NEW LINDBERGH CLUES ARE REPORTED

Effort to Incite Janeiro Cavalry Revolt Fails

Through the Editor's Spectacles By GEORGE

Money for the overpass that will carry the re-located Highway No. One over the Katy railroad on Eighth street is included in a $5,180,000 grade separation program just approved by President Roosevelt, according to the newspapers this morning.

Numbers of members of the public schools faculty are preparing to go to San Antonio for the annual meeting of the Texas State Teachers association which opens Thursday.

Supt. Cluck is chairman of the adult education section of the convention and will preside over the meeting of that section at 3 p. m. Friday.

The Cisco schools will dismiss tomorrow afternoon for a two-day holiday which, with Saturday and Sunday thrown in, will give the system four days of relief from class room work.

The Cisco Daily Press will also take a vacation for one day. There will be no issue of the Press tomorrow afternoon.

Union Service on Thanksgiving Day

A union Thanksgiving service will be held at 7 o'clock Thursday morning, with the Rev. David F. Tyndall, pastor of the First Christian church, preaching the sermon.

These union services have been an annual custom here for several years, the place of holding the service and the minister being chosen in rotation.

WE TAKE A HOLIDAY

There will be no issue of the Cisco Daily Press Wednesday afternoon. That issue will be combined with the Rural Edition and issued Thursday morning.

STATE HEAD OF VFW TO BE HERE TONIGHT

Officers of Local Post to Be Installed at 7:30 o'Clock

E. E. Weisman, El Paso, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be in Cisco to install new officers of the Cisco VFA post at 7:30, commander W. H. Hayes announced this morning.

Action to Check Self-Government Move Is Planned

The Chinese central government's executive committee in Nanking formed a program today to check the self-government move in north China.

US C. of C. Opposes Gov't Competition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Government competition with private enterprise and to the government spending without relation to revenue was recorded in the poll of the chamber of commerce of the United States today.

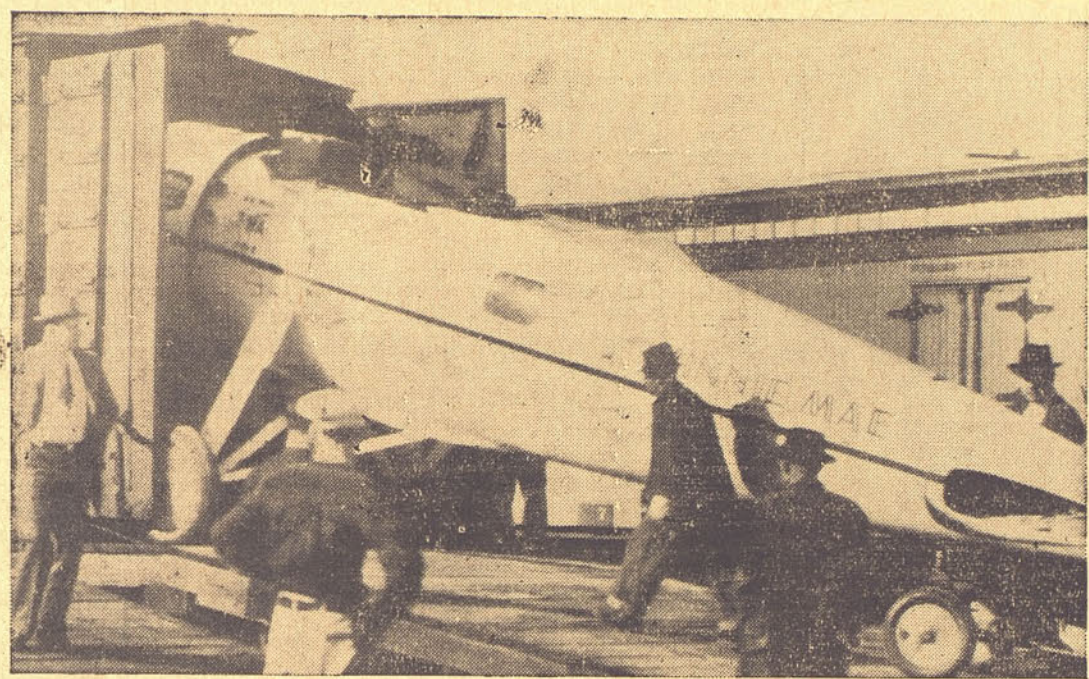

Farm Animals Visit "Beauty Parlor" On Way to Exposition at Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—There is a trip to the "beauty parlor" facing thousands of America's finest farm animals.

Many in Competition

B. H. Heide, manager of the show, says great interest in this year's exposition is due to the notable success of recent state fairs, many of which established all-time records for both number of exhibits and visitors.

The Winnie Mae's Last Journey

The Winnie Mae, famous airplane which carried the late Wiley Post on two record breaking world flights, is shown above as it was being loaded into a box car at Bartlesville, Okla., for transportation to Washington, where it will be placed in the Smithsonian institution.

FUNERAL AT RISING STAR

The body of Mrs. M. A. Buchanan, aged Cisco woman who was found dead in an area burned by oil from a kerosene lamp in the bedroom of her home, was taken last night to Rising Star where it was prepared for burial.

Mrs. Buchanan, who lived alone on East Tenth street, was found by neighboring women, who went to investigate when she did not respond to a knock.

Relatives of the aged victim, including several children, live in or near Rising Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Dabney will accompany their daughter, Mrs. Joyce Howell and little daughter, Virginia Carolyn, to their home in Midland Wednesday.

No Foreign Wars, But U. S. Will Be Prepared -- Blanton

"I will never vote to send our American boys to fight a war in any other country," Cong. Thomas L. Blanton told the 85 persons gathered at the Laguna hotel for the regular monthly dinner of the Cisco Boosters last night.

Blanton urged that the park be made a metropolitan one rather than a state-owned and controlled resort. "You don't want Austin charging your folks for every use they make of the park," he said.

He said that Cisco would already have had a CCC camp for the development of the area had not 54 camps of the number originally allotted to Texas been cut off because of the lack of manpower on the relief rolls to man them.

"The only way to get a camp is to get one for the next six-month period," he told the group. He explained that the first step is to get state park board approval, which already has been obtained.

"It must go through that routine before it is placed on approved status," said Blanton. "When you get that approval I promise you that Cisco will get one of the first two camps that are allotted to my district. I want one camp to go to the site of Old Ford Griffin, up there in Shackelford county on the Clear Fork."

Blanton showed a strong liking for the project to develop this historic site into a park that would always commemorate the history of the frontier days in this section of the state.

Preceding his address, for which he was introduced by President Johnny Cox of the Boosters as presiding officer, the diners, including visitors from Eastland, Baird, Putnam and Moran, heard numbers by the "German Band" of the Cisco high school, directed by R. L. Maddox, and three clever readings by Mrs. James Moore.

Fred Poole of Moran is spending today in Cisco on business.

SECRECY IS ATTEMPTED BY DEFENSE

Wood of Ladder and Ransom Bills Said to Be Located

BOSTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—Wood, believed to be identical with that of the Lindbergh kidnap ladder, handwriting resembling the ransom notes and bills which may be part of the ransom, have been discovered in Massachusetts, the Boston Globe says today in a copyrighted story.

It said that as Boston and Ashby, Mass., focal points, fresh inquiry is being made by Hauptmann's investigators, and said the Hauptmann defense is keeping the details as secret as possible.

Lloyd Fischer, chief counsel, said he had no knowledge of the discoveries. "It is a new story to me," Fischer is quoted as saying.

The New York department of justice said "We have no information on this matter."

ITALY CLAIMS 100 KILLED

Italy announced today that one hundred Ethiopians, including two provincial governors, were killed in the battle north of Dolo, on the southern front. Italian losses were announced as four native soldiers killed, five wounded and two missing. Rain hindered the Italian advance.

Lij Yasu, the 38-year-old deposed Ethiopian ruler, exiled in 1916, died near Harar. Italian patrols pursued enemy bands from Tembien, Gharalca and regions west of Makale.

Addis Ababa reported that four Italian planes circled over Jijiga without bombing. Great Britain is concerned over the effect of the League of Nations delay of the oil sanctions' action will have on the United States public opinion.

Mrs. Fee Recovering From Crash Injuries

Mrs. George P. Fee was reported to be recovering satisfactorily today from bruises and shock sustained when the car she was driving was struck by another at an intersection on West Tenth street about 2:30 yesterday afternoon, turning it over.

Mrs. Fee had just taken her two children, Pat and Linda, from school and left them at the home of a friend. She was on her way to make a social call when the accident occurred.

Benefit Checks To Be Continued, Says Government

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—After the supreme court today granted eight Louisiana rice millers an injunction from collecting processing taxes, the government said benefit checks to farmers would continue regardless of the outcome of the rice tax cases.

Two Men Found Shot to Death

HAMILTON, Tex., Nov. 26 (AP)—The shot torn bodies of W. T. Blackwell, 30, and C. C. Gann, 60, were found at the Gann home seven miles north of here today, where the men "batched" while Mrs. Gann had gone on a visit. Officers were inclined to believe that a third person was involved in the tragedy. They did not think it was a case of slaying and suicide.

Moley Asks Campaign To Provide Shelter

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Raymond Moley, former ace brain-truster of the Roosevelt official family, today called for a truce in the name-calling and mud-slinging battle between business and politics. He demanded a united campaign designed to provide shelter for the 93 per cent of the people whose family incomes as shown by the record of 1933 were less than $3,000 per year.

GASOLINE THEFT

A. L. Barton, special agent for the Lone Star Gas company, apprehended two youths in the act of stealing gasoline from a drip on the Chesley lease, he reported. The arrests were made about 1:30 and the two will be cited to appear before the grand jury, he said. Seven or eight gallons of gasoline were found in their possession, the officer said.

NAMED APPRAISERS

E. P. Crawford, Connie Davis and Alex Spears, all of Cisco, were appointed Monday by C. L. Garrett, judge of the probate court, to appraise the estate of the late E. A. Wilson.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, in whom, though now we see him not, yet believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.—1 Peter 1: 8.

Go speed the stars of thought On to their shining goals:—

The sower scatters broad his seed, The wheat thou strew'st be sown.—EMWEAON.

The pleasant things of the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art of life is to have as many of them as possible.—Boeve.

The Best Defense

THE best defense, they say in football, is a good offense. The same logic may be applied to the national defense. At the Boosters dinner last night Cong. Thomas L. Blanton, who, by the way is a member of the house military affairs committee, assured his hearers that the United States, while determined to embark on no offensive war, is equally determined to defend its shores against an alien attack.

IT is gratifying to know that the congress recognizes the need of adequate preparedness in contrast to the pacifist or indifferent attitude of those congresses whose neglect of this important principle in the face of a fancied isolation caused not only the waste of tremendous sums during the World war but the sacrifice of thousands of lives that otherwise might have been saved.

pacifism caused us to plunge into that struggle, to save the allies from defeat with our gold and men and blood. Had the United States loomed as a powerful military and naval power German submarines would have studiously refrained from inflicting damage and murder upon American commerce.

A strong army and navy, equipped with the best that military and naval genius can provide, dedicated to the protection of the country in the great service of peace is the best insurance against war that the American people can have.

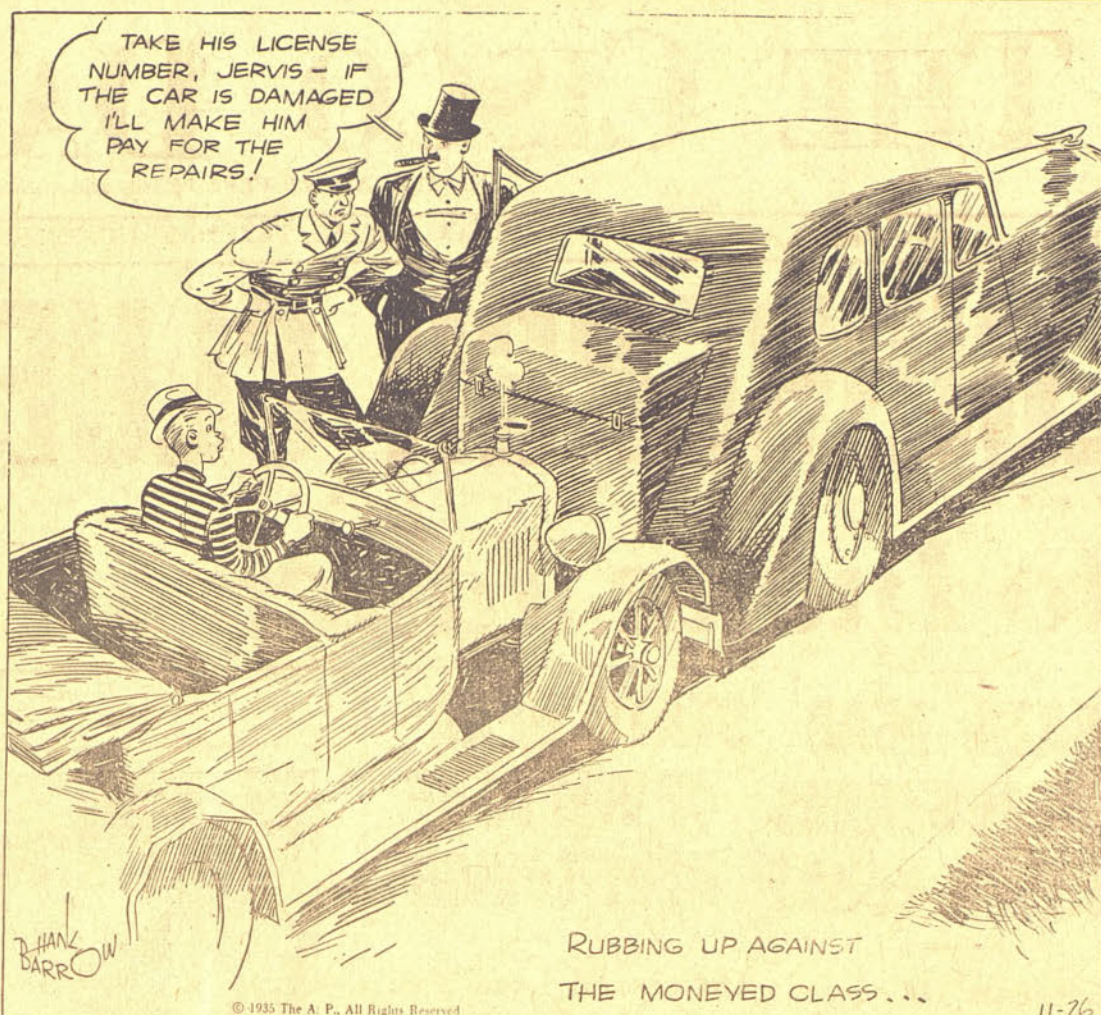

More "Sudden Death"

THE sensation created by the publication "—And Sudden Death," a gruesomely realistic article on highway fatalities in the United States, was a surprise no doubt, to the editors of the Reader's Digest.

"—AND Sudden Death" set the pace for attempting to curb this toll by being brutally and sometimes sickeningly frank about the results of carelessness or reckless driving. The most shockingly descriptive or terrifying words are sought to make the printed account as bloody and realistic as possible.

BECAUSE the influence of the first article ought to be carried on with unceasing force, the Daily Press will reprint the "Aftermath of Sudden Death," with the permission of the Reader's Digest.

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY

Three definitely iconoclastic books came to the top of the week's basket of books, each different, each in its way important.

F. J. Schlink, who with a collaborator wrote "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs," still a best seller after years before the public, now produces a book on the horrors of food called "Eat Drink and Be Wary" (Covici-Friede). His purpose is to make the public realize the extent to which its foods are contaminated; the poison it eats daily. Perhaps, like much good food, parts of the book must be taken with a pinch of salt.

The second iconoclastic offering is Walter Duranty's "I Write As I Please" (Simon & Schuster). This is an idol breaker for fair, simply because Mr. Duranty tells the truth. He may be mistaken in his estimate of Russia, and there may be errors in the material dealing with places and people outside Russia. But Duranty has spent 14 years in Russia, and it will need a more confirmed cynic than this reviewer to doubt his sincerity. When therefore he says that the experiment is succeeding he must at least be listened to. For this department the chapters on Russia are the best it has read.

And the third book is Edward Levinson's "I Break Strikes," the hideous story of how strikes are crushed by big business, aided by thugs furnished (also according to Mr. Levinson) by organizations whose business it is to keep thugs ready for call. The book is very circumstantial, giving names, dates, places and penitentiary records. It is not a book for Aunt Hephzibah.

Thumbnail Reviews

"Edna His Wife," by Margaret Ayer Barnes (Houghton Mifflin): an honest novel, full of rich meat, in which a quite uninteresting woman is made to interest the reader through hundreds of pages; perhaps Mrs. Barnes' best.

"Circumstance," by William John (Macmillan): a fine lean novel, spare and powerful, about the force of circumstance at work in a sooty Pennsylvania town; people are like Mr. John's people. "Sudden Death and How To Avoid It," by J. C. Furnas and Ernest N. Smith (Simon & Schuster): a pamphlet made up of Furnas' sensational successful "—and Sudden Death," a second Furnas article called "Better Off Dead," and some suggestions for

HIGH COURAGE by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth is on trial for the murder of her uncle, Lee Farnsworth, who is the only one of her "relatives" who has been kind to her since the accidental death of her foster parents, Luke and Lucinda Farnsworth. Worse, her most bitter enemy, Tom Farley, is assisting the district attorney. The latter is summing up his case against Anne, at the beginning of the trial which may result in a sentence of against an innocent girl.

Chapter 38 TECLA'S STORY Anne had come down to Astoria, the district attorney charged, and once there set about fomenting trouble among the people working for her late foster father's fisheries.

When her uncle had gone out to investigate one of the many groundless charges, that a "boot-leg" trap was working with the Farnsworth canneries, she had followed and had shot him down. She had used Luke Farnsworth's gun, stolen from the house when she ran away from it. She had thought to throw it away but it had become entangled in a fish net, and did not clear the boat and drop into the river as she had intended.

She had forced the Sorki brothers, whom she had helped purchase the boat she used, into landing her at an isolated pier, and had sneaked home. Upon hearing they had been arrested for the crime, she had depended upon her former prestige as Anne Farnsworth to try to free them.

All of these things he would prove, he said. Lenholm outlined his defense, and it was pitifully weak. Anne realized how slim a chance she would have of being found not guilty.

Wearily she listened as the state presented its case. Each line of evidence seemed a cord, binding her to a verdict of murder in the first degree.

She returned to jail that night, worn in body and spirit. What chance had she against the hatred of the men condemning her? Perhaps it would be better as they had suggested, to plead guilty and receive an intermediate sentence.

If only John --- but she had searched the court room. John wasn't there. Days sped along and then came the words, "The State rests."

Lenholm had little to offer save the word of the Sorki brothers. He passed there quickly and called Anne to the stand. She heard the name "Nikki Nielson," and arose. The expanse of rug from from chair to witness stand stretched before her as fluid as water. "Miss Nikki," prompted the attorney.

Anne caught sight of Charlotte Farnsworth's triumphant expression, and chin up, walked steadily to the chair. She looked out on the sea of faces, noticed newspaper reporters watching her intently, and then she saw Tecla, little Tecla, sitting bravely in the front row smiling, the high dimples wet with tears.

Anne relaxed and turned to Lenholm. "Your name is Anne Farnsworth?" he asked.

when she hears. Then, my brother's wife hear her husband is lost at sea and she dies. The nurse thinks it would be good, for the time, to give the little Anne to Mrs. Farnsworth.

"Mr. Farnsworth he wish to adopt the baby but he cannot because the mother is dead and he can't find her people. The hospital people know him, so they let him take the baby back to Astoria with him. Then he puts the detectives to trace and he finds me, Orvi's sister. He finds also Anna Nielson's father, but he is a widower, a professor of English, and does not know what to do with the baby. He say it is all right for them to adopt her, but me, I do not."

"I wish first to know these people, so Mr. Farnsworth he say he will bring my husband and me to Astoria. He buys us the house and my husband the boat and he hires me to nurse the little Anne. So then, we make out the adoption papers."

"Your honor!" Tom Farley was on his feet, "I can prove this an unmitigated falsehood. I was at the hospital at the time this child was given to the Farnsworths."

"Just a minute Mr. Farley," the judge was watching Tecla. "What have you there?" he asked her. "The papers give to me," she answered. "You would like to see?" And as he reached for them, she hesitated. "But you don't give to the Farley man? Luke Farnsworth say I must never let him put hands on them."

"Your honor," the district attorney was appealing to the bench, "this is completely irrelevant, it has no bearing on the case in hand, but it is bringing in cross currents which may affect the justice."

"Mr. District Attorney," countered the judge dryly, "I believe I am quite capable of handling this case. As long as you neglected to establish this defendant's identity, I feel that in all fairness to her we should do so at this time."

He pushed his glasses back to their rightful place on his nose, and studied the papers. "Hm," he murmured, "Hm," and after a moment, "well, gentlemen it seems the defendant was born Annikki Nielsen. Her name was changed to Anne Lucinda Farnsworth, at the time of her adoption."

"Your honor," Lenholm was up, "I move a dismissal of this case. The charge of murder has been made against Nikki Nielsen. The girl in custody is Anne Farnsworth."

"Your honor," Anne scarcely knew she had left her chair until she felt the tug of a deputy at her arm, "have I a right to say something?"

And without waiting for his answer, "I am the one charged. It doesn't matter whether I am called Nikki Nielsen or Anne Farnsworth. I want to be tried. I want to prove my innocence."

"Your honor!" shouted Farley.

Bad Weather in Prospect for Lobo-Eagle Game Thursday

CONTEST AT ABILENE ON THANKSGIVING

Early week prospects for the Cisco and Abilene football game at Abilene on Thanksgiving Day were anything but bright, so far as the weather is concerned. Rain and mist, which has threatened continuously for days, early today began a gloomy assault, forecasting a damp, soggy field for the fray.

Not that the game amounts to much. Both teams are out of the race—except for the bare possibility that Ranger will upset the Buckaroo powerhouse on the same afternoon at Breckenridge — and the contest will attract only such interest as a languid Abilene and Cisco rivalry will command.

Moser, chief backfield threat of the Eagles is said to be suffering from a threat of the influenza. The Eagles went through a light workout Monday without him, the Abilene Morning News said today. Moser has been of little assistance to his club this season because of injuries which have kept him on the sidelines for weeks. Whether or not he will play in the game with Cisco was problematical, the News indicated, but the chances are that the ball-carrying ace will be in there when the whistle blows.

The Cisco team emerged from their game with the Childress Bobcats in good condition and are expected to be in good shape for the game.

Beasley is being marked by the Eagles for attention because of his speed and ball-carrying ability. The Abilene team is counting upon a stronger line to keep the Cisco ace bottled up, however.

T. C. U. TROUNCES RICE, ENHANCING ROSE BOWL HOPES

Texas Christian University remained in the undefeated, untied class following a 27 to 6 victory over Rice at Fort Worth, Tex. Here is Jimmy Lawrence making a touchdown on a cutback off tackle after George Kline had run the opening kickoff back 68 yards. The victory made the T. C. U. eleven stand out as one of the nation's leading teams, and giving it a strong bid for the Rose Bowl game. (Associated Press Photo)

SPORT SLANTS

By PAP

The football spotlight, quite naturally, is focused on the big teams with the best records. So it is to be expected that the lads performing on the successful elevens should receive a lion's share of the praise. After all, the sports world loves a winner.

But while these heroes are basking in the limelight it is well to remember the hundreds of youngsters who go on playing fine football week after week. You don't hear so much about them as possible all-America candidates and most of them are lucky to find their names even on sectional all-teams but that does not alter the fact that they play the game, and in many cases better than the "stars" who reap the headlines.

'One-Man' Teams
Football is essentially a game of team play. And when you see a chap rise to heights without the support of his mates, you have to admit that he has something. A fair back often looks great when his line is giving him the opportunities to sparkle. But a ball carrier who has to depend almost entirely on his own speed, elusiveness and power to gain precious yards in a losing cause needs that extra something to be outstanding.

An exhibition such as Jay Berwanger, Chicago's great back, flashed against Ohio State's powerful eleven should entitle any back to equal rating with the best in the country. Berwanger did not lead his team to victory, but there was not another athlete on the field, playing for either Ohio State or Chicago, who even closely approached him as a football player.

You won't find a better guard in this broad land than Paul Stofko, captain of the University of Pennsylvania eleven. The Quakers have been one of the mysteries of the present campaign. At times they have flashed great football. And then again they have bogged down and disappointed their followers dismayingly. Out of the wreckage of what promised to be the most successful season in years, one thing stands out in bold relief—Stofko was in there playing his position with courage and determination that should have been an inspiration to his teammates.

Because Columbia is experiencing its poorest season under Coach Little's tutelage, the fine brand of ball Ed Furey has been playing at end has not been fully appreciated by any but the coaching staff. Amerino Sarno has played his tackle position with a dash and finesse that ordinarily would insure him a place on almost everyone's all-America team, but because Fordham has enjoyed indifferent success his efforts have been, for the most part overlooked.

Harvard Has Adzigan
You won't find such names as Ike Kern of Colgate, Joe Meglen of Georgetown, Dick Tuckey of Manhattan and many other fine football players on many all-America elevens but that does not mean that they are incapable of holding their own in any company. Had their teams better records to set off their individual deeds anyone of the group might well have been a headliner.

Even the fair name of Harvard has not been enough to focus attention on the deeds of John Adzigan, an outstanding ball carrier if ever there was one.

The homing instinct took us back this fall to the hills where we were born. We got there just in time, too, for the government plans to move the inhabitants and turn the region into a national park. We had one last look at the old house where we first saw the light of day and followed again the trails we knew so well in boyhood.

Only a remnant of the deer and turkey population of former years clings to the wild and rugged reaches, but small game abounds as of years gone by. Quail are plentiful in the thick woods and afford some of the fastest, sportiest shooting in this country. The hard roads failed to penetrate the area, leaving it quiet and peaceful. Only the shrill cry of the hunting hawk breaks the stillness of sunny autumn days.

The young engineer in field boots and whipcord breeches talked a lot about playground possibilities, game management and a better living elsewhere for the natives. Looking at the matter in the light of progress, we had to agree, but nevertheless we were disturbed by thoughts of raucous auto horns and picnic parties in that unspoiled backwoods.

The 'Dawg' Situation

Down there the folks have a canine breed known as "just a night-huntin' dawg." These rangy but not over-large animals appear to have a few dashes of hound or pointer in their make-up. They'll run foxes, wolves and bob-cats, or chase rabbits and tree squirrels, but their main business in life is hunting 'coons. They even gang up at night and run 'coons without orders or encouragement from their masters.

One night four of these dogs, hunting alone, hit the trail of a big male timber wolf and cornered him in a sort of cul-de-sac in the bluffs. Human eyes were denied sight of that battle, but it must have been one that would have delighted savage hunters.

bitch named Red which had lost her teeth from age, gave an exhibition of 'coon-runnin' that was something to remember. Three times the 'coon swam a good-size river and thrice Red swam after him. After several hours of trying all his tricks the 'coon was nearly winded and once we heard him wheeze as he ran nearby with that ancient dog baying close behind.

Finally the quarry took to a tree. Whether it was a gesture of defeat, humiliation or just the cunning ways of his kind, the 'coon settled down in a crotch and crossed his forepaws over his face. We left him there.

Some of old Red's progeny sell for the price usually received for livestock among the hill people. "That was the greatest dawg that ever run a 'coon in Turkey Bend," they say.

Canaries which never heard another birds sing have learned spontaneously.

Sinclair engineers have found that, by and large, the oldest crudes make the toughest motor oils. The crude oils used in making Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oils are among the oldest ever discovered.

Each of these oils gives a lubricating film that will withstand a pressure of more than 3 tons per square inch. This toughness has been proved on special Film-Breaking Machines in Sinclair's East Chicago Testing Laboratories.

Look for the dinosaur on the Tamper-Proof cans in which Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oils are sold.
