Wind Contraption Does Work On Farm

CLEBURNE, Feb. 8. — L. F. Sharp lets the wind do most of the work around his farm. An ingenious arrangement that attaches on to his windmill gets the following things done: pumping water, lighting the farm, turning the cream separator, churning cream into butter, ironing clothes, curling his wife's and daughter's hair, and fanning the whole bunch on hot days. With a few old automobile parts, some sticks of wood, a hinge or two and some springs, Sharp built the apparatus which runs an electric generator. Storage batteries are charged and provide current when the wind stops.

Probe Started In Slaying of Federal Agent

SHERIFF SAYS THAT HE SHOT TO SAVE SELF

BULLETIN FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Calling witnesses at the rate of one every 10 minutes, blasted away with rebuttal testimony today in an attempt to break down Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense against charges that he committed the Lindbergh crime.

Justice of the Peace M. L. Morris said he would hold that Stafford died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Cato, Stafford, here to investigate narcotic sales, was killed yesterday. POST, Tex., Feb. 8.—Assistant District Attorney Joe Jones and Marshal J. R. (Red) Wright of Dallas were here today conducting an investigation into the slaying of Spencer Stafford, 37, Fort Worth federal narcotics agent. Stafford was shot and killed yesterday in front of a hospital near the center of a business district. Sheriff W. F. Cato of Garza county, who was charged with murder in a federal warrant issued late yesterday in Dallas, told county authorities he shot Stafford in self defense. It is probable that Cato will be taken to Dallas and tried before a federal judge under the new law, which makes shooting of a federal man a capital offense.

Hail Falls Here With .8 Inch Rain

Rain which began falling Wednesday night, only to stop yesterday morning, today continued, with a dash of hail mixed in for good measure. The city hail gauge showed that eight tenths of an inch of rain had fallen here between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. today. This brought the total for the month, which amounted to rain during the last two days, to exactly an inch and a half. The rain began about 10 o'clock this morning and shortly afterward there was a spattering of hail along with a driving sheet of rain. The precipitation continued throughout the day.

SAYS MEXICO USING FORCE FOR PAGANISM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Chairman William Connery of the house labor committee today accused the Mexican government of "using its military forces in age-old efforts of paganism and atheism." He proposed to the house American withdrawal of recognition unless "religious persecution cease and charged that Ambassador Daniels was cooperating with the tyrants of Mexico to enslave the Mexican people." Connery charged that Mexico had ruthlessly violated the so called Lansing agreement of the Wilson administration, designed to assure freedom of worship to the people of Mexico.

GROUP URGES ACTION UPON TEXAS CRIME

AUSTIN, Feb. 8.—Courageous action against "commercialized crime" in Texas was urged on legislators today by the senate crime investigating committee. It recommended that the shackles be struck from state courts, that officials who fail or refuse to enforce the laws be removed, that a modern centralized state police system be created. The senate crime investigators have preceded their formal report with bills to accomplish the recommendation. "There can be seen today on every hand a general revolt against governmental authority. Cold, cruel, calculating crime has been organized and commercialized. It is now one of the established industries of the state. It lifts its head above the broken bulwarks of the law. It is struggling for social and political recognition," the report said.

HOPI VILLAGE SPURNS OFFER OF UNCLE SAM

By DYKE WILLIAMS United Press Staff Correspondent. FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Feb. 8.—The buffalo is a "horse of a different color" to the Hopi Indians of Hotevilla, which turned down the federal government's offer to supply them and held its annual buffalo dance this year sans buffalo as usual. This year was revealed here by Dr. and Mrs. Harold S. Colton, founders of the Museum of Northern Arizona. A question of etiquette proved stronger than the appeal of a full-grown buffalo, with a heart that "will bring the courage of the plains herds," and other portions, which, if eaten, "will ward off evil spirits and bring the blessings of the summer sun who goes south each year with the buffalo tribe."

Other Villages Had Buffalo But at a dozen other Hopi villages the food of forefathers proved welcome, and the buffalo dances were held in all barbaric splendor. Hides and horns taken from the animals will be used in future performances of the sacred rites which rejoice at the imminent arrival of spring. Braves of the buffalo clan will wear the heads to which they are supposedly tied by blood bonds. At one other village, Shimpovi, there was hesitation about accepting the gift of the "White Father's" government. The hesitation went back into the history of tribal fortunes, for elders recalled that once many, many years ago buffalo actually had been eaten at the time of the dances, and a plague followed and wiped out much of Shimpovi's population.

Counsel Prevalid

Counsel of the Coltons, however, prevailed, and the warriors ate of the bodies of the largest of American mammals. The buffalo were secured from Yellowstone Park, where numbers are shot each year to reduce herds. Thirteen reached the Hopi reservation. The Hotevilla rejection turned on the fact that in accepting a gift from those outside the clan, a return gift would be necessary. In absence of demands, the Indians could only speculate as to what would be expected, and so refused the meat under any conditions. In vain Dr. Colton and others tried to explain that nothing was expected in return. That had been said before, the chiefs averred. "Once our people had many lands, and now have few." The Hotevilla Hopis were taking no chances.

FAMED MARCH LIKELY TO BE ENACTED AGAIN

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt may witness a re-enactment of Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson's famous march in the Battle of Chancellorsville by cadets of the Virginia Military Institute on May 2. The president will be invited to deliver an address during the celebration. The Civil War battlefield is located 12 miles west of here. United States Marines stationed at Quantico, Va., are expected to participate in the military display. The "sham" battle formally will open the "Jackson Trail," now being traced by Civilian Conservation Corps workers. It was over the "Jackson Trail" that General Jackson marched his men to Chancellorsville in May, 1863 to execute one of the most spectacular and brilliant military movements in history. Jackson's men, aided by other Confederate forces, attacked the rear of Hooker's army and drove the Union troops back across the Rappahannock and Rappahamock rivers. It was in that battle that Jackson received wounds which resulted in his death a few days later. Under present plans, V. M. I. cadets will act as the Southern forces and the Marines will carry the Union banner.

Explorers To Study Tropical Lake Fish

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—An exploration party headed by Baron and Baroness Rodolph M. De Schaunsee, of this city, has left for the central highlands of Guatemala in search of birds, small mammals and plants, and to make soundings of a lake 5,000 feet above sea level. The party is accompanied by Waldemar Fiorvanti, of Florence, Italy. The expedition will be enlarged further when Brandon Barringer and Reginald Jacobs, both of Philadelphia, join the party. They will make the round trip by airplane. The group expects to be in the field for two months of exploration for the Academy of Natural Sciences of this city. Lake Atitlan is the locale of the expedition. The lake, high amid the mountains, having a known depth of more than 1,000 feet, is believed to contain some unusual fish. Using a specially built wire trap, de Schaunsee, one of the curators of the Academy, will attempt to secure additions to the species of fish already attributable to this body of water. Permits allowing the expedition to collect the beautiful orchids abounding in the region have been granted. The de Schaunsees are particularly interested in the cultivation of orchids. They have gathered orchids from Siam and other tropical countries on their estate.

DALLAS, Feb. 8.—Raymond Hamilton, elusive desperado, today was still "absent without leave" from a death sentence awaiting him at the state penitentiary. Hauptmann's attorney rested his side of the case after two lumber men had given testimony disputing the findings of the state's expert, Koehler. There is a board in each community maintaining a post office of the first or second class. Before paying money for tuition, or signing a contract, the commission advised, it is advisable to inquire into the prospect of examinations, as "there is reason to believe that agents of some schools deceive the public as to the probability of early examinations." It was pointed out that no school has advance information on the need for employees or the probability of examinations.

City Health Officer Denies Reports Of Epidemic In Cisco

MANY PUPILS ABSENT FROM CISCO SCHOOL

Although there are more cases of colds and grippe than there have been for some time, Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, Thursday denied that there are enough of such cases to warrant reports of "an epidemic of colds and influenza."

"Catarrhal diseases would cover most of the cases reported," Dr. Lee said. "There are a good many colds and grippe. There is only one case of a really contagious disease in town."

"There are some few cases of pneumonia. There is not a single case of diphtheria and only one of scarlet fever."

Dr. Lee's statement followed reports that there are many Ciscoans ill at present with influenza, pneumonia, and common colds. He appeared to believe there is no immediate need for alarm over an epidemic.

The public schools Thursday had reported that illness had cut down attendance, as to both pupils and teachers. The high school and the West Ward each reported one teacher absent. The grammar school reported three were unable to meet their classes, due to illness.

Principals of the high school and the grammar school each reported that between 25 and 30 pupils were absent, due to illness, although H. Brandon, principal of the high school said the number of absentees in his school had gradually increased until this number was reached Thursday.

The West Ward largest school in the city, reported that 149 pupils were absent Thursday.

It was pointed out that the pupils of this school are younger than those of the other two reporting and that this may have had something to do with the large number of absentees.

Robot Lighthouse Is Guide To Ships

PARIS, Feb. 8.—The first robot lighthouse in France has been constructed in Brittany and is now in operation on the Nividic Rock, near Ouessant Island, off the coast of Brest.
"Monsieur Nivide," as the Breton peasants call the new Robot, goes into action at nightfall, regardless of whether this happens to be at five p. m., as in winter, or at nine p. m., as in summer. Should the cable be broken, an acetylene torch of giant dimensions automatically functions, and during foggy weather a colossal siren sends a strident call across the waters of the Bay of Finistere.

During 1917, 1918 and 1919, thousands of American soldiers going to and from France, sailed past this rock. Work on the new lighthouse already had begun at that time, but was suspended on account of the war.
The Nividic Rock is in such a perilous spot that a lighthouse is necessary, but an ordinary one with a keeper is impossible. The rock is under the water most of the time and the rock can only be reached two or three times a year.
If the worst comes to the worst and the electric lights and acetylene torch and siren fail to function, the robot automatically informs sailors of danger ahead.

Blues Peter Haig - Thomas, who has trained Cambridge through most of its record succession of eleven wins, has been "loaned" by Cambridge to Oxford.

Five of Old Team
In his squad at Henley he has five members of last year's crew, which although beaten by 4 1-2 lengths was also inside the previous best time. They are M. H. Mosley, president, A. V. Sutcliffe, J. M. Couchman, P. R. S. Bankes, and P. Hoag.
There is a possibility of an American rowing in the race for the first time for several years. He is R. E. Plaumer, a Rhodes scholar from New Jersey, who was in the 1933 Princeton boat. Plaumer has been in the Oxford squad since it first started training.
Meanwhile Cambridge are continuing their training on the tiny Cam River, only just wide enough for one shell at a time. So far they have only three members of the crew which put up a record time of 18 minutes, three seconds for the 4 1-4 mile course last year.

MADRID-PARIS AIRLINE WILL START MAY 15

By LOSTER ZIFFREN
United Press Staff Correspondent
MADRID, Feb. 8.—The inauguration of the projected Madrid-Paris airline, scheduled for May 15, literally will remove Spain from its isolated position in western Europe.

Up to now Madrid's communication with western and central Europe was confined to a 24-hour railroad trip to Paris, while Madrid and Barcelona were connected with southern Europe by an aerial line to Rome.

The new airline will leave Paris only four hours from Madrid, instead of 24.

Fourteen passenger Douglas planes, each carrying a pilot, mechanic and radio operator, will leave Madrid daily at 7:30 a. m., and arrive in Paris at 11:40 a. m. The return plane will leave from Paris at 3:40 p. m., and reach Madrid at 6:50 p. m., thus permitting business men almost a full four hours between planes to transact their affairs in Paris and be able to return to Madrid before evening.

Airplane connections will permit persons leaving Madrid in the morning to reach London, Berlin, Amsterdam, Berne or Warsaw on the same day.

The new airline also will carry mail.

The route will be operated by the Spanish Aerial Postal Lines, now maintaining service from Madrid to Barcelona, Valencia and Seville. The Spanish lines under the present management have not had a single accident in six years and have registered only a few forced landings. A branch line from Seville to the Canary Islands and one from Barcelona to Palma, Mallorca, also are maintained.

Mr. Thompson has eight great selections from English literature and miscellaneous programs including American humor in his repertoire for the twentieth tour. Little Schoolhouse Closes Its Doors

DALLAS, Feb. 8.—The little white schoolhouse at Prairie Creek, near Dallas, well of learning for kiddies of that rural community for 35 years, has at last closed its doors.

Citizens agreed that enrollment was not large enough to justify maintenance of the school. Busses will take the children to Pleasant Grove school not far distant.

Onions Forecast Weather For Year

WESTERVILLE, O., Feb. 8.—Charles F. Rankey, 3-year-old retired farmer of Westerville, knows his onions — and thereby lists his uncanny ability for forecasting weather a year in advance.

Rankey's formula is:
"I take an onion — three inches across — peel out 12 of the cups and set them in a row east to west. Then I place a teaspoonful of salt in each cup at midnight, New Year's Eve, allowing them to lie undisturbed for 12 hours, each hour representing a month.

"When noon comes around the condition of the onion cups indicates the type of weather we will have throughout the year, each cup representing a month.
"A dry cup forecasts a dry month, a damp cup crusting the salt a month of moderate rainfall, and one in which water gathers reveals a heavy rainfall."

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Along with the Rogue's Gallery pictures in Boston police headquarters appear photographs of bullets. Tourist Leaves Wife, Continues Trip As Back Seat Driver When She Catches Him

ODESSA, Feb. 7.—A tourist couple middle aged and of kindly appearance were caused no end of embarrassment when the husband, after a short stop, resumed the trip, unwittingly leaving his wife behind.

Traveling westward by automobile with all their worldly possessions and family pets, they stopped at daybreak at a point west of Odessa to exercise their pets.

When the man, who had been driving, had again stowed away the pair of Irish terriers the full grown Scottie and the mammoth Persian cat, and had climbed in over a large box holding three terrier and three Scottie puppies he started off without looking for his wife in her accustomed place in the back seat and drove rapidly away without her.

When he stopped for gasoline at Peccos, some 60 miles nearer California, he discovered the oversight and after hectic telephoning persuaded the sheriff at Odessa to start a search for her. Later his wife telephoned him from Monohans that the Odessa sheriff was bringing her to Peccos and his chief concern became greatly altered.

Before the call, he was distressed over the plight of his wife. After the brief conversation, however, his distress shifted to the ordeal of the coming reunion. Waiting with the terriers and the Scottie in the family automobile, he kept repeating, "My wife is reheaded and a very very capable woman." "This is going to be awful," and "I'll never live long enough to hear the last of this."

When last seen headed for California about noon, a "new deal" had been inaugurated, the reheaded lady was driving, and the big, kindly man, slumped on the back seat, was dispiritedly repeating explanations in a dreary monotone.

Snowbound Caveman Simply Hibernates

DUBOIS, Idaho, Feb. 8.—Blizzards and deep snows have few terrors for an aged negro recluse of this section.

He merely hibernates, waits philosophically for rescuers. Several months ago he appeared, made his home in a cave dug in to the high bank of Beaver creek in an isolated spot five miles south of Spencer, Ida.

Then came a blizzard. Beaver creek was filled with 25 feet of snow. Four days passed and someone remembered the negro.

Sheriff Harry Rayner set out with deputies to search for the body.

They tunneled through the deep snow to the mouth of the cave. A blanket hung down over the entrance. Inside was the negro, alive, happy but positive that dry beans were poor food for a snowbound hermit.

TEXAS OIL PRODUCTION FOR 1934 DECLINES 20 MILLION BARRELS

By ELMER H. JOHNSON, Regional Economist Bureau of Business Research University of Texas
Preliminary figures on total production of oil, as published by The Oil Weekly, January 28, 1935, give to Texas a total of 380,848,000 barrels for the year 1934. This amount is some 20,000,000 barrels less than the reported production of Texas for 1933, which was the highest recorded production in Texas oil history. These preliminary figures give to Texas for 1934 42 per cent of the total national output for the past year. While these preliminary figures are subject to revision, yet the fact that Texas is currently producing more than 40 per cent of the national oil output is a fact of almost staggering significance.
Furthermore, it is to be noted that according to these preliminary data Texas alone produced more than the combined total of Oklahoma and California; in fact, Texas produced, according to these data almost as much as the combined total of the three states ranking next to Texas, namely, Oklahoma, California and Louisiana.
The data and comparisons of Texas oil production easily establish the fact that the state is dominant in oil production, and this is a fact rather generally recognized. What is not so widely realized, however, is the position of Texas and of the states of the Gulf Southwest in the value of total mineral production in the nation.

Increase in 10 Years
For instance, in 1923, the states of Gulf Southwest produced only 13.6 per cent of the total value of the mineral products of the United States. In 1932, this group of states furnished 29.4 per cent of the total for the nation — truly an amazing increase for a ten-year period.
In 1923, however, Texas was third in oil production, being out-distanced by both California and Oklahoma; in fact, California at that time was producing almost as much as Oklahoma and Texas combined. Since that period, however, Texas has become the dominant oil producing state. Moreover, the total value of mineral products of the Gulf Southwest has come to rank quite favorably with that of the Middle Atlantic states, a region which has long been not only the leading mineral-producing section of the nation but also for a century the industrial center of the United States.
In 1932, for instance, the value of minerals of the Gulf Southwest — a section that has developed as a great mineral-producing region only since 1900 — was almost as great as that of the century-old or older mineral-industrial-producing section of the Middle Atlantic group of states.
The great centers of world industry were established on, or with direct reference to the available high-grade coal resources of the world; these were established long before oil or the modern electrical industry became so significant.

Aged Negro Proud of The Fact He Was Only Slave Sam Houston Ever Whipped

BELTON, Feb. 8.—"Uncle" Jeff Hamilton, 90-year-old Negro, has a direct personal interest in the Texas Centennial celebration planned for 1936.
He is the last survivor of a group of slaves once owned by General Sam Houston who commanded an army of Texans which conquered General Santa Anna and defeated Mexico in the war for the Lone Star's independence.
Young Jeff was the personal servant of General Houston for several years. Purchased when he was only eight years old, Jeff stayed with "Marse Sam" until the patriot's death in the old "Steamboat House" in Huntsville, July 26, 1863.
Jeff is spending his declining years reveling in memories of early Texas events. He is proud that he was the slave of the man who was the first president of the Texas Republic and later one of its first United States senators and who served as governor of the state.
Jeff also is proud that he was the only slave Houston ever thrashed. This was because the young negro almost caused the general's daughter, Nancy Elizabeth Houston, to drown in a creek near the Huntsville home.
"Miss Nancy was just a little girl then," Jeff said. "General Houston had a very spirited horse and every one knew the animal became enraged if anyone spit in his face."
"I was just a little kid then and I guess I was feelin' mischievous when I told Miss Nancy to spit in the horse's face."
"She did an' the horse rared up on its hind legs and advanced toward her, snortin' in anger."
"Miss Nancy fell back in fright, screamin' and tumblin' toward the creek, where she fell into the deep part."
"I scrambled into the creek and pulled her out, but by that time all the family had rushed out to see what the trouble was."
"General Houston gave me a thrashin' for that, but as far as I was concerned, I was the victor."
Jeff is proud that he was the only slave Houston ever thrashed. This was because the young negro almost caused the general's daughter, Nancy Elizabeth Houston, to drown in a creek near the Huntsville home.

President Favors Low Pension

Because a $15 a month Federal old age pension—match by another $15 from the states—will be costing the Federal Government $585,000,000 a year by 1980, President Roosevelt is not willing that the amount should be set higher.

Indeed, it has been figured that to increase the $15 to $30 per person would not increase the $85,000,000 in direct cost, but almost as by its square, although President Roosevelt confessed his inability to figure it out.

At any rate, since it is contemplated to pay the costs of the old age pension out of current taxation, the president believes $85,000,000 is the topmost amount which can now be contemplated for 45 years hence. If progress in the meantime makes a heavier burden practicable, then it can be undertaken.

The present cost is much lower, but the burden increases every year until it hits its high when the maximum of people now 21 have reached pensionable age without having made full contributions.

Of course, the president said, $30 a month total, federal and state contributed does not provide a fancy living. But studies have shown that the New York average of $250 a year would provide bare sustenance, and that $360 a year would be better. Local differences, he said, would need to be averaged, since $30 a month in Georgia would provide a far better living than $30 a month in New York. But if the $15 from Washington is increased, he pointed out, it rises sharply to fantastic limits, the burden of which could not be contemplated.

By this explanation, the full gulf between the administration's plan and proposals, such as that of Dr. Francis E. Townsend is shown. One, the administration's plan, is intended merely to provide relief; others, such as the $200-a-month scheme, are not for relief purposes, but aimed at national recovery by building up purchasing power. Between the two is a fundamental philosophical distinction, and these basic facts show why observers regard the administration proposal as the greatest proof to date of its determination to stick to orthodox policies.

Ancient World Undeveloped

We are prone to think that the world is just about all developed and many people will say now and then that some of the people will have to be killed off or else the world will come to an end. But the recent report of Explorer Hedin tells of vast rich lands in Asia that is now waste land, but which can be made to bloom again, support big populations.

Immense deserts of central Asia, once the home of millions of persons, can be made to bloom again by harnessing disappearing rivers, Sven Hedin, Swedish explorer, said, after his arrival from Chinese Turkestan.

Mr. Hedin described his journey as the "most adventurous and sensational trip of my entire life."

He explored and mapped regions hitherto unknown on behalf of the Chinese Government, which seeks to establish automobile routes through the wilderness of central Asia.

In the ruins of ancient buried cities he found Indian and Chinese manuscripts centuries old. He said he was kidnapped by Mongols, captured by a rebel Mohammedan army, and fired at repeatedly by hostile tribesmen.

The explorer's principal interest was in his dream for a motor route across an ancient caravan trail, and in the territory of the lower reaches of the Tarim River which flows into the "Wandering Lake."

He said, "Our investigations impressed us more than ever with the tremendous potentialities of Turkestan, where deep, wide rivers that have no outlet are going to waste on the desert sands." He declared the construction of gravitational canals would restore the fertility of these wastes, which centuries ago were the sites of flourishing cities.

His expedition, which used automobiles, started from Peiping late in 1933 and covered 10,000 miles.

SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE TO GET FOUR NEW GRID COACHES

ATLANTA, Feb. 8.—At least four new faces will be seen in the lineup of Southeastern conference football coaches when the first platoon is lined up against the sky in the 1935 season.

Oddly enough, only one change was attended by acrimonious exchanges and personalities. That was the resignation of Capt. Lawrence (Biff) Jones, former Army coach, at Louisiana State, after he refused to bow to the whims of Senator Huey P. Long.

Bernie Moore, former line coach and assistant to Jones, got the L. S. U. assignment and must produce a winning team next year to make good. Long has served notice to that effect.

At Tennessee, William Hamilton Britton, assistant coach, who aided Major Robert R. Neyland in fitting the Volunteers to a high rank among the country's teams, will be in charge next season. Neyland relinquished the reins when the Army transferred him to the Panama Canal Zone.

The University of South Carolina Gamecocks summoned Don McAlister, Illinois graduate, to replace the veteran William L. Loyal as football coach and director of athletics. Loyal's contract was not renewed.

Ray Morrison, famous "aerial circus" expert at Southern Methodist for 15 years, will guide the destinies of Vanderbilt, replacing Dan McGugin, who resigned after 30 years of coaching to become director of athletics.

Mississippi State looks for a great 1935 season under Major Ralph Sasse, former Army head coach who drew the assignment to replace Capt. A. R. McTechnie, resigned.

The Only Supreme Court Cold Decision So Far

ON THE POLITICAL ANVIL

By RAYMOND BROOKS
Sen. Will Beck, chairman of the senate crime committee and author of the bill to create a state police system has pointed out that his measure will integrate existing law-enforcement officials and "and only 30 new people — experts in charge of the headquarters division at Austin."

The measure will retain the historic Texas ranger service as it is. It will keep the widely-praised Texas highway patrol system as it is, except to expand the powers of the patrol members.

It will set up the state bureau of fingerprinting and criminal identification so long sought by all peace officers. It will establish a state training school at Camp Mabry, Austin, for the men who are to represent the state as its officers.

Communications
It will call in and integrate in the system all city marshals, sheriffs and constables, and confer upon each of them all the powers of any other member of the state police, which will mean to extend their jurisdiction, when called into service to any part of the state.

It will set up a regionalized communications system, permitting the officers in any section of the state to report to headquarters, and to have the wide instant dissemination of reports to enable the officers to trail down criminals wherever they may start.

Sen. Beck, after consulting with many experts in the field, prepared this bill. He has discussed it with Gov. Allred, whose administration has promised the establishment of a strong state police system. Gov. Allred has expressed satisfaction with the plan, and has joined Dr. Beck in support of the measure.

Dr. Beck explained the training school for officers, giving the state the opportunity to call in the best experts to help train the men, will be a key feature of the law. Just as the training school for highway patrolmen quickly established this service as one of the finest in the country.

One effect will be to end the state of a lot of racketeering in the arrest and fining and pyramiding of fees in complaints against motorists and truck operators. Dr. Beck explained that recently made public findings on the rolling conditions of this racketeering.

But the actual law violators will help pay the cost of administering the state police system. Dr. Beck explained. Instead of paying thousands of dollars into the pockets of racketeering constables, the law will levy a $1 additional fine on each violator, and put the money in the fund to support the cost of conducting the state police system. Extensive plans for public information and education to enlist cooperation for the law enforcement agency are embodied in the bill.

States Planning Taxation Meeting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—State governors and delegates from state legislatures throughout the nation will meet here late in February to consider a report of the Interstate Commission on Conflicting Taxation dealing with better distribution of tax resources between the states and federal government.

The Commission is one of three bodies of state legislators and administrative officers whose executive boards have been studying the tax question. The others are the council of state governments and the American Legislators' association.

The Interstate commission on Conflicting Taxation was created two years ago by the Interstate legislative assembly. It has been making a comprehensive survey designed to arrive at a better method of distributing tax resources between the states and the federal government.

Material gathered will enable the forthcoming assembly of the states to submit definite proposals to the federal government for a better distribution of the tax load.

"Bell" Rings Too Often; Writer Held

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—"Bell," a self-appointed Paul Revere, has been located finally by police. About 60 and "obviously a mental case," according to Detective Chief James Gill, of suburban Cleveland Heights, "Bell" is "under observation" by officers.

For months, Bell who signed no other name, had deluged financial institutions, individuals and Chambers of Commerce with letters darkly warning of some impending bank robbery and surreptitious plots by politicians.

The one who may suffer most from Bell's capture is Postmaster General James A. Farley. Bell was no tightwad with his stamps.

Conditional Passes Given Due to Relief

DALLAS, Feb. 8.—The greatest number of provisional promotions in the history of the Dallas public school system will be given this year according to W. A. Hamilton, school principal.

The cause for the large number of provisional promotions is directly traceable to the children of parents on relief, Hamilton said.

The school board recognizes that undernourished children, worried, sensitive and timid, cannot be expected to do the normal amount of school work and grants them provisional promotions instead of failing them.

In spite of aid given by parent-teacher groups and other organizations, many children suffer from extreme hunger because they will not tell their teachers of their condition, according to Hamilton.

If they are given the proper food, children of relief parents do normal work, it was said, and in some cases such children are leaders in their class.

Ten States Entered In Debate Contest

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 8.—Universities and colleges from ten states are expected to be represented by debate teams when the third annual University of Iowa Forensic Tournament opens March 1.

In addition to debates on four different questions, a "Congressional session" will be held at the tournament. A member of President Roosevelt's cabinet is to be asked to name the general subject for this session believed to be the first of its kind ever held. Each institution in the tournament may enter an unlimited number of speakers, who may choose their own stand on the question to be discussed.

A speaker of the house and other officers will be chosen and procedure will follow formal rules of order.

After the discussion, a vote will be taken on the merits of the question.

In the regular debate division, eight debates of four round will be held on each question. Three of the four questions have been selected.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

NEW YORK.—There is no question that the panic is on in two or three cities, but baseball is a hardy game, and I have an idea that both the National and American Leagues will survive for a few years more.

Merging them into one loop of 12, or perhaps 10 clubs, would be too complicated, and leave the circuit too unwieldy. The old National League found its 12 teams unmanageable in the frisky '90s.

A post-season series between the winners of the Eastern and Western divisions hardly would replace the world series, a tremendous money getter.

There is talk of switching a franchise whenever it is revealed that an owner is suffering from the shorts.

Until recent years, Baltimore and Milwaukee were the sites, usually proposed, but now Montreal syndicates make the most noise.

It also has been suggested that another New York outfit might well operate in the borough of Queens. With Detroit's success last season, it was urged that the automobile center be rewarded with continuous baseball.

To dump the Boston Nationals into Baltimore or Montreal, permission first would have to be obtained from the International League.

Likewise, the American Association would have to approve before a big time year could be installed in Milwaukee.

No Place to Go

NEITHER Baltimore, Milwaukee, nor Montreal is a major league city.

Rich as Baltimore baseball tradition was made by the original Orioles, the city hasn't supported its minor league clubs. It was real news when the late Jack Dunn's combinations failed to win the International League nag. They usually top-towered the field, yet Dunn had to develop and peddle Groves, Bentley, Earnshaw, Boleys, Bishop, and Porters to make a go of it.

The Montreal club has declared no record-breaking dividends since its return to the International, although it does business in a fine park in the center of more than a million people.

One readily can imagine the protest that would be filed by the joint forces of the New York and Brooklyn Nationals and the New York Americans if it was proposed that another club pitch camp at Long Island City.

Frank Navin will tell the boys reconstructing the major league on paper and mentally that Detroit is no place for a second club to light. The Detroit club was badly bent financially a year ago.

Two Solutions

IT may be true that no National League entry showed a profit in 1934, but the St. Louis Browns ran into the red for the fifth successive campaign; and that J. Louis Comiskey had to hustle the bankroll with which he hopes to rebuild the Chicago White Sox.

Introduction of night baseball in the National certainly isn't an indication of prosperity.

Yet the National and American loops are not likely to be torn apart in the immediate future.

Major league baseball has developed into a hucksters' game and a rich man's plaything.

When an outfit has no Cronin, Grove, Cochran, Simmons, Earnshaw, Klein, or Bartell with which to bail itself out, it must dig up a Wrigley, Ruppert, Crosley, a young Tom Yawkey, or a Bradley. The sale of Fred Frankhouse might have kept the dogs out of Braves Field for some time.

They are: Adoption by states of unicameral legislatures; international arms embargo; and collective bargaining through non-company unions safeguarded by law. The fourth topic is to be announced later.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A new

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, party and 23 works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their father's family.

STEVIE MEXETS, who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and meets a girl named VICKY WESTMORE whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to marry Brian.

LEOTA BOLLER, another employee, tells Gale the mill workers are planning to organize and demand their rights. She asks Gale to come to a meeting and give a speech.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XX

Brian Westmore skated slowly, hands in pockets, the tip of his cigarette glowing in the darkness. As far as the bend in the river where the big cottonwood hung over the ice he went, then turned back. He had made the trip three times within the last half hour.

Brian skated close to the river bank, in the shadows. No 7 and then he looked back, but there was no one in sight. He had the river to himself until he drew near the boat house. There were other skaters there—a dozen or boys playing hockey, half a dozen young girls, several couples and a dark youth cutting figures on the ice.

One of the hockey players went down and there were a few shrill cries and laughter. Brian circled the edge of the crowd, keeping his eyes on the place where the road came down past the boat house to a sort of wharf.

"She isn't coming," he told himself. No, Gale Henderson wasn't coming. He'd been telling himself that for 15 minutes and yet he waited. Brian tossed his cigarette aside, turned and made his way up the river again.

All day long Brian had been looking forward to seeing Gale Henderson, so saving times to tell her. He couldn't forget the girl. It wasn't that she was so pretty, though of course she was that, too. But he wanted to talk to her. He felt he could talk to her. Brian, during the past few weeks, had discovered that there were plenty of people to dictate letters to, there were plenty to attend conferences and to present reports and tables of figures, there were plenty to attend his mother's dinner parties but there was almost no one to talk to.

THE men at the mill, heads of departments and their assistants, were all older than he was. When Brian wanted to make a suggestion he was aware of this, aware, too, that they were experienced and he was not.

He'd tried getting acquainted with some of the younger men, the assistants, but they hadn't turned out very well either. Gale Henderson was the only one about the mill who had really treated him like a human being. He wanted to tell her about that pension plan he'd worked out and see if she thought the employees would like it.

He passed the place where they'd had their campfire the night before. The shore was dark and lonely now. And there was no slender figure wearing a short skirt and leather jacket skating toward him. There was no one at all in sight.

Brian told himself again, "She isn't coming."

This time when he reached the boat house he took off his skates and walked down the road to the place where he had left his coupe. He got inside and turned the car about and started for home. Half way there he changed his mind and made a turn left. His mother was having some friends in, he remembered, and he didn't want to see them. He could drive to the club and see if anything was happening there or he could look up Ted Bainbridge—

Brian decided to do none of these things. A better prospect presented itself. He'd drop in at Thatcher's. If Vicky were home he'd be assured of agreeable company. Vicky was a good sort—just the one to get him out of this moodiness.

A MAID in uniform answered his ring and said yes, that Vicky was in.

Brian said, "Where is she—in the living room? I'll go in."

He turned into the large room at the left. Vicky was there, slim and picturesque in emerald velvet, with one arm stretched against the back of the davenport.

A young man sat facing her. He was a tall young man with tawny-reddish hair and his features were pleasant enough but it was clear that the young man was not pleased about something.

He said, "But look, Vicky—" and then stopped, seeing Brian.

Vicky was on her feet at once. "Brian!" she exclaimed, hurrying forward. "How sweet of you! I'd begun to think you'd buried your self in that mill. Come and tell us how the wheels of industry are turning."

Greg Harmon had risen, too, but he was not smiling. "Hello, Brian," he said rather curtly. "How're you? Hope you don't mind if I run along?"

sleeve fell back, revealing a slim white arm. "Thank goodness that's over," she said dryly. "Give me a cigarette, Brian. I feel the need of one."

"You, Vicky? What on earth have you been doing?"

The girl's eyes regarded him pensively. "It's Greg," she said. "I don't know what I'm going to do about him."

"Well—?"

SHE shook her head. "Greg's getting to be a problem. Brian, honestly, I don't know what to do. Just because I've gone around with him a little—playing golf and riding horseback and now and then going to parties—he seems to think I haven't any right to go with anyone else. It's ridiculous! And whenever I say anything he gets the way he was tonight—sullen and simply unbearable."

Brian shook his head, smiling. "The perils of being an irresistible charmer, my dear!"

Vicky pouted. "You can laugh," she said, "but it isn't very funny to me." Suddenly she stopped and the dark eyes grew rounder. "Oh," she said, "I've just thought of something—"

"Animal, mineral or vegetable?" She made a deprecating little movement with one hand. "I'm serious, Vicky. I am." She went on, her voice touched with excitement. "But I don't see why it wouldn't work! Brian, will you do something for me?"

"Maybe I'd better hear about it first."

"It's nothing that would be so terribly hard—at least I don't think it would be. Just to take me to a few parties and be seen with me. Oh, it's the very thing! Would you, Brian? Would you do that?"

"See here, I don't know what you're getting at."

"It's about Greg," she explained. "Don't you see that if you begin taking me places and—sort of seem fond of me—it will be the best way in the world to teach Greg that he can't order me around and bully me the way he's been trying to? It's exactly what he needs. You wouldn't have to keep it up long—only until Greg comes to his senses."

"Oh," he said, "I see. You want me to step in and play the heavy lover until Greg gets the idea he's not wanted."

Vicky nodded. There was a gleam of almost feline satisfaction in the dark eyes. "Of course," she said, "we'd only be pretending."

"Of course. Well, if all you want me to do is to be your attentive escort I don't know how I can refuse."

"You'll do it? You will?" She put both hands on his arm and drew him nearer. "Oh, Brian, she said, "you are sweet!"

"She looked very pretty as she raised her face to his, eyes glowing and the red lips slightly parted. Another girl had disappeared him that evening. Brian Westmore said slowly, "Of course, I'll help you, Vicky. Of course I will."

FARM RELIEF CLIENTS MUST WORK ON FARM

Although relief here with the exception of that for unemployables, is being administered primarily on a work basis, no farmers are to be "carded out" for work unless they have other workers in their families. It was announced Thursday by J. W. Slaughter, head of the local relief headquarters.

"We recently received an order not to card out any clients living on farms," he said, "unless they have in their families other workers."

"We have been told to issue what groceries they need, but not to put them to work on current projects."

Save Farm Work

He pointed out that this move has been taken to insure the relief clients on farms of being able to work their farms rather than to live on them and be unable to make a living there due to work elsewhere.

In cases where there are other employables in the farm family on the relief roll, however, Slaughter said, the grocery order will not be issued, but work will be granted as in the case of any other family of relief clients.

"All our other relief is granted on a basis of work," he said. "The only clients we are now giving direct relief to are the unemployables. The charge for the direct relief to work projects is in accordance with the plan announced by Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins for the first of the year, and with the recently announced intentions of President Roosevelt in his anti-dole campaign.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE

TALK about pie pretty often on the theory that it's impossible to overdo a really good thing. I am completely convinced that well-made crisp flaky crust, luscious filling and meringue that melts in your mouth have kept many a home from falling to pieces. It's an axiom that men prefer pie, and I believe in axioms. They are the result of the race's experience!

Most plain everyday meals find in pie their perfect ending. A pie made with a filling of milk and eggs contains many calories and much actual food value, too, so if precede it with only a sandwich and a glass of milk you have a well-balanced, nourishing meal.

One-Crust Pies Riches

It's the one-crust meringue-covered pies mostly that supply the food value and nourishment. Most of these pies are nothing more nor less than delicate cornstarch puddings, served in pie crust and topped with whites of eggs beaten until stiff with sugar. Even little children may have the filling, although the crust should be denied them.

When you bake your crust and then fill it there's no danger of a soggy crust. Also, you can bake the crust several days before you plan to use it and fill it with the filling that best suits the main course. For example if you're having fish choose a lemon filling, pork chops would precede a chocolate filling, after veal a prune or raisin filling is delicious and helps to balance the meal.

Chocolate Cream Pie

Three squares baking chocolate, 2 1/2 cups milk, 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler, beating with a rotary beater as chocolate begins to melt. Beat until blended. Mix and sift sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add enough hot milk to make

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Pineapple juice, cereal, cream, creamed eggs on toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Macaroni chop suey, cottage cheese and currant preserves and head lettuce salad, pop-overs, milk, tea.

DINNER: Roast shoulder of pork, potatoes baked with meat, red cabbage and apples, chocolate cream pie, milk, coffee.

mixture of pouring consistency, stirring to keep smooth. Add to hot milk in double boiler and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Then continue cooking about ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour a small amount of mixture over egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return this to double boiler and cook two minutes longer. Remove from heat stir in butter and vanilla and beat with spoon until slightly cooled. Cool. Turn into pie shell and cover with meringue made with whites of eggs. Or you can cover the chocolate filling with whipped cream.

A meringue is best to cover a lemon pie, however.

I like red cabbage with pork in any form and, of course, apples are traditional. So why not cabbage and apples?

Red Cabbage and Apples

Three cups shredded red cabbage, 3 cups thinly sliced red apples, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons currant jelly, 1-4 teaspoon white pepper, 4 tablespoons vinegar.

Wash and core apples. Cook cabbage and apples in just enough water to prevent burning until tender. Toss the mixture lightly with a fork to insure even cooking. Add butter, salt, pepper, jelly and vinegar and cook and stir until jelly and butter are melted and mixture is very hot. Serve at once.

You can use white cabbage if red cabbage is not available.

Lon A. Smith Forecasts More Peaceful Situation In Oil Fields of East Texas

Lon A. Smith, member of the railroad commission of Texas, today told Ciscoans that he foresees a brighter future for the oil industry in East Texas, "the greatest oil field in the world." His statement was made in an address before the Cisco Rotary club.

"I have been in the East Texas field and have been watching it closely," he said, "and I find that the situation there is coming more and more under control."

Leaving the oil situation, the commissioner spent the rest of his time in telling anecdotes.

C. F. Petet, secretary of the commission told the Rotarians that "I probably know more about Cisco than any other outsider." He said that his secretary, Miss Letha Eager, formerly of Cisco, "is still a Ciscoan and she's sold me on this city."

The two representatives of the railroad commission were here for a hearing upon the application of the M.-K.-T. railroad to alter its schedule on a branch of the Texas Central division.

PROJECTS ARE ANNOUNCED BY RELIEF OFFICE

Extension of the FERA school, a supplement to the fish hatchery project, and the establishment of a five-teacher nursery school were announced by the local relief offices Thursday.

The FERA school run will be extended to June 27, according to J. W. Slaughter, head of the Cisco relief forces. It was originally scheduled to terminate Feb. 1.

Approval of the fish hatchery project was announced Thursday with an estimated cost of $2,604.30. Of this amount the relief FERA will furnish $2,377.80 and the applicant $326.50.

Five teachers, three of them full-time and two part-time, were approved for the nursery school, to be held at the high school. The project, as approved, calls for three full-time teachers at a cost of $945, two part-time teachers at a cost of $315, and food, at 12 cents a meal, to cost $1,071, with a total of $2,331.

Unlike the other FERA schools the nursery will be continued until June 21 only, rather than until June 27.

Sap Stains Licked By Furniture Men

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — Sap stains no longer will be the nemesis of furniture manufacturers.

The Agriculture department, in co-operation with southern lumbermen, has developed a method of preventing discoloration of unseasoned logs and lumber by sapstaining fungi.

In recent years, it was pointed out, consumers have turned thumbs down on discolored wood. This results in increased costs and marketing difficulties for both manufacturers and lumber dealers.

Although sap stains only slightly affect the strength of the wood, a good natural finish is rendered impossible.

More than 200 chemicals or chemical combinations were tested by the Division of Forest Pathology.

Two treatments—one a water solution of organic mercury compounds and the other a mixture of chlorinated phenols at relatively low concentrations—were found to control stains in either pine or hard woods. A third, borax in saturated solution, was found to be effective solely on hardwoods.

New Tuberculin Is Begin Given Test

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A new tuberculin believe to be more reliable than bot tuberculin in revealing the presence of tuberculosis in cattle now is being used by the Agriculture Department in its cattle-health campaign.

The new tuberculin is made from a pure chemical which takes the place of meat broth. Dr. M. Dorset, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, said it has proved more reliable than other tuberculin in more than 40,000 comparative tests.

He said that as a result, more cattle have been tested in the last eight months than in any previous similar period of the health campaign.

It was pointed out that a few cattle failed to react to the Koch tuberculin, discovered by Robert Koch more than 40 years ago, and believed to be an excellent test.

COWBOYS USE SIMPLE RULES FOR TRAINING

ABILENE, Feb. 8.—Simple training rules and hard practice sessions will be in vogue at Hardin-Simmons university this fall when Frank Kimbrough, new Cowboy grid mentor takes charge. "I believe in good blocking first, then good, vicious tackling," said the new coach. "Therefore we will spend a lot of time having fun blocking. When I say fun, I mean fun. I want the boys to learn to enjoy good, hard contact."

In regards to training rules, Kimbrough says, "everyone has a different conception. I think a boy once in shape can eat almost anything at meal time, but nothing but fruits between meals. I always want my fellows to have what they want."

provided it is within the bounds of reason, along the diet line.

"A boy who respects himself and his football team is not going to break training very often, if at all," the former Hardin-Simmons star concluded.

Kimbrough, who coached the Amarillo Junior college team to two championships the past two years will be faced with one of the toughest schedules ever carded for a Hardin-Simmons club.
