DAILY BIBLE READING

GOD'S INFINITE LOVE—For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16. PRAYER—Father, help me to be a worthy son of such love.

SHAW A PROPHET OF GLOOM.

George Bernard Shaw is a witty Irishman, a grouchy Irishman, one of the most brilliant of world writers but he is growing very old. His latest is that democracy is dying from "fallacies and follies," that it is losing out to dictatorships and "universal suffrage has helped bring it down from its high estate."

More than 150 years ago when a new republic was born on these shores the wise men of the world who were the critics of the period predicted that the little stranger would pass out of the picture in a few years. All the European nations and all Asiatic lands at the time were ruled by absolute monarchs. They ruled by divine right. They inherited the scepter from the power above or below. Well the republic of the fathers is the greatest of nations today. It is the richest. It is the most prosperous. Its people are the freest.

Where are the monarchs who ruled by divine right? Where are the warrior kings?

Where are the crownings and the princings?

China has broken away from the Sons of the Moon and the Sun. Turkey is out of Europe and Turkey in Asia is ruled by a modernist. Where are the Romanoffs? Communists have transformed their vast empire into a soviet where the dictators of the hour are the masters and the peasants some day will come into their own and rid themselves of the Stalins as they rid themselves of the Czars in the not distant past.

Democracy is not dying. Democracy is expanding. It's throwing its mantle over the world. George Bernard Shaw is getting ready to pass out of the picture. He should visit America where he has millions of admirers and as many millions of critics. Fallacies and follies afflict a democracy just as fleas cover the back of a dog. It is not necessary to kill a splendid dog to get rid of a flea or two.

UNCLE SAM READY TO SET THE PACE.

Uncle Sam is said to be ready to set the pace for the return of prosperity. Sir Josiah Stamp, one of the noted rail kings and financiers of England is in New York, looking to America to set the pace for the return of world prosperity. He does not expect a revival to begin before next April. He prophesied that it will occur in the United States before it reaches Europe and then he hedged a bit and said the return of real prosperity need not be expected until another twelve months has passed.

Continuance of supplies of cheap money and availability of such supplies for long term loans as well as short were advocated as elements likely to contribute to the revival. Uncle Sam's subjects are more than willing for him to make the start. In days of world trouble he is a grand old man. Trouble over here is looked upon as a shylockish when interest payment day rolls around. It is human nature and human nature never changes.

OTHER OPINIONS

A PRINCE OF OLD INDIA

That United Press correspondent who set himself the job of finding out who is actually the world's richest man managed to produce something of a surprise. The title belongs, not to Ford or Rockefeller, but to a relatively obscure Indian prince called the Nizam of Hyderabad.

This gentleman is worth fully a billion dollars, and probably a good deal more. Furthermore, he has all of his fortune where he can see it and touch it. Half of it consists of gold-gold coins, golden bars, golden ornaments, heard up in the royal coffers; the rest of it consists of diamonds, emeralds, gem-studded bracelets and coronets, pearl necklaces and the like.

All of this, you may be sure, lies wasting its glitter on the darkness of an impenetrable treasure-house, with sword-girt guards at the door ready to strike down anyone who so much as tries to get an unauthorized peek at it. All of this is surprising. We like to think that our oil kings and motor magnates are the earth's richest men. But, after all, it is entirely fitting that the title should go to a prince of India. From the dawn of history India has been the fabulous land of unbelievable wealth.

Alexander discovered it, and his rough Macedonian infantry men, clanking through rich Indian cities with their long spears slanting over their shoulders, blinked at the astounding richness of the palaces they had seized and doubtless told tall tales about them to their children when they got home. The Mediterranean people knew it throughout the middle ages, starved Europe dreamed incessantly of the storied cities of gold and diamonds beyond Arabia. The Arabs broke through to loot; after them came the English, taping in disbelief at the wealth that lay ready for their grasp, seizing enough to make themselves uncomfortably rich yet assuring the people at home there was so much there that they were amazed at their own moderation.

Naturally, the prince of India has figured in literature. Lew Wallace took him up and cast the wandering Jew in the role of Indian nabob, piling up his riches for uncounted generations. Kipling took up the theme, and drew an unforgettable picture of the buried treasure house beneath the abandoned city, with the white cobra sleeping among the forgotten chests of gems and sacks of gold dust, ready to deal out the vengeance of a dead rajah on any intruder. Economists have worried about it, fearing that all of the precious metal in the world will eventually drain off into India and vanish, locked securely in the strong boxes of a thousand turbaned princes.

The Nizam of Hyderabad, then, has a right to his title. There were billionaires before Ford and Rockefeller. And what is more fitting than a billionaire who lives up to his position and keep all of his wealth handy in hard cash?

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON" and "THE AVERAGE" and "THE SILENT SISTER"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

A number of people could have killed Judge Marshall, but which is from Dexter Sprague, is another. Clive Hammond and Polly Beale, who were in the solarium together, and Janet Raymond, in love with Sprague, also are suspected.

Dundee believes that Nita, recognizing one of these six in a group photograph, came down from New York for blackmail, receiving $10,000 and a bullet, and he warns Sprague not to carry on the scheme. Nita's will and the fact that she had Sprague contrive a bell near her bed to summon Lydia show she feared death. Police think Nita was killed by a New York gunman.

Nita had burned papers, intending to marry Ralph Hammond, and Dundee thinks the murderer will return, looking for them. At the office Thursday morning, Penny Crain is telling him of an impromptu bridge party Wednesday at the Miles home to which Sprague came uninvited, with the telephone rings, with the news of Sprague's murder. His body is found in the trophy room at the Miles' house. Penny says that Sprague disappeared mysteriously from the party, that Miles quarreled with Flaro over him, and Dundee learns that all six of the original suspects had opportunity to kill him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVII

The Miles home, still known in Hamilton as the Hackett place, since it had been built more than 30 years before by Flaro's father, old Silas Hackett, dead these seven years, dominated one of the most beautiful of the wooded hills which encircled Mirror Lake in the Brentwood section. Of modified Tudor architecture, its deep red, mellowed bricks had achieved in three decades almost the same aged dignity and impressiveness that characterized the three-century-old mansion in England which Silas Hackett's architect had used as an inspiration.

The big house faced the lake, a long series of landscaped terraces graded down to the water's edge, but the driveway wound from the state road up a side hill, to the main entrance at the rear of the house.

Once before—on Sunday, the day after Nita Selim's murder, when he had come to interview Lydia Carr and had secured the alibi which had eliminated Dexter Sprague as a suspect—Dundee had driven his car up this hill between the tall yew hedges. But then he had taken the fork which led to the hooded doorway over the kitchen; had descended the kitchen stairs with Lydia, to the servants' sitting room in the basement. Now he continued along the main driveway to the more impressive entrance, whose flanking, slim turrets frowned down upon a line of police cars and motorcycles.

His approach must have been expected and observed, for it was the master of the house who opened the great, iron-studded doors and invited him into the broad main hall, at the end of which, down three steps, lay the immense living room. The detective's first glance took in stately arm chairs of the Cromwell period, thick, melon-topped rugs, and, in the living room beyond, splendid examples of Jacobean furniture. In all this dignified but simple grandeur only Tracey Miles—short, stout, blond, the typical business Babbitt—struck a false note.

"A horrible thing to happen in a man's home, Dundee," Miles was saying, his plumb, rosy face blighted with horror. "I can't realize yet that we actually slept as usual with a corpse lying down here all night! And I have only myself to blame—"

"What do you mean?" Dundee asked. "Why, that the—body wasn't discovered sooner," Miles explained. "If I had known that my Whitson hadn't closed the trophy room windows, I should have gone in to close and lock them when I made the rounds of living room, dining room and library, after our guests were gone last night."

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That if you are in business and only an occasional advertiser, you should "Stop and Think" and do it now. Everybody should stop and think once in a while.

Now is the time to start telling the public about your business, not once in a while but all the while. Nobody else is going to do it for you.

If you don't advertise persistently and tell who you are, where you are and what you have for sale, few people will know you are in business. If you just advertise once in a while, few people will remember you are in business.

Today we are living in an age of advertising. Only those who are persistent advertisers keep in the minds of the public and keep abreast of the times.

Now is the time to start continuous advertising. You should not wait for competition to force you to do so—you might be forced too late.

Success is achieved by those business concerns who combine quality, service and persistent advertising.

sometime between nine and 11 o'clock last night."

"Better say between 9 o'clock and midnight last night," Dr. Price suggested. "He may have lived an hour or more—unconscious, of course. For the indications are that he did not die instantly, but staggered a few steps, clutching at the wound. But of course I shall have to perform an autopsy first—"

Dundee crossed the room, stepping over the dead man's stick—a swank affair of dark, polished wood, with a heavy knob of carved onyx, which lay about a foot beyond the reach of the curled fingers of the stiff right hand.

"Sprague's hat?" he asked, pointing to a brightly banded straw which lay upon the top of the cabinet.

"Yes," Strawn answered. "And did you notice the window screen?"

"He pointed to the window in front of which the body lay. The sash of leaded panes was raised as high as it would go, and beneath it was a screen of the roller-curtain type, raised about six inches from the window sill. A pair of curved, nickel-plated catches in the center of the inch-wide metal band on the bottom, of the copernet curtain showed how the screen was raised or lowered."

Dundee nodded, frowning, and Strawn began eagerly: "You'll have to admit I was right now, boy. You've sneered at my gunman theory and tried to pin Nita's murder on one of Hamilton's finest bunch of people, but you'll have to admit now that every detail of this setup bears me out."

"Yes?" "Sure. This is the way I figure it out: Sprague has good reason to be afraid he's next on the program. He's nervous. He hops a taxi at his hotel and comes here—can't stick to his room any longer. Wants a little human companionship. This crowd here—and I have Miles' word for it—ain't any too glad to see him, and shows it. He phones for a taxi to go back to his hotel—about 9:45, that was, Miles says—but decides to walk down the hill to meet it. Doesn't want to back out on the porch and lie about having had a good time, when he hasn't. Well, he opens the front door, or what would be the front door if this way any ordinary house, but before he steps out he sees or hears something—probably or rusting in the hedge across the driveway, or maybe he even sees a face in the light from the lanterns on each side of the door."

"He feels sure Nita's murderer has trailed him. In a panic he darts into this room, and don't turn on the light for fear he'll be seen from the windows, but he can see well enough to make out how the crowd is packed. He'll bet you anything you like Sprague stayed in this room for an hour or two, till he thought the coast was clear, then eased up this screen, intending to climb out of the window and drop to the ground. . . . Not much of a drop at that. You can see that the tall hedge on this side of the driveway comes pretty near up to these windows. . . . Well, I figure he laid his hat on this cabinet, intending to reach in for it when he was outside, but that he made some little noise which the gunman was listening for, and that when he got the screen up this high, the gunman, crouching under the window, let go with the same gun and silencer that he used to bump off Nita. . . . I've got Miles' word for it that neither he nor nobody else heard a shot. . . . Of course, nobody knew Sprague was in here, and since his hat and stick were both missing from the hall closet, they took it for granted he'd beat it. . . . Any objections to that theory, boy?"

"Just a few—one in particular," Dundee said. "But I grant it's a good one, provided Dr. Price's autopsy bears you out as to the course of the bullet, and that Carraway finds Sprague's fingerprints on that contrivance for raising the screen. Even then—"

"But Dundee was not allowed to finish his sentence, for Strawn was summoned to the telephone, by Whitson. When he returned there was a slightly bewildered look on his heavy old face.

"That's funny. . . . Collins—the lad I sent to check up on the taxi companies—says he's located the driver that answered Sprague's call last night. The driver says he was told to wait for Sprague at the foot of the hill, on the main road; says he waited there until half-past 10, then went on back to town, sure'n a boiled owl."

"It doesn't look exactly as if Sprague were afraid of anyone OUTSIDE OF THIS HOUSE last night, does it?" Dundee asked. "By the way, I suppose you've sent for everyone who was here?"

"Sure!" But again Captain Strawn looked uncomfortable. "But we haven't been able to locate the Beale girl and Clive Hammond."

CRIMSON TIDE DECISIVE IN 24-0 VICTORY

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 2.—Alabama's Crimson Tide rolled up alongside of Notre Dame today to take its place as one of the two greatest football teams of the 1930 season.

By scoring a smashing 24 to 0 victory over Washington State, hitherto unbeaten far western champions, in the sixteenth annual tournament of roses game New Year's day, Alabama registered its tenth consecutive victory and the triumph marked the fourth time in six years southern teams have played in Rose Bowl without defeat. Alabama has hung up two victories, and played one tie, while Georgia Tech scored the other win.

Three sudden, spectacular touchdowns in quick succession within ten minutes of play gave Alabama the second most decisive victory in tournament of roses history. Three touchdowns, three kicked goals in the second period and a 32 yard field goal in the third period pulled up Alabama's 24 points. Only Southern California's 47 to 14 victory over Pittsburgh last year exceed Alabama's margin of victory.

All of the touchdowns came with dramatic suddenness which left the crowd of 65,000 almost gasping for breath. The Crimson Tide was on the ebb until two minutes after the start of the second period when the southerners put over the first touchdown in a series of three rapid fire scores.

Started Seconds
Wallace Wade, the enigmatic southern coach who closed his eight year career at Alabama with this game, started a second string lineup which was unable to hold its own with Washington State.

After 11 minutes of the first period, Wade, who takes over the coaching job at Duke next season, released his regulars, but it was not until early in the second period that the southern cyclone struck with blinding fury.

A 55 yard punt by Johnny (Hurry) Cain, paved the way for the Crimson Tide's first score.

Alabama got the return punt on its own 40 yard line. Flash Suther failed to gain, and then a five yard penalty set the southerners back to their own 35 yard line. Suther gained three yards, and then the bottom dropped out of the Washington State defense which had rolled back every attempt of the Crimson Tide up to this point.

A double pass was executed flawlessly with Monk Campbell handing the ball to Jimmy Moore, who faded behind the line and threw a 30 yard pass far down the field.

First Touchdown
Running full speed ahead, Suther caught the pass and ran 32 yards to the Crimson Tide's first touchdown. The pass gained 62 yards in all.

Two minutes later, Alabama had another touchdown. Capt. Charles (Foots) Clement, Alabama tackle who wears a No. 14 shoe, plucked a Washington State pass out of the air and was downed on the Cougars' 33 yard line.

Shifty little Monk Campbell, who was the greatest ground gainer of the day with 110 yards in 11 plays, picked up six yards on a spinner. Then Jimmy Moore dropped back from the line for another pass, and threw the ball 30 yards to Ben Smith, Alabama's other end, who caught the ball with two Washington State men on top of him. He was downed on Washington State's one yard line.

It took just one play for Monk Campbell to pierce center for Alabama's second touchdown.

Campbell Scores
After the kickoff Alabama got the ball on its own 47 yard line on a punt. Campbell ripped off 9½ yards, but another of those long passes by Moore was incomplete. On third down with half a yard to go, Campbell slipped through the right side of Washington State's line, and ran into the clutches of three tacklers. He pivoted, eluded their grasp, and raced 42 yards down the field for his team's third startling touchdown. Each time Campbell place kicked goal.

A 35 yard run by Hillman Holley, Alabama's substitute quarterback, ended the southerners' scoreless field goal after eight minutes of play in the third period. "Ears" Whitworth, substitute Alabama guard, place kicked the field goal from Washington State's 32 yard line.

The longest march of the day—76 yards in ten plays—was staged by Washington State in the fourth period and fizzled out when Elmer (The Great) Schwartz, Cougars' captain, fumbled on Alabama's 5 yard line and Fred Sington, Crimson Tide tackle, recovered the ball.

Alabama outgained Washington State 300 yards to 191, the southerners making 201 yards on running plays and 99 yards on three passes completed out of 10 attempted. Washington State made 144 yards on running plays, and 47 yards on four passes out of 15 attempted.

Southwest Team Defeats Mid-West

DALLAS, Jan. 2.—Gates at Ownby stadium at S. M. U. were today, dull reminders that the gridiron season in the southwest was ended, climaxed Thursday by the football classic of Dixieland.

But on campuses, streets and corridors the battle in which the Southwest triumphed over the Mid-westerners 13 to 0 was re-fought, today, the names of Hackman, Bethea, McIlroy and Jenvold having become familiar terms to Texas fandom.

It was a superior brand of football the Southwest team flashed at Ownby stadium Thursday, featured by speedy runs, accurate passes, and sensational blocking, throughout the afternoon the gold-shirted South-westerners were the aggressors in the fray as they hurled, plunged, and zigzagged their way to three touchdowns.

And if 18 points were not sufficient proof of superiority, Southwest fans today pointed to the gold-shirts' 13 first downs to 4 for the Midwest eleven, and remembered the Southwest completed 9 out of 14 passes attempted, with none intercepted. The Middlewest completed only 2 out of 11, while 4 fell into enemy hands.

50,000 'BAMANS MAY BE RIGHT ABOUT "TIDE"

By HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The more you read the reports of that Rose Bowl game the more you are forced to admit that maybe those 50,000 plus southerners were right, after all.

The 50,000-plus southerners, it will be remembered, have been arguing all along that though Notre Dame had one sweet football team, the Irish were not one whit better than the red elephants, as the Alabama boys are known in the red-clay country.

Notre Dame swept through a ten-game schedule without a setback. So did Alabama. Notre Dame's outstanding performance was a 27 to 0 victory over Southern California. Alabama's big moment was a 24 to 0 defeat of Washington State—the team that whipped Southern California 7 to 6.

One might say Notre Dame's ten games were with much stronger teams than those played by Alabama. Maybe so, but there is plenty of room for argument there. In our opinion the two schedules are a toss-up. Here they are:

Alabama	Howard
Notre Dame	Mississippi
Southern Methodist	Sewanee
Navy	Tennessee
Carnegie Tech.	Vanderbilt
Pittsburgh	Pennsylvania
Indiana	Kentucky
Pennsylvania	Florida
Florida	Northwestern
Louisiana	Georgia
Army	Washington State
U. S. C.

Which is stronger? Team against team, which is the strongest? Let's state them in order and one at a time.

S. M. U., to our way of thinking, was better than Howard; Navy, better than Mississippi, and Carnegie Tech better than Sewanee. Three points for Notre Dame.

Here come four points, however, for Alabama. Tennessee over Pittsburgh; Vanderbilt over Indiana; Kentucky over Pennsylvania, and Florida over Drake. Continuing:

Northwestern was better than Louisiana and Army a shade better than Georgia; giving Notre Dame five schedule points against four for Alabama. Then comes Southern California against Washington State and as the Cougars whipped the Trojans Alabama gets a point here and the two schedules are a stand-off.

Alabama supporters in making a case for their team would have you remember that Notre Dame, because of its proximity to Chicago, gets a running start over Alabama in the matter of publicity. And publicity, they point out, has yet to spoil a good team's chances of being rated as great.

Also, they argue, this country has become afflicted with a Knute Rockne-Notre Dame complex. That is, to your average football fan, football and Notre Dame are synonymous, and your A. F. F. is willing to concede the Irish the National championship before the season is more than started.

Sunoco Team to Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 2.—The Sunoco Oilers of Dallas, Texas, national girls' champions, meet the Kansas City Criterion team in the first of a two-game basketball series here tonight.

The Sunoco team arrived here early today, and had a light workout scheduled for this afternoon. An hour's drill rounded out the Criterion's preparation for the clash yesterday.

The Criterion held the Oilers to the smallest score on their 1929 record. Dorothy Worrell and Bernice Fitzwater, Criterion guards who played a big part in that game, will be back at their positions tonight and tomorrow night.

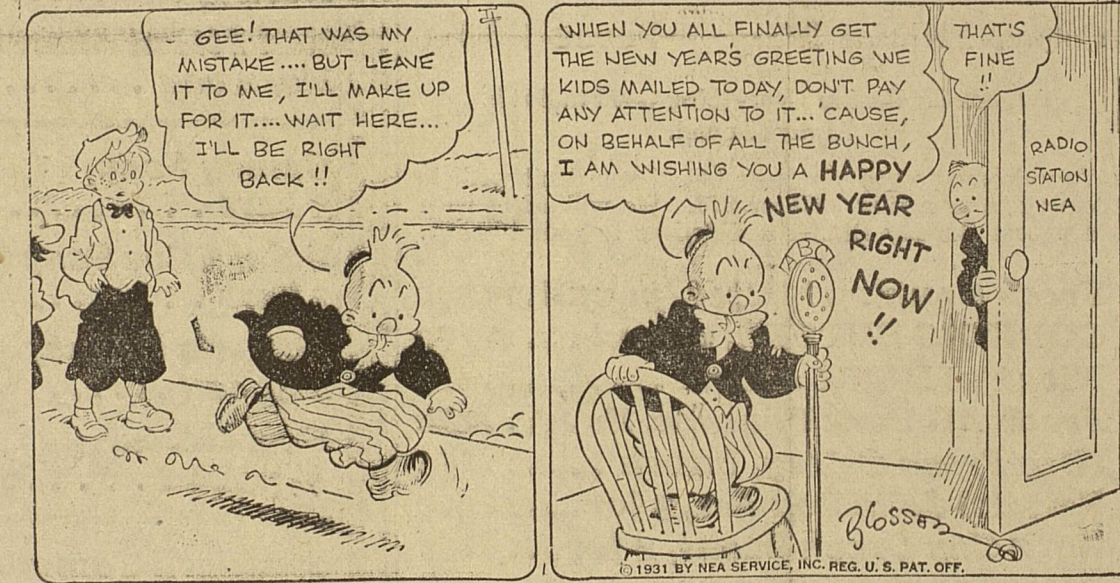

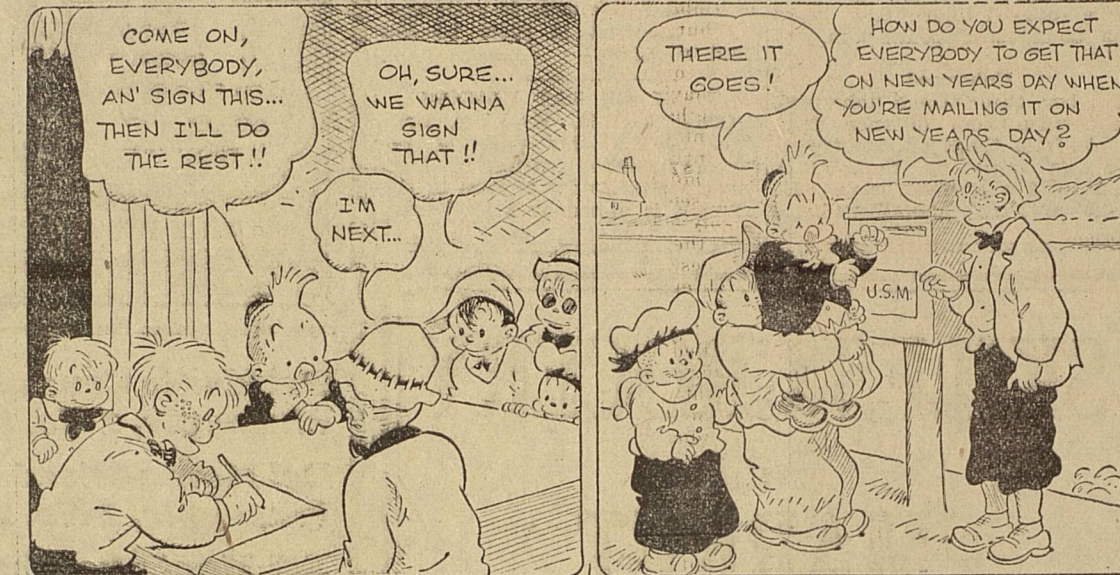

Last year the Criterion sextet won 23 consecutive games.

Perry's Doesn't Find Times Hard

"Where is all this money coming from?" asked L. R. Adams, manager of the local Perry Brothers store, this morning. "Christmas eve my business was $100 more than double what it was the preceding Christmas eve and yesterday our business showed a handsome gain over New Year's day in 1930. In spite of this talk of hard times I am certainly pleased over the business outlook for our store here."

Good merchandising principles, which include consistent newspaper advertising pays, Mr. Adams has been advertising in the Daily News and Cisco American and Roundup this past year and finds that it has brought him very satisfactory results.

It may be said in passing that Mr. Adams uses aggressive modern merchandising principles every day in the conduct of his store. A live merchant will always find his newspaper advertising paying big dividends.

Smiling Bandit

either as the bandit. Chief Miller, Constable R. L. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Greer and Miss Hutton went to Abilene about midnight to view the suspects who were taken by Abilene police immediately after they had been notified of the robbery here.

Another man arrested by Officer Gustafson at the Ideal theater on suspicion shortly before the Palace robbery was being held at the local jail. Although the police have little evidence to establish connection between the man's suspicious actions at the Ideal about 8:45 o'clock last night and the Palace robbery, Chief Miller said that he would be held.

This man's actions at the Ideal were similar to those of the successful bandit at the Palace. Mrs. Greer was in the booth. He came into the lobby and knocked at the door at the rear of the ticket booth. Mrs. Greer told him to come to the front. He did so but made no move to rob her. Instead he claimed to be "broke" after having been robbed in Oklahoma and requested to be passed into the show. He said his home is in Hamilton, Ohio, and that he had a room at a local hotel. Mrs. Greer allowed him to enter the show and notified the police immediately. Neither money nor gun were found on him. A check of local hotels, however, failed to reveal the name given by the man.

George Brinkley, colored janitor at the theater who sleeps in the building, told Manager Greer this morning that two or more men pounded on the side door and later at the rear door of the theater about 2 o'clock this morning. He said he attempted to notify the police but was unable to arouse the telephone operator. The men later left.

Last night was the second time in two years that the Palace theater has been robbed. Knob-knockers obtained $400 from the office safe the previous time.

The bandit of last night was of average height and would have weighed in the neighborhood of 165 or 170 pounds. Mrs. Greer said.

Miss Marie Glenn was the guest of friends in Abilene yesterday.

Mrs. Jack Winfrey returned to her home in Ranger today after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Wingate.

ELECTIONS OF QUEENS SCORED BY EDUCATOR

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 2. — Condemning the over-organization of honorary and professional clubs and fraternities on the campus of the University of Oklahoma and deprecating queen elections as "pre-schoolish," President W. B. Bizzell recently outlined a plan to eliminate many of the useless organizations from the university and to abolish queens.

In deprecating the election of queens, he said, "In a university of this size and standing, queen elections are 'amateurish' and 'pre-schoolish' and should be eliminated."

His plan of eliminating many of the purposeless and meaningless clubs provides for the appointment of a committee whose duty it will be to make a thorough survey of the purposes of honorary clubs.

A survey of professional and honorary clubs and fraternities on the campus in 1929 showed that there were 104 such organizations in existence. Between 10 and 15 more have been formed since then.

The Pan-Hellenic council voted to go on record as disapproving of queen contests. It was pointed out at the time that too many queen elections tended to cheapen such honors and make them worthless.

KIDNAPED BOY SAFE AT HIS HOME TODAY

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 2. — An elderly negro real estate dealer told in police headquarters today how he had bargained with the millionaire father of kidnaped Adolphus Busch Orthwein, and brought about release of the 13 year old boy on promise that his own son, the kidnaper, would not be prosecuted.

The realtor, Pearl Abernethy, arrested for questioning said that through "powers of intuition and putting two and two together" he learned his son, Charles, 28, had kidnaped Adolphus New Year's eve. A police search for the son failed immediately. The small house where he lived with his wife and seven children, was found deserted, with all personal belonging gone.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2. — Thirteen year-old Adolphus Busch Orthwein, grandson of August A. Busch, head of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer, was safe in the hands of his parents today, after his release by his abductor yesterday after being missing 20 hours.

The return of the boy, found standing on the highway near the home of his grandfather yesterday afternoon, came as sudden as his disappearance near his home New Year's eve. The boy was kidnaped by a man who stopped the Orthwein car and forced the chauffeur to get out and then drove away with the boy.

Harry Troll, the family attorney, admitted that negotiations with the kidnaper had been under way during most of the day yesterday, but said no ransom money was paid. It was understood that the Orthwein family received their first word from the kidnaper about 1 p. m. yesterday.

Unharmed

The boy, cheerful and unharmed, was found a short distance from Grant's farm, the Busch country estate once owned by Gen. U. S. Grant, at 3 o'clock yesterday. He was taken to his grandfather's home where no one was allowed to see him. Later he was taken to the parents home where he related the story of the kidnaping. The family attorney, however, refused to allow the boy to answer questions concerning his release.

After substantiating the story told by the family chauffeur, Roy Yowell, that a man had forced them to stop the car and then drove away the boy told of his later experiences.

"I don't know whether he was a negro or a white man," the boy said, "and I couldn't identify the man. When we drove away he kept his coat up around his face so I couldn't see. We drove south about five miles and then turned around and came back past where the kidnaper first stopped us and went on north for about five miles. Then we turned again and drove until we came to a parked car.

"The man told me to get out of our car and into the other one. Then he made me get down on the floor. He started to drive and finally we stopped in front of a house. We stayed out in front and talked before he made me go into the house. Then we went inside and he made me lie down on some chairs and put a blanket over me so I couldn't see. I saw the man in the house but he had a hood over his head then."

Resignations Are Accepted by Board

AUSTIN, Jan. 2.—The resignations of A. W. Taber, superintendent, of Dr. C. H. Hairston, physician, and of H. S. Lawson, storekeeper of the state confederate home here, were accepted today the state board of control announced.

The resignations have been with the board for many weeks. They were filed practically coincident with a report of Moore Lynn, state auditor and efficiency expert, criticizing the home management.

At the recent state convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy resolutions were adopted by acclaim praising superintendent Taber and expressing confidence in him despite Lynn's criticism.
