Two Oil Purchasing Companies Meet Sun Price Advance

SINCLAIR AND BARNSDALL GO TO NEW LEVEL

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 11. — Two large crude oil purchasing companies today met the increased prices posted in Texas fields last night by the Sun Oil company. Sinclair-Prairie Oil company announced a top price of $11.0 a barrel in east Texas and Gulf Coast fields. Barnsdall Refining company conformed promptly with an increase to a top of $11.2 a barrel in north and central Texas. The new price announcement, authorized by J. Edgar Pew of Philadelphia, vice president of the Sun company, last night followed closely upon the Texas railroad commission's action reducing the Texas allowable by 117,352 barrels, of which 40,000 barrels were lopped from the daily East Texas quota. In making the announcement, Vice President Pew explained that "the time has arrived for cooperation of the whole oil industry with the state authorities to conserve and prevent the waste of this oil; and that means we must pay a price for crude oil high enough to encourage producers' adherence to lawful conservation."

R. W. Turner Goes To Dallas Hospital

REED REPLIES TO HOOVER IN FIERY ATTACK

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 11. — Iowa's own belt was in the forefront of the 1932 political battlefield today as voters considered the fiery democratic counter-attack made by former Senator James A. Reed to President Hoover's initial campaign address here last week. The vitriolic Missourian, an old foe of the president, labelled Hoover's declaration that the country at one time was nearly forced off the gold standard as "absolutely untrue." Disgruntled agriculturists who staged a protest parade on the occasion of Mr. Hoover's visit crowded the auditorium to cheer the senator. The meeting was advertised as "no tickets no troops" in satiric reference to the admission, by ticket only to Mr. Hoover's meeting and the troops which thronged the city on that occasion. Reed was bitter in criticism of Mr. Hoover's arraignment of the democratic public works construction program as "pork barrel legislation." "Regardless of the merits of demerits of that measure," said Reed, "if the Garner bill is a pork barrel bill then Mr. Hoover is in the lard up to his eyes."

FOODS 125 YEARS OLD SUNNYSIDE, Wash., Oct. 11. —

Some day, Mrs. Josephine Henderson said she is going to open a can of milk and the can of beans put up by Moore & Son in Scotland in 1805. #### FLIES TO SCHOOL VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 11. —

She took an airplane and made the trip in 36 hours.

Flood, Cholera Kill 30,000 in Manchuria

More than 30,000 Chinese were drowned when this flood covered the plains about Harbin, Manchuria, and thousands of others have died since in an epidemic of cholera. Here you see one of the main streets of Fudajun, in the Harbin district, under water. Trains could not get within 300 miles of Harbin, rail center for northern Manchuria. Bandit raids on available food supplies, after the flood had destroyed almost 75 per cent of stocks, left the population facing starvation.

SELECTION OF ARNOLD JURY SLOW PROCESS

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 11. — Selection of the jury in the Doye Arnold murder case in 90th district court was proceeding slowly with only six jurors selected at noon. Five of the six were chosen yesterday afternoon. The special venire was exhausted this morning after 62 had been questioned and Judge Hamlin ordered the regular jury panel to be examined to speed up trial of the case. Arnold is charged with the murder of his former wife, who was stabbed and beaten to death on a busy street corner here on the afternoon of September 10. The woman had secured a divorce only a short while before. Arnold, 25, had just finished serving a term for car theft.

Sheriff's Warning Shot Excites False Rumor After Liquor Raid Near Cisco

When Sheriff Virge Foster yesterday afternoon unlimbered his artillery to halt the retreat of a suspect with a case of contraband, a woman ran out into the yard of the raided house and jumped up and down screaming, "He's shot him, he's shot him!" The result was a rumor given wide circulation in Cisco even before the sheriff and other raiding officers had returned to Cisco with three prisoners and about 11 quarts of confiscated whiskey. Source of the report was believed traced to a traveling man who happened to be passing the house two miles south on the Rising Star road just as the excited woman ran into the yard. The shot had simply been fired over the head of the suspect who was taking to tall timber nugging a case of evidence. When the bullet whistled over his head the man dropped the case and fell to breaking bottles with a will. Foster, however, arrived on the spot in time to save a few of the quarts with the arrest.

They have lived in Cisco for almost a half-century and have been away very few times. Mr. Dill reports that farmers in that section have almost every thing in the world but money.

VETERAN CISCO COTTON BUYER BACK AT OLD STAMPING GROUNDS TO FIND THINGS MUCH CHANGED FROM YORE

By FRANK LANGSTON

Oil has just about ruined this part of the country in the opinion of Pat White, cotton buyer in Cisco some twenty years ago in the days when the cotton business was real business and the farm relief board had not relieved the farmer of his earnings. "Those were the days when Cisco was the center of a large trade territory which produced many thousands of bales of cotton each year instead of a scant 700. But cotton will come back. White said. It will have to come back, for the people will have to go back to the farm. They became excited when offered big prices for leases on their land, and moved to town. Everyone else was so excited too that it didn't matter much a time; but it does now and White believes that cotton is going to become the pride and the hope of the South again. Not that the farmers will raise only cotton, he said. That didn't work when the farm relief board tried to stabilize the price of it. But each farm will have a small crop.

Town Changed When White came to Cisco, the town was not where it is now situated but was near the Texas & Pacific railway. Recalling the first night he spent here, he said that in those days the Hartman hotel, south of the present site of the Laguna, was the leading hostelry of the town. Cisco doesn't look much as it did then, White said. It's grown much larger and has better buildings, whether business is as good or not.

Upon his arrival in Cisco, a friend persuaded White that this was the place he ought to buy cotton and after looking the town over which wasn't such a big job then, he decided the friend was right. The first day he bought 3,200 bales. Working for a large international cotton concern, he had to do a large business, and the first season bought more than 32,000 bales. The Cisco district was then good for 20,000 bales a year, and what with that brought in from the inland towns, he sometimes purchased as much

PREVENTION OF FIRES THEME OF THIS WEEK

Where do you keep your old rags and waste paper? In the pantry by the hot water heaters? Under the stairs? Then move them today. This is Fire Prevention Week, and if you have been neglecting the safety of your property and your family, it's high time you should become safety-minded. Ten thousand persons lost their lives by fire in the United States last year. Do you want to join their ranks this year? Do you want your children to cry from a window at night while flames lick at their clothing? Because there are people in the nation who do not want such disasters to occur time after time, a nationwide annual movement has been undertaken wherever fires may destroy lives and property. It has received an especially prominent place in the school systems, where an attempt is being made to educate the citizens of tomorrow in matters of safety.

Asks Clean-Up

Cisco will take part in the program this year, according to Fire Marshal, O. Gustafson. He asks that the business men help by cleaning out the corners of their warehouses, where boxes and trash collect, and that the people of the town do their part by inspecting fire hazards and eliminating them where it is possible.

COUNTY ASKS $40,000 FROM RELIEF FUND

Eastland county relief agencies will make a combined application for $40,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation's relief fund with which to meet the county's estimated needs during the winter of 1932-33. So it was determined after a conference at Eastland which lasted from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until late in the evening. All towns in the county were represented. Among those from Cisco were J. E. Spencer, secretary of the chamber of commerce and one of the county's three West Texas chamber of commerce directors as well as chairman of the county Red Cross; J. T. Elliott, city commissioner and president of the Cisco Charity and Welfare association, and H. L. Dyer, Community Natural Gas company manager and chairman of the local Red Cross roll call which will begin November 11. Will Be Prorated. The fund obtained will be prorated among the seven towns on a basis of population. The application will be cleared through the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to Gov. Sterling who will present all Texas requests in a combined application direct to the R. F. C. Mr. Spencer and the directors of the WTCC at Eastland and Ranger will make the application for Eastland county. This application is leaving here this afternoon. If the application is allowed Cisco will receive about $8,000 for relief work during the year. Eastland will receive slightly less and Ranger slightly more. Gorman and Rising Star will each obtain about $8,000 and Carbon and Desdemona about $3,000 each. A Supplement. The relief will be distributed in each town by the agencies already perfected. The Red Cross will not handle the fund, restricting its operations to the field in which it normally moves. The relief secured through the R. F. C. is expected to supplement what is done by the local Red Cross and other agencies. In Cisco the R. F. C. appropriation will be handled through the Cisco Charity and Welfare association, it was announced. The decision to ask for a fund of $40,000 for the county was based upon a survey of what has been done in each town during the past year and an estimate of what will be required this year. The Red Cross roll call will begin November 11 and continue until Thanksgiving. H. L. Dyer will chairman the campaign locally.

Opposes Senate G. O. P. Leader

Frederick Van Nuys, above, democratic nominee for the senate in Indiana, is waging a hot campaign against Senator James E. Watson, republican floor leader in the senate and candidate for re-election. Van Nuys, Indianapolis attorney and former U. S. district attorney, is conceded a good chance of spilling Watson out of the senate seat he has held 16 years.

SCION OF MAIL HOUSE HEAD IS VICTIM OF GAS

Avery, Jr., son of the president of Montgomery Ward and company, was overcome by gas today in the family's apartment and died while an inhalator squad was attempting to revive him. Police Lieut. #### GREEK GOV'T ASKS U. S. TO PROVE CHARGE

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 11. — Samuel Insull, former Illinois utilities executive, today was released unconditionally by Greek police. Authorities said Insull was "absolutely free" and could leave Greece whenever he desired.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 11. —

Samuel Insull was ordered by the state's attorney to be released from arrest and was transferred to the best hotel in Athens from police headquarters. It was ordered that he not be detained further, but should, however, be watched by police until the United States consulate furnished authorities with documentary proof of the charges against him in Chicago. Efforts of Cook county, Illinois, to bring the aged utilities man back there for trial on charges of embezzlement developed into a dramatic contest between Insull and United States authorities with the Greek government in a somewhat uncomfortable position in the middle — anxious to cooperate with the United States, but at the same time not to infringe on Insull's rights under international law.

SHADOWY FIGURE ENTERS MELODRAMA

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. — The international melodrama that has followed the billion-dollar crash of the utilities kingdom of Samuel Insull deepened today when the shadowy figure of Sir Basil Zaharoff, wealthy and mysterious Anglo-Greek financier, entered the picture. The name of Zaharoff entered the Insull investigation in a manner typical of the little known European who has been credited with being one of the half dozen wealthiest men in the world. While police were questioning Insull in Athens, Greece, four coded cablegrams were placed before the Cook county grand jury. It was thought possible Zaharoff's great influence if exerted in Insull's behalf with the Greek government, might enable the Chicagoan to delay or avoid extradition from the Mediterranean country.

Solution of the cryptograms first by newspapermen and later by the sender linked the name of Zaharoff to the Insull investigation.

Insull was taken to the most comfortable hotel Athens affords where he can direct the efforts of his counsel to obtain his release. The United States, which has formally asked his extradition, will have to prove its case in the Greek courts. Extradition papers, it was estimated, would not arrive here before weeks at the earliest.

IS IOWA A DOUBTFUL STATE?

Is Iowa a doubtful state? Ever since 1856, with the exception of 1912, Iowa voters have cast their ballots for republican nominees in state and nation. In 1928 Hoover received 623,570 votes and Smith 379,311 votes. Its two senators, 10 of the 11 congressmen, and the present state administration are republicans. Only one democrat has represented Iowa in the upper house of congress since the close of the Civil war. Daniel Steck, still in the land of the living, is the democrat who holds the distinguished mark.

Now Iowa republican farmers are disgruntled. They have organized a strike for higher prices for farm products. They have picketed the highways and by-ways to prevent independent farmers from trucking their products to the cities and towns. They have as an independent candidate for the senate of the United States, Smith W. Brookhart, defeated for renomination by Henry Field, republican. If Iowa should go democratic in November then all scoffers at the miracles wrought by the Man of Nazareth when he walked the earth will be compelled to hide out in the brush and compelled to recant of their opinions, expressed both publicly and privately, that a miracle age did not exist in the far away period when the Nazarene walked the earth and spread the gospel of Christianity.

Is this a miracle making age? It is if the republican Gibraltar of Iowa lands in the democratic column in November. Strange things have happened. Texas landed in the republican column of states four years ago. Did it paralyze the regulars of the ancient faith under Lone Star skies? Why ask? They have been mad ever since. All the indications are they are going down the line this year not only to wreak vengeance by wiping out old scores but in piling up a democratic majority for Roosevelt and Garner that will be a high water political mark for the Texas of the past and the Texas of the future.

PUDDLER JIM DAVIS GIVEN MISTRIAL.

Misconduct on the part of a juror brought U. S. Sen. James W. Davis' trial to an abrupt end in the city of New York and sent him home to Pennsylvania to campaign for re-election with a charge of lottery law violation still hanging over him. A retrial will not be held until after election day. It appears that the juror remarked to a fellow juror that all the defense witnesses were liars. Puddler Jim was certain that he would be given a verdict of "not guilty." He was deeply chagrined at the outcome of his case. He is a power in the politics of Pennsylvania, regardless of the call made upon him by Gov. Gifford Pinchot "to get out of the race." Now why should a juror disregard the instructions of the court? Why shouldn't he be sent to jail for contempt of court?

POSTAL SAVINGS AND BANKERS.

County bankers in Missouri appeared before the Shannon house investigation committee and objected to the government postal savings system as competition with their business. It is competition, very aggressive and very substantial competition. They asked for elimination of competition between private institutions and the postal system. This is their argument: "The government could do nothing better toward making the committee more prosperous than to turn the money in the postal savings banks over to the banks so that the banks could use it in the community."

October Promises to Be One of Our "Hottest" Months

There are many who believe that their argument is based on sound logic.

SPEAKER GARNER SENDS HIS MESSAGE.

Pres. Hoover made a direct attack upon Speaker John Nance Garner in his Des Moines message. The speaker is ever ready for direct action. He made a very lofty and very dignified and a very caustic reply. He declared that every recommendation that the president had made had been acted upon by congress and that all relief measures enacted were the creation of democratic and republican-progressive servants of the people. Now the speaker of the house is holding himself in readiness to answer any presidential bombardment in future. Regardless of politics whenever a president throws vitriol in the face of the democratic vice presidential nominee, he needs more than a gas mask for self protection.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The business of trying to keep the republicans and the democrats in a good humor is beginning to get on my nerves. I am in a mind to turn the business over to the district and state committees of the interscholastic league for their government, seeing that these institutions have given us such an able example of conducting high school athletics in peace and harmony to all concerned.

I am not particularly concerned for what means and reasons they might adopt, but if they can find Curly Armstrong and Will St. John ineligible to participate in further games I will declare that the committee was absolutely and conscientiously right in keeping the Loboes out of the league this fall.

I ask for the disqualification of both Curly and Bill because I believe that I can handle W. J. Leach. It doesn't take much to handle a republican. All one needs is a big picture of Herbert Hoover and a line of prosperity talk and the subject will sink into an anodinous state of love and affection.

The genius of the republican party is its ability to extract the wherewithal and leave the victim smirking. The republican contributes for love, but imagine a darn democrat doing that. No indeed. When the democrat contributes he wants to feel as if he has received something in return, so the national pow-wow pooled brains and evolved a scheme to stamp out a few million medals at a cent or less apiece. Now they are going around and charging the democrats a dollar each and making 99 cents on the dollar. The purchaser has a very good 5 and 10 lapel decoration as well as the consciousness of having made it possible for his party to finance the national campaign.

The Sun Oil company's crude hike yesterday listens good. It would listen better if the Humble or the Magnolia or another of the larger purchasers had done the hiking. But all favors are thankfully received, the large ones in proportion. The Sun increase strengthens faith in the industry because it demonstrates that there are those on the inside of the inside who do not consider the business so much of a pessimistic affair after all, granting the fact that Mr. Pew, who heads the Sun, pointed out that his company's action was a sort of sop to encourage restricted production.

It remains to be seen whether the rest of the purchasers will accept the Pew theory.

I remarked to Marshall Young, young Breckenridge producer who has been successful in the game, that the oil business was a really sick patient. He did not agree with me. In fact he intimated that the industry had passed the critical stage and all that it requires now is a careful attention to the details of convalescence.

The complexion of community life is in a continual flux. The Cisco of today will not be the Cisco of tomorrow. Sad but true. Progress means change, and as we move over the years that are allotted us we are continually making new acquaintances and losing old. How many people with whom we associated in 1928 are with us now and how many new friendships have entered into the makeup of our associations within the past year or so? The change during the past four years has been remarkable. One more atom of old Cisco submerged last Saturday in this mut-able complexion, bringing its nuance of change. E. O. (Farm to Pharmacy) Elliott picked up his Gladstone and went thither. Far out into the sand dunes and scrubby oaks of the western borderlands of the state, near where the eastern line of New Mexico picks up the foothills of the Guadalupe and rolls them upward toward the parent Rockies, went our E. O. to administer physic and anodyne to cowpunchers and roustabouts. We shall miss our E. O. Regrettably do I say that while he was here we took too much for granted, regarding him so permanently fixed that we did not appreciate what about him we liked. There are several things that I liked about him. For one, I had rather watch him smoke a cigarette or a cigar than to smoke one myself.

Young Girl Christens New Ocean Liner

THE "Santa Lucia," third of the four new $5,000,000 Grace liners slides down the ways of the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. in Kearney, N. J., October 3rd with Miss Hilda Holloway, attractive 12-year-old daughter of William Grace Holloway, Vice President of W. R. Grace & Co. as the official sponsor.

The "Santa Rosa" first to leave the ways, will make her maiden voyage from New York November 28th and from San Francisco December 26th. The "Santa Paula," "Santa Lucia" and "Santa Elena" will all be in service by April. With the entry of the four sister ships into the Grace Line's Panama Mail service, weekly sailings will be maintained and the present service extended to include Seattle, Washington and Victoria, B. C.

These new $5,000,000 liners introduce several innovations: they are the first American ships having all outside rooms with private baths. They are among the first to be furnished throughout by a woman interior decorator. The location of the kitchens, or galleys, is a new feature—they are situated up on the boat deck where fresh air can have full play. The Main Dining Room, two decks high, is "up top" also with entrance on the promenade deck—tall case-door windows and a roll-back dome give the effect of a breeze-swept outdoor cafe.

The built-in swimming pool of sea-green tile with its umbrella-topped tables and colorful beach chairs is the largest open-air pool on any American ship. A casino-like Club, with shaded verandah overlooking the sports deck and swimming pool, is elaborately "turned out" for dancing and refreshment. The gymnasium is equipped with all the most up-to-the-minute paraphernalia for keeping one fit. The Living Room flanked by conservatory-like palm courts, and the Library, are beautiful and exceedingly homelike rooms that reflect the "woman's touch." ### THIS CURIOUS WORLD

SIX KINDS of ice have been found by Professor P. W. Bridgman of Harvard University, and one of these varieties, Number 6, has been discovered in large quantities in the human body by Dr. Neda Marinisco of Paris. Dr. Marinisco states that enormous pressure is to be found in the living tissues. The ice contained in the human body exists at ordinary temperatures only under a pressure of more than 100,000 pounds per square inch.

Stan Ball accuses Asper Delo, timber king, of crooked practice and of having men shot who try to check up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check and Delo tells him he will personally prevent it. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves Dona Delo's daughter, from kidnapers. He slips away when he finds who she is, telling her his name is Stanley Black.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona, persuades Delo to abandon the fight with Ball. He tries to get her to marry him on the way as a means of getting Delo to give up his plans. Dona narrowly escapes doing this by meeting Ball on his way to the timber camp. On his final Ball accuses of killing a ranger. Asper is wounded from ambush but refuses to stay in bed. Dona tells him she has just married Dudley to keep him out of the hunt.

Ball comes in for supplies and is captured by Swergin, Delo's big timber boss. He escapes after hearing Dona tell her father she is Dudley's wife. Dudley insists on real marriage but Dona holds back. She rides out to see if she can find Stanley Black, who, she thinks, is at Blind River. She meets him on the trail, not knowing he is Ball. He promises to ride the camp of Stan Ball. On the way to camp Dona stops at a cabin and sees a glove she thinks is Stanley Black's in a Spanish girl's room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

Dudley wandered down to the garage to see that the roadster was put in shape properly. He was leaning on a fender, smoking an after-dinner cigarette when the stage drove up. Dudley inquired for mail and when he did not get a letter he made a casual inquiry as he stood watching the driver unstrap the sacks.

"Did you see Sam Dean down at Seth Doby's ranch?"

The driver tossed a packet of papers into the box and grunted, "Sam's down country preachin' a weddin'."

Dudley smiled and turned to the man who was working on the car. "Miss Delo won't want her car tonight." He turned and walked up the slope, leaving the garage mechanic grumbling about the uncertainty of women.

Dona was with her father and Dudley waited on the porch for her. He smoked another cigarette, contemplating the blue outline of Pelly Mountain. For some unaccountable reason he was glad Sam Dean was away "preachin' a weddin'."

Dona appeared finally. She was ready for the ride. Her trim skirt and tailored jacket set off her slender beauty perfectly. Dudley greeted her with a grim face.

"I am about to commit suicide," he stated gravely.

"What's struck you?" Dona demanded. "Why aren't you ready?"

"Sam Dean is away 'preachin' a weddin'." Dudley spread his hands in mock despair.

"How did you find out?"

"The storage man just told me in those very words," Dudley sneered. "But that needn't stop us from taking a stroll. The moon will be coming up soon."

Dona patted his arm. "Poor old Dud, you have a hard time getting all the legalities cared for."

"I think we'd better throw them overboard," Dudley caught her arm and turned her around until the tip of her nose was close to his chin. "What do you say?"

"No, Dud. We will do this right or not at all," Dona said firmly. "Now let's stroll."

They wandered across the clearing and found a little hill overlooking the camp. Dona perched on a rock and Dudley sat at her feet. He did not urge her or argue concerning the difference of their ideas of marriage. Dudley was a good fellow and Dona could not help wishing she cared for him more deeply.

Firple shadows descended from the high slopes and wrapped the valley in a dusky blanket. A chilliness crept upward with the coming of night and Dudley pulled Dona down beside him. He slipped an arm around her and they sat there until the moon showed over the rims above. Dona was very still.

Night had settled and the valley was beginning to glow with reflected light from the moon. The camp was still in the deep shadows but its lights winked and brightened the scene. Suddenly two shots rang out on the still air. Dona started up and Dudley sprang to his feet.

"That came from the main building at camp," Dona cried.

"Let's run down and see what's coming off," Dudley had already started down the hill.

A crowd had gathered outside the main building and Dudley had to shoulder a path through the milling men in order to get inside. Dona rushed to her father's room and found him red-faced with anger. Swergin was standing just inside the doorway and the two men had been having hot words.

"I'll have him strung up within 30 hours, or I'll quit this job," Swergin thundered.

"Bah! You let him come right into this building and steal my blind!" Asper thundered. "Get out and get him or I'll do it myself!"

"Father! Lie down and be calm," Dona pleaded.

Asper pushed her aside. "That robber, Ball, comes into our offices, right under our noses and takes what he wants. I won't be made a fool of any longer. I'll get out and run him down!" Asper Delo was seething mad.

"You're going to stay right where you are. Now calm down and tell me what happened!" Dona shoved him back on his pillow.

"Ball came in here and stole all our timber records. Took 'em right out from under Swergin's nose." Asper growled as his wound stabbed him.

"But I thought," Dona stopped short. She had only Stanley Black's word for it that Ball would leave the country.

"You thought what?" Asper growled.

"I thought the men had run him out of the country," Dona finished weakly.

"He is very much in the country. He comes in and steals our records before I have even gone over them. This is the last straw. Of course he'll leave the country now. He'll deliver those records to that thieving crowd over at Blind River and then he'll pull out." Asper was panting and his face was crimson.

"Lie down father and take it easy. What do we care for a few records? This camp won't break us even if we should lose it," Dona spoke soothingly.

"I'll run him down and see that he's hanged! I'll never let him beat me if I have to spend my last cent." The old timber king was beside himself.

"You promised not to fly off again!" Dona chided him.

"I know," Asper rumbled. "But this is too much to stand."

"You must rest until morning. The boys will round him up. Swergin is so stirred up he will comb the mountain," Dona patted her father's hand.

"On top of that he shoots up my office clerk," Asper growled. He was beginning to give in but did not want to admit it.

"Did he hurt him much?" Dona could not help asking the question.

"Just shot his gun out of his hand and scared him half to death. Carter says he recognized Ball all right and could identify him. I'll make a convict out of that coyote if he lives to go behind bars!" Asper drew a deep breath and lay back.

"You won't accomplish anything but a month in a hospital if you let yourself go this way!" Dona insisted.

Dudley came in at that moment and Asper looked at him eagerly. "Did they get the rat?" he asked.

Dudley shook his head "He got away clean."

"That fellow is slippery as an eel," Asper grunted.

"They're all working on the wrong theory," Dudley sat down and pulled his chair close to the bed. "I have a plan that would get him, I believe."

"I'll have Swergin give you some men and you can fly at it," Asper growled. "You can't do any worse than that dumb timber boss."

"I don't need any men. All I need is a couple more days," Dudley explained. He looked at Dona and smiled. She reached out and took his hand.

"You're awfully sweet, Dud," she whispered.

Asper granted. "Sorry to have made a row." He faced them and his old smile struggled through.

"But I never did have anyone trim me like this man, Ball, has been doing."

Dona realized that her father was well on the way to recovery. This last shock had not weakened him as the first had. She was eager to get him out of Three Rivers, however. Once away, he would be able to forget that he had not made good his threats against Ball.

"You'll be able to move tomorrow," she said gently.

Asper shook his head. "I hate to hold you kids up but I'll have to stay now and see this through. Dudley, here, will want to try out his ideas a little longer."

Dona turned to Dudley but he did not come to her rescue so she did not push the idea of leaving next day. One thing made her glad they were staying. Stanley Black had failed her in several ways. Now she hoped to meet him again and to correct an impression she feared she had left with him. She did not realize how soon she would meet him or under what trying circumstances.

Roumanian Gov't Fears Hunger March

BUCHAREST, Oct. 11. — Despite the disastrous outcome of the United States' march on Washington, the idea of direct appeal to the government for aid has found an echo in several quarters in Roumania, and agitation has been started for at least four "hunger marches" on the capital.

A group of non-commissioned officers in Constantza, whose pensions have been in arrears for months, have started propaganda for a "March on Bucharest" and demand aid. Another, similar, agitation has been reported in the press from Reschitza, where pensioned and disabled workers have received no compensation for months, because the government has been unable to pay their former employers for shipments delivered, and used.

Reschitza is a steel and iron center. It is 500 kilometers to the southwest of the capital; the pensioners planned to live off the generosity of the country side on their march, which would take about three weeks.

Similar agitation for a "hunger march" is reported among civil employees in Moldavia and Bessarabia, where, in many cases, state salaries are in arrears. The chief obstacle to the success of all of them is the fact that the national treasury is virtually empty.

ELKINS SMOOTHS OUT ROUGH SPOTS IN LOBOES' OFFENSE

By FRANK LANGSTON

Smoothing out the rough spots on offense as shown in the Ranger college game showed last Friday, Coach Bull Elkins sent the Cisco Lobos through a dizzy scrimmage yesterday afternoon, with the first string running plays through the defense of their second team opponents. Determined to make a better showing in the next game, Elkins worked on precision in blocking to enable the backs to execute the plays.

Later in the afternoon the coaches divided the squad, Elkins taking one group for practice in some new plays and Hodges giving the other and larger set a scrimmage. Using the older Warner formation with a single wing-back, Elkins had the boys running spin plays and lateral passes, again emphasizing the blocking tactics. The single wing-back formation has an advantage over the other type used in the way it bunches the interference for the power plays at tackle, but is probably not so good for the passing and reverse plays of the open style of game generally used.

Backfield Shakeup.

There was a shakeup in the backfield of this group, due to the absence of Ray, quarter, who was hurt in the game last week end. The backs used were Steffy, Barker, Barker, and McCall. John St. John, who saw service in Friday's fracas, held down a wing position. Van Horn, starting end in the Ranger game, had a bad arm, but was used to pass the ball back from center in the absence of Hanaford. Bill Rutledge, also a starting end, was at the other flank.

Barker, who carried the colors of the Lobo team well in the attack against the Texas Rangers, is showing more promise as a shift backfield man. He is fast and sidesteps well, besides being a passer. McCall, moved back from a forward position to do the kicking, is a triple threat man. Caffrey has been used largely as a defensive and blocking back, but is also a good punter. Steffy is a running back, as is St. John, a youngster showing promise of developing into a good man.

After working his boys on the new plays and a few old ones, Elkins gave them a charging workout and sent them to the showers by the circular route, the boundaries of the field forming the basis of the circle.

Getting Hot.

Over in Hodges' part of the field things were getting hot. The boys were tearing into each other with a great deal of gusto. Bill McMahon, back, seemed to be the pick of the crop. He is the low built, battleship type of backfield man who is hard to stop on a thrust at the tackle. Besides, Bill is learning fast and is using a straight-arm and a sidestep just as he crosses the line of scrimmage; that is something more than just a fortunate placement of his center of gravity.

Backing up the line was Jim Floris, swarthy son of the republic to the south of the Rio Grande, who smacks to earth the hopes of enemy backfield men. With experience on offense and in stopping an aerial attack, Jim ought to make somebody a good man to have around. The younger boys are showing up well, though more weight among their ranks would be highly desirable, and are due to see a great deal of service before the season is over. One combination seemed to hold the college boys about as well as another Friday.

No game had been arranged this morning, according to word received from the high school authorities. Coach Elkins said yesterday that he intends to play some good team, but is waiting for a ruling on the eligibility of his team to continue in the Interscholastic League race.

Academy to Change Style of Classrooms

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 10. — The new type of classroom at Phillips Exeter Academy, one of the country's most famous preparatory schools for boys, looks more like the directors' room of a big business corporation.

The students, averaging about a dozen to each class room, sit in big, comfortable chairs, around a table. The instructor sits nearby at a small desk—on a level with the students, not on the traditional elevated platform.

Dr. Lewis Perry, principal of Exeter decided upon the new teaching plan as the best method of utilizing the substantial gift which Edward S. Harkness made the Academy two years ago.

By increasing the teaching staff without increasing the size of the student body, the class divisions have been made so small that teacher and students engage in a study conference, or discussion, rather than stiff, formal lectures and recitations. The plan also permits the grouping of students according to their abilities.

One of the advantages of the new study plan is the ease and propriety with which illustrative material can be introduced into recitations. The Exeter plan will be fully effective within three years, when a total of 25 new teachers will have been added.

ADVERTISED BOOTLEGGER.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 11.—A man who gave his address as Richmond and Pamplin, Va., drove into Pamplin the other day with a tire cover on his automobile on which was painted a large boot. Beneath the picture was painted "leg-ger." Deputy Sheriff Duval Conner arrested the man and confiscated four pints of whiskey, a hand machine gun and his automobile.
