BREAKFAST AT POOL WILL BE NEXT MEETING

The Cisco Boosters have been accepted as a member club of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Texas, it was announced Saturday by Johnny Cox, president of the local organization.

Announcement of the Cisco club's acceptance came in the current issue of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce Bulletin, published at San Antonio. Hottest Day The re-storm followed the hottest day of the year thus far, when the mercury crept up to 106 Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Sweetwater reported a temperature of 108 degrees Friday.

Some damage to streets was reported, due to sand and gravel being washed across pavements in the heavy downpour. There appeared to be little rain east of Cisco, and it was said to have been in spots south of here.

At Cross Plains a tornado followed the heat Friday and cut a path through the town, ripping roofs from houses, smashing plate glass, and uprooting trees. Damage was estimated at several thousand dollars.

No rain fell here during the Cross Plains storm. The rainfall of Saturday morning, however, boosted the year's total to 23.2 inches, more than the precipitation for all of 1934.

Keep Cows Off Of Campus, Says Board

You may like your milk from contented cows, but your cow must find her contentment somewhere besides on school property.

Members of the school board Saturday asked citizens to keep their cows from grazing on the school grounds or on the athletic fields. Much work has recently been done in landscaping school campuses, it was pointed out, and the board is anxious to keep them in good condition.

If cattle continue to graze on school property, it was said, some action will have to be taken toward impounding them.

WALMSLEY TO FIGHT OUSTER BY KINGFISH

NEW ORLEANS, July 13. — Mayor T. Sinus Walmesley, scorn of power and deserted by his party, today defied Senator Huey P. Long to crush the last barricade in all Louisiana against his march to complete dictatorship. The barricade was the mayor's office desk, a piece of furniture behind which Walmesley embattled himself against preparations of his own party to throw him out.

"I'll stick from hell to breakfast," he shouted. But Long, in his hotel suite a few blocks away, was jubilant at the fall of New Orleans.

Virtually starved into submission, 13 ward leaders of the "old regular" machine which elected Walmesley on an Anti-Long ticket, visited the Kingfish in his hotel last night and offered to surrender on his own terms.

They informed Walmesley that they would meet Monday to "accept" his resignation. If, as is expected, they don't receive it, they intend to call a mass meeting to ask Long's legislature to oust Walmesley.

CITIES OF THIS AREA TO HAVE SPECIAL DAYS AT LAKE CISCO WITH FREE SWIMS FURNISHED; IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE AT POOL

Special days will be set aside for various cities of this territory for celebrations at the Lake Cisco swimming pool, it was announced Saturday. Free swims will be given to residents to the towns on those days.

The move is being made to bring more people here for swims and outings of various sorts, it was said. Programs will be left up to the cities themselves.

The special days will begin some time this week, according to Lloyd Hughes, manager of the Lake Cisco Amusement company. Business men of the various cities will be given an opportunity to cooperate in the plan to bring outings here, it was said, by distributing free swim tickets to their customers.

The special days are a part of a movement designed to make Lake Cisco a resort known over the entire state and even beyond. A meeting of the amusement company was held Friday night, at which time the special days for the towns of this area were decided upon. Dates for each will be announced later.

The company is making a number of improvements at the pool, it was announced. More sand is being moved to the shores, and the island, making a beach effect more pronounced, and giving the boys and girls and the grown-ups boys and girls as well a place to play.

In an effort to give better music and to provide better facilities for concerts, the company is installing a new sound system. That installed for the July 4, holiday was a temporary arrangement, it was said, and a better system is to be placed at the pool before long.

New steel steps from the rim of the pool into the water at various places are to be installed. It was pointed out that this would aid to the safety and the general appearance of the swimming pool.

The management is hoping to build up the number coming here to dances by bringing the best orchestras of the country here, it was said. Bernie Cummings and his New Yorkers will play for a dance at the improved pavilion the evening of July 22.

Loobes To Play In Humble Uniforms

The Humble softball club, which this week dropped out of the city league, has donated its uniforms to the Loobes, it was announced Saturday.

The Loobes, "orphans" of the league in that they had no business firm sponsoring them, have been without uniforms. They will appear in the Humble jerseys this week. G. B. Langston is manager of the club.

Humble withdrew from the loop due to the fact that the team was made up of men who were working out of Cisco and are away much of the time.

MORE THAN 150 ATTEND CAMP BILLY GIBBONS

CAMP BILLY GIBBONS, July 13. — Over 150 scouts and leaders are attending the first period of the 1935 Camp Billy Gibbons encampment of the Comanche Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, located on the Brady Creek south of Richland Springs, this week. The first period will close with breakfast Tuesday, and the second week period will start at noon the following day.

"I understand that there will not be anything very definite as yet," he said.

"Of course the Cross Plains road job would call for someone to be in Austin pushing the project, but we don't want to ask for an appropriation for it until the present relocation work is out of the way. By not making this trip, I believe we can possibly cut expenses a little and go at the time when we could do more good," he said.

"I am glad to see that there may be a little more latitude as to the appropriations for the road projects," he added.

Cisco boys at the camp are Kessler Thomas, Jack Lauderdale, Mack McGowan, Otis Lomax, Bill Wallace, Charles Yates, Frank Yarger, James Watters, J. C. Paschall, Cecil Edwards, Ewalt Horne, Don Robinson, Jack Hunter, Earl Martin, Jack Martin, Frank Turner, Robert Donavan, Phil McCannles, Harry Gray, Jimmy Rominger, Robert Waters, Lee Smith, J. B. Gaining Trade Through Education

The relation of education to trade has often been overlooked in the past, but there is a definite relation, just the same.

There is an old saying in international politics and economics that "trade follows the flag," or a small country trades with the nation whose language it speaks. The same is true of local trade. It "follows the flag" of its interest, due to education or something else.

Cisco has been overlooking an important method of gaining and holding trade in the past, one which should be overlooked no longer. The Cisco public school system offers one of the best drawing cards which it would be possible to use in bringing more trade here and in holding it after it comes.

There are a number of small communities within this trade territory which could benefit both to themselves and to the city by making use of the Cisco schools. Many of these communities have no high school facilities and others are forced, by lack of funds, to offer very meager high school instruction. Some of the boys and girls from these surrounding districts come to Cisco to school, the public schools here being paid the regular $7.50 a month tuition. Others are forced to attend their small high schools and still others to drop out entirely.

By running busses out to the small districts and picking up the boys and girls of the high school grades, Cisco would be offering them a better secondary education than they could possibly gain in their own communities. By adding more pupils the schools, at the same time, would be able to increase their efficiency both to the newcomers and to their old ones, due to increased revenues.

This is definitely not an attempt to tear down the small communities. They have their value and probably will continue to do so. In many cases they can operate very successful grade schools. But, with only a few pupils and limited revenue, they cannot hope to maintain a high school, and an attempt to divert sufficient funds, with high school costs higher than the others, would be unfair to the grade school children.

This is an attempt to give the country community boy and girl an equal chance for as good a public school education as his city friend.

At the same time, the bringing of high school students to Cisco by bus would center the interest of residents of the communities upon the city. Remember that a man trades where his interest lies.

Other places are beginning to send busses out for students and if Cisco does not build up such a program, gradually the small communities near here will be pulled away through interest in schools elsewhere. Even if there were some expense attached, it might be worth attempting such a plan from a trade viewpoint alone, not to mention the service the city could furnish the boys and girls. But the expense would be taken care of by the state transportation fee of $2 a month per capita.

At present there are busses going out to the Dothan and Sandy districts, bringing in pupils, but there are half a

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—"When the electrical industry makes a real fight," said a powerful Southern public utilities magnate in a letter recently received by an official here, "it can command more influence than the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor and a dozen other organizations besides."

That boast was put to a dramatic test in the industry's fight against the Roosevelt public utilities bill in the House.

For the "power trust" was frantic. Its lobbyists wouldn't stand still to be counted, but there seemed no reason to doubt a commonly accepted estimate that it had assembled between 500 and 600 of them to work upon doubtful members with every device known to the lobbyist's art.

Lawyers, power company officials, bankers, and others had been brought in from nearly every state to hear down on representatives from their home districts.

An unconvinced congressman could be rather sure of suffocation within a few hours under bags of telegrams from constituents. Back went the word from Washington to turn the heat on him.

EARLY in the morning of the biggest day of debate, a small, grim group sat in an office high in the RFC building. Chief figures there were young Tom Corcoran, brilliant, tireless, fast-working, and Ben Cohen, tall, drawing, philosophical—and in some respects the outstanding legal expert of the New Deal.

These two were co-authors of the securities, stock market and holding company bill. Disciples of Dr. Felix Frankfurter and Justice Brandeis, they entered the New Deal after some years of inside experience in Wall Street.

THE group of young New Dealers—between a shower of telephone calls on two or three phones—were receiving their orders of the day.

Crisis had arrived. Administration leaders had virtually deserted the president, after a conservative coalition on Rayburn's committee, led by Democrats Huddleston of Alabama and Pettengill of Indiana, had knocked out the provision requiring dissolution of holding company control.

The bill was really drafted as an "emancipation proclamation" which freed local power companies from rule by a few men in New York and turned back the management which so that operating companies might run themselves again while holding companies, functioning as investment trusts and divorced from management, might go on holding investments in any number of companies.

Perhaps a few wavering congressmen might still be convinced of this. So saying, the young New Dealers marched toward Capitol Hill for the final death struggle. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

dozen or more other districts which might well be persuaded to send in their pupils for high school purposes.

The school officials have worked over a period of years to bring in more pupils and have succeeded in doing so to a certain extent. It is now up to the business man, who will profit from increased trade, to get behind the program and push. Offer the country boy and girl a better education; build up the Cisco schools; promote trade interests in the movement.

Messiah Johnson Predicts Clash

General Hugh S. Johnson is the chief of the New York city relief work and former head of the NRA. He dearly loves to pose as a prophet of the future. His latest is that there will be "a headon collision over the constitutional issue in the 1936 election if conditions continue." As to the results of the clash, he said, "It might be a catastrophe." General Johnson is a soldier, a West Pointer, a hard headed and a hard hitting son of Mars. He is honest, he is sincere, he never runs away from a fight, but why should he fear the future?

The constitution of the United States is not like the laws of the Medes and the Persians. Patriots who made the constitution provided the way for amendments to the sacred document. They made the people, speaking through their legislatures, the masters of the situation and placed ballots in their hands to make and unmake constitutions and laws. Woodrow Wilson had a favorite motto: "Let the people rule." What happened to Wilson is ancient history. He was responsible for the League of Nations and the senate of the United States refused to ratify the league, just as the senate refused to ratify the World Court. In other words the majority ruled and the minority bowed "to the will of the majority."

LETTERS FROM READERS

To the Editor:

I wish to speak a few words through your paper concerning the election of August 24. There are several issues involved that need careful study, but I wish to speak about the repeal amendment.

A thought for today, Proverb 20-1: "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging. Whoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Dear friends, let us not be in that class. The liquor traffic is trying to deceive every one possible on this issue. They would have us believe that prohibition has failed and they make flowery promises, but let us remember the promises made when they were asking us to repeal national prohibition. Have they kept any of them? No, not one. Nor do they intend to keep the ones they now make. They would deceive us in the voiding of the amendment.

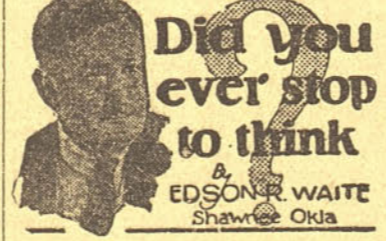

They say that repeal will restore local option and forever bar the saloon. Be not deceived, dear voter. Who is to define a saloon? Did they not tell us that we would have no saloons by national repeal? But what have we? Saloons worse and more of it. The old saloon was so marked and no women or children were permitted to enter. The modern saloon seeks the most attractive girls as bartenders and not only permits but encourage women and children to patronize them.

May God help us as intelligent people to think seriously, to pray and to vote and use our influence in a way that will honor Him and be to the best interest of the rising generation.

"Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink." If we vote to legalize the sale of liquor will we not be guilty before God? Will we be responsible in our boys and girls fill drunkards graves? They say they are going to have whiskey any way and we had just as well say they are going to steal anyway. But we had better lessen it and get the revenue. Might as well repeal all laws because none of them can be enforced. In Joel 3-3 we read "They have given a boy for an harlot and sold a girl for wine that they might drink." Are we willing that our boys and girls be sold in shame for a few paltry dollars in revenue? Not me. Lovingly submitted for Christ and humanity.

REV. W. R. IVIE.

Cities complete in the race of Progress and Development.

A city that thinks itself a live one should aim to have no superiors and few equals in its section of the country.

A whole lot of cities need boosting, both from within and without. Those within should advertise it; tell the world of the resources and opportunities to be found there. If they do, they will attract favorable attention, which will cause those without to boost also.

Every city has a few timorous souls who have a constant fear for the future of the home city. They should take courage from their live neighbors who with determination and dogged efforts have made it what it is today.

The live, progressive citizens are those who realize "Where there is a will there is a way," and find the way to see that the home city makes no halt in the March of Progress and Development.

Cities suffering with lack of ambition are in a bad way, indeed. They need the services of Dr. Optimist and large doses of his medicine.

SUN-TAN

It was as if they had danced together countless evenings. Jo followed his steps instinctively.

Bowl's excellent cuisine. She found that, contrary to her first impression, most of Marsh's travels had been business trips, looking after the interests his father had left him—and not glad about voyages calculated to smother boredom.

He had most recently been in Mexico, looking after petroleum interests which concerned his estate. "That must be where he got that beautiful tan," Jo thought, "and not on some exclusive beach, doing nothing at all." And he told her, too, of his stay in the little kingdom of Nepal, where he had been a guest of the Maharajah. It seemed that old Aaron Marsh had once sold the Maharajah a little railroad which was used by the Maharajah and nobody else. Marsh told about it, wittily.

He told, too, about his adventures with sly Bolivian congressmen who pretended to be looking out for the Marsh interests in productive lands while at the same time trying to flitch those lands for the Bolivian government concessions—so they could sell them to somebody else!

By the time the dessert and delatasse arrived Jo felt that she had been taken swiftly around the most romantic places of the world. Not the tourist-infested spots of the guide books, but the out-of-the-way principalities and kingdoms and republics.

"You don't seem to have stayed anywhere long enough to sleep and intelligent. I think you might enjoy it for the summer."

For a moment Jo couldn't answer; and then she managed a question. "Do you really think I—I could do it?"

"I know you could do it. It would simply mean being charming—which you do naturally. If I weren't making you a business proposition, I should say that you are charming, naturally." He held out his cigarette case open. "My mother is down there, but," he laughed, "she'd talk very positively at being a hostess. And I must confess she's not the most tactful person in the world. I've understood that people refer to her as 'eccentric.' But you'd get along fine, I'm sure. What do you say?"

"Why, I hardly know what to say," Joan admitted.

"Say you'll take the position. It's worth a fairly decent salary. Let's say $300 a month. I'll insist on taking care of the wardrobe you'll need, and of course your rooms and board at the inn will cost you nothing."

AND now Jo was speechless in earnest. Three hundred a month—three hundred clear, with nothing out for food and clothes! That would mean she could help her mother and father, support herself, and have a thoroughly delightful summer in enviable surroundings.

"I'll fix it up with Brown," Marsh was assuring her. "He'll probably be angry with me for taking away the most efficient and attractive office girl he's ever had—but I'll soothe him somehow."

"It's not that," Jo said. "I've only been there one day, and I'm afraid I'm not very good at the work. But—"

"But what?"

"Well, it just seems too good to be true. It almost makes me afraid."

Marsh laughed. "Perhaps I can think up some terrible disadvantages. Would you like me to tell you that I'll insist on your scrubbing the kitchen floor every morning? It's a huge kitchen. As big as this dance floor." He grew sud- denly serious again. "Please say you'll come. You're just the kind of girl I want for the place."

Slowly Jo Darlen nodded. "All right . . . I'll come."

"Fine! I'll telephone Brown tomorrow morning. You won't even need to report for work. I'd like to have you spend tomorrow getting whatever clothes you'll need. Just buy what you like and charge them to me. It's quite all right. Part of the job you'll have to do. You'll need bathing outfits, sport clothes, and some dinner and evening things." He glanced at Jo admiringly. "You've excellent taste. I'll leave everything to you."

"Why, I—" Jo began.

"Well, I saw the clothes belong to Crest Lake, Incorporated. If that'll make you feel better," Marsh laughed.

"It really would," Jo confessed. "I was taught it isn't nice to accept such things from men."

The orchestra leader at the microphone announced the final dance of the evening, and Marsh glanced at Jo. Smiling, she rose from her place and drifted out on the dance floor in his arms. Suddenly a familiar voice sounded in her ears.

"Well, well! Hello, there, Jo Darlen!"

It was Babs Montgomery. Jo knew that if Babs happened to see Bret Paul tomorrow she'd be certain to mention casually where and with whom she'd seen Jo. (To Be Continued)

MISSION CHAIN GIVES UP LOST LINK IN WEST

By HENRY SUPER. United Press Staff Correspondent. BERKELEY, Cal., July 13 — A complete chain of old, forgotten Spanish missions, swallowed up by the desert generations ago, has been rediscovered by the University of California.

The missions once were bustling and bustling outposts of Spanish civilization and defense in the New World. Today nothing remains but a jumble of week-eked ruins in Lower California.

The Dominican Friars reared the missions along the coastal wastes of Lower California at the same time that the Franciscan monks were constructing their chain along what is now the coast of the state of California.

Lost Link Discovered. The Lower California group, unearthed by a University of California graduate student, once linked the Franciscan chain to the north, and the Jesuit chain to the south in one unbroken chain that extended for more than 1,200 miles through the two Californias.

Seven Original Missions. Several Missions, graduates of the class of 1925, lived among a tribe of Indians for some time and spent several years exploring the region before completing his work of recording and relocation. He has detailed the history of the old Dominican "Frontera" in a book recently published.

The original missions in the old chain numbered seven and covered an expanse of some 200 miles. Three were removed to new sites because of failure of the water supply and pestilence.

Desonzo, next to the last mission built in the chain, was less than 50 miles from San Diego. The others were El Rosario, the southernmost mission, Santo Domingo, San Vicente, San Miguel, Santo Tomas and Guadalupe. In addition, two more missions, San Pedro Martir and Santa Catalina, were reared in the hinterland east of this original chain in the attempt to establish a new chain reaching to the Colorado river.

But this attempt was abandoned because of the Indian attacks and sterile character of the land.

Garrisoned by Spanish. Certain of the missions were given garrisons of Spanish troops, and were evidently intended, along with the Franciscan Missions, to form a strong line of defense for the Spanish occupancy of the California. But, because of declining population, semi-isolation from Mexico, pestilence, revolution and robbery, the Dominican Missions enjoyed a life of only 50 years. Epidemic swept through as many as four missions at a time. Marauding bands, bound for the gold fields of the north, robbed them of their treasure. All of them had been sold or granted to private individuals before 1859. They have long since become one of the dead spots in history, although they have played a heroic part in the annals of the Mexican nation.

New Schedule Is Made As Humble Drops Out of League

ONLY 4 TEAMS LEFT IN LOOP SECOND HALF

Withdrawal of Humble from the City Softball league for the second half of the season leaves only four clubs in the circuit and has necessitated arranging a new schedule for the rest of the summer, according to Rex Page, league president, Saturday.

Games already played this half will be counted only as practice games, Page said.

The four clubs left in the race for the second half season title are Garner's, Nance, Community, and Loboes.

The new schedule, which will begin this week and close Aug. 22, will bring together Nance and Garner's Monday night. Garner's will return to play Tuesday to take on the Community club, which, in turn, will play the Loboes Friday night.

Garner's won the first half season title and will be out to hold the prestige already established—a perfect record of all-wins—when the second half opens officially Monday night.

Following is the new schedule, as announced by President Page Saturday:

DUTCH GIRLS TO RIVAL SWIM STARS OF U. S.

United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME, July 13 — International swimming performances indicate that Holland and the United States will share major team honors in women's events in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin.

While one of these two countries undoubtedly will win the championship, individual titles are likely to be widely distributed.

In free style events, 100 and 400 meters and the 400 meters relay, the Argentine, Brazil, Canada, South Africa and Japan all have young women who will dispute forecast victories for Holland or United States representatives.

Lenore Kight in Top Flight
Among the fastest free style women swimmers today are Willy den Ouden, Holland; Olive McKean, Dolores Smith and Lenore Kight, United States; Jeanette Campbell, Helena Salles, Brazil; Kazue Kojima, Umeke Shriml, Yuki Arata and Hatsuko Morioka, Japan; Jennie Maakal, South Africa, and Phyllis Dewar, Canada.

Little pink-checked Willy den Ouden probably will be the lass to beat at Berlin in both the 100 and 400 meter events. She was second at Los Angeles in 1932 in the 100 meters and lost only by inches to Helene Madison. Miss den Ouden has the following times in free style events: 100 meters, 1:04.8

100 yards, 59.8; 200 meters, 2:28.5; 400 meters, 5:15; and 500 meters, 6:48.4. The latter mark broke the world's record of 6:59.8, held by Lenore Kight, United States.

Seattle Girl Outstanding
Olive McKean, Seattle, is generally regarded as the successor to the great Helene Madison. She has numerous national and world marks up for consideration, including 1:03.8 for 100 meters, Helene Madison's winning Olympic time at Los Angeles was 1:06.8. Dolores Smith, New York, is swimming in record time and improving steadily.

Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., second to Helene Madison in the 400 meters event at Los Angeles. She probably is better over the middle distance than in 100 meters. She has a time of 2:36.8 for 200 yards and recently swam 500 meters in 7:08.2 compared to Helene Madison's record of 7:22.6.

Jeanette Campbell and Phyllis Dewar occupy positions in Argentine and Canadian swimming comparable to that enjoyed in Holland by Willy den Ouden.

New Records Set
During the South American swimming championships held this spring in Rio de Janeiro, Miss Campbell established new records by winning the 100 meters in 1:08 and the 400 meters in 5:47.8. In the latter race she swam away from the field and flashed power and style which places her among the finest swimmers in the world.

On June 18 at Winnipeg, Phyllis Dewar, British Empire Games champion, won all Canadian freestyle events from 100 yards to one mile. She established new 100 and 440 yard records and swam the mile in 23:32.4.

Nora Johnson, Chile, is another promising South American swimmer. Miss Salles is national Brazilian 400 meters champion.

Japan Not So Strong
Hatsuko Morioka has a best time of 5:53 for 400 meters and 12:39 for 800 meters. Miss Kazue Jijima holds the Japanese record of 1:14.8 for 100 meters.

Defeating Holland in the women's relay probably will be the biggest task encountered by women's teams. The United States won the event at Los Angeles in 4:38. This year two Netherlands teams selected from Willy den Ouden, Reik Mastenbroek, Selback, A. Timmermans, T. Baumeister and G. Browers have times of 4:41.5 and 4:41.2 against weak opposition. At Los Angeles, Holland was second and Great Britain third.

Utility Slush Fund Sought by Probers

WASHINGTON, July 13 — Congressional lobby investigators, who drew surprise testimony of expenditure of $301,000 from the first utility witness, believed today that further investigation may disclose a huge "slush fund."

The senate investigating committee, speeding to catch up with the house inquiry, planned further questioning of utility witnesses.

The senate committee gave indication that it intends to push its inquiry vigorously.

French Parties In Bastille Day Clash

PARIS, July 13 — Members of the Solidarite Francaise clashed with socialists today in the first Bastille day demonstration.

Police dispersed the crowd, but the trouble started again a few blocks away. The disorders began with the Solidarite Francaise which was a Fascist tinge, placing a wreath at the Place Republique. In that and subsequent clashes police arrested four persons. Two were injured.

Community's Future Gas Supply is Assured!

How far can you see beyond your gas burner? This is an important question. It deserves your serious thought. Can you see hundreds of employes standing back of your local gas company ready for any emergency to keep your gas supply constantly ready, and delivering it to the burners of your appliances for immediate use? Can you see the extent of engineering talent which has developed the gas production of West Texas and kept your Gas Service up to the high Standard you require? Can you see many giant compressor stations boosting along your gas? Can you see 4,000 miles of pipe lines reaching out into 31 gas fields and tapping over a thousand gas wells?

If it were possible for your eye to follow a gas pipe from your burner to this inter-connected supply you would see this vast equipment, human and mechanical, being constantly coordinated and controlled to provide you with an unfailing Gas Service.

While Cisco customers of Community Natural Gas Company are served from local fields they are not entirely dependent upon this one source of supply. Standing behind this service is a system drawing upon THIRTY-ONE distinct Gas fields. Thus, Cisco homes on Community lines have a future Gas supply that is ASSURED!

Lion Ladies Night Takes Picnic Form Thursday Evening

A Lion Ladies night entertainment which took the form of a picnic and impromptu program rather than the customary formal affair and elaborate stilled schedule, was enjoyed Thursday night at the Country club grounds and building.

The entertainment committee made only one error, said the members, and that was in providing such a sumptuous feast such as boiled ham basted with pineapple, deviled eggs, potato chips, pickles, crystal wax onions potato salad, lunch meats, iced tea and ice cream as desert.

The program was informal and one tending to put everyone at ease. Treasure hunts, intelligence tests, impromptu speeches, song and humorous skits that had every one laughing, prevailed.

President E. L. Smith had charge of the preliminaries but turned the program over to Toastmaster Horace Condeley, who handled the fun part.

The women voted unanimously that they had been entertained royally and wanted these meetings more often.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sandler, Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Burnam, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Every employee and officer of this company is striving to promote welfare and that of the community at large by the application of sound business ethics and fair dealing. To deviate from this policy would be a violation of trust.

About Our Friends

There were so many people on the streets Saturday that we really couldn't see anyone we knew. However, some of his friends report that Hiram Brandon, popular principal of the high school, has a new pair of pigskin shoes.

Some one asked if Dick Lauderdale had another new car. "No, I just cleaned it up for him," said Ed Huestis, who never misses a chance to cash in on opportunities. We'll present him a bill for this free advertising next week, or some time. Robert Elliott, at Garner's also wants us to know that he has loud ties. W. J. Leach has also been cited to appear before City Attorney Grantham for unlawful advertising. (Trust that some serious minded individual won't take this seriously.) The first thing Wm. Reagan did when he returned from his visit to Oklahoma was to take an early morning swim at Lake Cisco. Of course he took baths while away.

SCHUSCHNIGG INJURED WHEN AUTO CRASHES

VIENNA, July 13—A mysterious accident, causing rumors of sabotage, today wrecked the automobile of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, killed his wife, and caused injuries to the chancellor, his son, and three other occupants of the machine. The confessed inability of authorities to explain the cause of the accident started rumors that sabotage or serious defects in the Schuschnigg automobile were responsible. Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice chancellor, returning to Vienna tonight by special plane, will be in active charge of the government during a long rest which an attending physician has ordered for the chancellor. The chancellor is a monarchist, favorable to restoration of the Hapsburg family, as represented by Archduke Otto, but the position of the Prince has been less definite in regard to the restoration. The chancellor's party was en route to a villa for a vacation when the automobile was wrecked on a bad stretch of road. The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Vienna reported today that Mrs. Schuschnigg, recently received a mourning outfit from an anonymous Austrian Nazi, with a note reading: "You may find these useful in the near future."

MORE TROOPS ARE CALLED TO STRIKE AREA

TACOMA, Wash., July 13—Governor Clarence Martin rushed National guard reinforcements here today after union lumber strikers and sympathizers, many of them women, battled militia men for five hours last night. Ninety soldiers mobilized at Olympia were sent to strengthen the first Battalion of the 161st Infantry stationed in the Tacoma industrial district to protect sawmill workers who quit the strike a week ago. Arrival of the reinforcements increased tension here. Many citizens are sympathetic toward the sawmill workers and timber men striking for recognition of their union and higher wages and resent the presence of the soldiers. At the height of last night's rioting, in which 300 steel-helmeted militiamen used arms and tear gas against nearly 1,000 demonstrators, injuring more than a score, a captain of police said, "If the soldiers would get out of Tacoma, we could send these people home peacefully in 15 minutes." Other officials had the same attitude.

Word has been received of the arrival of a baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Egger of Athens, Friday July 12. Mrs. Egger will be remembered in Cisco as Miss Ethel McCann, who was employed at the First National bank. Mr. Egger was an employe of Garner's. Mother and baby are in a hospital at Corsicana.

Judge P. A. Martin Choice of Allred

AUSTIN, July 13—Governor James Allred today said he will appoint District Judge P. A. Martin, Wichita Falls, to succeed Judge Hal Lattimore of the second court of civil appeals, Fort Worth. If Judge Lattimore's rumored resignation is received, Judge Martin has been district attorney and judge of two courts in Wichita Falls and is presiding judge for the judicial administrative district and a member of the judicial council.
