Attend Funeral of Relative Monday

Mrs. Cora Brummett, a cousin of Mrs. L. W. Skiles and a sister-in-law of Mrs. Algie Skiles, was buried yesterday afternoon at Scranton, Mo. She was a victim of drowning near her home in the family community Sunday morning. Services were conducted by the Rev. G. W. Parks, of Roscoe, a former pastor. Those attending the services were Mrs. Algie Skiles, Mrs. and Mrs. Algie Skiles, Rev. E. S. James, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Skiles and children, Mrs. L. W. Skiles, Mrs. Maggie Franks and W. F. Walker. Mrs. Brummett is survived by her husband, J. H. (Jim) Brummett and two children.

HOOVER RECORD IS LAUDED BY REPUBLICANS

MINERAL WELLS, May 24.—Texas is a two-party state, declared Hugh S. Green, El Paso attorney, in delivering the keynote address of the republican state convention here today. He urged continued support of the Hoover administration. "We won under our great leader in 1928 and we will repeat this year, if republican enthusiasm continues," said Green. John Grant, Houston candidate for governor, said that the republican party must save America. He lauded the record of President Herbert Hoover and described the democratic party as no longer a party. Eugene Nolte, Seguin, called the meeting to order. John C. Miller, city attorney, welcomed the delegates to Mineral Wells and C. K. McDowell, Del Rio, responded. There was much cheering as McDowell predicted another national triumph for the republican party. A large picture of President Herbert Hoover stood on the platform of the daily decorated hall where the republican state convention met, and frequent gestures of speakers towards it were cheered by the 500 delegates.

"Lady Lindbergh" Makes Good

NATION'S TAX BILL COULD BE HALVED, SAYS

The $12,800,000,000 tax bill of the United States could reasonably be reduced by one-half without stopping any necessary function of government, says Dr. E. V. Wilcox, writing in the June Country Gentleman. Dr. Wilcox was connected in various capacities with the United States Department of Agriculture for twenty years. Since 1919 he has visited almost every country in the world and every state in the union as a special writer for the publication in which his article appears. "What Price Asininity?" he asks, in an article of the same name, in which he comments on some of the humorous aspects of the present tax dilemma and seriously pleads for the return of common sense in curbing public expenditure. This can only be brought about, Dr. Wilcox writes, by the taxpayer maintaining "relentless pressure" on the official spenders. Our Revolutionary fathers were practical and hard-headed, the writer asserts, but since those days, we, as a nation, have become "the universal Don Quixote," trying to right all the wrongs in creation. "This itching desire to reform everything and everybody led us into serious difficulties in 1917," he continues, pointing out that in addition to the great human sacrifice, the World War and its aftermath cost us twenty-four billion dollars.

Domestic Affairs

It might perhaps be better, he suggests, if we looked after our domestic affairs more carefully, especially when the costs of governments, Federal, state and local, are mounting yearly and at the same time, the governments are running farther and farther into debt. "Neither the nation, the state, the counties, nor the people have learned to live within their income," he claims. "Every day is tax day for something," Dr. Wilcox writes, commenting that it is "no wonder we associate death and taxes as the twin inevitable visitors." As examples, he

LONDON, May 24.—Amelia Earhart today achieved an honor many American girls have sought, a conference with the Prince of Wales. The American woman, who flew across the Atlantic in record time last week, was received at the prince's residence, St. James palace, and for 30 minutes discussed her flight with the British heir.

Armstrong Attends State Convention

W. J. Armstrong left yesterday to attend the state democratic convention which opened this morning at Houston. Mr. Armstrong is one of the delegates chosen at the Eastland county convention recently. There will be a program.

CANNERY TO BE OPENED WEDNESDAY

The Cisco community cannery, sponsored by the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, will open to the public Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. E. M.ONEY, of Cisco, an experienced canner trained under Miss Ruth Ramsey, home demonstration agent, will be in charge. While the purpose of the cannery is to give everyone with vegetables and meats to reserve an opportunity to can these products themselves, the cannery will do custom work where required, a small charge to be made for the services of Mrs.ONEY. Patrons are to furnish their own cans and will pay a nominal fee per can to cover expenses of operation. This fee will be slight, from one-fourth to two cents, depending upon the amount of work that Mrs.ONEY will be required to do. The intent of the agricultural committee in establishing this cannery is to educate the public in the economy and methods of home canning as well as to provide equipment that the average housewife cannot afford, or at least does not have. Unless those patronizing the cannery assist in the canning process, said E. H. Varnell, agricultural secretary of the chamber of commerce, the value of the institution will be minimized. He urged that those taking advantage of the facilities provided do most of the work themselves not only for the saving to be effected but for the educational value. It will be necessary that those making use of the cannery make arrangements for time in advance with Mrs.ONEY. She will have a schedule book in which appointments will be registered.

Well Pleased. R. L. Poe, chairman of the agricultural committee, who has worked earnestly for the institution, was pleased with the results that have been obtained so far. In Mrs.ONEY, he pointed out, a capable and experienced manager has been obtained who understands proper methods and will prove of great assistance to those using the institution. The equipment provided includes two medium sized pressure cookers, holding 30 No. 3 cans; 50 No. 2 cans and 70 No. 1 cans each. These cookers have been arranged upon stoves on either side of a large water tank into which the crates of cans, hot from the cooker can be lowered for cooling. A crane running over this equipment enables the operator to lift the stacks of cans and the cookers about with ease. A sepio-seive for chopping and seeding fruits and vegetables; a corn cutter, bean chopper, pea huller and other items to speed up the work of vegetable canning have been installed. A meat block with necessary implements for cutting meats is among the equipment. Large tubs with plumbing to permit their being drained or filled easily have been installed together with tables, shelving and a variety of other equipment essential or complementary to the cannery.

Job Nearly Done

Despite trouble, with labor unions, contractors, and the usual multitude of worries over petty details, Williams believes his job is nearing completion. "When the convention opens, it will be in the finest, most attractively decorated auditorium that has ever housed a national convention," he predicted. "There isn't a pillar anywhere to obstruct the view. Because the interior is larger, we had to do more decorating than ever before. We bought 250,000 yards of bunting." He chuckled. "No, we won't tear it down when we finish. I guess the democrats will use our bunting, too." Williams told of his brushes with the Chicago labor unions. "The unions' old-time building operations in Chicago," he said, "it isn't a question of trucking to them. It's a question of working things out with them so you can get any work done. "One non-union decorator was put on the job. All the other men walked out. The whole project was held up until we could get hold of the union leaders and smooth things over."

ENDORSEMENT DECLINED.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The navy and war department today declined to endorse the Britten bill for military control of Hawaii at a meeting before the house territories committee.

Doctors Baffled at Woman Hiccups for Year

A year ago last April Mrs. Ed Price, 30, of Russellville, Ark., started to hiccup and has been shaken by incessant hiccups ever since. Mrs. Price, left, has lost 60 pounds during the attack but maintains her cheerfulness. With her nurse, Lavada Lewis, right, she handles a huge correspondence from all over the country in which well-wishers offer cures ranging from prune juice to dynamite.

Production of Republican Political Show Revealed as Great Undertaking

CHICAGO, May 24.—Production of a big political show like the Republican National convention is a tremendous job. Ralph E. Williams of Portland, Ore., chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Republican convention, big and genial, is used to doing the arranging for conventions. He has been on the arrangements committee of five of them. He has borne the brunt of the task this year. Last March 12 he moved into the Congress hotel, established working quarters and went to work. He will be about as busy as one man can be until the first crack of the gavel in the Stadium next June 14. By a quirk of circumstances, Williams is doing the job for the democrats, too. Since their convention starts in the stadium June 27, they will use the platform, seating arrangement, press facilities radio set, up and probably even the decorations that Williams has worked out for the republicans. Job Nearly Done

Alternates' Seats

Planking those seats and filling the semi-circular ends of the oval, 1,156 seats for alternates. Only convention officials, delegates, alternates, press writers, some 800 pages and assistant sergeants at arms, and radio and motion and sound picture workers will be admitted to the first floor. They will all enter by one door and must present admission cards and show badges. On the mezzanine tier and in the low balconies will be places for 20,000 spectators, 14,374 in the bright red permanent seats and the remainder in seats especially installed for the convention. No committee meetings will be held at the Stadium because there are no rooms of adequate size. The committees will all meet in rooms on the mezzanine floor of the Congress Hotel. The whole east wing of that floor has been reserved as official Republican headquarters. The committee on arrangements made no attempt to allocate state delegations to hotels. Each state delegation will choose its own hotel quarters. "The Association of Commerce assured us there were 18,000 hotel rooms inside the loop and as many more within a short distance outside it," Williams said. "So we decided to let the state delegations find their own quarters. It works out easier that way and everybody is better satisfied."

Bible School Will Open Tomorrow

The Daily Vacation Bible school at the First Presbyterian church will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the church to last for a fortnight. Sessions of the school will be held each week-day morning from 9 to 12. Children of ages from 4 through 11 are invited to join the school, and those participating are expected to enroll not later than tomorrow.

QUADRUPLE TULIP.

BETTENDORF, Ia., May 24.—Clarence P. Brown raised a quadruple tulip in his garden this year. The flower had four blossoms on one stalk.

GARNER GROUP VICTORIOUS OVER 'WETS'

HOUSTON, May 24.—Supporters of John N. Garner and silence on prohibition won their first test of strength with repeal advocates at the state democratic convention today when Representative Sam Rayburn, of Bonham, was named temporary chairman over Charles I. Francis, of Wichita Falls. With the vote on roll call by counties 659 to 245 against him, Francis, who had been backed by the wet liberal element, went before the microphone and withdrew his name, pledging his support to Garner. The convention then recessed until 3 p. m.

"SHOWDOWN" COMES EARLY.

HOUSTON, May 24.—The showdown on prohibition came early in the state democratic convention here today when the names of Rep. Sam Rayburn and Charles I. Francis, of Wichita Falls, were presented to the delegates as candidates for temporary chairman. Rayburn's name was presented as a recommendation of the state executive committee and Francis' name as an amendment to the recommendation. State Sen. W. K. Hopkins, Gonzales, in a speech that was cheered to the rafters, placed Francis' name in nomination. It had been decided to nominate Hopkins for temporary chairman but his wet liberal sponsors changed their plans at the last minute. The showdown came on a motion by Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth, to table Hopkins' amendment. A roll call of counties was demanded and voting began immediately. The youthful Gonzales legislator attacked the action of the state executive committee and Garner leaders as being "machine politics designed to throttle any expression of the delegates and further intended to make Rayburn all powerful in the national delegation." State Sen. Walter Woodward, of Coleman, attempted to answer Hopkins' plea for the election of Francis, but was met with a storm of boos and hisses that delayed his speech several minutes. Time and again some delegates shouted: "Are you wet or are you dry?" Woodward ignored the question as long as he could. Finally obviously embarrassed, he shouted: "Dry as a bone."

3 INDICTED IN THEFT OF OIL ARE ARRESTED

LONGVIEW, May 24.—Three of the 11 oil workers named by the Gregg county grand jury May 16 in 158 oil theft indictments were arrested today and made bonds totaling $83,250, or $750 in each case. Those arrested were Ralph Durrett, Jacksonville, loading rack worker, charged in 25 cases; Andy Anderson, named in 20 cases, and Wesley Garrett, charged in 26 cases. Chief Deputy Sheriff Will Hayes said he expected his deputies to arrest five of the remaining eight men by night. The eleven indictments were the second group to be returned in the oil theft investigation of civil and military authorities. Eighteen men were named in 213 indictments returned April 30.

ADOPTS THREE KITTENS.

CUERO, Tex., May 24.—A Rhode Island Red hen that lost her ten baby chicks has adopted three kittens in the barnyard of Dr. E. H. Putnam, here. With feathers ruffled, she abandons the nest at dinner time, returning as soon as the mother cat has left.

ANOTHER CALL FOR TAX REDUCTION.

A demand for reduced taxes and strict governmental economy was made by all the speakers addressing the 20th annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce in session in the city of San Francisco. Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railway, was one of the speakers. He predicts a revolt by railroads against unfair government regulation. He said competition on inland waterways, intercoastal steamship lines, motor buses and trucks had the advantage in avoiding governmental interference. With these competitive services subsidized in reality or in effect and losing money they were forcing the railroads to take disastrous losses while they were running themselves. The rail executive pleaded for uniform regulation of transportation services of all types.

A reminder that the interstate commerce commission has recommended to the congress legislation for the regulation of all transportation carriers on the national highways as well as on the steel rail. Perhaps the recommendation will be crystallized into law by the congress in a late fall session. Why a summer recess of the congress? Why a summer recess of courts the nation over with clogged dockets and anxious litigants facing the courts?

GEORGE C. BUTTE GIVEN A PROMOTION.

President Hoover appointed George C. Butte of Texas to be associate justice of the supreme court of the Philippine islands. He is a former professor of law and dean at the University of Texas. He is widely known for his work in Porto Rico as well as the Philippines. In 1924 he was the republican nominee for governor and gave Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson a race that was a race around the political track. It will be recalled that many democrats bolted their party nominee that year to vote for Dr. Butte. Mrs. Ferguson won. Butte has been in high favor with republican administrations ever since. He would have made a splendid governor-general of the Philippines but young Teddy Roosevelt was given the place. Are Texans in the picture? More and more all the time.

NEWTON D. BAKER HANDS OUT ADVICE.

Newton D. Baker has advised the American people to follow their leader. Well, uncover the Moses. Hoover isn't leading. He has an opposition senate and a rebel house on his hands. Majority Leader Jim Watson and Minority Leader Joseph Taylor Robinson of the senate are not leading. They are talking—buck passing, if you will. A rebel house coalition tosses aside the speaker regardless of advice and tells Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey and Minority Leader Snell of New York where to head in. This same rebel house tears to tatters the recommendation of Chairman Crisp and the house ways and means committee. Where is the modern Grover Cleveland? Where is the modern Theodore Roosevelt? Where is the modern Woodrow Wilson? Newton D. Baker should be more specific. He should name the leader who is to take over and lead the Moses-Mussolini army of leaderless people.

CHMN. RASKOB AND HIS RICH PROFITS.

National Chairman John J. Raskob and his associates are charged with having engineered a little movement in the street called Wall. Chairman Raskob is a keenminded individual. He must know how to play the game. His profits in a single week amounted to $281,000. Now if he will pull another deal of like magnitude with the profits as rich as the first plunge he will be in a position to finance the national committee until the flag shall fall on the work of the Chicago convention. There are millions of so-called gamblers in America. Before the crash came they were found on the ranches of the West and in all the cities and towns and hamlets and mining centers of the American world. Why, the lumberjacks in the tall timber districts of America played the game to the limit until the "margins" were gone. This is a gambling nation or at least it was a gambling nation until millions had their pocketbooks deflated and their fingers scorched.

HOUSE REBELS WIN ANOTHER VICTORY.

There is a coalition which is interesting to the house leaders as well as the American people. It is made up of republicans, Tammany congressmen and a large group of rebel democrats. For the first time this session the coalition brushed aside its appropriations committee and passed the war department supply bill carrying $5,791,785 more than the committee had recommended. Changes made would permit the holding of reserve officers' training corps and citizens' military training camps for the next fiscal year. They likewise would let the reserve officers draw pay even though they are on active duty less than the time originally specified. As for the completed bill hammered into shape by the house coalition, it would force retirement of 2000 old officers. There is a leaderless senate; there is a leaderless house; there is a leaderless chief magistrate. All this results in a leaderless people. Perhaps it is time to throw into discard the old party trademarks.

HUGE CREDITS FOR RECONSTRUCTION.

It has come to pass that 12 leaders of industry and finance, headed by Owen D. Young, have locked arms with the officials of the federal reserve system, "in their aggressive campaign to pump that powerful elixir, credit, into the veins of business." Governor George L. Harrison of the federal reserve bank of New York has called together this committee which will invent methods or means of putting "idle dollars to work to make jobs for idle hands." It is said that the 12 industrial leaders are the heads of banking and industrial enterprises listing aggregate resources and assets in excess of $15,000,000,000 and is described by the leading newspapers of the East as one of the most powerful groups that could be assembled. There is no Moses at the head of the federal government. There is no mighty magician who with a sweep of his wand can create wealth out of the winds of the heavens. It is for the leaders of finance and commerce and industry to blaze the trail. Will they do it?

"Fence-Jumping" Tryouts for Games Going in Washington

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Governor R. S. Sterling, announcing his campaign for re-election, deserts his former platform principle of a statewide bond issue for highway construction and relief of over-bonded counties, and substitutes therefor the principle of the Brooks bill and kindred measures which would segregate a portion of the current gasoline tax for relief of counties heavily obligated for the construction of state highways. There has been some rather sharp criticism of the governor's change of face in this matter, this criticism coming from quarters strongly entrenched in state bond issue sentiment, whose support of Sterling was based primarily upon his championship of this cause. He has been charged with a lack of consistency and a political variegation which cause his supporters much uncertainty. Whether or not this may be true there is another side to the matter and in all fairness to the governor we should give him at least credit for recommitting his political ground. The relief of over-bonded counties is at this time the prime issue in any program of legislation dealing with state highway bonds or the reallocation of revenues from state gasoline taxes. The ideal of a great system of correlated highways—the principle object underlying the state bond issue—is subordinate, under the present pressing economic conditions, to the ideal of lifting from the shoulders of weighted counties the burdens of amortizing issues of public securities whose proceeds have gone into road systems over which the counties have surrendered all control. The bond issue, it is true, would accomplish this purpose while providing additional funds with which to prosecute a great and immediate program of highway equipment. The bond issue, no doubt, is a program dear to the heart of its proponents but it doesn't take a smart man to realize that a bond issue would be the last thing that the people of Texas in times such as this would vote upon themselves. Furthermore the issue would require a constitutional amendment and by the time such a formality has been gone through—if successful at all—the relief that it would provide would come too late to be of any benefit to the counties needing it. Since, therefore, county relief is the paramount and pressing issue, idealism must give way to a compromise upon pertinent facts and the road of actuality followed even at a sacrifice of some of those cherished ambitions which were inculcated under more auspicious conditions. Sterling, his action indicates, saw that he was facing a blank wall, and that, if his administration would be of any immediate benefit to the counties affected, it was necessary that he adopt a program with which the public mind is more in sympathy. It does not mean, as I see it, that the idea of a statewide bond issue has been abandoned. On the contrary there is the probability that by transferring county obligations to state shoulder through allocation of one cent of the gasoline tax to the payment of principal and interest on these debts, the way will have been more effectively prepared for such an issue. Citizens of the counties relieved of the levies for paying their road not decorated with the stamp of public approval when the voters of the state chose him a couple of years ago in preference to Fergusonism. It is a pity that he could not have recognized this when the last legislature was in session.

Allotment of a portion of gasoline tax revenues to meet county bond obligations is the shortest and quickest way to the needed relief.

After a long search I have finally located Judge Eugene Lankford. When the Dallas delegation was here I sought him to deliver the address of welcome. Judge Lankford comes from the virile state of Arkansas where politics are as hard as hickory nuts and orators know their adjectives. He knows how to make a speech and I had a fishhook out for him. But the door of his office was locked and a call to his home developed that he was still in his office. I concluded that he had simply hibernated himself and essayed the speech myself. The other day, wandering about in the corridors on the fourth floor of the Cisco Banking company

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—In all your born days you never saw so many rapid and well-turned flip-flops as you have been seeing these last few months among the more distinguished members of the politicians' union. Four years ago the bolters had a thriving summer, but they were leaping from the party folds only to back another presidential candidate. Now it's the convictions of a lifetime that are being tossed overboard. Beliefs long cherished are dumped without ceremony. Arguments that have carried men to victory through innumerable campaigns are tossed out the window. Principles for which politicians professed themselves willing to die find their adherents turning on them viciously and kicking them all over the place.

Yelps and Hosannas THE air is heavily laden with a mingling of yelps from those faithful ones who still stand by the economic, social or political beliefs deserted by the flip-flopers and of hosannas from those eagerly welcoming the many converts into their various new stalls. The wave of desertions goes back at least to the time the Democratic leaders of the House went into a huddle and decided to forget their previous beliefs and frame up a general sales tax. Whereupon the House, which had subserviently obeyed its leaders for years, turned on them and ditched them. Democrats who had been howling at high tariffs proceeded to insert new, higher tariffs into the tax bill.

That Wet-Dry Fence THE fence which separates the wets and dries is cluttered with politicians and other public men who are either in the act of clambering over or are struggling for dear life to keep perched there awhile. Even some of the professional dry leaders have felt impelled to announce that they favor "re-submission," which doesn't mean much when they detail their proposals. Excluding the paid dries, however, the list of prominent dries who are turning wet or moist looks more and more like the Manhattan telephone directory.

Ex-Red Baiters ANOTHER impressive list is that of the gents in public life who now favor American recognition of Soviet Russia. Quite a few of them, in their time, have bawled and bellowed with the most rabid Red baiters. It's only lately, since the contention that we should maintain a large trade with Russia has had a hearing, that they have revised their opinions. Few developments have surprised more political observers lately than the extraordinary utterances of Mr. Owen D. Young. Young has always been associated with huge corporations and, in the popular mind, with the trend of reactionary political and economic thought attributed to the bankers, Wall Street and big business.

Political Gymnastics? YET here is Young supporting the equalization fee for farm relief and the appropriation of public funds and issuing of billions in bonds for unemployment relief. He takes more radical positions than Governor Franklin Roosevelt, the darling of the Progressives. He may not be doing a flip-flop, but the act impresses many folks as an astonishing demonstration of political gymnastics.

Hoover's "Me, Too" WHICH leads us to the most amazing spectacle of all—the concerted leap of the administration and the conservative Democratic leadership toward the Progressive position on unemployment relief. Some of the most important Republican newspapers will never get over it.

The Democrats beat the administration to the jump and the administration promptly proceeded to pan them, almost immediately to find Mr. Hoover letting it be known that he had had virtually the same thing in mind. When you recall that only four or five months ago the administration and conservative Democratic forces were trying to outdo each other in branding such proposals as "communistic," "destructive to our ideals and institutions" and "playing politics with human misery" you realize what a flop it really is.

The 1932 flip-flopping, probably, has only begun. And it ought to be a great comfort to those cynics who always believed that politicians were just a bunch of old fossils, immovably set in their ways.

building, I glanced carelessly at a brand new legend inscribed upon a frosted panel. "Eugene Lankford, Attorney at Law." And through the open door I caught a glimpse of his grizzled head bent earnestly over a typewriter. He had moved over a couple of stories in the architectural scale and was ensconced in a bright, attractive suite of two rooms.

"Quieter, cleaner and a more pleasant place to work," he explained. And, indeed, he does have a nice place. Those of you who have wondered where he disappeared to will find him there.

"An ideal condition but darned if I like it," is H. S. Stubblefield's opinion of the present newsless, crimeless, moneyless days. Mr. Stubblefield presides at the sergeant's desk at the city police department in the city hall. No news to wonder about, no crime to worry about, no money to develop high blood pressure. Just ease and quiet and the somnolence of a pleasant afternoon made to order for fishing. "I've been used to working," said Henry, dolefully, "and I don't know whether I'm going to be able to stand this or not."

Did You Ever Stop to Think? By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

William C. Deming, publisher of the Cheyenne (Wyo.) Tribune-Leader, says:

That advertising is the most potent influence in the economic world today. Cost of advertising is nil when considered in terms of increased production and greater consumption. Reduction in overhead expense brought about by the results of advertising more than offsets the expenditure incident with placing advertising in the newspapers of the nation. Increased production saves money.

for the manufacturer on every unit produced. Greater sales save money for the retailer on every item he sells. The two combined save money for the consumer who pays less for the article purchased. Newspaper advertising is inestimable in value in the process of making a worthy article a byword in the American home. "Household necessities" are made that way by judicious advertising.

"Reading ads" is a popular past-time in the modern home today because experience has demonstrated that along this course lies thrift, dear to the heart of the housewife and the gateway to increased earning power.

"Advertising news" is scanned with as much interest by the reader as any other portion of the newspaper. "Saving" the subscription price of the home town newspaper by refusing to allow the paper to be delivered to the home with its countless opportunities for real savings presented in the ads, is a far more expensive procedure in the final summing up than the small cost of "taking the paper."

Advertising is the life blood of business. Without it commerce would shrivel and waste away. Success in the business world today must be attributed to advertising. No other factor is able to produce the results.

Demand is created by intelligent advertising. The voice of advertising is the voice of increased demand, increased production and sale. The circle of advertising may be described as greater demand, greater production, greater sale, decreased cost, increased consumption and so on ad infinitum.

HANOVER, N. H., May 24.—Dartmouth college now boasts a mural by the noted Mexican artist, Jose Clemente Orozco, who recently came here to demonstrate the art of fresco painting. The only other mural of this sort in possession of a college in the United States is the monumental Prometheus fresco which Orozco executed at Pomona college, Claremont, Cal.

CISCO DAILY NEWS

the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, is in love with Bob Dunbar, son of a millionaire, although she is engaged to Ernest Heath, her former employer. She believes Bob is engaged to Denise Ackroyd, society girl. Ben Lanpman, former admiral of Susan's, shoots at Heath and wounds himself. After his recovery Heath urges an early wedding. He arranges for Susan's aunt who has been ill to go south. Jack Waring advises Susan not to go through with the marriage, stressing the difference between her age and Heath's. At a masked ball Susan meets Bob and the old love for him flares up again. Denise intervenes. Bob finds Susan at her home and urges her to elope with him. Heath overhears the conversation. He writes a letter asking her to release him from the engagement. Susan finds Bob just as he is about to board a train for New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

The elder Dunbar glared at his son. "What's that you're saying?" he demanded. "I can't seem to get what you're driving at. I told you, sir, I expect to be married next week."

"Hah!" The veins stood out alarmingly on the forehead of the man in the swivel chair. "You're trying to tell me — you have the face to announce that you're marrying a nobody. You know very well it's been understood you're to marry Denise."

Bob shrugged his shoulders. "That's just it," he said. "His father rapped out. 'What's that you're saying? You're talking rot this morning.'"

Bob tried patiently to explain. "You talked me into that engagement. You and mother — everybody."

"I suppose you don't know your own mind, hey? I must say, young man, I think you're behaving in a devilish bad fashion. First you give us to understand that you want to marry Denise. Then you come around with a cock and bull story about a girl nobody knows. Someone you picked up God knows where!"

Bob gripped his hands against the back of the chair until the knuckles stood out. "I'll have to ask you to take that back," he said in deadly quiet. "I've told you all about her. There's nothing the matter with her family. She happens to be poor — that's all."

The two men continued to stare at each other. The younger moved toward the door.

"There is nothing more to say, I guess."

His father retained him. "Where do you think you're going?"

"Back to my desk of course."

Mr. Dunbar stood up, emphasizing his words with a shaking forefinger. "You're to do nothing of the kind," he announced. "Until this affair is settled, you're persona non grata in this office. Do you understand?"

It was a blow but the boy gave no sign other than the darkening of his eyes.

"Very well, sir, if that's the way you feel about it." He turned again but his father's bellowing voice arrested him.

"What do you think you're going to live on, you young idiot, if I turn you out?"

The youth said grimly, "I suppose I can get a job."

"You do! You're very optimistic. There are hundreds of stewbodies and truckmen walking the streets looking for work. They can't find it. What makes you think you can?"

"The boy did not answer for an instant. Then he said quietly, "Whose fault is it if I'm useless? When I wanted to study agriculture, the only thing I cared about, who discouraged me?"

"You were expelled from college. Don't forget that."

"I was because I was bored stiff. But you had your way and that was all you cared about." Bob threw his young shoulders back and eyed his parent defiantly. "This is one time you're not going to have it!" he said. "I'm going to marry Susan no matter what happens."

The older man gave a sharp, resentful laugh and spread his hands out. "Go ahead," he said "but don't come whining to me when things go wrong!"

"I won't," Bob promised grimly. The door slammed. The father continued to stare at the spot where his son had stood a moment ago. The mottled flush died in his cheeks and once he smiled shrewdly. The boy wouldn't go far, he soliloquized. He would think it over and come to his senses. Most young men experienced these flurries of emotion over a pretty face, but there was no sense in taking the thing seriously!

"A FEW years ago, when I was weak and nervous, when my color was bad and I was in need of a tonic, my mother gave me Cardui, and it seemed to strengthen and build me up, so that I am glad to tell other ladies of its benefit."—Mrs. Chas. W. Gibson, Brinkley, Ark.

The above testimonial is genuine and was given freely.

CARDUI FOR WOMEN

Cardui is suitable for women of any age. Its use cannot hurt anyone. It has helped thousands. May it be a help to you!

Sold by leading druggists.

The girl was undoubtedly a common little piece who had her eye on Bob's inheritance. What was it Bob had said she did? Worked in an office somewhere. Young fool!

And yet unwillingly the father admired the boy for his defiance. "Didn't think he had it in him," he muttered. "He'll come round all right. By willing to talk turkey in a day or two."

Nevertheless Mr. Dunbar rang for his secretary and demanded the telephone directory. He had a good memory and there flashed into his mind the name Bob had dropped earlier in the conversation. The girl's name was Carey. She lived with her aunt Jessie. Bob had said on the west side. His spatulate thumb ran down the list of telephone subscribers. Sure enough, there was the name. In his small, neat, copper-plate script Dunbar wrote the street number in his pocket address book. It may be handy to have during the next few days.

To his father's surprise and irritation, Bob did not come round. The servants reported that he had returned home around noon, had packed a bag and departed without leaving any word. Mrs. Dunbar was at Hot Springs. She was one of those fretful, chronic invalids. Her husband was relieved that there was no necessity of explaining the situation to her.

After a day of waiting during which his digestion was annoyingly impaired the older man mapped out a course of action. Hard-shelled autocrat that he was, he loved his only son dearly. This open break with Robert disturbed him. Mr. Dunbar decided to see the girl and talk a little sense to her.

He frowned with distaste as his taxi, bumping along the shabby side street came to a stop. It was just as he had expected — a house in a row of brave, run-down dwellings badly needing paint.

"Wait for me," he commanded the driver. Dunbar rang the bell with some trepidation. It was not a pleasant errand but it was one he must go through with whether or not he liked it.

A lean, gray-haired woman in a spotless blue house dress answered the ring.

"We don't want to buy anything," she began firmly. Then, struck by something in her caller's bearing, she stopped, confused.

"I want to see Miss Susan Carey," Dunbar said in his courtliest manner. "Is she in?"

"Oh yes, I'll call her." The gray-haired woman gave him another penetrating look and then invited him to enter. As the man waited in the small living room he glanced about with annoyance. It was not at all the sort of interior he had expected. The old rose-wood chairs, carved and upholstered in the manner of the '30's, had a decent self-respect about them. So had the ancient square piano. The whole place reminded him dimly of his mother's front parlor. It was unclean, pleasantly clean, and the frilled white curtains showed no sign of the usual Chicago grime.

There was a faint rustle in the hall and he stood up, feeling rather ill at ease. The girl who faced him was tall and slender. Her dress of black woolen stuff had a nun-like frill of white at the throat. The man noticed that her skin had an extraordinary translucent fairness and that she wore no makeup. Her eyes were enormous.

As the girl advanced Dunbar began to speak quickly and glibly. If Susan was not the sort of person he had expected to see, he gave no sign. His method of attack was simple. He would play on her better feeling. He would make her see that marriage with a penniless boy would be quite different from marriage to the heir of millions.

"I'm Bob Dunbar's father," he began. Susan was not surprised. From Bob the night before, she had heard the whole story. "I don't want you to think," the man pursued winningly, "that I've come here in an antagonistic mood. On the contrary, I feel very friendly toward you and now that I've seen you I must applaud my son's taste."

He seated himself at her invitation. "I only want to make it quite clear that there were good reasons for my behaving as I did when my son told me his plans. Robert is, I'm afraid, very impulsive, and, here he shook his head sadly, "extremely fickle. Perhaps you do not know that he is virtually bound in another agreement." He paused to let the words sink in.

Susan said, "I'm afraid I don't quite understand."

Mr. Dunbar smiled. "Of course you don't my dear young lady," he assured her. "The scamp never tell you about himself."

"If you mean Denise Ackroyd, I do know all about that," Susan said quietly.

The man's jaw dropped. "Oh, you do. Then I know you're going to be sensible about it. If you're fond of my son you won't want to stand in his way. His mother and I feel deeply on the subject of his marrying Denise. In fact his whole future depends upon it. His grandfather's money is being held in trust for him. Robert will receive it when he is 25 on the condition that he marries with our approval. You see?" He smiled at her.

"You mean, then," said Susan slowly, "that it would ruin Bob's life if he were to marry me?"

CONVENTIONS AT CHICAGO TO BE BROADCAST

CHICAGO, May 24. — Radio devices never used before will aid in broadcasting proceedings of the Republican and Democratic conventions here next month, to the largest radio audience in national political convention history.

More persons will listen because there are more radios in offices and homes than for any previous convention. When the Republican convention was held in Kansas City and the Democratic convention in Houston, Tex., in 1928, there were approximately 7,700,000 homes with radio sets. Now there are some 16,000,000.

New parabolic microphones, designed to pick up the voice of a speaker from anywhere in the stadium and amplify it, will be used for the first time.

Four Studios

On the speakers' platform in a row against the outer edge of the oval are the four small studios where radio speeches may be made independent of what is going on outside them.

Fifty-seven feet back of the speaker's just back of and above the executives' platform are four booths created on the inclined tiers where are spectators' seats in other parts of the stadium. Each booth is eight feet wide and 10 feet from front to back. Glass windows form the fronts of the booths. Inside are the radio announcers, speaking into microphones, and engineers with mechanical equipment and controls. The engineers can "cut in" the broadcast on any of the variously located microphones.

Officials of the big radio companies predict 60,000,000 persons may listen to the broadcasts. They estimated listeners at 27,000,000 at the time of the 1928 political conventions.

Radio Version

Arrangements for the radio versions of the Republican Convention were worked out by Senator Foss, chairman of the Republican National Committee; Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the committee, and Paul Gascoigne, chairman of the committee on radio arrangements.

For the democrats, John J. Ras-Kob, chairman of the Democratic National committee, and Joseph Shouse, chairman of the Executive committee, conferred with representatives of the broadcasting companies.

These will be the fifth and sixth national political conventions to be broadcast.

OIL INDUSTRY SURVEY SHOWS SIGNIFICANCE

AUSTIN, May 24.—Future utilization of the petroleum and natural gas industry of Texas, key resources of the State, must take on a widened and more complex phase of operation, declared Elmer H. Johnson, industrial geographer in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Mr. Johnson has just completed a survey of the oil industry, the results of which will be incorporated in a publication on the natural regions of Texas and their resources, to be issued by the bureau in a few months. The economic significance of oil and gas developments in the future will be vastly more important than any phase of economic progress of these industries in the past, Mr. Johnson believes. This is a challenge Texas citizenry cannot ignore, he asserted.

"With oil and natural gas assuming such large shares in the fuels furnished in the national energy budget, it certainly behooves the people of Texas to know more concerning the vast oil and natural gas reserves of the state," Mr. Johnson said. "It is important, also, to realize just how much these new fuels are cutting into older and well established markets outside of Texas. For instance, the amount of natural gas delivered annually under normal conditions from the Amarillo gas fields to Chicago through the recently completed long-distance pipe line is said to be equivalent in energy value to that of 2,000,000 tons of bituminous coal. Also, it has been estimated that the 1,500,000 million cubic feet of natural gas consumed in 1928 possessed a fuel value equivalent to that of 65,000,000 tons of bituminous coal; and since 1928 the consumption of natural gas has increased considerably—to 1,943,000 million cubic feet in 1930 from which it decreased to 1,700,000 million cubic feet in 1931."

Discussing the petroleum reserves of Texas, Mr. Johnson said:

"Economic aspects of any industry concerned with reserves of any natural resource cannot be measured in terms of physical quantity of the natural resource alone; measurements in terms of physical quantity are, however, of the greatest importance in interpreting economic aspects of reserves."

One-Sixth of Total.

"At the end of 1931 Texas had produced 2,736,176,000 barrels of crude oil which is more than one-sixth the total production of the United States—and the United States has been producing oil since 1859; Texas only since around 1900—long afterward the rise of the Standard Oil company. Moreover, Texas was not an important producer until after 1912. Ten years ago Oklahoma and California each were producing 25 per cent of the nation's crude oil; and Texas 24 per cent; in 1931 Texas produced 39 per cent of the crude oil of the country; California 22 per cent, and Oklahoma 21 per cent. Production of crude oil in the country as a whole has been declining, or just a little more than maintaining itself if a some what longer time be taken; the increase in the per cent percentage of Texas production is therefore of more than just relative or local significance.

"According to data assembled by Wallace E. Pratt, geologist, the Texas Gulf Coast fields have furnished 706,505,000 barrels, or 28.01 per cent of the total production in Texas to the close of 1931; the East Texas fields (East Texas and East Central Texas), 384,455,000 barrels, or 14.05 per cent; North Texas, 434,148,000 barrels, or 15.37 per cent; North-Central Texas, 299,234,000 barrels, or 10.94 per cent; Panhandle, 178,765,000 barrels, or 6.53 per cent; West Texas, 517,505,000 barrels, or 18.91 per cent; Southwestern Texas, 124,335,000 barrels; and the Laredo district, 31,229,000 barrels, or 1.15 per cent.

"As to recoverable reserves the following data show in a general way the general situation for the state; East Texas has an almost certain recoverable of some 2,000,000,000 barrels; the Gulf Coast of some 650,000,000; Yates field of some 200,000,000 barrels; and Van in the Texas to the close of 1931; the East Texas fields (East Texas and East Central Texas), 384,455,000 barrels, or 14.05 per cent; North Texas, 434,148,000 barrels, or 15.37 per cent; North-Central Texas, 299,234,000 barrels, or 10.94 per cent; Panhandle, 178,765,000 barrels, or 6.53 per cent; West Texas, 517,505,000 barrels, or 18.91 per cent; Southwestern Texas, 124,335,000 barrels; and the Laredo district, 31,229,000 barrels, or 1.15 per cent.

National Tax Bill--

cites some of the facts he noted while studying the tax problem: "In Boston tax officials took a pardonable pride in explaining the twenty-one kind of taxes by which both the wary and the unwary citizen may be caught. Chicago has 400 separate political units, each of which may levy taxes and collect them—if it can."

For examples of foolish and reckless public spending, he calls attention to the following: "Several states have prize-fight commissions, with neat salaries and ring-side seats. Oregon has sixty-five state commissions including one on embalmers and another on corn doctors. Iowa sports a board to regulate pediatry and seventy others. A California county provides sanitary inspection of dog kennels. We spend millions to enforce prohibition and the Farm Board loans money to grape owners to produce the makings of bootleg booze."

Land Reverts

As a result of all this spending, writes Dr. Wilcox, taxes are now delinquent on more than 150,000,000 acres of land. In most states sheriffs have given up selling land for taxes, he says, and thus the land reverts to the state or county governments. According to his figures, Wisconsin has 2,000,000 acres of such land, and Michigan 1,700,000. But in spite of these appalling conditions Dr. Wilcox found some officials planning to raise money by additional borrowing.

"In a few places the taxpayer has said what's in his mind so plainly that even the officials could understand," continues Dr. Wilcox, citing the taxpayers' revolts in Minnesota, Arcostook county, Maine, and in a certain large city, all of which resulted in a considerable reduction in taxes.

Federal department expenses, he believes, could probably be reduced by one-half by cutting out duplication and foolish studies. As typical examples of what he means by duplication and foolish studies, he mentions incidents such as: "Four travelling agents of as many different branches of the Farm Board recently visited a small Iowa village on the same day in search of the same information."

The only hope Dr. Wilcox can see to lead the country out of the tax dilemma, is that the taxpayer, especially the farmer will maintain a relentless pressure on the spenders of public money.

ADULTS LEARN EASILY.

DO YOU INHALE?

A frank discussion at last on a subject that has long been "taboo"

"LET sleeping dogs lie!" So said the cigarette trade when first we raised the subject of inhaling. But dodging an important issue is not Lucky Strike's policy!

Do you inhale? That question is vitally important... for every smoker inhales—knowingly or unknowingly. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette! And the delicate membranes of your throat demand that your smoke be pure, clean—free of certain impurities.

No wonder Lucky Strike dares to raise this vital question! For Luckies bring you the protection you want... because Luckies' famous purifying process removes certain impurities concealed in every tobacco leaf. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

So, whether you inhale knowingly or unknowingly, safeguard those delicate membranes!
