Appearances here indicate that Japan is passing through another "nervous crisis" concerning the relations. It is apparent that a certain amount of apprehension exists over the result of the congressional inquiry in California.

Among the incidents which tended to fan anti-American feeling was the publication of reports of burning of Japanese stores in Marysville, Cal., possibly the act of anti-Japanese elements.

FT. WORTH WILL BUY BREAD IN DALLAS IF PRICE IS ADVANCED

FT. WORTH, July 29.—Yesterday the bakers of Ft. Worth gave notice that they immediately would advance the price of bread two cents per loaf.

The reason for an advance at this time is not understood by E. N. Shaw of the American Market, 1400 Houston street, who stated last night that flour, lard and perhaps other ingredients of bread have recently declined in price. He does not know of any advance in labor costs that would warrant the raise.

Flour has dropped from $3 to $7 and $8.60 a hundred pounds, he said. Lard has gone down from 25 cents to 19 1/2 cents according to Mr. Shaw.

"I have an offer from a Dallas bakery to deliver bread to me in Ft. Worth at 16 cents a loaf, laid down here," Mr. Shaw said. "If they can sell for 10 cents a loaf and absorb the cost of transportation between Dallas and Fort Worth I fall to see why Fort Worth bakers can not sell locally for 10 cents. If things continue like this some of the small dealers are going to be forced out of business."

Government Takes a Hand. FT. WORTH, July 29.—Bread prices here are being investigated by United States Attorney Taylor. They were jumped from 12 to 14 cents a loaf and he is seeking to determine whether there are any illegal organizations to raise the prices.

DEMOCRATS TO MAKE CLOSE SCRUTINY OF ALL CONTRIBUTIONS

Chairman White Says "Peace, Progress, Prosperity" Will Be the Campaign Slogan — McAdoo Will Speak for Cox and Warns That People Will Not Stand for a "Purchased President."

Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 29.—The democratic party's campaign war chest is open to contributions in any amount, said George White, chairman of the national committee.

"The party leaders will examine the source rather than the amounts of all contributions," he said. "Peace, progress, prosperity," are the three words of the slogan for democratic campaigners. White added the party is "Cox sure" of victory.

The new chairman referred to Illinois, Indiana and Ohio as "battleground" in the campaign, but indicated that Governor Cox would carry the fight direct to the people and would visit a majority of the states.

The national committee is to scrutinize all contributions so that no obligations on the candidate will be entailed. McAdoo Will Speak. NEW YORK, July 29.—Wm. G. McAdoo announced that he has consented to deliver speeches in behalf of Governor Cox during what he said would be a vigorous and aggressive campaign.

JACK DEMPSEY WILL MEET BILLY MISKE. CHICAGO, July 29.—Jack Dempsey was matched late today to meet Billy Miske of St. Paul in a ten-round heavyweight championship contest at Benton Harbor, Mich., on Labor day.

The champion, according to announcement by Promoter Fitzsimmons, has been guaranteed $50,000 with a privilege of accepting a percentage of the receipts, while Miske has been guaranteed the sum of $25,000. Miske has promised to establish training quarters in Benton Harbor four weeks in advance of the contest and also agreed to call off all scheduled matches.

The contest will be staged in the open air arena in which Benny Leonard defended his lightweight championship against Charlie White on July 5. The arena, however, will be greatly enlarged.

Miske is regarded by the promoters as a local opponent for Dempsey as he fought him twice before Dempsey defeated Jess Willard for the heavyweight title. They met in a ten-round engagement in St. Paul and in a six-round contest in Philadelphia, Miske claiming to have had the better of the Philadelphia meeting.

The St. Paul heavyweight is much heavier than when he fought Dempsey the first time, tipping the scales in the neighborhood of 192 pounds.

TO REHABILITATE THOSE CRIPPLED IN STATE INDUSTRIES

New York Vocational Officer Points Out What Would Be Added to the Producing Power If Men So Injured Were Cared for as Are the Victims of War.

Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 29.—The lessons learned by the United States in its work of rehabilitation of soldier and sailor veterans of the war, if applied to the problems of the industrial cripples would mean not only the return to independence of these injured workers but an actual increase in the wealth of the nation of $2,500,000,000 a year, according to Ralph T. Fisher, district vocational officer of the Federal Board for Vocational Education in the New York District in an address here today before the New York Rotary Club.

"In point of dollars," said Mr. Fisher, "retaining the industrially crippled men means an increased productive value to the nation of amounts heretofore little understood. I believe we are easily within conservative estimates in saying that any seriously disabled man who can be vocationally rehabilitated will have his earning capacity increased by a total of at least $12,500 for the remaining period of his life and that his increased productive value to the nation will easily reach $50,000."

"The Federal Board for Vocational Education is just now gathering data on the subject, but if, for immediate estimates, we assume that not more than one-fifth of the permanently disabled require retraining, we would have 20,000 men a year to be trained. It is a simple matter of computation to see that each retained man returns $50,000 in the remainder of his life the increment accruing to the wealth of the nation would amount to two and one-half billion dollars. This enormous figure, it must be remembered, is the estimated result of training those persons crippled in industry in one year."

Mr. Fisher said it was estimated by the board that four or five times as many persons are disabled in industry in one year as were disabled in the American Expeditionary Forces during the period of the war. He said that at least 250,000 persons are permanently disabled in the United States each year through industrial accidents.

The problem, said Mr. Fisher, will always be largely a state problem.

"The state," he said, "which is responsible for the most industrial cripples is likewise reaping corresponding profits from the industries in that state which are responsible for those cripples. Consequently, the funds for industrial rehabilitation should come chiefly from sources of state taxation, assuming that the state will, in turn, derive taxes for that purpose from the profits of those industries which are responsible for the accidents."

Mr. Fisher praised the act of congress in passing almost without reduction the ninety million dollar appropriation for the rehabilitating of war veterans. This action, he said, made it possible to prove beyond a doubt the feasibility of rehabilitation of cripples.

"New York state is to be congratulated," Mr. Fisher asserted, "on having recently passed a law calculated to accept the provisions of the Federal act recently approved, which does not provide for the support of the industrially disabled who are undergoing vocational training but proposes to standardize, supervise and encourage industrial rehabilitation in the various states. The New York law designates a state advisory committee for the rehabilitation of handicapped persons which will cooperate with other state agencies concerned. For immediate encouragement congress has appropriated $3,750,000 to be allotted to the states, covering a period of the next four years, on condition that the states meet this appropriation dollar for dollar."

"New York has done the characteristic thing in anticipation of the Federal act, so that the simple acceptance by the governor of the state will complete the formalities.

"Whether this is viewed as a war recuperative measure or as an industrial recuperative measure," said Mr. Fisher, "it cannot help but appeal to right-minded citizens, because it is calculated not only to solve an economic problem, but to solve at the same time one of the great social problems of democracy—a contented citizenry."

PROPHECY IN SONG CAME TRUE TO HIM ONLY IN THE WAY

CHICAGO, July 29.—Years ago Carl Raymond, the old music master, wrote a song by this name:

"I'm poor and old, and only in the way."

Today Raymond is poor and old and he says he's only in the way. His home is wherever he hangs his hat. He has had riches and fame; now he has but memories. Sometimes he plays the piano in a little restaurant on South Wabash avenue.

Just now he's in the county hospital—broke and friendless. Reclining on a hospital bed, he repeated words from one of his songs:

As we walk down the street,
How, how often do we meet
Some poor old man whose life is naught,
but woe,
And with age his form is bent
In his pockets not a cent,
And for shelter he does not know where to go.

With relations by the score
Who turn him from their door
And sneering in the street just pass him by.
If you ask him why 'tis done,
He'll answer you and say:
"I'm poor and old and only in the way."

As the old fellow's voice died away he said sadly: "That's my life in a nutshell. I never thought when I wrote those words that some day I would apply them to myself."

Raymond was born eighty-one years ago in the shadow of Bunker Hill monument, the son of a banker. At six teen he enlisted in the Mexican war. After peace was declared he became an intermittent correspondent for the New York Herald. Then came the Civil war and he joined the colors again. In 1867 he came to Chicago. All the time he was writing songs—hundreds of them, including "Just One Girl," "There Are No Friends but the Old Friends" and "Passing Away Beyond the Clouds."

"But now I'm through," he said today. "You see, I'm poor and old and only in the way."

BED DISAPPEARS IN MODERN HOUSES NOW BUILDING IN CITIES

Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 29.—Residents of Manhattan Island, in their eternal fight for space, have perked up their ears at the announcement by a New York realty syndicate that it will build a $450,000 apartment house whose distinguished feature will be "disappearing beds."

Officials of the syndicate are silent as to what form the "disappearing beds" will take during the day time. They dismiss the matter by saying that "disappearing beds and many other labor saving devices will be installed."

Architects, however, have given their opinion on the proposed innovation.

The beauty of the "disappearing beds" the architects say, is that the bed cannot disappear while the occupant is lying in it on his back, with his knees up and his mouth open. This was the chief drawback to the old-fashioned folding bed. The architects made this statement to quiet the fears of many New York residents who had inquired as to whether the "disappearing beds" were similar to the old-fashioned folding bed, or contained any of the latter's cranky and uncertain tendencies.

The architects say that a "disappearing bed" is a bed at night and an oil painting of a Gordon setter or something like that in the day time; and can be slipped under the bath room floor or tucked away behind the aquarium, or that it may be sunk into a trap door in the floor and an Oriental rug placed over it, so that the tell-tale cracks may not be seen.

The apartment house of the "disappearing beds," the syndicate announces, is to be built on West End Avenue, Manhattan.

HEAD OF GOVERNMENT IN JEWETT IS A WOMAN NO SUNDAY BASEBALL

Associated Press. JEWETT, Tex., July 29.—In Jewett, Tex., where the women rule not only the home, but the city government, there'll be no more Sunday baseball.

Every city officer in Jewett, with the exception of the chief of police, is a woman, each having selected last April when the husbands, saying they were disgusted with office, dared the women to oppose them. They did, with the result that the women won out in the voting.

The congregation of the Methodist church recently passed unanimously a resolution against Sunday baseball. It implored the women who were ruling the municipality to legislate against such desecration of the Sabbath. All the members of the commission, including the mayor—also a woman—are members of the church, heard the resolution and said there would be no more Sunday baseball.

Now the young men of the community and the fens, too, are wondering what will happen next.

"One hundred and twenty pounds," was the reply. "That's too much for me," said the queen and her daughter, Princess Elizabeth, who was with the queen, added, "They must think we are Americans."

WELDING

The Old and the New Way

The Old Way

---Strong arm and sledge hammer

There was a time when welding had to be done with a strong arm and a sledge-hammer. The work was slow and oft times most unsatisfactory. Delay meant loss of time, and loss of time meant money. The old way was, indeed, very expensive. Then it was difficult to find any one who could do welding, and almost impossible to find any one who could do cutting.

The New Way

---Acetylene cutting and welding

Today, Welding and Cutting are comparatively easy as compared with the old methods. The invention of the Acetylene Cutting and Welding methods have saved many dollars to persons desiring this kind of work done. We have the most complete Welding and Cutting plant in the Southwest, and are prepared to handle the largest and most difficult jobs. Besides, we guarantee satisfaction—something you can appreciate when you wish this kind of a job done. Time still plays an important part in Welding and Cutting, and this is where we prove our superiority in this work.

SAYS GERMANS MUST HELP THEMSELVES AS AMERICANS CANNOT

By International News Service.
BERLIN, July 28.—"Germany must help herself," says Henry P. Runkel, Chicago business man and politician, who has just completed a tour of Germany on behalf of leading German-Americans of the middle west.
"America cannot save Germany, and we do but little to help her," Germany must be her own savior. Conditions in general, and especially food conditions, are improving compared with what I found when I arrived here in March.
"There is unlimited profiteering. Merchants are charging as if they believe the mark is still 100 to the dollar. Italian oranges cost two marks in Munich three months ago. Although they are being imported for one-third the former price, the retail price hasn't dropped a penny.
"This situation will not change until the German newspapers educate the people to protect themselves from the profiteers. A forty-eight-hour boycott of fruit dealers in Munich cut the price of cherries in half, and yet the merchants were selling at a profit. But the newspapers are generally so intent on party political propaganda that they have but little time or thought for educating the people to protect themselves against the profiteers.
"What tendencies do you find in your traveling toward the South German states separating from Prussia?" the International News Service correspondent asked Mr. Runkel.
"Whatever natural inclinations the Bavarians had to cut loose from Prussia seems to have been killed by the behavior of the French in occupied territory," replied Mr. Runkel. "The negro troops' outrages on white women and the other abuses have awakened a strong nationalistic impulse which is growing."

Special to the News.

It is planned to incorporate for $20,000. A site for the gin has been selected and construction awaits arrival of machinery. C. E. Neil is president, A. A. Jones, vice president, W. L. Boerner, secretary-treasurer, C. E. Neil, W. J. Boerner and W. F. Weatherles have been chosen directors. The West Texas chamber of commerce reports a number of instances where West Texas people are putting their shoulders together in building and operating community plants.

Rat Catchers at Work

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 28.—Five expert rat catchers from New Orleans are busy here in a drive to trap five thousand rodents in a survey along the water front by the United States Public Health Service. No infected rats have yet been found. Charleston hopes to send a representative to the five-states conference at Galveston in August to discuss the plague prevention work.

WBI Oppose Bailey

DALLAS, July 29.—Robert E. Thomason of El Paso, candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in Saturday's primary, today announced he would support Pat M. Neff of Waco in the run-off primary August 28.
"In view of the fight I made in Cooke county as well as in behalf of the national democratic administration I cannot support Mr. Bailey," the statement said. "Regardless of developments in the recent campaign I place the interest of my state and the success of the democratic party above everything else," said Mr. Thomason.

WEST TEXAS WILL HAVE IMMENSE CROP COTTON AND SORGHUM

Special to the News.
STAMFORD, July 29.—That part of Texas west of Fort Worth and north of the thirtieth parallel will produce approximately 1,100,000 bales of cotton and between fifty and sixty million bushels of sorghum grains this year, according to Porter A. Whaley, manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, in reply to a query from Libby, McNeil and Libby of Fort Worth.
Mr. Whaley says that the estimate on the cotton is conservative, that the condition of the crop is excellent and the acreage increased fifteen per cent over that of 1919. He figures the grain crop about the same as that of last year in regard to acreage. Some counties report as much as 100 per cent increase in cotton acreage. The sorghum grain crop expressed in feed value of corn is approximately 55,000,000 bushels.

HEAVY RAIN IN CISCO TUESDAY EVENING

A hard rain fell in Cisco Tuesday evening, beginning about 5 o'clock. The rain was accompanied by much thunder and lightning. The rainfall was 2.75 inches in less than two hours, as shown by the government gauge and reported by the local weather observer, Dr. W. E. Manell.

During the storm a house in West Eighth street was struck by lightning. An alarm of fire was turned in and the department answered the call, but no fire had resulted from the bolt.

FEARING SPANKING LITTLE GIRL JUMPS FROM WINDOW, DIES

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, July 29.—In fear of a "spanking" Angelina Scire, eleven years old, jumped from a window in her fourth story home here and died a short time afterward in Bellevue hospital.

The "little mother" of three younger children of her parents, Giuseppe and Nibolline Scire, both of whom work to eke out an existence for the little family, Angelina did the house work and attended a nearby school.

She had a quarrel with "Marie," who lives just across the street from the tenement rooms occupied by the Scires, and in the argument scratched Marie's face. Marie's father scolded her and said: "Never mind; wait until your father comes home and I'll see that you get a good spanking."

Though Angelina's father always had been good to her, Angelina was sensitive, nevertheless, and dreaded the spanking. She locked herself in her room for awhile, then took courage and prepared a meal for her father. But when she heard him coming she hurried to her room, scribbled a childish note, went to the window and jumped.

TOP OF THE SEASON AT GALVESTON RESORTS.

GALVESTON, Texas, July 29.—Vacationists, heading for the cool breezes off the Gulf of Mexico and the delights of surf bathing, have swamped hotel and private accommodations here. Recently, with the coming of mid-summer, the largest hotel on the beach adopted the policy of refusing to make week-end reservations.
"I could fill another hotel of this size with the number of people I have turned away today," said the manager of the principal hotel on a Saturday.
The height of summer activities, according to beach records, is reached Labor Day.

MUCH SYMPATHY FOR THE FORMER GERMAN EMPRESS IN ILLNESS

Associated Press.
DOORN, Holland, July 29.—The former German empress, Auguste Victoria, has undergone so much distress during the past two years that she has suffered for several months from aggravated attacks of heart disease. Recently she has been leading the life of an invalid. She has had milder attacks of this malady for many years.

At the House of Doorn, where surrounded by a staff of her own Berlin servants, and attended almost constantly by Countess Kellar—for many years her lady in waiting—she has recently been so completely indisposed that she has at times been unable to walk and has not for a long time been permitted to walk up or down the stairs. A special elevator was built for her use.

Those familiar with the inner life of the former emperor's household since the flight from Potsdam to Holland declare that while William, consoling himself with religion, has been more or less of a stoic, the former empress has suffered great mental distress and has felt severely the separation from her children.

From the time she arrived at Amerongen, in November, 1918, she has suffered continually. Now and then, she was the victim of heart attacks so severe that she was confined to her bed for several days at a time.
In the spring of 1920, when the Kapp revolution in Berlin was followed by an urgent demand that the former emperor be closely guarded, the life of the exiles became more, constrained and Auguste's ailment more pronounced.
She was constantly under the treatment of Dr. Haehner, a Berlin physician, who is a member of the former emperor's staff, and, also a noted Dutch specialist in heart diseases, from Utrecht, was called into consultation.

EXPLAINS HOW BIG GUNS ARE HANDLED ON RAILWAY TRACKS

Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 29.—Popular conception of the railway mount for the heavy caliber artillery—such as the 14-inch naval guns used by the Americans in France—is that these big guns can be fired as they move along the tracks. Major General W. F. Coe, of the coast artillery, explains that this is erroneous.
"Essentially, a concrete block is necessary," he says. "Over it the gun is run on its trucks and then placed upon the block. We actually take the trucks out from under the gun when it is fired and it stands on a carriage with an arc of fire of 350 degrees. The gun can be taken from one position to a similarly prepared position. The real thing is you can send the guns to strategic points."

FORCE IS NECESSARY TO HOLD LABORERS IN SOUTHERN TEXAS

Associated Press.
CORPUS CHRISTI, July 29.—With the approach of the cotton picking season, small towns along the Gulf Coast district have been guarding their local labor supply jealously, while seeking to augment it any way possible.
Visitors here said they were in a neighboring small town when a labor agent with a gang of men he had hired started to leave the depot for a walk between trains. A man representing himself to be an officer, acting on his own volition, ordered the agent and his gang back into the depot and held them there until the train arrived. The agent was given to understand he could hire no men in that town as all were needed for the cotton crop in the vicinity.

NEED FOR DIAZ

When Porfirio Diaz was president of Mexico and there happened an uprising, on the part of the Yaqui Indians, a lot of bandits, or other outlaws and depredators, he gave an order to his troops. That order was not one to "go and quell the disturbance." It always read, "go kill them."

It was with an iron hand that Diaz ruled. He knew his people, or at least the criminal element. How different the treatment said to have been accorded Francisco Villa, bandit, outlaw and cruel murderer, unmatched in the world's history. Yet, as the dispatches tell, when he surrendered it was with the understanding that he would be allowed to retire to private life, unpunished and fully forgiven, and to all this is to be added a pension so long as he shall live.

The relatives and friends of Americans tortured and slain by him cannot receive this news with pleasure, but on the other hand they will always feel no punishment is too great for him.

The new government in Mexico appears to have started out with the one idea of pacification and by its efforts in that direction, bring about peace and restore business in the republic. Perhaps that idea is the correct one, but it will be very hard to make Americans believe that it should have extended to the arch fiend, Villa.

Just as it was under the rule of Carranza, so it has been since Obregon and Huerta came into power. They all had to admit their inefficiency in efforts to capture Villa or that they were afraid to find him.

They will, no doubt, learn to their sorrow that it never pays to compromise with crime.

THE CASE OF DEBS

That the demand made by the candidate for president on the Farmer-Labor ticket, on the candidates of both the democratic and republican parties, to join with him in applying to President Wilson for the release of Eugene V. Debs, from the Atlanta prison, where he is serving a term for violation of the espionage act, shows so clearly on the face of it that it is done for the purpose of making political capital, that the maker of the demand deserves no reply.

Still, Senator Harding, the republican candidate, did make reply, saying he had no time to examine into the case of Debs and could not intelligently act upon it unless he had made such examination. It was very evident that he was not in favor of releasing Debs through the channel proposed.

The Farmer-Labor candidate is insisting on Governor Cox, the democratic candidate, making reply and is sending telegrams asking him so to do. So far, Governor Cox has ignored the demand. What he may do is, of course, unknown.

Debs was tried before a jury and found guilty of a crime which at that critical time, was second only to treason. His case was carried to the highest court in the land and there the finding of the lower court was upheld.

Debs does not deny that he had a fair trial and his utterances in prison have been only a reiteration of the expressions for which he was convicted. There is no claim made that Debs has repented of his wrong doing, nor is there any evidence that Debs himself is asking for a pardon.

It is just a bit of political buncombe, in keeping with other expressions on the part of the candidate making the demand on Senator Harding and Governor Cox.

COST OF LIVING

The department of justice and that of labor should get together on their reports as to the high cost of living. As they are they prove nothing and were it not for the ocular proof and the bitter experience the public would have nothing to guide them as to the real situation.

The report of the department of labor, issued during the present month, showed that since January the cost of living had increased over 9 per cent, while now the department of justice is out with a report, admitting that it has not been able to bring about such great reduction as it desires, but that there has been some reduction.

Still, the evidence of neither of these departments is needed by the people who are struggling against the high prices of everything they must buy to eat and to wear. They know.

GREAT MODERN LOVE STORIES

"All the world loves a lover" and love stories. But we are too apt to think that we have to turn to the pages of fiction or to the chronicles of a dead and bygone age in order to read great love stories. That is a decided mistake. The columns of daily newspapers frequently reveal romances of so high a plane of feeling that they truly may be called "great."

For instance, only a few days ago we read of that skilled Chicago physician, who not only performed a difficult operation upon his own wife, but cut from his own skin in order to transfer it to her, necessarily passing through this ordeal without the use of an anesthetic. The fact that this heroic performance was indeed a triumph of science could not surely blind anyone to its transcendent value as a great love story.

Was there a hero of all antiquity who showed a finer spirit of devotion and sacrifice? Our great lovers today do not ride to tournaments nor fight duels for their lady loves, but they defend them no less truly and in ways that call for greater sacrifice. Romance dead? Why, it is just learning how to live.

A year or so ago the whole nation thrilled when it read of another devoted husband who chose to die with his wife in the path of a locomotive, since he could not free her foot from the rail where it had caught. Incidents such as these, and there are many of them, effectively give the lie to the old European criticism of us that we do not know how to love. Romance today in the new world is clothed in different garments from those she wore when the world was young, but no fashion that she can don will ever disguise the infinite beauty of her features.—Ohio State Journal.

THE SONS OF MARTHA

Ever since Mr. Rudyard Kipling made his admirable distinction between the Sons of Mary, who sit on the top of the world and run it, and the Sons of Martha, who actually do the work, it has been the fashion to pity the lot of the latter. Even Mr. Kipling, while hymning the courage and devotion of the latter and predicting their success in the hereafter, gave a rather drab view of their tasks and pictured the Sons of Mary, in conventional style as lying the cream off the top of the bottle and leading a generally beatific and glorious existence.

What we wish to suggest is that in plain fact the Sons of Martha have most of the real fun in the world and the Sons of Mary pass a precious dull time of it for all their pomp and circumstance.

The trouble with the Sons of Mary is that they handle almost exclusively ideas. Now ideas are thrilling and exciting at times, but they are pretty cold and empty stuff to deal in year in and year out. The stock in trade of the Sons of Martha is things. Theirs is the job of actually touching and controlling and producing all the smooth and rough and ugly and gorgeous things in the world. The ruler sits at a desk and plans and plots—on paper or in his mind. The worker digs down into the actual stuff of life and builds and arranges and creates with his own hands.

There are, of course, unhappy, discontented Sons of Martha—and daughters, too. Yet most of this selfpity is simply that of foolish, miscast human beings. The really good cook loves her pots and pans, for example, and the brownie biscuit and all the clean shinnesses of a well-run kitchen. When we were children we saw these things more sensibly. Nothing seemed as delicious as the smell of a blacksmith's shop or more to be envied than that fiery, ringing job at the anvil. It is only when conventions grip us that we switch to stock brokering and law-yring and all the other tepidly chores of the mind.—New York Tribune.

The Old, Old Story About "The Best Laid Plans of Mice and Men," Etc.

International News Service.
By MARGERY REN.

NEW YORK, July 29.—If the best laid plans of mice and men "aft gang agley," the carefully contrived designs of the murdered are practically certain to contain some slip—a tiny flaw, a forgotten handkerchief, mark on clothing, or other clue to the crime.

In the proud state of Virginia some years ago Henry Clay Beattie, very tired of his wife owing to his infatuation for a young woman, Beulah Binford, took Mrs. Beattie out automobiling one evening. He returned with her dead body, his own clothing blood-soaked. Highwaymen had held him up and shot his wife, according to his story of the occurrence. But Henry Clay's cousin was able to say that he had procured the previous week for the other's convenience, a shotgun and bullets.

Beattie was finally executed for first degree murder.

Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, this time last year on a foundation of circumstantial evidence, was tried and convicted of the murder of his wife. He told a story of burglars at his Long Beach home who struck him, but beat Mrs. Julia Wilkins to death. Finger prints on a piece of paper, bits of newspaper clinging to that metal and other bits of paper dovetailing into the first were found carefully stowed away under a mattress. These were part of the evidence that caused Wilkins' arrest. After the "burglary" that resulted in his wife's death Wilkins ran away, but came back. After the verdict, while waiting in jail for the day of his enforced death he hanged himself.

I was told not long ago that before his suicide Wilkins confessed his guilt. The last exhibition of a delinquent husband essaying murder, while offering the "burglary" theory to the authorities to explain his crime, is that of Lieutenant Carl Wanderer of Chicago, who finally confessed to the killing of his wife, soon to be a mother.

Wanderer, so present dispatches say, is in love with a sixteen-year-old girl, and this "love," possibly, may be the incentive that led the former war hero to commit his crime.

Wanderer and Beattie killed for love of women other than their lawful wives. Wilkins killed to gain possession of Mrs. Wilkins' money.

But does crime always come to light? Positive answer comes from a woman district attorney, whose daily experience in dealing with criminals has led her to form certain conclusions. This is Miss Helen P. McCormick, who is assistant to the district attorney of Kings County, New York.

Miss McCormick has youth and enthusiasm. Her work is characterized by clear thinking and keen insight into character and instead of being a slave to theories she is able to remodel them to work for her.

"No matter how astute the criminal," she said, "there is usually some contingency that he cannot foresee or overlook, and it is that which proves his undoing."

"Do criminals return to the scene of their crime? Maybe not to the actual scene; but to their old haunts, emphatically yes!"

"It is a psychological fact that their former environments, or perhaps some spot connected remotely or otherwise with the crime, holds a certain fascination for them which they are unable to resist, and, succumbing, leave themselves liable to detection."

"Criminals are like bad pennies — they always turn up."

"Do criminals leave some clue behind?"

"Yes—in almost every case, and what ever the nature of the clue may be, whether a woman's side comb, the laundry mark on some piece of wear, the apparel, finger prints on window sill or door, or what not—there will be something that will afford the police some information to start on."

"Not long ago in Brooklyn, a woman and her daughter were killed by an automobile. The detectives found several pieces of broken glass at the scene of the accident and, piecing them together, found them to be part of a broken headlight of the machine. They also found the broken section of the crank of a certain make of car, and with this to work upon visited garages until they located the car they wanted.

"In another case the defendant while committing a robbery struck the woman of the house with a bottle. By means of the finger print system, which nevertheless, the fugitive was apprehended by the police."

"In the famous paymaster holdups that occurred in Brooklyn a couple of years ago a straw hat lost by the chauffeur of the car, with the initials of the owner on the hatband, was the start of the cleaning up of the whole situation."

"Then there was the so-called 'barrel murder' in 1918. The body of the deceased was found wrapped in a bur-lap bag. It had been placed in a barrel containing oats. With this information the detectives were able to fix the site of the crime and finally to run down those responsible for the murder."

Miss McCormick and I went in to see District Attorney Harry E. Lewis to get his ideas about careless criminals.

"Ninety-five per cent of them leave traces behind," he declared. "There is always a clue, just how much of a clue depends on the investigators. It is surely there."

"There was the Florence Burns-Walter Brooks case. A broken sidecomb was our clue. The woman was brought to trial but acquitted."

"I believe many criminals give themselves away."

"Arson cases always seem to draw firebugs back to the scene of the crime. I do not believe they return in other cases—at least not to the actual scene of the deed."

"But there is a feature the firebugs neglect, it seems to me, in trying to set fire to things unsuccessfully. Many men practising arson spread oakum about the place because it burns slowly. But instead of opening a window to create a draft so that the fire will succeed, they leave things shut up tight. They feel that it would be a good thing to go back and see why the place hasn't burned up. Then they are caught."

"It is the exception to the rule when a murderer, or the man who commits a serious crime, escapes final detection."

NEWSPAPER MAN IS AUTHOR OF NEW CREED BASED ON THE BIBLE

Associated Press.

VICKSBURG, Miss., July 29.—A newspaper man, Charles W. Miller, city editor of the Herald here, has compiled "An American Creed," consisting of passages from the Old and New Testaments. The selections transposed and arranged in such a manner as to preserve the continuity of the Creed unbroken to the end, are said by Mr. Miller to contain "the wholesome truths handed down from the prophets, the Saviour and the apostles."

There are seven quotations from the Old Testament and twenty-one from the New Testament, making a total of more than 800 words in the Creed. It begins with the words of Timothy, "Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out." The second paragraph is introduced by a passage from Malachi, "Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us? Why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother by profaning the covenant of our Father?" The Creed closes with these words from Timothy, "Now unto the King Eternal, Immortal, Invisible, the only Wise God, be Honor and Glory for Ever and Ever."

W. F. Bond, state superintendent of education in Mississippi, writing to the compiler said: "This is a splendid Creed and we should like very much to have a copy in the hands of every school child in the state."

Mr. Miller, who has been a newspaper man more than thirty years, said: "In this age of Godless selfishness, the tendency of the times is running steadily and rapidly into a state of unrestricted license, regardless of a high standard of life. Something is needed to assist in turning the attention of old and young to their duty to God and their neighbors. The Holy Bible will give the correct answer to every conceivable question that can be framed by man. It is the rule and guide for humanity."

CANADA MUST HAVE THIRTY THOUSAND HANDS FOR HARVEST

By International News Service.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—Thirty thousand farm laborers will be necessary to harvest the crops of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, according to an estimate announced by J. A. Bowman, commissioner of colonization of Manitoba.

Officials of the prairie provinces, railway representatives and farmers recently held a harvest help conference in Winnipeg and asked for 9,000 men for Manitoba, 9,000 for Saskatchewan and 12,000 for Alberta.

Half of the harvest hands are expected to come from eastern Canada. Probably 7,000 or 8,000 will come from the United States and the remainder will be recruited in the towns and cities of western Canada. Several thousand farm hands usually follow the harvests northward from Oklahoma and Texas and wind up their season's campaign in western Canada, where the harvest starts about the time it ends in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana. Wages in western Canada will be $4 to $6 a day and may go higher. While the acreage under crop in the prairie provinces is slightly smaller than last year, the yield is expected to be much heavier.

Reduced rates have been made by the Canadian Pacific, Canadian National and Grand Trunk Pacific railways. Winnipeg will be the distributing center. Farms west from here will be one-half cent a mile. In view of the high wages no shortage of men is anticipated, though farmers in Manitoba already have begun to make applications for laborers.

ANOTHER RAILROAD PROJECT, THIS ONE TO FORT STOCKTON

Special to the News.

FORT STOCKTON, July 29.—Interest in a potential oil field about Fort Stockton has been whetted by persistent rumors to the effect that a new railroad leading off the Texas and Pacific and crossing the Orient at Fort Stockton is to be built to Ozona and Sonora, opening a vast new territory. The rumor is to the effect that capitalists who have become elated over the recent favorable geological reports of the Fort Stockton country are willing to take the initiative in opening up the new territory before an actual well is brought in.

FACTORIES IN WEST TEXAS WOULD HAVE AMPLE GOAL SUPPLY

Special to the News.

ABILENE, July 29.—Abundance of fuel now remote from transportation, but which will be developed in the next few years, holds a key to the early up-building of West Texas in an industrial way, according to the West Texas chamber of commerce.

Among the coal resources of West Texas which are not yet being exploited on a commercial scale are those located north of Big Springs, near Crystal Falls, Ellasville, Cisco, Ranger and many other points. Both hard coal and lignite are to be found in many parts of this section.

The attitude of West Texas is more favorable for manufacturing conditions than that of any other section so wonderfully blessed with raw materials. The labor situation is never so vexing as elsewhere. Such superior advantages have attracted the eyes of capitalists to the west. Just at this time representatives of cotton factories are visiting West Texas towns spying out the country as the first steps toward establishment of cotton mills. They are careful in statements, but enthusiastic over the prospects for building up a chain of cotton mills in the cotton belt of West Texas. It has been stated by some of these representatives that the cotton produced in Jones, Stephens, Fisher and Haskell counties is of a better grade in cotton fabrications than any other cotton in the nation. Another inducement for the erection of cotton mills is adequate water. Most of the West Texas towns in the cotton belt are providing themselves with sufficient water supplies for years to come. With the cheap fuel and cheap water and the numerous advantages which West Texas offers over all other regions, these cotton mill promoters are one in the opinion that the day is not far off when a mammoth chain of mills will stimulate immigration and development.

AMENDMENT OF THE INCOME TAX LAW AID SALES TEXAS LANDS

Special to the News.

STAMFORD, July 29.—A solution to the withholding of large bodies of land from the market, and, hence, from actual settlers, because of the imposition of the income tax on aggregate accumulative gains from such sales, is in a fair way to be reached through an amendment of a bill now pending, according to a letter from Senator Morris Sheppard to the West Texas chamber of commerce, which is seeking to aid settlement of West Texas land now held off the market because of the fear of the income tax levies.

The income tax as it now operates exacts a stipulated tax on all gains on land the year they are sold, although the gains themselves may have been

A Request

To insure The News' advertisers the best service—position, set-up and good-looking ads—we would request that all advertising be in The News office one day ahead of date of publication, as far as possible.

Going into the afternoon field, The News will have to have a "dead line" as to how late copy will be accepted for publication in the paper of current date. Copy for publication on same day it is given must be in The News office by 10 o'clock of that day.

Advertising has long been one of the principal assets in the success of any business—it has been likened to the merchant and his business as the rudder is to a ship—and is just as indispensable to the business man as a rudder is indispensable to a ship.

Advertising is not a hit and miss proposition; it should receive just as careful consideration as the buying of the merchandise; no matter how cheap you buy the best of merchandise, you will have to have publicity of some sort to dispose of it. And the best form of publicity for any merchant in Cisco is newspaper advertising.

Advertising to the Cisco merchant is vitally important at the present time because of the effort now being made to make this city larger and better. And if Cisco is going to be a larger and better city, advertising will play the most important part in this work.

Advertising in The News is not an experiment—it is an investment. The advertiser who uses space in The News consistently and persistently will soon notice the increase in business—and will know for a surety that the increase was the result of this advertising.

Plan your advertising campaigns ahead—if you are too busy to give it your full attention, just call for our Service Department and our representative will call and give you the benefit of his experience and knowledge.

THE GLOVE QUESTION

EVER since the war started good gloves have been going up in price so that the question of how to care for them is important. And every woman knows that to purchase poor gloves is a mistake.

Try following some of the simple suggestions here set down, and see that it will not be so difficult to keep your gloves looking fresh and clean.

Before putting on new gloves sprinkle talcum powder either into the gloves or over your hands, and be sure that your hands are perfectly dry. If the gloves are tight, warm them a little to expand them. After you have worn the gloves, fold them as they were folded when you bought them; that is, with the sides of the fingers doubled in lengthwise and creased flat and the thumbs folded over on the palms. When you are not wearing the gloves, keep them carefully folded in a glove box lined with soft white tissue paper, over which a little talcum powder has been sprinkled.

To Clean Your Gloves.

To clean gloves that fit you perfectly draw them on, sprinkle cleaning powder over them and rub your hands together as if you were washing them. To clean gloves that are a little too large or too small for you, lay them on a smooth, clean surface and rub them with a cleaning powder.

A good cleaning powder for white kid gloves or suede can be made by mixing equal parts of talcum powder and cream of tartar, or equal parts of French chalk and powdered alum. For dark-colored or light-colored gloves, Fuller's earth and cream of tartar makes a good cleanser.

Mending Gloves.

To mend your gloves properly you will need a number of very fine sewing needles, some medium and some extra fine milliners' needles, several pieces of skin and some fine cotton or silk thread. The thread and the glove skin must match the color of the gloves. Cotton thread is preferable to silk, because it will not cut so readily the glove skins; but if you can find the color that you need in silk only, use the silk. In repairing worn-out glove tips use the small sewing needles; in making invisible darns, the milliners' needles.

If the work is properly done, a glove should not show that it has been mended, but to do it properly it is necessary to copy carefully the stitch that was used in sewing the glove in the first place. An overcasting or a

Embroidery Designs for the Kiddies' New Summer Frocks

IT is about time to begin planning new dresses for the kiddie's Summer outfit. The dresses may be of white or colored material, or a combination of the two, with here and there an embroidered motif.

While each design on this page was planned for a certain dress, it is quite easy to change the design to suit one's taste.

Design No. 1.

This design is for the front of a round neck dress, and if the yoke is short it may be necessary to omit some of the flowers and buds in the center group, as shown in sketch B. If the design is to be used on a dress for a very small child and you find the pattern too wide, transfer the center group of flowers and omit the stems on either side and place the side group of flowers closer to the center.

When embroidering use outline stitch for single lines, French knots for the dots, and satin stitch for the dark section of the leaves, the tops of the buds and the curled-over sections of the flower petals. Use fine outline stitch for the large veins in the center of the leaves and single stitch for the tiny radiating veins.

Designs Nos. 2 and 3.

Both patterns may be applied to a dress in the sketch at the right, marked C. Use white material for the dress and pale yellow for the embroidered tabs, collar, cuffs and tie. If yellow is used, embroider the design entirely in light brown.

Green material may be used instead of yellow and the design should be embroidered entirely in white. Use satin stitch for the flowers, buds and roots, and outline stitch for the stems.

When working the leaves use satin stitch and work each leaf in two sections with the center vein as the dividing line. A very pretty dress may be made by using Design No. 2, as shown in the sketch marked D.

Designs Nos. 4, 5 and 6.

These three patterns may be applied to a dress similar to the one at the left. Design No. 4 is to be used on the bottom of the dress; No. 5 is for the sleeves and

No. 6 is for the collar and side panels.

When using 4 and 6, the flower motifs may be placed in each scallop, or if you prefer less work—in every other one. The scallop used on the sleeves contains no flowers, one large circle is used in each one.

When embroidering this dress use satin stitch for the leaves and flowers and outline stitch for the stems. Work the scallops in the usual fashion.

POMEGRANATE CUSHION.

buttonhole stitch makes a good copy of the machine stitching on most gloves. Sometimes two rows of running stitches can be used.

To mend a very small hole in a glove, turn the glove inside out and join the broken edges neatly; to mend a large hole, the edges of which are smooth, insert a patch. If the edges of the hole are very ragged, make an invisible darn. The best way to do that is to turn the glove inside out and thread with a long hair the finest milliners' needle that you have; red or white hair is the strongest kind.

Draw together the loose threads and the broken skin at the edges of the hole and baste them in place with tailor's basting stitches, setting the stitches far apart. Slip the needle into the inside surface of the glove about one-eighth of an inch from the hole.

SO few people have any idea what delicious desserts can be made from dates. A caramel pudding is particularly good, and not many cooks know how to make it. Melt a cup of sugar over the fire, until it is a pale yellow syrup, being very careful not to let it burn. Add a quart of milk. When the sugar is dissolved, add a half a cup of flour stirred in a cream with cold water. Cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, then add a half a package of dates cut into small pieces. Cover and let steam for 20 minutes. Flavor with vanilla. Serve with cream.

Dates and Cherries.

The combination flavor of dates and cherries is very pleasing. If you have a jar of cherries, save two cups of the juice. Add a cup of hot water, the juice of a lemon, enough sugar to sweeten the juice, and heat over the fire. When it is boiling pour it over two tablespoonfuls of gelatine dissolved in a little cold water. When it is just beginning to set stir in a heaping cup of stoned dates cut into pieces. Mold. When you wish to serve it turn on a glass dish and surround with whipped cream.

Date Meringue.

Two oranges, one pound of dates, two eggs, one pint of milk. Wash and stew dates, remove the stones, and when cold put them into a glass dish. Squeeze the juice from the oranges and strain it over the dates. Make a custard of the yolks of egg, flavored with some thinly-peeled orange rind. When cold pour over the dates. When quite cold beat up the whites of egg to a stiff froth, sweeten to taste and pile on the top of the custard.

Date Pie.

To make a date pie, line a deep plate with crust and fill with the following mixture: Cool a half a pound of dates mixture; Cook a half a pound of dates in a pint of milk in the double boiler for 20 minutes. Strain and rub through a sieve. Add two eggs, a pinch of salt and a few drops of vanilla. Bake like a custard pie.

Frozen Honey Custard.

To vary from the date desserts, there is always honey as a sweetener. A good frozen dessert is frozen honey custard. In preparing it, make a rich boiled custard from a pint of milk, three eggs, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of cornstarch and three tablespoonfuls of honey. Flavor with lemon or vanilla extract and fold in when cold a quarter-pint of double-cream whipped cold and sweetened with two additional tablespoonfuls of honey. Freeze slowly.

When washing windows, a few drops of vinegar in the water, and no soap will give a fine polish.

SHE WORE A WREATH OF ROSES.

SHALL we have the rose wreath of the '40s back again? There has never been a form of coiffure decoration which has so improved itself upon its own times as the wreath of roses. For have our bobbed heads or turbans ever been sung and sentimentalized over as have the wreaths of our grandmothers? Those roses are all faded now, and if we were to see them crowning the banded brows of their wearers or resting against their chignon nets we should probably see nothing whatever beautiful in them ourselves; but in those days they were romance incarnate, and even today there is still the echo of a thrill in thought of the old song which nearly immortalized them. We have worn, of course, numbers of small rose wreaths since those historic days; but the latest thing in hair decoration, which consists of a band of jeweled metal in front, catching a double row of large cream or pink roses behind, is, perhaps, the nearest approach to that old ideal that we have made so far.

To prevent the possibility of getting hold of the wrong medicine bottle, especially in the dark, glue a long narrow strip of sand paper on the side of all the bottles containing poison. The sensation when handling the bottle will arouse you to the impending danger.

When baking potatoes, grease the skins with pork or bacon fat and they will never be dry. They are delicious if one likes to eat the skins.

To prevent dust flying under doors newspapers on the other side of each into adjoining rooms, lay dampened door.

Taffeta Is a Favorite Material for Summer Wraps

WHAT shall I get for a wrap to wear during Summer evenings? This is a question that will be asked hundreds of times during the coming Summer, for the Summer wrap problem seems to be the hardest to solve. This season it should not be so difficult after one has been told that taffeta is a favorite material for evening wraps this season. Just how the taffeta should be handled is a matter for personal decision, but just how effectively it can be treated is demonstrated in this model of pink taffeta. Its lining, by the way, is quite as alluring as the outside, being of purple satin. A noticeable feature about this wrap is that while it has the loose lines of the cape, its kimono sleeves suggest a coat in spite of the fact that the sleeves are short. The bag effect at the bottom of the coat is an important style note. The crushed collar is an interesting detail, as is also the fact that the wrap is entirely self-trimmed.

AFTER THE ORIENTAL.

UNLESS one is famous or an authority on clothes, or else very contemptuous of public opinion, one doesn't, as a rule, go in for the bizarre in dress outside the boudoir. But here may a woman revel to her heart's content in the picturesque and the unusual.

Take the small matter of boudoir caps, for instance. There is scope aplenty for fancy in that item of the wardrobe "intime." Especially fanciful is the model illustrated. It is after the Oriental, too. Two colors of crepe georgette, amethyst and turquoise, and then the most exquisite of ecru lace wheels, make it a joy forever. Finally, there is a frill of the lace to frame the face of the wearer.

AFTER LOST LAURELS

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, two of England's foremost professional golfers, are in the United States again after having suffered defeat in 1913 here. They are after lost laurels and have begun a series of exhibition plays prior to participation in several of the big open tournaments of the country which are scheduled to take place soon. The bulky Ray, while hardly possessed of the same brand of poetic motion play of his colleague, Vardon, is nevertheless a golfer of the first water—naturally, being one of England's best, and his drives are voted for distance and accuracy.

Vardon, the more careful player of the two, yet not always as triumphant, is most feared by American golfers who are entered in the open championships of the United States. Both Vardon and Ray in the recent professional matches in England vanquished their American star rivals without a great deal of difficulty, and back in their old-time stride once more, feel confident that they will return to England more fortunate than in 1913.

Vardon, who is known as the world's premier professional golfer, and Ray were defeated in 1913 by Francis Ouimet, the American star, after a sensational play-off at Brookline, Mass. The contest was for the national open title and, thanks to Ouimet, the crown remained on this side. Vardon won the American open championship in 1900 at Wheaton, Ill.

The first big tournament in which the English pros will be seen in action will be the Western Open Championship play at Chicago, August 4 to 6, inclusive. They will try for laurels in a professional competition at Toledo, August 7, and the National Open Championship play, which will be decided on the links of the Inverness club, near Toledo, August 10 to 13.

CARSON'S MEN WIN SECOND GAME FROM GORMAN WEDNESDAY

"Sneezer" Kotzelnick Pitches Cisco to Victory and First Place With One Exception Allows Nothing But Weakest Out of Scratch Hits—Five Out of Seven at Home.

(By John L. Kelly)

Holding "Pop-Boys" Buddies to seven weak scratch hits, while his teammates pounded McQueen freely, Kotzelnick pitched Cisco to victory over Gorman Wednesday, making it two straight wins for the Scouts in the two-game series. It was a good day for the star left-hander. His fast scoop and lightning like throw to the plate of Pemberton's bunt on an attempted squeeze play caught Sturdy up in the seventh, stopping what might have been a rally. His line drive through the pitcher's box in the second scored Thrash for the first run of the game, which looked especially good as Gorman was one run to the good at the time. He kept them all hugging the bases, catching Hamilton off first in the third inning when the latter looked the other way for a fraction of a second.

Gorman sent three men up and they went down in quick order in the first. In Cisco's half, after two were down, King singled through second. Griesenbeck followed with a Texas League over the same place, but hopes for a run were drowned when Fuller grounded to short, forcing Tim at second for the third out.

The Buddies scored in the second on Gressett's infield hit, Ershaw's sacrifice, Sturdy's bingle and H. Baldridge's clean hit over first. Pemberton drove a sacrifice fly to Thrash and Sturdy would have scored from third had he not been too anxious to leave the base, instead of being called out on "short time," retiring the side.

Cisco overcame the lead in the last half. Thrash flew to H. Baldridge, in right field, and was safe at second when Baldridge let it slip through his hands. Anderson caught the infield playing for a bunt on the third base line and crossed them up by laying it down to the left of the pitcher, sending Thrash to third when he was safe at first. Kotzelnick then drove a hot one through the pitcher's box, scoring Thrash, and Anderson crossed the plate for the second run when Beard knocked a long sacrifice fly to center.

Gorman was never close to scoring at any other time during the game, except in the seventh, when Sturdy hit to center field. Whitney followed with a safe one to the same place, sending Sturdy to third. Pemberton, next up, laid down a perfect bunt in front of the plate in an attempted squeeze that would have sent Sturdy across for a run that would have tied the score had not Kotzelnick scooped the ball up and threw it home, all in one motion, catching the runner out in one of the prettiest plays of the season.

The Scouts put another across in the sixth. Fuller hit for two sacks after one was down, and his cleverly executed steal of third caused McQueen to get excited and throw the ball ten feet over the catcher's head, allowing Fuller to score. The fourth run was made in the seventh on Johnson's single, Kotzelnick's sacrifice and Beard's two bagger.

HIGH VOLTAGE SHOOK HIM UP, NEVER HURT

By International News Service.

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—Seventeen hundred volts of electricity are easily sufficient to cause instant death, but John Stapleton, a lineman had sixty-six hundred volts pass through his body here the other day and still lives to tell about his experience. Furthermore, he expects to keep on living.

Stapleton received the "shock" at the top of a pole, where he was working on a damaged cable. Knocked from his perch by the force of the "juice," he seized a guy wire and slid to the ground. Aside from a few bruises Stapleton was uninjured.

"SCHOONER" WAS AMPLE EVIDENCE OF ITS AGE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A postcard mailed in Wildwood, N. J., on August 7, 1907, was thirteen years reaching its destination in Philadelphia, and the Police of the Eighteenth District there have asked the Post Office Department to explain.

The card, sent by an anonymous person, is addressed to Thomas Smith, an Eighteenth District policeman who died about five years ago. It bears the picture of a girl sitting on a huge schooner of beer.

TO EXTEND AIR MAIL SERVICE OF COUNTRY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Large extensions of the aerial mail service have been decided upon by the Post Office Department, it was announced, and soon airplane companies throughout the country will be asked to submit bids for the establishment and operation of these lines. The "main line" between New York and San Francisco, however, will be operated by the government, it was stated. The present plans contemplate extension of the New York-Washington air route to the leading cities of the South.

NO KISSING, SAYS JUDGE WHO BELIEVES IN SIGNS

By International News Service.

LINCOLN, Ill., July 29.—If you enter Judge Rudolph's court here you will find a sign reading: "Kissing forbidden in these precincts." In other words, osculation is taboo in Judge Rudolph's court. The judge, 76 years old, is an exception to the rule "the older they get the gayer they are." He objects to being kissed. It all came about this way. Two gypsy women, arrested on a vagrancy charge, acquitted in court, were so overcome with gratitude they insisted on showering him with kisses for his fairness. But thinking it over the next day and evidently displeased with the sensation, Judge Rudolph posted the sign that conclusively indicated where he stands on the issue.

BRITISH WORKED UP OVER PROSPECTS OF MERCHANT MARINE

Associated Press.

LONDON, July 29.—The Jones bill, characterized as "America's bid for shipping supremacy," is denounced by the shipping expert of the Sunday Observer as "retaliatory and discriminatory."

He declares that the war has taught other nations the importance of owning a mercantile marine and that jealousy has been aroused throughout the world by the "ability and magnificence" of the British mercantile establishment. "In two countries," he asserts, "in particular, is a feeling of most bitter jealousy against our mercantile marine. These two countries are France and the United States."

The writer declares that there is nothing to which foreigners can object in the principal provisions of the Jones bill insofar as it is intended to co-ordinate the transport resources of the United States whether ocean, coastwise or inland shipping, railways, ports and docks so as to form one immense undertaking to force American export and import trade into the holds of American ships.

He says, however, that some of the clauses of the bill were intended to be discriminatory against Great Britain and Japan. Among these he mentions those which authorize preferential treatment to American vessels in American ports. The insurance provisions of the bill, he says, impose the most drastic forms of returns, "which are based absolutely upon the methods of the German insurance companies, against which America herself protested so bitterly previous to her entry into the war. These have been devised admittedly for the purpose of learning every iota of business transacted by foreign companies with a view to passing the same on to American concerns. The object of course is that having this information, the government may assist the American companies entirely to oust British insurance."

"In the same vein is the clause which waives in favor of American insurance companies the Sherman anti-trust law. This is entirely on a par with the methods adopted by the shipping board during the war when it transpired the confidential information given to the shipping board solely for the purpose of the war was being used to enable American shipping to defeat British shipping after the war."

"We in this country now know that we are to be faced with the most bitter competition for the supremacy of the seas which we have ever had to meet. We are in for a big fight, but before America can win the fight she must create a national feeling for a mercantile marine. She must prepare to pay considerably higher freight and insurance rates on all her imports and exports and she must be willing to forego profits on her shipping enterprises for many years. The person who is most willing to feel the pinch of American ambitions will be the American exporter."

NEWPORT, July 29.—Memories of crinoline days were brought back to a government inspector when he saw on a train three Montreal girls with prominent bustles. In fact, they were so prominent that he called a matron and had the young women searched. Lo, the bustles were bottles of "hooch." They were released on bail on the charge of smuggling liquor into the United States.

PASTOR RAISED DOGS IN CHURCH IS FINED

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Rev. Dr. John Budda, colored, was held in $200 bail when arraigned in Flatbush court, Brooklyn. He was ousted by the board of trustees of the Jones African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, of which he was pastor, because the board objected to his raising dogs on the church premises.

The pastor came back to the church and, it is alleged, gained entrance by breaking locks on the door. He has been there ever since.

By International News Service.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 29.—Recalling the days of the distant past Charles Combs, who has as many ups and downs as anybody in Springfield as elevator man at the courthouse here said.

"Was a time when we used to run this old cage down to the basement. But not any more. The hooch that was confiscated by local authorities from bootleggers and stored down there is all gone. But I remember when they raided the Windsor Hotel just after Springfield went dry. I went down to the cellar next morning and a man was hopping around on the floor. He looked at me and said: 'Where's the cat now? Bring him on.'"

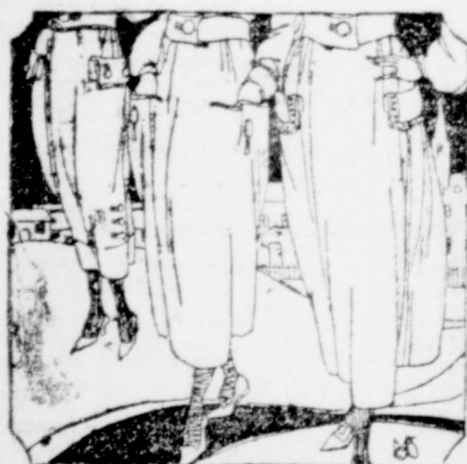

"Yep them were the good old days."
