ENGLAND FACES GREATEST STRIKE.

There is gloom in the industrial circles in England. There is a grave reason for it. More than 200,000 weavers and spinners walked out of the mills and factories as a protest against wage reduction. More than 500,000 members of the allied trades are affected, and the strike promises to be the most costly ever waged in the textile centers of the Isles. For years and years Great Britain has been face to face with tremendous competition in the making and the selling of textile goods. Competitors have sprung up everywhere the world over. Of course, the United States, Germany, and Japan have made tremendous inroads everywhere in the Orient as well as in the Occident. Now the show-down has come between the manufacturers and the operatives.

Foremost statesmen and financiers predict that many of the factories and mills will be closed down, perhaps forever, and that in the final many thousands will never regain the jobs they have deserted. All this had to happen just as cotton was climbing to the 10 cent mark, and in the textile centers of America the manufacturers were taking on thousands of workers to meet the ever increasing demands of the domestic trade as well as to supply the demand of foreign nations. Regardless of all this, Great Britain blunders through. This is the history of its marvelous leaders of trade and finance who ever direct, or rather shape, the destiny of the greatest of world empires.

Now it is said that Norman Montagu, the head of the Bank of England and perhaps its most adroit financier, has a plan for the floating of a $5,000,000 bond issue, these bonds to be taken by the nations of the earth in order that the war debts may be cancelled and the commerce of the world restored to the normal basis which existed prior to the outbreak of the World war. This was the real objective of his mission to the United States and while here he conferred with the kings of Wall street and the heads of the Hoover administration. Ambassador Mellon played a part in the coming of Montagu and in the conferences held after his arrival on these shores. Incidentally, the strike of English weavers and spinners should make manufacturing boom in the industrial centers of the American world.

SEN. CARAWAY AGAINST DRY LAW REPEAL.

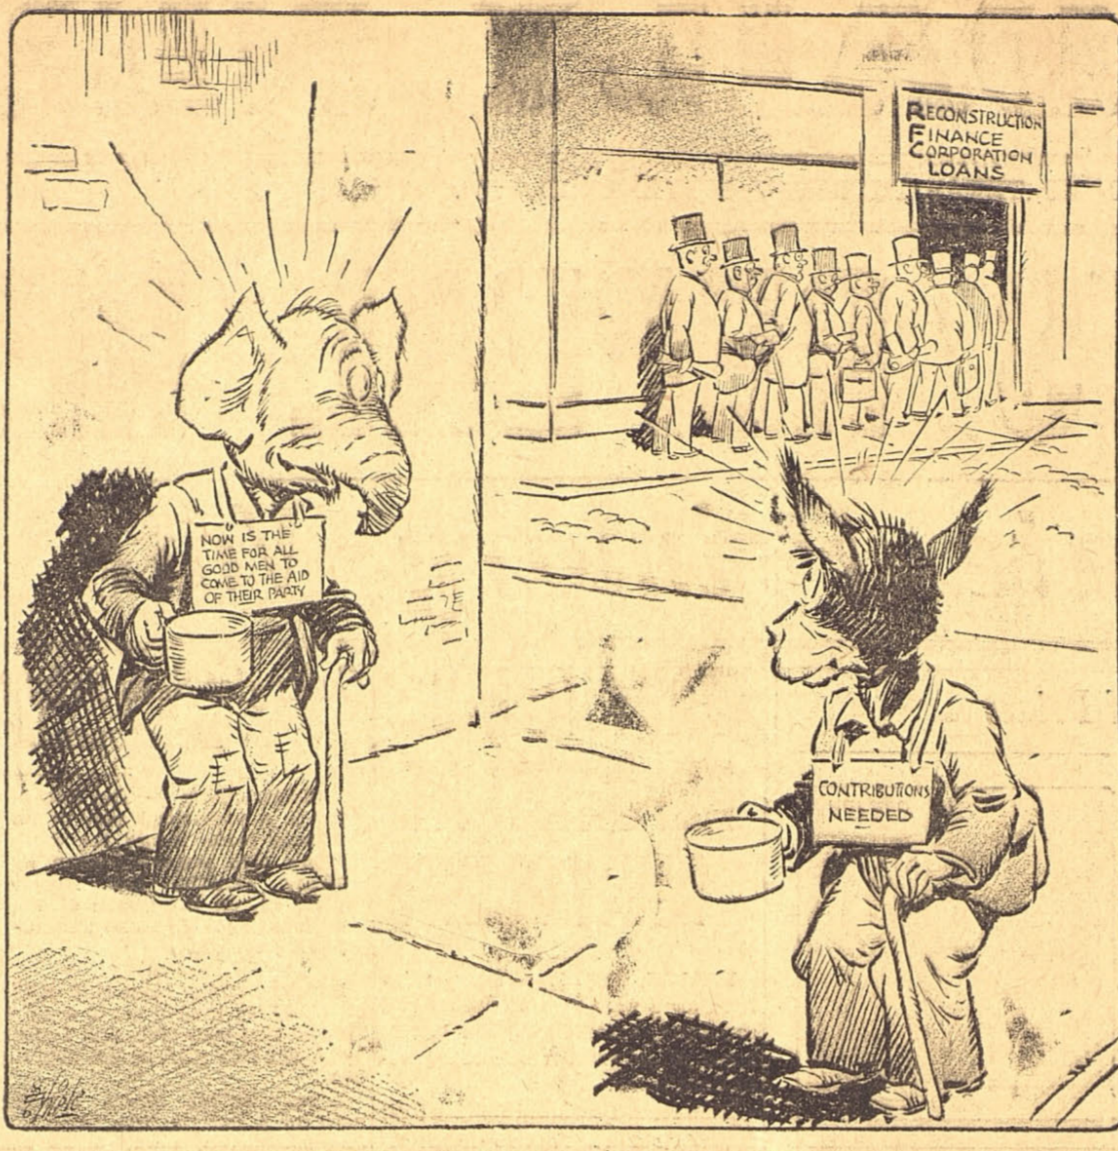

Sen. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas is going to make speeches for Roosevelt and Garner. Let her tell the story: "I like Gov. Roosevelt and am in sympathy with his views. I like the brevity of his platform. It is readable. I like most of what it stands for. I don't favor the repeal plank. I am a dry. If repeal comes up in the senate I will vote dry. Of course, if the question goes back to the states and my state goes on record for repeal I don't know what I would decide was my duty as representative of the state but I think I would stay dry. It might lose some of my wet votes but my constituents might as well know where I stand. I don't feel that plank in the platform changes a thing or that it binds any member of congress. And on the prohibition question I certainly can stay democrat when the republicans are running wet where it is wet and dry where it is dry. Hoover is wet in New York and Curtis is dry in Kansas." All of which is gospel truth. Mrs. Caraway will be elected United States senator for a term of six years. She will be the first woman ever elected by the voters of any state a United States senator. In ancient days when a Texan referred to Arkansas this was his conclusion: "And now laugh." It is a dead slogan. Arkansas democrats elected the first woman to the United States senate. Now the laugh is on the other 47 American commonwealths. It is not on Sen. Hattie or Huey P. Long, known to fame and fortune as "The Louisiana Kingfish."

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Well, this governor's race isn't over yet, apparently. We were beginning to wonder what the newspapers were going to have as space fillers now that the election is over, but Gov. Sterling's announcement, in intention to contest the election seems to take care of the situation pretty well. It has been a long time since we had a contested governor's election. So far as I know we have never had one. That will be one more experience to chalk up to our three-score years and ten.

Yesterday's partial eclipse of the sun will be the last for 85 years, so the savants tell us. Several hundred years ago, they would have welcomed that intelligence with sighs of relief. At that time an eclipse scared the people into crazy fits. They were positive that the moon was deliberately getting up the sun much as "Chuck" Van Horn consumes a cookie. It is said that Christopher Columbus, forearmed with astronomical knowledge, once took advantage of an eclipse to give himself and his men from a cannibal appetite. Having landed upon a hostile shore, the doctory Italian explorer threatened to blot out the sun unless the savages stopped acting so ungenerously. They didn't, and he did — to all practical purposes — and the terrified cannibals changed their minds quite suddenly.

Time and time again in fictional literature an eclipse of the sun has been utilized to help the hero or heroine out of a predicament and preserve the traditional happy ending. It is a pretty handy phenomenon to have around. All of which goes to prove that a little knowledge is a wonderful thing.

A rather inauspicious day in which to start the Lobo hopefuls in their season grind. Lowering clouds this morning seem to sympathize with the season outlook. But they tell us that a bad start makes a good ending, and perhaps all the fine material that will report to Coaches Elkins and Hodges this afternoon will not be superfluous so far as the Interscholastic league is concerned after all. One thing is certain. If the Lobes are not re-

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—This is a big year for "family stuff" in politics. There is enough material for a new party which might be called the "Next of Kin" party. Plenty of leaders are available and the rank and file could consist of sons, daughters, brothers, sisters and mothers of other people.

Everybody's relative is either getting nominated to something or being taken up to the platform and shown off in order to help out somebody's campaign.

The "T. R." Parade

THE Republicans are parading the surviving members of the famous Teddy Roosevelt family to convince voters that Franklin D. Roosevelt is neither the son of T. R. or T. R. himself.

They doubtless will succeed, but it reminds me of my fond hopes last spring that the G. O. P. would nominate Calvin Coolidge and young Theodore Roosevelt and the Democrats Franklin D. Roosevelt and Senator Marcus Coolidge of Massachusetts. Let's all plug for those tickets in 1936 and then dare the politicians to keep us from getting all mixed up!

The Teddy Roosevelt relatives in this campaign seem to be better known—Alice, young Ted and Mrs. T. R.—but judging from the pictures in the paper, there are more active members of Franklin's tribe—including the missing two lovely daughters and a grandchild. The Democrats would seem to have a fair chance of out-Roosevelting the Republicans in the long run.

Hoover "Shock Troops"

THE Hoover children and grandchildren are being held in reserve and are expected to be used as shock troops at critical moments during the shooting. Photographers are saving extra plates for them.

Meanwhile, whether hard times is a factor or not, there is an obviously increased desire in many quarters to keep political honors in the family. Statesmen have sons and sons seem to be going in for statesmanship. The Senate is a popular objective of the next of kin.

the late Speaker Champ Clark, has been nominated for the Senate by the Democrats of Missouri. Nobody gave it to him, either. He had to lick the powerful Pendegast machine of Kansas City. Clark turns out to be a wet and a progressive.

"Son" Charlie Crisp

CONGRESSMAN Charles R. Crisp of Georgia, son of another famous speaker, is also out for the Senate. Crisp has been in the House for many years and it had been his lifelong ambition to be speaker, as was his father. But he gave up that ambition when he decided to seek the senatorial nomination.

The first woman ever elected to the Senate for a full term undoubtedly will be the widow of the late Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas. When he died the Arkansas Democrats gave her the job for the rest of his unexpired term, but she dismayed them when she displayed the 1932 "family spirit" by running for the nomination against six male candidates—and won.

Joe Weldon Bailey of Texas, son of old Senator Joe Weldon Bailey of Texas, is running for the House.

The LaFollette Boys

THE LaFollette boys of Wisconsin—Bob and Phil, son of "Old Bob"—grow in stature each year. Bob doesn't come up for re-election to the Senate this year, but is out helping Phil, who has a hot fight on for re-election as governor of Wisconsin.

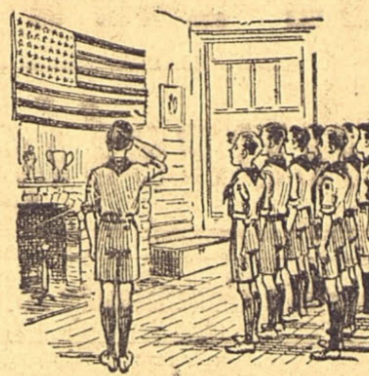

Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama is a son of the late Senator Bankhead, and so is Congressman William Bankhead, who has been here about 15 years. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas was first in the House, where he succeeded his father.

Other congressmen whose ancestors preceded them in the House include Kvale of Minnesota, Dies, Kieberg and Lanham of Texas. Congressman Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, was licked for re-nomination.

Ex-Governor Bilbo of Mississippi and his wife have both declared for Congress and a grandson of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge seeks a seat in the Massachusetts legislature.

Texas and, being proud of his ability with the rod and line, told me a tale of bass and crappie that was too good to be true. The fact that the state has something to say in the matter of game fishing did not at the moment occur to me, and I was generous with publicity. For the next two weeks that good man entertained game wardens. Fortunately, although the season had closed when he returned home, he was successful in proving that it was still wide open when he caught the fish.

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Courts of Honor

A splendid court of honor was held at Lampasas last Friday night with the following boys coming up for awards: Scoutmaster W. M. Talarico, L. B. McMaster, Jr., Grady McMaster, Willis Moses, Leslie Landrum, J. M. Cumley, Harry Williams, Frank Dickason, Don Dunklin, Don Fitch, Jack Smithwick, Earl Lindsey, Maurice Kellum, Marvin Dickason, and James McGehee. The next court of honor will be held the 4th Friday night in September, at which time a special program is being worked out for the benefit of scouts, scouters and visitors.

A court of honor was also held in San Saba with a good crowd and several scouts coming up for awards, but we have failed to get their names to date.

Scoutmasters will be hosts to their wives at Camp Billy Gibbons next weekend, when a training conference will be held for scoutmasters and a special program is being worked out for the ladies. Ed Schumway, Scout Executive of the Chisholm Trail council will be present and will conduct the recreational part of the program.

Troop No. 2 had a very interesting program last Friday night including six new scouts. They had two troop committeemen, two fathers, and 23 scouts present. After the meeting, refreshments were served to the delight of scouts and scouters. (Signed) STUART PAINTER, Junior Asst. Scoutmaster. Troop No. 5. Scoutmaster George A. Reiff of troop 5 reports his troop has a campaign on for new members. Any scout who wants to join his troop at the First Presbyterian church telephone number 292 or the Scout headquarters 275 for any needed information. Any scout in Brownwood that is interested in bead work or Indian Lore, and is in need of information pertaining to same, please get in touch with Gailtha Browning, phone number 1408J or Stuart Painter, phone 954-J. The last of October or the first of November a big Indian Pow-Wow will be held, whereby prizes will be awarded. Now scouts get busy. News want ads bring results.

STALE GAS IS FEEBLE—FRESH GAS PACKS POWER

WHAT? Such a thing as "stale" gasoline? Absolutely. Think about it a minute and you'll see why. Gasoline evaporates. The most volatile parts—important "easy starting" elements—slowly float off into thin air. A chemical change occurs, too. So that the longer gas is stored, the more important power elements it loses!—the feeble it gets. Another thing. When gas is stored too long, sticky compounds form. Those sticky compounds foul your motor—may clog valves and carburetor. And stale gas knocks more, too—particularly on hills. Those are the reasons why refiners have tried to stop the deterioration of gasoline. Those are the reasons why Gulf is pleased to announce a system that assures you of getting FRESH-MADE gasoline. Here's how...

Gulf makes the best gasoline that can be produced. It takes out certain complex elements which have been found to cause rapid deterioration. Hence, Gulf gas stays fresh longer. And Gulf has geared up its distribution system to get this FRESH-MADE gas to you like some perishable product. We have placed huge refineries in many sections of the country—so that every Gulf filling station is close to a source of FRESH gasoline. A huge fleet of trucks speeds FRESH gas to Gulf stations every day. Get 100 cents worth of power from your gasoline dollar. Get FRESH gasoline with FRESH, full power. Get Gulf. Use nothing else—and have a cleaner, quieter, faster motor.

"LET'S SWAP" DAY PROVES BIG SUCCESS

By HOWARD BARRETT
Written for the United Press
ABILENE, Sept. 1. — No longer are the farmers of this section of West Texas finding it necessary to live without many of the farm and household articles found to be necessary but unobtainable during the past two or three years because of lack of money. "Let's Swap Day" apparently has solved their problem.

"Swap Day", recently staged here by the Abilene Daily Reporter and Morning News and the Abilene chamber of commerce, is nothing but a revival of the practice of barter followed for centuries before money was invented. It merely has been brought down to date and publicized through the two newspapers — a "clarification of the old first Monday which played such an important part in the early development of this country," according to an advertisement in the Abilene News.

Convinced hundreds of farmers were being forced by lack of money to live without many necessities the Abilene Reporter and News joined with the chamber of commerce in sponsoring a "Let's Swap Day." So successful was it that it has been adopted as a regular monthly affair.

2,600 Ads
In sponsoring the program, the two newspapers opened their columns for publication without charge of classified ads for all persons having something they would like to exchange for something they needed. More than 2,600 ads were given free publication for three days.

Appearing immediately before "Let's Swap Day" these ads served as a medium in convey to the readers information as to what they might hope to obtain in exchange. The ads enumerated an average of seven items — a total of 15,000 articles from which they could make a selection in filling their needs.

And West Texas was—and still is, apparently—"swap minded." Judging from the thousands who responded to the invitation and the way in which they exchanged serviceable but to them useless articles for something they needed. No record was kept of the number of visitors at the building and vacant lot serving as headquarters. Estimates, however, ranged from 5,000 to 10,000.

The trades ran the gamut of possibilities. One watch owner wanted a car but had no money. He found a car owner who was anxious to surrender his touring car for the watch.

$10 for Apples
Due to the extreme price of apples, a fruit grower in this section of the state found in his orchard the first crop of the first season. He needed money and thought them here with the swapping them to some of the farmers were not buying. Following the "Swap Day" to the letter and doing without trading. The apple became discouraged and his apples for a goat. The deal was made and the owner of another trade was consummated. When a hog owner breached the matter of trading for the goat the grower agreed eagerly. Satisfied that at last he had something to swap he drove directly to a dealer and sold the hog for $10. The affair was tagged with no exchange to anyone except the two property owners. It will be a monthly affair in the future, it has been announced.

MAGNOLIA

Announces

Mobilgas

with CLIMATIC CONTROL*

The Newest Scientific Achievement in Gasoline Now in the Southwest at over 12,000 Magnolia Stations and Dealers

YOU may have noticed how your car seems to run differently in the rain than it does on a hot summer day. You have noticed how one gasoline gives you a quick start on a cold morning while another rasps your temper. On long, fast drives in hot weather you may have noticed your car sputtering and missing. The reason for this variation in performance is that gasoline is extremely sensitive to changes in "engine heat".

At last something has been done about it. Mobilgas has CLIMATIC CONTROL! By this scientific achievement Mobilgas is preadjusted to every variation in temperature or altitude before it is placed on sale in your locality. Hot—cold—rain—shine—from sea level to mountain peaks, it's all the same to Mobilgas.

The outstanding advantages of Climatic Control are yours in Mobilgas without extra cost . . . plus the fact that Mobilgas gives you the highest ANTI-KNOCK performance of any regular priced gasoline. Fill your tank today . . . you'll notice a great improvement!

*CLIMATIC CONTROL . . .

. . . is the preadjustment of the specifications of Mobilgas, before it is placed on sale in your locality. It automatically adapts itself to the variations in "engine heat", caused by changes in temperature, altitude, humidity and road "pull". In the Mobilgas Research Laboratories all these changing climatic conditions have been "manufactured" in hot and cold testing-chambers. The road performance of Mobilgas is thus scientifically verified at different "engine heats".

Resolution Lauds Blanton and Condemns "Unfair Campaign" Waged Against Him

Condemning what it termed "the unfair campaign of hypocrisy and misrepresentation" waged against Cong. Thomas L. Blanton during the last primary campaign, the democratic convention for the 17th congressional district, passed the following resolution:

1. We reaffirm our faith in and our allegiance to the democratic party, and its established principles, and pledge our loyal support to our national nominees, Roosevelt and Garner.

2. We are unalterably opposed to a return of the saloon in any form, but recognizing the inherent right of the people to rule on all issues, we urge congress by an appropriate resolution to submit to the people for their determination by their vote in a special election the question of whether they approve the 18th amendment, or want it modified, or desire an outright repeal.

3. We recognize that a congressman's seniority is a most valuable asset to his constituents and district; that his usefulness grows with his added years of knowledge and experience; that his strength and influence depend largely upon his committee assignment, and that it takes long years of service to gain membership upon the few important committees. We realize that the influential men in congress are those who have had long years of service, and that the vital interests of a district are best conserved in gaining prestige and influence through seniority by continuing a congressman in office as long as he renders faithful, efficient service, rather than by rotating the office around as a plum to aspirants seeking personal advantage, who under such rotation would do little more than draw their salaries.

4. We note with pride that as a reward for his years of active, loyal and efficient service, Congressman Blanton has been made a member of the most important committee on appropriations, which in the recent session of congress cut and reduced budget estimates about $200,000,000 below the amounts President Hoover requested.

5. We denounce the unfair campaign of hypocrisy and misrepresentation recently waged against him, wherein it is conservatively estimated that various political enemies and special interests spent thousands of dollars in their unjust attempt to get Blanton out of congress, where he consistently thwarts their plans and schemes.

6. Because during the past ten years Garner and Blanton have been good friends, we denounce as unfair dirty politics the publishing in the Star-Telegram on Thursday before the primary of old attacks, undated, made years ago in congress, which the people then decided were unjust. Because Congressman Blanton properly reported the deplorable conditions existing in the government printing office, Republican Leader Mondell, with 302 republicans in the house under his command, used same as an excuse to try to put Blanton out of congress. In the succeeding 1922 election Mondell himself was repudiated and put out of office, carrying only one county in his state. Of the 204 members who voted to put Blanton out, very few now remain in congress. In the primary of July 22, 1922, following Garner's unjust attack upon Blanton, while opposed by former Congressman Oscar Callaway, who made Garner's attack an issue, Blanton carried all 26 boxes in Taylor county, and 18 out of the 19 counties in his district.

The Houston Post, in an editorial on April 27, 1922, said: "When Representative Blanton arrived in Abilene, his neighbors accorded him an ovation, which must be considered somewhat as an answer to Mr. Garner.

"The voters of the 17th district are not unmindful as to the abuses Mr. Blanton exposed. Mr. Blanton misrepresented nothing by having the whiskey flask ordered. The flask had been kept on sale. Blanton merely showed how the stationery account could be diverted.

"What gave offense was the Blanton campaign against appropriations not authorized by law. On the very day Mr. Garner stationed himself behind his constitutional immunity and broadsided Blanton, the Abilene man came back and raised points of order against numerous appropriations and sent them to the discard. Blanton has reached the understanding of thousands of people in Texas who live beyond the confines of his district. The issue he raised is not going to die, being it involves the integrity of public service."

The Kansas Official, in an editorial then said: "This endorsement of Mr. Blanton by the voters of his district is a signal victory over the unjust attempts repeatedly undertaken to discredit him. The damnable history of the fight on Blanton is a matter of public record, and is no credit to the Mondells of the house."

Since 1922 Garner and Blanton have been warm personal friends. They have worked together to stop the abuses Blanton was fighting. Garner has called Blanton to the Speaker's Chair to preside when most important legislation was being passed. Blanton was the first member from the floor to nominate Garner for the presidency.

When broadcasting said undated attacks just before the primary, Blanton's enemies knew all of the above facts, and Joe Jones had been furnished with the proof of the fact that Blanton's daughter retains no part of his clerical allowance, but that her name is used merely in an arrangement that enables him to employ three, rather than two, capable clerks, and that his entire allowance for clerical hire goes each month to his three well known employees, none related to him, in whom help to support relatives in Taylor county. Mrs. Louise Kennedy Marx having been his secretary in charge in his Washington office, practically ever since he has been in congress. His clerical allowance is given him to employ sufficient help to perform the work of his office, and the work of his office has always been well performed. At his own expense he has conducted numerous important investigations which have forced many grafters to resign or be put out of office. The records show that Blanton has employed numerous assistants to aid him in making many of these investigations, and paid them out of his own salary. We are perfectly satisfied with the service his office force renders, which we think will compare favorably with service rendered by the employees of any other congressional office in Washington, and we heartily approve of the way he runs his office.

7. We are gratified that a large majority of the voters in this district were not fooled or misled by his opponent's misrepresentations. Instead of the chaplain getting $11 per prayer, he receives $1,600 per year for continual services he renders to 435 congressional families. Instead of the doorkeeper getting $55 per day, he gets $6,000 per year, with scores of employees under him, and in charge of his numerous offices 365 days each year. The Farm Board chairman gets $12,000, not $50,000. Congressmen have reduced their mileage 25 per cent, have reduced their stationery allowance 25 per cent, reduced their own salaries $1,000, and have reduced their clerical salaries $416 per annum. Misrepresentations to the contrary, published to get votes, were unfair and unjust, and we condemn such misrepresentations.

8. We condemn as insincere Joe Jones' pretensions as to favoring economies, when his sworn colleagues for the past three and a fraction years show that he collected from the tax-payers $38,843.20 going to him and his assistants; that of the fees he collected from Texas, he got $6,870.00 for 1374 alleged examining trials, and he got $7,888.00 for 493 alleged habeas corpus hearings at $16 each, when during the same period of time there was not a single habeas corpus hearing in any of the counties of Brown, Burnet, Coleman, Comanche, Concho, San Saba, Llano, Runnels, Lampasas and Shackelford; that Jones collected $570 for letting Buster Bishop waive a jury and plead guilty to 19 indictments filed in one day, one concurrent sentence being assessed with one minimum penalty dated back to day he was jailed, which illustrates the system; that for one year Jones collected from the taxpayers $122.50 for postage stamps, $189.55 for telegrams, $82.64 for telegrams, $180.75 for office supplies, and $1,260.18 for travelling expenses; the printed reports of the comptroller for 1920, and 1931 show that Eastland county, under Joe Jones' regime, was the 5th most expensive county in Texas for those three years, and such a record explains why his own home people who know him best would not give him a big complimentary vote, for in primary July 23, 1922, the vote at Gorman, where Jones was born and grew to manhood, and where his father and relatives still live, was Jones 252, Blanton 244; at Carbon just a short distance away the vote was Jones 77, Blanton 243, and at Rising Star nearby where his brother-in-law and campaign manager Will E. Tyler, and many other relatives lived, the vote in East Rising Star was Jones 198, Blanton 198. As tax-payers we demand that Joe Jones must pay back to the state the $5,786.00, and his last warrant, which the comptroller and investigating committee found he was due and demanded that he pay back, and Jones should likewise refund to Eastland county the $601.52 which County Auditor Michael certifies he was due for 1929.

9. We heartily approve Blanton's H. J. Res. 344 to repeal the Classification Act of 1923, to limit the maximum of all statutory salaries to $7,500, and to properly reduce all salaries, and let congress regain control thereof; also we approve his H. J. Res. 355 to correct retirement abuses, to stop officials from drawing double pay, to abolish the $76 lawyerettes in the veterans administration, and to concentrate all legal matters in the department of justice.

10. We commend Congressman Blanton for watching, investigating and stopping bad bills on the consent calendar, and on the private calendar, for his efforts in trying to consolidate the war and navy departments into one department of national defense, which would save $100,000,000 annually, for his efforts in helping to pass in the house the bill to guarantee bank deposits, for his fight that helped to defeat the general sales tax, for his fight against the increase in postage, for his fight against the tax on bank checks, for his efforts to stop federal land banks from foreclosing mortgages against farms during the depression, and for his uncompromising fights at all times against waste, extravagance and graft, and we pledge him our hearty backing and support.

Coach Says That Babe Didrikson Will Be Better Athlete After 20th Birthday

By TOM MAHONEY United Press Staff Correspondent. DALLAS, Sept. 1.—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, 19-year-old girl Olympic record breaker, will be a better athlete next year than this, predicts her coach, Col. W. J. McCombs. He believes she will not reach the peak of her track and field career until after her 20th birthday.

"She probably will be at her best next year," says McCombs. "There will be no Olympics, however, and though her performances will be better than this year, there will not be so much glory and renown for her."

McCombs believes the girl will lower her track marks by improving her start. She does not jump the gun or become nervous, but her marks more slowly than most champion runners. Even at the 80-meter Olympic hurdle event in Los Angeles in which she set a new world mark, she reached the first hurdles behind her opponents.

Babe clears her hurdles by a margin which would make most college track coaches gasp. Instead of sidestepping the barriers in the traditional manner, she clears them by six or more inches and almost never knock one down. McCombs, however, is in no hurry to change this

T. P. OFFERS LOW LABOR DAY RATES

Many families who have delayed vacations until September are taking advantage of exceptionally low Labor Day excursion rates being put into effect by the Texas and Pacific Railway, according to W. R. Daniels, general agent. Both nearby and distant cities may be visited at a fraction of the usual cost on one of the Labor Day excursion offers, Mr. Daniels said. Return limits have been arranged to provide for tips of the desired length.

On sale September 3, the Texas and Pacific offers a low round trip rate to El Paso Dallas or Ft Worth, with a return limit of September 5. These drastically reduced rates are good on all trains, either in coaches or Pullman cars. Pullman car rates also have been reduced.

In addition to these rates the Texas and Pacific is offering greatly reduced trip rates to Northern and Eastern points including St. Louis, Chicago, Memphis, Little Rock, St. Paul and Minneapolis. Tickets under this offer will be on sale September 2 to 5 with a return limit of September 12. The rate is approximately one cent per mile in coaches. In sleeping cars the rate is the usual one-way fare plus 25 cents for the round trip.

On sale September 3 to 5 with a return limit of September 10 the T. and P. is also offering a round trip rate of approximately one cent per mile to all points in Texas and Louisiana on the T. and P. lines. It is good either in coaches or sleeping cars.

Good Schools Inexpensive; Increasing Cost Due to Expansion of Public Life

(Editor's Note: The following article, prepared by E. B. Lawson of Texarkana, was supplied the Daily News by County Suppt. B. E. McGlamery.)

(By B. B. Lawson, Texarkana) How inexpensive good schools are!—It is one of the tricks of the retrenchment propagandists to set forth increases in school costs without taking into account the large expansion in other phases of our life. School costs have increased remarkably, but not so rapidly as have the demands which the public has made on the schools. The standard of living has gone up and education is an essential element of that standard. How inexpensive schools are! According to the Bureau of Education figures the total expenditure per capita of population for education was only $16.25 in 1924; $17.15 in 1925; and $17.90 in 1926. Divide $17.90 by 365 and the quotient is less than five cents per day per capita for the cost of educating the nation's children—the most important single activity of organized society.

The United States is saving about fifteen per cent of its income. Certainly a nation which can show such a record need show no fear over the expenditure of 2.63 per cent of its income for education. The health, skill and purpose of the people constitute the wealth of the nation. To deny youth the adjustment which school can give is virtually to deny life itself and to destroy the security of this basic human wealth.

Efficiency counts.—We need not delude ourselves into thinking that the nation can afford to do less than its best by all its youth. People move about easily and depend much upon each other. We are one in the end and our children will be more intimately dependent upon the intelligence and good spirit of our young people into high schools and beyond. We cannot afford to starve education—fundamental alike to individual success and national security. Let us rather insist that money spent wisely for good schools is an intelligent investment which every community should make according to its resources, its needs, and its ambitions for its children.

DEER COME TO TOWN NUNN, Colo., Aug. 31.—If the deer continue their present habits until deer-hunting season, Nunn residents will have no further to go than their own city limits to do their bagging. Two does and two bucks have selected a spot southwest of town for their grazing—and give all indications of staying as water is plentiful in that region.

TREED CAT RESCUED EL PASO, Aug. 31.—A gaunt cat that yowled several days atop a telegraph pole was rescued by fire alarm superintendent Charley Walker, after residents no longer could stand the serenade. The cat was chased up the pole by a dog, and sat there several days, fearing to meet the aggressor. The cat had nearly starved to death.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA TOWNSEND, married six months and widowed, inherits her husband's millions providing she does not renege. Her marriage, arranged by Townsend's lawyer who was her secretary, was a success. MONA, in love with her husband's nephew, BARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

Barry is in South America where he has a fortune but there is no legal way for her to arrange this. She employs Lottie as her secretary and companion and they sail for South America. MONA hopes for a reconciliation with Barry and also to find a way to give him a share of the Townsend fortune.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on a vacation at Holiday Island, they decide to leave the boat at Port of Spain. A beautiful young French girl who is trying to escape from her chaperon boards the boat. She sees Barry's picture in MONA's stateroom and cries out, "My Barry!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Do you know Barry Townsend?" asked Mona slowly. She came into the cabin and, closing the door, leaned against it. This other girl, this slip of a youngster really, was clasping Barry's picture to her heart as though she loved him.

She seemed scarcely old enough to love anyone. Yet Mona realized she was not too young. Latin races maturing early, had produced this girl who was crooning over the photograph.

"Pardon, Madame?" said Celeste, startled. "Do I know Barry?" A man could have loved this girl, Mona thought, for just that delightful, lingering droll.

But there were other reasons as well. Celeste was beautiful. She had wavy hair once more with the black and white silk handkerchief. Lottie's simple white silk frock suited her to perfection. "You know my Barry, Madame?" the girl asked again, wondering. "But naturally! Or you would not have had his picture? Or maybe—he sees a movie star?"

"Movie star?" repeated Mona. Relief came over her with a joyous glow. "Then you do not know him? You do not know who he is?"

"I know him," responded the girl assuredly. She set the leather case back again on top of the wardrobe trunk whence she had removed it.

"Where did you see him?" asked Lottie.

"Here," added Mona. "Sit down and don't be afraid. We would like to know where it was you saw Barry Townsend."

The girl hesitated. "I do him no wrong?" she asked carefully. "You are not—"

Celeste's eyes traveled to the ring on Mona's finger.

"His wife?" Mona laughed a little harshly. "No, I am—I am his aunt! Don't be afraid, I have come here in search of Barry and if you can help me find him then you are befriending him. It may be in my power to bring him much wealth."

"Holiday Island, I think. That is where—"

"Where is Holiday Island?" asked Lottie sharply.

"I don't know. It was an island, that's all. Barry bought it—"

"Celeste!" roared her father outside the door. "Are you there? Come out. No more nonsense!"

"You may have the dress," Lottie said hurriedly. Unbuckling her wrist watch, she added, "And this." She motioned Mona to be still, took Barry's picture from the frame, slid it between the pages of a magazine and put it in the girl's arms. The hurry and flurry outside had exploded. The searchers were exploring the crew's quarters.

"Come with me," Lottie said. "I'll take you down this way and get a boat for you. Maybe the quartermaster won't recognize you. Come!"

The quartermaster preferred not to recognize the crestfallen young lady who hung on Lottie's arm and grasped a magazine convulsively. Lottie secured a boat, gave the oarsmen two shillings and bade him shove off.

She watched while the little bark bobbed its way to the quay. "Now," she said to the quartermaster, "take this message to Celeste's father and that nurse. Tell them Mademoiselle has gone ashore."

Mona met her with a white face. "Look here," Lottie began without waiting for her to speak, "if you are going to faint every girl who is in love with Barry down here you'd better get a grip on yourself. That kid has a high school crush on Barry. She admits he didn't care for her and he probably didn't even know she was around. You know what men are when they go hunting?"

"I know what pretty French girls are when they go hunting!" returned Mona. "And you gave her his picture!"

"You can get a dozen others by cabling and having them sent air mail. Sallie would attend to it, or Mrs. Faxon. I gave her the portrait to get rid of her because she gave us quite a tip."

LOTIE sank into a chair. "In the first place she said Barry had bought Holiday Island. That narrows things down somewhat. There's a man at Port of Spain, the captain told me, who can tell us where Holiday Island is. We reach Port of Spain tomorrow. We can charter a plane there and fly to Holiday. It's easy!"

"We may have passed Holiday Island," Mona suggested.

"Yes; but if we charter a plane we can fly back or down or across—wherever we must go—in no time!" Mona nodded miserably. "I'm glad I brought you along, Lottie," she said meekly.

"Listen, Mona, I'm anxious to see that dark-haired friend of Barry's as you are to find Barry."

"Are you in love with Steve?"

"Maybe. That remains to be seen! Come on, let's have tea."

The evening dragged. The girls went to the dance at the Aquatic Club to make the time pass more quickly. At midnight the party returned to the Miranda and at one o'clock she had cleared for Port of Spain.

But at Port of Spain Lottie and Mona, in the kindly guidance of young Dr. Allen, failed to find the man who they hoped would direct them to Holiday Island. He had gone fishing at Gasparee and would not be back for several days.

"Then we'll stay several days," Mona decided.

They drove back to the quay for their baggage, took it through the customs and found a taxi.

"Let's drive through the park," suggested the doctor, smiling. "It is going to cost us the large sum of 12 cents!"

They drove up Frederick street and, skirting the Savanna, drew up at the Queen's Park Hotel.

"Tea," said Lottie, indicating the cool open lobby which looked out on spreading saman trees. "I'm famished. Why, great heavens! Mona, do you see what I see?"

There, seated at a table, dressed in aviator's togs, and pensively sipping a cooling drink, sat Bud Moran.

(To Be Continued)

THERE was a hush and cry outside and then a shout. Lottie stepped to the door and stood against it.

"It's Maria and a couple of officers. They want Celeste."

"Her parents are on board, aren't they?" asked Mona. "Certainly they are! They came back from the club in the tender when I came. They did not expect the daughter. I recall that they planned to visit her at her school after lunch. Lottie, let her go. They are looking for her."

"But these clothes!" Celeste began wistfully.

"Look," said Lottie suddenly, taking the girl by the shoulders. "Can you tell us where Barry is now?"

"Holiday Island, I think. That is where—"

"Where is Holiday Island?" asked Lottie sharply.

"I don't know. It was an island, that's all. Barry bought it—"

"Celeste!" roared her father outside the door. "Are you there? Come out. No more nonsense!"

"You may have the dress," Lottie said hurriedly. Unbuckling her wrist watch, she added, "And this." She motioned Mona to be still, took Barry's picture from the frame, slid it between the pages of a magazine and put it in the girl's arms. The hurry and flurry outside had exploded. In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Alfred E. Smith will be editor-in-chief of the Outlook when that magazine resumes publication next month. Those who are close to him say that the Happy Warrior of 1928 will be an active editor, writing both editorial comment and general articles as well as influencing the policy of the publication. The Outlook became a weekly instead of a monthly publication early in springtime and then was suspended altogether. On June 30 it was purchased by Frank Tichenor, who is the publisher of a chain of well-known magazines and is said to be a multi-millionaire. In addition to these those who are close to the Happy Warrior of four years ago are positive that Editor Smith will not make speeches in the campaign, that he will divide his time between the Empire State building management and his editorial duties.

CISCO SERVICE STATION

It is just as fair for the meat packers to have retail meat markets in every other block up Main Street as it is for the major oil companies to have filling stations.

So why not help Jimmie Allred put the major oil companies out of the retail business by doing as he does. When he was in Cisco he filled up at the Cisco Service Station with Independent Gas.

The Retail Profit Should Remain in Cisco.

There is no better Gas, Lube Oils or Coal Oil Than I Handle.

ended all the national conventions (1892) and who in days remote was a democratic partisan, in the current number of the Saturday Evening Post declares that the republican and democratic parties are "as alike as two peas, that their trade-marks are bogus as they are dead generalities and not living symbols and that the hour has arrived in America for the launching of a new party which will stand for the real issues of the hour which concern all the people. Samuel G. is getting old. Having lost faith in the major political organizations of the period, he will lose faith in himself if he doesn't watch out.

This is a two party country. It is not a two party government. Unless partisans throttle their prejudices and work at all times for America first, in the enactment of laws and the handling of the money of the American taxpayers. For instance, Herbert Clark Hoover is for returning control to the states — of the liquor problem while his running mate Charles Curtis, favors without change, retention of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Garner are not traveling in opposite directions. That is, they stand squarely on the Chicago platform of the convention and its pro plank Hoover is in the camp of the wets. His running mate is in the camp of the dries. It is an exhibition of rank hypocrisy to say the least.

Of course, in the last analysis, a president will not be called upon to decide the issue. He is powerless. It is not his function. The congress enacts the laws; the congress submits amendments to the constitution to be voted upon by the people; the congress has the power to modify the Volstead act; the congress has the power to refuse to make appropriations to defray the cost of enforcement of the Volstead act.

Louis Brandeis, for years and years a New York World correspondent before the Pulitzer journal passed on to the graveyard, lets the American people know that "Wall Street is for Hoover." This is not surprising. Wall Street has been for the republican nominee for the presidency since the close of the war between the states. Wall Street sought the election of Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, Alton B. Parker and the election of Woodrow Wilson first and last the election of James M. Cox the election of John W. Davis, and, lastly, the election of Alfred E. Smith four years ago. Many wealthy New Yorkers favored the election of Smith but Wall Street — the great banking houses of Wall Street and the great financiers of Wall Street — have ever thrown their support to the republican presidential nominee. This is a matter of politics as well as a matter of record.
