JAPAN SCORED BY LEAGUE REPORT.

Away back in a dead year the league of nations appointed a commission to investigate the action of Japan for its seizure of Manchuria by armed forces. Its report is based upon the findings of the Lytton commission which spent the entire spring and summer in the Far East investigating relations between Japan and China. In its report the commission inferentially condemned military occupation of Manchuria by Japan and its organization of the state of Manchukuo and proposes convening an advisory Sino-Japanese conference to agree upon a special administrative regime for Manchuria.

Now Japan will withdraw from the league of nations. Lord Lytton of Great Britain was the British member of the commission as well as its chairman. Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy of the United States army was the American member. Italy and Germany and France had representatives on the commission. Well, if Japan refuses to bow to the Lytton decree, what will happen? Will Great Britain, the United States, Germany, France and Italy declare war? Will they become the allies of China, which is without a stable government, and precipitate another bloody conflict, in the Far East? Hardly. As for Uncle Sam, he has a load of problems here at home awaiting solution, and the American people are in no temper to engage in another foreign war. What was it Henry Cabot Lodge said in the closing hours of the Wilson administration, speaking of foreign nations and foreign entanglements—"Let them stew in their own juice."

"SPEAKING OF THE LUCK OF THE IRISH."

According to a Dublin cablegram a great dollar current has been flowing into Ireland for nearly a year. Soaring bank deposits which have puzzled the Irish Free State public are now explained. It is said the greater part of the $6,375,000 increased deposits of the national bank and the $4,733,000 increase in the Munster and Lemster bank holdings have come from the United States. Returning Irishmen who found the future not too bright in the United States have brought their savings to the homeland. This is one explanation. What is the real explanation?

THOUSANDS TO GET FOREST JOBS.

It is announced by those responsible for the survey recently made of the national forest service that employment could be provided for 70,000 men for a year in state and national forests at a cost of $52,000,000. That is, employment should be given for 20,500,000 man days if all necessary lands were available. Of these, 38,000 men could be employed for a year on state forest lands at a cost of $30,000,000 and 32,000 on federal and Indian forests at a cost of $22,000,000. Most of the work would include tree planting, fire protection, and general forest improvement work. A job is better than a dole. A half-job furnishes a half-loaf and there are millions of jobless the nation over who are the victims of the machine system of civilization. As for the machine it is not going to be dismantled. There will be more inventions yearly, more machines, all displacing hand labor and the wise men of today and tomorrow will be compelled to take the machine and shape their movements in accordance with the existence and activities of the human atom. A very distinguished American economist and scientist has let it be known that in the near future six million workers with the aid of the machine recently invented will be able to furnish the feed supply of the American world. However, to

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Governor Roosevelt's pilgrimage to the home of Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska brought together the bravest, most respected of all the progressives with the only candidate of progressive tendencies who has been conceded a chance at the presidency since Woodrow Wilson strode across the political horizon.

Each could have told the other quite a lot, although probably neither did.

Norris might have told Roosevelt what sort of an experience it is to be absolutely fearless in politics, to stand through a lifetime for principles and convictions in the face of every conceivable obstacle and pressure, to refuse consistently to play politics for votes or personal gain.

And Roosevelt, making an open bid in the west for support of all the progressives to whom Norris is a hero, might have explained to Norris the impossibility of being elected president without compromising, trimming, evasion and learning the art of never displeasing anybody.

NORRIS stands out in marked contrast with anyone you can think of in public life. Other Republican progressives merely sulk in their tents, idle and ineffective, but Norris is an incorrigible warrior.

Nearly 25 years ago he was a congressman leading the fight that broke up the czarist rule of Uncle Joe Cannon in the House of Representatives. In that fight in the Payne-Aldrich tariff struggle and by his strategy which made the Bellinger investigation possible he first cut loose from the party rewards of patronage and other favors which regular politicians consider so important.

Probably nothing he ever did required more courage than his opposition to American entry into the World War. He spoke against it, voted against it and underwent ostracism. Threatened with violence, he returned to Nebraska to tell his constituents why the war was a bad thing for the American people and was vindicated by reelection in 1918.

No one was surprised to see Norris bolt Hoover and declare for Al Smith in 1928 because by that time everyone knew that he would always be honest enough to risk his political life in order to be true to his convictions. He thought Smith would be a better man for the country than Hoover. Smith was wet and Norris a dry, but the senator held social-economic issues most important.

Declaring for a wet Catholic candidate in such a state as Nebraska was extremely dangerous politically, but two years later Norris was sent back to Washington with another big majority despite attempts of high administration Republicans to trick him out of both nomination and election.

His endorsement of Roosevelt this year was taken as a matter of course. But now he has reversed his dry position of many years and urges light wines and beer. He thus becomes probably the first member of Congress to change front for any other reason than political expediency. He finally decided, with extreme reluctance, that the "noble experiment" was a flop.

"ON TO MEXICO CITY FROM LAREDO."

Mexico City advises declares the government has decided to suspend all other highway projects in the republic until the Mexico City-Laredo international highway is finished. It is stated that the highway was opened provisionally more than a year ago but needs about six months more work before it is completed and safe for travel, and that with the end of the rainy season the Mexican government is prepared to pour all available money and workers into the project and expects to have a double width gravelled and paved highway opened to the Texas border by next April. After completion it will be possible for our Canadian neighbors to make the trip on concrete roads from the far north to the beautiful city which is the capital of the Latin-Indian nation.

Yes, highways are the greatest of civilization. Calles and his lieutenants recognize their value. They are determined that American tourists shall get a close-up of Mexico and its people and realize that there is still a wonder country south of the Rio Grande.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

W. J. (Curly) Armstrong astonished me yesterday afternoon by expressing an opinion. It was not enough that Curly should surprise his friends by stepping out of his shy and retiring character to utter a conviction, but he even went so far as to write his opinion down.

But more amazing than either of these two facts was that he had a nice word to say about the republicans. W. W. Wallace, W. J. Leach, W. H. Craddock and some of the rest of these hidebound Hoover prosperity fellows will probably call me a liar if they don't faint.

I think it timely to speak a word of caution in Curly's ear about this business of expressing opinions. It won't go in politics. The less that a politician can say the more successful he is going to be.

Curly, you understand, is the democratic chairman for the west Cisco precinct.

"I admire the republican party, first, for its ability to inspire the blind, unreasoning loyalty and devotion which the rank and file of its members devote to its worship; second, for the wholeheartedness with which some of its members believe the propaganda broadcast by its leaders; third, for its policies which can be interpreted to suit the beliefs of every member of the party either wet or dry, broke or bankrupt, hungry or starving." So said Curly.

According to those categories the general condition of the membership of the republican party must be sad indeed. Curly's ratings would lead us to believe that the best that a republican can hope for is to be merely broke or merely hungry. Of course the democrats endure a better fate.

But I would point out, as an illustration of the danger of talking too much, that the above encomium is more of a blessing than Curly intended it to be. For instance, the democrats, whose doctrines, as Curly inferentially sets out, are genuine, is right now having to pledge its members to vote for the party's nominee in Texas—a state that is overwhelmingly democratic. When a party with doctrines such as the republican party claims is able to command the unswerving loyalty of its rank and file without so much as a request that they vote the ticket straight there is really room for admiration.

But Curly proceeds further with his opinion, and incidentally he makes even stronger the compliment he hands to the democratic opposition leadership.

He declares that the actions of some of the members of the republican party remind him "very much of my little dog" which he sometimes has to punish.

"Due to her devotion and love for her master," he remarks, "after she has received her punishment she may whine a little, but gets down on her belly and crawls up to my feet and is willing to take some more if I decree.

"This evidence of love and unreasoning devotion in a dog may be admired but I don't admire the same traits in a man."

The geese are going south. Yesterday afternoon a file of the feathered harbingers of winter flew over Cisco in perfect V formation, headed for the orange groves and the tropic jungles of the equatorial fringes.

Following them shortly will be the annual migration of the human nomads: those drifters who advance and retreat with the temperature.

Last winter this migration was heavy. This winter, with another year added to the life of the depression, may witness an even larger number.

PLAN PECAN EXHIBIT FOR WORLD'S FAIR

E. M. Howard of Rising Star and County Agent Patterson attended a committee meeting in Austin Monday called for the purpose of making plans for a pecan exhibit in the Texas building at the world's fair in Chicago next year. This committee is working in conjunction with the governors world's fair commission.

It was decided to issue a call to Texas pecan growers for one pound samples of improved varieties of pecans and two pound samples of the best seedling varieties for use in this display. Two pounds of native varieties were requested in order that one pound might be delivered to the A. & M. college for analysis to determine which were worthy of propagation for the recognition of new varieties. Samples are to be delivered to county agents in the respective pecan counties or sent direct to J. P. Rosborough, Extension Service, College Station, Texas. The object of the world's fair pecan exhibit is to bring to the attention of the millions, who will view the display, the superior eating qualities of Texas pecans in an effort to increase consumption of this King of Nuts.

The national pecan show is to be held in Rising Star November 18th and 19th and pecan samples from this section are to be accumulated in this fair and later sent in to be consolidated with the state exhibit. Eastland county growers are urged by the county agent to begin selecting their exhibits now. There are many trees producing fine quality of seedling pecans which should be tested to determine their real worth for commercial propagation. Two-pound samples of these should be selected for exhibition and testing. A small premium list is being prepared for the Rising Star show. Each improved variety will show separately and natives are to be judged according to size, cracking quality, shelling percentage etc. The Rising Star show is open to the nation. A two days program will be held in connection.

Teachers of vocational agriculture throughout the pecan belt have been asked to cooperate in the collection of the exhibit samples.

4-H CLUB BOYS WIN TRIPS

Winners of the free trips to the state fair educational encampment for members of Boys' 4-H clubs from Eastland county are Roy Bennett, Flatwoods; Alvis Woods, Grandview; Paul Davis, Alameda and Herman Dunlap of Cheaney for the county club. Trips were awarded for the best reports and achievement on club work. The winners will leave Eastland next Monday and will be the guests of the State Fair for three days. Transportation is provided by the Texas & Pacific railway through Ollie B. Webb, assistant to the president. In making this offer of free tickets to four boys and four girls Mr. Webb stated: "The T. & P. is trying in every way it can even in these stressful times, to aid in developing the territory it serves. The agricultural education of these winning youngsters, the enlargement of their vision—the challenging of their own initiative and creative ability, which seeing and handling of these things other youngsters have done over the state encourages, is of vital importance to the future of Texas. In this development we of the Texas & Pacific are happy to have a part."

SWEET POTATO INSPECTIONS

Inspection of sweet potato patches by P. D. Lown of Texas department of agriculture is being made in the county this week. Fields found free from disease and insect pests will be certified so that growers may sell seed and plants within the law. Growers who have not applied for inspection may get this service at no cost by applying to the county agent or vocational teachers. Mr. Lown will make a return visit to the county in about two weeks to take care of late requests for inspection service. Since there is no cost for this service every potato grower should have his crop examined for his own benefit so that his own seed selections may be free of pests.

Idea That Texas Might Have Woman for Governor Born on Lometa Baggage Truck

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Oct. 6.—The idea that a state might have a woman governor was born on a baggage truck at the little railroad station at Lometa, Lampasas county.

"Governor Jim" had spoken at a country fair at San Saba. Will Cowan, San Saba editor and Ed House, chamber of commerce secretary, had driven him and T. H. McGregor, another speaker, to Lometa to catch the train.

Ferguson was sitting on the baggage truck apparently in deep thought. He had received a wonderful reception at the fair. In it he apparently saw a ray of light. Suddenly turning to McGregor he asked:

"What do you think about my wife running for governor?"
"I've heard of a man running a grocery store in his wife's name. I guess this could be done, too," answered McGregor. "Do you think you can get her to do it?"
"I believe so," said Ferguson.

Shortly after, Texas and the whole country was started with the announcement of Mrs. Ferguson for governor and her "vindication" campaign.

Much water had passed over the political wheel, meantime.

First "Forum."
The senate verdict sustaining impeachment had been given Sept. 25, 1917. Ferguson and his family had returned to Temple. On Nov. 8, there, was issued Vol. 1. No. 1 of the Ferguson Forum, with James E. Ferguson as editor.

Its leading article was a copy of his University appropriation veto. Its purpose, the salutatory announced, was to fight the newspapers which he accused of failure to deal fairly with him in his impeachment.

The war-heat had given wide spread to a report that the $156,000 whose source Ferguson refused to reveal came from the Kaiser. Ferguson issued a denial, but still refused to disclose the source. Then came federal court litigation in which the contributors themselves gave the information.

The Forum appeared with the heading "Two Hundred Thousand Liars Running Loose in Texas" and reproduced the information of that hearing.

Defying the senate verdict that he never again hold office, Ferguson announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination on April 6, 1918. Talk of barring his candidacy was rife but on June 10 the state democratic executive committee voted 26 to 3 to put his name on the ballot.

Governor Hobby, who had stepped into executive office, from lieutenant governor when Ferguson, was impeached, also announced his candidacy. Statutory woman suffrage was enacted. There was no time for women to comply with the provision requiring payment of a state poll tax in January to qualify as a voter, so the poll tax payment was waived for them and the polls opened to all women of voting age. Governor Hobby won the election 461,470 to 217,012. Ferguson asserted 320,000 women voted and that only 20,000 of them supported him.

June 12, 1919, the Forum came out for "Joe Bailey for President."

American Party.
August 14, 1919, the "American Party" was born at a meeting at the "Eyers Opera House" then Fort Worth leading playhouse. Senator Bailey, John Mathis of Houston and W. P. Sebastian of Breckenridge were among the speakers. Ferguson was vigorous in his support and defended the right to form a new party.

"Jesus Christ founded a new party. Martin Luther founded a new party. George Washington founded a new party. Thomas Jefferson founded a new party," said the Forum editor.

By December the late Senator Bailey's enthusiasm for the American party had cooled. He decided to remain in the democratic party and later ran for the democratic nomination against Gov. Pat M. Neff—his last political race.

Farming still held Ferguson's interest and his Bosque ranch, divided time with the editorial sanctum. Jim tried tractors. Apparently he had trouble for the Forum in an issue forewent the usual political broadside as its main front page display and in its usual place offered the tractors for sale.

"Back to the Mule"
"Back to the mule for me," said the announcement. "A $40 hand can take a whip and get a spark every time he turns her over. No sweat. No cussing. No bad temper."

On Feb. 12, 1920 the Forum discussed, "If I should Run for President."
On April 12, he announced.
On April 29 the Forum described "Running for President." "Well sir, it is a real sensation and don't you forget it," was the opening.
"Smile Dam You Smile," was the headline after it was over and the American Party in Texas had polled 47,963 votes.

While Ferguson called attention to this he also claimed credit for the American party in replacing democratic Congressman Carlos Bee of San Antonio with a republican, Bee, as a state senator has voted to remove Ferguson at the impeachment trial.

In 1922, Ferguson was back in the democratic party. Why he came back was detailed in a long Forum Article in March of that year. In addition to other reasons, Ferguson cited that a democratic state senate had voted to hang his picture as governor in the state capitol.

Precedent Set Out.
Precedent for leaving the party was set out. Sam Houston, he pointed out had been a candidate for president in 1860 and had defeated the democratic nominee for governor.

eral not state office and so not affected by the impeachment verdict bar. In the first primary Ferguson ran second with Earle B. Mayfield leading, but ahead of Senator C. A. Culberson, and Cullen F. Thomas a relative by marriage of Senator Morris Sheppard. In the run-off Mayfield defeated Ferguson 273,308 to 228,701.

One of the instances of queer bed-fellowship produced by politics was then witnessed. George E. B. Paddy, Houston lawyer, and the same "man in U. S. soldier uniform" who led the parading University of Texas students to Governor Ferguson's office, was put out by the republicans as a coalition candidate against Mayfield. Ferguson supported Paddy. Later he declared this was not a bolt, that legality of Mayfield's nomination had been shown; Mayfield beat Paddy 264,260 to 130,744. In June 1924, the supreme court upheld an injunction against Ferguson's proposed state candidacy.

Ferguson's opponents now were satisfied that "Farmer Jim's political days were over. He was barred from state office and had been defeated for federal places. But they did not foresee that a baggage truck would be at the Lometa station for Sterling to ponder on.

Spanish Army Now Totals 111,000 Men

MADRID, Oct. 6.—Spain's military contingent for 1933 has been fixed at 111,000 men, or about one soldier for every 200 inhabitants, by Minister of War Don Manuel Azana. The population of Spain is now nearly 23,000,000.

This number is exclusive of officers, who total about 7,661, and who are organized on a different basis from the men.

The army is nearly exclusively an army of youths, the contingent being filled with boys 21 performing their year of military service. The officers are professional soldiers, either graduates of the various military academies, or from the ranks. This year the total strength of the soldiers and non-commissioned officers is 105,367.

The "Spanish Army" is a term used generally referring to the army forces in the Peninsula, the Balearic and Canary Islands. The "Army of Africa," stationed in the Spanish Protectorate of Morocco, is an entirely distinct entity, made up mostly of professionals, Moorish troops, and the celebrated Spanish Foreign Legion.

The African Army at present is made up of 1,756 officers and 41,774 men. This number is kept in the Rif although the zone has been very peaceful since the military campaign of General Primo de Rivera in co-operation with France.

Azana announced in the Cortes that he expected to greatly reduce the size of the African Army, once the road linking Tetuan, in the western tip of the protectorate, with Melilla, in the eastern tip, is completed. With this road, troops from various concentration points may be hurried to any place where they may be needed.

Little Country Has Only One War Vet

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Although war veterans' legions in all European countries greatly increased their membership after the last war—and some even now are gaining new members due to growing nationalistic spirit—the war veterans' legion in Liechtenstein literally is dying out.

At present, the entire Liechtenstein "Militar Veteranverein," as the veterans' legion is called in that small country boasts exactly one member. He is an octogenarian.

There is no chance that any new member will join the Liechtenstein Veteranverein. Liechtenstein fought its last war in 1866. This actually was Liechtenstein's war to end wars, for when the Liechtenstein troops returned Aug. 27, 1866, without losses, from their war against Garibaldi's insurgents at the Stifiser Joch, in Tyrol, the entire army of 100 men was disbanded for good.

A few years ago the Liechtenstein veterans' legion turned out for the last time on parade. That was when the present Prince of Liechtenstein, Franz I, ascended the throne of his fathers. Then the Liechtenstein veterans greeted their new monarch in full force, with three members.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Suitcases never have had such an easy life in all their family history. No more are they stuffed so full that they cry out in agony.

Instead of walling because there isn't enough room in the family baggage to carry all the needs of the debutante daughter off for a weekend she goes around the house wondering what she can put in the extra corners to keep her personal belongings from rolling around. One dress with its changes of collars, cuffs, bibs, belts, gilets, and finally, the removal of its sleeves and the substitution of a velvet capelet for evening, or a wee ermine jacket, is the foundation piece of a happy holiday. Accessories may fill the cracks, but a couple of sets should be sufficient at that, if you include as accessories, shoes, purses, hats, hese and handkies.

Reversible and convertible necklaces are week end joys, the former wearable for daytime and evening simply by turning over the beads or disks and the latter convertible from necklace into bracelets by snapping in half and wearing at each wrist.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Loboes Grind for Game With Ranger College Friday

RESERVE MEN ARE DUE FOR EXPERIENCE

By FRANK LANGSTON

Still emphasizing fundamentals in preparation for tomorrow's game with the Texas Rangers, Coach Elkins and Hodges put their squad of Big Dam Loboes through a strenuous session of charging, blocking, tackling and passing yesterday. Early in the afternoon the boys worked on passes, using the regular formations in a dummy scrimmage. Coach Bull Elkins was using somewhat different backfield combinations from the one that started Saturday night's game, giving the younger boys a chance to gain experience by mixing up the lineup.

Following the scrimmage Coach Hodges took the linemen over to the practice field where they got plenty of practice in charging. Using several different lines, he had the boys charge into the torture machine, the big sled that acts as an enemy defensive line. Then the linemen came back to the turn field and, dividing into squads of three, two offensive and one defensive, charged into each other with great gusto.

Meanwhile Coach Elkins had taken the backs and was giving them a good workout in charging low and in broken field running. He had the backs weave through four potential safety men, using the straight arm, sidestep, and whirl.

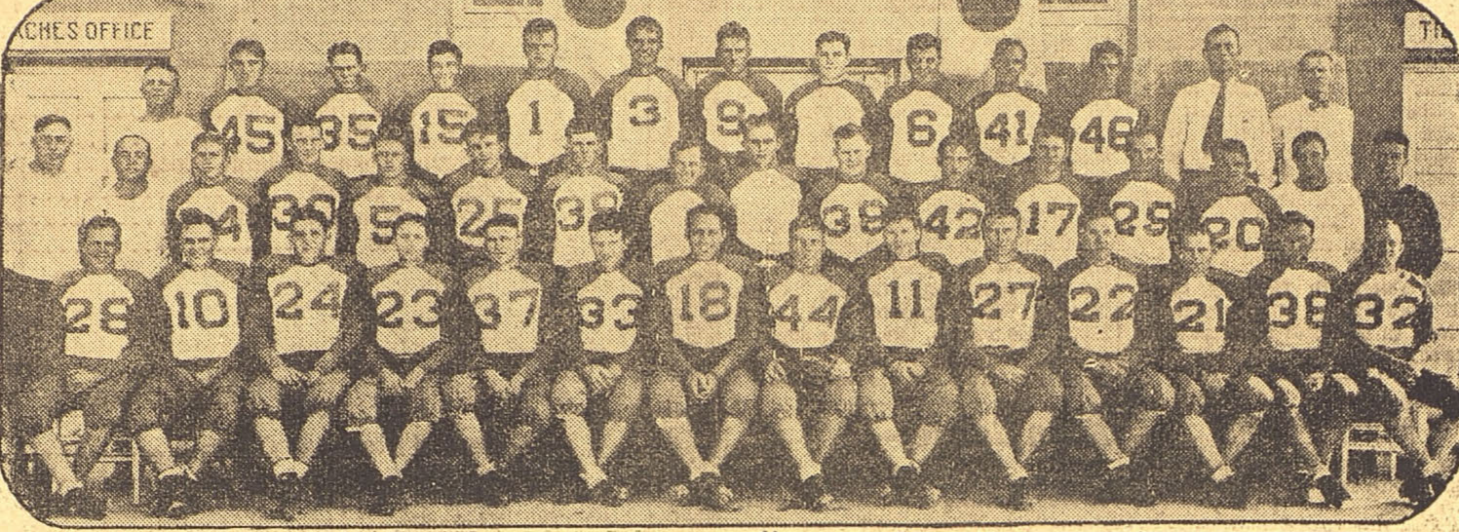

Looking Good

Arcock and Latch are still looking good. Those boys can charge through an enemy line with the best of them and are deadly tacklers on defense. The Loboes could use more like them this or any other season.

In the backfield Cleo Ray whirled past tacklers in his usual manner and Caffrey showed signs of developing into a sidestepping fullback. Heretofore he has been used chiefly as a blocking and plugging man and in backing up the line. Bill McMahon is a likely bet for the backfield when he gets a little more experience. He has weight and is fast on his feet.

Captain McCall will likely play tomorrow's game on the bench. The attack of boils which has kept him out of practice most of the last two weeks has continued, making it inadvisable to play him. With Arthur Barker, passing halfback out of the game, John St. John and Bill McMahon may get the call for the starting lineup. Barker had gone to Fort Worth and Coach Elkins was unable to say this morning whether he would return in time for tomorrow's game.

Same Lineup

Elkins said he intended to use practically the same lineup as the one which started Saturday's game except for the two backs and perhaps the ends. He has several good men in the backfield who can fill the shoes of the absent men, and may use in the game Friday to develop some new wingmen.

The opening whistle of the game is scheduled for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Lillard field in Ranger. The collegians are due to present a powerful team composed chiefly of ex-Ranger Bulldog stars and are reputed to outweigh their high school rivals. If the Loboes do not take part in the intercollegiate league race a return game will be played later in the season in Cisco.

A good crowd of fans is expected to be on hand for the fracas, for Cisco and the former Bulldogs are traditional enemies. The Lobo band under the baton of G. W. Colburn, will probably be on hand to cheer the boys in gold, according to information from Supr. R. N. Chuck this morning.

Saint-Gaudens Is Honored By Town

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Among the monuments commemorating the art association of France and the United States, none is more impressive than the memorial just dedicated to the memory of the American sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens in the town of that name.

Saint-Gaudens, whose the ancestors of the great sculptor lived, was the scene of an impressive ceremony, when the town officials, members of the Beaux-Arts Ministry and First Secretary of the American Embassy Robert T. Scotland, dedicated the classic monument to the sculptor's memory. The dedication of the great Marie Memorial prevented Ambassador Edge and other personages of the art and political world from being present.

The monument, consisting of a severely classic Greek platform, faces a beautiful panorama of the Pyrenees Mountains. In the center of the platform is a bust of Saint-Gaudens, while at each side a figure

Tunney Responsible For Democratic Vote

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 6.—James Joseph "Gene" Tunney, the politically-minded former heavy weight boxing champion has been given a large share of the credit for the democratic victory in the recent state election.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL accuses ASPER DELO of crooked practice and of having men shot who try to check up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check for cattle interests. Delo says he will prevent it in person. Upon leaving Ball's office Ball saves DONA, Asper's daughter, from kidnapers. Learning her mother tells her he is STANLEY BLACK and slips away.

DUDLEY WINTERS loves Dona. He agrees to make Asper give up the wild idea of going to Three Rivers and running Ball off the company property. Dona goes with him. They find a manhunt in progress with Ball as the objective. Asper is badly wounded from ambush but cannot be kept in bed. Dudley produces a marriage certificate that they had been prevented from using by Dona's being unsure of herself. They tell Asper they are married. Ball overhears this announcement, while in for food. He is caught by SWERGIN. Asper's father boss, who has been a leading figure in the hunt.

Ball is taken to a cabin while Swergin goes out to gather a mob for a lynching. He surprises his captor and escapes. A wild hunt takes place. Dona goes down to the horse corral to wait the return of the bandit.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

THE horsemen halted before Malloy, who stepped forward. His voice was hard. "Get him?" he demanded.

"No. He shot Smoot." The rider who held the limp figure before him slid to the ground and pulled his burden from the saddle.

Malloy bent over the prostrate man while Dona edged closer. "The rest of the boys are not on him and will get him," the man added. He knelt and watched Malloy's fingers exploring for the wound. "Is he dead?" he asked.

Malloy shook his head. "Nicked," he grunted. Finally he straightened. "You said Ball shot him?"

"Sure, slugged him from beside the trail."

Dona felt a tightening at her throat as the man stirred and groaned. She felt a little sick, too, as she watched Malloy wipe red stains from his hands with a bandana handkerchief. The tall cowboy grunted.

"Ball never shot this man. He's plugged with a rifle bullet. Soft nosed," Malloy lifted the man's head as he spoke.

"Sure, Ball plugged him," the rider snapped. "We see it."

"You lie like a coyote, but get him over to the Doc and have him fixed up." Malloy slipped his arms under the wounded man's shoulders again and if he let himself become angered and excited he might have a relapse.

DUDLEY was in the hall waiting for her. He was cool in his greeting and did not speak as they crossed to the mess hall for breakfast. He ate in silence, for which Dona was thankful as she was trying to decide what to do.

After breakfast they strolled outside and Dudley faced her. "Do we go for a ride in the car?" he asked.

"Want to?" Dona hedged.

"What do you say?"

"I'll go," Dona made the plunge wildly.

"This afternoon?"

Dona nodded. She could not trust her voice.

"I want to get in another half day's riding," Dudley spoke like a spoiled child. He was hurt and plainly felt abused.

Dona almost burst out laughing, in spite of the fact that she was grateful for the delay.

Dudley caught the gleam of laughter in her eyes and scowled. "What's so funny?" he demanded.

"Nothing, dear, only you look so awfully mad," Dona patted his hand.

Mollified, Dudley took her arm and they walked slowly back to the main building. Asper was sitting up in bed eating broth and toast.

"Top of the morning!" he greeted them.

"Feeling lots better, aren't you, Dad?" Dona said eagerly.

Asper scowled at the brood. "If I don't get some real he-man food pretty soon I'll waste away."

Dona laughed and patted his arm. "Sick folks can't have short cuts for breakfast," she chided him.

"A cut of steak is what every man should have for breakfast," Asper growled. He looked up at Dudley and his scowl vanished. "How are you this morning, son?"

"I had a good sleep," Dudley assured him without a smile.

"Fine way to have you kids tied up on your honeymoon," Asper mumbled.

"Don't you worry about us," Dona cut in hastily.

"No, just forget our honeymoon and get patched up so we can take a real one," Dudley's grin came through.

"I'll be with you this morning," Dona said, patting her father's pil-

THREE MEXICAN GOODWILL FLIERS TO MAKE FLIGHT TO STATE FAIR AT DALLAS FRIDAY

(Editor's Note:—John R. Morris, Mexico City staff correspondent of the United Press, has cooperated with the aviation committee of the Texas State Fair in completing arrangements to bring three Mexican army fliers here for participation in the fair's aviation exhibits.

Morris, a pilot and experienced navigator, with Captain Carl B. Schmidt, a war-time United States army officer, is also flying from Mexico City to Dallas to participate in the aviation celebration. Morris, with Schmidt made a 7,300 mile flight recently touching Havana, New York and Los Angeles.)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6.—Three fighting planes which will represent Mexico at the Texas State Fair at Dallas stood poised today to take off Friday (October 7) on a three-stop flight to the northeast Texas city.

The goodwill fliers are under the command of Capt. Raul Azcarate Pino, one of the noted young veterans of the Mexican air force and a younger brother of General Juan P.

Azcarate, now chief of President Rodriguez' staff.

Captain Azcarate became almost a national hero about a year ago when he was compelled on two occasions within a week to save his life by parachuting from planes he was testing. On one occasion, he bailed out of a ship after a flight of only 40 minutes from Mexico City but found himself on landing in such an isolated spot, so lacking in modern means of communication with the capital, that his journey back to the airport required five days. Part of the homeward journey was made on foot, another stretch he covered on mule back.

Only two years after his graduation, Capt. Azcarate was selected by General Calles to command the pilots who brought a fleet of Corsairs from New York in 1929 to be used against the rebels led by General Gonzalo Escobar. After the Escobar rebellion had been suppressed, the young aviator became an instructor in the Military Aviation school here and later a daredevil tester of planes built in the factory which meanwhile had been constructed by his brother.

strength in Texas until the 1928 national election.

Texas had its first woman elected governor.

Mrs. Ferguson, however, was destined to be beaten to the honor of being the first woman governor in the United States. Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, whose husband had died while governor of Wyoming, was inaugurated January 5, 1925. Two weeks later Mrs. Ferguson took the oath of office.

Newspaper correspondents who flocked to Temple, the Ferguson's home, sought signed articles. Mrs. Ferguson was photographed in the midst of her flock of chickens. She posed peeling peaches to can. Her recipes were demanded everywhere.

Newspapers and magazines carried articles about her. Some featured the "revolt against Klan." Others featured with her usual hospitality. Former Governor Ferguson hovered about to see she wasn't tricked into any ill-considered statements.

"Woman suffrage which Ferguson said had been rushed through to beat him in 1918 had been turned to aid their cause.

And once again the Ferguson family returned to Austin for an inauguration. This time Mrs. Ferguson raised her hand and took the oath of office, while her husband stood admiringly by. Her inaugural address was a pledge to follow her platform.

Gentry Bros at Eastland Tuesday

Employed for 49 years—the laughable, red-coated and busy monkey firemen with Gentry Brothers Famous Shows never present an act that grows old. The department has no pension fund. When one simian "passes on," another takes his place. Gentry Brothers will be at Eastland for two performances on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Back on the road again after being retired for several years the Gentry Brothers Famous Dog and Pony Shows will arrive in Eastland, Tuesday, October 11 for two performances at 3:45 and 8 p. m.

A show that has always catered to the children could have a feature no more appropriate than one of the famous kid movie stars of "Our Gang" comedies. Gentry Brothers this year are presenting at each performance that red-headed freckled faced boy known to the many thousands of movie fans throughout the country as "Freckles." "Freckles" travels with the Gentry Brothers with his mother and father, of course, as he is still in his early teens. Nothing pleases this boy more than meeting his many friends and fans, and will hold "open house" after each performance of Gentry Brothers Famous Dog and Pony Shows.
