Italian Flier Killed as Plane Crashes on Take-Off

DISTANCE HOP ATTEMPT ENDS AT NEW YORK

FLOYD BENNETT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 2 — The spectacular career of Francesco de Pinedo, 43, Italian aviator, ended in a burst of flames today when his Bellanca monoplane crashed as he was taking off on a non-stop solo flight to Bagdad. He had launched his heavily loaded plane down the concrete runway and attained a terrific speed when it began swerving under its cargo of 1,027 gallons of gasoline. Twice it left the runway before De Pinedo lost control. The plane missed the administration building, crashed against a steel fence and burst into flames. Watchers saw the big plane side-slip the fence. De Pinedo slipped out of the cabin. The plane struck the fence again, turned over and was enveloped in flames. For an instant watchers saw De Pinedo staggering around "the machine." He crumpled 25 feet away. The gasoline tanks caught fire and blotted all from view. De Pinedo's latest project was for the honor of Italy and Benito Mussolini who forced his retirement from the Italian air service after his successful flight over four continents.

48-HOUR WEEK IS SUGGESTED TO RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Federal Rail Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman suggested today to presidents of all railroads and rail labor organizations that they establish in effect a 48-hour week for their employes. Eastman said he had no particular length of work day or work week in mind, but suggested the length of the working day be reduced to at least 8 hours and the practice of working seven days a week be discontinued. His suggestion followed an announcement he was opposed to placing rails under an NRA code. He criticized the carriers for not aiding employment by attempting to borrow from the public works administration to construct equipment and maintain lines in good condition.

Parker, retired business man and one of the five incorporators, said the society was formed for two purposes: 1.—To further the NRA program and the activities of President Roosevelt to bring recovery to this nation. 2.—To combat "red" activities which Parker asserts are spreading rapidly. "There are many chiselers who have signed the NRA code," Parker said. "We may furnish to proper authorities information proving violations."

12 Rehabilitation Farms For Texas

(Special to the News) AUSTIN, Sept. 2.—Texas has been promised 12 rehabilitation farm colonies under the federal-state public works program, officials in the state relief service here said. A federal official of Sec'y. Ickes public works administration is now in Texas checking on prospective sites for the farm colonies, it was said. Complete model farm center communities are to be built for each of the colonies, under tentative plans. Areas will be from 600 to 1200 acres each, with much of the land to be capable of irrigation. Model farm houses will be grouped together, with streets, a community dairy, community school, water, sanitary and lighting facilities to be provided. From 240 to 500 families will be selected from among the jobless whose heads of families are classified for rehabilitation and not available for gainful employment in skilled trades. Each family will be assigned 2½ acres of irrigated land, or slightly more non-irrigated land. They will execute a contract with the government providing they may occupy this house and land so long as they will, their only cost to be nominal rent to be paid out of produce from the land. Under Farm Expert. These colony farmers will be under supervision of a government farm expert, and will be required to grow foodstuffs and feed, and to make provision for their food requirements so far as they can grow vegetables, corn, poultry, hogs and other food materials. Whenever such a family leaves the house and land assigned it, the facilities will be given others, and the original family will be ineligible to get on relief rolls again. Such colonies, it was pointed out, will be large enough to sustain a good school. Each family will average two pupils of public school age. Churches, an auditorium and other community advantages will be provided. Irrigation facilities will be installed by the government when the colony farms are laid out. Objective of this rehabilitation plan will be to test the capacity of unemployed heads of families to return to a self-supporting basis on the land, where conditions are under such control that they will not follow the methods of tenant farmers in growing cotton exclusively, and where they are helped to overcome the initial handicap of getting adequate quarters and land without money on which to start.

FLYNN URGES TEXAS WORKERS TO ORGANIZE IN NRA SPIRIT

By RAYMOND BROOKS Capital Correspondent AUSTIN, Sept. 2.—Jack Flynn, Texas labor commissioner, has addressed a Labor Day message to the workers of Texas, urging them to organize, in the spirit of the authority of the national recovery act for collective bargaining in labor matters. "Our union movement," Comr. Flynn declared, "must not fall into the mistakes of selfishness or materialism. We are still far short of unionization of all workers in this country. Some of America's wage earners receive wages pitifully inadequate. These are among the problems yet to be solved. May the spirit of Labor Day be such as to arouse and sustain the idealism necessary for their solution." Comr. Flynn's message said: "Labor day typifies an ideal resulting in a powerful influence shaping working standards and the lives of those who handle the tools of production. This ideal has put a virility and endurance into the trade union movement, and distinguishes it from all other less constructive and authoritative organizations of workers. "The Labor movement has for its purpose the welfare and advancement of those who work for wages. Regardless of affiliation, just what

WOULD LIMIT PAY OF RELIEF SUPERVISORS

(Special to Daily News) AUSTIN, Sept. 2.—Rep. A. B. Tarwater of Plainview has advocated that the legislature in issuing state relief bonds in September, write rigid restrictions as to the amount to be paid relief administrators. He said it may be found necessary also to put limits upon the number of relief workers to be employed in each county. Mr. Tarwater's comments were made in a general canvass of legislators by a number of newspapers. "I am strictly in favor of limiting salaries paid relief administrators," Mr. Tarwater said, "and am only in favor of making part of the bond issue available, so much as seems to be absolutely necessary, and no more." Rep. R. M. Wagstaff, Abilene also declared for strict supervision of the work of distributing relief funds. "I think," he said, "the relief bonds should be limited in amount, and the method of distribution should be strictly supervised. I do not yet know what limitations and restrictions should be placed on the use of the money. I feel sure, however, that the entire twenty million is not necessary at this time, and would not favor issuing more than one-third to one-half the amount at this session of the legislature."

PERMIT IS NOW REQUIRED FOR DRILLING WELL

A new rule, effective August 30, has been laid down by the railroad commission under which no oil well, with certain exceptions, may be drilled in Texas until application has been filed and hearing held. Deputy Oil and Gas Supervisor Omar Burkett said Saturday. The new regulation changes what was previously required to be merely a notice of intention to drill into a permit which must be obtained from the commission before drilling can be started, he said. In cases where proper waivers are obtained an offset well may be drilled before a hearing is held provided drainage is shown, he said. For applying that provision the commission announced that a variation of ten feet in lines would be held to be equivalent. Illustrating application of the new regulation, a person desiring to drill a wildcat well, or a well that is not an offset to any other production, must file an application to drill and await a hearing on the application and the granting of a permit before he can start operations.

UNIONIZATION ENCOURAGED.

In a Labor Day message to the workers of Texas, State Labor Commissioner Jack Flynn has urged them to organize in the spirit of the national recovery program. The trade union movement has prospered, he declared, because it has been founded on an ideal which has endowed it with "virility and endurance"—an ideal shaping working standards and even the lives of those who handle the tools of industry.

Unionization of labor in Texas, while long a reality in most of the mass employment industries, has had in the past little significance in relation to the economic welfare of the state for the very simple reason that agriculture has been and is the predominant industry. The forthright recognition and the encouragement to collective bargaining, which means unionization, contained in the president's re-employment agreement induces unionization even in areas where there had not been sufficient earlier sentiment in that direction. One may be sure that astute union leaders and organizations are going to take advantage of the opportunity to shape and extend organizations and otherwise consolidate labor's position that is presented under the NRA provision. Fear of industrial opposition has been nullified, and labor may even argue that its share in the national recovery program requires that it organize.

This tendency to organize, however, may be offset to some extent by the secure feeling of labor individually under the protecting wing of the Blue Eagle, but it is already an accomplished fact that some of the more established forms of organized labor have doubled their memberships. It is quite easy to predict an era when the balance of power, swinging from one coefficient of capitalism to another, will rest in entirely different hands and the country will have to revise its attitude toward industry. It is the problem of the Roosevelt recovery administration to prevent the pendulum going too far in one direction, and at the same time giving all factors involved equitable shares in control.

CHANGING PICTURE.

Cities have their campaigns over whom shall be made city manager.

Other groups, it seems, also fight their campaigns over the issue of personalities.

American Legionnaires report one of the questions in the state commander's race at Wichita Falls was over retention of the genial R. O. Whiteaker as state adjutant. The adjutant now is appointed by a successful campaign group, rather than elected.

And so it is said that when Commander Van Perkins and the new state committee meet for the first time in Austin in October, Adjutant Whiteaker will find a new nominee for the post he has held for several years.

And this involves no criticism of Whiteaker, whom all affirm to have been one of the ablest and most conscientious executive officers the American Legion of Texas has had. Rather, it comes from the feeling that perhaps one dominant group had held on long enough, until enough other groups had gradually merged to overturn the old order of things.

Whiteaker's service, during terms of several state commanders, has been marked by devoted labor for the organization. No one man is solely fitted to hold a high place. No doubt Legion affairs will be carried on well in the future.

REVENUE AFTER ALL.

Out of a long series of legal interpretations, finally it has been worked out that the state can distribute its beer tax stamps so that it will not lose a great amount of revenue when beer legally flows Sept. 15, and so that those dispensers who want to obey the law will not pay a penalty to those who don't.

State Treas. Charley Lockhart has had the beer tax stamps printed. He is distributing them, and he has sent out the word there will be none of the excuse at first feared for evasion of the tax when beer dispensaries open up two weeks hence.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Sept. 2 — Each political generation lives its own life, its most certain aspect, its demarcation from what went before. Some students of government even have contended one generation does not have the right to impose a form of government upon the next.

Political generation vary. Texas, in the 12 months leading up to democratic primaries next July, definitely will close one political generation and step out upon another; just as nationally the people began a new one this year.

Beginning and end of the dying era have been marked sharply. They are measured by the span of public activities of one man.

The James E. Ferguson generation has seen Mr. Ferguson win a commanding state office after a sharp clash of "farmer vs. aristocrat" and one of the periodic returns of government to the hands of more every day folk.

It saw Mr. Ferguson turned out of office; and after a period, his return, when Mrs. Ferguson was elected; saw him driven again from power at the end of a term; and after another period, when his policies and personality caught the imagination of those suffering and in distress from economic conditions, lifted up again to political power. They see now, the somewhat mild tapering out of the Ferguson public career, during an administration in which relief from distressed conditions and abnormal forces has joined Mr. Ferguson's efforts with those of many he always has opposed.

Then, what next? Principles, mass aims, govern, rather than personalities. It seems part of the answer is clear now. Capitalism has been pushed so far out of the way, blamed with its conspicuous failure to lead a people safely, that it cannot be one of the two main forces when the issue is joined next.

The issue will be on other alignments. Just now, the catchwords seem to be return socialism, paternalism, government aid, government control, government safeguards and benevolent dictatorship, as against the freer interplay of natural forces neither dictated by capitalism nor by collectivism.

Greater dependence on government has come to be a habit; but with it definitely there has grown a consciousness of greater responsibility of the agents of government. Whether the swing is to leaders who want the government to run the business and affairs of the people; or want it to stand by only for protection of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, both trends will be broadly marked with a general sense of power in the hands of the voters, and of direct responsibility and responsiveness of the government and its agents to that power.

A by-product of that will be the disappearance of political machine rule and political gang rule such as dominated Chicago, as dominated Louisiana state politics, and as flowered into perfection in such local Texas groups as the A. Y. Baker regime.

From Tammany Hall to Duval county, from Big Bill Thompson's Chicago to the mill run of court-house elites, government from behind the curtains is on the down-grade. Domineering individuals like Huey Long are on the way out.

This principle, vitalized into action, would be sufficient of itself to distinguish a political generation. It will be only one manifestation of the re-awakening, just a century after Andrew Jackson and the Bank of the United States, of those who have only a ballot to contribute, and who seek for themselves only the right to live free of parasites and exploitation in the name of government.

If a five-year depression, its grief and distress and frustration, has shown the people of Texas and America that they don't have to pay the bill for being exploited, then, over a period that is but a moment in a nation's history, it partly will have paid for its burdens.

much smaller. It is quite easy to make a report. But I won't doubt the veracity of the following outstanding dove-shooting citizens:

A. D. Anderson, H. S. Drumwright, Homer McDonald, Dr. C. C. Jones, Virgil Heyser, Bob Mancill and F. D. Wright.

Wright's presence is easily explained. It is always good policy on such excursions to have someone along to do the arguing. The world is already so dogged full of "Don't park here" and "Keep off the grass" that it takes considerably more mental celerity and legalistic ingenuity to get a defendant acquitted of spitting on the sidewalk than it used to require to absolve a man of murder.

Well, the above party had a good time. Others who had good times included Luther McCrea and Lou Mendenhall who went south a ways and were successful, and K. H. Pittard, O. J. Tillinghast and Haywood (Doc) Cabeness, who also were successful.

Freckles and His Friends.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries DICK HADER, a construction superintendent temporarily working in though only in the middle twenties, Ray and Marya were to start married life with no debts except the monthly payments arranged to complete the purchase of their home.

Marya and Ray had asked Eve and Dick to drive out to see the house before the final papers were signed. Dick declared it to be well built and, according to the prevailing market, a good buy. Eve thought the house was perfect and she came back to the apartment with a wistful longing for such a home of her own.

"Never mind, sweetheart!" Dick told her. "You'll probably get everything you want some day but you can't expect it all at once."

"Yes, and now I have my career," Eve answered, instantly optimistic. "Lots of women who spend their days with dustmops and ironing boards would be glad to exchange them for a chance at a job like mine. Besides they say everything comes to him who waits."

"That's right," Dick agreed. "If he keeps busy while he's waiting!" And so Eve helped Marya shop during their noon hours. Arlene never accompanied them on these shopping trips.

"Honestly," Arlene confided to Eve, "I can't work up much excitement over household doornackets. I'll probably wait until I'm 100 yards the other side of the altar and then go on a buying spree! The advantage of that will be that I'll have the very last word in floor-waxers and washlines, I suppose!"

The week before Easter Marya met Ray daily for luncheon. Eve and Arlene attended Lenten services each noon. On Good Friday they met Mr. Bixby coping from the church and Eve's heart warmed toward the white-haired old man as he bowed to them with dignity.

"The old lamb!" said Arlene. "To think I usually tremble in my boots when he enters the office!"

Saturday Marya spent her last day at the store. She had worked industriously to prepare advance drawings so that the advertising office could run smoothly for a week in case they found no one to take her place immediately.

Marya's eyes were misty when she finally cleared her desk and packed her personal belongings. Several girls from other departments came in to bid her goodbye and Barnes called her into his private office for a brief session. Then it was closing time and Marya made a last survey of the familiar room. "Oh, Eve!" she cried, "I'm going to miss you dreadfully! What shall I do without this office?"

Eve put firm arms about Marya and led her to the locker room.

Colorful floral wall paper adorned the breakfast room. The recreation room in the basement appealed to Ray. There was a nursery upstairs with cunning Mother Goose figures on the wall and light pink woodwork and beside it was another well-lighted room which would serve as Marya's studio.

It really seemed to be an ideal home. For Ray's parents it was the culmination of years of thrift to know that their son could purchase such a house. Ever since he had received his first earnings had coached him to prepare for a future home of his own. Hence, with the halo of white violets which Eve had wanted to buy.

Eve and Dick ate a late dinner and then strolled through the park to the Art Museum where they enjoyed the organ recital.

Marya's wedding took place next day. Eve felt that she would never forget the lovely picture Marya made as she came down the aisle of the church on the arm of her white-haired father. The organ was sending forth the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin." Eve brushed her eyes with a wisp of lace handkerchief while Arlene let the tears roll frankly down her cheeks.

Marya wore a severely simple white satin frock with long tight sleeves and a long train. Her veil was arranged cap fashion above her broad white forehead. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies. The altar was banked with Easter lilies, and seven-branch candelabra lighted the path of the bride. Marya had but two attendants—fair-haired cousins gowned in pink and blue lace frocks.

After the ceremony there was a reception. Later that evening Marya changed into a dove gray traveling costume trimmed with fluffy gray fox. And before anyone was aware of it she and Ray had slipped away from the others and fled in a taxi to the Union Station where they boarded a train for New York.

Later as Eve and Dick went up the steps of Mrs. Brooks' house they heard their telephone ringing. "Wonder if something is wrong on the job," Dick said as he fitted the key into the lock.

Eve was amazed to hear that the call was for her. "This is the Times advertising department," came the voice over the wire. "We are calling about the Bixby advertisement for tomorrow. Mr. Barnes said he left the copy with you this afternoon. We've been trying to get you all evening. Our deadline is 10:15, and it's nearly that now. What shall we do?"

Eve's knees seemed to go limp. "How dreadful!" she exclaimed. "I left the copy in an envelope on my desk addressed to The Times. Are you sure it wasn't there?"

"The boy said he and Barnes looked all over for it and then decided you must have taken it with you," the voice answered.

"Heavens! I'll have to try to get into the office and then call you back from there!" Eve answered.

"Dick, Dick!" she cried. "We've got to go to the store right away to see if I can find the copy for tomorrow's Times. Oh, this is terrible! There's a special sale scheduled and if that ad isn't in the morning paper I'll lose my job! We've got to hurry—the deadline is at 10:15 and there isn't a minute to spare!"

Dick got out the car and they drove without a word until he made an abrupt stop at the side entrance to Bixby's. To Eve it seemed forever before the night watchman arrived in answer to her frantic summons.

STEERS' HOPES OF TITLE WITH SOPHOMORES

By DICK WEST The 1933 edition of the University of Texas football team, starting with a wealth of sophomore material, will begin practice for the ensuing conference campaign September 10. Orange and White followers over the state are listening mildly to the reports of strong teams from Baylor, Arkansas, A. & M. and Southern Methodist, but all the while they are confidently hoping for a repetition of the great 1930 sophomore squad which won the title. That brilliant 1932 team which defeated Missouri, Oklahoma, Rice, S. M. U., Baylor, Arkansas, and A.&M. is gone. Stafford, Koy, Clewis, Bankhead, Burr, Bibby, Birdwell, Blanton, Braly, Cook, Dubose, Eble, Furr, Moody, and Price have finished their eligibility. The task confronting coaches Littlefield, James, and Karow is to supplant these stars with a squad capable of enduring the most strenuous schedule ever attempted by the University.

Bill Smith, heady center from Cisco, will captain the 1933 team. Aiding him will be Charlie Coates, a most brilliant prospect who played a lot last year. Coates may be shifted to end because of his deadly line tactics, ability to gum up interference, and sure tackling. Two former Schreiner Institute stars, Prejean and Cooleage, are slated to hold down the guard positions.

Two Great Tackles The Steers will have two great tackles in Seals and Neihbur, both lettermen from last year and both endowed with a fine fighting spirit. They will be capably aided by Beaseley, Oakes, Tubert, and Melandrich. The end positions are due to give the Longhorn mentors some worry. Bennie Rundell, a veteran, will be back, but whether he has fully recovered from a serious injury in the Oklahoma game of last year is not known. Jack Maxson of Dallas is slated to hold down one of the wings because of his remarkable speed and pass catching ability. Other candidates are Gray, Sanger, and Sikes.

The backfield should be the equal of any in the conference. Bohn Hillard, who showed his flying heels and weaving hips to many an opponent last year, will return to be ace ball carrier and safety man deluxe. Osborne Hodges, Austin youth, is a letterman at fullback and a punter of rare ability. Jay Arnold, former Greenville high flash and all-state man for two years, will probably get the first call at full. Weighing 207 pounds and very fast for a big man, Arnold should be one of the best in the circuit. Ray Laurence of Thornton has been groomed to take Stafford's place as a blocker, and according to Shorty Anderson, fresh coach, "is one of the best I have ever seen." Jim Hadlock, triple-threatener from Marshall, Wetzel, Baebel, Preibisch, and Jureka are other backs available.

Schedule The Steer schedule is as follows: September 23: Southwestern at Georgetown. September 30: Texas School of Mines at Austin. October 7: Nebraska at Lincoln. October 14: Oklahoma at Dallas. October 21: Centenary at San Antonio. October 28: Rice at Austin. November 5: S. M. U. at Dallas. November 11: Baylor at Austin (Homecoming Day). November 17: T. C. U. at Austin. November 25: Arkansas at Austin. November 30: A. & M. at College Station.

MUST USE FRENCH BRAID. PARIS, Sept. 2. — Edouard Daladier, President of the Council and Minister of War, has just entered into the official records of government, that henceforth all the stripes, braid and other applications made upon the uniforms of the French Army must be of French manufactured fabric, and proof must be shown by the supplier from whom the material is purchased by the government.

Swiss Resent U. S. Recovery Methods

GENEVA, Sept. 2.—The Swiss, almost without exception, are hostile and wholly out of sympathy with the radical economic and financial measures now being tested in the United States. Bankers, hotel keepers and watch-makers, who largely control Switzerland's economic and fiscal policy, are fighting inflation and currency depreciation. The American experiment is ridiculed on every side. Newspapers employ almost insulting terms to convince the public of the "certain" failure of the Rooseveltian "adventure." They fear the failure of the American program might plunge the world into greater distress, while its success eventually would push Switzerland off the gold standard. The Swiss want neither. They are praying that normal economic laws soon will break the depression and lead to a new era of comparative prosperity. If, they say, the upturn is not too long delayed, Switzerland will be able to resist the "artificial" remedies now being employed in the United States. With them it is a race against time.

Hog Shipments to Ft. Worth Are Halted

FORT WORTH, Sept. 2.—A temporary embargo on hog shipments to the local market in the federal government's hog reduction campaign was declared by Coordinator A. A. Lund today effective at midnight tonight. The embargo will be lifted Tuesday morning when pigs and piggy sows will again be received in the pens and premium prices paid for them. Today's receipts brought the surplus to 14,000 head, Lund said, whereas only about 2,700 a day can be processed.

THEY'RE the kind of people it's nice to have as neighbors. They always seem to have such a good time together. Their home isn't large, but it's furnished in excellent taste; everything fits perfectly, as though it had been made especially for the very space it occupies.

And their dinners are charming. Not expensive, but different . . . new and interesting dishes that other people haven't heard of yet. Mrs. Robinson dresses beautifully, too. Her clothes have that air of coming straight from Paris, yet she doesn't spend much on them.

If you should ask her how it is she manages things so well, Mrs. Robinson would smile and say, "It's really very simple. We budget our income. That tells us how much money we have to spend. And we read the advertisements. That tells us how to spend our money wisely."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Man," is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 3. The golden text is: "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah 6:8) Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them" (Genesis 1:26,27). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God fashions all things, after His own likeness. Life is reflected in existence. Truth in truthfulness. God in goodness, which imparts, their own peace and permanence. Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth" (p. 516).

CCC Aids State In Forest Roads

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 2. — Construction of forest roads through Pennsylvania's state forests is one of the major tasks being performed by the 18,000 young men enrolled in the civilian conservation corps in the state, according to forestry officials.

"These roads and trails are needed to facilitate movement of equipment in time of fire," a report said. "They also are used extensively for getting forest products to market, as well as by hunters, fishermen and campers who seek recreation in the wooded areas. Another important job of the forest workers is building telephone lines — essential for quick reporting of fires."

"Numerous recreational areas, such as tourist camps and parks, also are being developed and improved."

"Thousands of acres of woodlands are being thinned out to improve the kind and quality of the timber. The deadly blister rust, a fungous disease that threatens the white pine stands of the state, is being controlled over extensive areas."

"It should be understood," the report said, "that the youths are not loafing in their tents when they should be working. Neither are they wandering around aimlessly in the woods."

Scores Toil to Rescue Deer

State troopers and scores of rescue workers toiled heroically to rescue a deer that became stranded on a high and narrow ledge near Watkins Glen, N. Y., where it was in imminent danger of falling to its death in a gorge below. This picture, taken by an intrepid cameraman, shows the animal on its precarious perch to which it is believed to have leaped when chased by dogs. Just behind the deer there is a cliff with a drop of 180 feet.

CITRUS SEASON OPENS IN RIO GRANDE VALLEY

By BRAD SMITH
United Press Correspondent
McALLEN, Sept. 2.—The Lower Rio Grande Valley opened the Texas citrus shipping season Friday.

More than 5,000 persons had employment operating one of the southwest's most important agricultural industries which has physical properties valued at more than $125,000,000 and expected to produce more than $6,000,000 of marketable merchandise during the eight-month shipping season.

The Valley faces its most promising citrus season. Commercial shipment of citrus fruit from Texas first began in 1921-22. It was not until 1923-24 that citrus began moving in large quantities. A half dozen conditions indicate nothing short of a catastrophic can prevent Valley growers and shippers from reaping a handsome profit this year.

Bumper Crop.

A bumper crop, estimated by experienced citrus men to total from 10,000 to 16,500 cars as compared to average estimated yields of 14,000 cars is forecast. Care has been taken to prevent glutting of citrus markets and price collapses. For the first time in the history of the industry, there is co-operation between independent shippers and the big co-operative marketing agencies. This has been brought about by rules and regulations under the Texas citrus standardization act and provisions of the national citrus code. Rigid control of fruit grades and fruit movements will be exercised by state and federal officials.

Careful preparations for marketing the crop have been made. The Rio Grande Valley Citrus Exchange, with headquarters at Weslaco, has local associations in as many citrus producing sections. The Texas Citrus Fruit Growers' Exchange of Mission has local organizations in half a dozen Valley communities. The Rio Grande Valley Citrus Growers' Association operates in the Mercedes community. The three co-operatives last year handled about one-third of the total crop. They own nearly a score of the modern packing plants. All have made wholesale contracts to all ports of the United States and to world-wide citrus markets.

Trap Files.

Extension of the shipping season by the Texas department of agriculture from a five-month season to an eight-month season was brought about by co-operative efforts of growers and the two departments in extermination of the Mexican fruit fly. In recognition of this co-operation the federal government has provided 5,000 traps which will be scattered through the 80,000 acres of orchards. These new traps will attract the flies almost as soon as they enter a grove.

E. F. Miller, general manager of the Rio Grande Valley Citrus Exchange, expressed confidence the citrus industry will soon benefit from the government's recovery program. "There is every reason to believe," he said, "that citrus growers will receive their share of the benefit before the present season is over."

T. M. Melden, sales manager for the Texas Citrus Fruit Growers' Exchange, recently returned from a trip through the north and east, where he found a "steadily increasing demand" for Rio Grande Valley fruit. The market outlets, he said, are better than ever.

Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Mich.

One main purpose through thick and thin

Henry Ford, Dearborn, Mich.

In the last 30 years, 800 makes of cars have come and gone. Of all the automobile companies that were making cars in 1903, less than a dozen remain. And of these only a few are the original companies. One of these is the Ford.

We mention this because, if you know the other original names, you will recognize that each stands for something definite in the motor car world—not just a car, but a very distinct kind and quality of car.

That is to say, the car that was designed to fill a definite place, to do a certain thing, and that pursued its objective through all the ups and downs of change—that car lived!

If you just make something to sell, you would be better employed doing something else. But if you make something that will do a specific thing and do it well, then you are helping people.

We have had just one main purpose during these years, and that is to give the people transportation of the most dependable quality at the lowest possible cost.

We have followed that purpose through thick and thin. Our car was called "the universal car" 30 years ago, because it fulfilled so many needs; it is "the universal car" today for the same reason.

We have never been greatly excited about yearly models. Whenever we developed and tested an improvement, we added it to the car without delay. The Ford car is in a continuous state of growth. For 15 years we did not introduce a single new model, but the changes and improvements that were constantly made on the model that was current through that period, were equivalent to many new models.

But the changes were made to improve the car, not to persuade people that they ought to buy a new car every year. The car we make does not need to be cast aside every year. At any period a customer buys, he gets the best we have.

Our objective is just—transportation for the people; the best quality at the lowest cost. Nothing but that. Not even the highest sales record—that has always come without seeking. Not even the highest financial return—that, too, has always come, and, we are glad to say, flowed immediately out again for wages, materials and taxes.

But these are not our main quest. Our main purpose—our constant intention—our major ambition is to make a car that will become more and more useful, and more and more easy to obtain, to more and more people.

The marriage of Miss Eileen Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilson, to Robert Griffith of Italy, Texas, was celebrated Friday morning at the home of the bride's parents, 404 West Eighth street. Rev. O. O. Odum officiated for the ceremony. The bride's sister, Miss Laura Fay Wilson, was her only attendant. Malcolm Garrett, of Italy, Texas acted as best man. The nuptial solo, "O Promise Me," was sung by Miss Marion Chambliss. She was accompanied by Mrs. John P. Aycock of Sweetwater, who is a sister of the bride.

The wedding party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and stood before an improvised altar of ferns and clematis. During the ring ceremony, Mrs. Aycock played "Traumerei," by Schumann. The bride was charmingly dressed in a brown triple sheer gown, and carried an arm sheaf of yellow chrysanthemums. The maid of honor was becomingly gowned in midnight blue, and wore a shoulder bouquet of coral gladioluses.

Mrs. Griffith graduated from Cisco high school, and attended Randolph college, T. W. C., and Simmons university. During the past year she conducted a kindergarten in Cisco. Mr. Griffith, son of Mrs. Della Griffith, is a graduate of Simmons university. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Griffith will be at home in

P. W. A. HELP TO IMPROVE SHEEP LAND IS ASKED

(Special to the News)

AUSTIN, Sept. 2—Edwards county is pioneering the effort to bring the improvement of sheep and goat grazing lands under the national public works program, with approximately nine other counties waiting to follow if a plan worked out.

The proposal is to clear the grazing lands of scrub cedar so as to increase their production of forage many times over. Two courses only remain by which funds may be secured to finance the deforestation work.

Edwards county will try in the legislature to get a special district created for this purpose, under the classic language of the constitution authorizing legislation "to conserve natural resources." This was the basis of all the oil control legislation.

Landowners throughout the cedar region of southwest Texas have urged that loans be granted to finance the work of cleaning cedar. Much greater grazing flocks can be supported on the same land, and thus the value of the land will be enhanced.

Would Be Found

If the legislature authorizes the creation of special districts to conserve the productivity of the soil, thus permitting this work, then the districts will be formed and financing secured, unless some court should hold the stretching of the constitution's meaning too extreme.

If this plan fails, the landowners then will seek to carry ahead the deforestation work by direct federal public works loans, based on authority of sub-Sec. 203 of the industrial recovery act. This says: "The president, in his discretion, and under such terms as he may prescribe, may extend any of the benefits of this title to any state, county, or municipality notwithstanding any constitutional or legal restriction or limitation on the right or power of such state, county or municipality to borrow money or incur indebtedness."

More than 1,000,000 acres in nine or ten counties have been listed by owners for prospective loans for the purpose of clearing cedar off the ranches. Representatives of the Texas relief commission found much enthusiasm among landowners of the ranching country for this project of work. Loans for the work would vary from less than $1 to several dollars per acre. One of the complications is that large areas in various counties would require no such work.
