Judge Advises No Injunction Against Troops Exists

MILITA MAY BE USED IN ENFORCEMENT

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—Federal Judge J. C. Hutchinson, of Houston, this afternoon advised attorneys for Gov. Sterling that there is no injunction against use of troops in enforcing prohibition orders in the east Texas oil fields.

STERLING OUTLINES VIEWS OF SITUATION

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—"Troops are likely to be withdrawn from east Texas. They may be withdrawn very shortly. I do not say they will be." Governor Ross Sterling said today in his first press conference since a three-judge court at Tyler held martial law in the oil field invalid.

The governor outlined his view of the situation to include: Under the decision of the federal court, if not set aside by the United States supreme court, there is no authority for martial law anywhere in the state.

The governor is directly enjoined from interfering with the wells of the plaintiffs who got the injunction. Owners of other wells can get similar injunctions on application.

Meantime the governor's attorneys planned to ask a stay of the injunction order and will appeal to the U. S. supreme court.

The governor indicated that his usual week-end trip to Houston would not be made today. "Something might happen at any time," he said.

OIL MEETING IS CANCELLED

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—Capt. J. F. Lucey, chairman of the group which called the meeting, today announced that the meeting of oil operators called for Monday in Tyler had been cancelled.

"In view of Governor Sterling's statement that the troops will remain in east Texas, the emergency mass meeting called for Monday at Tyler is unnecessary and hereby cancelled."

MARKETS ARE MISSING LINK IN CHAIN TO GIVE CISCO ASSURANCE OF PROSPEROUS DEVELOPMENT

(AN EDITORIAL)

The annual banquet of the Future Farmers chapter of the Cisco high school Friday night when members of the chapter entertained their fathers and other guests at the high school, illustrating as it did the progress that is being made in vocational agriculture instruction in Cisco and the interest that these youths are taking in their preparation to make the basic industry a means of livelihood, provides more argument for the fact that Cisco must look to the future if it expects to profit to the greatest extent from this movement. These boys are learning not only the fact that the production of farm products is a serious business, but they are learning the more important fact of applying business principles to farming. Figures are as truthful and as inescapable in the matter of producing cotton, corn and livestock as they are in the business of buying and selling. The same rules that govern the success of the merchant, the builder and the professional man determine the success of the man who elects to earn his living from the soil. Each must deal with the laws of supply and demand, and the ledgers are marked with the same lines in each case. Learning these facts provides these boys with the means of making agricultural enterprises successful and thereby building a self-dependent, economically strong agricultural industry upon which urban prosperity in this section may find a sturdy foundation. But Cisco, to realize the opportunity that the future will bring out of this preparation, must certainly see to it that its own institutions are firmly tied into this development. It has given these boys the advantage of training, the equipment and the incentive to devote their efforts to a vocation, but it must also provide them with the means of turning their efforts to profit for themselves and the community. In other words it is essential, if the ultimate success of the vocational program under way here is achieved, that suitable markets be provided locally for the products of these future farmers. They must have assurance that the commodities they produce can find here the most equitable facilities for their disposal. Otherwise the good that is being done in bringing about the best development of the farm resources adjacent to Cisco will shortly prove of more benefit to rival centers of trade and population than to ourselves. It should be clearly apparent to our business men and those institutions which represent their community efforts at civic development, that they cannot hope to profit unless they first give service and the opportunity for mutual welfare. There are two sides to every form of prosperity and none of them can be sustained unless there is an equitable division of benefit. The man who took that end of the cow which gave the milk when the man who received the feeding end chose to slaughter his half for the beef. Marketing facilities are the missing link in the chain of community development that we must establish here if Cisco is to expect a stable and sustained community prosperity.

F. F. CHAPTER ENTERTAINS DADS FRIDAY

Future farmers of Cisco, youngsters who are learning the benefits of practical cooperation in the agricultural industry by applying its principles to their vocational student projects, gathered at the high school Friday night as hosts to their fathers and specially invited guests at a "Father and Son" banquet. Covers had been laid by the girls of the domestic science department of the high school, in charge of Instructor Miss Willie Snyder, for more than 70 people and the expected attendance was fully realized.

These father and son banquets are annual events with Future Farmer chapters everywhere, the purpose being to draw the fathers of the boys into closer association and consequently closer interest in the work that the boys are doing as they learn the how and why of farming as a vocation. Brief but illuminating reports of the work that the chapter is doing, revealed in striking fashion Friday night the business-like methods with which these boys undertake and carry on their projects.

The meeting opened with the formula of the Future Farmer chapter regular meetings with President James Matthews in the chair. E. H. Varnell, sponsor of the chapter and teacher of vocational agriculture in the high school, introduced Aimee Lee Richardson who served as toastmaster.

The Rev. H. D. Tucker, pastor of the First Methodist church, was the principal speaker. He based his address upon four points from a poem which he read, e. g., "But things a man must learn to do, if he would keep his record true; To think without confusion, clearly; To love his fellowman sincerely; To act from honest motives purely, and trust in God and heaven securely."

Before his address, which occurred about midway of the program, the toastmaster introduced little Miss Katherine Collum, who accompanied by her father, G. W. Collum, entertained the banquet with a dancing number that drew great applause. Bryan Ray told of lamb projects being carried out by the boys; Rayford Richardson outlined the program undertaken by the chapter much of which, he said has already been accomplished; Dr. C. C. Jones spoke to the boys on the subject of "Thrift", giving them suggestions for the future conduct of their enterprises by which they can assist themselves to financial success and independence; Travis Manning told of the project activities of the chapter, giving statistics on the work being done and the profits made; and James Matthews told of the success of the chapter in its contest activities with other chapters in the states declaring that the chapter

ALLRED SUIT IS CONFUSING TO ATTORNEYS

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—Attorney General James V. Allred's anti-trust and ouster suit against seventeen oil concerns has many confusing angles to the lawyers as well as laymen. Arguments over single points involved have lasted over two days, the judge even then, taking them under advisement. It may be clarified by a summary of some of the matters and points involved. Allred is attempting to prove that the defendants violated the state anti-trust law, particularly, in connection with the filling of station business. This, he asserts, was done under the guise of the oil code of ethics approved by the Federal Trade Commission. The law prohibits combinations in restraint of trade. The minimum fine for violation is $50 a day. The maximum is $1,500 a day. Violations are charged for 783 violations beginning Nov. 20, 1929. Ouster from the state is also provided. Four of the defendant oil companies are chartered in other states and have no permit to operate in Texas. Ouster orders against them would be inoperative. To reach them with fines, Allred filed a group of garnishments and attachment suits, attaching stock of Texas oil companies, owned by the foreign companies. The American Petroleum Institute and the Texas Petroleum Marketers' association, Allred charges, are organizations through which the companies worked in violating the law.

Ignored Suit. The non-resident oil companies legally ignored the suit but took very practical notice of it. Their attorneys were in court but they filed no answers and attachment suits. An old legal practice permits a "friend of the court" to advise him. As such friends they advised Judge

YOUTH KILLED BY OFFICERS AT FT. WORTH

FORT WORTH, Feb. 20.—A youth identified as George Diehl, 18 years old, of San Antonio, was killed by police here today, one of his companions wounded and a third arrested when they resisted an attempt by police to search them. Diehl was shot by Night Policeman D. S. Harris when Harris and another officer stopped the trio said to be wanted in Waco and San Antonio on robbery charges, to question them. Harris said Diehl attempted to draw a gun when he fired twice. And as he turned around the second man tried to pull a gun and he shot him also.

The man in jail gave his name as Jack Pace, 40 years old, of San Antonio. The wounded youth, who is believed dying, accused at the hospital and told police he was Polk Gatling, of Corpus Christi. He admitted driving an automobile used in the robbery of the Waco bakery last night, police said. He was too weak to give details.

PAYMENT FOR POST OFFICE SITE IS MADE

The site, selected by the United States government as the location of the federal building to be erected in Cisco, Friday afternoon formally became the property of the United States.

Checks in payment for the south half of the lot between E and F avenues on Sixth street were delivered by United States District Attorney Norman Dodge Friday afternoon and shortly thereafter the deeds were recorded in the court house at Eastland, Guy Dabney, who handled the transaction for the owners of the property, announced. The checks have been deposited in the bank to the credit of the sellers. The selection of the site as the lot upon which the federal building is to be erected was announced several months ago and plans for construction of the building immediately undertaken by the government architects. The property was purchased from the Twentieth Century club, Mrs. William Reagan and Mrs. A. P. Slater Mr. Dabney served as agent for the owners in the transaction.

Shafts Sunk Last fall shafts were sunk on the lot to secure accurate information regarding the sub-strata to be used in drawing foundation plans. A stratum of coal of fair grade was penetrated by one of these shafts. Beneath the coal vein satisfactory support for the foundations was found a short distance below 25 feet.

Delay in the actual building is due to the great mass of public construction that is occupying the attention of the government architects efforts to speed up the project made by the chamber of commerce and other civic institutions, showed. The Cisco project is one of a large number and it has been allotted a place in the program which, if changed would simply displace another item of construction which is being as aggressively urged, the Cisco representatives, were informed. Assurance was given that the project would be reached in regular order and that this would probably be in the spring.

PINK PARRISH ANNOUNCES FOR CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE

LUBBOCK, Feb. 20.—State Senator Pink L. Parrish tonight announced his candidacy for Congressman-at-large on a platform of "giving the government back to the people." He will campaign throughout the state. "I know from my own experience, that the farmer and the stockman need fundamental aid, rather than temporary relief—which is what they've been getting if they've been getting anything at all," said Parrish. "Our Texas prosperity hinges upon agriculture and its contributive industries and that will be among my chief interests in Washington."

He said he favored elimination of income taxes on an income of less than $10,000 and an increase in taxation on incomes of more than $50,000. He said he favored a revival of the warping state rights. "I am likewise opposed to our mixing in Europe any more than is absolutely necessary to safeguard our interests," he said. "I favor so far as possible the ultimate payment of war debts by our European debtors. If it is necessary for us to grant a further moratorium, I favor a moratorium for private interests as well as public."

"If our government cannot get its just dues from Europe, I am opposed to vast payments being made the big eastern bankers by these same nations. Any further moratorium should apply to Wall Street as well to the United States government and future payments should be prorated between the two to prohibit the people getting nothing and the Wall Street bankers taking it all. BAR ASS'N TO DEBATE SELF GOVERNING ACT

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—Adoption of the self-governing bar act which allows members of a state bar association to decide on infractions of legal ethics and punish their guilty of unethical procedure, will be debated at the convention of the Texas Bar Association at Mineral Wells, May 19, 20 and 21. Decision to include the self-governing act in the program of the convention was made by officers of the association at a meeting here today. Other subjects to be debated are the encroachment of the laymen and corporations on the functions of the attorney and the advisability of imposing high requirements on applicants to the bar. George Shelley, of Austin, president of the association, presided here.

FIGHTING IS INCREASING IN INTENSITY

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—The fighting, as Japanese forces attempted to disengage the Chinese defenders in the big push, increased in intensity Saturday midnight. Japanese forces admitted four Japanese had been killed and 42 wounded in the day's fighting. A terrific bombardment of the Chinese positions to the west and southwest of Kiangwan began at 11 p. m. and it was the evident intention of the Japanese attackers to encircle the Chinese and force them towards the international settlement. The bombardment was so severe that all residents of the international settlement were kept awake. The Japanese were using their heaviest guns, shaking the windows and houses for miles around.

DEMAND U. S. AID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—United States cooperation with the League of Nations in an economic boycott against Japan, if that country continues its Shanghai campaign, was urged today by a group of leading citizens and college presidents. Headed by Newton D. Baker and President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, the group addressed to President Hoover and congress a petition holding that the league could not enforce a boycott without United States concurrence.

Admiral Ueyematsu, commanding the naval troops ashore, attempted to inspect the north station area. Chinese fire was so severe, however, that the admiral was forced to abandon his project and quickly returned to headquarters.

In the most terrific onslaught against the Chinese lines in the major battle now proceeding from Woosung to Shanghai, Japanese forces won complete control of the Kiangwan sector and consolidated their position at 7:30 p. m. The sector was taken and retaken three times as successive waves of infantry supported by tanks, advanced and were driven back by the stubborn Chinese defenders.

Fail to Dislodge Chinese. As night fell the Japanese commanders were preparing a new attack against the north station where throughout a day of heavy bombardment they had failed to dislodge the Chinese from their poorly constructed trenches.

American lives had been endangered during the days fighting. The Japanese were unable to sweep over the Woosung forts despite a heavy concentration of air bombs and naval shells against what had appeared to be weak resistance by the poorly equipped Chinese.

At dusk General Uyeda removed his headquarters to the outskirts of Kiangwan and announced that the sector was dominated by his troops. This success marked an advance of five miles since the offensive started and the driving of an important wedge into the Chinese lines.

The unyielding resistance of the Chinese at Woosung, where young soldiers, many of them mere boys, put up a stubborn machine gun defense against a terrific bombardment, aroused the amazement and admiration of observers.

Throughout the day a squadron of Japanese destroyers stood by in the river and poured a rain of shells against the beleaguered forts. The air was filled with Japanese planes adding their bombardment to the gunfire from the river.

As night approached the vigilant forts were still in the hands of the Chinese. Four Japanese tanks were reported to have been blown up and two airplanes shot down during the day.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

LOVE NOT THE WORLD:—Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.—1 John 2: 15.

JUDGE CARDOZO AS A WRITER OF BOOKS.

All the people are interested in the record of Judge Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, independent democrat but never active in politics, named as the successor of Oliver Wendell Holmes. This excerpt is taken from one of his books:

"Our survey of judiciary methods teaches us the reason that the whole subject matter of jurisprudence is more plastic, more malleable, the moulds less definitely cast, the bounds of right and wrong less preordained and constant than most of us have been accustomed to believe."

Another excerpt: "We are tending more and more toward an appreciation of the truth that after all there are few rules; there are chiefly standards and degrees." Writing of his conception of what should constitute a judge, he said: "My duty as a judge may be to objectify in law, not my own aspirations and convictions and philosophy, but the aspirations and philosophies of the men and women of my times."

According to those who are very close to the jurist selected to be the successor of the distinguished son of Massachusetts, Oliver Wendell Holmes had a vast deal to do with the liberalizing of this distinguished son of New York who had never been defeated for high court honors for the reason that the people who loved justice were for him and the political bosses never attempted to defeat his nomination for high place. Now, Borah, Norris, and all the so-called liberals of the senate are for his confirmation. Now leaders of the administration, as well as the leaders of the democratic party in high places are ready to vote for his confirmation. There is a coalition majority in the senate. There is a democratic house. It does make a difference to the American people.

ANOTHER BRYAN IN THE PICTURE.

William Jennings Bryan, son of the orator of the Platte, appeared before the Western states silver conference at Denver with a plea for bi-metalism. Metal miners from "mountain ghost towns" joined with representatives of 12 Western states in deprecating gold as the basis for the world's transaction and "chrousing a demand for the rehabilitation of silver." There were many speakers in addition to the son of a distinguished sire. Former governors and former U. S. senators all declared that "unless silver is again made as primary money, to the side of gold, there is no relief from fall in prices, unemployed, bankruptcy, suffering and misery, for the unnumbered millions of the world." All the silver mines are in the Rocky Mountain states. Silver and copper are hitting the lowest levels in history. It is impossible for Bryan, Sr., to come back. He is sleeping with the shades. Texas was one of the most vociferous of all free silver states. Now Cyclone Davis is the last survivor of the old bodyguard of the famous orator of the Platte.

ANOTHER FERGUSON CAMPAIGN PROMISED.

Early in the month of January, the prediction was made by a Texas judge that Mrs. Ferguson would be a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor if the payment of poll tax receipts in 264 Texas counties would justify her candidacy. Now positive assurance has been given that Mrs. Ferguson's name will appear on the primary ballot in the July primary. All this recalls the prophecy made by Former State Senator W. A. Hanger 16 years ago. Hanger was chief counsel for James E. Ferguson in the impeachment and ouster case. This is what the Fort Worth lawyer and political leader said when the verdict had been announced:

"Fergusonism will be an issue in the political campaigns of Texas just as long as James E. Ferguson remains in the land of the living."

Well, Fergusonism has been an issue for 16 years. Will it be an issue in the campaign of 1932? Political leaders make answers, "YES."

OTHER OPINIONS

HOMER PRICE ON PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTS.

Homer Price, editor of the Marshall Morning News, writes many of the state's most widely quoted editorials. This distinction is his for the reason he is so thoroughly posted before he commits himself upon an issue.

When Mr. Price pens a political editorial, he writes in a field that is preeminently his own. This is particularly true when he chooses to write upon the Texas phase of national presidential politics. He has the faculty for picking winners. He went Hooveristic long before the rank and file of Texas voters and when they counted the ballots they found that Homer Price had been amazingly correct.

Especially interesting, therefore, is anything Homer Price may have to say about the forthcoming presidential campaigns in Texas. And here is a recent utterance of the kind: "If John Garner is the nominee for president, he will carry Texas by 500,000 majority."

In 1928, Homer Price turned to Hoover rather than support a wet democratic nominee. Yet Homer

Price, in making the unequalled assertion quoted here, knew that John Garner voted against submission of the eighteenth amendment. It is not supposed that Mr. Price has changed the color of his creed. Rather it is to be inferred that John Garner's consistent support of enforcement measures, introduced after acceptance of the prohibition amendment, has made the Texas Speaker of the House acceptable to that great body of democrats who are dry before they are democrats. Undoubtedly, Homer Price knows that John Garner is one of the few forceful leaders behind whom the democratic party can consolidate its scattered strength. Undoubtedly he knows that John Garner is the obvious compromise candidate.

Under any other leadership than Garner's, it is not improbable that Texas again will shift into the republican column. On the other hand, Texas six million people can do much by way of pushing a democrat through the no-man's land that lies between here and the White House. It isn't so much because John Garner is a Texan that he is a good presidential bet—it's just because John Garner is John

Homespun American

Garner, with all that John Garner means and John Garner stands for. Homer Price thinks John Garner can win. And Homer Price's is an opinion to which party leaders will pay attention. — This Week's Opinion.

Address on George Washington Delivered Before Memorial Meeting of City Clubs

Editor's Note—The following address on George Washington, delivered before the City Federation of Women's clubs at the federation's memorial services recently by the Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, is reproduced by the Daily News at the request of the federation.

Madam president and ladies: It is quite proper that the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington should be observed in this memorial service. It is fitting indeed that we should seek to enshrine in our memories that early character who played such a prominent part in establishment and promulgation of the principles of the American government. I trust that if he be already enshrined in our hearts, the condition will not be found to be as one of whom I recently read. A certain miserly person of a New York community who approached for an offering to help erect a monument to the memory of the father of our country replied that he would make no such contribution. When the solicitor insisted, the man replied that Washington was already enshrined in his heart. The solicitor said, "All right, I shall so report to the committee in charge, and I shall tell them that he is enshrined in a very tight place."

Now, I am sure, Ladies, that we love the memory of this mighty statesman; and I am likewise sure that we do well to think together about those characteristics that have made him the outstanding figure in American history. When I think of Mr. Washington, I think of him in terms of this alliterative definition: He was a Christian citizen who conquered circumstances in order to help create a continuing commonwealth. You are invited to go with me as we shall analyze that definition and seek to ascertain if it be true.

That he was a Christian has been questioned by some. Since preparing my message my attention has been called to the statement made by one who says that Washington never mentioned the name of Christ to all his disciples. I do not know that he was a Christian. I do know this, however. He was a member of a Christian church. He certainly appreciated the spirit of Christianity; for he made mention more than once of those who lived in the Christian spirit. Other reasons for my belief that he must have been a Christian are: He asked the Continental Congress to provide chaplains for the Revolutionary army whose command had been given to him. He never failed to give praise to Providence for the victories that came to his forces. He was constantly able to see the unfolding of the Divine plan in the rise of this new nation. Once again it has been reliably reported that he was found more than once during those bitter months at Valley Forge to be upon his knees alone interceding with God for the cause of the Revolutionary forces. It is indeed interesting to note also that his first act after being inaugurated president was to call the congress together and ask them to express thanks to God for the victories that had come. I am thankful, ladies, that the religion which I teach and believe had such adherents as Washington, Lincoln, and Wilson.

That he was a citizen we are sure. Further than this he was that type of citizen whose patriotism was manifested rather than told. Too many of us talk too much about our citizenship and seek too often its privileges without enough regard for the government that gives it to us and for the God who has sustained us.

Mr. Washington was that kind of citizen who placed his country above himself. When the first call to public service came to him, he neglected not to blaze a trail across while Cornwallis surrendered to him at Yorktown. Once more he was the conqueror of circumstances. Another experience that should not be omitted is the bitter winter at Valley Forge. When some were threatening mutiny because they were compelled to harden the snow with the blood from their own bare feet, he went alone to seek encouragement from Heaven and to know the Divine Will.

Finally when he was confronted with the greatest task ever set before him, that of leading in the organization of a new and novel government, he faced the ordeal with the spirit of the conqueror. Men may be organized for a common purpose in time of oppression and war, but it requires the conquering spirit to organize them after the victory into a government that designs freedom for all and favors for none. Nevertheless, it was done; and we of the twentieth century are the beneficiaries of that Conqueror of Circumstances.

My last thought to you is this: He led in creating continuing commonwealth. I call to your remembrance the fact that all democracies ever attempted by the nations of the world had been complete failures. The Athenian democracy built upon the Utopian ideas of Plato had fallen victim to the monarchical spirit of Philip of Macedonia. The democracy of Rome had been obliterated by the ravaging wars of feudalism. Every effort of man had failed save the democracy of the church. Now that victory had come there devolved upon this man together with his contemporaries the responsibility of initiating a government that would guarantee the sustenance of the freedom so costly won. Imagine, if you please, the peoples of the whole world as they breathlessly await the outcome of this noble experiment. One hundred forty-three years have passed since the inception of that novel government. One has only to remember that today practically every major nation under the sun has accepted in some form democratic government patterned more or less after that of America. God produces the man for every emergency, and was to that man if he neglect to accept that responsibility. I have gratitude in my heart that Mr. Washington together with his contemporaries under God, "set forth upon this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

That commonwealth has continued because it was so nobly constructed upon the principles of righteousness. I invite your attention to these three principles: religion and grounded in the constitution. It granted the freedom of religious choice to every constituent. It was based upon the three point system of government, legislative, executive and judicial. It provided for bilateral representation of the people and the congress and the senate. While we have departed today and witness suffering in divers places, yet we know that it is not the fault of the founders. Rather is it the fault of those heartless wretches who today would sacrifice country for self rather than self for country. Just here permit me to say that any person who subsidizes the offices of government for his own gain merely invites destruction upon himself. Someone was asked if he thought Washington to be much greater than Alexander, Napoleon, Hannibal or Caesar. The reply was that all these reached their positions by pushing their countrymen down, while Mr. Washington reached his height by reaching down to lift his countrymen up.

I conclude with this thought. This government has continued under God's direction for these one hundred forty-three years. It has been an ideal of every aspirant of freedom. It will continue to live so long as the Supreme Benefactor is revered and its original principles are respected; but it is faced today with many dangers. Partisanship seeks to supplant patriotism; Foreign entanglements and alliances overshadow the common defense; Monopoly threatens commercial freedom. The enlargement of the domain invites aggression; and the continued violation of the laws of God, nature, and country endanger American tranquility.

O, noble brow, so wise in thought, O, heart so true, O, soul unbound, O eye so keen to pierce the night, And guide the ship of state aright, O, life so simple, grand, and free, The humblest still may turn to thee.

O, King uncrowned, O, Prince of men: When shall we see thy like again? O, Washington, Our Washington, again the rounding year Brings back to us thy natal day which ever grows more dear. Aye, more and more we reverence thee, Thou who didst build so well The story of thy marchless deeds are unto us will tell.

O, Washington, Our Washington, We see thee kneeling there Amidst the snows of Valley Forge with hands unraised in prayer. The God of battles heard thy call, and succor to thee sent. Thru all those anxious weary years His angel with thee went.

O, Washington, Our Washington, Be thou our guiding star. As thou didst lead us in the past, still lead us from afar. Still fetter of thy country be Guard and protect thy land. And may the ship of state ever feel thy wise and steadfast hand.

O, Washington, Our Washington, On Blue Potomac's shore Thy body lies in sleep eternal, at rest forevermore. But thy great soul lives on and on. More glorious grows thy fame, And millions yet unborn will add their praises to thy name.

$1,000 FOR NAME IS OFFERED BY ATWATER-KENT

What's in a name? Well, there's $1,000 in it for the nimble-witted man or woman, boy or girl, who suggests the best name for the new Atwater Kent Radio neon tuning light.

Cisco radio fans will have a chance to pick up this $1,000 prize, or one of 54 smaller prizes, according to announcement made today by Jno. H. Garner's local Atwater Kent dealer. The new sets may be inspected and entrance blanks for the contest obtained at the company's local show rooms.

These new sets make it possible for the first time to gauge exact tuning with the eye as well as with the ear. Beside the dial is a slender shadow the common deflection. The enlargement of the domain invites aggression; and the continued violation of the laws of God, nature, and country endanger American tranquility.

Through this development, precise tuning may be accomplished in absolute silence. With volume control off, the exact position for the station desired is determined by watching the light as the dial is turned. When that is at the highest point, volume may then be turned on and the station comes in at its very peak of tone.

The contest closes at midnight Thursday, March 31. The $1,000.00 idea and the names of the lucky prize winners will be announced as soon as possible after that date. In addition to the name, each contestant will be expected to submit a 50-word statement giving his reasons for the name he suggests.
