BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world and more abundantly to you-ward.—II Cor. 1: 12.

Fight the good fight with all thy might. Christ is thy strength, and Christ thy right. Lay hold on life and it shall be Thy joy and crown eternally.

—MONSELL.

Remember: There is nothing in character so magnetic as cheerfulness. Is not every day a festival to the good man?—Shelley.

Recognition for the Southwest

FOOTBALL usually is regarded as a more or less necessary accessory to expeditions into the realm of higher education, and the popular estimate of the size, efficiency and general value of any college or university is based largely upon the exploits of its gridiron representative.

HERETOFORE the big universities of the north and east have held among themselves a monopoly upon the football laurels of the nation, and without apology have snubbed the challengers from the South and Southwest who have arisen in recent years to present their own claims.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

What is generally called an open winter seems to be common this far south. But in the north it is so uncommon as to receive comment, generally favorable.

closed in as we think of a short winter day cut off at its beginning by a late-rising sun, and at the other end by an early setting one; and narrowed during its course by the waning light on one hand and the impending north wind on the other.

Life too is rather hemmed in. Most of the plants are suspended in their activity. Most of the birds have departed for winter homes where they will be less hampered by inclement weather; those that remain are largely silent, or limited to a plaintive twittering or a pitiful heep.

Of course, there are the exceptions who couldn't be prided away from New York with a crowbar. Tallulah Bankhead is of these. She loves New York with a sort of frenzied fascination.

That new term now used by taxi-drivers—"Stick-up ride"—isn't what you think. It means a free ride for a pal with the flag up.

J. P. Morgan always travels with a dog. When he goes to Europe his stateroom is invariably equipped with a receiving and transmitting radio.

The ancient Parthians, according to Plutarch, beat kettle drums to frighten their enemies.

if not better than any elsewhere in the country.

SELECTION of Southern Methodist University to represent all of the United States lying east of the Rocky Mountains in the annual Rose Bowl game, and of Texas Christian University as one of the teams to play in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, is gratifying to every Texan.

THE exploits of the Mustangs and the Horned Frogs, therefore, are of importance not only in the annals of football, but in the larger sphere of Texas development; and should be of great value in directing the attention of the nation to this state and its Centennial celebration of next year.—Brownwood Bulletin.

Are They Sincere?

THE reports of mysterious new evidence in the Hauptmann case which points to the innocence of the doomed carpenter are less convincing than indicative of an effort to profit in publicity at the expense of the sufferings of principals involved in one of the most tragic events in criminal history.

THE whole thing savors of an attempt to get before the public eye and, in getting before the public eye to hide behind the expected refusal of the authorities to credit the information claimed to be possessed.

IF, on the contrary, there is truth in the claims of these people, then Mr. Hauptmann has been done a terrible injustice. For, since the detective who figures in the new "angle" is said to have refused to participate in the state's original investigation on the ground that he believed Hauptmann innocent, it is reasonable to presume that he had important information which would have been of great and possible determining value to the defendant but which he refused to place at the disposal of the investigators.

THE GAY THIRTIES

THE LADY'S OUT OF LINE

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK.—One of the differences between celebrities and people who live away from New York is that the stars, mostly from rural communities themselves, invariably are straining to get back to the country, whereas the others are busy devising schemes to visit New York in hope of seeing some of their celebrated favorites.

Jose Iturbi, the violinist, is usually thought of in terms of Carnegie Hall concert and world tours, but his chief delight is ambling through his orange grove in the south of Spain.

Then there is James Bell, the actor, who owns an old homestead in Virginia and a plantation in Mississippi. He likes nothing better than wandering through the canebrakes region.

Tito Schipa, the little Italian operatic tenor who always has wanted to play Napoleon, hies himself to the olive groves of Italy after each season at the Met.

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY

One Alexander Woolcott has been called "the first citizen of New York" by no less a caller than Stanley Walker, who has turned from city editing to writing books, at least part of the time.

The phrase sounds well, but what Mr. Woolcott really is seems to us to be the first collector of New York. He collects anecdotes for his own essays and such, authors for the purpose of booming them, and literature generally for the purpose of issuing it in anthology form.

The 1935 example of Mr. Woolcott's diligence is called "The Woolcott Reader." It is a large volume of 1,010 pages, only a small percentage of which are written by Woolcott himself.

Mr. Woolcott goes "quietly mad" over a wide variety of literary production. Some of it is journalism, notably the piece William Allen White wrote on Mary White, his daughter, after she had been struck from her horse by a tree branch, and had died.

Some of it is sentiment—such as Ian Maclaren's "A Doctor of the Old School." Sentiment is not done quite that way by many people writing today; years ago this department read this particular piece and very likely considered it maudlin.

Every sort of thing is included, nearly all of it is first rate and valuable. So be it.

"A Daughter of the Nohfu," by Etsu Inagaki Sugimoto (Doubleday, Doran): a very, very romantic story of agricultural Japan, and the impact of modernism upon it.

"Save a Lady," by Wilson Colli-son (Kendall & Sharp): the author of "Up in Mable's Room" writes another speedy romance; arrogant Nella, rich and disillusioned, learns from a hobo, a lawyer and a gunman.

Higher Prices for Eastland Co. Peanuts Sought

By W. B. STARR

One of the largest mass meetings of farmers ever held in Eastland county was held at Eastland last Saturday night, where some 200 or 250 farmers filled the 91st district court room to capacity.

This was a second meeting of a similar character, held within the last two weeks. The purpose of these meetings was to secure to the farmers a more equitable price for their peanuts. The price of peanuts in Eastland and adjoining counties has fallen since Nov. 15 to 50 and 75 cents per bushel, whereas prices the forepart of the season, held between 85 and 95 cents per bushel.

County agent Heald and myself addressed this meeting, in which it was brought out that it was hoped to get one of the largest cotton seed oil mills in the state, located at Fort Worth, to enter the market. This will pay what is considered by the U. S. department of agriculture a "fair price" for the 1935 crop of peanuts, nominally $65 per ton, which is 97 1/2 cents per bushel. This price will be based on 70 per cent of such units.

If this company enters the market, good peanuts should bring not less than 90 cents per bushel on the farms in this section of the state.

Prices have not declined in the southeastern sections as they have in the southwestern areas.

While only 10 per cent of the peanuts produced in the United States are grown west of the Mississippi river, still this percentage represents 25,000 growers, who feel that they should be given an even break with the heavier producing sections of the east. Hence this concerted action looking toward that end.

Hermann Neubergh, a director of the German tobacco cartel, announced after his trip to Brazil that beginning in 1936 "50 per cent of Germany's consumption of tobacco will be for Brazil's leaf product."

Sweets Ideal For Christmas If Home-Made

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE (Author of "Menus of the Day")

The joyful anticipation of Christmas is accentuated in many homes by the preparation of holiday confections, many of which are made at no other season of the year.

Home-made candies, cookies and other delicacies in gayly wrapped boxes and holly trimmed baskets make treasured gifts which bring memories of bygone childhood holidays and merrymaking.

FONDANT LOAF

- 2 1-2 cups sugar
 - 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar
 - 1-2 cup milk
 - 1-3 cup cream

Charters Granted in November Increase

AUSTIN, Dec. 10. — Charters granted by the secretary of state in November to corporations for carrying on business in Texas increased in number substantially over the preceding month and over November last year, and the increase in total capitalization was even more marked than the increase in number, according to records compiled by the University of Texas bureau of business research.

A total of 131 new corporations was chartered with aggregate capital of $2,617,000, an increase of 31 per cent in the number and 143 per cent in capitalization over the corresponding month last year. Groups showing the largest gains in new corporations chartered were as follows: Oil, manufacturing, banking-finance, and merchandising, the bureau's report said.
