STATE CHARGE RIDICULED BY HIS COUNSEL

PAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 20.—Attorneys for Phil Kennamer demanded an outright acquittal for the Tulsa playboy today on the two pleas of insanity and self defense.

A Flint Moss, chief defense counsel, and Cunning courtroom strategist, ripped into the state's charge that Kennamer killed John Gorrell, Jr. in cold blood when he launched final defense argument.

Alternately suave and eloquent, Moss assailed the opening argument of the state, which charged that Kennamer sat in Gorrell's car, got his gun, and waited for him last Thanksgiving night.

"It has been definitely established by the state's own witnesses that John Gorrell was in his car when Kennamer got there," Moss thundered. "Nobody contradicts that."

"Phil got in the car a block and a half from the hospital," Moss emphasized the insanity plea which the state had just ridiculed.

PATMAN WILL CARRY BONUS BILL TO FLOOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The house inflation bonus bloc decided today to carry immediately to the floor the drive for early action on the $2,015,000,000 Patman bill.

The decision to try to array 218 members behind the administration-opposed bonus measure and force a house vote on March 11, came as inflation forces began lining up for action.

Rep. Wright Patman, dem., Texas, said he would file a petition in the house tomorrow to discharge the ways and means committee from further consideration of his bill. If the petition obtains 218 names, a vote will be assured March 11, regardless of whether the committee continued to delay consideration.

Baptists Here Form Church Brotherhood

Laymen of the First Baptist church Tuesday evening formed a Baptist Brotherhood at a meeting held in the basement of the church. W. F. Walker was elected president, E. J. Poe, vice president, and Frank Langston, secretary-treasurer.

Meetings are to be held the fourth Tuesday of each month. The president announced that he will appoint an executive committee at an early date.

FAGIN CHARGE IS DENIED BY STOIC INDIAN

FORT WORTH, Feb. 20.—Roy Perdue, hatchet-faced, part Indian, who has served two prison terms, today stolidly denied he was the Fagin who forced 16-year-old William Robertson to murder Eugene Kling, federal transient bureau typist in a robbery attempt.

Young Robertson, in a signed confession named Perdue as the master mind who planned the crime and threatened him unless he went through with it.

Through 20 hours of questioning, Perdue has maintained a stoic indifference to questioning of authenticity. He answers them in a contemptuous monotone.

Kling was found on the morning of Feb. 12, lying in a vacant lot, severely beaten. He died a short time later in a hospital.

Perdue has served terms in Oklahoma, for wounding a man during a card game and for slugging a prison guard in an escape.

HAS 200-YEAR-OLD WATCH
MEAFORD, Ont., Feb. 20.—Peter R. Dayey, watch-fancier, has a watch which is 200 years old, and keeps perfect time.

Testify For Kennamer

(NEA Service Photo) Love for Miss Virginia Wilcox, 19-year-old daughter of a Tulsa oil man, and a desire to protect her from an abduction plot have been given by Phil Kennamer, son of a federal judge, as the prime motive for Kennamer's slaying of John F. Gorrell, Jr., of Tulsa. Miss Wilcox and her brother, Homer P. Wilcox, Jr., are shown here in the Pawnee county courthouse shortly after leaving the witness stand, where they told their story of Kennamer's blind devotion and their slight knowledge of the abduction plot which Kennamer has said Gorrell originated.

Livestock Show, State Park, Tourist Advertising Are Topics At C. of C.

Discussions of the Cisco Livestock show, the proposed state park, and means of drawing tourists to Cisco featured the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors Tuesday evening.

The group agreed to decorate the livestock show to be held here March 8 and 9, but declined a proposal to decorate the streets of the city during the show. The secretary was empowered to make arrangements for the show decorations.

It was announced that J. M. Bird, general chairman of the livestock show committee, will name his sub-committees at an early date.

The Cisco organization agreed to join the Eastland and Ranger Chambers of Commerce in placing a large sign on the Bankhead highway west of Weatherford, where federal highway 89 leaves highway 80. The sign, 10 by 40 feet, and lighted at night, would point out the fact that the cut-off through the three Eastland county cities is a considerably shorter route than the other.

At the same time, plans were discussed for the publication of maps showing this shorter distance, to be distributed at cities along the Broadway of America. The plan also called for advertising of points of interest, such as Lake Cisco and its dam, and Old Rip, the famed horned frog in the courthouse at Eastland.

Action was taken following presentation of the play by Secretary Davis of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce. The chair was given authority to appoint a committee on the advertising project.

Mrs. Stephens Is Buried On Tuesday

Mrs. Stephens was born March 4, 1850, and had lived in Cisco for about 10 years.

Philatelist Will Dispose of Stamps

Eugene Lankford, Cisco philatelist, has announced that he is disposing of his stamp collection.

The collection is on display and for sale at Dean Drug company, he said.

COUNTY WILL FURNISH MAN FOR TERRACE

Farmers in the Cisco area today were promised more service in the running of terrace lines. Commissioner Arch Bint today said that the county would furnish a surveyor to aid the farmers in running their lines.

Names of all farmers wishing to have such lines were requested in the statement. Those wishing the service, to be paid for by the county, were asked to contact J. M. Bird, agriculture secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and vocational agriculture teacher, or to leave their names with the Daily News.

It was pointed out that the terracing season is short and that an early application is desirable.

The county recently purchased a terracing machine after the Cisco Boosters had raised money for another. These two machines, together with a third owned by the Cisco P. F. A. chapters, are to be used in the campaign sponsored by the Boosters to improve the land of the Cisco area by means of terraces.

It has been pointed out by Secretary Bird that the erosion of land in this section has taken a great deal of the potential wealth from agriculture away from here, and that the farmers can improve their land for the present and the future by terracing it.

Bird pointed out that water erosion, wind erosion, and one-crop farming have damaged the land, and that terracing is the first step to be taken in rectifying this condition.

CISCO NEGRO GETS 5 YEARS FOR ASSAULT

EASTLAND, Feb. 20.—Frank Allen, Cisco negro, was convicted late Tuesday afternoon in 91st district court of attempted attack on Mary Kertesz, transient girl from Hammond, Ind., near Cisco Jan. 25 and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Jurors were given the case at approximately 2:45 after heated arguments of District Criminal Attorney Grady Owen and Defense Counsel Milton Lawrence. They reported at about 4:45 p. m.

Testimony presented by the state the two days was highlighted by that of Mary Kertesz, the transient girl. Her brother, Joe, and companion, Dewey Ball, testified of the negro's holding the girl at pistol point for six hours near railroad yards Friday, January 25.

Although Mary Kertesz and her brother, Joe, possessed together about $14.00, they admitted it had not been taken from them.

Testimony of Ball and the transient boy revealed they did not know whether Allen attempted to attack the girl. During testimony of Joe Kertesz once he admitted that if he thought anything of that nature happened he would have rushed in on the negro while he and his sister were behind brush, notwithstanding the negro's possession of a gun.

Allen testified Tuesday Mary Kertesz told him she "would do anything he wanted if he would give her the gun," adding that he did not know what she meant.

Joe Kertesz, her brother, testified under interrogation of Milton Lawrence, attorney for the defendant, he did not hear his sister tell Allen, "a man's a man in the north—regardless of color."

Oscar Wilson headed the jury of Norman Gray, E. L. Amis, Brelsford, Jr., H. C. Overbey, R. B. Brawley, V. H. Carter, J. L. Chance, R. E. Hardwick, Edgar Harris, M. H. Parrish and Alvin Stroebel.

F. F. A. Chapter To Have Chili Supper

Fathers of the Future Farmers will be guests at the supper.

Wife on High Seas to Meet Byrd

The "stay-at-home" member of the Admiral Richard E. Byrd family, as she describes herself, here is shown as she left Los Angeles to sail for Dunedin, N. Z., to greet her husband, whom she has not seen for more than a year. The Antarctic explorer now is on his way to the New Zealand city, after a long stay in the South Polar wastes and the pair will return to their Virginia home together.

Four Workers Busy Making Survey Of Community's Federal Housing Needs

Four workers today were busy canvassing the city to learn the housing needs of the city, in connection with the Federal Housing campaign being conducted.

The relief project, calling for seven canvassers and a filing clerk to list the results of the survey, today had only four canvassers carded out for the work, it was announced at the relief headquarters. Other workers will be carded out as they are needed.

DEVELOPMENT OF EDUCATION LION SUBJECT

The History of the Development of Education and especially the Rise to Prominence of the High School, was the subject brought to the Lions club at today's luncheon program by Lion H. Brandon, principal of the Cisco high school.

Lion Brandon traced the development from the first serious efforts of the early settlers of our country to establish education for the masses. Lion Brandon deplored the fact that in the immediate past the high schools were developed with the thought in mind to prepare the student for college rather than for life. This will be remedied, he thinks, and already radical changes are being worked to make the course fit the student for practical life.

Past President H. L. Dyer was presented with a handsome hand bag from the club as a token of appreciation of a year of loyal work, as explained by President E. L. Smith, who made the presentation. The announcement by W. J. Leach that Bandmaster Collum would likely accept a position elsewhere, was received with expressions of regret by a number of members who spoke to the subject.

Lambert Rites At Pleasant Valley

Think Hamilton May Be Gasoline Thief

TYLER, Feb. 20.—Johny Ashby, Arp city marshal, today was investigating the possibility that two men and a woman who forced a filling station attendant to refuel their automobile last night were Raymond Hamilton and two companions.

The attendant said the trio appeared about 9 p. m., ordered him to fill the tank of their V-8 with gas, and drove away without paying him. He said he saw a machine gun and a shotgun in the rear seat.

MORE CLARITY IN ACT SOUGHT BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt today called upon congress to clarify obscure provisions of the NRA and extend the recovery act for two years.

He asked that the right of employees to bargain collective be "fully protected", called for maintenance of the government right to establish minimum standards of wages, hours, and fair competition and asked for more adequate application of anti-trust laws.

The president asked congress to eliminate jail penalties for code violations.

"The fundamental principles and purposes of the act are sound" the president said.

"To abandon them is unthinkable. It would spell the return of industrial and labor chaos."

Mr. Roosevelt asked that congress be guided by the lessons and mistakes of the NRA in continuing the law.

RECOMMENDS POLICY

The president recommended retention of the fundamental principles of the anti-trust laws should be more adequately applied," the president said. "Monopolies and private price fixing within industries must not be allowed."

The president recommended retention of:

- 1—Voluntary submission of codes.
- 2—Government power to fix minimum standards of fair competition.
- 3—Government power to fix adequate standards in labor relations.
- 4—Elimination of child labor.
- 5—Minimum wages and maximum labor features.
- 6—Right of employees to bargain collectively.

COLLUM GETS BAND OFFERS FOR 2 CITIES

W. J. Leach, chairman of the citizens' band committee today announced that Bandmaster G. W. Collum is seriously considering two offers of positions as band director elsewhere.

The announcement said that the director had been offered positions with salary increases at Eastland and at Memphis, Texas.

"They told him at Eastland that if he just put out as good a band there as he has in Cisco, they would be satisfied," Leach said.

Director Collum came to Cisco 10 years ago and began formation of the Lobo band, originally designed as a part of the cheering section for the football teams, and as a part of an advertising campaign for the city.

During his stay here, he has been one of the outstanding directors of the state and has had phenomenal success with his bands. Several times he has taken bands to contests, twice winning the West Texas band championship, and once competing in the national meet.

SPLIT IS SEEN IN HAUPTMANN DEFENSE RANK

RENTON, N. J., Feb. 20.—The defense attorneys of Bruno Hauptmann divided equally into camps today, with the condemned man reported to be supporting one side and his wife the other.

C. Lloyd Fisher, Flemington lawyer who defied chief defense counsel Edward J. Reilly in moving for speedy appeal, was supported by Frederick Pope, Hauptmann authorized Fisher to proceed with the appeal and was considered friendly to this action.

Mrs. Hauptmann appeared to favor Reilly and Egbert Rosecrans, fourth defense trial lawyer. The clearcut alignment of the defense staff was indicated yesterday when Mrs. Hauptmann arrived here with an associate of Reilly and was joined by Rosecrans.

Bandmaster Collum May Leave Cisco

It would be a sad blow to Cisco in the event Bandmaster Collum should decide to accept the offers of Eastland or Memphis to move to either of those places to take over the training of their band.

The Lobo band is the last remnant of the football glory that was once Cisco's. In the days of '25 and later years, no city of anything like the size of Cisco, could muster the football attendance at a game as could our city.

Mr. Collum has won an enviable reputation as a trainer of bands while in Cisco. The Lobo band has been heralded far and wide as the best high school band in West Texas and as having few superiors in the state.

Building Up The Highlands

Advocates of emigration as a remedy for surplus population will find little comfort in the experience which Scotland has had in the past fifty years. Half a century has seen over 1,000,000 Scots leave the country.

The immediate need of Scotland, in the opinion of Dr. Grant, is a policy for the reconstruction of the Highlands by the development of agriculture, silviculture, tweed-making, fisheries, slate quarries and new industries dependent upon water power.

The question is not merely a national one. It reaches across geographic lines, wherever the barriers of economic nationalism have been raised to restrict or stop the natural flow of trade.

The Passing of Corra Harris

Few who ever read "A Circuit Rider's Wife" will forget the utter sincerity and complete candor of his vigorous prose revealed. His gifted author, Corra Harris, was herself the wife of an itinerant Methodist preacher.

With almost uncanny objectivity Corra Harris described the gaunt, gallant Greek scholar, untiringly exhorting, comforting and rebuking his flock in the hill fastnesses of his far-flung parish.

In an existence of perpetual nomadism, valiantly stretching a minister's income, and trying to make her husband eat and rest with something approximating regularity, she confessed to longing at times "to give up, sit down and have some one with a poor-dear expression slip a cushion under my feet."

Georgia will doubtless place its native daughter, Corra Harris, in a niche next to its native son, Sidney Lanier, poet-musician. In prose and in poetry they both wrote enduringly of their beloved Southland.

Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God, Harris runs her favorite apophthegm, "Only the truly good can be happy."

A Russian Named Arjerow, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for bigamy. He married 58 wives in 6 years, and is said to have been the father of 102 children.

A sentence of five years in a woman's reformatory was meted out to Mrs. Myrtle Lattimer, of Kansas City, Mo. She pleaded guilty to six charges of forgery. For two and a half years she had been concealing the body of her dead mother and cashing her pension checks.

Peter McClelland of Waco, Texas died two weeks after winning an inheritance of $300,000 in a lawsuit that lasted 33 years.

The acting judge's beard looked rather rough, so Frank A. Tirrell attorney, of Rockland, Me., told him so. He was fined 20 cents, the price of a shave.

The Vicious Circle

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 20 — With 211 announced candidates for the legislature in the special election March 16 to name Rep. Sarah T. Hughes' successor, it is obvious that 1200 or 1500 votes will elect the successful candidate.

Chain-Store tax bills, of which four are under review of a house taxation sub-committee, are not primarily revenue-raising measures.

They are regulatory, anti-discrimination proposals, designed to protect independent merchants and independent business generally.

They are companion bills to anti-distribution price-control bills, anti-"loss-leaders" and similar measures designed to stave off monopoly and the destruction of free enterprise and independent merchandising.

A chief question is whether the countless filling-stations shall be included in the chain-store bills. Some of the measures would cover them. If so many filling stations can support their operators, and thus enable that many citizens to be self-supporting, independent units of business, they will prove their reason for being.

One of the candidates for governor in 1934 proposed that the Texas sulphur monopoly—in fairness, it is not a complete monopoly now as it was a few years ago when every ton of the nation's sulphur was produced in two Texas counties—should pay enough taxes to retire the state bread-bread issue.

Rep. J. Franklin Spears has pending a bill to raise the 75 cents per ton tax on sulphur to $2 a ton. The Oklahoma house of representatives has just voted on eight per cent levy on oil and gas. After this oil is produced, the gasoline produce again is taxed about 126 per cent of its first sale value. There is no such duplicate taxation of sulphur.

But if the 8 per cent levy were placed on it the revenue would be practically doubled that of the present tax, on a first-sale price of $18 a ton.

There is nothing to keep the two or three American organizations producing sulphur from raising the price to $46 to $50 a ton. It is a matter repeatedly stated before legislative committees that the same organization owns most of the supply of possible substitutes, as well as the known sulphur reserves.

Definite, if another 75 per cent. of $1.50 more tax per ton is tacked on sulphur, it will go on to the users, rather than come out of the producers. It would not be fair to the consumers of any commodity—even if they do nearly all reside outside Texas—to insist on total taxation of more than the basic value of the commodity, as in the case of gasoline; but it certainly would be fair to equalize the rates of taxation as between gasoline and sulphur and other similar products of Texas deposits.

One of the points to be clarified in Gov. Allred's coming message on taxation, is whether the principle of luxury levies—called a sales tax upon luxuries—shall be approved, or whether it will be classed as part of the general inquiry of the sales tax principle and thus also opposed.

Did you ever stop to think

By EDSON R. WAITE

J. L. Foster, advertising manager of the Comersville (Ind.) News-Examiner, says: "A lot of business is lost to competition for the simple reason that your competitor has kept the buying public informed about the merchandise and service his store is able to render.

When folks do not know you keep certain merchandise and buy of your competitor, whose fault is it? You may think you are saving money by not advertising, but every sale which goes to your competitor, because of the fact that you did not advertise, makes it possible for your competitor to advertise more and increase his profits.

You may think you are saving money by not advertising, but every sale which goes to your competitor, because of the fact that you did not advertise, makes it possible for your competitor to advertise more and increase his profits.

city to another city simply because the buying public is not kept informed as to what may be expected from the merchants in the way of service and merchandise. Remember that good roads have made it possible for folks to reach the buying centers more often and with less effort than was true some years ago; and that you can travel both ways on good roads—to and from a trade center.

"The newspaper reaching out a greater distance has also enlarged the trade territory for the merchants. And today, about all other days, is the time to try to get the business.

"The buying public is seeking greater service and better values and they are giving their patronage to those who invite them to their stores."

BETTER HOME PROVIDED BY TEXAS RELIEF

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—Better homes, better living conditions and better citizens were provided in the $13,000,000 work relief funds spent in Texas last year.

Texas relief officials estimated 3,000 projects were completed between April and December 31, by 158,940 persons paid for work relief. At the end of 1934 6,229 projects were being operated.

Texas' nine work relief districts were benefitted with improvements of lasting importance, State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson said.

Northeast Texas saw 83 bridges rebuilt in Shelby county, rural homes rehabilitated and sanitary conditions improved in others. Southwest Texas concentrated on malaria control and relief workers drained stagnant pools.

Ablene, in the Central West Texas district, saw aid on the municipal airport and repairs to Lake Abilene dam paid out of relief funds. Street improvements and building repairs were made in other counties. Lateral road improvement headed Northwest Texas work, but other projects were included, varying from building low-water dams to airport construction.

Outstanding projects listed by Johnson included beautification of the Fort Worth school grounds; drainage and flood control projects at Waxahachie and Ennis; widening Washington Boulevard in Beaumont and increasing city water pressure.

Skilled and unskilled labor of almost every kind was used and trades such as canning and mattress-making were taught to thousands of trade-less Texans.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—New Deal morale is nearer bottom than it ever was before.

A foggy "where-do-we-go-from-here" feeling afflicts an unprecedented number of high officials and senators who can't find anything to cheer about.

Administration liberals, optimistic to the last after others succumbed to pessimism, have now been completely floored by the dismissal of General Counsel Jerome Frank of AAA and a group of subordinates—plus demotion of Consumers' Counsel Fred C. Howe, appointed to protect consumers from profiteering under the AAA program and now being punished for trying.

Howe, Frank, Gardner Jackson, and others tried to persuade AAA Administrator Chester Davis that fair prices paid to farmers and charged to consumers were better for the country and the AAA program than big profits for packers, milk corporations, and other "middlemen."

But food processors, who brought terrific pressure and packed AAA ranks with their friends, are now completely in ascendancy after a long period during which the Davis group sabotaged and suppressed efforts for the consumer.

But the sensational AAA purge is only part of the picture. Here's the rest:

Congressional grumbling drowns any cheers over the work relief and social insurance bills, now dragging slowly and with difficulty. The sole Capitol Hill achievement to date has been negative—defeat of the administration on the World Court.

Downtown, PWA, FERA, and NRA all worry over what happens to them next. NRA, along with the A. F. of L., tries to recover from the shock it got when Roosevelt turned down NRA recommendations on the automobile code. Morale at the National Labor Relations Board is shot to pieces and you can imagine what the supreme court oil decision did to the oil administration.

SENATE munitions revelations involve higher and higher personalities. Evidence of White House wire-pulling by battleship builders involving Jim Farley, Secretary McIntyre, and the Admiral Peoples who is touted as No. 1 Man in the four-billion dollar work relief program—hasn't been a refreshing tonic to idealists.

New Dealers whisper that Roosevelt is "slipping" in prestige. A sympathetic senatorial secretary from a large state remarks that whereas 90 per cent of congressional mail a year ago demanded support of Roosevelt, few such letters now are received.

The administration's own economists insist that there was no genuine improvement in 1934 and fail to see bright skies ahead.

JUST the same, many New Dealers had a swell time at the President's Ball... I remember getting a wink from bald-headed Don Richberg as his large frame pranced a partner through the heavy throng... And was carried way back to the Wilson administration when I saw Dr. Cary Grayson and Ray Baker—two veteran social lions—parked with Mrs. Roosevelt, beautiful Anna Dill Boettiger, and young Elliott Roosevelt and his wife, all laughing heartily as Eddie Cantor wisecracked at points of Mae West's anatomy.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lou Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 22, works in a silk mill. She and her 16-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father. STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Steve disappears before he can learn her name. VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to capture Brian. Gale and Steve quarrel, inter make up. Sunday Brian calls and persuades Gale to go for a hike. They stop to rest and talk and suddenly Brian takes the girl in his arms.

Oh, Gale, you are so sweet! You've done something to me, do you know that? Hypnotized me, put me under a spell. I haven't been thinking about anything for days except when I was to see you again. You can't keep me away from you now on, the way you've been. You've got to let me take you places, got to let me come to see you. "I'll let you," she promised, surprised at herself, "but we really must go now." "Want to get rid of me, don't you?" She smiled. "No, it's not that." "Want to get rid of me—ever?" "Maybe not."

ter, president of the Citizens' National Bank. Wally Carter was one of Brian's friends, just as Vicky Thatcher and her crowd were. Suddenly Gale saw again the deep chasm that lay between them—she and the rest of the mill workers on the other. She had almost forgotten for a little while; it was pleasant to forget. But she mustn't do it again. The chasm was still there. No matter what Brian said it wasn't changed. Or was it? Could it be? Westmore had built the mill, built the town. Could a Westmore—if he wanted to—sweep away social distinctions? Could he? Her heart quickened at the thought. She said, "Brian, I wish you wouldn't come any farther with me. I'd rather go on alone." "But why?" She smiled. "Does there need to be a reason?" "No—not if you'd rather have it that way. But when am I going to see you again. Tomorrow?" "Not tomorrow." "Tuesday?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

GALE drew back, staring at Brian Westmore. She said, "I shouldn't have come—"

It was as much of an admission as he could coax from her, and he had to be satisfied with it. They started back along the path. It was narrow, hardly wide enough for one in some places. Gale walked a few steps ahead and Brian followed, talking eagerly. Most of the time the girl did not trust herself to answer. Once she looked back and Brian said something about her eyes being brighter than the stars. He said a good many extravagant, delightful things. After a while Gale asked, "Brian, didn't you say there was a short cut?" "Yes, we'll come to it in a few minutes. Take the turn to your left. See here, you said we hadn't found any treasure today. You were wrong. You discovered the sweetest, most precious thing in all the world! Of course I brought my treasure with me—"

GALE considered. "Yes," she said. "I think Tuesday will be all right." "I'll be there," he assured her. She said goodby and hurried away before he could say anything more. About that was the end of the matter, so much to be planned and decided and by thoughts refused to be order! Everything had been changed those three words Brian had said, "I love you." He had said it, though s. couldn't believe it, yet. He'd called her "Darling," too, and said, "You're so sweet."

Only the night before Gale had heard those words. "Someone else," Steve had said them. And she had assured him that there was no one else with whom she was in love. She had told herself she was never going to see Brian Westmore again. And here he was waiting, watching her with that hurt, anxious look in his face.

She said, "It's not that—" "Then what is it, Darling?" Her heart beat a mad tattoo. "I'll always have this to remember," Gale thought. "I'll always remember how he called me 'Darling.'" She looked up and said, "You know it's impossible. You and I can't be in love with each other."

"I've been in love with you from the very first time I saw you. Does that surprise you? Well, perhaps it does. It surprises me, too. I didn't know—I didn't realize until a minute ago, but oh, I've been crazy about you all along!"

He would have taken her in his arms again but she drew back. "You keep forgetting so much," Gale told him. "You forget you're Brian Westmore and I'm—just a girl who works in the mill."

"You're just the most wonderful girl in the world; that's what you are."

GALE smiled. What girl wouldn't with Brian looking at her like that. "Well," she said, "the most wonderful girl in the world wants to go home."

"Not now! I tell you I'm in love with you, girl! I want to turn cart wheels and dances in the streets."

GALE smiled. What girl wouldn't with Brian looking at her like that. "Well," she said, "the most wonderful girl in the world wants to go home."

GALE considered. "Yes," she said. "I think Tuesday will be all right." "I'll be there," he assured her. She said goodby and hurried away before he could say anything more. About that was the end of the matter, so much to be planned and decided and by thoughts refused to be order! Everything had been changed those three words Brian had said, "I love you." He had said it, though s. couldn't believe it, yet. He'd called her "Darling," too, and said, "You're so sweet."

They reached the short cut and presently turned in to the open road. Walking along the highway, back in the everyday world, their conversation took a more matter-of-fact turn. Brian talked about the new advertising campaign the mill was going to launch. It was ambitious, expensive, but it was sure to widen the mill's market. Brian described one of the advertisements in detail.

"What do you think of it?" he asked. "Think it will appeal to women? They're the buyers, you know. They're the ones we're trying to get interested. We want them to recognize the Westmore label and ask for it—"

"Then don't you think there should be a picture of the label in the advertisement? Large enough so everyone who sees it will know what it is?"

"By George, you're right! You're absolutely right about it. I'll speak to Perkins in the morning."

They had reached the crossing of two main highways. A car was coming toward them and Gale and Brian halted, waiting for it to pass. It was a roadster, driven by a youth who was hatless. There was a girl beside him and another couple in the rumble seat. The car was coming at terrific speed. As it rushed past there was a shout and an arm raised in greeting.

"Who was that?" Gale asked. "Wally Carter. Some day he'll get into trouble, driving the way he does."

"Not now! I tell you I'm in love with you, girl! I want to turn cart wheels and dances in the streets."

GALE smiled. What girl wouldn't with Brian looking at her like that. "Well," she said, "the most wonderful girl in the world wants to go home."

Proposed Pension Draws Applicants

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 20. — Since the legislature received a proposal for old age pension, the number of applications for citizenship almost doubled here within two weeks.

Enthusiasm was somewhat dampened when applicants learned they must wait two years for final papers, after receiving their first papers, and the pension law stipulates only citizens may be eligible for relief.

Indigestion, Sour Stomach

WHEN you feel your stomach gives trouble with gas or "sour risings," try that well-known tonic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Read what Mrs. A. N. Alston of Route 5, 364 B. Muskege, Okla., said: "I have a sufferer from indigestion for some time. I would choke up with gas, I suffered from heartburn also. At times my food seemed to sour in my stomach and there was such a bad taste in my mouth, but after using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I found that I could eat almost anything—had very little distress."

Lifers Lose Job And Chance of Freedom When Jobs As Hangmen Are Taken Away

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 20. — For the first time in many years the custom long prevalent in the Bahamas of selecting a hangman from among the "lifers" at the penitentiary here and freeing him in return for his services as an executioner will not be followed.
This custom has been followed here since the days of the pirate, "Blackbeard", whose famous well on the grounds of the British Colonial hotel is one of the sights of scenic interest.
Bahamians felt that the gruesome act of hangman should be suitably rewarded. It also seemed logical to their reasoning that a life should be restored when one was taken. So the "hangman" was chosen by lot from among those serving life sentences in the jail. When he had performed his task he was given his freedom.
Consequently when Lewis Allen, colored, was sentenced to be hanged here several days ago for the murder of James W. Carey, colored, at Tarpum Bay in the out island district, there was much excitement among the lifers at the jail who envisioned the freedom of one of their number.
Their hopes soon were dispelled, however, when the commandant of police said that he would personally supervise the hanging, use the services of one or two convicts in his work, but send them back to their cells when the job was finished.

Bandit Takes Man For Holdup Walk

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—Bandits generally take their victims for a ride, but the armed man who held up J. R. McDaniel, ice station manager, changed the procedure and took McDaniel for a walk.
The bandit took $15 from McDaniel and then forced him to accompany him as he walked leisurely away from the station. McDaniel was permitted to return after they had gone about a block.

NO RUN-OFF FOR PRIMARY IN ARKANSAS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 20. — One trial of a run-off primary law was enough for Arkansas legislators. It has been repealed.
The double primary was tried for the first time last August. Those elections returned only 34 of the state's 100 Democratic representatives to the lower house and 22 of the 35 senators.
Only one major state race went to the second primary. In it Auditor Oscar Humphrey, who almost had a majority over his two opponents in the first race, was defeated.
Enacted in 1933, The run-off law was enacted by

Led Opponents
Hays led his two opponents in the first primary and was defeated by the second-ranking candidate in the run-off — thereby becoming the first defeated by the law he pioneered for.
There is a new movement to set up a preferential primary whereby all but two candidates for each office would be eliminated in the first election. Then the second election would have candidates for every office, insuring interest in all races. An objection to the run-off was that the major offices were decided in the first primary, minimizing interest in the second or run-off election.

No Tampering With New Oil Container

Following closely on the heels of the recent announcement by the Gulf Refining company of the new super-refined Gulfpride motor oil comes the statement that the featured product will be packaged in an entirely different type of container. This will be cylindrical in shape and designed to save time for motorists when they are having their oil changed or adding a quart or more.

With the new method in vogue, Gulf service station men will quickly insert the Gulfpride can into a dispenser on order. The dispenser has two hidden knives which automatically puncture the oil container. In almost the same motion with the placing of the can in the container the service station man places the nozzle of the dispenser in the car's crankcase and pours in the Gulfpride motor oil.
Not only does this new Gulf container save time but it also assures the motorist of "from can to crankcase" delivery. The motorist gets every drop he pays for and he is also assured of getting genuine Gulfpride, since the new cylindrical containers are refinery-sealed and tamperproof. The new Gulfpride, made from the finest selected crude oils, will continue to be super-refined by the exclusive Alchlor Process.

Parents Win Fight For Dying Child

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 20. — The parents of Norman Pirk, 14, have won a temporary victory to retain custody of their son, who, according to physicians, is dying slowly of an incurable disease.
A Supreme court Justice directed that the youth, who is suffering from progressive muscular atrophy, which renders the muscles of the body useless, finally spreading to the heart, be permitted to stay with his parents for another month to see if he shows improvement.

The Children's Aid Society opposed the motion that the youth be permitted to stay with the parents, applying for a court order, committing the youth to a state institution, where, the society claimed he could be given care and comfort during the remaining years of his life, not available with his parents.
Mr. and Mrs. William Pirk, the parents, claimed that the boy should not be deprived of their "love and affection and care," during the remainder of his life and contended that recent treatments, although not curing the youth, had done him much good.
The court gave the parents custody of the boy until March 5, when another hearing will be held.
The boy's brother, Arthur, died of the same disease with which he is afflicted.
