The largest class in the history of the Cisco high school will be graduated in exercises Monday evening, June 5.

Principal H. Brandon Saturday made public the names of 75 students who will receive diplomas at that time. The number is 10 more than last year.

The commencement address to the class will be made by Dr. J. A. Hill, president of West Texas State Teachers college, Canyon, and past president of the Texas State Teachers association. The complete program for the exercises however has not yet been announced.

It continues during this week with grammar school commencement exercises next Thursday evening at the high school auditorium. Names of those to be graduated from the grammar school to the high school together with the program will be announced by Principal O. L. Stamey.

Honor Night. Friday evening pupils entitled to recognition for meritorious work will be given certificates in "honor night" exercises. Pupils throughout the entire system will be thus honored.

The climax of the graduation season begins Sunday evening, June 4, with the baccalaureate sermon at the First Baptist church. It will be preached by the Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the church.

HENSON WILL PITCH PERRIN GAME TODAY

Satch Henson will pitch this afternoon's game for the Red Sox when they take on the strong Perrin nine in the game that will decide the Oil Belt loop leadership, according to Manager Dave Perry. Abbott is due to be on the receiving end of the Sox battery.

The Perrin club has lost only one game so far this season, that one to Cisco. With two already lost, the Redlegs hope to jam up the top rung of the league ladder by stopping Perrin today and moving up into a tie for first place. This afternoon's game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The Red Sox are to have some new boxes put in at Chesley park, according to word from Manager Perry. This will be a big improvement in the seating arrangement.

Following is the league standing at present:

Clubs	Won	Lost	Pct.
Perrin	9	1	900
Cisco	8	2	800
Mineral Wells	4	6	400
Strawn	3	7	300
Breckenridge	3	7	300

SPECTACULAR PAGEANTRY MARKS OPENING OF CENTURY OF PROGRESS EXPOSITION SATURDAY

CHICAGO, May 27.—To the boom of cannons and the blare of bugles, the gates to a Century of Progress were thrown open today and thousands poured into the exposition grounds. The fair is the 11th international exposition. To hundreds of thousands of first-day visitors it was a $30,000,000 symbol of industrial America's rise from wilderness, prairie and forest.

Jovial Bandit Robs "Tom" of Large Sum

DALLAS, May 27 — A Dallas business man, Matney, who ten days ago withdrew $5,000 from a bank for a pending business deal, was robbed today by a jovial bandit who called him by his first name. The bandit forced his victim to drive to the city limits then fled with companions in another car.

The unmasked highwayman boarded Matney's automobile at a street intersection. "Hello, Tom, I'm in a jam and you've got to help me," the bandit said. He forced Matney to drive to the airport where he was robbed of the purse containing $5,000 which Matney had hidden beneath his shirt.

LEGISLATURE TO CONFER ON CLOSING DATE

AUSTIN, May 27 — The house of the Texas legislature voted today to stay in session another week. By vote of 76 to 49 it went on record for quitting next Saturday at 6 p. m.

The senate previously had voted for adjournment Tuesday at 6 p. m. The senate refused to concur in the change of date and asked for a conference committee, hoping for agreement on Tuesday or Wednesday.

The house granted a conference to be held Monday morning. Rep. T. H. McGregor, Austin, declared the legislature would be "sunning from the president" if it adjourned before congress acts on the bill calling for suspension of federal anti-trust penalties during an industrial recovery period.

Agreement of both houses on the $9,216,515 educational appropriations bill late yesterday cleared the way for adjournment. The senate, late yesterday, killed a bill to prevent the state highway department from re-routing highways so as to miss towns when those highways already have been designated through towns.

Injunction Refused In Proration Suit

FORT WORTH, May 27—An end to the constant running in and out of court for oil injunctions urged by Circuit Judge J. C. Hutchesson Houston was believed to be in sight today.

A three-judge federal court here before which the state's oil production order for the east Texas field has been on trial two days, denied complainants an interlocutory injunction.

Judge Hutchesson expressed the hope the case would reach the U. S. supreme court for a final ruling to end the constant writing of orders and injunctions then new orders.

POLITICAL SHAKE-UP IS SEEN AS MORGAN PROBE AFTERMATH

WASHINGTON, May 27 — Four days of senate investigation have revealed J. P. Morgan and company as a railroad and public utilities power unrivaled in this country with tentacles of favoritism reaching out to politicians, government officials and men of wealth.

A political shake-up is predicted by many capitol observers as the likely aftermath of the revelation.

The senate investigation has been adjourned until Wednesday. Ferdinand Pecora's cross-fire of questions to Morgan partners was interrupted in the midst of the story of the United Corporation, a Morgan-conceived utilities holding company, which controls 22 to 23 per cent of the electrical energy produced in the United States and 22 per cent of the gas properties.

An executive meeting of the senate committee was held today. Sen. Glass renewed his argument that the inquiry is a "circus."

"All we need are peanuts and pink lemonade," Glass had complained.

W. O. W. to Present Juvenile Drill

The Woodmen of the World camp here will present a public demonstration of the floor work of the Juvenile department of the order at the Cisco Labor Temple on Third street Tuesday evening at 8, it was announced Saturday.

Texan Postpones World Hop Start

NEW YORK, May 27—Reports of adverse weather conditions caused James Mattern, Texas flier, to postpone the start of his world flight today. The storm area centered off Newfoundland.

For today's and tomorrow's celebrations, activity in the Big Lake field was virtually suspended. Charles E. Beyer, vice president and general manager of the Big Lake Oil company, announced that every possible employee was released over the week end to attend the festivities. A similar shutdown was effected at Elba Santa, field headquarters of the Texon Oil & Land company. The Texon company drilled the discovery Santa Rita well and, with the Big Lake Oil company, controls all the production in the Big Lake field.

PERMIAN BASIN ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

SAN ANGELO, Tex., May 27 — "Extra—Santa Rita No. 1 Blows in! May 28, 1923."

That stirring news item, published with streamer headlines ten years ago tomorrow, was recalled today as hundreds of Texas oil men, representing every phase of the gigantic industry, gathered here to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the event which initiated development of the great Permian Basin pool in Reagan county.

They came from Best, Iraan, McCamey, Crane, Wink, Odessa, Pecos, Gulf Coast and New Mexican fields.

They included geologists, land men, scouts, casinghead and gasoline plant operators, supply and equipment men, drillers, tool pushers, pipeliners, tank builders from all over West Texas, with a large representation from East Texas, Gulf Coast and New Mexican fields.

And it is San Angelo's party — everything is "on the house." Visitors' badges issued on registration provided the entrée to all events on the two-day program, with not an admission or registration fee anywhere on the long list.

When the Santa Rita blew in so spectacularly ten years ago, the money, brains and energy which led to development of the Big Lake pool, the Permian Basin's first major oil field, were set in action. San Angelo's population was tripled, the Orient railroad, ready for abandonment, was saved, and the University of Texas, through royalties from oil produced on its land, became one of the wealthiest institutions of its kind in the world.

For today's and tomorrow's celebrations, activity in the Big Lake field was virtually suspended. Charles E. Beyer, vice president and general manager of the Big Lake Oil company, announced that every possible employee was released over the week end to attend the festivities. A similar shutdown was effected at Elba Santa, field headquarters of the Texon Oil & Land company. The Texon company drilled the discovery Santa Rita well and, with the Big Lake Oil company, controls all the production in the Big Lake field.

Oil executives from many Texas cities were registered.

Today's program included an address by Buford Jester, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Texas, a barbecue followed by a golf tournament, swimming and boating, and fishing at the country club, and dancing tonight.

TICKERS LAG 42 MINUTES BEHIND TRADE

NEW YORK, May 27 — Spread of inflation psychology today resulted in one of the most active Saturdays in history on the stock exchange, soaring prices for grains a rise to new seasonal tops in cotton, a new three and a half year high in sugar, a 100 point rise in silver, and a sharp drop in the American dollar.

Sales totalled 4,300,100 shares, the largest Saturday session since May 3, 1930.

The word "close" was printed on the tape at 12:42 p. m. or 42 minutes after the last transaction was made.

Closing prices registered gains ranging to more than 10 points. Cotton increased $1 a bale after registering gains of $2 a bale late yesterday.

Stocks mounted to the best levels in two years with tickers so far behind the market traders were unable to use the tape for a guide.

A burst of strength in the grain market brought demand for the farm equipment shares and they also shot ahead to new highs.

GRAIN MARKETS BOUNDED UPWARD

CHICAGO, May 27 — The grain market bounded upward today, wheat taking a three and one-eighth to three and seven-eighths cents jump. Corn was one and a half to two and one fourth cents higher.

Elser Meets Old Friend Saturday

Max Elser for a short while Saturday renewed association with an old friend and former business associate, George Lettler, who was Elser's partner in drilling the first well for oil between Cisco and El Paso. The well proved a dry hole, Mr. Elser recalled.

He met Mr. Lettler on the Sunshine Special and went part of the way to Fort Worth with him. Mr. Lettler was accompanying his husband.

Mr. Lettler is a Fort Worth and west Texas pioneer, now wealthy and making his home in California. He and Mr. Elser drilled their well in 1911, seven years before the Ranger boom. Now he and his wife are en route, via Fort Worth where they will make a short visit, to Chicago and the Century of Progress Exposition. From Chicago they will go to Europe for an extended tour.

"HEART OF ECONOMIC CONFERENCE."

The June issue of Fortune magazine analyzes the status of America's "greatest and richest export," cotton. "At the very heart of the economic conference which meets in London this month is cotton," says its foreword. Pointing out that 8,000,000 bales must be exported annually and that as a result of low world prices some 8,000,000 Americans are earning less than the lowest paid European worker, Fortune asserts that the Roosevelt administration "looks with desperate hope to London." More important than this, is the editorial announcement that cotton is the only commodity not obstructed by tariff walls and quotas, for the very good reason "there is not in the immediate future, any combination of soil, climate, capital, and labor that can replace United States cotton as the major source of supply to the United States and the rest of the world."

Very pointedly Fortune says that the answer to how much cotton costs to raise "is exactly what it brings." More over that cotton is a cash crop raised on credit. On the basis of what one year's crop brings, credit agencies advance money for the next year. Hence, "if next year's price is higher everybody makes a profit; if the price falls, everybody loses."

Reviewing legislation at Washington, the magazine warns that no simple solution will be found, for the reason that whatever the plan, however it works, it offers the cotton farmer no panacea. There is a prediction by the editor of Fortune that "cotton price is a world price; that in spite of boom years now and then there is no hope that the United States cotton farmer's standard of living will ever be high so long as cotton is grown by Indians, Egyptians, and Chinamen who can live on three cents a day."

Fortune predicts the crop of 1933 will be a cash crop and the cheapest ever produced; that even six-cent cotton will make an operating profit and at eight cents money will flow; that banks will thaw, credit expand, and the corner will really have been turned—if cotton is still eight cents in the fall; that Texas remembers that it paid itself out of three years' debt with the rich crop of 1929."

50 YEARS FOR MACHINE GUN HIJACKERS.

Sen. Clint C. Small of the Amarillo district has sponsored a bill fixing the maximum penalty at 50 years' imprisonment for a person to use machine guns in committing crime.

The measure should be enacted without delay. A machine gun desperado should be placed behind the bars and kept there, while he remains in the land of the living.

Life should be made safe in Texas; property should be safeguarded and the criminal statutes should be enforced.

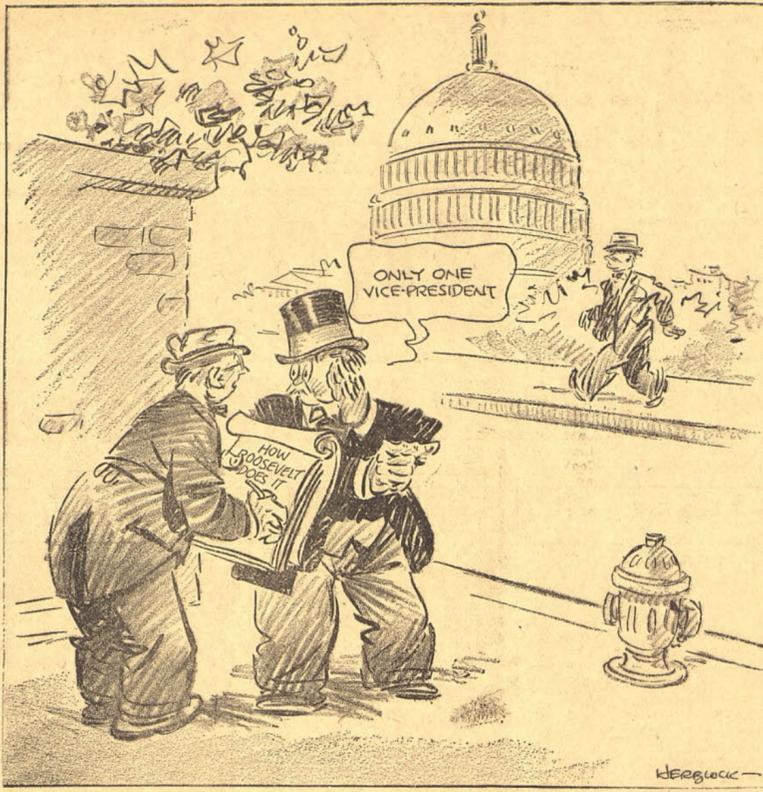

Kidnapers should be given the limit. Highway or bank robbers should be handled without gloves and given the law's limit.

SECURITIES SALES MEASURE ENACTED.

Another New Deal bill has been enacted. Publicity as a protective shield for investors in securities has been given final congressional approval. This happened when the senate adopted the conference report on the securities bill. It will require securities to be registered with the federal trade commission.

Sen. Hiram Johnson of California is responsible for the final draft of the measure which carried an amendment creating a corporation to help investors in defaulted foreign bonds to recover some of their money. There is another provision which provides that before any securities in the future can be sold or advertised in interstate commerce, they must be registered and the full light of publicity turned upon the details of their issuance. Violators will be subject to a fine of not more than $5000 or five years' imprisonment or both. "Justice travels with a leaden heel but it strikes mighty hard." Now enforce the protective measure.

This will be a terrible tax on these twelve million drinking families, as well as absolutely every other line of trade and industry. It is poor policy to go back to the old saloon. It would be a thousand times better to restrain and enforce prohibition which can easily be done if the wets would cooperate with the dries, and cease their terrific fare against the amendment.

Moore and O'Brien Tangle at Ranger

RANGER, May 27 — Ug Moore, popular collegian, will take on Jack O'Brien, tough Milwaukee brewer, here Monday night on the Elks club wrestling card. O'Brien has a victory over Tiger Billy McEun to his credit, while Moore has two wins and a loss as a result of his tangling with the Tiger.

In the opening match Bill Angus, who surprised the fans last week by throwing Speedy Franks, will swap grunts with Bulldog Collins, who bails from Little Rock. Woody Windham, Anson Kayo artist, is scheduled to meet Frankie Costello, of San Antonio, in a six-round boxing match.

From different sources come indications that might to the uninitiated appear to be a change of heart on the part of Congress towards disabled veterans.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

A Cisco quartet of baby golfers gave the Cisco high school a clean sweep of the Eastland county high school tournament at Ranger Friday. Four times Bill McMahon circled the nine-hole course to turn in a score of 140—four strokes under par. His first round was made in 38, or two over par. Thirty-four fell like clockwork in his next three rounds to cut him under the 148 standard for 36 holes. He took individual low.

Forbes Wallace teamed with young McMahon for a score of 297 in 36 holes and low for the two-man teams. Then these two boys teamed with Sentell Caffrey and Wendell Russell for 624 strokes around 36 holes and low for the four man team.

President R. L. Poe, of the chamber of commerce, is looking for young blood to handle arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration at Lake Cisco. He has not announced his committee yet but it is a safe bet that it will not include any of the members of the board of directors. And that isn't a slam at the directors, either. Most of these boys are so immersed in their own business affairs that they look with little enthusiasm upon a "thank you" job that requires a lot of work and draws down no pay. Young men haven't experienced enough criticism to make them cagey and they still have pep enough to see more possibility than difficulty. Mr. Poe has made a reputation locally as a diplomat. He also has a reputation for common sense.

My reference Thursday to un-sightly reminders of Cisco's bad fire record that should be removed drew a retort from city officials. I am told there has been some private robbing over the condition referred to. I was also told I should find out the facts before I speak; further, that enforcement of the ordinances with respect to these eyesores is besieged with legal difficulties and hampered by litigation. Well and good, so far as the explanation goes. What about the weeds and grass?

Letters From Our Readers

To The Cisco News
The wets have promised to raise $150,000,000 government revenue by the legalizing of 3.2 beer. To raise amount of revenue at $5 per barrel, the amount stipulated the brewers must sell thirty million barrels of beer each containing thirty one gallons. This means an average of seven gallons each for every man, woman and child in the United States. But notwithstanding a great advertising campaign in the newspapers, magazines and over the radio, not more than one half the population will be beer drinkers. Eliminate the minors, inmates of public institutions, total abstainers, railroad employees and tens of thousands of factory hands who will not be allowed to drink at all, and it will be conservative to say that not more than sixty million people can be depended upon to do drinking to raise this revenue. So each of the sixty million drinkers will have to consume fourteen instead of seven gallons.

Now, upon the foregoing figures, lets do a little figuring. Families are supposed to average five each, so this sixty million beer drinkers, would make twelve million families, to foot the bills. Now let us see what each of these twelve million families would have to pay annually to the government, the retailer and the brewer, in order to raise this so-called revenue.

No commodity has ever been taxed in excess of ten per cent of the gross sales of such commodity. So if each barrel as claimed will bring $5 revenue, it must sell for about $50 per barrel, at ten cents per drink, with say sixteen drinks of one half pint to the gallon, makes $1.60 per gallon, or $49.60 per barrel. This sum multiplied by 30,000,000 barrels makes the stupendous and staggering sum of $1,488,000,000 which twelve million families must spend for beer, averaging about $125 annually per family.

These figures of course apply only to beer, and if the eighteenth amendment is repealed, and the saloons reopened, then the figures can and will be doubled or more. Hence in that event, then each of the twelve million families, (Fully one half of the population will not drink) must spend as much as $250 annually for beer and hard liquor.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Mr. George Nelson Peek of Illinois, the veteran farm relief champion and manufacturer of farm machinery who will administer the drastic emergency agricultural act, has been waiting a long time for the chance

He was chairman of a committee at President Harding's national agricultural conference in 1922 which put through this resolution:

"Whereas the prices of agricultural products are far below the cost of production—so far below in the history of our country—that it is the sense of this committee that the Congress and the president of the United States should take such steps as will immediately re-establish a fair exchange value for all farm products with that of all other commodities."

That, of course, is exactly what the present Congress and present president declared as their specific objective in the new act, which seeks to restore the farmer's buying power as it existed before the war. Since 1924 Peek has been devoting all his time to the farmer's cause. He fought the nomination of Hoover in 1928, took charge of a heavily financed Democratic campaign to carry the west in 1928, later tried to get Congress to "investigate" Hoover, and worked for Roosevelt in 1932 when the farmers finally did revolt against the G. O. P.

THOMAS W. MITCHELL, the examiner who patiently dug up the evidence on the sensational stock market operations of Henry L. Doherty and Company in stock of the Cities Service Company which it manages, is another of those numerous university professors who have come into the government service—though not a member of the Roosevelt "brain trust." A distinguished appearing, heavy-set, medium height, slow and ponderous man in his early fifties, Mitchell has taught accounts and finances, economics or business administration at Pennsylvania, New York U. and Minnesota. He was statistician for the Harding conference on unemployment and has been a production engineer. For several years he has been engaged in the trade commission's public utilities investigation and is regarded as an excellent digger with a flair for penetrating the intricacies of financial operations.

AMERICAN Indians, who rejoiced when their friend and foremost champion, John Collier, was appointed Indian commissioner in the Department of the Interior, must be rolling with glee as they contemplate the rest of the new administrative set-up in the department. Secretary Harold Ickes has been an active crusader for Indian rights in Washington and elsewhere for 10 years. Oil, lumber and other commercial interests which have victimized Indians have tried but failed to land their candidates in top jobs of the Interior Department.

Legionaires Liked Welcome Address And Ask Daily News to Reproduce It

Editors' Note: Members of the John William Butts post of the American Legion liked the welcome address of W. H. LaRoque at the recent convention of the 17th district here so well that the post executive committee passed a resolution commending Mr. LaRoque and asking the editor of the Daily News to reproduce the speech, which is one as follows:

Legionaires and Ex-Service Men: It has fallen to my lot to welcome you here today and I am glad.

You are not only welcome today but again and again when it shall be your pleasure to return.

We not only welcome you to our city but we welcome you to share our hospitality and whatever in the way of entertainment we may have to offer.

Our hotel facilities, our clean streets, paved that your progress may not be impeded in time of rain nor dust-ridden in time of drought. Welcome to our churches and your children to our schools if perchance you should decide to move to our city at some future time.

And in urging this welcome upon you, may we insist that you return in the very near future to renew the friendships made today and more fully enjoy the things we are so happy to offer you now.

Today as you are gathered here, carrying on in the civil pursuits of life, trying to forget the scenes of carnage, of bloody conflict in a foreign land where many of your comrades made the supreme sacrifice to uphold the honor and ideals of your country, the fields and woods of far away France are in bloom with beautiful and fragrant flowers—flowers that are sending out their perfume like the hovering spirits of departed Buddies that remain in memory to comfort and enoble the lives of surviving World War veterans, who like you, are becoming the men on whose shoulders the responsibilities of the nation rest today.

Despite the gathering of such bodies as are here this afternoon and Memorial Day celebration that recur from year to year, memory of those frightful days will grow dimmer and dimmer, and we'll in a sense forget. But let us do forget, let's not allow to die the determination to avenge in future a recurrence of those conflicts, conflicts and wastes of money, life and blood that undermine the flower of manhood of nations and hurl them from a sane balance of peace to that of flying at each others throats.

And so with that lesson in mind to avoid it possible every influence that would lead us into another such struggle, let's turn our intellect and strength toward the making of ours a sane government—of making it a safe government. Let us learn if we may the arts of living well—of directing the policies of those we elect to power toward allowing every man the opportunity of work—of building a home and of a healthy happiness—that America may be made the greatest nation of the earth. Not that it matters to be known as great, but because of the ideals that shall make it great.

We have seen the devastation of tragedy and conflict. It remains for us as a nation devoted to the arts of husbandry and industry to so meet the issues of the hour as to make unnecessary the repetition of such sacrifice as comes to the mind of everyone here at this hour.

This means striving for peace by every device approved by experience as sane. It does not mean, however, dwelling in a fool's paradise. It cannot mean that our nation shall adopt a policy of non-resistance while other nations shall arm for aggression. Armies, navies and air-defense may become obsolete only when police are no longer needed—when humanity has progressed to a degree of perfection not yet attained.

So the sun rises on another day, sacred to memories undimmed by time as we allow the picture of the past fade away as the mist before this sun, and new duties and obligations confront us—obligations made when your Buddies died. If it was necessary for those who fell by our sides to die that we might live, it entails upon us the duty to live our lives well—if they died that an ideal might endure, it becomes our duty to carry on with that ideal to its consummation—to cultivate it with diligence and industry—to water and tend it with the care of a housewife for a tender flower—for indeed, it is a flower grown out of the death of young manhood—just as real flowers are blooming on the graves of your Buddies Over There.

the world might be safe and our nation go on—And You Are Living To See That It Does.

CANNY COOKERY Sister Mary Gives You Hints on Using Fruits and Vegetables

This is the last of three articles by Sister Mary advising young brides on the problems of house-keeping.

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

MANY a bride approaches her first days in the kitchen with some misgivings but the science of cooking is as definite and obvious as two plus two.

Undoubtedly, there is a "knack" for various branches of cookery, but success is not a matter of luck.

If you think of a recipe as nothing more nor less than a "formula" you will understand the necessity for accuracy in measuring, precision in method of procedure and careful attention to detail.

Hints for Cooking Fruits There are certain well established rules for the cooking of meats and fruits and vegetables.

Whenever fruit is cooked, be it fresh or dried, do not add sugar until the fruit is tender. If sugar is added sooner, the skin tends to toughen and the texture of the fruit is hard, nor will the fruit be as sweet and delicately flavored.

Never let fruit stand in water. Wash it thoroughly and carefully, then drain and use.

Don't "Drown" Vegetables Vegetables should be cooked in as little water as possible to prevent burning. Take care not to over-cook them and serve them as soon as they are done. Cook in actively boiling water and add salt when they are half-cooked.

Monday's Menu BREAKFAST: Orange juice, cereal, cream, baked eggs, toast, milk, coffee. LUNCHEON: Casserole of spring vegetables, brown bread and cottage cheese sandwiches, drop cookies, milk, tea. DINNER: Roast shoulder of lamb, browned new potatoes, peas in cream, tomato stuffed with cabbage and pineapple, rhubarb parfait, milk, coffee.

When a sauce is made for vegetables, it will be finer flavored if half milk and half vegetable stock is used.

To Make White Sauce

White sauce of varying degrees of richness is generally liked with most vegetables. A thin sauce, the consistency of rich cream, is delicious over green beans and peas. A thicker sauce that coats the vegetable is used for new potatoes and cauliflower. But no matter how thick the sauce may be, it is always made the same: Melt the butter, stir in the flour and slowly add, stirring constantly, the liquid which should be cold.

Big Pow-Wow Is Planned by Indians

BROWNING, Mont., May 27—A pow-wow with modern trimmings is planned by Piegian Indian members of the Blackfeet Nation, following discovery of oil on the Blackfeet Reservation, near Cut Bank.

The Indians already have received some $50,000 from the leases of their oil land. Recently the first well in the reservation was brought in as a producer, and drilling of another well is to be started soon.

The Indians will receive a one-eighth royalty of all oil produced from their lands.

Shiny new automobiles are expected to appear in numbers at the pow-wow, in addition to new clothing, new luxuries, and new ornaments bought with the oil money.

The pow-wow is expected to be of greater significance than a mere tribal celebration also. In the past older men have dominated affairs taken up in the tribal council. Now, however, younger and in many instances college trained braves are expected to gain leadership.

NOTICE ENDED SEARCH

BATTLE GROUND, Wash., May 27—For 22 years, Mrs. H. R. Morris sought word of her brother Lee Fletcher. Looking at obituaries in a paper of a town 25 miles distant she saw his death notice. He had lived there 14 years.

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONICA O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, is in love with DAN CARROLL, heir to a local fortune. They are secretly engaged. BILL O'DARE worries his mother by planning to marry ANGIE GILLEN, who has not yet got her divorce.

SANDRA LAWRENCE, who pretends to be Monica's friend, is trying to win Dan from her. Sandra discharges two servants and they try to kidnap her. She escapes. Dan's mother and sister plan a trip to a Wyoming dude ranch. Sandra is to accompany them. Dan does not want to go but finally is persuaded.

MISS ANSTICE COREY, an old friend of the O'Dares, inherits $50,000 and asks Monica to go to Europe with her. CHARLES EUSTACE, newcomer to town, pays Monica attentions. She is not interested, writing him waiting for a letter from Dan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII

SANDRA said, "You've been awfully sweet to me, Danny." Her voice broke a little on the words. She was leaning against the fireplace, the sweep of gray stone behind her throwing into high relief the perfect contour of her honey colored head. The flames from the big logs threw shadows on the blue velvet lounging pajamas she wore and Dan thought, quite idly, that she made a graceful picture. He was in riding clothes, casual and smartly western even to the big handkerchief knotted about his throat. They were alone—except for the Chinese servants. His mother and the rest of the party had gone to see a picture show at Benning, eight miles away.

"It's all right," he said rather awfully. "I had to do anything I could. You had a rotten time of it and you've been a good little soldier."

"Do you honestly think so, Dan?" Her eyes shone. This was the praise she wanted about all else. "Of course I do," Dan reflected that it was something of an effort, supplying Sandra with the moral courage she needed. Only this morning his mother had said to him firmly, "You've simply got to pour confidence into that poor nervous child, son. She's splendid but she had a shock and it is our duty to see her through this bad time."

Ever since the kidnaping Sandra had been having "bad headaches" and "wretched nights." It was not, she said with a charmingly patient smile, at all like her to go to pieces this way. The others agreed and pointed out how brave she had been through the dreadful experience itself. Now—well, Sandra needed Dan to lean on. She seemed perfectly content, perfectly happy when he was murmuring in her ear, when they sat at table, side by side.

"You're awfully good for me," she would say softly with a sideways glance at him. Dan felt, in a puzzled way, that he was committing himself to something without knowing what it was all about.

"Sure you didn't want to see that picture?" he said now, hoping to change the subject.

"No, honestly," Sandra said with pretty eagerness. "I'm perfectly content—perfectly—just to sit here and talk. Isn't it cozy?" DAN agreed, stuffing his pipe and settling himself in the big leather chair opposite.

into me lately. I—somehow I seem to be changing. This time last year I thought of nothing but tearing around. I was in Monte Carlo in October—having the most wonderful time. And now—

Dan prompted her. "And now what?"

"Well, I seem to be perfectly contented with the simplest sort of things. Books and good friends—"

Her limpid gray eyes besought him to understand.

Dan, sensing dangerous ground, said gruffly, "What about Monte Carlo? Did you have a good time there? Father wouldn't take us when we were over. Said it was a gambling hell and he didn't want us to go near it."

"Oh, Dan, how quaint!" Her laugh rippled. "I can't imagine—"

She broke off suddenly to say quickly that of course his father was a dear—so upright—so charming! But Dan had to admit he was a bit old-fashioned.

"I'd love to show you the place," she said with enthusiasm. "Oh, the times I had on the Riviera last autumn! It was all too marvelous. There was a count who rushed me frantically. Honestly, Danny, I almost took him up. He was the best looking thing! And there were two Englishmen—don't you adore the British?" She broke off to inquire. "Can't say I do," said the man. "Considering that my forebears came from County Sligo, I'm not so crazy about them."

"Well, I do—simply adore them. You're rather like an English country gentleman yourself, Dan. Big and taciturn—and handsome."

"Oh, cut it, won't you?" growled Dan, pleased in spite of himself. Sandra's light laugh rippled again. "I never saw such a boy," she declared. "Just a great big bear. That's what he is!"

Firelight, setting, all were lost on him.

"What did you say, Dan?"

"I—uh—I was just thinking. He tapped his pipe against the hearth, pretending it needed cleaning. Sandra gave him a swift, appraising glance. Then she said in a low voice. "There's something I've been wanting to talk to you about."

"The man raised his eyes, watchful, guarded. "Shoot."

Sandra shrugged her shoulders. "It's just that, well, I like so our being friends that I hope a certain person won't misunderstand."

"Who d'you mean?"

SANDRA gave him a limpid look. "S all girlish ingenuousness. "You big silly. I mean Monica, of course."

Dan drawled, "Why should Monica mind?" He had to be genuine on his guard now lest he give the whole show away. Sandra was not to know how he felt about Monica. Nor anyone else, for that matter.

Sandra drew her small feet in the gilt mules up under her. "Well, of course, she's always been simply mad about you, dear boy, and you know it," she commenced in that relishing, judicial tone which somehow irked her listener.

"Rot!" he said crudely.

"Oh, I know there used to be something on your side, too! A boy and girl infatuation, I suppose. We've all had them," admitted Sandra. "It passes and we wonder why on earth—"

She paused and Dan, staring moodily at the flames, did not help her out.

"Monnie's a wonderful girl," he said gruffly, after a rather awkward pause.

"Don't I know it?" Sandra was all gentleness now. She seemed satisfied to have made her point. "She's hard working and good and quiet," said Sandra, damning her rival with the faintest possible praise. "But after all, Danny, you and I know you're not the man for her."

Dan, holding his temper in leash with an effort, asked why. "Oh, I don't know," Sandra narrowed her eyes. "You want—well, more excitement if you ask me. And of course in a wife you want poise—experience. Poor dear Monnie is pretty, of course, but she's so frightfully unsophisticated. She's not going your way, you wild, big, bad man, you!"

REWARD FOR STRAYS TOMBSTONE, Ariz., May 27—Stray cattle and horses so annoyed the citizens of this former roaring mining camp of early western days that the city council posted a reward of 50 cents a head for each animal taken to the pound.

The average American citizen is not the ignoramus some people think him. He is watching closely the further taxation and increase in the public debt, which is put over under the guise of improvement of this or that industry by a paternal government of whose assessments for services rendered he has a surfeit.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON E. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Much attention must be given to still better roads.

They always seem to be doing something unusual in California. My old friend, James Barrett, managing director of the Oklahoma Biltmore Hotel, tells me that the California state legislature recently passed a bill taxing gasoline pumps at the rate of one dollar per year. Jim says that he hopes they won't put a tax on the famous California sunshine.

The sale tax seems to be a hobby of many of our national law-makers. What a lot of explaining they will have to do when they return home!

The law was passed by the last legislature.
