Long Cotton Plan Loses in Trial Vote in House Today

REPORT ON MEASURE IS LOST 46-55

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—The Long plan for a total cotton holiday next year lost in a test vote before the house of representatives here today 46 to 55. The vote was 46 for having a sub-committee report out a Long plan bill as well as an acreage reduction bill.

Fifty five voted to have the committee report only one bill which will be the Olson reduction bill, limiting cotton planting next year to a one-third of the cultivated land this year. The committee had agreed on the bill.

DOORKEEPER HURT IN RUSH

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—Doorkeeper Phil Clemmens, of the Texas House of Representatives, was slightly injured as members tried to leave the house this afternoon and avoid an adjournment to vote on adjourning to Monday. Clemmens is a Confederate veteran.

Clemmens hand was hurt trying to stop Rep. Albert K. Daniels, who rushed through the door just before a call of the house was ordered. Mrs. Lee J. Roundtree, member from Bryan, tried vainly to grab and hold Daniels.

The call came after a motion to adjourn showed a lack of adjournment. It supplanted an earlier motion to force a report this afternoon from a special sub-committee which had asked to postpone its report until Monday. A majority of this committee has declared for the Olson bill limiting cotton acreage next year to a third of this year's cultivated land. The committee is three to one against the Long no-cotton plan.

Meanwhile A. A. Allison, of Corsicana, chairman of the farmers' advisory committee, raised a senate row when he told the senators farmers are beginning to think the senate is unfriendly to their measure.

RENO JUDGES ENFORCE RULE OF RESIDENCE

RENO, Nev., Sept. 11.—Divorcees who come here with the intention of remaining in Nevada less than six weeks and "get by" with perjured testimony as to establishment of proper residence will henceforth learn that Reno courts are not to be deceived with lighty.

Dismissal of the divorce suit without right to reapply in Reno courts and possible jail sentence is the threat which Judges Thomas F. Moran and Benjamin Currier offer to such perjurers.

A new ruling that no residence witness except the landlady, landlord, manager or owner of the apartment, rooming house or hotel resided will be adjudged competent to testify has been made.

Cases Denied
More than 200 divorce cases were either denied, or dismissed outright, or were continued until proper witnesses could be called, during the past month.

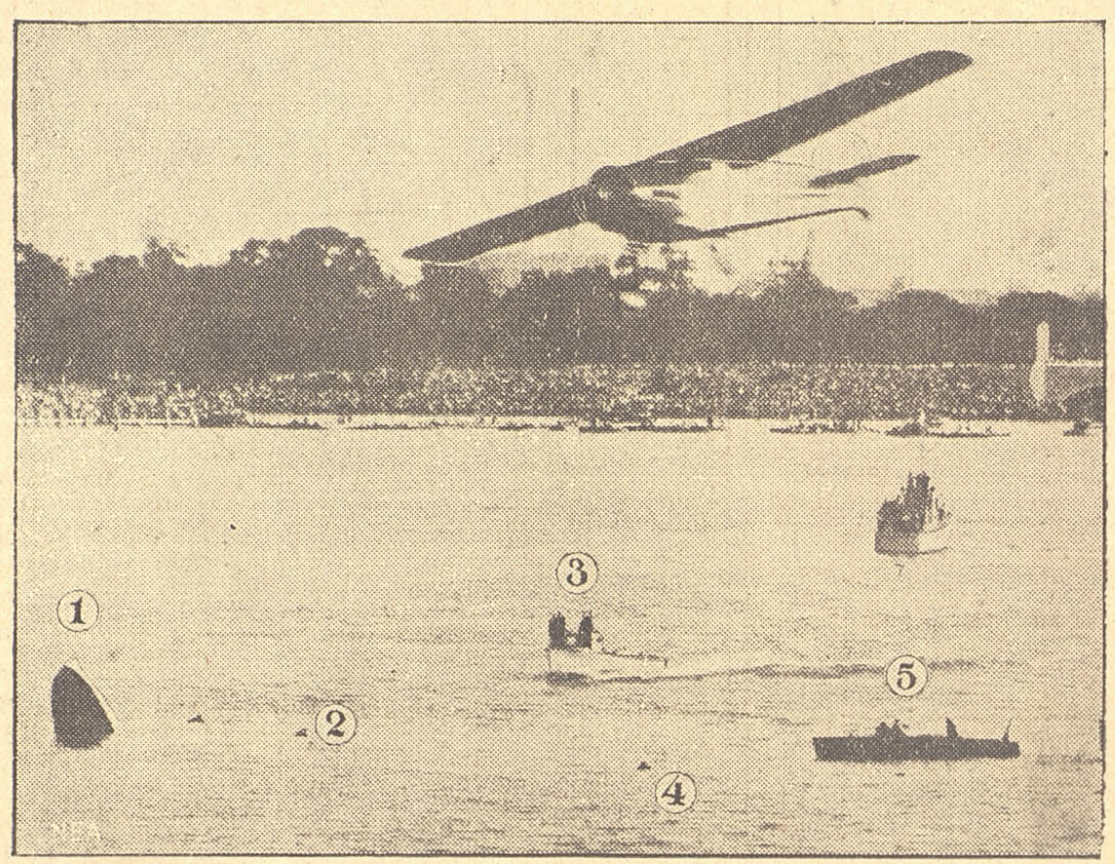

Divorce-seekers, who are honest with the judge and remain here for the full 6 weeks and a day, will not have the slightest difficulty. The ruling is aimed only at the "chisel-ing" divorcee who attempts fraud.

If there is a valid reason why the landlady, or manager, cannot appear in court, another witness will be acceptable, it was ruled.

The proper and safe thing for the divorce-seeker to do when arriving in Reno to take the "cure" is to register at a hotel under the correct name and remain there the full six weeks, or move into another residence and "stay put." The less moving around the better.

Two Cases Blamed
Two outstanding cases of the fraud that was being practiced upon Washoe County courts, which came to the attention of the judges, are responsible for the new rulings.

CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE 10TH ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday Grace Lutheran church of this city will celebrate its tenth anniversary. It has been ten years since this modest little congregation has been called into existence.

When it first originated there were but several families. During the spring of 1921 a pastor was called in the person of the Rev. Arthur Arndt. A constitution was soon drawn up, signed by only three members, Mr. J. H. Blanken, Mr. Henry Luehrs, and the pastor, Rev. Arndt. Under the leadership of its pastors the congregation grew. It now enjoys a membership of 65 baptized souls and 46 communicants.

Services were at first conducted in the Labor Temple. In the fall of 1921 a chapel was built on the corner of 16th street and avenue F, which chapel still serves as the place of worship. In the next year also a parsonage was built, adjoining the chapel. In 1929 the congregation also built a school building in which a Christian day school might be conducted.

The first pastor of the congregation was the Rev. Arndt. He remained with the congregation until April, 1925, at which time he accepted a call to a congregation in south Texas. He was succeeded by the Rev. H. F. Peiman. In August of 1930 Rev. Peiman, followed a call to Vernon, Texas, having served fully five years. He was in turn succeeded by Rev. Arthur Rathjen, the present pastor.

The congregation plans to observe its tenth anniversary with special services to be held at the city hall Sunday. Two services will be conducted in the morning, German at 10 a. m. and English at 11:15 a. m. Pieman will deliver the address in both these services. In his English service he will preach about the power and the purpose of the church. Another English service will be held at 2:30 p. m. at which service the Rev. Wagner of Albany will be the speaker. Since the congregation will also be conducting its usual annual mission rally on this occasion, Rev. Wagner will speak on personal mission work or personal evangelism. At 8 p. m., there will be an informal song service at the church.

Julian Indicted By Federal Jury

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 11.—C. C. Julian, promoter of million dollar oil and mining companies, was indicted by a federal grand jury that spent two days investigating mail fraud charges in connection with the C. C. Julian Oil and Royalties company, Judge Edgar S. Vaughn announced today.

SOLDIERS KEEP PEACE AFTER CHURCH FIGHT

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 11.—A national guard unit armed with tear gas bombs, machine guns and side arms, patrolled the streets here today to prevent further disturbances between a local preacher and a visiting Texas evangelist, which has divided the town in rival camps.

The guard was mobilized last night shortly before the opening of the tent meeting of the Rev. Joe Jeffers, youthful appearing Baptist evangelist. They were deputized and Gov. Harvey Parnell was expected to declare martial law there.

Trouble broke out when Rev. Dew Heard, pastor of the First Baptist church was accused of misconduct while living in Big Spring.

Followers of Rev. Heard sent two of their members to Texas to investigate. When they returned with testimonials and depositions refuting the charges they presented their findings to Jeffers' followers.

Fighting broke out and police were called. George Cox, six-foot member of the Arkansas college football team, a Jeffers follower, was jailed.

Jeffers then organized 400 of his followers into a parade and marched to the city hall demanding Cox's release. Cox was released.

Troops patrolled the streets last night while Rev. Jeffers preached to 5,000 persons. They were instructed not to interrupt the evangelist unless he became disorderly.

Denver L. Dudley, prominent young attorney, and one of the leaders in the group defending the First Baptist pastor, allegedly was attacked by the evangelist last night for his support of Rev. Heard.

MASS MEET HEARS PLANS FOR COLLEGE

"Because an educational institution operates in a restricted sphere with a comparatively limited curriculum does not mean that the institution must be shoddy or fail to meet the requirements of its student body," Dr. Lee Clark, president of Randolph college, told a mass of Cisco people gathered last night at the high school auditorium in the interest of the college. "It can do its work well and thoroughly and adequately provide for the needs for which it exists."

That, he indicated, will be the keynote of the educational policies of Randolph college when the 1931-32 session opens September 22.

"It does not require complicated or expensive equipment. We must endeavor to do thoroughly with what we have. Later, when financial conditions will allow, we may add to our equipment as future necessities dictate."

Dr. Clark, introduced by F. D. Wright who presided over the meeting, spoke for 30 minutes in an even, matter-of-fact tone, discussing first the needs of the educational sphere in which Randolph is designed to operate, the permanence of institutions of its character and the advantages which junior colleges possess in providing for the transition period between high schools and senior colleges and universities.

The peculiar advantages of Randolph in its Cisco location were also dealt with. Dr. Clark expressed a firm confidence in the future of the school, as assured by its location and the needs of the section to which it will minister, and his address was interpreted as a determined dedication of himself and his faculties to the firm establishment of the school on a basis of permanent and worthy service.

United Stand.
He summoned Cisco people and all of those concerned with the welfare of the college to a united stand with the college administration and faculty as the only means through which Randolph can be placed upon an enduring foundation. He indicated that Randolph must achieve the confidence and united support of Cisco if it is to command confidence elsewhere.

It was followed by Dr. John W. Tyndall, head of the Bible college at Randolph, who prefaced an eloquent justification for his department with a few general remarks in which he expressed confidence that Cisco would readily support the school with the 50 students from the city that have been asked for.

Pointing to the Bible, upon which he is a recognized authority, as the central text-book into which has been distilled the sublimation of all knowledge, Dr. Tyndall defended its teaching as the surest and finest means of broadening and deepening life. Creed and dogma, what men have written and said of the Book, will have no place in its instruction, he said. The Bible itself, will be the textbook, and he will attempt to unfold from its pages the significant wealth of truth to enrich life and strengthen character, he declared.

Forceful Call to Arms.
John B. Daniels, of the Temple Trust company, was another speaker on the program. His forceful, dynamic attack upon "the dumps" was a ringing challenge to the people of Cisco to awake to the opportunities of the moment. Cisco needs some fight, he declared. He scored the low morale of the public, declared that the only way to meet the present depression is by an aggressive forward movement that will overcome fear and gloom and inspire spirit to achieve in spite of difficulties.

He charged Cisco people, as he charged the people of other communities, with taking their business away from home and then blaming the merchants for not having what they want.

He took no cognizance of the school situation beyond that it was an incident in the general picture. Instead he brought a scathing indictment of the weakness of the public will and called his hearers and the people of Cisco back to standards of strong spirit and a determined will to do.

The mass meeting opened with a concert by the Lobo other company. Inspirational songs, dedicated to Randolph, were led by S. E. Hittson with Mr. Collum at the piano after which Mr. Wright introduced the speakers.

EIGHT-TENTHS OF AN INCH OF RAIN HERE

Cisco received the full effect of a restricted shower this morning when the city hall rain gauge recorded eight-tenths of an inch. North and northwest of the city the rain was even heavier, according to reports from that section.

It is the heaviest precipitation that Cisco has received since June, according to records, and will be of great benefit not only in reviving thirsty ranges but in cooling an atmosphere that has been extremely sultry for several weeks.

RUSTED IRON BAYONET TELLS FATE OF MAGEE FILLIBUSTER

A relic of the fillibustering days of Texas history with 118 years of grim significance in its rusted iron, is in the possession of W. H. Kittrell. It is a bayonet, remnant of the equipment of the surviving 80 members of the Magee expedition, which in 1813 was overwhelmed and butchered by a large Spanish force in what is now Madison county.

The bayonet was presented to Mr. Kittrell by Dean James Cox, of A. C. C. son-in-law of Hugh L. Hayes, whose father, Dr. Patrick Hayes, dug it up, with other relics, in 1840 from the collective grave of the 80 expeditionaries. Dr. Hayes encountered the grim sepulchre while digging foundations for a brick kiln on his land. The large number of relics taken from the site, including bayonets, handcuffs, parts of muskets and similar appurtenances of AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—The railroad commission today bolstered its proration order for the extensive east Texas field by ordering that not more than one well shall be drilled to each 20 acres.

Shortly after the order was issued Brig-Gen. Jacob F. Wolters at Kilgore announced that for the first time production in the field exceeded 400,000 barrels a day on Wednesday when the production was 407,124 barrels. Meanwhile Chairman C. V. Terrell, of the commission and R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division, marched through the forest of derricks on a tour of inspection.

70 PER CENT OF BELIZE IS DEVASTATED

(By United Press)
Two tropical hurricanes devastated parts of the Caribbean last night and today, causing heavy loss of life and vast property damage.

Both storms were reported moving at 100 miles an hour and threatening further damage.

One struck Belize, British Honduras, at the extreme western end of the Caribbean, and destroyed 70 per cent of the entire city.

Reports by radio said that several hundred may have been killed, the estimates ranging from one hundred upward. The hurricane was accompanied by a tidal wave.

Hundreds were reported injured and the city in desperate need of food and medical aid. Americans were reported among the casualties.

The other hurricane struck Porto Rico, 1,500 miles eastward across the Caribbean. The damage was heavy, but accurate estimates of casualties or damage could not be obtained because of shattered communications. Advice to Washington said the storm was moving westward toward Santo Domingo and Haiti with undiminished force.

The weather bureau reported it will reach the eastern end of Haiti today, and will likely pass near the city of Santo Domingo this afternoon or early tonight. The bureau said that the disturbance which hit Belize has diminished in intensity.

A Pan-American airplane, however, which flew from Miami to Belize today, reported by radio this afternoon it was impossible to land because of mountainous seas.

Pilot E. S. Rodenbaugh advised his headquarters at Miami he would therefore be forced to drop his medical supplies and cargo of mail and proceed to Toluca, Honduras, without stopping at Belize.

A radio report to Pan-American airports at Brownsville, Tex., this afternoon said the Belize hurricane had entered the Bay of Campeche along the Gulf of Mexico with intensity decreasing rapidly. Belize was reported under five feet of water in some quarters.

President Hoover, when informed of the disaster at Belize, instructed the navy to cooperate with the Red Cross in rushing assistance to the stricken city. The navy immediately ordered planes from the Canal Zone in rushing assistance to the stricken city. DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT LOVE DESTROYS FEAR.—There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.—1 John 4: 18.

A COMMUNITY CANNERY.

Alex Spears, who runs the First National bank, is deeply interested in home canning of vegetables and meats. Mr. Spears said in a conversation recently that his bank intends distributing to interested patrons copies of an authoritative brochure giving invaluable instructions in various types of food preservation. People just now becoming interested in the thrift of home canning will find this little booklet of great value.

The point which Mr. Spears stressed, however, is that Cisco needs a cooperative cannery. Such an institution has proven of great benefit in other small cities not far from Cisco and their operation is not only economic from the standpoint of money saved but more significant from the standpoint of the greater interest that is aroused in the live-at-home program among the rural people. Families living within the city can benefit to a great degree, also. The cannery, cooperatively operated, will enable families unable to otherwise provide themselves with the essentials for proper home canning, to preserve their garden- and orchard-grown foodstuffs readily. Incidentally, it will be an institution of aid to the farmer and make Cisco just that much more attractive to him.

PLAIN SPEAKING.

Farmers appearing before the state legislature Wednesday to present in person their demands for cotton relief minced no words in telling the legislators what they wanted. Untutored in the devious phraseology of the politician, and unskilled in diplomacy they came out straight to the point, painted in Doric phrases touching pictures of women and children dragging cotton sacks to salvage a profit out of six-cent cotton and told the legislators to "quit fussing about petty differences" and do something.

"You ask us what right we have," exclaimed J. W. Briggs, Fannin county farmer in an impassioned speech, the first he had ever made. "We have as much right as any man that ever drew the breath of life. Liberty or death is what I'm after."

These farmers who appeared at Austin, desperate for relief, and the hundreds of thousands whom they represented, are going to expect tangible results out of this special session. Nothing short of an increase in the price of cotton will convince them of justice. Unless relief is forthcoming no amount of explanation will raise the present administration in the political opinion of these tillers of the soil. James B. Ferguson, that irrepressible jumping-jack of Texas' public life, realizes this fact and he is Johnny-on-the-spot to salvage capital from the flotsom of threatened economic wreckage.

Divisional lines already sharply drawn in the session indicate a sharp and perhaps prolonged fight over the type of legislation to be enacted. It is clear to those who see the necessity of relief that no character of remedial legislation will be of any value if delayed. If the legislature chooses to plunge into a long struggle before enacting a law, if, in other words, it repeats the history of the shaky oil session, it might as well not have met. Cotton is already being gathered and ginned and sold. Any legislation that has a helpful effect upon the 1931 price must be enacted within the next few days, particularly so since other state legislatures must also act if the restriction laws either passed or contemplated by the Louisiana and Texas legislatures is to be effective.

THE GRAND JURY GOES TO WORK.

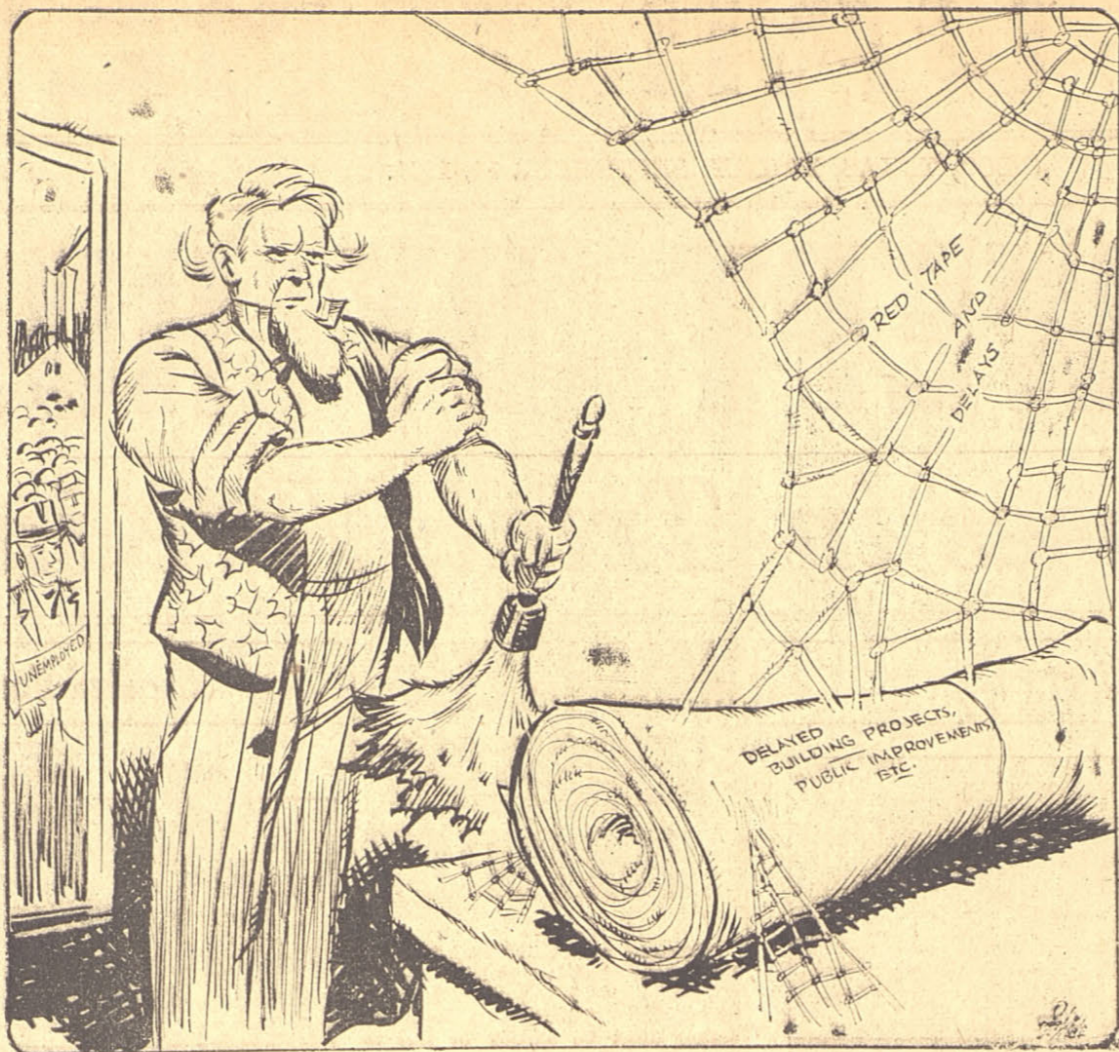

Judge William F. Robertson put a grand jury to work in the 126th district court Tuesday, the first called before that bench. He charged it with investigating fully charges made before the house of representatives and in justice court that three sheriffs of Central Texas presented unlawful claims to the comptroller, and collected these claims. He said:

"The money collected from the people by taxes is a sacred fund, and no man has a right to one dollar of it unless there is an express statutory authority for its withdrawal."

Dist. Atty. Henry Brooks believes the grand jury will indict the peace officers already under bond. He believes other officials of other counties will be indicted on similar counts. Then will come the trials, with a sheriff, possibly, facing a number of indictments. The fees for the trials will run into thousands of dollars. The question always is, will whatever satisfaction the state (the tax payer) gains, be worth the cost? Presumably, justice (as we define the result of the workings of our judiciary) never costs too much. But the taxpayers are footing the bill. Is a suspended sentence conviction on a count of embezzling $100 worth $1,000 in court fees?

The investigations into the fee system have pointed out its weaknesses. They have shown the high cost of court operation. Through the channel of the judiciary millions and millions of state taxes, levied either directly or indirectly through fee bills, are spent each year. The wisdom of some of the expenses is open to serious question.

Brush Off the Cobwebs!

OTHER OPINIONS

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LURE

Into a Dallas Sunday school a few weeks back walked a man with two children. He explained that the youngsters had a perfect attendance record at Sunday school at home and asked the teacher to sign a certificate that they had attended her class. When she had complied with the request, he walked out with the children, leaving the astonished teacher to her own reflections.

The young lady would find an explanation of the working of the human mind in a recent survey of the factors related to Sunday school growth and decline made by a research worker at Teachers' college, Columbia university. Dr. Nevin C. Harner reports that the Sunday school which goes out of its way to offer attractions above plain religious instruction, prospers accordingly in membership. An orchestra stimulates attendance. So do special attendance awards.

The carping might complain that for the very young the church is subordinating the real thing to a side show. In a sense that might be true, but there is justification for it. There is little real instruction in the kindergarten paces through which modern schooling puts the child in state education, but in the main the small body and the small mind are being disciplined to school regimen. The Sunday school is the kindergarten of the church, and it is staking its power to hold the child to the fundamentals of faith, on ability to sustain his interest through the difficult period when there is so much that can not be explained to young minds.

The Catholic church maintains its membership through early fundamental education in its tenets. The Soviet, insisting that religion is the opiate of the people, would deny the privilege of religious instruction until maturity has been reached, though it insists on the teaching of Bolshevistic principles. Both see the fertile field in the child mind and heart. After all, picnic lemonade and orchestra are not objectionable necessities as passports to grace. — Dallas News.

CAPT. BILL ONE UV THE STERBINS BOYS

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Washington has a consistent record of becoming over-enthusiastic about the probable achievements of prospective arms conferences, but it must be admitted that the capital is not exactly caroling its optimism concerning the world's first General Disarmament Conference which is scheduled to begin on February 2 at Geneva.

Nevertheless, there is a general feeling that the conference will be tremendously important, and that this is no time to blunder into a complete or comparative flop as seemed to happen in the case of the Geneva and London naval conferences. That is, why the world's statesmen have been exchanging views for many months, why Secretary of State Stimson has been touring the European capitals and why this government is not disposed to demand that the conference be held on schedule unless everyone is convinced that the result will be reasonably successful.

The optimists are those who believe that the principal obstacles can be eliminated this fall and that the general necessity of reducing national budgets will combine with a better spirit of international good will to attain definite arms limitation and even a small proportion of reduction. No one fondly anticipates any drastic general arms cut, but the rosy view among informed persons is that a concrete reduction can be agreed upon.

Pessimists believe that the conference will be postponed and that the attitude of France, which has caused so much trouble in various international conferences of the past, will prevent the disarmament movement from getting anywhere in the near future. Even these pessimists, however, do not believe the conference will be permitted to begin and then break up in a fight.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S intense interest in disarmament is well known. This government's official attitude is that it hopes the conference will be held in February and that it is ready for the parley. High officials, however, have indicated that this feeling of hope and readiness meant no anxiety on our part to hold the conference promptly in any event.

They want, first, to see a rapprochement between France and Germany and, second, a naval ratio agreement between France and Italy. Everyone concerned has been trying to bring about the Franco-German rapprochement. Everyone, according to the understanding here, has faith that it can be achieved. Great Britain is at least as anxious as we are for arms reduction and can be depended upon to go to great lengths in the attempt, although her recent political developments have increased uncertainty about the conference. Italy, if the naval ratio agreement with France can be reached, will be equally helpful, according to Stimson's reports here of his recent conversations with Premier Mussolini.

France is to some observers the military bully of Europe and to others is quite right and reasonable in maintaining her heavy armaments and armies while refusing to co-operate with other powers in the ways they desire. Whichever way you look at it, however, France is the most likely stumbling block in advance of the general conference. Her general attitude is that no other country, especially Germany, shall ever again be in a position to do her harm. Her position in demanding security is strengthened by the fact that her need of budget reduction is not as serious as that of other countries.

Senator Borah recently pointed to France's large army and her existing unprecedented security and declared she must stop gumming things up by further demands. One reads and hears that if France doesn't play ball now she will be dangerously isolated among the powers. That seems more than ever a weighty consideration in view of the world's present state. The threat has been hurled at France during past international conferences, but France, after telling the other powers where to get off, has always emerged cock of the European walk.

The only thing that can stop the conference now, one is told, is an announcement by any large power that she will not attend.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Every cloud has its silver lining, though at the height of a political monsoon it is not always easy to catch a glimpse of the edges.

Storm clouds are apt to occupy the whole sky in one threatening mass and if there are any edges at all they are somewhere beyond the horizon.

From time to time lately a little more light has filtered through the edges of the horizon into the arena of public thought in the matter of municipal ownership of public utilities and government control of business.

We are mildly surprised that so many people in various sections should leave themselves open to the jibe that they are catspaws in the hands of a number of our super-politicians, who are doing their best to make this country another Russia.

We can't see why many people should approach on tiptoes, so to speak, a subject by the nature of its magnitude and its bearing on the prosperity of this country of ours.

Why speak in hushed tones while the radicals roar as hungry lions, eager to destroy industry?

The people who have the welfare of the country at heart should roar back so loud that it will drown out the hymns of hate so lustily sung by the radical politicians.

End Your Refrigeration Worries The Modern Electrical Way

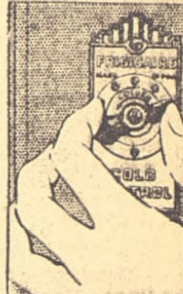

THE safe preservation of perishable foods, according to leading food chemists and medical authorities, requires two things — a temperature below fifty degrees . . . constantly maintained.

Modern Electrical Refrigeration assures this necessary low temperature . . . automatically. When the temperature in your Electric Refrigerator rises above fifty degrees, the freezing unit is automatically turned on . . . when it has been brought down to the correct level, the unit automatically switches off.

Whether you are in your home or miles away, Electric Refrigeration will protect your foods. It will eliminate food spoilage, permit the safe refrigeration of "left-overs," and enable you to buy in larger quantities at "bargain" prices without risking the usual loss from spoilage.

Moderate first cost and low operating expense are added considerations suggesting the immediate purchase of a new model Frigidaire. See them on display in the Merchandise Showroom.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

SCHMIDT SEEKS SUCCESSOR FOR NOBLE ATKINS

By STANDARD LAMBERT
 FORT WORTH, Sept. 11. — As Coach Francis Schmidt pushed his Texas Christian football charges through the initial workout of the 1931 season Thursday, he looked for material to fill the gaps left by graduation.
 The loss of Capt. Noble Atkins in the line will be keenly felt. His diagnosis of plays on the defense has been the chief reason that the Horned Frog teams of the past three years have been hard to score on. J. W. Townsend, a 190-pounder from Lufkin, who was Atkins' understudy last year, seems to have the inside track on Harvey Thomas, a recruit from Dutch Meyer's last year freshmen. Townsend enjoys a decided advantage in experience and speed.
 More than likely Johnny Vaughn will retain his right guard position, but there is some doubt as to who will be starting the games at the guard, left vacant by Leo Butler. Steward Lambert, with two years of varsity experience, Bud Taylor, a promising sophomore, and Lon Evans who has been shifted to guard from tackle, are the most promising. However, Lynn Brown and Lee Basinger, two more of Dutch Meyer's polliwog graduates, must not be counted out of the running.
 Graduation did not hit the tackle ranks. Foster Howell and Ben Boswell, sophomore stars of last year will be back to defend their old posts but Jack Shackelford, who lettered last year, and Mark Boswell, brother of "Big Ben" will see much service. M. Boswell has every qualification of a good lineman. Love Perkins and Hershel Kinzy, two rangy sophomores, will also add strength to the reserve.
 Two three-year men, Clyde Robertson and Ouel Martin, have been lost from end, but with Dan Saikeld and "Pep" Pruitt, lettermen of last year, and Jack Langdon, 190-pound wing from the Polliwog ranks, the Horned Frog mentor will have little to worry about as far as his wings are concerned. In addition to these, he can call on Ed Dietzel, who is better known for his basketball than for his football; Wallace Myers a nice looking Jacksbo product; Richard Allison, a sophomore who tips the beam at more than 200 pounds; T. W. Carpenter, squadman of the past two years, and Dan Peyton, a light scrapper from Cleburne.
 A host of backs will be battling for the four backfield positions. With Cy Leland and Austin Griffith of the retired list, J. W. Hinton, Vance Woolwine and Capt. Green, all of whom are working on their third varsity letter, will carry on. Aiding the three-year veterans will be Red Oliver, B. W. Spearman, Paul Snow and Hubert Dennis, backfield lettermen of last year. The most promising of the sophomore backs is John Kitchin, a 190-pound fullback from Okmulgee, Okla. He will probably see more service than any of the sophomore backs.
 Along with Capt. Green and Kitchin at fullback, will be Jewel Wallace, sophomore, and Doc Summer, a reserve of last year. Otha Tiner is heavier and faster than he was last year, and is in line for some of the passing duties this year. Buster Branner, the southpaw punting ace, should be used for more than one-day punts this year. Ollie Stell, the lightest man on the squad, tipping the scales at 147 pounds, is a back of unusual ability, and Ernest

17 LETTERMEN RETURN FOR S. M. U. ELEVEN

DALLAS, Sept. 11. — In looking over the Mustangs of Southern Methodist university for 1931 and trying to pick eleven starting men, or even twenty-two men, it is very difficult to reach any conclusion. With seventeen lettermen returning, besides a large group of last year's squad men and Freshmen, it is doubtful that a starting line-up will be picked that will prove as permanent. Here is a short review of each position and the men that will be working for it.

Center, Delembre is the only letterman returning to the pivot position. Del will be playing his third and last year with the Mustangs. He served for two years along with Powell, and saw much service last season. Browning and Elkins, two of last year's squad men will be in the race for center, as well as Hayes one of last season's Colts. These three men are due to see much service, and will be ready to take Delembre's place if he should have a let down.

Guard, Neeley, Burleson and Riley are all lettermen fighting for the guard's position. Neeley will be playing his last year, while the others are playing their second year. All of these men should prove very valuable this season. Sam Trant, a sophomore, will also have to be given much consideration for this position. Trant has speed, size, and nerve, which is about all that any coach expects of a guard. Joe Prince, McLeod, and Kelsey are three more that may win out from the lettermen for their position. They can always be relied upon to do their part in any game.

Tackle, The tackle's position will be well taken care of this year with two lettermen, four squad men, and two Colts fighting it out. Hammon and Tate are the lettermen returning. They probably have a slight edge over their team-mates, but will have to hustle at all times to keep that edge. Bray, Fly Jackson and Smith all looked good last year in every game they played in and are due to do even better this year. The other two men, Ross and Lynes, are big and strong, and will be all the competition the others can take care of.

End, Three lettermen, Kooztz, Hawn, and Mills will be back this season to try for the end position on Coach Morrison's eleven. Davidson, a letterman of 1929 will also return for the wingman's place. Along with these four lettermen will be one squad man, Dickenson, that played in several games last fall and looked even better in Spring training. Four freshmen, Clayton, Webster, Smith, and Barton, are also fighting for the coveted position of wingman. Some good pass catchers should be found among this group, and ones that take the pigskin from the air with the most accuracy are likely to be the ones that play for Coach Morrison.

Backs, In the backfield Morrison will be blessed with a world of material. Seven lettermen from last year, Gilbert, Sprague, Travis, Johnson, Mason, Heaton, and Jordan will all return to form the nucleus for Coach Morrison to work with. Oliver, Shaw, Bass, Jacobie, Walker, McNair, Walstad, and Thomas, some of last year's squadmen, along with Strickland, Baxter, Cullen, and Norwood will offer plenty of competition for the older men. Oliver may take a position from one of the starting men and be one of the Southwest's outstanding backs. He is the best natural runner on the S. M. U. squad. The least that can be said is that he backfield race will not be over until the last game of the season is played.

Among all this material there are no sensational stars. But the Mustangs will be able to place a well balanced club on the field that should win many victories this season. As usual, many critics have picked the Mustangs to win the conference. However, Coaches Morrison and McIntosh are not paying any attention to this gossip. They expect to give consideration to only one game at a time, taking them in order as they appear on the schedule. They make no predictions. The teams in the conference as a whole are too well balanced to select a conference winner in September.

TOMBSTONE RECALLS LOVE OF EMPEROR

PARIS, Sept. 11. — An inscription on a cemetery tombstone at Pere-Lachaise has enabled historians to trace the living descendants of Napoleon.

Only a half dozen persons survive, who can claim him as their ancestors, but in their hearts, his name. All are descendants of his illegitimate son, Count Leon, gambler, duelist, philosopher and Bohemian.

The chronology of these people may be partially found on the tombstone of the family vault in Pere-Lachaise. Starting from the bottom and reading upwards, it runs: Eleanore Denuelle de la Plaigne Comtesse de Luxembourg Died Jan. 30, 1868, at 79 years. Count Leon Fernard Leon 1861 — 1918 Daniel Napoleon Jean Fernard Mesnard-Leon of the 17th Regiment Chasseurs Died for France.

Romance Revived History students saw the inscription and recalled the forgotten romance of Napoleon and Eleanore Denuelle de la Plaigne, coquettish wife of a captain of dragoons.

Napoleon met her at his sister's in 1806. She was 17. Shortly after meeting the Emperor she obtained a divorce. A few months later a son was born to her and was named Leon.

Napoleon heard of the birth of his son just before the battle of Pultusk, Poland. He immediately provided for the infant's future. Even after his downfall, Napoleon provided for the boy, and in his will he wrote: "I would not mind if little Leon became a magistrate, if that is his own desire."

Son Was Gambler But Leon never showed any inclination toward such a respectable calling. He gambled and lost his money and was imprisoned for debt. His liberty was secured by men who still cherished the memory of his father. Then Leon, who had assumed the title of count, became involved in several duels. In one of them he killed an aide-de-camp of the Duke of Wellington, thus avenging to his own satisfaction the defeat of his father at Waterloo.

By a natural marriage with a working girl, Françoise Jonet, Count Leon had three sons and a daughter named Charlotte. This daughter is living. After the death of Count Leon in 1881, she became a teacher and later married a M. Mesnard, taking the name of Mesnard-Leon.

The three sons of Count Leon led adventurous lives. Charles became a builder of railways and died in Caracas, Venezuela, in 1894. Fernand traveled widely and died in 1918. He was the "Count Leon Fernand Leon" entombed in the family vault. The third son, Gaston, entered business and is still living.

SAVES LIFE. LA GRANGE, Ore., Sept. 11. — A wild ride over country roads saved Hal Beckenkamp, local merchant, from probable death. A piece of filling lodged in his throat during a tooth extraction. Enroute to Spokane for medical attention, the obstruction was dislodged when the automobile in which he was riding struck a rough piece of road.

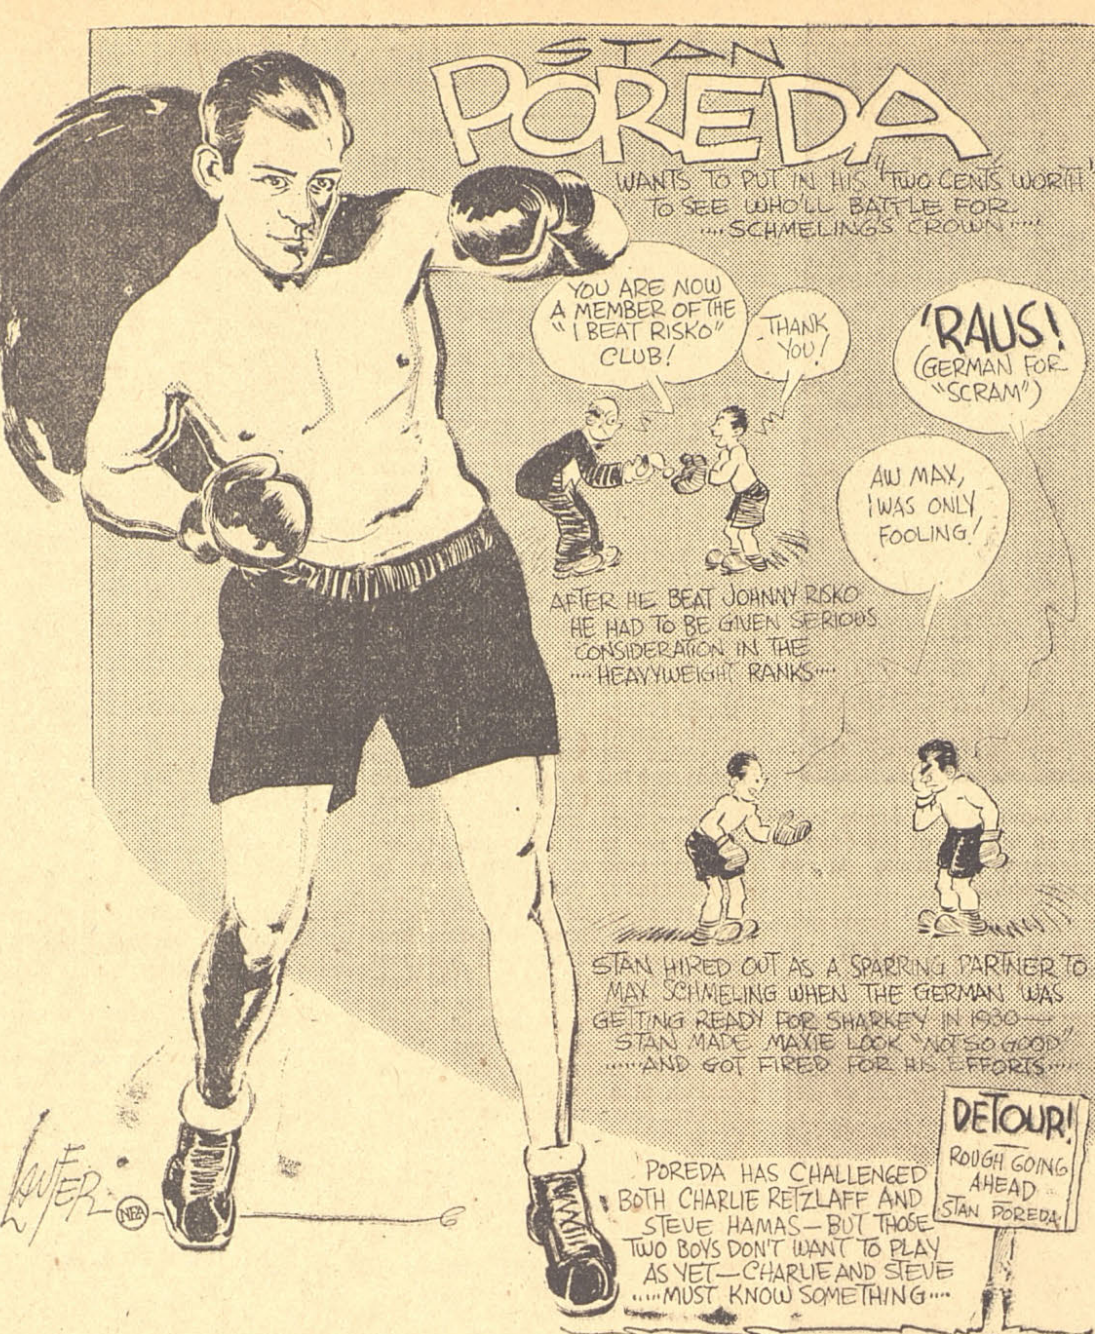

PUTS FLIER IN BED. GALLIPOLIS, O., Sept. 11. — A forced landing in a field caused Dr. Charles E. Holzer, flying surgeon of Gallipolis, to go to a hospital for treatment, but it was through no fault of his airplane. A barley beard zipped into the physician's face and lodged in his throat. An infection resulted. Dr. Holzer went to John Hopkins, Baltimore, for treatment.

SNAKES HAVE FIELD DAY. LOVELAND, Colo., Sept. 11. — Field day for snakes on the Frank Trindle ranch southeast of Loveland was fatal for 32 of the reptiles. Trindle, a farmer, was loading hay in a field and began to notice snakes under the shocks. He killed them as fast as he saw them and, when the hay was loaded, counted 32.

ROOM MADE MONUMENT TO SURGEON

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 11. — A monument to the late Dr. Willem Stevenson Baer, eminent Baltimore orthopedic surgeon, in the form of a hyper-modern treatment room recalls the new "worm" surgery initiated by him at the Children's Hospital School here.

The room is in a building rapidly nearing completion on the hospital grounds. It is named for the late Thomas F. Bowles, millionaire Baltimore philanthropist, but it is Baer rather than Bowles that it recalls and thereby rather than philanthropy.

The story goes back to the World War. In his work as a surgeon of the United States Army Dr. Baer came across a thousand and one varieties of horror.

Bone Afflictions One day several wounded men suffering acute bone afflictions were brought to him. They had been lying helpless on the battlefield for days. They should have been dead, Dr. Baer went about finding out why they weren't. He discovered that their wounds were alive with maggots of the blue bottle fly. It appeared that the maggots have saved the soldiers' lives. They had eaten away the afflicted bone and tissue, Dr. Baer found. The results of this incident led the Baltimore surgeon upon his return, to experiment with maggots as a cure for osteomyelitis, a bone disease the diagnosis and analysis of which is strange to the layman. Osteomyelitis is almost peculiar to children; so the experiments were conducted with patients at the Children's Hospital School here.

The blue bottle flies are raised in a laboratory. They are isolated in a test tube solution and prepared for administration to the disease sufferers.

"Bug Day" Hospital children call the day when the maggots are applied "Bug Day." The maggots are placed in an incision bone deep, and inclosed by a sponge rubber cage topped with fine mesh wire. They set to work and save the diseased member.

Dr. Baer's "experiment" was so near perfection when he died that he could hand down this great contribution to surgery which has saved many young people from losing their limbs altogether.

Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place. Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Christine Saunders, with whom Norma shares an apartment, and Bradley Hart, Chris's employer, are witnesses at the wedding. Before the Norma has refused to marry Bob Farrell, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon. He and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs, where the young man takes delight in surrounding his bride with expensive luxuries. He introduces her to Hollis Stone, an old friend, and it is evident from the girl's discomposure that she has known Stone before. For some reason she also fears him. She tries to confide in Mark but loses courage. One night Mark joins a card game and does not return until 3 a. m. He admits he has lost all his money. The young couple have only what is in Norma's purse. Next day they face the problem of getting money enough together to pay their hotel bill and buy railroad tickets. Mark wires his mother but when the answer comes it is a curt refusal from his father. Mark borrows $500 from Hollis Stone and he and Norma leave next morning for Marlboro.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

Norma came down the aisle of the Pullman car, her silk robe held tightly about her. Her hair was waved softly in place. She had powdered and added a dash of rouge to her lips. She had only to change the robe for her street suit to be completely dressed.

Most of the berths had been converted into seats. The white-coated porter was working on one of the curtained enclosures. Norma passed him, made her way ahead to where Mark was sitting. His back was toward her. He turned in surprise.

"Good Lord, Norma, aren't you dressed yet? We'll miss breakfast!"

The girl had opened a traveling case and was rummaging through it.

"I had to have another pair of hose. Found a dreadful runner—these will do." She closed the lid of the case. "I—why I thought we'd have breakfast after we got off the train. It isn't nearly so expensive."

"Say—I guess I've got the price of a cup of coffee! I'm hungry and I always feel like the dickens unless I've had coffee. Been waiting 15 minutes for you." (He hadn't, but Mark was given to extravagant speeches.)

"Oh, I'm sorry! If I'd known I could have hurried. I'll be right back—it won't take me a second now!"

Repentant, the girl disappeared. In a few moments she was back wearing hat and coat. Her purse and gloves were tucked under one arm.

"Ready, Mark," she announced.

"It's too late," he grumbled. "Look, we've passed Brookside. In 10 minutes we'll be in the station."

"But won't that give us time if we hurry?"

The porter approached with whisk broom. "Can I brush you now, sir?" he inquired with a wide grin. His tone was solicitous.

Mark arose and submitted to the brushing. When he sat down again he said, "We'll have to wait until we pull in to get something to eat."

He wasn't cross about it. Just annoyed and making no effort to conceal that annoyance. Thus the first item on the day's program started badly. An ill omen if the girl had allowed herself to think of such a thing.

The trivial incident was sufficient to make Norma refrain from suggestions when they had stepped down from the train.

"Well, it'll be ham and eggs for mine!" Mark announced, brisk and smiling. "Where do we eat?"

"Anywhere at all. I'm hungry too." That was because she had scarcely tasted dinner the night before.

"Restaurant here in the station all right?"

She nodded. They entered the big lunch room and found places at a counter. Over steaming coffee and a platter of ham and eggs the remnants of Mark's displeasure fled. Norma brightened also.

The activity and stir about the big terminal was contagious. So many men and women going places. Train men, red caps, bustling about. Waitresses hurrying trays of food to customers who ate with one eye on the clock. Boys calling out headlines from early edition newspapers.

"Think, Mark—we're home!"

"That's what I've been thinking, baby. Old home town. Old grind of work again. It's different now though, I've got you! Well, we'll show 'em a thing or two yet, won't we?"

"Of course we will."

She knew of whom Mark was thinking. His parents, of course. Oh, but this fine young husband of hers would show the world how little his good qualities had been appreciated!

He didn't say anything about it yesterday. Selby said Bob managed to get a settlement in some land deal after his boss—I mean Bob's—had practically given up the attempt.

"That's fine," Norma said. She added slowly, "I hope Bob will be a big success home day. He ought to be. Bob works hard and he's so—so on the level."

They talked of the apartment the girls had shared. Chris was still living there. There was a new girl, Dot Phillips, working at the Hart Advertising agency. Dot was anxious to move in with Chris but it hadn't been definitely settled. Chris said she liked Dot but liking a person and living with them were two different things.

Those promises were fated to be broken. When Norma saw Mark again late in the afternoon he was in the highest spirits. A new musical show had opened the night before. A knockout, according to the fellows at the club. Mark had tickets. He and Norma dressed, dined and rode to the theater. Afterward they went to a supper club and danced. Mark confided he had "several lines out" for jobs.

Next day he did not rise until noon. He left the girl alone, returning at six with news they were to join friends of his for the evening. Just a little party. People Norma would like.

She didn't like them or their ideas of a good time. When Mark announced similar plans for the following evening she begged off, spent the evening alone.

It was their third night in Marlboro, that Mark and Norma, having finished dinner, stepped out on the street. Travers paused to touch a match to his cigar.

Suddenly across their vision floated a shimmering figure in gold cloth and dark fur. The warm, heady scent of mimosa. Shrill soprano laughter and a glimpse of

EXPERT SAYS WORLD FACING GOLD FAMINE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—While a record amount of gold, nearly five billion dollars worth, and one-half the world's supply, is in the United States treasury, the world faces a gold "famine," John Hays Hammond, noted mining authority, believes.

Quoted in a recent interview Hammond declared that this paradoxical situation, closely connected with the world's economic difficulties, could be remedied by increased gold production, or perhaps by a return to the bi-metallic standard, with silver placed on a fair basis to permit its use as a medium of exchange.

In the past, great discoveries of gold have relieved the pinch of declining supplies, he pointed out, with the result that the world was enabled to continue its business on the single metal standard.

"Discovery of gold in California added a sufficient quantity of gold to the world's supply to enable continuation, at that time, of the single metal basis of exchange," he explained. "Again, just after the Comstock lode in Nevada added $300,000,000 to the nation's supply and permitted it to continue making its payments in specie.

"Toward the end of the last century a gold famine threatened, only to be relieved by discovery of extensive deposits in Alaska, South Africa, and Australia.

No Great Increase Expected

"Now, however, we cannot anticipate any great increase in production, since our engineers have carefully inspected nearly every known source. We cannot expect any great addition from United States mines, or elsewhere, to meet the demand for a medium of exchange in constantly increasing world commerce," Hammond predicted.

This demand for more gold has exerted a pressure upon production in California and other gold mining states—namely Nevada and Arizona—Charles Hudson, president of the San Francisco Mining Exchange, pointed out, coincidentally with Hammond's statements.

During 1930 the California output increased almost $1,000,000 to total $9,450,000. Prospectors in many states are again on the trail of lost mines, while many concerns have resumed operation of workings long shut down.

BLOWS LAKE AWAY.
LAKEVIEW, Ore., Sept. 11.—Summer Lake was literally blown away recently when a strong wind swept over Lake county. Reduced to a shallow sheet of water by drought, the lake vanished when the water was blown on the exposed bed and immediately sank from sight.

PAPER GETS AUTO-GIRO
DES MONIES, Sept. 11.—The Des Moines Register and Tribune have added an Auto-Giro to their newspaper purchasing equipment. The newspaper purchased the ship to be used in conjunction with a regular cabin airplane which has been used for news and picture assembling for several years.

Funds Relieve World
In the past, great discoveries of gold have relieved the pinch of declining supplies, he pointed out, with the result that the world was enabled to continue its business on the single metal standard.

MOLLYCODDLE HEROES GONE, SAYS DIRECTOR

Movie audiences have brought about a new tradition in heroes, heroines and other characters, according to William Dieterle, director of "The Last Flight," the first National picture starring Richard Barthelmess which comes to the Palace theatre Sunday for two days only.

"I don't know whether to attribute the change to the World War," Dieterle says. "Of course everyone claims that the movie audience of today is ten times more sophisticated than it was before the war, but I'm not interested in what caused the new idea of human heroes and heroines and villains. I am interested in supplying what the public wants and at the same time creating a demand for what the public will want more of."

"The man and woman and even the child of today doesn't believe that a hero can do no wrong. The taste for treacle has passed. Maybe it will return some time, but for the present at least you will see that the movie hero can have his lapses and that the villain isn't entirely bad. Even the modern heroine can be less than perfect in her behavior without offending the public."

"This has helped stories a great deal. If a movie fan knows that the hero isn't going to be the traditional, blameless hero, he knows that there is a chance for a more elastic more interesting plot and characterization. In "The Last Flight" for instance, the star is an ex-flier, who with four roughneck buddies and a girl whom the five adopt — is scouring Paris to find excitement to equal that of war days. Not an orthodox hero, but an universally appealing one."

In support of Barthelmess are Helen Chandler, John Mack Brown, David Manners, Walter Byron and Elliott Nugent. John Monk Saunders wrote the story.
