ACTION TO CURB "HOT" OIL PROMISED

Total of Cotton Acreage Offered to Gov't Increases

MAY REACH AS MUCH AS TEN MILLION ACRES

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Belated returns from cotton producing states indicated today that southern planters have offered to reduce their acreage well in excess of the figure of 9,000,000 acres announced yesterday when the acreage reduction plan was adopted.

It was reported, in the absence of definite announcement, that acreage pledged to destruction is likely to total 9,500,000 acres and may reach the original goal of 10,000,000 acres.

These figures may increase estimates of baleage reduction by 165,000 to 335,000 bales. It had been set previously at more than 3,000,000 bales.

GROWERS WARNED TO AWAIT APPROVAL.
COLLEGE STATION, July 15.—Texas cotton growers today were warned by state extension service officials to await government authorization to plow under the 4,190,208 acres of the current crop they have pledged for retirement under the federal acreage reduction plan.

The plan was formally promulgated by Sec'y of Agriculture Wallace after a check revealed sufficient farmers in the 16 cotton growing states had endorsed the program to make it feasible.

It will take some time for federal authorities to check and accept the thousands of individual contracts, extension officials said.

Vaseline Well Is Still Producing

LAMAR, Okla., July 15.—A freak oil well which came in 10 years ago as a producer of almost pure vaseline was still pumping the heavy golden substance and paying its owner handsome returns today.

Perhaps the only well of its kind in the world, the well is a marvel to veteran oil men, both as to the oil it produces and its life. Men who have followed the oil industry in many climes said they never have seen or heard of a similar well.

The well was drilled in at 3,710 feet on Jan. 26, 1923, for production estimated at 350 barrels a day. The "vaseline well" still produces around this amount, and still is the only well in the area. Other drilling attempts have produced dry holes.

The strange kind of oil flowed over the derrick for 200 feet when the well was drilled in. Dark green in color, the oil turned a brilliant golden yellow when it struck the outside air. Analysis showed it to be almost pure vaseline. It was so heavy that it hung from fences near the well like gum.

Because of its thickness, ordinary pipelines would not carry it. A special line, with a steam pipe to heat the almost solid lubricant, was used.

BANDON, Ore., July 15.—Visitors at Bandon Beach are entertained almost every day by two whales at play. The animals come inside the "Face Rock," within a few hundred feet of the shore.

TWO-HEADED SQUAB
WESTVILLE, N. J., July 15.—A two-headed squab, hatched near here several days ago, is being exhibited by William Grick, a squab fancier. The bird, which had two complete heads, four eyes and two bills, lived only a few hours.

They Figure in "Synthetic Motherhood" Case

These three pretty girls, Jane, Gale and Helen, are the daughters of Mrs. Mate Hommel, whose "synthetic motherhood" came to light during litigation in Los Angeles with her former husband, Dr. W. J. Hommel, over disposition of their property when they separated. Mrs. Hommel's story that her daughters were born through scientific aid before she had met their father has aroused widespread discussion. Below is Dr. Hommel.

League of Nations Seen As Playing For High Stakes in Paraguay-Bolivia Dispute

By STEWART BROWN, United Press Staff Correspondent.
GENEVA, July 15.—The League of Nations, in its energetic attempts to bring Bolivia and Paraguay to terms over the Gran Chaco, is playing a game for high stakes.

A successful settlement of the Chaco conflict, it is hoped will bring Argentina back to Geneva after many years absence. League officials have been inspired to believe Argentina will re-enter the League if the League is successful in dispelling an age-old tradition that the Monroe doctrine, and not the League, is the supreme legal authority in South America.

Pray for Good Luck.
Flushed with its initial success in quickly bringing an end to hostilities between Colombia and Peru over the Leticia corridor, League officials are praying for a period of "good luck" in their negotiations with Bolivia and Paraguay. Not only will a successful outcome hasten the return of Argentina to Geneva, but it also will strengthen the League's growing prestige in South America, they believe.

The stakes are high and the odds are against the League, but Geneva is optimistic. For the first time since the beginning of the Chaco conflict the leadership of the game rests in Geneva and not in Washington.

The League virtually took over the dispute on May 10 when Paraguay formally declared war upon Bolivia. If League members can avoid it there will be no return to previous methods of negotiations, characterized by a confusion of authority and mixture of cross purposes.

They admit the Chaco problem presents more involved and delicate differences than the Leticia affair. The League's universal authority and freedom from a national prejudice makes a settlement probable, however.

Mrs. Browney Given 35 Years in Slaying
LIBERTY, Texas, July 15.—Mrs. Pearl Sherman Browney, 38, was convicted today of complicity in the slaying of her aged husband, W. D. Browney, and sentenced to 35 years in the state penitentiary.

It was the woman's second trial on the charge, the first ending in a hung jury. Browney was shot to death last summer.

The principal witness against the woman was Bee Barrow, her former common law husband, who testified that Mrs. Browney prompted him to kill the man to collect his insurance. Barrow was brought here from the state prison where he is serving a life sentence for the murder.

NEW LEADS IN TRIPLE MURDER ARE CLAIMED

FORT WORTH, July 15.—County officers today said they had obtained several new leads in their investigation of the triple slaying here.

The leads, they said, were obtained through questioning of two suspects in the $70,000 mail robbery here and the sensational slayings. Those questioned were Weldon Routt, mail robbery suspect, and M. T. Howard, held in the slayings.

They were questioned last night in Dallas by local officers. Officers declined to disclose the nature of their leads.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Clark and children are leaving this morning for McGregor, Texas, where they will spend a week visiting relatives.

PETITION ASKS LOCAL OPTION VOTE AUG. 26

A petition, asking the commissioners court to call a local option election for Eastland county coincident with the state-wide vote on legalization of beer and repeal of the 18th amendment, was being circulated here Saturday afternoon. Petitions of similar character were understood to be circulating in other communities of the county.

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, at Eastland, told the Daily News yesterday afternoon that the commissioners court is not yet certain of its duties with respect to the calling of local option election as defined by acts of the recent legislature.

"The court will go into that matter thoroughly Monday afternoon," he said. "It will be the court's purpose to comply with the recent law when it is determined what the law is. So far we have been unable to determine the required course."

Believed Mandatory
He said that he understood that a petition for a local option election bearing the signatures of qualified voters to the number of 10 per cent of the votes cast in the last general election would make it mandatory upon the court to call the election. What provision is set up under the acts passed by the legislature bearing on the subject he said he did not know, however.

"We have been in no hurry," he explained, "because we have lots of time." The election does not need to be called until August 5, or 20 days before the general election, to set it coincident with that general election, he explained.

Under the terms of the act providing for a state-wide election to pass on legalization of 3.2 per cent beer, counties and communities in which local option prevailed prior to state-wide prohibition, must hold local elections before beer can be legally sold within their limits once it is legalized in the state. A movement has been on foot in Eastland county, long a local option territory, prior to prohibition, to have this county's vote called coincident with the state-wide vote on August 26, with the argument that it would mean a considerable saving in election expenses.

PROHIBITION SPEAKERS HEARD HERE FRIDAY
Three short speeches on different phases of the dry campaign were delivered to a small audience that gathered on the city hall lawn Friday evening.

The temperance speakers were Judge B. D. Sartain, chairman of the 23rd district and also in charge of the prohibition speakers for west Texas; Otis Miller, prohibition chairman of this senatorial district; and Professor Stephenson, in charge of the speakers' bureau at Abilene.

Judge Sartain delivered an address to the county dry organization at Eastland Saturday evening.

Machinery Wins Wheat Campaign

ROME, July 15.—The victory of the Fascist government in the campaign for more wheat launched 8 years ago, has made new farmers and introduced fresh farming methods for Italian lands. The local farmer believes in machinery for the first time in his life.

Last year's crop amounting to 75,151,000 quintals of wheat, except for 10,000,000 quintals more of foreign "soft" and "hard" required for making proper macaroni, has made the country self-supporting in this essential food for the first time on record.

Last year's wheat yield was 4,356,000 quintals above 1929's crop when the highest mark it was then thought, had been reached. Highly perfected methods, both technical and scientific, are in common use today on Italian farms.

After eight years of intensive government propaganda, farmers know today that before worrying about inclement weather conditions they must choose the best quality in seeds. Also that fertilizers really are efficient when bad weather prevails and sowings must take place at the right moment. All kinds of modern mechanized farming implements are no longer looked upon askance.

There will be a band concert every Tuesday evening at 7:30 at Fee-Esta park. It was announced Saturday by Mrs. E. B. Butts, president of the Garden club. The public is invited.

Yes, They're Engaged!

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, has admitted that there might be some truth in reports that he is to marry Hannah Williams, former wife of Roger Wolfe Kahn. And you might take this picture of the two as they snuggled affectionately at Kansas City, Mo., just the other day as corroborative evidence, for they look mighty happy together.

Deny Police Dept. 'Shake-Up' Ordered

Rumors that the city commission had ordered a "shake-up" in the Cisco police department as the result of an incident in which officers stopped a car of six young women here one day last week upon report they had been drinking beer, were flatly denied by both Mayor J. T. Berry and Police Comm'r Henderson Saturday afternoon.

"The commission has taken no official action and it will not take any official action until the matter has been thoroughly investigated," said Mayor Berry.

Comm'r Henderson said that he has been investigating the incident thoroughly but that he was not prepared as yet to make any recommendations to the city commission.

"We will probably take official action within the next few days," he explained, but as yet nothing has been done. Chief Daniels is taking his annual vacation at the present time, and I want to discuss the matter with him further."

Rumors Current
Rumors had been current that Chief of Police Grant Daniels had resigned as a result of the incident.

"There are two sides to the question," Comm'r Henderson pointed out, "and we do not intend to take any hasty action. We want to be fair to all concerned."

He explained that some of the commissioners were not acquainted with the facts of the case. "Most of their information has been gained from street talk," he said. "I shall be prepared when the time comes to give them a correct statement of these facts. What action will be taken by the commission cannot now be definitely stated. But some official action will be taken within the next few days. When that is done proper announcement will be made."

Not "Arrested"
Comm'r Henderson denied that the six girls, all members of prominent Cisco families, had been "arrested." They had simply been stopped for questioning he said, and no charges of any description were filed.

The car in which the six were riding had been halted after complaint had been made to police that the girls were drinking beer. The beverage was found to be soft drink served in bottles that resembled beer bottles. "In fairness to the police, as well as the girls," said Mr. Henderson, "it should be said that the department has numbers of times had

DRASTIC AND EARLY STEPS TO BE TAKEN

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Sec'y of Interior Ickes today promised vigorous enforcement of President Roosevelt's order prohibiting transportation of illegally produced oil in interstate commerce.

Ickes, whose department has been entrusted with administration of the order, said it was "sweeping enough to reach the violators of state laws, and it is intended that immediate and drastic action will be taken."

The interior department served notice that any one found guilty of producing and transporting oil in excess of state quotas will be subject to full penalties of the law, a fine of $2,000 and six months imprisonment.

The department said it would concentrate agents in those districts where the greatest evasions of the law have occurred in the past.

PRICE STABILIZATION PLAN URGED

DALLAS, July 15.—A petition carrying the signatures of score of prominent business, civic and oil industry leaders of Texas was addressed to Hugh S. Johnson, director of the federal industrial recovery program, today asking consideration of a price stabilization plan.

The telegram read: "On the eve of the launching by the Roosevelt administration of its program for industrial recovery we are faced by the stubborn refusal of a few major units of the oil industry to pay a fair price and a living wage to oil producers in these districts."

"As you well know crude oil has for many months been produced and sold below cost. Efforts to restore some part of the drastic price cuts are now resisted by elements of the industry who feel that they are strong enough to starve the weaker but far more numerous elements out of existence."

"This destructive policy can only be dictated by a desire to destroy competition, and at the end of the struggle will leave alive only those who have the great resources necessary to enable anyone to survive this campaign of extermination. This policy will re-establish the same monopoly of the oil business once struck down by public opinion and by our courts. It will leave in its train incalculable distress over great areas of the country. It is directly in conflict with the policy of the administration."

"We pray that this situation may have your early consideration and that there may be a determination of present conditions and present policies of certain dominant elements of the industry before any code of practice receives your approval."

Car, Stolen Here, Recovered in Tenn.

Cisco police Saturday were notified by Tennessee officers of the recovery of a Chevrolet sedan stolen here some time ago from Lee Humphreys, and the arrest of a man who was in possession of the machine when it was recovered at McMinn, Tenn.

The man, who was named as Clarence Eoff, will be charged with car theft, local officers said.

"PHILLY" GUESTS PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Leading statesmen from Europe, South America and Asia will be among the 1,000 delegates to attend the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches here November 10 and 11.

Parley Adjournment Is Favored by U. S.

LONDON, July 15.—The United States favors indefinite adjournment of the world economic conference, it was said authoritatively today.

Delegates were said to feel that to fix a specific date for reassembling after the "recess" to be taken July 27 would be putting indirect pressure on the United States to stabilize its currency by whatever date named.

This, it was said, would interfere with the government's determination on a domestic recovery program.

PATRONAGE AND THE NEW DEAL.

The "brain trusters," who are blamed by practical party men with having inspired President Roosevelt's proposal to place first, second and third class postmasters under the civil service, are over-looking a consequential fact in their efforts to extend the New Deal to the sacrosanct functions of the grand old game of patronage. At least such is the verdict of hard-headed critics who speak from the experience of solid contact with the realities involved. These critics argue with more sense than theorizing that a system that dispenses entirely with patronage would tend toward bureaucracy and an unwise centralization of government because it would remove personal incentive from political organization and encourage disintegration of the present two-party system. The verities of human nature cannot be ignored, and it is casting no unfair reflection upon the "brain trust" to admit that they are less capable of evaluating these facts than are those men and women whose knowledge derives from actual experience with people. This experience has taught that loyalty to an organization has a base of self-interest. In other words without the prospect of personally sharing in the rewards of a political success there is little incentive for individual interest and consequent individual effort in the campaign for that success. One political credo in contrast to another may be accepted as superior in its ultimate benefits to the whole, but the effort necessary to make that particular doctrine effective in governmental organization cannot be inspired sufficiently by any such Platonic appeal. People are not made that way. It is quite true that there are individuals prompt to surrender personal advantage to personal ideals, if confronted with such a choice, and it is also true that there is such a thing as a collective idealism which is racially or nationally dominant in a large degree. But people are wont to apply their ideology in a practical manner and reformers who expect them to desert the tangible for the ideal before that ideal has proven itself practically sufficient are doomed to disappointment.

Speaking of governmental efficiency and economy, the proposal to remove some thousands of postmaster appointments from the dispensation of the political powers that be and blanket them under the impersonal authority of the civil service, is an excellent suggestion viewed from an intellectual standpoint. It is to be hoped it could be put into effect. It would save millions of dollars, no doubt. It would also bring about an even more efficient operation of the postal system, perhaps. But, as the practical party men point out, like the bear that went over the mountain, the proponents of this plan will find that there are two sides to every question, and the other side of this has enough of serious import to command much consideration.

The argument against the proposal is a projection of the result that is apt to follow putting the policy into such effect that all patronage is dispensed with. Without the opportunity of rewarding party service party leaders would command no inducement for this service. Instead all such inducement would be transferred to government bureaus and services whose personnel would certainly ignore no opportunity to maintain their connection with the public pay rolls. It is easy to conceive of a bureaucratic domination under such conditions, even though the restrictions against political activity of public employees may now be ever so forceful. Such a condition would logically appear the result of a lassitude in local party interest and a deterioration of local party organization. The personal incentive would be removed. It follows that it would be the easier for an influential minority or class to gain a national control that is inimical to the interests of the majority. Such speculative prospects are not unreasonable. It is true that the democratic government we now enjoy is costing the nation a pretty figure, but it would be well, before attempting improvement in this direction, to estimate whether or not present realities are more worth the price we are paying than the proposed economies would ultimately result in being.

Critics of the president's proposal can make out a pretty good case against it.

GOLD SHIPPED TO THE FRENCH.

According to Paris advices, a shipment of gold valued at $4,250,000 consigned to the Bank of France arrived on an American steamship. Shipper of the gold brought on a vessel from the United States was not announced. Moreover, the yellow metal was in 78 kegs and another American vessel will land $5,000,000 gold for the French banks at Cherbourg this week. Of course, it is all earmarked stuff. In other words it carries the brands of France. What was it doing on this side of the Atlantic?

RAIL ECONOMICS TO GET STUDY.

Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce commission is the federal coordinator of transportation. A study of ways to economize on the handling of freight and passengers by American railroads is to be started immediately under the railroad coordination plan. First, the freight rate proposition will be handled. Now the rail chiefs will be invited to submit their recommendations and go all the road in the game. Coming: A very busy fall and winter.

WILL STERLING MAKE COMEBACK?

Back within sight almost of where he drilled in his first oil well, former Gov. Ross S. Sterling started over again, after an eight-year absence from the oil producing business, and after the debacle that swept away his fortune. As general manager of the Miramar company, he drilled and brought in a substantial oil well at Hull, a few miles from the little grain store that was his first business, and close to the first oil well he ever drilled. After his fling of public service, his victories and defeats in political affairs, it would be fitting that back again, close to the ground of his humble beginnings, he built back again the foundations of a substantial business.

WHAT --- NEVER?

Sparks Along the Wires Tell Story of History in Making

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
A man who moves with the passing show and who thrills every hour of the 24 as the "sparks from the wire" has not lived life in vain. Max Elser is rounding out a grand old career in the beautiful Texas town of Cisco. He first saw the light in Watertown, N. Y. He was one among the early telegraphers who knew the ancient code. He was the first telegrapher to handle manifold copy in the town of Shreveport, in that Spanish - French - American commonwealth where Huey P. Long, a hilly-billy, is the dictatorial ruler. Max Elser superintended the construction of the first telegraph line from Shreveport to Fort Worth, during the building of the Texas and Pacific railroad by Col. Tom Scott of Pennsylvania, one of the early empire builders who invaded the southwest.

Gone are the old systems of news-gathering. Gone are the old systems and codes of the transmission of news. Wire stories of today cover the world and are ticked off mechanically, or instrumentally, so to speak. Think of the events of the hour, or 12 hours or 24 hours.

A WORLD BELTED WITH WIRES

Wires in faraway northeastern Siberia flashed the story from the lips or the tongue of Texas Jimmie McIntern. It could not have happened in the old days. Hourly the stories of the "do-nothing" world economic conference come from London. Wires tell the stories of a day from the national capital. This is the swiftest moving of all periods of history. It is grand to be on earth and moving with the Passing Show, Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt issues his eloquent appeal to the voters of the Old South states to go to the polling places and vote for the repeal of the 18th amendment. His message was directed to the leaders of the democratic party of Alabama next in line on the referendum, and indirectly it was sent to the voters of Tennessee and Arkansas and Kentucky. Democrats and independent voters asked them for a leader. They were given one by the Chicago convention. He clinched the nomination and election when he shot this message through the air: "I have made it clear ever since my nomination a year ago that I subscribed to the democratic platform one hundred per cent."

THEY TRAVEL ALL THE ROAD

Fres. Roosevelt has gone all the road. Postmaster Gen. Farley, chairman of the national committee, is going all the way. Alabama will vote early in July. There is another viewpoint. Dr. M. E. Dodd is president of the Southern Baptist convention. He is a Tennesseean. He has appealed "to every Baptist pastor, deacon, church officer and member to exercise the utmost of their spiritual, moral, intellectual and political influence against the repeal of the 18th amendment." It is fascinating to look backward. It is illuminating as well as the willing to look forward. Now the battle has been staged in Old South states. Alabama will speak first. Tennessee and Arkansas and perhaps Kentucky will follow in the wake of Alabama. Yes, the wires tell the story. Yes, the radio has revolutionized the world, and ever the press, "molder of public thought", leads the way and blazes new trails to the homes of the humble as well as the palaces of the powerful.

London flashes the news that six nations still on gold standard are to pool their holdings to maintain parity against "attacks of inflationists" meaning deflationists — and give battle to the world. Cordell Hull, one of the many voices of the Roosevelt administration, has issued a challenge to the statesmanship of the world by pointing to various major problems which he said the nations might yet attack. Another reminder that ever in the background, as well as in the foreground is the European demand that the American war loans shall be cancelled by this republic and foreign statesmen have the silent backing of American financiers who agree with the foreign world that "political debts" should be cast in the ditch in order that private loans may be paid by foreign governments and corporations and individuals.

COTTON CONCERNS FUTURE OF SOUTH

Cotton and its future concerns 10 southern states. The Wallace plan to adjust cotton production downward has been put into effect. Moreover, 1933 acreage is higher than ever before.

It is queer how these things happen. Hawkeye Wallace would cut production three million bales or more. He would keep the crop of the year down to 10 million bales. He knows there is a carryover of about 12,500,000 bales. It is biggest gamble in the history of American cotton production or in the lives of men who are growers of the fleecy staple. And the wires tell it all. Petroleum prices are advancing. Wool is booming. Mohair is a swift pacer. There are droughts in west Texas. Live stock men are worried. Pasturage is scant. Old Sol is scorching the ranges. Many things will happen before falltime comes. Keep in touch with the wires. Watch the tickers. Wire flashes and quotations tell the daily doings of the passing show and just now the passing show reaches around the wide, wide world. Move with the procession it is going somewhere. History is in the making as never before in the making in our American world as well as "all over the world."

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, July 15.—Sam Roddy, a Temple merchant, intimate friend of Frank L. Denison, and who had a lot to do with the Ferguson statewide campaign for the office last year, is pushing his home-town friend, Gus Doering, for appointment by Mrs. Ferguson as a member of the board of control.

Adrial Pool, present board of control member, probably will be back in El Paso by Aug. 1, qualified in a new office as collector of customs for his home district.

His appointment is assured, but has been delayed a month longer than foreseen in the general patronage jam at Washington. His term on the board of control expires Dec. 31, and his resignation simply will advance his successor's appointment a short time.

Rowit has developed that member Pool of the board of control voted to retain Miss Jennie Burleson for another term as superintendent of the state home for dependent and neglected children, Waco. According to that, her successor was elected by the votes of Chairman Claude D. Teer and Member John Wallace. Supt. P. R. Patterson of the Confederate home was moved to the Waco children's home, and R. B. Walthall, former board of control chairman, was made superintendent of the Confederate home.

Recently this column stated that Mr. Walthall, while a member, acquiesced in accepting the resignation of A. W. Taber as superintendent of the Confederate home. In fairness to him it should be stated that Mr. Taber's resignation was not accepted while Walthall was a member of the board, but his successor was appointed and thereafter the board, with the new member, accepted the resignation. Walthall had no part in creating the vacancy that put Judge R. E. Patterson at the home as superintendent.

Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson considers the new move one of the most significant taken by the oil industry, of setting up an organization by which it will cooperate with the state toward full enforcement of oil production orders and regulations to prevent waste of oil.

Both landowners and oil producers, refiners and operators have joined in this co-operation.

BARGAIN BRIDE

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ELINOR STAFFORD, 29, falls in love with 35-year-old BARRITT COLVIN, who has returned to New York after years abroad.

He reached home at three to learn that Elinor had not yet returned. If she were in Brooklyn with Bessie he would call for her, he decided, warning at the promise of the extra time with her and the thought of having her beside him.

He answered vaguely, adding, "Do you know where Elinor went?" Bessie did not know. "I had the impression," she said, "that she was going straight home."

ONE warm day in the middle of March Barret decided he would ask Elinor whether he had any chance at all to make their marriage something more than an unromantic business arrangement.

She stood where he had left her, hands above her heart, eyes closed. For weeks she had known something of his growing feeling for her. She had heard it in his voice which softened as he spoke to her.

HE settled moodily in the drawing room by a window to smoke continually and to frown. A French clock that stood on the mantel struck four. From the hall came the quarter hour—a full day later it seemed! She was usually in by four.

She was docile, sweet, gay. "And Lord, but you're dear to me!" he thought frequently as he looked at her across the chess table or listened to her music.

AT two o'clock Barret rose. "I'm going to luncheon, Blinker," he said, "and I'm not coming back today. Have Miss Pringle's American Indian donation ready for me. I'll look it over in the morning."

Barrett moved back from the window. So this was the explanation of her delay! This was the reason Bessie had thought Elinor was going straight home!

"Wouldn't miss it for the world," he assured her. "Then I'll be here," she said, smiling. Almost at once she had looked away and before he could reply Higgins appeared to speak to Mrs. Radnor wanted to speak to Mrs. Colvin.

Barrett began a muttered affirmative response but the words broke in the middle of it. A motor car had paused outside—a low, open sport car. Bobby Telfair stepped from it and opened the door. Elinor, smiling, descended.

Barrett moved back from the window. So this was the explanation of her delay! This was the reason Bessie had thought Elinor was going straight home!

THREATEN POISONING

OAKLAND, Cal., July 15.—Poisoning was almost an epidemic here. In one day the Highland hospital treated the following cases: Margaret Thompson, age 2 1-2, whose curiosity led her to drink furniture polish; Joe Pescio, who was forced to drink liniment on threat of death; Mrs. Lucile Grimes, who told them she had taken 1,000 poison tablets, admitted she had only attempted to hoax her husband by so saying.

Found guilty of reckless driving after several similar offenses, he agreed to write to the state traffic office and request that his driving license be permanently revoked. INDUSTRIES GO UNDER FASCIST RULE IN ITALY

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME, July 15.—The Fascist government has undertaken control of all the basic industries of the country in what in reality amounts to a complete nationalization of industry, but maintaining the principle of private property.

Delegates of the ministry of "Corporazioni" have been named to a seat on the board of directors of all the basic industries. The delegates watch the progress of the particular industry and report to the ministry its condition.

The watchful eye of the industry, too, calls the attention of the management of a particular to any failure to make that industry successful. Before a new factory can be started or a new factory built, the matter must be referred to the ministry for decision. This is to prevent any too heavy extension of plants. The plan is to keep all industries as healthy as possible and not to have any idle plants due to excessive building.

The government also has control over new plants for the production of electric energy and its distribution as well as the enlargement of existing plants for the same purpose. Special authority has been given to the ministry of corporations and the ministry of public works for this branch of industry.

Present regulations regarding the concessions of water-power stations remain unaltered, according to a previous agreement from the ministry of corporations.

Cisco Boy to Fight At Ranger Monday

RANGER, July 15.—The Ranger Elks club will present in one of its feature wrestling matches Monday night King Cole, a former resident of Ranger, who will fight in this part of the country back in the oil boom days. He has defeated some of the best light heavies in the game, including Billy Edwards, Juan Humberto, and Bob Montgomery. Monday he will wrestle the popular Eddie Brock, the winner to get a chance at Jack O'Brien.

Featured also on the card will be a match between Speedy Franks and Pete Cardiel. The two met once before and the match had to be stopped when neither would abide by the rules. This bout will be under the Australian rules, which calls for ten minute rounds, with three minute rest periods. The contestants will wear boxing gloves and may either box or wrestle.

Two fights are on the card also, with Jelly Harry, who scored a knockout over Popeye Cole last week, taking on Smitty Smith of Cisco in a six rounder. Smith, although a newcomer in the Ranger ring, has been boxing a great deal in this part of the state. The other fight will be between Benny Greenfield, Fort Worth, and Harvey Reighman, Breckenridge.

HABITS OF INDIAN WOMEN FASCINATE CROWN PRINCESS

By Her Imperial Highness DURRU SHEHVAR AZAM JAH, Crown Princess of Hyderabad

United Press Staff Correspondent

HYDERABAD, India, July 14.—Since my arrival in India, following my marriage in France, I have met women whose lives and habits differ greatly both from those of the European of my childhood in my father's house at Constantinople, and from the lives of western women as I saw it in Europe with my father, His Majesty the Caliph.

There is much in the life of the women here that I admire. The habits of the women — of those I meet in the palace of my father-in-law, His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, as well as of the humble and poor — are fascinatingly interesting, whether full of romance or full of hardship.

The poorest among the women lead a life at once pitiable and admirable. Misery, hardship and hunger is their companion; yet they are reconciled. With them, even age arrives too soon, at a time when youth is in full bloom in the lands of the west. Mate and mother before 15, the woman of the poor class often is gray with wrinkles on her mahogany face, at 30!

Middle Class Women

The middle class woman has nothing particularly conspicuous from the observer's point of view. Yet, she constitutes a necessary part of the huge organism called India. Her life is almost entirely confined to the premises of her household, and her ambition — for she has ambition — is imbued by her children, who carry it into the life without. The woman of the highest social castes has greater privileges and more "saris," or gowns. But her life is governed by the same word: Home!

Here, aristocratic ladies of the "old school" lead a leisurely life. They rarely emerge from their homes, which often have exquisite architecture. The outside walls give nothing away; inside, however, there usually are several buildings, secluded gardens and courts adorned by fountains. There, she whiles her days away surrounded by a flock of women. She has a number of trust-worthy servants called "mamas" and "nans." The outside world, comes to her through talk and the doings of the other people — are her subjects of conversation.

This social system, however, now is receding rapidly. The young generation are forging ahead.

Abandon Old Life

I have met several ladies who used to live in accordance with the old routine, in strict "purdah" (seclusion), in servility and ignorance. They had married as girls, in their early teens, physically undeveloped. It had been their pride to have as many children as possible, even at the price of lost health. Then, the day came when their ignorance came home to them and the problem of their inferiority began to puzzle them. Breaking the ancient bonds of family slavery, they volunteered to undergo the hardship of facing life alone! Some went to Europe for special research and study, and several among them obtained academic honors.

Now that they are back in India, their interests have broadened far beyond the bounds of their home. Some have become teachers at girls' schools and colleges, others are active in the liberal professions.

Such examples of energy and perseverance are rare, of course.

The women of my home, Hyderabad, belong to two communities: the Mohammedan and the Hindu. Two of the best schools in India are at the disposal of the modern girl of Hyderabad. One, called "Mahboubis" school, was created for the daughters of the highest social class. Beginning with a kindergarten, it takes the pupil right up to the senior classes. There also is a women's university, "Osmanieh" college. It is the only institution in India where the "Urdu" idiom ranks top-most in the curriculum. The course

They looked gray under the generous dab of white powder, while the rouge on their brown lips was a visitor who had introduced with much indiscretion; and the dark-tinted corners of the well-shaped mouth, of a hue very different from the rouge's looked at its sham warmth; with disapproval.

Our women have their own native cosmetics, such as a silver dust which is strewn upon the hair, and the "Pan," the "chewing gum of India," used for making the lips red. It is a leaf of a tree, filled with peculiar spices and nuts, and is loved by the entire population of this huge country.

Natural Beauty

But the natural beauty of a handsome Indian woman puts cosmetics to shame.

Let me take you into the boudoir of a distinguished Indian lady.

There we see her sitting, her long, black hair oiled into sleek obedience, parted in the middle. Under her dark brows, rising high onto the forehead, enormous black eyes seem to be dreaming about deep mysteries. A straight nose, shapely chiseled, pale lips, amber colored cheeks, forming the characteristic oval face. Her favorite pastime is music. She does not, as a rule, favor western music, but often is a master on her native instruments. The Indian lady of rank usually plays the seitar, a long-necked, gracefully shaped instrument, the sounds of which serve as accompaniment to her song, performed in deep cadences. The "motif" would seem monotonous to western ears, but its poetic, beautiful words and melancholy melody have their effect upon the soul of singer and audience alike. They are a part of the Indian woman's soul, her prayer to the Divinity. For the Indian woman and Indian music have lived together for centuries.

Rich Jewels

The Indian woman of rank is richly bejeweled. Costly earrings, rings and bracelets adorn her. The married woman usually wears two tight bracelets exactly alike, one on each wrist. They have the same symbolic significance as the wedding ring of the west and never are taken off.

Our hostess now gets up and walks to the window of her veranda. She walks with a sliding gait, her head held high, the back erect and hollow. I never have seen a more graceful movement. I often have tried and never have been able to master it.

Our friend is looking out into her garden, with its flowers, the pond with curved edges and lotus flowers floating on its surface.

So different and yet akin in many ways, the Indian woman and the Indian flower contemplate each other. Each seems to be meditating upon the other's characteristic charms.

3 sets of people are interested in telephone service

THREE SETS OF PEOPLE are interested in telephone service.

There is the public. It uses and pays for the service.

There are the employees. They operate the plant and deliver the service.

There are the million owners. Their savings provide the telephone plant.

Three sets of people interested . . . but that interest is identical. Deny a fair deal to one, and all three suffer.

Take from the public the courteous, dependable, speedy service that is its due, or make this service so costly that it is beyond the reach of the average citizen. Understanding and good will are lost . . . the cornerstone of all successful public service.

Take from the workers their reasonable wage and their enthusiasm in the job. What becomes of loyalty and morale which lie at the very foundation of good telephone service?

Take from the owners their sense of safety and the wages for their savings. Quickly the source dries up from which must come the money to build telephone plant sure to be needed as conditions improve. What kind of service could a starved telephone company render?

Three interests, but they merge into one. That's what we mean when we talk about Bell System policy . . . the best possible service at the lowest possible cost consistent with financial safety.

If you have any questions, the telephone manager will be glad to answer them.

Should the Children EAT IT?

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is far more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course in case of doubt the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food now seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about statements made in those advertisements.
