Cisco's Trades Day Programs Are Proving Popular

Cisco's second Trades Day event drew a much larger crowd than attended the initial program presented a week ago when the Lobo band entertained.

The added time for advertisement of the event and the success of the first program increased the interest in the series of Saturday evening programs that the merchants of Cisco are sponsoring in an endeavor to extend Cisco's trade territory to a point commensurate with the prestige that the city should have in its section. This was evident from the size of the crowd which jammed the space on Fourth street front of the Commercial hotel and listened to the music provided by the Marx Brothers (colored) orchestra, popular music-making or-ganization of the city and to the other features of the program as presented by Ted Smith, director of the Trades Day campaign. Next Saturday evening an old fiddler's contest will be the headline attraction on the open air bill. Fiddlers who wish to enter this contest are directed to file their names at the chamber of commerce not later than 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The program will begin at 7 o'clock when prizes will be awarded for the best presentations of old style fiddling.

The place for the program will be announced later in the week.

RATE MONDAY

Mayor J. T. Berry and Comm'r J. T. Elliott returned yesterday afternoon from Fort Worth where they attended the special called meeting of the Texas League of Municipalities prepared to recommend to the city commission at its regular session Monday afternoon passage of an ordinance arbitarily cutting the consumer gas rate in Cisco from 75 cents per 1,00 cubic feet to a lower figure. They named no minuimum price basis, declaring that this would be determined upon "after careful investigation" and a hearing with the utlity companies on the question.

The two city officials left Thursday afternoon and attended the hearings which took up practically all day Friday.

The League meeting, called especially to deal with the gas utility question, unanimously passed a reso lution calling upon all cities in the state in which gas is distributed to make the necessary investigations and pass ordinances establishing what in the opinion of each would be a reasonable price. The purpose of this uited action was pointed out to be an effort to impress upon the utilities companies the general demand for the reductions.

Previous Meeting The Cisco commission a few days ago held a called meeting in which the question of passing an ordinance cutting the existing domestic gas rate from 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to 50 cents was considered. On the grounds that such action would be hasty and involve the city in great deal of litigation where would be at a disadvantage, the commission decided instead to bide

THIS ECONOMIC PROBLEM.

How to get the old economic machine out of the slough and to rolling ahead on the highway of prosperity is a question that no one seems able to answer, much less to provide a solution for. For the past 18 months the nation, and the greater part of the world, for that matter, has had a good case of the dumps. It has been like the morning after, with a terrific headache to remind the old globe of its orgiastic revelry in speculation and high prices. Prices boomed and with prices production. Everybody was after all he could get. Now that he has it he doesn't know what to do with it. Somewhere on the economic rails a lot of congestion has taken place. Production has backed up until stores and graineries are bursting with plenty, while the millions who would normally consume this produce are without the wherewithall to purchase it. The medium of exchange, the specie which represents value, has become twisted into some terrible snarls. Intrinsic value, represented by the commodities produced and necessary to human sustenance, is rotting

It is, to put it frankly, the devil of a situation and it doesn't look all too healthy for the capitalistic system which has permitted itself to acquire an over-emphasis in some quarters with a resulting overbalance.

Remedies for the sickness are plentiful. Everyone, from the street corner politician to the high "muckitymuck" who reigns in the upper stratum of the business and social world, has his pet panacea.

Nations, many of them on the ragged edge of financial security, are grappling heroically with the question, resorting to all manner of expedients in frantic efforts to balance their budgets. Brought face to face with the bare truth that national independence means in the final analysis inter-dependence, the powers of the world have rushed to the financial aid of one tottering member after another with sort of financial Alpine rope that affords a community of

The prime necessity of providing buying power among the masses as a means of restoring the clogged channels of circulation is the aim of most programs that have been advanced. Work for the working man is the cry, and every exponent of a doctrine of relief calls upon agencies of government and business to provide work for the working man. Public works are looked upon as the means of bringing about the necessary employment and a widespread program of this character, which must of necessity be supported by public money, is-embodied in almost all proposed solutions. But the fault with such an expedient lies in the fact that HE WON no economic system can depend upon the government for support. Such a system must stand upon its own feet and it admits a serious weakness if in times of particular stress or crisis it applies to the government for relief. It is, of course, a patent fact that it can and should complain of restrictions that hamper and to the extent that it appeals for the removal of unjust regulations it can seek relief, but, from the previous standpoint, the economic system is appealing for succor to something which it itself supports. In the final analysis he had enough papers unsold to take and there was recognition on each were symbols of this new movethe expedient of appealing for governmental sustenance en- all his hoped-for profits. courages paternalism. It requires money to support huge governmental programs and to supply public money it is necessary to levy taxes. The effect of the efforts which have so far been made in the direction of bolstering the economic structure with public work is already being seen in the trouble which the and he didn't know the meaning of nation and the states, specifically our own state, are having many of the bigger words. But one ance had come and they were in keeping taxation down. The tax curve, even in this perior waiting for a customer his even. The old captain was down on the od of decreasing values and rising dollar buying power, is rising. Even the 69 cent rate prevailing in the state this year, is, measured in dollar buying power, a far higher rate of the paper against accidents for of the paper against accidents for of the paper against accidents for the box. And this was what the capod of decreasing values and rising dollar buying power, is Obviously there is little prospect of getting out of the economic hole through paternalistic governmental operaeconomic hole through paternalistic governmental operations. That is merely another version of the unethical custometric in the district and asked his feller—to—hell—if—he—kills tom of robbing Peter to pay Paul. Rather, it would seem, blue-coated friend to read it and the government could perform a more effective service by taking such steps as will serve to get rid of the millstone of gold that hangs around the national neck. England's action in suspending its gold standard is regarded by many leading bankers and financiers as a hopeful event and the effect of the action in restoring body to the national currency, is revealed in a healthful influence upon the British markets. The United States' allegiance to its gold standard may contain the crux of the present problem.

Looking back over Paul's career one realizes how essentially that faith in God's providence and in the ways in which that providence was manifested was justified. If Paul had surrendered to outward circumstances, if he had refused to pursu his ministry at the very risk of his life, certainly he never could have achieved what actually was accomplished In times of discouragement, in imes when we feel that all things are against us and that everything is cpeless, it is worth while to rememher Paul's profound belief that God guides men and brings them to the rich fulfillment of their mission.

Tim. the fittle youngster Tops'l Barney and I saved from the sinkin ship. Laughin Lou is goin to spin a yarn for you today. Here it is.

"Chee, Bill, fer a kid I've had a tough time of it. Me mudder died when I wasn't bigger'n a skeeter's hind leg. Me ol' man would get drunk an' lam me wit' a strap, so I got t'hangin' round de docks in Liverpool, hookin' grub from de ships an' sleepin' in any place I c'd find to crawl into. Me only pal was Skipper, me parrot, dat I fished out of de water one time

"One cold night Skipper'n I climbed into de hold of a ship, de Laughin' Lou, and went t'sleep in a box o' straw. Strike me pink if our box wasn't slidin' and dancin' 'bout de hold when we opened our peepers de next mornin 'Cripes I says to Skipper 'We're at sea!' Just then a big goril-

Race consciousness is one of the political mainstays of Hitlerism One of the chief concerns of Thuringia's former Hitlerite Minister of Interior, Wilhelm Frick, was to ban-ish jazz from the country in order to preserve racial purity. Hitlerite youths have staged furious demonstrations in theaters where modern operas using jazz motif, such as Krenek's "Johnny," were performed.

Since racialists regard Russians as inferior, Hitlerites tend to become anti-Russian as well as anti-Bolshevist. Their Utopia is a world-wide alliance of Teutopic peoples— Germans, Nordics, Anglo-Saxons exercising a paternal rule over all the "inferior" nations — Latins, Slavs, Jews, Mongols and Negroes.
