyd of Cisco; R. E. McGlamery, troop committeeman, Mr. Lane and Horace Conley, scoutmaster of Eastland; J. E. Meroney, district chairman, Walter Harwell, A. J. Randall, S. P. Boone, troop committeemen and C. G. King, scoutmaster from Ranger; R. O. Kelley, scoutmaster and J. T. Clepper, assistant scoutmaster of Caddo; E. R. Maxwell chairman of the Breckenridge scout of honor, Pink Norvell, troop committeeman, Frank Hicks, district committeeman, and J. Raligh Barnes, scoutmaster of Breckenridge.

This was first of a series of scout rallies to be held in Breckenridge and surrounding towns. The next one will be held after summer camp & check showed that a possible 75 per cent of scouts in attendance at the rally Friday night would also be in attendance at the summer camp which is to be held at the Gibbons ranch starting July 19th. The camp is 15 miles south of Richland Springs on Brady creek and the San Saba river. A beautiful camp site with cedar covered hills, towering cliffs, and bubbling springs are to be seen on the site.

LUBBOCK, July 9. — Dr. J. C. Granbery, head of the history, sociology and philosophy departments of Texas Technological college here, today laid his "dismissal" at the doors of "militant religious fanaticism."

Allegation by Rev. R. C. Campbell, First Baptist minister here, that atheism and infidelity were being taught in the institution led to the "dismissal" of Granbery, an ordained Methodist minister and great-grandson of Patrick Henry, the instructor maintained. Public announcement of his release has not been made by the board of directors although Dr. Granbery was informed by letter from W. T. Gaston, board secretary, that his contract would not be renewed. His contract expires September 1.

Dr. Granbery yesterday circulated copies of a 10-page statement, entitled "A Word of Explanation." The circular set out that Dr. Granbery, appearing before the board at Fort Worth was informed by Chairman Clifford B. Jones, of Spur that the "board does not look upon it as a dismissal but non-renewal of contract and the reason is economy."

He branded the action as a "dark plot to make Tech college unsafe for intelligence and to destroy within it every vestige of liberalism." Dr. Granbery, who holds a doctor of philosophy degree from Chicago university and an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Kentucky Wesleyan college, came here in 1923 from Southwestern college.

DEMOCRATIC DRYS FORM ORGANIZATION

DALLAS, July 9. — Though several desired to present other resolutions, 350 dry democrats here today voted to form a Texas League of Dry Democrats as a permanent organization, and back dry candidates in the democratic primaries.

The league was approved upon motion of Thomas B. Love, Dallas, after two and a half hours of somewhat bitter bickering. A chorus of "ayes" drowned the protests of several persons who stood in various parts of the room seeking to speak. The league will fight to maintain both the 18th amendment and the Dean law.

EMPLOYEES OF LONE STAR IN PICNIC HERE

Hundreds of employees and officials of the Lone Star Gas company and its subsidiary companies through the Lake Cisco amusement area yesterday afternoon and last night for the third annual picnic which they have held here. The festivities began with a golf tournament at 1 o'clock which lasted throughout the afternoon with scores of golfers, men and women, taking part in the contest for the awards.

At 2 o'clock a bridge tournament in the country club attracted many. Prizes were likewise awarded to winners in this tournament. Other features of the afternoon included a tennis match and a water carnival with the Lake Cisco Amusement company providing the latter. Divers performing from the 40-foot tower in the deep pool thrilled a large gallery.

The big crowd of the picnic arrived during the picnic lunch hour at 7 o'clock when groups spread lunches separately under the trees in the park.

The Lone Star band, A. J. Campbell, director, furnished music and a dance at 9 o'clock at the country club ended the program.

H. L. Dyer, local Community Natural Gas company manager, one of the host officials, said that he could not estimate the attendance last evening, but he believed it to equal that of past picnics. A year ago estimates placed the attendance at 1,500.

Postal Ass'ns to Meet Jointly
HOUSTON, July 9. — Hoover City has come into being on the outskirts of Houston and will remain there until a switch engine comes along and removes it. Hoover City, consisting of some 15 or 20 freight cars in an off-shoot of the Ship Channel railroad yards, was established, named and is run by jobless seamen.

They picked out the best looking box car and designated it the city hall. On the side they lettered "Hoover City. Welcome. Free beds for all but no food, thanks to Hoover."

John Jones, an able-bodied seaman who has been "on the beach" for months, is mayor. Milton Stafford is treasurer, although the Hoover City Council has nothing to treasure. Mayor Jones said the occupation of residents is the same: looking for work.

County Pioneer Is Buried at Eastland
Wesley Armstrong, 69, of Eastland, was buried Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock with services at the Eastland First Baptist church. He died Friday morning after a long illness and an operation. The Rev. Taylor, Merriam Baptist pastor, officiated. His widow and a number of children survive.

Widely known throughout the county, Mr. Armstrong made his home for the greater part of his life in Merriam community and at Eastland.

His relatives in Cisco include a niece, Miss Zelma Curtis, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. A. A. Williams.

Hundreds of Guests Admire New Library Building in Open House Program Friday

With the Twentieth Century club as hostesses hundreds of guests viewed the magnificent new building erected for the Cisco Public Library at G avenue and 6th street Friday afternoon and evening. The building, of cream-colored brick, represents an unusually artistic addition to the city. It and its contents are entirely paid for, a fact of which the Twentieth Century club sponsors of the library, are more than proud. The rooms, decorated with a dignity in harmony with the unusual character of the institution, have a homelike charm that is rare and pleasing. Light fixtures, wall coverings, furnishings and all other incidentals of decoration fit into a harmonious and inviting atmosphere.

The building contains two large rooms, one the stack room where innumerable volumes are carefully arranged in cases with reading tables and other conveniences for the visitors; the other a meeting room for the club, appropriately furnished. A grand piano, also paid for, is placed in this room.

Large windows, shaded with Venetian blinds admit plenty of light. A kitchenette at the rear of the club room is provided with all necessary conveniences. The floors throughout are of polished hardwood.

For the program Friday evening patized plants and flowers added color. John H. Garner and Philpott, the Florist contributed the most of these.

300 Registered
Although the registry of guests kept by the club included 300 names at least that number of those who visited the building did not sign. The attendance was gratifying.

The program began at 4 o'clock with three numbers by the Lobo band directed by G. W. Colburn. Mrs. J. R. Burnett, president of the Twentieth Century club, presided. The Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, pronounced the invocation. Mrs. Olin Pierce sang, President J. J. Collins, of the chamber of commerce, in behalf of his organization, praised the club for its work in promoting so valuable an institution for the cultural welfare of Cisco. Mrs. Burnett introduced Mrs. W. M. Beagan, president of the board of trustees of the library who presented Judge B. W. Patterson for the principal address, an office he eloquently performed.

After the address Mrs. L. E. (McClendon) Richardson sang and the Bluebonnet trio played.

Evening Program
During the evening there were piano solos by Dr. S. E. Stuart, of Cisco, and Miss Bacon of Abilene. The Misses Ely presented violin and piano numbers.

Mrs. Alex Spears, club vice-president, presided during the evening, welcoming guests at the door, and introducing the artists.

Guests, voicing admiration of the work of the women, were present from Eastland, Ranger, Abilene, Amarillo, Tacoma, Washington, and other distant points as well as from Cisco. Among the exhibits was a fern presented by Mrs. P. P. Shepard.

Misses Betty Fee Spears, Adelle Anderson Helen Crawford and Virginia Butts assisted the club in serving punch. Favours of tiny green buttons bearing the legend "Cisco Library Building" were distributed among the guests.

These buttons, incidentally, had been purchased ten years ago for use in a proposed library building drive. The drive was never held but the favours came in for an attractive purpose Friday night.

Harris Voters Will Not Lack Color
HOUSTON, July 9. — Harris county voters who like little color with their politics need not look any further than the lineup of candidates for the county's five legislative positions.

For instance, there is W. W. Mouser, who is a candidate for the legislature because he is a window washer. While washing windows in homes and offices all over Houston, Mouser heard so many complaints about government that he decided to run for office himself.

"I was washing windows in a railroad president's office one day and overheard him say we needed legislators with nerve," said Mouser. "If there's anything I have, it's nerve; so I decided to run."

Dick Young, a street car conductor, studied law at night school, went to Austin to take his bar examinations and was promptly thrown into jail as a suspicious character. The experience did not discourage him, however. He now owns a law degree, three law books and a desire to serve his state.

J. A. Collier was a barber for twenty years before achieving his lifelong ambition and becoming a lawyer. Now he has a new ambition—to become a legislator. He has been endorsed by the local barber's union.

Edward T. Mahoney, a blind newspaper seller, is running for the legislature on a principle. He has no hope of being elected, but believes his candidacy will help promulgate the idea that legislation for the blind is needed.

He praised Mrs. Garner as one of the finest women in the world whom "I love as much as it is possible to love a woman not kin to me."

Defended Himself.
He defended himself vigorously against attacks of his opponent, ridiculing statements made by Jones to the effect that as a boy Jones had shined Blanton's shoes at Gorman and also that Jones is taking at the words an admonition said to have been made to a graduating class at Gorman high school.

Jones said I came to Gorman campaigning in 1911 and that he shined my shoes," he exclaimed. "Why, I wasn't even making a campaign in 1911. Campaigns are made in the even years—1922, 1928, 1932 and 1936. Joe said I came to Gorman in 1915 while I was running for congress and spoke to the graduating class of Gorman high school. Why, I wasn't even running for congress in 1915. I ran for congress first in 1917."

He said that he had made at least 1,000 speeches to high school classes in his lifetime and that in

CERTAIN VETO BY PRESIDENT DUE MONDAY

WASHINGTON, July 9. — The senate finally approved the $2,122,000,000 unemployment relief bill today starting it on its way to the white house and an inevitable veto. The vote was 43 to 31.

Senate approval came after demagogues sought vainly to persuade Speaker Garner to abandon his resolute feud with President Hoover. Speaker rejected all compromise proposals.

The bill provides $300,000,000 for relief loans to states on certification of need by governors; $1,500,000,000 for self-liquidating and private loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation; $132,000,000 for roads and $100,000,000 for other public work to be undertaken when the money is available to the treasury or can be borrowed at reasonable terms.

The measure cannot reach Mr. Hoover until Monday. The house is in recess over the week-end and the final draft of the bill must be signed by the speaker with the house in session and by the vice-president before it can be sent to the white house.

Debate lasted less than an hour and a half.

MORE SERUM FOR CHILDREN IS ORDERED

Over 300 children were given injections of diptheria anti-toxin at the West Ward school building last Tuesday, Mrs. P. R. Warwick announced. She said that at least 70 children whose parents had made application for their treatment, did not receive the injections because they were unaware of the date set.

Additional serum has been ordered, she announced, and will be administered free to these 70 children and other children who apply at the offices of the physicians named below next Tuesday morning. Plenty of the serum will be on hand.

Physicians whom Mrs. Warwick said have agreed to give these injections, are Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer; Dr. E. L. Graham, Dr. F. E. Clark, Dr. D. Ball, Dr. Hubert Seale and Dr. Charles Hale.

"FOOLS GOLD"
AUSTIN, July 9. — Workmen excavating for the new eight-story highway department building here, thought they had found gold until John Pritchett, state water board engineer, decided the glittering nuggets were iron pyrites—"fool's gold."

West Texas — Fairly cloudy Sunday. Possibly scattered showers west portion.

The Duty of the Voters of Texas

- 1 { To Continue Honesty In State Government
- 2 { To Oust Special Privilege at Washington
- 3 { To Encourage Energetic and Unafraid Public Servants

IN TWO weeks, Saturday, July 23, the majority of 6,000,000 Texans will express what they consider best for the nation and the state.

It is true that slightly less than 1,000,000 votes will be cast, but these votes represent men, women and children; they represent the aspirations of school children, the future of womanhood, the hope of what Roosevelt has aptly called "the forgotten man."

And as the day for voting approaches, there is a ground-swell reaching from the plateau country of Amarillo down to the rice fields of Orange county which spells the simple words "Common Sense."

It is true that July 23 decides the question of Texas, and that Nov. 8 is the final battleground between Roosevelt and Garner and Hoover and Curtis; but in effect the same people who on July 23 will vote for sanity and the square deal in Texas will vote on Nov. 8 for progress and a new deal in Washington.

The story of the vote will be: ROOSEVELT and GARNER and STERLING.

THERE is a striking similarity among the three men—that is, when the surface of things has been stripped down to the ultimate truth. Physically they are most unlike. There is the quick, nervous and crippled Roosevelt. There is the independent and decisive "Texas Jack." And there is the careful-moving, straight-thinking, courageous Ross Sterling.

But the underlying fact is a very simple one—all three of these men are honest.

All three of these men desire and aim for the best and are willing to work through the vigil of day and night to give their best, so that America may have its best.

When that has been said, there is no longer the question of who is smart and who is dull. There is little reason to consider mental capacities; there is little of value in oratory.

As long as America and the state of Texas go to the polls, as Texas will on July 23, and votes for honest men, unbiased and unafraid, and men who have the energy and habit of working without thought of self-interest—then and then only will America and Texas be safe.

THE DAY of the politician who rewards his friends at public cost, and punishes his enemies because they have not been his friends, has ceased in this America of 1932.

We have no need at this time for the partisan; we have no need for the log-roller; we have no need for that man who has the faculty of drawing about him the political lawyer and that section of the public which works in the dark for the interest of special privilege.

America and Texas need a square deal and an open deal. They will get it at Washington with Roosevelt and Garner; they have had it in Texas with Sterling.

Let it continue.

district. He claimed part of the fruit this year.

Proctor said they had left Mr. Campbell's portion high up in the trees where it will be protected. Speaking of advertisement, Mrs. Shepard's plums and peaches would make the Rio Grande Valley look mighty puny, if not downright sick.

Pure Milk Ass'n Formed at Lubbock

LUBBOCK, July 9.—Thirty-four of the 41 milk permit holders in Lubbock authorized by the city health department to sell milk within the city limits have joined the Lubbock Pure Milk Cooperative association, A. H. Gearhart, president, has announced. These members represent 1,000 dairy cows of the 1,100 said to be in dairy herds near here.

Not all of the permit holders are habitually active. These 34 dairy-men have agreed to market cooperatively. They have fixed a minimum price for retail and wholesale based on a quality standard, President Gearhart explained. The price is a "minimum," not a maximum, and members, if they so desire, may charge higher sums.

ANOTHER BUNCH OF JOBLESS WORKERS.

Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock has let it be known that economy measures aimed at a balanced budget will force the reduction in personnel of the prohibition service by about 70 men or three per cent of the force as constituted today. There is a loud demand the nation over for the abolition of federal and state commissions and bureaus which have been created from time to time to make jobs for those who insist that the world owes them a living. Harry Byrd of Virginia demonstrated that departments of government should be consolidated, that useless commissions and bureaus could be abolished and huge savings made for the taxpayers of the Old Dominion. Why not in every American state?

A GHASTLY RED RECORD.

"This is Texas." One hundred and nine homicides were committed during the second quarter of 1932, according to a list compiled by a Dallas newspaper. There may have been other homicides, but those listed involved persons or methods of slaying which led to the names being listed in news reports. There have not been a hundred homicides in the British Isles with their huge population since 1930. There are 10,000 statutes in the United States to every 100 statutes under the skies of the British Isles. For years and years the American people were law mad as well as money mad.

LICENSE FEE LAW UPHELD BY COURT.

Dist. Judge Charles E. Ashe of Harris county has held valid the Texas statute governing the distribution of automobile license fees between the state and the county. An excerpt from the Ashe opinion: "I think it is clear that when the counties initiated and built public roads, many of which became state highways, they were acting as agencies of the state for the purpose of carrying out an obligation that was primarily on the state, to provide its inhabitants with roads and bridges."

If this isn't sound law it is sound logic. Texas had to be lifted out of the mud. Texas had to get away from the ancient cattle trails. Then it was that the slogan was adopted on the part of most of the progressive-minded people of the commonwealth "that those who use the highways should pay for the highways." And why not?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Mrs. P. R. Warwick said yesterday that more than 300 children received injections of anti-diphtheria serum last Tuesday at the West Ward school building. All of the serum ordered was used and at that some 70 children who had applied but who did not know of the date set for the injections, were missed. To offset that an additional quantity of serum has been secured from the state department of health and the 70 who did not receive treatment and others who wish to obtain it may go to the physician's office next Tuesday morning for the work. The preventive treatment is not costing the parents of the children a cent. Doctors who have agreed to make the injections free were named by Mrs. Warwick as follows: Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer; Dr. E. L. Graham, Dr. F. E. Clark, Dr. D. Ball, Dr. Hubert Seale and Dr. Charles Hale.

There is plenty of serum and every child in Cisco should receive this treatment as a guard against a scourge of diphtheria. You know the doctor is one professional man who is doing his dead level best to work himself out of a job. He keeps trying all the time to make disease something of the happily gone past. And when disease is gone what chance is there for the doctor to earn a living. Some of us do not appreciate that quality on the part of our medical men. It is quite true that there are some among them as among other professions who are untrue to the ethics of their calling, but I'm not considering these black sheep.

Just as I was sitting here wondering what to say next along comes Jesse Proctor and A. J. Moffatt with an exhibit that would have made the late Luther Burbank leap for professional joy. Talk about your pictures of Autumn carrying golden fruits! Jesse Proctor and Moffatt might not qualify for the damsel in the pictures but what they carried would have displaced any specimens of horticultural excellence that a painter could otherwise have chosen for his theme.

Plums as big as baseballs—almost as rich in hue as an April sunrise, as luscious as the food of gods, clung in clusters to a branch only 18 inches in length. There were almost 40 of the big fruits on that slender limb, and in one group, as close as grapes, there were 12. In a box they carried two dozen peaches every whit as pretty a picture.

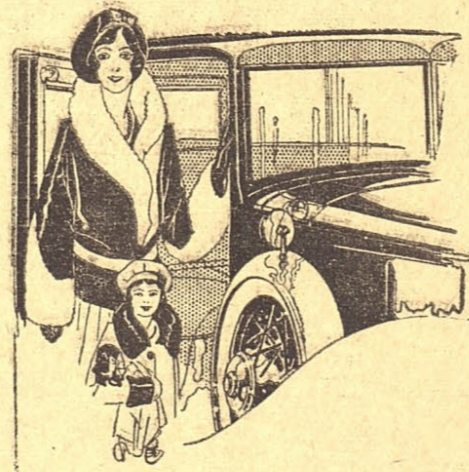

The exhibits came from two trees at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Shepard, 705 West 7th street, and Proctor and Moffatt had helped to gather bushels and bushels of them from the trees. Mr. Moffatt had tended them during the year for Mrs. Shepard. During the early warmth of the winter when most other early fruit budded out to be killed by the March cold, Mrs. Shepard's trees had been kept back by blocks of ice laid around their roots. Fifty pounds of ice were placed about each of them three times during the warm spell and the result of the care is conclusively shown in the quality of fruit that they produced. Mrs. Shepard has been giving away fruit, and canning fruit and still the supply has not been exhausted. Props to keep up the loaded limbs were used.

P. W. Campbell, now of Abilene, planted the trees when he was superintendent of the Cisco W. T. U.

McDonald Will Make No Speeches

AUSTIN, July 9. — J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, plans to make no political speeches in his campaign for re-election, he declared today.

"My time belongs to the state, and it will be spent in the performance of my duties," he said. His platform is based on five major topics:

1. Curialment or regulation of cotton production. "Cotton farmers are intelligent and do not need or want dictation or coercion; but they do want and are entitled to the same kind of protection as that given the oil industry, which regulation has so clearly demonstrated its merits."
2. Restoration of agriculture to its proper economic and social position.
3. Continuation of the department's policies of the past two years.
4. Employment of efficient, courteous assistants.
5. Cooperation with the Texas A. & M. college extension service, vocational agriculture, the Federal Agricultural department, and the public press of Texas.

Blanton Speaks---

all of them he admonished the students to prepare themselves well and honestly to take the places of the present generation when it should pass away. "I never looked Joe Jones in the eye and told him to prepare himself to take my place."

Dangerous Bills.

Bundles of typewritten papers were piled upon the floor at the feet of the speaker. He referred to them as copies of bills which he and his office had investigated and to each of which was attached a typewritten record of that investigation. He declared that every one of the bills were dangerous but that they would have gone perfunctorily through the house had it not been for his vigilance in investigating them and in blocking their passage when they were called up. Millions of dollars has been saved the people because of that vigilance, he said, asserting that he had worked every holiday and every Sabbath since the present session of congress opened. He exhibited a huge typewritten volume, saying that it represented his investigation of one bill.

On Appropriations Committee.

Until this year, he said, he had been able to save only such questionable appropriations as were susceptible to points of order, but that Garner had now placed him on the powerful appropriations committee where he could pare down appropriations that were permissible under the laws.

He defended himself against charges leveled by Jones against his alleged employment of his brother, son and daughter, asserting that he had done this in order to obtain allowances for the payment clerks in his office. He said that his brother had literally killed himself in the public service and that he, himself, had paid part of his salary out of his own pocket.

Then he attacked Jones' record as Eastland county prosecutor, declaring that Jones had made the county the fifth costliest in the point of law enforcement in the state, and charging that Jones had taken almost $30,000 in fees from the state.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ON CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to lack money. They take a cheap apartment and her struggles with housework are discouraging. DIANE SHANNON, movie editor of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome MAX PEARSON, also on the News. After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When MRS. DIXON is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore. Cherry and Dan are invited to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed and Cherry starts with Pearson. A storm overtakes them and while they are waiting for it to pass he tells her he loves her. They finally reach home but after that Cherry avoids Pearson.

BRENDA VAIL, magazine writer, comes to Wellington. Dan meets her and she asks him to collaborate with her on a play because he can supply information she does not have. Dan is delighted but when Cherry meets Miss Vail she does not like her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

DAN PHILLIPS looked up from the typewriter. "We've been at this thing for two hours, Brenda," he complained, "and I haven't even written half a page!"

The typewriter table stood a few feet from the davenport in the living room of Brenda Vail's apartment. A lamp made of a Chinese vase with a taffeta shade illuminated the young man's face.

Brenda Vail turned. She had been standing before the open window and now she rested one hand against the casement. It was a pose that was becoming as Brenda Vail very well knew. Her figure was silhouetted against the black sky. She wore her favorite costume—pajamas. They were made with trousers of black velvet and a tunic of gold brocade.

Miss Vail shrugged impatiently. "What is the use?" she said. "I have told you that when I am out of the mood I simply can't work. I am tired. My head aches. This trying to build up action, to plan entrances and exits—oh, it is maddening!"

"I'm sorry!" Phillips' tone was apologetic. "I didn't know you weren't feeling well. It's only that you know we promised ourselves we'd have the first act done this week. You should have sent me away long ago."

He arose but the woman put out a hand to stop him.

"No," she said. "Don't go. Stay here and talk to me and maybe the head will feel better. I am as anxious to have the work finished as you are. A little rest and perhaps I'll be able to get at it again."

She sank to the davenport. Her titian head was pillowed against a cushion of jade satin.

"Sit here beside me," she went on. "You're comforting, Dan. I feel as though I'd known you a long while, yet what is it? Only about two weeks. Most of that time we've been talking about gunmen and gangsters and other terrible creatures. Talk to me about something else, won't you?"

He dropped to the seat beside her. "Wouldn't you rather I'd go?" he said unceasingly. "If you're tired rest is what you need."

For an instant the gray-green eyes met Dan's. "If you go I'll be lonely," Brenda Vail said softly. "And I am lonely so much of the time!"

Phillips smiled. "That's an odd thing for you to say. You have so many friends, Brenda. Why, you're the last person in the world I'd expect to be lonely."

"You think so? Ah, then you are not as clever as I thought. Loneliness comes from the heart. What do you know of a woman's heart?"

"Why—why I don't know. I don't spend much time reading those love-romance columns if that's what you mean. I've always had the idea men and women are really pretty much alike."

Miss Vail leaned her head back. "Cigarette?" she said idly. Phillips held the box for her and flicked the automatic lighter into flame.

"Men and women are alike," Brenda Vail said slowly. "And yet they are different. Each of us, I suppose, is doomed to much loneliness. It is only when a man or woman meets another who really understands that the loneliness is lifted. But there—I have myself for company all day. I want you to talk now."

PHILLIPS smiled. He looked very boyish and very attractive when he smiled. "I'm sorry, but honestly the only thing I've been thinking of for a week is this play. Do you really understand what this means for me, Brenda? Do you? Why, I'd begun to think I was sunk in this place forever! I thought I was never to have a chance. It was the greatest piece of luck in the world for me when you came here!"

She was pleased. "And I think it was luck for me, too," she said. "Tell me—what are you planning to do if our play is a great success?"

"Oh, I hadn't thought that far ahead yet. Remember, the first act isn't finished! But I'd like to go to New York and know some of the people you've talked about. I'd like to go to the places you've told me about. That must be the life—New York with the theaters and the people who write and act and paint!"

"Goodness, Dan, I didn't know it was so late!"

The young man looked down at the floor. "Say, what's going on here?" he demanded. "What in the world?"

Cherry laughed. She held up a long piece of cloth. "My new fall outfit," she said. "How do you like it?"

"Well, it doesn't look like much to me. What's the idea?"

freedom and you must be with those who understand."

"I'll do anything you say," he assured her eagerly.

"Ah—you are a dear boy!"

From a radio in a nearby apartment came the strains of a waltz. It was softly played, melodious. As the song reached the chorus the violinist took the melody, sent it throbbing as a lover's plea. The rhythm of the music caught at the senses. The song reached its climax, ended on a high note.

Dan looked at his watch. "Why, it's almost midnight!" he exclaimed. "I had no idea it was so late. Cherry will be sure I've been murdered."

"But this isn't late!"

"It is for Wellington," Dan told her with a grin. "Anyhow, I'll have to dash along. Are we going to be able to work tomorrow?"

"I'm not sure," Miss Vail told him. "You can telephone me at noon."

She always spoke as though anything another person did for her was a favor to themselves. Somehow Dan admired her for it. It made her seem very sophisticated, very much a part of that outer world.

"I'll call you about 1 o'clock," he promised. "And I hope you'll feel better in the morning."

The door closed after him. Brenda Vail crossed the room with a determined stride. She took another cigarette from the box, lit it and dropped comfortably to the davenport.

"He's a fool," she said to herself, "but useful—and amusing!"

CHERRY sat on her knees surveying the stretch of yellow cotton cloth. It was spread on the floor before her and laid on in curious fashion were oddly shaped pieces of yellow tissue paper.

There were lines in Cherry's forehead. "Now I wonder," she said aloud. "If that can be right?"

Since there was no one to answer the question went without reply. Cherry took up the scissors and began to cut around the paper pattern.

Slowly and laboriously she cut around the last bit of paper. The sections of cloth did not seem to look like much but when Cherry held them up she thought she began to understand how they fitted together.

She was gathering up the last of the strips of yellow cloth when a key sounded in the lock. Cherry scrambled to her feet.

"Goodness, Dan, I didn't know it was so late!"

The young man looked down at the floor. "Say, what's going on here?" he demanded. "What in the world?"

Cherry laughed. She held up a long piece of cloth. "My new fall outfit," she said. "How do you like it?"

"Well, it doesn't look like much to me. What's the idea?"
