DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE AFFLICTION OF THE GODLY.—Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all.—Psalm 34: 19.

END OF THE LAME DUCK SYSTEM.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has won his battle for the abolition of the lame duck congress after many years of courageous service. His new constitutional amendment has been put before the legislatures of the 48 commonwealths for ratification. This grand old man of Nebraska has the courage of a lion and the tenacity of a bulldog. His proposal to abolish the lame duck session of congress received the approval of the United States senate by a vote of 73 for and 3 against, and was dispatched to the state department for submission to the states. It must be ratified by the required 36 states within seven years. Only the day before final ratification of the lame duck bill another of the Norris legislative plans, a bill to restrict the use of injunctions in labor disputes, went smashing through the senate by a vote of 75 to 5. All this after a nine-year struggle led by the veteran from the Platte river country.

Senator Norris of all the so-called progressive republicans is the most thoroughly independent. Indeed, he is the most thoroughly independent of all American senators. He is a republican and a dry and yet he follows his own flag. In 1928 he refused to vote for Hoover and Curtis. He cast his ballot for Smith and Robinson. In 1930 he was returned to the senate by a great majority running as a republican nominee as a candidate for reelection. Now the two pet measures of his life have been given the sanction of the American congress.

TEXAS AS A PRODUCER OF MOHAIR.

In 1932 United States mohair production was 19,111,000 pounds of which more than 85 per cent, 15,400,000 pounds, was produced in Texas. For a ready reference the Pat Morris Neff Centennial address should be given wide circulation. It covered the story of Texas for 100 years and it is a classic from beginning to end. Is there to be a centennial celebration? There is an amendment to the constitution that must be adopted before the preliminaries, meaning legislative appropriations. All the electors are invited to return their verdict at the November election this year. Why not a centennial celebration? Why not tell it to the world as well as show to the world the record of achievement of 100 glorious years?

JOHN BULL ON THE ROAD TO RECOVERY.

John Bull isn't a bankrupt. John pays his debts. He keeps his pledges. In other words, the British government will pay a large sum, estimated around $150,000,000, this week to 140 American banks. He borrowed the money last August. He didn't ask for a moratorium. He had the coin. We shipped it across the Atlantic. He met his obligations. John Bull always staggers through. He always comes right side up. Now he is off the gold standard and is riding the crest of the wave brought about by his new high tariff system. Money talks. John Bull's gold resources are great. It is said that the British people own one billion pounds sterling in gold sovereigns and manufactured gold articles. All loyal Brits are turning in their gold ornaments to the mint for melting purposes. All gold art treasures are being turned in. There is a time coming when France and the United States will not control the gold supply of the world.

SPAIN IN THE MARKET FOR TOBACCO.

The Spanish republic is in the market for 14,500,000 pounds of American tobacco. Tobacco of the Kentucky, Virginia or Tennessee type is wanted. Only 6,000,000 pounds of American tobacco was taken by the Spanish monopoly last year.

America has tobacco for sale. America has cotton for sale. America has wheat for sale. Foreign markets are needed. Figures available indicate that continued heavy buying by Japan was making some inroads into the surplus of American cotton. Since August 1 Japan has purchased 1,569,302 bales, more than double the total purchase for the Japanese account this time last year. Chinese purchases for the season now total 883,769 bales against 146,676 bales for the same period one year ago.

Federal aid is to be extended to the farmers of the country. Cut in acreage production will figure largely in these loans. There must be a 35 per cent acreage cut compared with 1931. No acreage reduction, no loan. Business is business. The grower must pledge himself to grow food-stuff and feedstuffs, which is a wise provision.

FEEDING THE HUNGRY IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

In New York the home relief bureau is spending $78,000 a day aiding the idle workers. Home aid has cost $1,500,000 to date. Sharp increase in relief work elsewhere than in New York was shown in the last report made by the Russell Sage foundation. As for Manhattan island investigation shows that four out of five who registered need assistance. New York has the largest relief unit in the world. More than 50 per cent of the applicants have never in their lives before had to accept any public or private aid. In 81 American cities grants to the needy in 1931 totalled $167,000,000 as compared with $43,670,000 in 1929. New York state has a population of 13,000,000. Every 10th person is receiving public aid. These are official figures. Moreover, the vast majority represents those who are idle through no fault of their own.

UNDELIVERED MAIL. The postoffice department at Washington has been trying for years to educate the users of the mails to write legibly, address carefully and place names of streets and numbers of houses on their communication, but without appreciable reducing the number of pieces of mail matter that find their way to the dead-letter office.

While trying to impress users of the mails with the need for care in packing and addressing, the department recognizes that much of the vast tonnage of dead letter mail might be delivered if more care were exercised by some postal employees. Sometimes it seems the civil service clerk does not use as much ingenuity and patience in deciphering blind addresses as he did in the days when John Wanamaker was postmaster general.

How many postal employees in the dead-letter office or in the city post offices could safely deliver to an obscure person in Oswego county a letter addressed to Horsewigger, Horsewigger county, America? It was done under the administration of Wanamaker by a woman employee who had the happy thought that the letter was superfluous. Let it be remembered, however, that the volume of mail has multiplied many times since Wanamaker's day and that the difficulties of making deliveries have increased with it. Investigation might even disclose that the percentage of mail that reaches the dead letter office is now smaller than ever, although troubles of the postal service keep pace with increasing population.—Paris News.

Did You Ever Stop to Think? BY EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

W. C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company (N. J.), says: "The biggest problem of government in the United States today is control of taxation. This demands better planning and closer supervision of appropriations, and of public expenditures made under them. At the rate the local and national governments have been traveling since 1917 we may live to see the day when every private citizen will be carrying one public employee on his back. Already taxes are consuming such a large proportion of individual and corporate income as to leave no margin, in many instances, for the accumulation of new capital or savings. The gasoline tax, originally moderate and accepted as a proper charge upon the motorist for the improved roads he uses, has become a football of politics. Its original justification has been lost sight of in many states and the proceeds used

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer WASHINGTON—Japan is acting as other powerful nations have acted and will act as long as the present international scheme of things is maintained, according to Mr. Muien I. Takata.

Takata is American correspondent for the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokio Nichi-Nichi, two of Nippon's largest newspapers. He is a keen little fellow, about five feet tall, who runs around between the Japanese embassy and the State Department for news. He also cables home excerpts from editorials in U. S. newspapers on Shanghai developments.

Doesn't Defend Actions RECENT methods of his government evoke no passionate defense from the rather pacifistic Takata, but he feels the United States and the world ought to understand how it is with Japan and make allowances. His idea is that Japan learned occidental ways from the western powers and has not yet finished the program which their examples inspired.

Cites Sino-Jap Hatred "JAPANESE and Chinese hate each other as nations, but no more than the French and Germans," he says. "If you must have a parallel for the bombardment at Shanghai, which I do not say was justifiable, please recall that Americans bombarded and killed hundreds of citizens in Nicaragua a few years ago and gave the country a new president satisfactory to Washington. They finally brought peace and safeguarded their interests there. Japan has no other objectives in Manchuria. "Economically hard pressed, she intensified her march in Manchuria, though not for territory. Natural resources are necessary to her existence. Great Britain and the United States long ago provided for their natural resources, sometimes by similar means.

Says Women Are Snipers "KILLING of prisoners is in no way justifiable, but it happened in unwarranted ways as a means of spreading patronage and graft. It is now so high in a number of states as to make its evasion more profitable than the legitimate business of marketing gasoline. In several states the total amount received by the treasurer has diminished as the rate per gallon has gone up. It is now so large an item in the cost of motoring as to seriously affect the use of automobiles. The nation is saddled today with an unusual burden to make provision for the needy among our 7,000,000 unemployed. At the same time the usual sources of taxable revenues have diminished and some of them have dried up. So we have on the one hand less money coming in, and on the other, extraordinary payments to be made. This circumstance dictates more intelligent handling of legislation, which will be achieved only when the great body of citizens take a proper interest in the affairs of their communities and demand a better brand of government than they have been receiving.

Evidence in---

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE opinion hostile to Cisco as a basis for justifying punitive action has been privately urged in localities where previous intrigues and strong rivalries have offered fruitful soil for the objective. That in a meeting of representatives of three towns "it seems to have been concluded that Cisco should be notified that the district had in mind considering its suspension and representatives of the towns of Breckenridge, Ranger and Eastland were requested to notify members of the Cisco school board" and that "no such notice was ever given and the only intimation that Cisco had of this action was by reason of a friend of a Cisco man advising him confidentially that this was in contemplation and requesting that he hold the matter in confidence."

No Intimation. That the district committee was requested by the Breckenridge representative to call a meeting for the purpose of re-opening the Hightower case on or about February 1 and that Cisco was informed a majority of the members of that committee did not favor reopening the case as requested by Breckenridge and for this reason a meeting at that time was not called. "The representative of the Cisco schools nor any member of the Cisco school board had any intimation," the brief asserts, "that Mr. Holland had in mind raising the question of the eligibility of Hightower, much less the suspension of Cisco at the meeting that was called for February 27th at Abilene."

The brief supporting the motion for suspension of Cisco at the meeting February 27th the aggressors stressed that the executive committee had had no additional evidence from Cisco since December 4, the date of the second hearing, which evidence was claimed insufficient, to support a decision favoring Cisco. This statement was the only evidence introduced by Breckenridge in urging Cisco's suspension.

No Chance Given. In view of this statement of the Breckenridge representative, the brief says: "The chairman of the committee was present at this time and if Mr. Holland had in mind a fair and impartial hearing in connection with this matter, rather than having Cisco suspended and thus justifying the loss of the Cisco-Breckenridge game, he could easily have ascertained from the chairman that Cisco had asked for a re-hearing to present further evidence, and had sought to do the very thing he favored suspending Cisco for not doing. The mere fact that this drastic action was taken without any character of evidence shows conclusively that it was a pre-arranged agreement or plan for the taking of this action."

"We cannot conceive of any reason why, in any system or organization, there should be any necessity for a clandestine meeting without the various members of the organization being notified of such a meeting, particularly the organization or group charged. If for any reason those holding the meeting felt that there was any member of the Cisco schools who should not attend, then certainly they should have gotten in touch with other officials of the school system in order that the town, the school, the system and the citizenship as a whole might have a fair and equitable opportunity of defense."

This brief which sums up Cisco's attitude with respect to the case, does not review the evidence which Cisco will present in substantiating its claim of the eligibility of Hightower. The evidence, including letters, telegrams, affidavits and records is being assembled and will be reviewed in a meeting to be held possibly tonight it was announced.

Roping and Riding Two New "Rs" Added To Curriculum of "Cowboy College"

ODESSA, March 7. — Ropin' and ridin' are two new "Rs" that are added to the curriculum of West Texas' unique institution — the Circle-Bar Ranch school — a "cowboy college." In addition to learning, readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetick, the boys spend many hours in the open learning riding, roping, cattle judging, how to use firearms and many other phases of plainscraft. The school is established by two former athletes at Texas Christian university, Homer and Otho Adams, on their 21,000 acre ranch in Pecos county. The school is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country. The two Adams and Dr. W. R. Calvert, A. B., M. S., Ph. D., from Nebraska compose the faculty. All three supervise the academic work and Otho and Homer supervise the out of door activities. Recent financial reverses on account of the cattle market gave the idea to the Adams for the school. At the first of the year the school was established and four pupils are enrolled for the spring semester. The students are housed in a large, roomy dormitory. All the subjects offered by high schools and junior colleges are offered and credits received are recognized by all major universities and colleges in the southwest. The student body during the fall and spring terms is limited to 10 pupils but a summer school is planned to which 40 students will be admitted. The students for the first term are Tyson Searcy, son of a prominent San Antonio lawyer and nephew to Houston's mayor; Charles

The time-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful Ellen Rossiter, salesgirl in Barclay's Department store works at night as a dance hall hostess at Dreamland. She lives with her extravagant mother, Molly Rossiter, her elder sister, Myra and her young brother, Mike.

Steven Barclay, 37 and owner of Barclay's, is in love with Ellen. Twice she refuses to marry him because she loves Larry Harrowgate, an artist. She loses her heart to Larry in spite of the fact that his engagement to Elizabeth Boves, a debutante, has been announced. Larry asks Ellen to meet his mother, then sends a note saying he can not keep the engagement. He also says he will be unable to see her for some time. Heart-broken, Ellen reads in a newspaper that Elizabeth Boves had returned from Europe.

her work from day to day — those were the important things. Other people helped. Salomon was kind, indulgent of her frequent absences. Lorenz was kind, too. Ellen felt she hardly deserved so much thoughtfulness.

What had she done for Lorenz or for Salomon that they should take such pains to make things easy for her? Above all, what had she done for Steven that his business, his other interests, his other friends should give way before her immediate need of him?

Ellen did not need him. She had hours of weakness and despair. Mike did not rally from the operation as they had hoped he would. To be sure he was cross and irritable but those healthy signs were outweighed by spells of languor when nothing interested or amused him.

Ellen flings herself into work, trying to forget Larry. Gradually she comes to think less of him and more of Steven Barclay. One day at the store she receives a message that her brother has been struck by a truck. Rushing home she finds the child is dangerously ill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII

The doctor's distressed eyes peered uncertainly at the tense, trembling girl. He had known Ellen for years.

"My dear child, a private room isn't necessary," he said. "I know you will be glad to tell you can't afford it. Mike might be a little more comfortable if things were otherwise, but he's getting the best of care. You understand, Ellen, private rooms, private rooms—those things have to be paid for in advance."

She had put it all as gently as possible but the girl burned with indignation. She wanted to cry out to him that it wasn't necessities she wanted for Mike but all the luxuries, all the comforts that only money would buy. Instead she turned abruptly away.

"Come on, mother," she said quietly. "We must go."

When they reached home Molly was still crying bitterly, softly, helplessly. Steven's car stood in front of the apartment house. Lorenz must have told him what had happened. Ellen saw him before the others did and thought that never had she been so glad to see anyone.

She ran from the cab to meet him. As she felt the clasp of his hands and looked into his anxious, troubled eyes she thought she could break into tears of thanksgiving.

From then on everything went as she had known it would. There was no need for her to ask anything. Steven arranged it all. He telephoned the hospital and ordered a private room for Mike.

He arranged for special nurses. He made an appointment for his personal physician to call at the hospital to see the child. He reserved a room at the hospital for Molly so she might stay there if she wished.

They saw Mike that night. He was conscious but tired and wan, too sick from ether and exhaustion to smile at those who loved him. He only turned his ruffled, boyish head and looked at them.

The girls left then but Molly stayed on.

Queer, topsy-turvy days followed. Molly spent day and night alike at the hospital. The two girls went on working but with Molly and Mike away everything at home seemed different.

The sisters spent so much time at the hospital that there was no time to keep the apartment going smoothly. Still Ellen refused Steven's offer to provide a maid, refused also to take a vacation from the store. With debts piling up so rapidly she dared not. She knew Steven did not consider the money he had spent for Mike as a debt but she was determined the sum should be repaid.

One thing Mike's illness had accomplished. The immediate exigencies had thrust into the background of Ellen's mind all thoughts of Larry Harrowgate. When she remembered him it was with pain but pain was routine now. Larry had gone with a part of her own youth. The gaiety and laughter he represented were gone forever for her but there was no time to grieve about it.

Mike's improved health, doing

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Mayans First Pipe Smokers

WHO was the first tobacco smoker? Did he smoke a pipe, a cigar or a cigarette? The reply to the first question is nobody knows. The second can be answered by saying that the first smoker probably used none of the present methods. The Mayans, who lived in Mexico 1,500 years ago, left rud drawings which show that they heated tobacco on hot embers and inhaled the smoke.

According to "Tobacco Topics," published by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, the Mayans are the first smokers of whom we have any record. The tobacco pipe probably originated with them.

Significant traces of the Mayan civilization, which mysteriously disappeared after 620 A. D., have been found in the famous "mounds" throughout the Mississippi basin, which scholars say are of Mayan origin. Evidence also indicates that the Mayans introduced pipe smoking to the aboriginal Indians of North America. This theory is confirmed by the fact that many pipes unearthed from mounds in Ohio were decorated with carvings of birds and reptiles known only to Central America where Mayan culture once flourished.

Tobacco has been cultivated in America for many centuries. But it was only within the last 50 years or so that special attention was paid to developing qualities and blends especially suited to pipe smoking. While individuals have individual tastes, trade statistics prove that the large majority of pipe smokers prefer "Rough Cut."

Mother Awaits Convict Son

FORT MADISON, Ia., March 7.—The state penitentiary, here, is built on a hill rising from the swamp-land that borders the surging Mississippi.

In the prison at the top of the hill is Jean Farnell, serving an indeterminate sentence of one year to life.

In a tiny dilapidated shanty on the swampland at the foot of the hill is Jean's mother, waiting for her son's release.

She is Kate Farnell. Already she has waited nine years for her son. Only time can tell how much longer her vigil will be.

Kate Farnell is alone in the world, save for her imprisoned boy. Her husband drowned years ago. She finds work enough scrubbing floors and washing dishes to buy meager fare for her lonely table and have enough left over for the fund from which she pays a lawyer to present her son's case to pardon and parole authorities.

"Some day he will be free," said

Kate, stooped from hard work and gray-haired from years. "I can wait. And why shouldn't I wait here? I am near him. I can keep him from losing hope."

Farnell was convicted on a statutory charge.

AUSTIN, March 7. — A court decision whether congressmen-at-large shall run for numbered places and in a second primary was made doubly sure in the announcement of former Speaker E. O. Fuller for one of the three places.

Mr. Fuller stands ready to bring mandamus proceedings against W. O. Huggins, state chairman and the executive committee, in case the free-for-all system is attempted.

Mr. Fuller was rather a surprise entrant in the crowded field of candidates. He was the speaker of the 35th legislature who called the session to consider the impeachment charges that were voted against Gov. James E. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson called the session after members were responding to Mr. Fuller's call.

Sen. George Purl of Dallas also has indicated a resort to the courts in case of failure to require each candidate to get a plurality of votes for one of three places, in a second primary if necessary.

Sen. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, chairman of the joint legislative tax survey committee, has been here, giving of his time to the state's work of assembling exhaustive records and data on which the committee this year will draw a series of tax bills. The members have to get a plurality of votes for one of three places, in a second primary if necessary.

Sen. Oneal soon will return to a campaign in his district in his announced race for congress. He will have a distinctive record of service in the 42nd legislature to which he may point in asking the support of his district for the congressional post.

Will there be another session of the legislature this year? The chances are 50-50 now, but prospects are very slim that the session, if held, will occur before the second primary in August. The only thing in sight that will force an earlier meeting for the decision against martial law to stick and for some court to knock out the new oil proration law too.

There probably will be required tax legislation and tax relief measures before next Jan. 1, but they can be written as well after August as before.

The tax rate already has been limited by law to 60 cents, and the proposed exemption will be voted in November.

tip of Illinois, not to be less than 300-feet wide. Lesser depths were provided for channels of the Ohio and Missouri rivers and other tributaries streams.

Flood Control
The project not only calls for confinement of high waters, but control through fuse-plug levees and floodway lands where water will drain off to lessen the strain on levees and save more valuable farm land and cities from inundation.

The New Madrid floodway, across and below Cairo, Ill., in Missouri is destined to protect Cairo and other river port cities. The government compensated farmers for this land.

New Orleans is protected by the Bonnet Carré Spillway, a giant canal that will allow water equal to the flow of Niagara to fall into Lake Ponchartraine.

Further protection for New Orleans is afforded by floodways in Louisiana where high waters will drain off over swamps.

The plans calling for designated territories for flooding during serious high water times has aroused much opposition.

BURKETT WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN AT EASTLAND

Joe Burkett, of San Antonio, formerly of Eastland, will formally open his campaign for election as one of the three congressmen-at-large to which Texas became entitled on the basis of returns from the 1930 census, at Eastland Saturday, March 19, he announced in a letter to the Daily News.

Mr. Burkett, a former state highway commissioner and also a former judge of the 88th district court, will speak at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Burkett is basing his campaign upon four major tenets—opposition to all foreign alliances; opposition to cancellation of foreign debts; support of a tariff on oil and farm and ranch products, and solution of the tax problem through a program of expense reduction rather than of tax increase.

In his statement of platform Mr. Burkett declared for stabilization of the dollar by making it mandatory upon the comptroller of currency to maintain "a sufficient and constant ratio of circulating medium to the amount of business done, based upon monthly averages," asserting that if the ratio between the per capita circulation of money and the amount of business done remains constant the dollar will maintain a fixed value and commodities bring a substantially fixed price.

"I believe," he says, "the United States government should guarantee the deposits of all national banks. If a bank is once chartered by the government it should certainly be a safe place to deposit money, and the government should exercise such supervision over its banking institutions as to make all depositors absolutely safe. This will keep what little money that the people have left intact and in circulation."

Favors Submission
Favoring the submission of the prohibition issue to a vote of the people of the states, he declared "We must meet this issue now, and settle it once and for all, else our children will suffer from it later, and be compelled to grapple with it in a far more aggravated form."

"Candor compels me to say that that I have been a life-long prohibitionist by vote, precept and practice, but I feel that this vexatious and prejudicial matter should be submitted to the people for an early decision in order that the thing may be disposed of once and for all, before this political sore becomes a cankerous cancer and pollutes and corrupts the entire body politics."

Among other principles advocated by Mr. Burkett are monetization of silver; payment of the soldier bonus in full; amendment of the federal reserve act so that the producer may have equal advantage with the stock broker and speculator; amendment of the land bank law; absorption of the army of unemployed in vast internal improvement projects already contemplated and opposition to militarism and internationalism.

Menus For the Entire Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

FISH lends itself to many appetizing salad combinations for Lenten meals. A luncheon of a vegetable cream soup, a fish salad, hot rolls or rye bread and a simple dessert of fruit is a nourishing and inviting meal.

Smoked and salted fish can be used to excellent advantage in salads as well as canned and fresh fish. There is a smoked herring salad that seems to be a particular favorite with men and is especially suitable for a family luncheon or supper salad.

In choosing fish for salad it's well to select a firm-fleshed variety. Cod, halibut, haddock and salmon separate into firm coarse flakes that do not crush when combined with other materials. Scallops, shrimp, crab meat and lobster are generally used in party salads. Scallops might well be used in the every-day luncheon salad for they are full of minerals and not as richly flavored as the other fish.

The most important step in making a successful fish salad lies in thoroughly marinating the fish in lemon juice before combining with other materials. Allow at least an hour for the fish to stand in its marinade on ice.

Seasoning Is Most Important

While the choice of additional material requires careful consideration, it is less essential than the seasoning. In many instances the added material also contributes seasoning, as in the case of celery. Usually extra ingredients are added to give body to the mixture and subdue the strong fish taste. The addition of capers to many fish salads is a vast improvement. Finely shredded cabbage is inexpensive and makes an excellent substitute for celery with such fish as cod, haddock, halibut or scallops. Shredded leaf lettuce combines well with such fish as salmon and tuna. Green peas, canned or fresh, are good with shrimp, salmon and tuna fish.

Hard cooked eggs often are added to fish salads, but they are used in the capacity of an "extender" rather than for seasoning or contrast. Highly flavored fish such as tuna combines with eggs to make a delicately flavored salad. Since eggs furnish almost the same food values found in fish, no nourishment is sacrificed by the combination.

Occasionally a combination of fish is an economical expedient. The less expensive fish can be used with higher priced varieties with remarkably good effect.

A salad composed of white, fleshed fish such as halibut and scallops gains much interest if pickled beets are used for garnishing. Indeed, tiny fancy shapes of deep red beets are attractive with almost any fish.

The dinner salad of fish conforms to the general rule for all dinner salads. It must be very piquant and appetizing with no suggestion of heaviness. Shad roe and cucumber or eggs stuffed with sardines are examples of good dinner salads.

Herring Salad

One and one-half cups flaked herring, 1-2 cup diced celery, 1 cup cold boiled potatoes, 1 sweet pickle, 3 hard cooked eggs, French dressing, 1-4 cup whipping cream, 3 canned pimientos, 1-2 cup mayonnaise.

Let herring soak in cold water to cover for one hour. Drain and simmer in boiling water for fifteen minutes. Drain and cool. Separate into flakes. Mince pickle. Chop eggs coarsely. Mix fish, celery, potatoes, eggs and pickle. Add French dressing, cover and let stand on ice for one hour. When ready to serve, whip cream and add pimientos, rubbed through a sieve. Mix with mayonnaise and use to garnish salad arranged on a bed of lettuce.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST Oranges, cereal cooked with dates, cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON Veal and macaroni pudding, tomato and celery salad, rhubarb whip, milk, tea.

DINNER Tomato juice cocktail, club steaks with mushrooms, duchess potatoes, yellow turnip balls in easy Hollandaise sauce, shad roe and cucumber salad, pineapple sandwich, milk, coffee.
