PICKETT CONFESSES ARLEDGE MURDER

Roosevelt Takes Issue With "Might Have Been Worse"

MIGHT HAVE BEEN BETTER, TOO, HE SAYS

WHEELING, West Va., Oct. 19.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today charged his republican opponents with trying to instill panic into the voters.

"You have been told that things might have been worse, and will be worse if I am elected to office," Roosevelt said in his campaign speech here.

"To attempt to instill panic into the electorate at a time when we must all have courage is a method of campaigning which does little credit to leaders entrusted with the welfare of the United States."

Taking up the phrase "things might have been worse" which President Hoover has used, Roosevelt said things might also have been better. Roosevelt said conditions might have been worse but for two agencies—the federal reserve system and the Reconstruction Finance corporation, both of which, he asserted, were of democratic inspiration.

Members of Roosevelt's party said he would discuss the soldiers' bonus tonight at Pittsburgh. Gov. Roosevelt, however, said he was undecided whether to discuss the bonus tonight or reserve it for later.

Cheering crowds turned out along a 50-mile drive which Gov. Roosevelt took today through the industrial and mining region of western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

DEMOCRATS WON 4 TIMES SINCE LINCOLN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Democrats have wrested the presidency from the republican party, but four times since Abraham Lincoln was elected 72 years ago.

In that time but two democrats have occupied the white house. They were Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson.

Cleveland was elected in 1884 to break a republican succession that had lasted from Lincoln through Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes and James A. Garfield. Cleveland was defeated by Harrison in 1888 but turned the tables to defeat Harrison in 1892.

G. O. P. Won Following Cleveland the republicans won the succeeding elections. William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft. The succession of Warren G. Harding, Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover followed the eight terms of Wilson.

Similarly the democrats have controlled both houses of congress but eight times in 72 years. While the period is exactly equivalent to that in which they controlled the executive branch of the government the two were by no means concurrent.

Won Both Houses term they won both houses only to lose them when Garfield was elected. From 1882 to 1888 they controlled the house but, although Cleveland was in the presidency, could not gain the senate. Not until he was elected the second time did Cleveland have both houses with him. In the midst of the term the republicans won both houses back again.

Woodrow Wilson had both house and senate of his own party from 1912 to 1916 but in the later year republicans regained the house and in 1918 the senate was divided 48 republicans, 47 democrats, one independent.

Congress has been split politically nine times since 1860. On eight of those occasions democrats controlled the house while republicans held the senate. Only in 1918 did the democrats have the senate without the house.

Cross Plains Child Dies Here Today

Carl Weiss, Jr., 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weiss, of Cross Plains died at 6:50 this morning, a little more than two hours after he was rushed here for emergency treatment. He died of peritonitis and pneumonia which followed a ruptured appendix. No operation could be performed.

Chicago Has a New Industry --- Peat

The nation's second city has a new industry. Thousands of Chicagoans are digging in large South Side field following discovery that spongy soil found there will burn. The peat diggers, many of them unemployed, have removed hundreds of tons of the soil. The peat burns readily without drying if it is placed on coal embers. Below are the diggers at work, laying in a supply of heat for the winter.

COURT TO RULE ON WILL WORTH MANY MILLIONS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—The state supreme court has been asked to decide whether a man who died 109 years ago can donate millions of dollars worth of downtown property to a church and to schools.

The strange case arose in connection with the 2,000-word will of Daniel Miles, member of a wealthy pioneer family, which was filed when Miles died in 1827 of "coughing sickness."

Bearing the approval of Martin Van Buren, later to become President of the United States, the will divided Miles' cash among various relatives. More than forty acres of land, which since has become some of the most valuable land in the city, was given to three trustees. For 109 years, the trustees were to use the income to educate male members of the Miles family.

Income Divided. At the end of 100 years, the income from the estate was to be divided equally between Newburg township. The will stipulated that the church must teach "the doctrine of future rewards and punishments" and must have the greatest number of male parishioners contributing $2 or more yearly.

The will described the manner in which trustees were to be replaced as the years passed and called upon the state legislature to assume control of the land if the trustees should fail to fulfill their duties.

For 11 years following Miles' death, trustees did as they had been commanded. Then in 1841, after a court fight, brothers and sisters of Miles were given title to the estate. Later, the heirs took advantage of a rising real estate market in what then was a frontier town and sold the land. Today, none of the Miles family owns any of the original estate.

Fabulous Income. But the will still is on file and provides that 100 years after Miles' death the income from his property is to be given over to education and religion. Had the terms of the will been carried out the schools and the church would have begun receiving a fabulous income five years ago. But Miles' last wish has been frustrated.

It is reported that present owners of the land have taken out more than $7,500,000 insurance to protect their titles. The insurance companies have guaranteed the owners that their titles are good.

About two and one-half years ago, three trustees were appointed to carry out terms of the will upon insistence of persons claiming to be heirs. Their first step was to attempt to force owners of a section of the property to move out. Two courts have refused the trustees' request and now the Ohio Supreme Court has been asked to uphold or deny the original will.

SQUIRREL BITES HUNTER. BLUEFIELD, Va., Oct. 19.—A. B. Perdue went hunting and shot a squirrel. When he decided the victim was dead, Perdue picked it up and was bitten severely.

ODD VIOLIN. GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 19.—Representative A. Platt Andrews, of Massachusetts, is the owner of an Alsatian violin constructed of fig boxes and strung with horsehairs.

FINE PROGRAM IS ENJOYED BY CISCO LIONS

The Lions club enjoyed one of the best programs of the year today. It was well balanced and entertaining every moment of time.

The musical numbers began with the Harry Schaefer orchestra, consisting of Mr. Schaefer, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Krauskopf, violins, and Miss Mattie Lee Kunkel, piano. They were encored repeatedly. The Parent-Teachers association then announced the Ghost House play for the benefit of the milk fund. The announcement was first made by Rig Edwards in a few well chosen words followed by the introduction of a chorus of young ladies under the direction of Principal Hiram Brandon of the high school. Their entertainment was also given a hearty reception.

The Rev. E. B. Surface pastor of the Central Presbyterian church at Abilene gave a fifteen-minute address which teemed with humor interspersed with facts and common sense. This kept the club members convulsed with laughter while at the same time he drove home his message.

The matter of changing the meeting place of the club was voted upon and it was decided to remain at the present quarters.

The South Siders won in today's attendance and membership contest. O. J. Hamilton of the West Texas Utilities Co., was introduced by Lion R. C. Giles, of the same company as a new Lion member for the South Siders.

TO BE ALIBI. SEATTLE, Oct. 19.—Merton Thompson, 40, accused of taking $40 from the cash register of the Revenda garage, may offer a defense that he was suffering from sleeping sickness when he committed the crime.

LUBBOCK IS ORGANIZED TO FIGHT CRIME

LUBBOCK, Oct. 19.—Lubbock county citizens today were organized and armed with determination to rid the vicinity of what they termed "the present crime wave." Aroused by the murder Saturday of Robert Tharp by a robber who found the cash register in Tharp's store almost empty, 1,500 citizens met in the Baptist church here and started a movement to combat crime.

A resolution was adopted, pledging a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Tharp's slayer, with a similar amount offered for the same action on any other person committing murder within the next 12 months.

Randolph Musicians To Present Program

Music students of Randolph college will give their regular monthly recital tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the college auditorium, according to Mrs. Lee Clark, head of the fine arts department.

The program for the recital has not yet been announced. Mrs. Clark said that the public is invited, and she hopes for a large attendance.

Roosevelt Featured When Navy Approved Plan for Radio Corporation in America

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 19.—The Radio Corporation of America was organized 13 years ago by the General Electric company, then the only American company, with an interest in wireless. According to officials of the General Electric company the new corporation was organized with the approval of the United States Navy department.

The story of the United States vs. The Radio Corporation of America et al. as the case will be listed in legal history, started in the fall of 1919 shortly after the General Electric company had perfected a wireless apparatus known as the Alexanderson Alternator. Once essential to wireless transmission it is now obsolete.

Roosevelt in Picture. In the fall of 1919 the General Electric company planned to sell the alternator to the American Marconi company, a New Jersey corporation, which controlled wireless patents owned by the British Marconi company. Shortly after this information became general knowledge, it is said that Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary to the Navy asked Owen D. Young, Vice-president of General Electric to conclude no agreement with the British or American Marconi organizations, until naval officials had been consulted. Following a conference of General Electric, American Marconi and naval officials, it was agreed that the Marconi company would sell its assets and business to a corporation organized by the General Electric. As a result of this agreement the Radio Corporation of America was born Oct. 17, 1919.

The Allegations. Upon its organization, the bill of complaints sets forth RCA purchased all the assets and business, with a few minor exceptions, of the American Marconi company. From then until the present time the government charges the General Electric company has continuously held a large proportion of the capital stock of the Radio Corporation of America, been represented on its board of directors and has largely controlled its policies and actions. While the department of justice is seeking to "break" what they term is a "trust" it is said that the Navy Department approved the organization and that an admiral of the navy always attended the board meetings of the Radio Corporation.

CONVICT DEAD AFTER PENAL FARM MUTINY

HOUSTON Oct. 19.—Chairman W. A. Paddock, of the Texas Prison board, today revealed that a Gray county convict was killed last weekend at the end of a manhunt which followed mutiny of prisoners at Eastham state penal farm.

Childs Wilson, 29, serving a 20-year sentence for murder, was killed by a posse of guards who trailed him and other convicts with bloodhounds. He was shot when he refused to come from behind a tree.

Paddock said he had withheld the information for reasons of his own. The mutiny occurred last Saturday. Wilson was one of a squad of convicts pitching hay in a field. A mounted guard sat nearby.

The guard got too close to the men, Paddock said, and one of the prisoners struck him with a pitchfork while two others took his pistol and shotgun. Three fled while other members of the squad returned to the barracks with the guard.

Given 7 Years in Telegraph Holdup

ABILENE, Oct. 19.—Harvey V. Taylor, 22, of Oklahoma City, today began serving a seven-year sentence for robbery with firearms in connection with a recent holdup of a Western Union office.

Taylor pleaded not guilty to a charge he was the man who entered the telegraph office late one night, wrote out a note saying, "Hand me your money or I'll shoot," then pushed it across the counter to the night clerk. The loot obtained was $37.

OIL INDUSTRY MAY BE FIRST OUT OF SLUMP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Hoover today considered a report of the federal oil conservation board which declared the American oil industry "gives indication of being the first basic industry to emerge from the world depression." The president was informed, however, that if present improvement is to continue the state must cooperate to stabilize production and balance supply and demand.

"Continued stability will depend largely on the situation in the east Texas area," the report said. "East Texas is the greatest potential asset and the greatest current liability of the oil industry," the board declared.

LIBBY WANTS TRIAL TO GET EXONERATION

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Oct. 19.—Libby Holman Reynolds today demanded trial on charges she murdered her playboy husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to the tobacco millions.

"I want a trial in order to get complete vindication and exoneration," she told her attorneys. Previously the brother of the late Smith Reynolds said he "fully approved" a suggestion that murder charges against Libby Holman be dropped.

A letter from the Reynolds family to state prosecutors had stated the family would be "quite happy if it should be your decision to drop the case."

Baby Succumbs to Auto Crash Hurts

DALLAS, Oct. 19.—Escaping uninjured from the smashup of an airplane in which he was being rushed here for treatment for injuries received in an automobile accident, Bennie Warren, Theodford, 18-month-old son of Mayor S. L. Theodford, of Wink, Texas, died in a hospital here today.

As Ship Carried 37 Down

When the S. S. Nevada sank off bleak Amatignak Island, in the Aleutian group off Alaska, only three men out of the 37 on board were saved. They were rescued by the S. S. President Madison, which sent a boat ashore through the heavy breakers to take off the survivors. The wrecked ship is shown at top, with only the upper deck, bridge and funnel above water. Two of the three survivors and their rescuer are shown below. Left to right are Lucena N. Decaney, Captain R. J. Healy of the President Madison and James Thorsen.

TERRELL PREP SCHOOL TO PLAY LOBOES HERE FRIDAY

By FRANK LANGSTON

The Cisco Lobos will play Terrell Prep of Dallas here Friday afternoon at 3:30, according to a statement from Coach Wilson (Bull) Elkins. This will probably be the best game the Lobos have had this year. For Terrell is one of the outstanding prep schools of the country.

Terrell Prep has a captain of its team Orville Black, former Cisco star, who plays guard for the visitors. Black was on the Cisco eleven two years ago. At quarterback Terrell will have Luke Winborn, 130 pounds of dynamite, who is a triple threat man and who carries most of the burden of offense for the cadets. Coach Elkins said that according to word received from the Terrell coach, the visitors can put eleven men on the field that will weigh a ton. The starting lineup, however, will likely average about 170 pounds to the man.

Terrell has a great football history behind it and still puts out the same class of teams that helped to build that history. At one time the academy went seven years without losing a game. This year it has played three games without a loss. Outstanding among these games is a 7 to 0 victory over the North Texas Aggies. The cadets also defeated the North Texas Teachers freshmen.

Spectacular Game. When asked this morning about this plan of attack for the game Elkins said, "We'll probably try to go over and around them." Which very likely means that Cisco fans will be treated to a spectacle of passing and of sweeping runs.

"This style of play will be somewhat different from that used most of the season thus far. Elkins began with a plunging team, one that ripped holes at the tackles and depended chiefly on the power plays for its yardage. In the game with the Daniel Baker freshmen Saturday night, however, he had his Lobos using a passing attack, mixed with deceptive spin plays.

In the event of "going around them," the Lobos will probably use a double lateral pass behind the line of scrimmage, from a single wingback formation, mixed with a double pass, forward and then back, designed to get the ball carrier outside the defensive end and halfback. Both of these plays were used last weekend.

Good Crowd. Elkins said he expects a good crowd out for the game. "We can beat Terrell if everyone comes out and works hard this week," he said. But it will take work. Caffrey is out at present with a bad shoulder. Ray, though, is back and will likely be in the starting lineup.

Yesterday the boys lacked the pep they displayed last week, and some did not report for practice. Among those absent were Van Horn, McCall, and Forest Ray. Elkins said he did not know of any reason why they had not been working out.

Bad Situation. Elkins is facing a bad situation here, for all the circumstances are such as will either make or ruin a young coach. He has to fight a tendency on the part of the boys to let down in their practice and in their school work as well, but so far has met the difficulty admirably.

It will take all the strength of the whole team to win Friday. "If we have everyone out, we can do it," Elkins said. "But if we have to play the lighter boys all the game it will be hard to win."

The line will hold, Elkins believes. He was pleased with the way it played against the Hillbillies Saturday. In that game scrimmage plays of the visitors lost 31 more yards than they won. If Aycock, Latch, McMahon, et al. can hold the cadets that well and can manufacture wide open spaces for their own backs, it will only be necessary for the backfield to avail itself of the opportunity to score.

Hard to Find. Three high school linemen better

BUT DECLARIES SHOOTING WAS AN ACCIDENT

AUSTIN, Oct. 19.—John M. Pickett, University of Texas student, was rushed back to San Antonio today presumably because Austin police feared a possible demonstration by University students.

Near midnight, exactly one month from the hour Arledge was shot to death as he threw up his hand to protect his eyes from the glare of a flashlight, Pickett was taken to the scene of the slaying on a side road. He re-enacted the crime to supplement his confession.

Pickett is said to have withheld his confession until promised immunity from the electric chair. District Attorney Henry Brooks has agreed to recommend a 99-year penalty.

The shooting was an accident, Pickett insisted. "I had the gun cocked in my hand and I thought I would hit him over the head," he was quoted as saying. "He struck the hand holding the gun and it was discharged. And then I ran like hell. I did not mean to shoot him."

FOREIGN HELP FOR MISSIONS CALLED EVIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The seventh instalment of the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry reports on the subsidization of Christian churches by home parishes in the foreign missions field.

The board, after two years of inquiry, found that payment of foreign subsidies had introduced an element of commercialism into mission work that brought weakness in the life and morale of the mission field.

It found that only one-third of the churches in China and Japan are self-supporting. The percentage of self-supporting churches in India even is smaller.

The Report. The report declared: "More and more in the future the church in missionary lands will become indigenous in the proper sense of the word, as it certainly should be and that will mean that it will not be financed with foreign money, or conducted by foreign workers, or projected and patterned on a foreign-made ecclesiastical system. It must become a living organism rather than the copy of a structural pattern."

Free Functioning. "It must express in its own life-forms the free functioning of the Christian spirit. That means that it must not be afraid to change its temporal form or to outgrow the peculiar features stamped upon it by the dominant personalities who nurtured it.

"It should become in the truest sense the living expression of the ideal and principles of Christ, and these ideals and principles should control its entire life."

GOV. MURRAY UPHOLDS THE LAW.

Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma is a many sided man. He is ever for the people, "but within the law." Striking coal miners in the commonwealth of Oklahoma have been given warning that the law must be observed or it may be "every man, woman and child for himself."

Lawmakers make the laws. Courts interpret the laws. This is a democracy, federal and state. In the last analysis the courts have ever been the bulwark of the people's rights and their liberties.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has started another swing around the circle. He will cover Pennsylvania and nearby states. He will invade the border states all along the battle line. He will invade Southern states which bolted to the republican enemy four years ago.

Old Letters Recount Hardships Suffered By Spanish Priests Murdered by Indians

AUSTIN, Oct. 19.—Not only do the ancient Spanish documents that are stored in the musty archives of the government in Mexico City contain a voluminous amount of material relating to the early history of Texas but it has been found that many of the old families of Spaniards in that country possess letters that throw new light on events connected with the history of this state when it was a part of Mexico.

Another Forgotten Man

was given a copy of an old oil painting which portrays the massacre at the San Saba mission.

Financier and Founder The letters show that the money for founding of the mission was furnished by Don Pedro Romero de Terreros, Count of Regia, and the actual founder was Father Fray Giraldo de Terreros, a cousin of the financier.

The San Saba Mission had its beginning in 1756 when Father de Terreros was granted a charter by Don Barrios, then viceroy of the Texas and Coahuila provinces. The purpose was to christianize the Indians and the money for the first three years' expenses was to be furnished by the Count of Regia.

Few Converts When spring came there were few converts. Rumors were heard of the Comanches, the northern neighbors of the Apaches, being on the war-path and the Apaches neophytes prophesied that their enemies would sweep in the San Saba country.

Frank Judkins, Eastland attorney, appeals to the democrats of Eastland county to watch out for the "Hoovercrats" and the republicans. The "Hoovercrats," warns he, are trying to defeat the democratic nominee for governor — Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Prospects were never brighter for victory for our party from constable to president. Polls being taken by great newspapers, including the Literary Digest, show that Mr. Roosevelt and our own John Garner will carry 40 of the 48 states in the union.

It "doubtless is no news to Mr. Judkins that there is an uncommon lot of them running about to mess against the democratic political scenery, too.

several years ago. I mean the Terrill election law—a law that robs the democratic party of the right to control its own affairs, and forces every citizen who wants to have a part in the government of his state to be a democrat before he can do so.

It is high time we were taking the state out of the party affairs and giving the party back to its members. The general election should mean a great deal more than a mere party primary. Unfortunately, under the present conditions the opposite is true.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS AUSTIN, Oct. 19.—Item one for the legislature in January is to clean up the botchery of election laws. No. 2 is not to let designing politicians destroy the primary nominating system.

Sen. Ben. G. Oneal, of Wichita Falls will sponsor changes in the primary nominating system. He has shown keen interest in the proposal of a preferential primary, for first, second and third choices all recorded in one primary.

When a Texas student seeks a course in, say, textile engineering in some of the Texas colleges, the result is that the state pays $2600 a year in faculty salaries to teach him. Certainly, the state is going to have to remedy the conditions of such excessive and wasteful expenditures of money in giving people in a few special lines professional or vocational training, while other trades and professions are denied any vestige of free training.

One reason why Texas university can't get big intersectional football games, that the mere 41,000-capacity stadium at Austin "looks mighty small and uninteresting" to the big higher educational institutions of the country. . . . That is the word of Dr. W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the university athletic council.

While maybe a big college could get $20,000 or $25,000 net profits from a game with the university, it can go to California and play to 90,000 or 100,000 people who pay $5 per seat. . . . And that offers the financial contrast that limits Texas to local games or second-rate intersectional games.

Which is just as well in the view of the faculty of the university. Dr. Metzenthin said the faculty is fundamentally opposed to the intersectional game idea that takes the team and rooters away for a whole week from "other work!"

Stan Ball accuse Asper Delo, timber king, of crooked practices and of ordering men, shot who try to check up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check and Delo tells him he will personally prevent it. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves Delo's daughter, from kidnapers. He slips away when he finds who she is, telling her he is Stanley Black.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona goes with her to Three Rivers to get Delo to give up his mad fight with Ball. They find Ball accused of killing a ranger. Dudley has secured a license and has had a marriage certificate filled out to marry Dona. She uses the certificate after Delo is ambushed and wounded to keep him from taking any more part in the hunt. Ball is caught by Swergin, Delo's timber boss, while listening to Dona tell of her marriage. He escapes but believes her married. Dona flies out to find Stanley Black, who she believes is in the country. She meets Ball and thinks him Stanley Black. He promises to rid the range of Ball. Valuable records are stolen from the office and Swergin's man insists Ball would him and look them. A posse surrounds Ball. Dona goes out and sees Ball escaping. She shoots at him and he takes a wound capturing her and taking her to a cave.

Asper learns of her capture and heads a posse but fails to find her. Ball makes Dona promise not to leave and goes for water and food. Swergin finds the cave and Dona. He waits for Ball. Ball is captured and taken to a cabin. Dona is left with him while Swergin goes for men.

Dona could not take her eyes from Stan's face. There was something in his cool manner that made her wonder at him.

"Dum about is fair play," he said at length.

"I am doing just what I said I would," Dona unconsciously assumed a defensive tone.

"Right," Stan spoke softly. All of the tense wariness was gone from his face and his lines had softened.

Dona was expecting a shrewd attempt on his part to persuade her to free him. Of course he would try to talk himself out of his present tight corner. She waited impatiently but he did not speak for a full half hour. When he did it was not to ask for ease for himself but about her.

"You think a lot of your father?" he asked the question while his gray eyes held hers.

Dona was about to cut him off with a short answer when something prompted her to lead him on. "Father is about all I have."

Stan's eyes did not waver. He was sure she was telling the truth. He knew there was something wrong with her marriage though he could never hope to know more of that now. Swergin's gib story of protecting him did not carry any weight with Stan. He knew the timber boss was at that instant rounding up his mob for a lynching.

FRENCH PLAN CONGRESS FOR WORLD'S ILLS

By SAMUEL DASHIELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Oct. 19. — Believing that business depression can be remedied through the combined study of both practical and theoretical leaders, the Association for Economic Expansion has announced the organization of an International Congress of Industrial and Commercial Exportation here in November.

Having received a favorable response to the first circular, the Association definitely has started plans for the meeting. It is announced that the world crisis will be treated in two ways; namely, from the viewpoint of practical business men engaged in industry and commerce, and also from the viewpoint of notable economists who have devoted years to the application of theoretical principles to the fundamental or natural laws in production and consumption.

Scope International

The reunion of these two elements has attracted wide attention and the response so far has been sufficiently international in scope to assure the organizers of the representation they had hoped for.

The work of the congress will be divided into three sections:

First—With the organization of production on an international plan, concerning prices, production, markets and common exchanges and will be headed by President Duchemin, of the General Confederation of French Production.

Exchange Problem

Second—With the problem of exchanges which will be in charge of Etienne Fougere, former President of the Tariff Commission of the chamber of Deputies; President of the National Association of Economic Expansion, and President of the Silk Federation.

Third—The questions arising out of financial and monetary phases of exportation. It will be presided over by Professor Rist, who was one of the French delegates to both the Young Plan Conference and to the Conference of Lausanne, and is one of the leading economists of Europe.

Each section will base its work on questions asked by business men, and the reporter of each subject will be chosen among those as best fitted in that particular subject.

to draw him out further.

"I just wondered how loyal you were. But I am convinced," he hastened to add, as he noted a flush mount her cheek.

"You think father is unfair, crooked, and that mistake will cost you heavily," Dona spoke with simple straightforwardness.

Stan smiled a little and nodded but he did not speak. He had all the information he had sought concerning the Delo Timber company. He could incriminate Asper and Swergin, could make Dona's father almost as black as he himself had been painted. He had been of half a mind to tell her everything. Now he made a new decision. He would let Swergin do his worst without a protest.

Dona could not fathom the lean young man leaning against the wall. He seemed entirely different from what she had expected in the killer they had been hunting.

"What would you do if I loosened the rope at your wrist?" She put the question evenly.

"I would make a getaway if I could," he answered frankly.

"Why do you say that?" Dona flushed impatiently. "A white lie might set you free."

"A white lie would have gotten you free," he countered.

"But I wasn't going to be hung," Dona could feel her control slipping.

"No, but you might easily have imagined a worse fate." He was not smiling and his eyes were clear.

"There will be a trial and you can hire a lawyer. The Blind River outfit will back you," she mused almost to herself.

Stan laughed outright.

"What is so funny?"

"There will be no trial. Swergin will see to that. Everything will be settled within an hour." His eyes met hers.

"You mean they will lynch you?"

Dona could not meet those steady gray eyes.

"Just that."

"But Swergin came out of his way to hide you," Dona protested.

"Swergin came over here to cache me so that he would have time to get his own gang together," Stan spoke simply.

Horror filled Dona's eyes then distrust and finally outright disbelief. At last Ball was playing the cunning game for which she had been watching. He wanted to work on her woman's tenderness.

"I can't believe that," she said.

"And I don't expect you to. I expect to stay here until Swergin comes with his men," Stan eased his tortured wrists by shifting his weight.

"If I believed that I would set you free," Dona met his eyes fairly.

"And I believe that, too."

Dona gave a little gasp and got up. She was in a position that tore at her woman's nature but she also had a woman's instinctive sense of protection, for herself. Ball was cunning. He had proved that several times. She walked outside the cabin unable longer to face him as he stood there calmly waiting.

Stepping through the brush that clung close about the door she looked toward the trail. She thought she saw a man draw back into the bushes but could not be sure. Her mind was in such a whirl that she gave the fleeting glimpse but little thought. Probably it was a mule deer feeding nearby.

She entered the cabin again and sat down. Stan was looking out of a little window that let in a wide band of white light. He did not seem to notice her return and she sat for several minutes before he moved. When he did it was to smile at her.

"I'm sorry to be so much trouble to you," he said softly.

Dona moved a little but could not answer.

He seemed to have come to some sort of decision. "I'm really a bad actor and would have wound up this way sooner or later." He paused and smiled, a bit of the old humor coming back into his eyes. "You can always know that I had it coming to me several times over."

His words did not cheer Dona as a confession, of this kind should have. Instead she felt her heart catch and rise to choke her. He was confessing admitting everything and still she could not feel the wave of anger and hatred that she had once felt for him.

Stan watched her through narrow eyes. He was wondering what she might be thinking. He knew that his resolve to make her think him guilty of all the crimes he was charged with had failed. Had he known woman better he would never have spoken.

"I can't stand this any longer," Dona exclaimed. "I'm going to let you go. I hate you but I'm going to let you go!" She took a step toward him.

Stan shook his head. "It's no use. Swergin has at least two men outside right now." Stan's eyes shifted to the window and he smiled a twisted smile. "The dirty skunk is trying you out for his own purposes. He expects you to let me go."

Dona's eyes followed Stan's gaze and darkened with horror. Through the window she could see two men sitting on horses. They had rifles across their knees.

"I'll let you go and give you your gun," she cried.

"It's empty," Stan spoke softly.

"Listen to me. Be careful of that man. Ride straight to camp as fast as you can. Don't let him go with you. Understand." The sudden fury of his words made Dona start.

"Well, you sure kept him hog-tied!"

Dona whirled at the rumbling voice behind her. Swergin was standing in the doorway, leaning at them.

"We'll just take him off your hands now. Your husband and your old man want you to gallop right straight to camp. I'll send a man with you. Swergin advanced upon Stan.

White-faced and shaken, Dona held ground. "I'm going to ride in with the posse," she stated in an unsteady voice.

"You're going to ride on ahead. Ball is walking," Swergin growled.

"I won't go," Dona stated flatly. Her color was ebbing back and with it some of her old fire.

"Sam! Come and get this gal and take her on ahead to her old man!" Swergin bellowed.

Dona looked into the cylinders of the Colt she held. They were empty! She faced Swergin and her words lashed out. "If Ball is injured while you are bringing him in I'll sign a murder complaint against you and your men!"

Swergin reached out and chucked her under the chin with a thick, dirty finger. "Sam! Get this little spitfire out of here," he yelled.

Sam was a beefy fellow with a matted beard and bleary eyes. Dona had never seen him at camp. Now he thumped into the cabin and caught her roughly by the arm.

Half-dragging her, he made his way outside.

Realizing the hopelessness of resistance Dona mounted the black mare and rode away at a trot.

See Relief in Plan For Construction

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19. — The coming winter holds brighter prospects for the legion of unemployed here.

Construction jobs costing more than $20,000,000 are in prospect, with assurance that several thousands men will be given work.

Foremost among the new projects is the Public Belt bridge for railroad vehicular and pedestrian traffic across the Mississippi river.

The bridge a $14,000,000 project, will be more than three and a half miles long. Two and a half years will be required to build it. Work on the gigantic span is expected to start within two months.

The bridge will rise 135 feet above the water. It will be located nine miles from the business district and will be the only bridge spanning the river south of Vicksburg, Miss.

It is estimated that 60,000 tons of structural and reinforcing steel will be required for its framework and 200,000 cubic yards of masonry. In addition, 4,000,000 feet of timber will be used in the floors and 1,200,000 lineal feet of timber piling.

Other projects for which contracts have or soon will be let include a new federal building, extensive lake front improvements, a new market, home for convalescents, a municipal boys' home and the Toure-Shakespeare almshouse.

NEW MUSEUM

PARIS, Oct. 19. — Paris soon is to have a new botany museum due to the generosity of United States funds forthcoming for its completion. The Rockefeller Foundation three years ago allotted 5,000,000 francs for the purpose. The French government agreed to add at least as much. The plans provide for a public exposition gallery, the total cost estimated for everything approximates 26,000,000 francs.

NEW PREXY

NEW CONCORD, O., Oct. 19. — According to tentative plans, Dr. Robert N. Montgomery will be inaugurated as president of Muskingum college on November 11 — just 28 years to the day since his father, the late Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, was inaugurated in the same position.

LONGHORNS DUE TO MEET OWLS IN HEADLINER

By DICK WEST
Daily Texas Sports Staff

The Southwest's two most powerful football elevens, both eager for victory and flushed with their successes so far this season, face each other Saturday with resolute hearts in what may be the deciding game for the conference title. One of the largest crowds ever to witness a football game in the South is expected to jam the Owl Stadium when the University of Texas Longhorns and the Rice Owls renew hostilities.

It will be a case of strategy, precision and versatility against power, deception and determination. In their Notre Dame system of attack, which Jack Meagher has been teaching for three years and in their great reserve strength, Rice unquestionably is the embodiment of the first three qualities. Meagher has a senior eleven which is tried and proved. In his backfield he has the Driscoll brothers, Wallace, Thrasher, McCauley, Scott, and Hammel. To bolster and protect this alarming front he has a forward wall composed of Hinman, Lauterbach, Hassell, Michelson, Dickey, Harris, and others. Out of this group of individual stars, Meagher has molded a machine that works as a unit, content to play a cool, steady game at first, gradually subduing its opponents, and then in the latter stages of the contest to burst forth with a brilliant offensive. Some victim examples are Louisiana State, Loyola, and Southern Methodist.

On the other hand, the Longhorns have Koy, Hilliard and Earle to represent their cardinal virtues. The first is the joy of any coach — six feet tall, weighs 210 pounds, and is gifted with a will to win. The second is the most brilliant sophomore in the conference. Dallas fans who saw Bohn Hilliard catch that long Oklahoma punt last Saturday on his own five yard line, stagger temporarily, shake off two or three tacklers, reverse his field, and run 95 yards for a touchdown, have forgotten Mason, Leland, and Hume. The other, "Cochie" Earle, is the fiery, aggressive type, who, as one has most fittingly described him, is "tough and likes the going tougher." But in the Longhorn forward wall — Bill James has more stalwarts in Smith, Cook, Furth, Price, Moody, Blanton, and Birdwell. And in the backfield besides Koy and Hilliard, Clyde Littlefield can always depend on Stafford and Clewis.

So when captains Earnest Koy and Tom Driscoll meet Saturday on the fifty yard line and shake hands, when the other players are clustered around their coaches getting final instructions thousands of fans will arise in acknowledgement as the bands play "Rice's Honor" and "Eyes of Texas," and then sit down in a tense excitement awaiting the referee's whistle.

than Aycock, Latch, and McMahon would be hard to find on any one team. At the other guard Coach Hodges has turned out two good men, Blackburn and Garrett.

Center, formerly considered a weak spot in the Big Dam wall, now has two up and coming men, Cearley and Hanaford. A little more strength might be used at the ends. Van Horn played well the first game of the season, and Rutledge showed improvement last week. Moffett, a youngster, looked good for a while, too, as did Johnson. But more competition at the wings would be beneficial.

In the backfield Elkins has Ray, who can run and pass as well as act as field general. Barker is a slippery halfback who can be counted on for shooting off tackle and passing or run the team if necessary. Captain McCall is a triple threat man, and Caffrey is used chiefly for kicking and backing up the line. If neither of the last two starts the game, Bill McMahon, big hard hitting youngster, will likely get the call. Steffy and John St. John will also very likely see service in the game.

Human Fat Used To Temper Flint

PONCA CITY, Okla., Oct. 19.—Old men of the Ponca Indian tribe this week told how human fat was used by arrow makers to temper flint arrowheads in the early days of Oklahoma.

Their memory of flint-craft was refreshed when prairie dogs digging at the site of the Ponca's first encampment in this country unearthed work of ancient flint workers.

When the Poncas, more primitive than other of the northern Oklahoma tribes, arrived from Nebraska in 1879, they still subsisted for the greater part on fruit of the chase. They made their arrowheads from flint.

While most of the plains tribes use flint for weapons and tools, their legends dropped flint-craft long ago. Only a few of the oldest recall tales of their fathers describing how Standing Elk, last of the arrow makers in the Ponca clan, piled his trade.

They say the stone which was found in chips at the former camp ground was obtained from the cliffs along the Arkansas river, and from the Flint Hills of Kansas. The secret of preparing the flint itself held the secret to the perfection of arrowheads.

The hard stone was treated with a preparation of herbs and human fat, this tempering the flint and halting the tendency to crack. While the fat considered best for this work was taken from the bodies of slain enemies this custom should not be misinterpreted. The Poncas were not cannibals, as were the Tonkawas, now almost extinct. They rarely maimed the bodies of the dead, but whether from a superstition that fat of an enemy would have a mystic effect on their "ammunition" or not, these arrowheads were most highly prized.

Spanish Optimistic Over Wheat Prospect

MADRID, Oct. 19. — The immediate future of Spain's economic situation is optimistic largely as a result of the bumper wheat crop produced in 1932 and the beginning of the winter orange export season.

Wheat production for 1932 is estimated at 48,529,000 metric quintals, which is a record crop, and is far above the average yearly production for the past ten years.

Since this year's crop will more than meet the national necessities, there will be a surplus stored for 1933, so that there will be no necessity for importing wheat. These days it is particularly desired to avoid importing wheat as Spain's trade balance is chronically adverse and to maintain recent improvements in the quotation of the peseta it is essential to keep the demand for foreign currencies at as low a level as possible.

The peseta market has improved somewhat, being around 12.25 pesetas to the dollar, instead of the quotation of 12.45 which prevailed all the latter part of the summer. This is considerably better than the situation in March and April of 1932, when the average quotation of the peseta was 13.15 and 13.05 to the dollar.

With the beginning of orange exportation from Valencia, Castellon, Murcia, etc., in a month or two there will be a big influx of foreign currencies.
