Randolph President-elect Reported Critically Injured

J. KEEVIL HAS SPINAL HURT IN ACCIDENT

Joseph Keevil, of Marfa, elected president of Randolph college for 1931-32 at a meeting of the board of trustees of the college here last Friday, is in a Pecos hospital in a serious condition as the result of an automobile accident Saturday afternoon while en route home from the meeting of trustees he attended here, according to a message to Dr. T. T. Roberts, president of the school, this morning. Dr. Roberts is leaving for Pecos today in response to the message.

Mr. and Mrs. Keevil, Mrs. Nelson and a baby were in the car when it turned over a few miles from Pecos on the way to Marfa. Mrs. Keevil and Mrs. Nelson received cuts and bruises but were not injured seriously. The baby escaped hurt.

According to the information received here Mr. Keevil sustained a fracture of the spine near the neck, paralyzing him from the second rib down. The spinal cord was not severed, the information said, but physicians who examined Mr. Keevil said that although he will probably live he may be permanently paralyzed.

The accident occurred about 4:30 Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Keevil was due to have delivered an address at Randolph college next Sunday. He had not accepted the presidency of the school but was expected to make his answer within a few days.

PROPOSAL TO REFUSE HOUSE BILLS IS UP

AUSTIN, May 18.—A proposal to have the house of representatives of the Texas legislature refuse from now on to consider any more house bills was waiting a vote when recess was taken for lunch today.

If it carries it will cut off all possibility of the Howsley oil prororation bill being taken up and the consideration of any new tax measures, as they must originate in the house. Proponents would not agree that any further attempt to submit a state road bond issue shall be abandoned.

While banning new taxes, the program, if adopted will not prevent possible increase in the present sulphur tax of 55 cents a ton.

AUXILIARY TO CONDUCT POPPY SALE SATURDAY

The Auxiliary of the John William Butts post of the American Legion will conduct its annual poppy sale for the benefit of disabled veterans next Saturday, it was announced today. Poppies to be sold at that time have been made by ex-service men who are confined in government hospitals and who received one cent for each poppy made. For many of these men this represents their only income.

Funds derived from the sale will be devoted to supplying comforts for the veterans they are unable to obtain otherwise.

27 Rescued After Steamer Rams Reef in Fog

A heavy fog obscuring the rocky coast at Sydney, Australia, was responsible for wreck of the 5000-ton steamer, Malabar, shown above after it rammaged a reef and the 27 passengers were saved. Because of the calm weather no difficulty was experienced in taking off the passengers, but a few hours later a storm battered the wreck to pieces.

STAMFORD WILL BE COWBOYS HOST JUNE 25-27

STAMFORD, May 18.—Invitations to the second annual Texas Cowboy reunion to be staged in this city June 25, 26 and 27, are being broadcast to all who saw actual service on the range of West Texas prior to 1895. All who fall in that classification will be honor guests of the three-day programs.

In addition to the get-together meetings that will be held for the pioneers during the reunion there will be numerous entertainment features including cowboy contests each afternoon and evening; square dances, old fiddlers contest; a group of ranch chuck wagons and numerous other attractions.

On the evening of June 26, all who qualify for membership in the old-timers organization will be guests at a chuck wagon supper, where a variety of early day dishes will be served. Arrangements for the entertainment of the pioneers is in charge of a committee headed by Col. R. L. Penick, who settled in Jones county in 1880.

According to A. C. Cooper, vice-president of the reunion association, the entertainment program to be staged for the particular benefit of the pioneers of the range will be of interest and pleasure to everyone and he is expecting several thousand people here for the affair in addition to those who will be the honorees.

Only cowboys, who are actually engaged in ranch work will be allowed to compete in the rodeo contests. Last year there were 98 entrants in the program and W. G. Swenson, president of the organization, is expecting more than that number this year. The rodeo will be directed by "Scandalous" John Selmon, foreman of the S. M. S. Flat-top ranch, located near Stamford well known among the cattlemen of the southwest.

Work of providing better accommodations for the program of the reunion for this year than were available last year are under way, with D. T. Perkins in charge. A permanent grandstand is being erected at the rodeo arena; a pavilion for the dances is to be built, and other improvements made during the next few weeks.

Last year over 300 of the early day citizens of the West Texas cattle ranges were here for the reunion. It is expected that at least 600 of those men and women will come this year to meet their friends of the past and enjoy the various features of the program.

FORTY MEN START DRIVE UPON WEEDS

A young army of 40 men, armed with hoes and rakes faced from the city hall this morning in a determined war against weeds and rubbish on vacant lots. Commissioner J. T. Elliott is directing the campaign.

The men are Cisco citizens without jobs who will be paid 30 cents an hour for their work. Commissioner Elliott plans to make a clean sweep of unsightly conditions while the time is opportune.

While the city is taking care of the vacant lots, the department of sanitation and public health is appealing to residents to cooperate in the general campaign by cleaning their own premises, particularly the alley-ways which have been badly neglected. Trucks and wagons will be furnished by the city to move away all accumulated rubbish. Residents have only to place this rubbish conveniently in the alleys where it will be taken up and disposed of by the wagons.

The action of the city represents a splendid opportunity for the residential sections to thoroughly "clean-up" improving not only the general appearance of the city, but the health conditions as well. In connection citizens should see to it that all open, standing water is well protected against mosquitoes which breed prolifically in such places, and to report to the city health authorities immediately the presence of any mosquitoes in their vicinities.

NEFF REGARDED CERTAIN FOR BAYLOR POST

AUSTIN, May 18.—So certainly is former Governor Pat M. Neff regarded as the next president of Baylor university that already definite maneuvering for his state office is going on.

Governor Neff would resign a $5,900 job—for which he has a remaining five-year elected term—to take the $10,000 place as president of the university whose chairman he has been for a quarter-century.

The monetary side of it would have little influence. Governor Neff was ready to retire from the governor's office itself to have given his efforts to the school in years past.

In Disagreement Now. Next to the late President Samuel Palmer Brooks, he was most closely associated with Baylor affairs. He and Dr. Brooks, roommates in the school in their youth, carried on together through all the years the leadership of the influential church school.

Mr. Neff was replaced as chairman of the railroad commission at the end of his appointive term, and after he had been elected to a six-year term as junior member. He has been in disagreement with the rest of the commission on oil, gas, and motor truck licensing, two of the major phases of the commission's work. His personal plans were frustrated. His service in the commission have not been at all cheering.

This is a secondary reason for his willingness to serve Baylor as its president. The board which will make the selection are men who have served with Gov. Neff in administrative direction of the university for years. The election is one in which there apparently won't even be a second choice.

Others Want Job That is what is swelling Governor Ross S. Sterling's mail and bringing callers to the executive office. When Mr. Neff resigns the governor will be called on to appoint his successor. The appointment will be only until next year's election. Then two places must be filled—a four-year term in Neff's present post and a six-year term for the present Chairman C. V. Terrell, same successor.

One or two persons already in official places are known to have longed eyes upon Governor Neff's seat in the commission. Other persons, some of them men who would have to give up lucrative places in business or legal employment, also are willing.

Weinert Bill Gets Sterling Signature

AUSTIN, May 18.—Gov. Ross Sterling today signed the Weinert bill allowing suspended sentences for first-time offenders under the state liquor laws thus putting enforcement of liquor laws on the same basis as other offenses.

He signed, also, the resolution for submission of a constitutional amendment to exempt $3,000 homesteads from state taxation.

Jury Probes Case Against Mayor

ROBY, May 18.—The grand jury here today began an investigation of the liquor transportation charges against Mayor Charlton Brown of Mineral Wells, free under $500 bond. Court officials refused to discuss the case and no formal arraignment of the defendant was made today.

Brown and T. L. Hemphill were en route to West Texas chamber of commerce convention at Lubbock when the car in which they rode plunged into a ditch.

Deputy R. L. Wilkinson, who went to the accident a few minutes later, said he found three and a half pints of liquor in the wreckage.

Just Checking Up on Lindy

The United States Army wanted to check up on the well being of one of its most famous officers. So here you see Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh (left) as he arrived at Mitchell Field, Long Island, to take his annual physical examination for the purpose of maintaining his standing in the army air reserves. Shown with him is Col. John Howard, commanding officer at Mitchell Field.

HIGHWAY REGULATION AND TRUCK BILLS ARE DRASTIC

AUSTIN, May 18.—Taken together, the two motor truck and highway regulation bills just sent to Governor Sterling's desk by adoption in both houses on conference recommendations from the most drastic highway protection program ever enacted.

They were written in response to a public demand that pressed them through despite valiant resistance in both houses. One of the by-products of the program was to seriously cripple one Texas industry, the manufacture at Wichita Falls of heavy-duty trucks, largely for service in the oil fields. Yet the conference report held out some encouragement for that industry. The bill limiting weight of load to 7000 pounds will not go into effect until late in August. The weight provision on equipment already in use then will not apply until next Jan. 1. Special permits can be allowed for 90-day periods for exception to the load limit.

The gross weight of vehicles and loads is not limited. A 20,000-pound truck could be used so long as its load did not exceed 7000 pounds. Much difficulty in testing loads was foreseen. The enforcing agency will have theoretical power to force the unloading for weighing purposes, at any time of any truck, though it will not work out this way in practice.

House bill 335, first of the truck regulation series, requires that both common carrier trucks and motor vehicles and contract haulers shall secure state license and be placed under proper bonds. License fees for this certificate, in addition to the motor registration fee, shall be $10,000 a year. Each driver of such a commercial or contract carrier shall be examined and pay $1 fee. No driver may operate a truck continuously over 14 hours at a time.

The second bill, house 336, limits the size, length, height and pay load of commercial or delivery trucks or motor vehicles, including motor-buses.

It restricts width of all motor vehicles to 96 inches, and farm tractors that may be run upon the road to 108 inches.

It limits height of vehicles and loads to 12 feet 6 inches.

This section anticipated the attacks upon its constitutionality by including a separate "severance" clause, reciting that if this section is held void it shall not affect validity of the rest of the bill. Both bills in addition carry standard severance clauses saying that if any reaction or sections are held void this act upon weight per inch width of tire shall apply to all such vehicles.

They are George of Atwell, L. M. of Cottenwood; Perry of Atwell; John of Breckenridge and A. D. and T. H. of Cisco; Mrs. W. H. Robbins, of Harlingen and Mrs. Howland, of this city. Forty-three grandchildren and a number of great-grandchildren, also survive, most of them making their homes in this vicinity.

Caliche Is Laid on Zoo Road Now

Laying of the caliche base on the zoo road is well under way with prospect that it will be completed within the week. The base is being laid from the zoo to the junction of the zoo road with highway No. 23 at the golf course. When this is completed the section from the zoo to the junction with No. 23 at the south end of the dam will be undertaken.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

A NEW CREATION:—Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.—Psalm 51: 10.

INEXPRESSIBLE PEACE:—The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.—Phil 4: 7.

A GOOD MAN GONE TO HIS REWARD.

Samuel Palmer Brooks has been called to his reward. He was an adored son of Texas. He was not rocked in a silver cradle nor fed out of a golden spoon.

In his early youth he worked as a toiler. He could handle a pick and shovel, guide a plow behind a mule, drive a team, pick cotton in the fields and he preached the gospel all his life long that labor is noble and holy and the mission of man here below is to earn his bread in the sweat of his brow.

He fought and won an education. He paid for it with the money he had earned. His ambition was to be an educator and that ambition was gratified 30 years ago when he became the president of the historic university where he had received his schooling in the days of his youth.

He had a vast acquaintance. He had countless admirers. He had loyal friends and the thousands of boys and girls who had looked upon him as their guide and teacher in the spiritual and the moral and the material fields are among the keenest mourners now that his life work has been finished.

MAYOR CHAMBERS SWEEPS THE FIELD.

Mayor C. M. Chambers of San Antonio won hands down by the majority of 6000 and carried his entire ticket to victory in a municipal election held May 12.

MILLIONS FOR THE NEW YORK TREASURY.

Officials of the state of New York have estimated that inheritance taxes due the commonwealth as a result of deaths of wealthy citizens would exceed $20,000,000 this year, and that this amount will go toward offsetting the shrinkage in state income taxes.

A very lucky man is Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. He is facing a fat treasury.

CHINA THROWS OFF ITS CHAIN.

There is a new China. It has been in the making since the last of the Manchu emperors was dethroned. Now the governing party of the new China has declared that after Jan. 1 persons belong to communities in China which enjoy extra territorial privileges will be under the jurisdiction of Chinese courts.

COTTON FARMERS SAVE MILLIONS.

Farmers last year received between 115 million dollars and 140 million dollars more for their cotton than would have been the case without co-operative marketing and the aid given by the federal farm board.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE HAS THE CALL.

A cablegram from Geneva lets it be known that analysis by the International labor office shows that in 18 European countries a total of 47 million workers are covered by unemployment insurance and that between 15 million and 20 million workers throughout the world are jobless.

TWO MILLIONS WILL ROLL IN.

Governor Sterling signed the bill requiring a four cent gasoline tax to be paid by the refineries or wholesalers of first distribution. State Comp. Geo. H. Sheppard predicts the new law will reach millions of gallons of gasoline which annually had been escaping and that the tax income would be increased approximately $2,000,000 per annum.

fourths of this income goes to the highway fund and one-fourth to the school fund. Motorists and cigaret smokers are paying millions into the treasury.

MILITARY POSTS TO BE CLOSED.

Secretary of War Pat J. Hurley of Oklahoma is considering abandoning or consolidating some 50 military posts of the war department. Fifty-one such stations have been abandoned or discontinued since the World War.

OTHER OPINIONS

THE PRINCE ADVISES

Talking to a large group of British manufacturers the other day, the Prince of Wales gave them the conclusions he had reached after an intensive study of commercial and industrial conditions in South America.

The prince and his brother recently spent several weeks in South America, creating good will for British trade and examining the fields for expansion of British business.

Radical advice, indeed, to offer a group of staid and stolid British manufacturers, but we imagine it will be accepted by a great many of them. Incidentally, it is good advice for the individual American business man who is wondering how he can increase his gross turnover and improve his net profits.

TEXAS TOPICS

BY POLITICAL ANALYST

AUSTIN, May 18.—Two pairs of house members have emerged at this session into position for the speakership race of the next session.

Reps. A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs and Coke Stevenson of Junction have developed as potential leaders of two general forces in the house.

Reps. Phil Sanders, Nacogdoches and Lee Satterwhite, Odessa, stand in a similar relation to each other, parallel to the other "natural" division.

Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Satterwhite have been opponents of the highway bond issue. Mr. Johnson and Mr. Sanders supported this theory of political economy.

Mr. Johnson is one of the hard-working members of seasoned experience and conservative views. One of the main things he has handled at this session has been the reform of delinquent tax suit abuses, in a measure which he piloted through the house and sent to uncertain outcome in the senate.

Mr. Stevenson is regarded by many as one of the two or three outstanding lawyers of the entire house. He has been a leader of the economy bloc, and sponsor of a pay-as-you-go road finance policy.

Mr. Sanders is in the coveted strategic position of house appropriations chairman, often regarded as leading to the speakership. He is another of the hard-working, industrious, devoted members.

Rep. Satterwhite is the only member of the house who has been speaker before. His committee, re-organization program, discussed by this writer at the beginning of the session, has been winning many friends. His present undertaking of a composite tax system, to be ready for a future session may bring him preeminent leadership in this field of legislation.

He proposes to cut down the 38 committees to about six, with the members each serving on but one committee to avoid overlapping and conflict of committee work.

Apparently neither Rep. R. M. Hubbard, nor Rep. Walter Beck, leaders of the highway bond submission effort, has been interested in the speakership race.

The MELODY GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, succeeds in delaying his elopement with her half-sister, Irene Everett, but fails to convince him that it is his duty to his family to finish college.

Later Irene postpones the marriage date believing she is to become a radio singer. Securing an audition, she permits Beryl to go to the studio with her. While waiting in an ante-room, Beryl sits down at a piano and croons melodies. One of the directors hears her and gives her a private test. He promises an interview with Mr. Gaylord. Irene fails and is furious when she hears her sister has been given a test. Beryl's hopes of a radio career dim as no word comes from the studio.

At last the letter arrives and she slips away for her interview. Nervous during the ordeal, Beryl is elated when presented with a contract. Her victory is bitter-sweet for her family and Tommy believe she robbed Irene of her chance. However her "gang" console her and celebrate by putting on a show. Beryl proves a success, and the envious Irene quarrels with Tommy when he praises her. A crowd gathers at the house to greet Beryl after her first broadcast.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI
Irene and Tommy, their walk ending in a quarrel, returned to her home a few minutes after the party that had gone to the station to meet Beryl.

Mrs. Everett was about to give herself over to anxiety when Irene took her aside and declared that it was no more than they could expect. Look how Beryl had treated them all along—not saying a word about springing the whole thing on them as if they were outsiders! That was just what they were to her anyway. She didn't consider herself one of them. If she hadn't felt that way she wouldn't have kept her father's name; she'd have called herself Beryl Everett.

"Just the same," Mrs. Everett protested, "it's not like Beryl to say one thing and do another. And she said she'd be home on the 11:57. She could just make it from the studio, she said, if she hurried."

Irene laughed. "If she hurried," she repeated insinuatingly. "Maybe that's the answer. Maybe she didn't hurry."

"Oh, Irene, what do you mean?" her mother wailed, but Irene made no answer for in the front of the house there was a sudden commotion.

"She's here!" someone exclaimed. "There's a car stopping before the house."

Mrs. Everett ran to see who it was and just as she reached the door between the dining room and the living room Beryl came tumbling into the hall. Came tumbling literally, for she had cartwheeled through the front door on a rug that slipped. When her mother reached her she was sitting in a heap of flowers, stifling a laugh in her hands. She was looking at Irene herself unexpectedly facing a room full of people. She got up, let herself be congratulated and praised, and then apologized.

"I didn't expect there'd be anyone here but the folks," she explained, "and I couldn't hold on any longer."

"No one would expect you to be dignified dear," Irene said sweetly.

Beryl did not appear to hear. "Someone's got to come out and help lug in the flowers," she invited. "They're dumped on the curb."

"Why didn't you have the taxi driver bring them in?" her mother asked.

"Taxi driver?" Beryl repeated. Then she laughed. "That was Mr. Gaylord's car and his driver," she said and stuck out her chest in unabashed boastfulness. "Think of that, folks! A limousine! I'll bet the driver's sore. He has to go all the way back to New York tonight. But I had to have some way to get the floral pieces out here. Wait until you see what the darling gang sent me!"

She bounded out ahead of them, and all but Irene followed, fired by her animation and high spirits. Even Tommy went along. Everyone gasped and cried out in admiration of the "bouquet" her gang had sent to Beryl. It was indeed an exceptional offering—a radio made entirely of flowers, paid for with the proceeds of the "benefit" show that had ostensibly been given for Snooks.

As her friends were carrying it up to the front porch Beryl was besieged by the gang in person. The boys came out of the dark from every direction and swarmed all over her, each striving to be the first of their number to congratulate her. Beryl welcomed them with open arms. When she got to the light again she was much disheveled and out of breath, but happier than she'd been ever before in her life.

"Did you come out alone, with just the chauffeur?" Irene asked when Beryl entered the house. "I thought successful people always had a... a coterie." She stumbled a little on the pronunciation of "coterie" but got out in the belief that Beryl wouldn't know the difference anyway.

"Whatever that is," Beryl replied good-naturedly.

"Well, you might have let Mother know," Irene declared. "She was worried half to death because you weren't on the 11:57."

"I'm sorry," Beryl said to her mother. "I expected to beat the train here but I was a little late in getting started."

Irene also addressed her mother. "Didn't I tell you?" she said. Beryl sensed the undercurrent of accusation in the words and resented it.

"Several people wanted to come with me," she said coldly. "But I... I..." She stopped. After all it was not necessary to tell the neighbors that she had been too skeptical of the reception that awaited her at home to risk bringing strangers into it. "I decided I'd rather come alone," she added haughtily. "It took a little time to convince them that I was used to going about unescorted."

Irene turned away, biting her tongue to keep from further display of her temper.

A little later a member of the party, feeling sleepy, remarked that Beryl must be tired. Someone else, thinking it an occasion for an all-night celebration, wanted her to sing for them but from that Beryl asked to be excused.

Her refusal seemed to be a cue for the gathering to break up and presently she was alone in her room, where she had wanted to be—to stand face to face with this bewildering event in her life, to ask "Old Faithful" what he thought about it, and to suffer with an intensity that shamed her over Tommy's attitude. It had not been more interested than anyone else and she had wanted some special demonstration from him. Of course she was a fool.

She stood by her window staring down at the gate where Tommy was saying good-night to Irene and a sense of the irony of fate swept over her.

Here she was, going to bed with the ring of plaudits still in her ears—sound that she knew would be priceless to Irene. And there was Irene, down there saying good-night to Tommy—something that she, Beryl, would give all the world's applause to be doing if she and Tommy were sweethearts.

She turned quickly from the window as the lovers kissed. She didn't mean to be spying. Then she heard Tommy go whistling down the street. Irene must have made him very happy.

Poor Beryl. The very thing that she had secretly hoped would impress Tommy, make him realize that there was someone else on earth besides Irene, had driven him farther away.

Irene was ready to claim everything to which she had the slightest right. And it was salve to her wound, the wound inflicted by Beryl's rise to greater popularity, to feel that Tommy was her slave, that she had only to yield a little to have him begging for possession of her.

When Tommy left her at the gate he had at least a half promise that she would marry him soon. It was this sudden softening on her part which had begun soon after Beryl arrived that caused his indifference to Beryl's success to continue through her hour of triumph.

For several days he lived on hope while Irene wavered. She would; she wouldn't. It was hard to live with Beryl's success, but on the other hand it was interesting, too. Telephone calls, flowers, fan mail, invitations. They did not come in great numbers but there were enough to make Irene feel that she was at least in contact, even if it was only by a family relationship, with the life for which she yearned.

At one time she had thought of going to Hollywood to try her fortune but someone had told her how that city turns girls back from its threshold by the scores by presenting to them the truth about conditions there and showing them the difficulty of getting a chance. Irene was no crusader. She gave up the idea of going to Hollywood. The sheltered life was good enough for her, she decided.

But she had not given up the desire to be a darling of the public. And so she was torn two ways by having a popular radio artist in the house. She could shine in reflected glory or brood in darkest envy.

Then one of her girl friends married and although it was a quiet wedding with a short engagement and no kitchen showers or bridge luncheons to precede it, Irene saw that a bride is, above all other persons, the center of attraction.

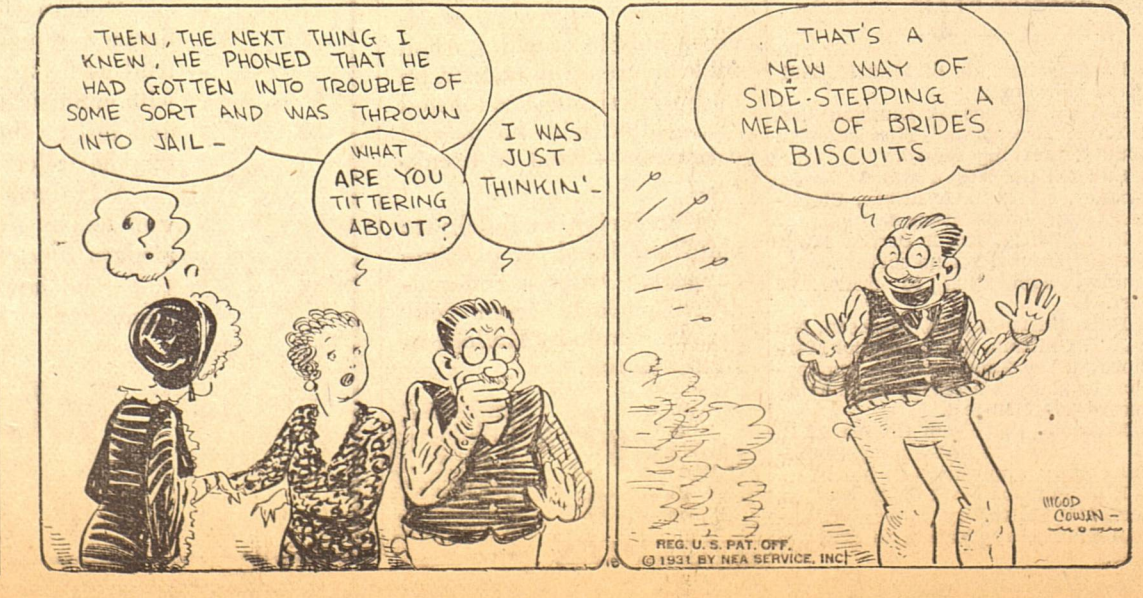

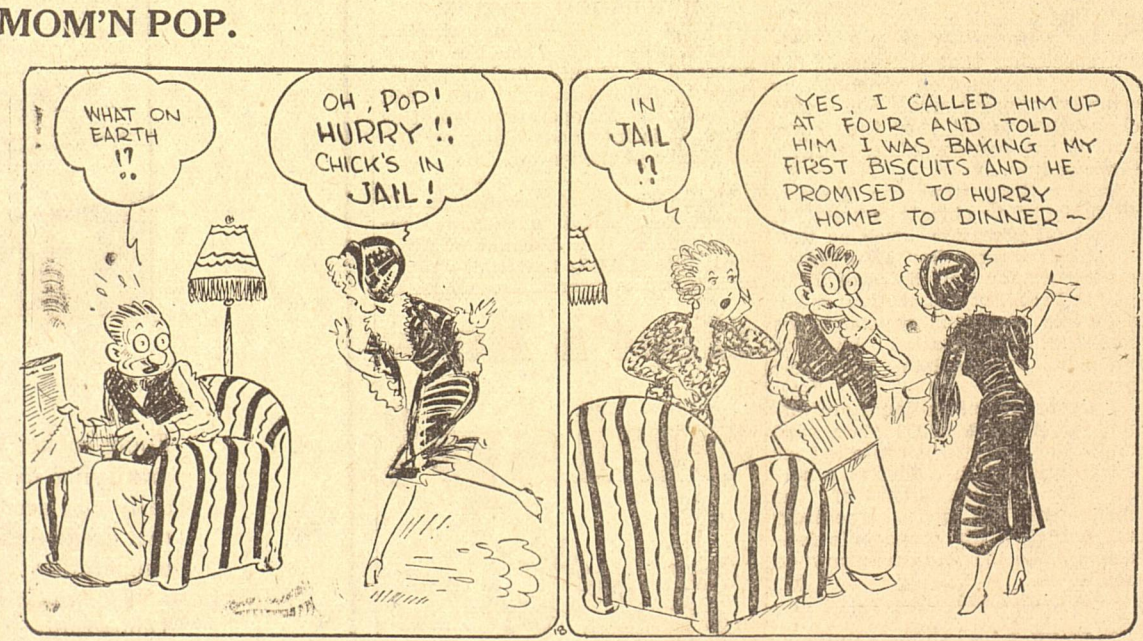

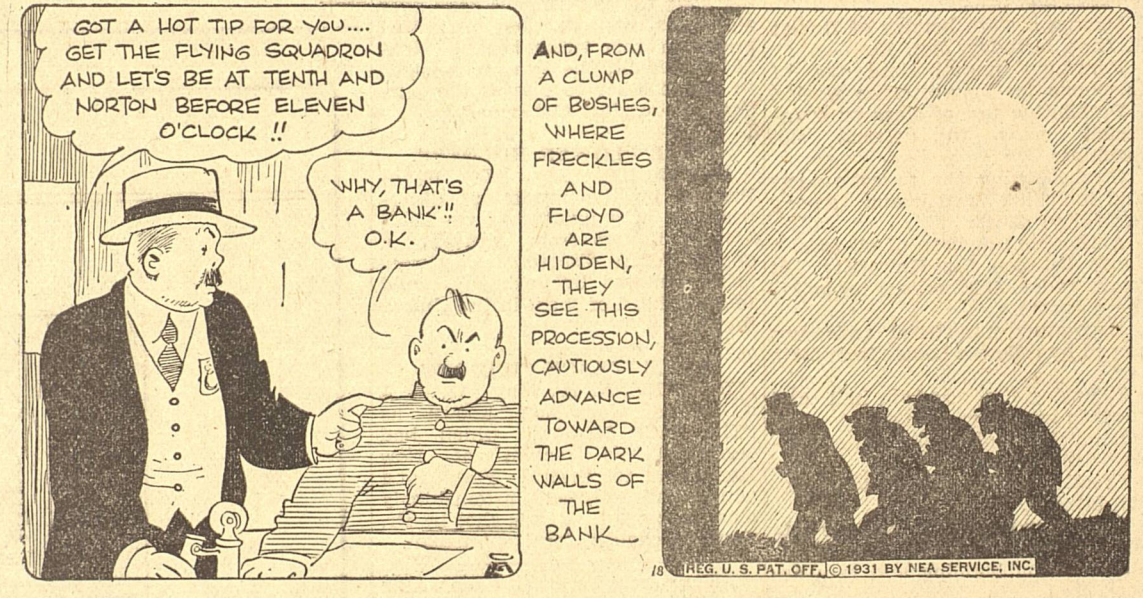

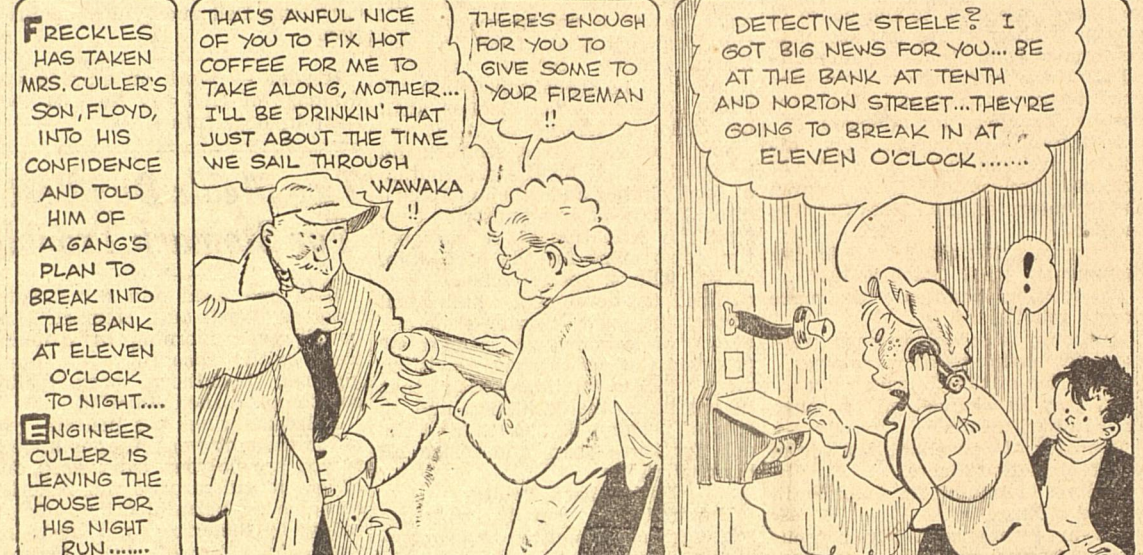

Suppose she married Tommy—eloped with him as they had planned—everyone would be talking about her then. Beryl would, at least locally, be overshadowed for a time. Perhaps—who could tell?—if people could be made to think of someone else in the family for a little while they might never think so much of Beryl again. They'd turn next to a new wonder.

Yes, she would marry Tommy—elope with him. Right away.

PASTOR MAKES REPORT UPON CONVENTION

"It requires some skill to report what happened in four busy days and nights," said Rev. E. L. Milley, pastor of the First Christian church, reporting to his congregation the convention of Christian churches which was held in Wichita Falls last week. "First great preparation was made for a great state convention. The city received us with open arms and showed every courtesy. Next, great speakers, some from distant states, brought messages ripe with experiences through many years. Then missionaries from the distant battle line. And again many speakers from the busy fields of Texas."

"The attendance was about 1200 with more than nine hundred registered delegates. Interest was shown in the fact that early and late the sessions were exceptionally well attended."

"It is impossible to set forth anything but the ideals that were kept constantly to the front. It was a convention of ideals rather than machinery and organizational wheels."

"These are the great ideals that were set forth and emphasized from first to last. Christ the head of the church and the center of Christianity. The everlasting gospel as God's power into salvation. The evangelistic passion for its proclamation. The unity of Christian forces to solve the world problems of this day. The fellowship of all Christians and the brotherhood of believers. In facing all these situations we must have the ideals of Christ ever before us."

"Peace, prohibition, industrial and social problems, came in for earnest discussion by those qualified to speak."

Mr. Harry Hines, a prominent business man of Wichita Falls was the president of the convention and because of his popularity and the success of the convention, contrary to custom he was unanimously re-elected.

MAJOR ISSUES ARE PASSED ON TO CITIZENS

AUSTIN, May 18. — The 42nd Texas legislature, now nearing the end of its regular session, has passed on some of the major issues to voters by submitting constitutional amendments for popular vote.

Both branches have submitted proposals to let reserve officers of various armed forces hold state office and vote in all elections. They have submitted a proposal to let improvements for seacoast communities be authorized by two-thirds of voters participating in an election. A proposal to reduce amount that may be charged for redemption of land sold for taxes, and an amendment to limit future investment of the University of Texas permanent fund.

Up to the normal date for ending the session, May 12, there had been passed and signed by the governor a total of 268 bills. Nineteen were on the desk awaiting approval or rejection. Sixteen of these originated in the house.

The numerous ways of shunting measures back and forth between the house and senate has left many major measures still awaiting final action. Some of these originating in one branch, have been amended by the other branch and so have to go back to the house of origin. If changes are not accepted, conference committees are appointed. If these committees agree they submit their agreement to their respective branches for adoption.

Important measures that already have run the gauntlet of possible changes and have secured the signature of Gov. Ross Sterling include:

Temporary tax relief by deferring delinquency until October, 1931.

Authorizing counties to make drought relief loans.

Authority to schools to issue warrants for paying teachers' salaries.

Extension of time in which tax refund may be claimed on gasoline used in agriculture.

Transfer of gasoline tax from wholesalers to refiners.

Making kidnaping for extortion a capital offense.

Levying a three cents tax on packages of 20 cigars.

Permitting towns to regulate whistles and bells.

Making a state holiday of Robert E. Lee's birthday, Jan. 19.

Furnishing unauthorized use of telephone for long-distance service.

Prohibiting use of slugs or counterfeit coins to defraud slot machines.

Strengthening the narcotic law and including marihuana among prohibited drugs.

Authorizing division of oil royalty funds between the University of Texas and A. & M. college for building purposes.

Exempting ministerial residences owned by religious bodies from state tax.

Licensing fire, accident, hail and tornado insurance agents.

Requiring audit of the state highway department.

Creating a state commission to assist blind.

Extending period for absentee voting to 20 days before election.

Regulating building and loan associations.

Strengthening bigamy statutes.

Strengthening law against wife and child desertion.

A bill defining marginal wells and specifying that they shall not have their production reduced by commission order was the only oil measure to get thru the early part of the session. Many others were pending.

Among them were the Howsley bill designed to obviate injunctions against oil production, such as that secured by former Gov. Dan Moody as attorney for Carl Estes of Tyler against East Texas proration; a bill to divorce producing oil companies from the filling station business, and a bill to regulate pipe line charges.

A proposed constitutional amendment for a $210,000,000 state road bond issue was still a contested bit of legislation, with a favorable majority for the submission of the amendment was polled repeatedly but each time the proponents failed to get the 100 votes necessary to submit.

SHORTER DAY ASKED TO AID EMPLOYMENT

BERLIN, May 18.—More than 3,000 written proposals have been presented to the Committee of Ten, which the German government appointed early in February to study means for coping with unemployment. The committee, headed by ex-Minister of Labor Heinrich Brauns, published its first recommendations on April 4, the most significant proposal being curtailment of working hours in various industries by enactment of a special law.

While the 3,000 suggestions submitted to the committee may be regarded as monuments to the deep interest which the committee's investigation aroused among the distressed population, many of the proposals are bizarre. Thus, one citizen urged that women be barred from employment, and implored the committee "to throw out the short-haired, petticoated mob, cluttering up our industries."

Secret Scheme
Another announced that he had a secret scheme for reducing government debts for the 1930's; he stated his willingness to unveil his secret providing the government would pay him one per cent of the vast sum to be saved. A third contributor was so convinced of the efficacy of his plan that he cautiously registered it at the German patent office before handing it to the committee.

Other suggestions were: seal all machines in Germany and return to the age of handicraft; tax the owner of every machine so heavily that he will prefer to replace it by human labor; every German who reaches the age of fifty-five shall be barred from paid employment and receive a modest pension; the huge sums needed for the relief of workless citizens should be raised by levying a special tax on every German who walks the streets without a hat (it is not known whether this idea emanated from a hat manufacturer); certain German plans shall be transformed into tea plantations on which jobs shall be employed; instead of giving the unemployed cash doles, relief should be administered by the distribution of food, clothes and other merchandise; a sixty-page manuscript suggests the formation of a national fire department for the occupation of the jobless; special scheme were outlined for: developing whaling, oil windeating, and herring-fisheries; by way of economy, one "economist" proposed that every workless citizen must swear a "national oath" that he has no means of support, and, in case of perjury, be barred from the dole for three years and forfeit all his civil rights.

Nationalized Poultry.
Hundreds of equally grotesque schemes were submitted to the committee. One citizen even wrote to President von Hindenburg, suggesting that the government take over all means of production; one paragraph in this letter began, "Now, Mr. President, the two of us ought to get together to discuss the purchase of rosters and hens."
