ITALIANS PREPARING FOR NEXT DRIVE

Work Orders Issued on WPA Road Project

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

For a long, long time the Cisco Lobo band has been practising "The End of a Perfect Day" as the postlude to a high school football game. But every time the team got beat, Friday afternoon, the band was able to play the tune for the first time. The Loboes beat Ranger 14 to 7.

They tooted with gusto. The song was the finishing touch to a program the young players and members of the pep squad had put on with credit to the work that they had spent in practising their parts. At the half the band, standing in midfield, played an accompaniment as the peppers marched on the gridiron bearing the numbers "1936" and formed a T with tiny U. S. flags, pointing toward the Texas centennial next year.

After this maneuver the band entertained the spectators with a series of complicated drills.

Hiram Brandon Friday was boasting about how independent he is at home. The day was the anniversary of his and Mrs. Brandon's wedding. He declared that he reminded Mrs. Brandon took occasion to parade his accomplishments so that she would be properly impressed. But I have usually found it to be true that when a husband does a great deal of talking away from home, it is a sign that the fireside audience is not properly appreciative.

The Cisco Loboes played a good game Friday. The triple pass play that worked was worth the price of admission. The boys deserve a hand. It was the first time that a Cisco team has defeated a Ranger team since 1930.

But the Loboes have one effective weapon that many grandstand critics wonder why isn't used more. It is the good right foot of Stansbury. Against Breckenridge he was consistently out-kicking the opposition. But instead of keeping the slippery ball booted deep into the Breckenridge end of the field and making the Greenies handle it, Cisco elected to run with it all the time. The Buckies did the kicking and because they did they eventually got it into scoring positions that gave them their golden opportunities. Against Ranger Friday, Stansbury was also getting the best of the punting. His kicking is one of the best of useful weapons, to my mind, that the Loboes have. If it was used more it would deal opposing teams plenty of misery.

Wende's work at end in the Ranger game Friday was excellent. His pass snatching and his laterals to Beasley gave the grandstands a real thrill. It was nice work, much of it under great difficulties when quick and right thinking were necessary.

Woods' ball-carrying was another outstanding bit of offensive play that got attention. The boy has a will to go places and a drive that carries him there. He picked

MRS. OWEN IS BURIED SAT.

Funeral services for Mrs. L. B. Owen, 35, wife of Erwin Owen who died at 6 p. m. Friday at the family home, 301 West 14th street, were held at 3 p. m. Saturday from the Church of God. The Rev. C. S. Moad, pastor, officiated. Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements for burial in Oakwood cemetery.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four children.

3 FARM TO MARKET JOBS NEAR CISCO

Others Due to Be Released Within Short While

Work orders have been received on three "farm-to-market" WPA road projects in Eastland county, County Judge Clyde L. Garrett said Saturday afternoon. Orders are expected momentarily upon projects at Ranger and Rising Star which will equal in expenditures those already given the "go-ahead" signal, he said.

Those for which orders have been received are: 1—Eastland-Grapevine road, on the line between Precincts One and Four, extending 13.8 miles south from a junction with Highway One, midway between Cisco and Eastland. The project calls for $38,000 expenditure and employment of 115 to 125 men over a period of six months. Men were to be carded out by the national reemployment office at Eastland on Tuesday, November 20.

2—Scranton to Dothan road, six miles long. This project calls for an expenditure of $13,000 and employment of 84 men over a three-month period. Men were to be carded out on November 21.

3—Cisco canyon road, north of Cisco. The project is 4.4 miles in length and calls for expenditure of $17,000 and employment of 65 men over a four-month period. Workers were to be carded out November 22.

The roads will be graded and concrete drainage structures built. Materials are to be furnished by the county, which is also required to build the dumps.

Four Americans Reported Beaten by Rome Fascists

ROME, Nov. 16. (AP)—Four American musicians were beaten by Blackshirts here, friends were told today, after they had laughed and failed to salute when a fascist funeral passed. The Americans composed the "Manhattan String Quartet" and were scheduled to play Monday under the auspices of the Rome Philharmonic society. They cancelled the engagement after the incident and left for Paris. The quartet was composed of Rachmael Weinstock, New York; Oliver Edel, Yonkers; Harris Danziger, London, and Julius Shailer, New York.

Another Student Riot in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 16. (AP)—With six already dead, another student riot broke out in Egypt today, resulting in eight injured. The government announced that police and students clashed at Zagazig and that two students and six policemen were hurt. Police broke up another demonstration here.

LOCAL CAMPAIGN FOR ROGERS MEMORIAL TO START MONDAY

A thorough canvass of Cisco by picked teams of business men will be made Monday and Tuesday in a campaign to provide the community with a creditable showing in the Will Rogers Memorial Campaign, Chairman W. J. Leach announced Saturday.

The local campaign has been carefully and thoroughly organized under the direction of Mr. Leach and each team has a list in hand and a letter of instructions

New Pastor

The Rev. W. H. Cole, who will preach his first sermon at the First Methodist church at 11 a. m. today. He comes from Trinity Heights church, Fort Worth.

To Preach First Pastoral Sermon at 11 a. m. Today

The Rev. W. H. Cole, new pastor of the First Methodist church, will preach his first pastoral sermon this morning at 11 o'clock on the subject, "The Returns of Christianity." He has tentatively chosen for his subject this evening, "The Worst Thing That Ever Happened to Christ."

The Rev. Mr. Cole and his family arrived Thursday night, occupying the parsonage at Front and Tenth street, vacated by the Rev. Frank L. Turner, transferred to Hemphill Heights at Fort Worth. Their four children are Agnes, 15; Hugh, 13; Edward, 11, and Richard, 9.

The new pastor holds A. B. and B. D. degrees from SMU. He was reared at Moran, Texas, and attended Stamford and Meridian colleges each two years, and Baylor university and SMU each four years, making a total of 12 years of college schooling. He was at one time president of Meridian.

Mrs. Cole, who was reared at Waco, is a graduate of Baylor university, majoring in literature and expression, and is also a graduate of the Curry School of expression, Boston, Mass. She taught expression at Baylor for a year, 1917-1918, and taught English and expression in 1918 and 1919 at Rusk Junior college, Rusk, Texas. She and Mr. Cole were married in 1919.

Cisco Man Among Liquor Raid Arrests

EASTLAND, Nov. 16.—Federal officers from Fort Worth, with Sheriff Virge Foster seized and confiscated liquor found at four stills in Eastland county Thursday.

The still raids netted one arrest, a Cisco resident, who was to be charged at Abilene.

In the Nimrod section, three large stills were found and 128 gallons of whisky poured out by officers at one location.

A still of 200 gallons capacity was found near Long Branch.

Employables Refuse Work, Ordered Off

FORT WORTH, Nov. 16. (AP)—Dist. Adm'r Floyd Helm ordered all employables off direct relief in Tarrant, Denton, Montague, Wise and Cooke counties because they had refused to accept jobs in turkey dressing plants, he said.

"There is no excuse for any employable man or woman turning down work of this kind," Helm asserted.

LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR DINNER

Tickets on Sale Monday; Blanton to Be Speaker

A special effort will be made to secure representative attendance from outlying rural communities—particularly those served by Cisco high school on bus routes—at the Booster dinner Monday, November 25, which will be addressed by Cong. Thomas L. Blanton, Johnny Cox, Booster president announced.

Tickets for the dinner will go on sale Monday, November 18. They will sell at 50 cents each. The dinner will be served on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel.

Mr. Cox said, also, that an invitation has been extended Wendell W. Mayes, Brownwood editor and new chairman of the Texas State Parks board. Mr. Blanton will be here part of the afternoon preceding the dinner and will be shown over the 500-acre park site accepted by the state for development in the canyon area immediately north of the city.

Plans for the banquet, for which between 150 and 200 are expected, include efforts to secure groups from Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge, Rising Star and other towns in the Cisco section.

Accident Victims at Sanitarium Are Resting Well

Bill Blair, Breckenridge, employee of the American Glycerin company, Cisco, who was injured when his car overturned five miles north of Cisco on the Lee-ray highway, was resting well in Graham sanitarium Saturday afternoon, attendants reported.

Wanda Ray Milwee, 6-year-old Rising Star girl, who has been in Graham sanitarium four weeks recovering from a fracture of the femur, was resting well.

Likewise, R. O. Fenley, in the sanitarium five weeks with a broken leg, was doing nicely.

3RD NAMED TO LIQUOR BOARD

AUSTIN, Nov. 16. (AP)—Texans today faced three or four legal-liquorless days despite repeal and the establishment of the state liquor control board.

Gov. Allred appointed J. W. Williams, Port Arthur attorney and "liberal," to the control board. The other two, D. B. Benson, Bowie "dry," and D. J. Decherd, Flatonia "liberal," were sworn in today. The new liquor control act, however, prohibited sale without licenses, which will be issued after a few days.

Allred designated Benson for the six-year term, Decherd for four years and Williams for two. Benson and Decherd said they would begin sessions, but selection of an administrator would be delayed until Williams arrives Monday.

Dear Santa:

I am a little girl seven years old. I would like a big doll with brown eyes and curly hair, also a good story book and anything else you want to bring me. Writing you a safe trip to Cisco, your Dorothy Jean Watson.

Cisco, Texas, November 15, 1935.

Dear Santa: Please bring me a doll, sewing machine, book satchel, house shoes and electric iron and ironing board. Don't forget my little friends. Love, Fernde Lois Huestis.

THREE CORPS ENTRENCHED IN ADVANCE

Campaign Under Way to Eliminate Small Bands

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, MAKALE, Ethiopia, Nov. 16. (AP)—Huge preparations, marked by sharp combats, were made by the Italian army today all along the line for the next advance. Three arm corps solidly entrenched themselves in advanced positions. Behind the line there were 100,000 men, eager for the next forward march. Amba Alagi, roughly 40 miles south of Makale, is the next objective, and the Italian intelligence section reported it had learned that Emperor Haile Selassie had sent an order of "No retreat" to warriors massing in that vicinity.

Before the next push begins every effort is being made to eliminate dangerous small forces covering the flanks. These operations are under way by two fascist corps, one in the east and one on the west. Effort is being made to round up and wipe out small bodies of Ethiopians left within the Italian line by the recent rapid advance.

At Rome, Italy's grand council, assembled apparently to consider League of Nations' sanctions against the nation, adjourned after a long session tonight. Another meeting was called for Monday.

Mussolini switched the command conducting the Ethiopian campaign today, naming Marshal Pietro Badoglio, chief general of the army staff, to succeed General Emilio de Bono as high commissioner for Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. The commissioner's office carries with it leadership of the African forces.

Virtual retirement in honor appeared de Bono's lot.

Berlin diplomats said that Hitler had assured Britain and France that Germany would not become an assembly point for foreign goods destined for Italy. The pledge would strengthen the boycott.

Ras Seyoum has passed the Gibba river, leading his troops to Antalo, lying midway between Makale and Ambalajali.

Ras Nasibu, Harar governor, hastened to Jijiga to take personal command of the defense of that vital southern front.

BRITAIN DEMANDS CERTIFICATES

BERLIN, Ger., Nov. 16. (AP)—Germany, informed by Great Britain that German goods exported to England after Monday must have certificates of origin, protested the requirement contravenes the Anglo-German trade agreement.

Britain is making certain that imports into England do not originate in Italy and enter England through non-league countries.

Engineers Here on Relocation Project

Donald Witten, bridge engineer with the federal bureau of roads; A. B. Stanbach, bridge engineer for the Texas Highway department; Barnes Hoff, office engineer of the Brownwood division of the state highway department, and Robert Milligan, first assistant engineer of the Brownwood division were here Friday in connection with plans for re-routing Highway No. One over Eighth street.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus Christ our Lord.—II Peter 1, 2.

"A peace which flows serene and deep, A river in the soul, Whose banks a living verdure keep, God's sunshine over the whole."

"The angels," said St. Gregory the Great, "carry their paradise with them wherever they are sent by God, hence never cease to be united in Him." This is the secret of lasting peace.—Swetchine.

Work Program Reaches Us

ANNOUNCEMENT of Crigler Paschall, director of the National Re-employment service for this district, that WPA jobs are now available for every employable on the relief rolls in Cisco, is welcome news.

CISCO and Eastland county will share well in the present program. Over the county as a whole more than $2,000,000 worth of WPA work projects have been approved.

The National Whirligig

THE NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

A discussion of events and personalities in the news, world and national, by a group of fearless and informed newspaper men of Washington and New York.

A DAMOCLEAN SWORD OVER CAPITALISM.

By RAY TUCKER.

WASHINGTON — The controversy between New Deal reformers and the hostile array of private interests raged even more fiercely today when there came to light an address in which Federal Judge John Knox of New York, issued a solemn warning that "the capitalistic system will be scattered to the wrathful winds of an outraged people" unless it regains popular confidence in its territory.

Speaking as a conservative born of the people, the distinguished jurist who has presided at many historic trials declared the public will not soon forget "capital's indulgence in an orgy of unrestrained license" during the late twenties. Urging his private au-chasing power that this will release in the form of wages and the stimulation of coincident employment should prove great.

Moral Cowardice?

THE concept of duty possessed by the district attorney at Columbus, Texas, who accepted mob action in the hanging of two negro youths, accused of attacking and killing a white girl, with the statement that the lynching was "an expression of the will of the people" is an interesting one for an officer who is charged with the prosecution of violators of the law.

WE do not believe that the prosecutor was sincerely of the opinion that the acts of the mob were justified, especially before he, himself, and the courts had had opportunity to see that justice was done.

Let the Comm'n Alone

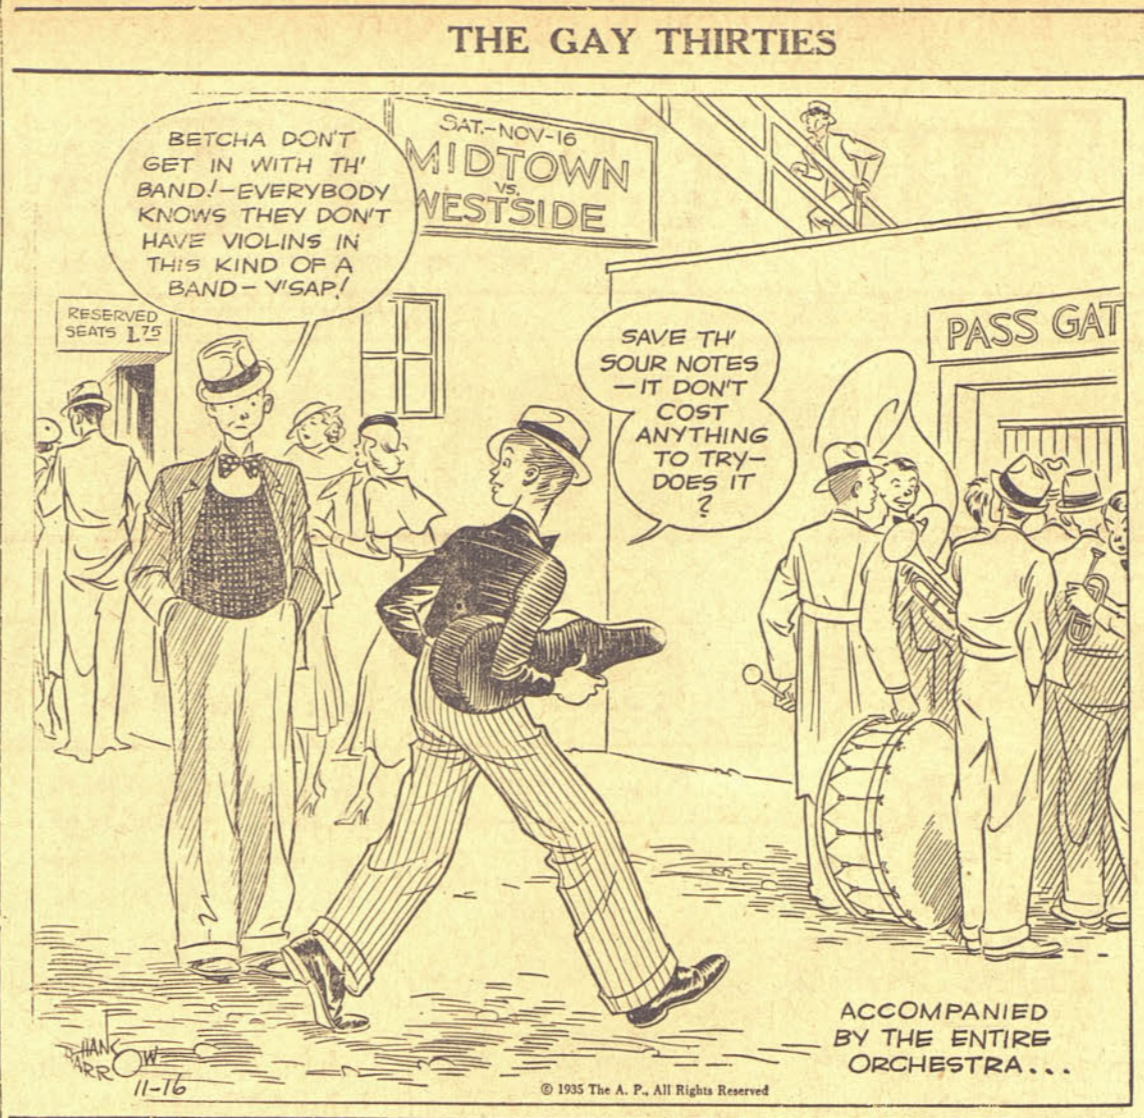

THE Texas Public Safety commission is the subject of a legislative investigation almost before it has been organized. The situation would be amusing but for its implications and the fact that it was inspired by an act of the commission wholly within its province and responsibilities for the development of an institution that will carry out the demand of the public for law enforcement activities to cope with modern conditions.

IT ought to take a great deal more than the charges of a dismissed officer to bring about a harassing investigation by the legislature, particularly of a new institution which obviously is wrestling with problems of organization that invariably produce conflicts before adjustment is realized.

at the Harvard law school alumni association in New York not to resist change blindly and stubbornly, he reminded them that "the finger of capitalism, in all too many instances, has written a sorry and sordid tale."

A callous repetition of stock market gambling, fleecing of investors, tax-dodging by the wealthy, payment of excessive salaries and bonuses, issuance of worthless bonds and pyramiding of utilities, he declared, will lead a "burdened people" to say: "To hell with capitalism and with all its protagonists!"

The hitherto unpublished judicial jeremiad—has provoked tremendous though suppressed discussion behind the legal scenery because of the setting. Many Harvard law graduates like Felix Frankfurter, James M. Landis, Donald Richberg and Benjamin Cohen framed the very laws which Judge Knox's hearers have assailed as unconstitutional.

and with all its protagonists. "This portion of the public must have its confidence restored. It must be brought to understand that there are honest men in the capitalistic system. It must be brought to see that the moneyed interests are in favor of decent socialistic legislation, such as bank insurance, old-age pensions and unemployment indemnity upon fair and reasonable terms.

The speaker first noted that many of his listeners "represent big business, to say nothing of your clients who are barons of great wealth." Thus he emphasized that he was appealing to the legal priesthood, who come into such intimate contact with "men of affairs."

"Notwithstanding that a substantial portion of the country's population is on the dole, and likely to remain there for some time to come," said Judge Knox, "too many of these men are wont to say: 'The old order of affairs is sacrosanct and in no measure must be disturbed.' So far as I can observe big business on the whole wishes to have 'what it wants when it wants it,' and in the same overflowing measure that it was accustomed to know.

Judge Knox cited the public utilities as a group which has provoked political reprisal at Washington and throughout the country by its lack of response to the cry for reform.

"Have they not pyramided one company on top of another until they are at dizzy heights? Have they not the assets of these corporations been intermingled and confused so that they can never be straightened out? Have they not resisted to the point of defiance, every effort that has been designed to bring them under effective regulation and restraint?"

essary by the depression, is beyond the cost of war. It has seen our national debt increase to stupendous figures and it understands that heavy taxes are required to meet the outlay of government.

"But upon whom do the taxes most certainly and inevitably fall? I can suggest the owners of impoverished real estate who with despairing and diminishing hope, still look forward to the possibility of a better and happier day. I can name the drinkers of intoxicating beverages who pay their taxes in advance and pay through the nose. And finally, I shall point to the burdened worker, and to the man without a job who, as he buys his meager morsel of food and a bit of raiment to cover his nakedness, must, through the medium of a sales tax—capitalism's favorite handmaid—render unto Caesar the things that are Caesars.

"Now, of course, there are rich men who pay taxes, and who do it honestly, but most of them hold tax-exempt bonds. And what, I ask you, about certain other rich men that you can name who, having the wealth of Croesus, do not contribute their fair share to the cost of the government, and who, through wash sales of securities to members of their families, manage to escape all manner of taxation?"

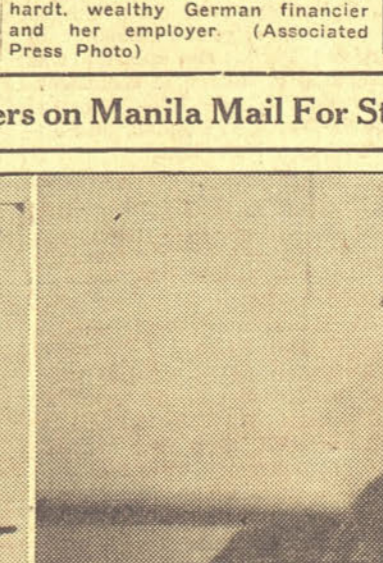

"And speaking of bonds, what is big business to say to holders of so-called guaranteed mortgage certificates who, with confidence in the fidelity and integrity of the issuing houses, now find themselves in poverty and distress?"

"The public," he said, "has not forgotten the events of the recent past, and which come about as a result of capitalism's indulgence in an orgy of unrestrained license. The public realizes too that the price of relief, made nec-sands of people who once had property and have it no more are unwilling further to fight, bleed and die for the capitalistic system. The politicians appreciate, too, that when millions, of men and women are upon the dole and are without hope of ever again having a property interest in anything, they have but little reason to be readily regimented in support of big business."

"Require your clients to support rather than hamstringing decent legislation," Judge Knox exhorted, "let them show a wish to be fair and above-board, and those in control of government affairs will give them a break. But be sure of this: If capitalism persists much longer in the belief that it is superior to the mass of humanity, if it continues to exhibit the selfishness that heretofore animated its being and which still stirs in its heart, the citadel of concentrated wealth is in serious danger of impairment."

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

The profoundest joy often rises out of the deepest sorrow. The years of exile from their native land must have made any hope of returning an inconceivably bright ray for the Jews in Babylon.

But now in the shakeup that brings the fall of Babylon they may fear and hope in anticipation of some new fate. Then they remember the promise of release after 70 years. Cyrus, the conquering Persian king, felt himself called upon to deal favorably to the people he conquered.

Psalm 126 may well have expressed the great joy that was found when they began their long march to their beloved land. It seemed too good to be true. "We were like them that dream." The songs that had been silenced so long now burst forth. The long night is coming to the dawn. Ezra gives us the description of the journey and of their arrival back home. They saw now that their sorrowful sowing was bringing a harvest of joy. "He that goes forth and weeps," they were singing, "shall doubtless come again with joy, bringing his sheaves with him."

Silver birch trees have been planted at the corners of crossroads near an English town so that their white bark will reflect light from automobile headlights to warn motorists.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman.

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth is now Nikki Nielsen, a member of the fishing colony at Union Town, instead of one of Portland's leading debutantes. Many strange things have conspired to reduce her to her present state—or is it being "reduced" to have earned the love of such a man as John Neuman? At any rate Anne hopes to find out what has caused Tom Farley to turn on her so viciously, and what the trouble is in the Farnsworth canneries. She is working on the boat she has bought for the Sorki boys, and living with Liisa, her aunt.

Chapter 30.

FARLEY MAKES TROUBLE.

Anne only sensed the growing unrest at first, for John had warned everyone that she was to be kept from knowing the truth of things if possible, for her own safety.

At first she was concerned only with delight in her growing knowledge and increasing strength. Her slim body was rounding, her skin becoming a dusky gold, cheeks and lips flushed with scarlet. The mop of curls, cut short so they could be pushed under her cap, were the color of sage honey.

And then, as she found bed of an evening less attractive, she began to notice a change in Liisa. She would come in worn out in spirit as well as in body.

"Liisa," pled Anne one Sunday, "won't you tell me what's wrong?" "I don't know," the woman admitted, "of course we have more work with this run, but it's something else, something in the air. Things aren't harmonious like they were when Mr. Luke was alive."

"What things, Liisa?" "Oh, I don't know, Tom Farley's relatives, the place is running over with them and they all want to be boss. If I hadn't worked there seventeen years I'd try to find another job."

Tom Farley. At the mention of that name, Anne retreated to her corner overlooking the Pacific, while memories of the past rushed over her. Lee hadn't told Judge Kellogg of the outcome of his investigation, though she'd heard nothing much from the fishermen. She sensed trouble, rather than knew of it. Farley was unquestionably working with Rob Crocker, and the two wouldn't give up easily.

She went to work the next morning in thoughtful mood. A grey day, a silver grey day, she decided, as they started out on a sea as smooth and shining as an aluminum tray. She watched the world turn from grey to blue as a gentle rain blew up. This would be good for her garden and she wanted it a blaze of colors when John returned.

When John returned. Her days revolved about that thought. On the late drift, after supper was over and the little galley cleaned, she sat outside thinking of him.

Some day they would sit thus, watching net buoys bobbing like scarlet blobs on the water, watching other boats, catching the first glimpse of the cape light.

And then her reverie was interrupted. George had jumped to his feet and was looking off towards Astoria. "Look at that fool," he shouted to Orvi, pointing to a small cruiser ducking in front of a big freighter, tooting derisively. "He must be drunk."

The boat careened, seemed to sight the "Nikki" idling on her drift, and darted towards them. George jumped to the roof of the cabin and began waving and shouting. Orvi turned on the searchlight and directed it towards the buoy lights.

But on the cruiser came. Anne looked at George, he was standing still now, like a statue. Orvi, too, seemed numb; only the men in the nearby gillnetters were sounding sirens, tooting whistles. The boat cut in between two buoy lights. Stopped.

"On purpose, he did it!" cried Orvi, suddenly articulate, as the buoy lights were drenched.

And now to the din was added the sound of cursing aboard the boat.

"He's tangled his propeller in our nets," Orvi wailed, and then he broke into Finnish and Anne, understanding, longed to join him. A man came out on the tiny deck, reeled drunkenly, then steadied himself and swore beligerantly at the crew of the Nikki; at all fishermen who cluttered up the way and thought they owned the whole Pacific.

Orvi, stricken, looked at him. "One thousands dollars," he wailed as the man swung over the stern to slash at the water with a blade, "our net, he can't do that to our net."

Other voices joined from nearby boats and Anne caught occasional words. "Fellow working for the Farnsworth crowd." "Sorki brothers won't stand a chance of having it made good."

The powerful engine of the boat started its hum, strangled, stopped. It started again, choked. Time after time the performance was repeated, then suddenly it started towards the gillnetter.

Paralyzed, Anne watched until it came close. Horrified she faced the man who had slashed the net. Tom Farley, sobered now, stared at her in amazed recognition.

The gillnetter tipped with the wash of their wave as they veered by, and Anne sank to the floor of the boat.

There was no use of staying long on the river. Anne looked at the dangling net as George drew it slowly in. The gash slashed in it had released the fish. Only a few were entangled in what was left.

"Like silk, it was," murmured Orvi.

They turned back to Union Town with scarcely a word spoken between them.

George broke the silence once. "And I thought this would be ma's last summer at the cannery," he said.

When they had tied up to the wharf, Anne spoke. "Come up to my house, we'll pass yours quietly so Tecla won't hear."

But Tecla did hear. She had sat watching the lone boat putting back from the drift, and like every other woman with a man on the water, she wondered what was wrong.

"There is trouble," she said, opening the rear door and confronting them as they started up the stairs.

"Yes," answered the boys.

Liisa heard the tramp of feet and met them at the door. She took one look at their faces, then hurried them in, fiercely cheerful, her top knot riding her head like the comb of a fighting cock.

"Coffee we'll have, and I've cheese left to dip in it." She turned to Orvi, "take the crepe off your face and build a fire; Nikki's cold."

"I'm not," faltered Anne, and shivered with nervousness.

"Your spirit is; an open fire warms the heart."

Listening to their tale, Liisa cut squares of the leathery curd cheese as if she were cutting squares from the hides of the vandals who had ruined the net. She plopped them into the steaming coffee.

"Drink, then talk," she snapped.

The fire crackled merrily, boots were pulled off and wool stockings stretched towards the blaze. The fishermen three, heartened by the steaming beverage, found their gloom lifting.

"We could mend the net," George decided, "but it would take till the end of the season."

"Don't worry, boys," Anne was trying to remember how much money was left in her account. "We'll buy a new one."

"It would be better to sue, and make them buy it for us," Orvi said in protest.

"We couldn't sue Tom Farley," Anne countered.

"Farley!" Tecla sat up straight. "Was he there?"

"He was the one who slashed the net."

"Nikki," Tecla leaned forward, "He saw you? He knew who you were?"

"Yes," answered Anne, "he recognized me."

Tecla leaned back, a look of fatalistic resignation on her face.

"I think Farley, he come to you boys to pay," she said.

"What?" they all cried, in unison.

"Yes," she answered wearily, "he come to make the offer, but he come to see Nikki."

And Anne felt this was true. Having seen her in the Sorki brothers' boat, he would try to learn her whereabouts. Knowing she was not in a sanitarium, but rather with the people he was intent upon harming, he would want to know why she was there and what she was doing.

"I wish John was here," blurted Orvi.

John. Anne's heart quickened its beat at the name.

"Maybe you'd better go, Nikki," Tecla suggested.

"Go where?" she asked.

"To safety," Tecla answered.

"But, Tecla," she protested, "he can't do anything to me. I've done no wrong and surely he can't molest me in my own home."

"She's right," Liisa confirmed, and the top knot nodded emphatically, "shes every right in the world to be here. We've good locks on the door and I'd like to see the color of the man's hair who'd try to hurt her when I was around."

Red Cross Home and Farm Accident Prevention Campaign

By MRS. P. P. SHEPARD.
The Red Cross organization used the months of September and October in organizing various units and co-operating organizations, also the various schools of the nation in an accident prevention program. Through the use of posters, news publicity, radio programs, theater programs and the lining up of school organizations, especially in rural districts, the facts and figures on preventable home and farm accidents have been outlined and their remedial steps of prevention outlined.

In the home inspection, typical accidents of a preventable nature are listed as follows: carelessness in leaving bottles of poison within reach; absorption of poisonous gases in stoves; conflagrations causing burns and explosions; mechanical suffocations; firearm accidents; falls as a result of faulty stair-steps or toys and other obstructions left on the stairways, also worn out frayed carpets on floors and stairways. Slipping in bathtubs is listed, and attention is called to the business firms who are aiding in accident prevention by making rubber mats that will fit on the bottoms of bathtubs. The annual fall bonfires of leaves and trash are listed, also the dangerous habit of using unsafe ladders, or rocking chairs in homes when the housewife is hanging pictures. Young children are scalded to death annually by reaching for kettles of boiling food—or they fall into tubs of boiling water. Using kerosene or gasoline to start or speed up fires, has caused many injuries, and the use of cleaning fluids that are highly inflammable are to be used with infinite care, and out of doors.

The most frequent causes of home fires are the careless use of matches and cigarets, defective chimney flues, stoves and furnaces; careless handling of refuse and hot ashes; defective gas and electrical appliances; the use of highly combustible solvents for cleaning, and candles.

Using only standard gas and electrical appliances, is urged—and have all appliances installed by a competent workman. Replace worn-out parts, especially worn-out cords of irons. Trash baskets are not for use of cigaret stubs and hot match tips. Oily rags such as are used in dusting or cleaning should have special containers to prevent spontaneous combustion.

All of these everyday admonitions are embraced in a nationwide campaign in accident prevention units which makes the Red Cross national organization more and more the greatest mother of us all.

DEEP WELL ON DELAFOSSE.

ALBANY, Nov. 16. — Pitzer & West-Humble Oil & Refining Co. No. 2, Geo. T. DeLafosse, is rigging up with standard rig, preparatory to spudding the second Ordovician test on the DeLafosse ranch, 10 miles east of Albany in the center of southwest quarter of T. E. & L. survey No. 1,559, being located about a half mile north of the Pitzer & West No. 1, Geo. T. DeLafosse which was junked after nitroglycerin explosion 1,100 feet off bottom which collapsed casing and ruined a well which had made several good flows from Ellenberger lime at 4,453 to 4,460 feet. Breckenridge lime at 3,168 to 3,640 feet carried a good show of oil and gas, which was not acidized or shot, although operators thought they might have commercial production if they failed in the deeper Ellenberger formation.

The 5,000-acre block held by Pitzer & West of Breckenridge and Humble Oil & Refining Co. of Houston, centers on the DeLafosse ranch and where big company holdings have been for the past 17 years, with Magnolia Petroleum Co. holding lease on the DeLafosse during that period since 1918, on tracts close to the new well, being the only major company holding acreage inside the block, and O. H. Chapman of Waxahachie being the only other operator holding leases inside the block.

Gulf Production Co. had previously carried this large structure on their lease books for 15 years, but allowed their leases to expire a short time before Pitzer & West leased the large area little more than a year ago. Mid-Kansas, Cosden, Wesheimer & Danube, Sun Co. and Milham Corp. have also held leases in the area that have expired.

Roeser & Pendleton, Inc.—Merry Bros. & Perini, Inc., 4,000 acres adjoining the Pitzer & West-Humble block on the west and south will see an Ellenberger test starting around the first of December.

Big companies and independent operators have been watching the eastern Shackelford developments closely and leases have been in demand, with several nice deals having been made on surrounding leases. The largest royalty sale near the DeLafosse well was on 480 acres to the northeast side of the block on a base of $40 per acre.

A large casinghead plant of Phillips Petroleum Co. at Ibox and the Lone Star Gas Co., Ibox booster plant on their trunk line to Fort Worth and Dallas, creates a demand for gas from the eastern portion of Shackelford county and the plants are only five miles south of the new test on the DeLafosse ranch.

Fortex Oil Corp. No. 1, R. E. Burns, is drilling at 1,200 feet on a Strawn or Moran sand test in section 18, Orphan asylum lands seven miles southeast of Albany, which will test to 2,000 feet.

Thrift Stamps Will Publicize Centennial

Motivated by a desire to publicize the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936 and to enable every Texan to attend one or all of the magnificent pageants absolutely free, dozens of the nation's organizations and corporation have banded together for this purpose.

Through the medium of "Centennial Thrift Stamps," which will be issued by merchants in every cross-road and city of the state, every Texan will be able to pay his or her transportation to and from any Centennial center they select, also, pay their hotel and restaurant expenses, entrance admission charges, and even to purchase gas and oil for the family "Lizzie."

Cooperating in this gigantic patriotic Texan plan are such famous names as the Greyhound Bus Lines, Bowen Air Lines, Western Union, some 250 hotel and restaurants, uniform bodies of the Shrine and, to date, better than 3,000 Texas merchants in every line of business.

Mauna Kea, highest mountain in Hawaii, has not had an eruption for 25,000 years, according to the Hawaiian Academy of Science expedition which studied the 13,825 foot peak recently.

In this Changing World - One Thing as yet Unchanged

The Associated Press is today the only exclusively newspaper press association in America.

A general definition of one that sells news to advertisers, bankers, brokers, government offices, as well as newspapers is "news agency". Europe has such news agencies. They were created to serve at profit others than newspapers. Later they served newspapers too.

In America the reverse is now true. Certain press services operated here for years exclusively for newspapers as The Associated Press still does. Thus they were properly termed "press associations" Having started services directly or indirectly to advertisers, United States government offices, radio stations, etc., those others are now properly defined as news agencies.

The change is regretted. There is something sentimental to an A.P. man about the "smell of printers' ink". There is a glow out of collecting and writing news for whatever use newspapers make of it. It would bring a strange feeling even in this changing world if the A.P. man's duty was to try, among other things, to obtain and deliver a good news story that would satisfy a United States government office client or an advertising client in the same way he wants his news reports to satisfy A.P. newspapers. The A.P. man may be wrong about this but he would have a strange feeling in undertaking it.

The president of The Associated Press, Mr. Noyes, in a message to the recent meeting of managing editors of Associated Press newspapers said:

"I invite you to note that a privately owned news gathering organization has, directly or indirectly, accepted as one customer a very large industrial corporation from which it will (through a broadcasting arrangement) be in receipt of large sums of money.

"I ask you to consider the peril that would confront you if The Associated Press was in relations to larger financial interests of any kind—banking, public utility, oil companies or any other large interests—that involved the receipt by your organization of large sums of money and made it (possibly unjustly) in the view of the general public subservient to these interests."

There are those who have always believed, and still believe, that The Associated Press, with its cooperative form of organization, controlled alone by the newspapers in its membership and financed alone by them, is the greatest bulwark of a free press that exists in America today. If the newspapers in its membership ever would fail in their support of it or if it now suffers to the point of injury by the competition of news agencies heavily financed by the patronage of United States government offices, advertisers and others than newspapers, it would be a sorry day not alone for the future of the newspapers but for all the people of this country.

The employes of The Associated Press serve but one interest—the newspaper, and through its member newspapers they serve the public interest.

EXPLANATORY NOTE:—The Associated Press not being profit-making, its Board of Directors has always held that funds of the organization should not be spent for advertising. Not in any manner meaning to question the Board's policy employes of The Associated Press, of which this newspaper is a member, feel that attention should be directed in these crucial times to something that they believe affects not only the newspapers but the reading public. This advertisement is, therefore, printed by this Associated Press member paper in response to a request from employes of the organization so that the public may know.

For The Bridge
Player

Counting. From an outstanding tournament player comes a hand illustrating the necessity at times of determining how many cards of each suit opponents hold. In this case a proper count enabled the declarer to finesse with certainty against an adverse honor.

North. S-K 9 6 3 H-Q 6 3 D-K 6 C-A K 10 5 West. S-8 2 S-A J 10 7 5 4 H-5 4 H-A J 10 D-J 10 9 8 7 D-5 3 2 C-Q 8 6 4 C-7 South. S-Q H-K 9 8 7 2 D-A Q 4 C-J 9 3 2 (Dealer.)

South was in a four-heart contract and necessarily lost a spade and two trumps. Obviously the handling of club suit would determine whether the contract would succeed.

North started the auction with a club. East overcalled with a spade. Thence, with East and West passing the bidding proceeded: South two hearts; North no trump; South three clubs; North three hearts; South four hearts.

West lead his top spade, which East took with the ace, dropping South's singleton queen. East thought South might be false-carding and that West might have a singleton. A spade was returned. The trick was taken with the king north, a club being discarded south. From north a low heart was led. East played the ten and South took the trick with the king. A low heart, returned and ducked North, when to East's jack. East played the ace to remove North's last trump. East returned a diamond, which went to North's king. A spade was led from North and trumped South, West discarding a diamond. South led a club to the board's king and returned a diamond to the ace.

Now came the time for the declarer, Mrs. Florence Osborn of the Algonquin club, New York, to decide how to play the club suit.

West had failed to follow on the third spade lead. It was known, therefore, that East originally had six spades and three hearts, the A-J-10, already played, accounting for all adverse trump holdings. East already had followed to one club and two diamonds. Did he have another diamond? South led the queen and East followed. So, six spades, three hearts, three diamonds, total of 12 cards. East originally had only one club, the seven-spot.

The finesse against the queen in the West hand was marked rather than an attempt to drop the queen forthwith. The declarer made four hearts.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. "Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 17. The golden text is: "We that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be uncloned, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life" (II Corinthians 5: 4).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality" (I Corinthians 15: 50, 53).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "By putting 'off the old man with his deeds,' mortals 'put on immortality' . . . He who has the true idea of good loses all sense of evil, and by reason of this is being ushered into the undying realities of spirit" (pages 262 and 325).

$20,000 Oil Deal Is Made in Shackelford

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—One of the largest production deals of the past few months was completed this week with filing of transfer of lease holdings of Texas Central Oil company of Albany to Kittery Oil company of Wyoming of the 83-acre lease and two producing wells on the Anne Eaheart farm, survey 18, block 11, T. & P., a half mile west of Albany and 120 acre lease and one producing well on T. W. Lee ranch, five miles northwest of Albany.

Production on the Eaheart lease was from Bluff Creek sand at 700 feet with an average of around 40 barrels daily, and from the Lee lease in the Tannehill sand.

Consideration in the transaction was $20,000, with considerable undrilled acreage included.

Texas Central Oil Co. has other holdings in the Dawson & Conway and in Newell ranch that were not included, and is now grilling a test on the Dawson and Conway ranch in section 162, E. T. Ry.

In a new method of air-conditioning rooms that requires little electric power the air is drawn through a lithium-chloride solution spray, which absorbs the excess moisture.

Monster Whale Arrives Tomorrow

The most spectacular and educational display of deep sea life ever presented in any inland city opens their engagement here tomorrow. It will be housed in a specially built railroad car which will be stationed on the tracks near the T. and P. freight depot and will be open to the public from 2 p. m. until 10 p. m. daily. The big feature of this novel exhibit is a giant whale, which weighs more than 68 tons and is over 55 feet in length. The huge sea mammal which was harpooned off the coast of San Clemente Island a few months ago is said to be a most amazing sight. This particular whale has achieved fame and unusual mention in the press of the nation, owing to the chapter it has written in the annals of whaling history. It gave the whaling crew of the ship Hawk, the hardest battle in their experience, before finally yielding to the harpoon and bomb.

Captain David J. Barnett, who for the past 52 years has been making whaling history, gives a gripping description of his many thrilling fights with these great sea mammals, and also gives an illustrated lecture on the habits, life and capture of whales.

Other interesting features that accompany the exhibit are the penguins from the South Pole regions. It is a group of real live penguins from Little America.

Madame Sirwell and her troupe of trained fleas, present the famous London Flea Circus. The Madame has over five hundred of these tiny little creatures and they kick footballs, ride bicycles, do a fan dance, push little carts and do many other astonishing feats. Over 40 specimens of deep sea life accompany the whale on its trans-continental tour. The exhibit will remain here until 11 p. m. tomorrow night.

Of French invention is a paint spray gun with which any one of five colors or any mixture of them can be applied to objects being decorated by pressing buttons that control the flow of the paints.

Cisco Loboes Defeat Ranger in First Conference Victory

BULLDOGS ARE DOWNED 14-7 HERE FRIDAY

The difference between a Ranger and a Cisco team Friday afternoon was a triple pass combination—Woods to Wendt to Beasley. It was Bulldog poison. It scored two touchdowns and it came near scoring others. Cisco halfback Woods stepped back and rifled a short pass to Wendt just off his left end and Wendt, pressed by Ranger tacklers, lateraled to Beasley. The first time the combination was pulled in the second quarter of the game here Friday afternoon Beasley ran most of the 47 yards distance to the goal, dodging several tacklers adroitly. Burnam booted the goal. That made the score 7 to 0. Again in the third quarter the Loboes scored by the same means. Wendt took the ball on the short pass and ran almost to the goal line before being forced to lateral. Beasley took it and was forced out on the one-foot line. Orthodox line and running plays lost several yards to a furious Ranger defense. A penalty of five yards set the team back further. But the good old triple worked the magic again and Beasley raced across the line untouched for the score. Again Burnam was effective and the count stood 14 to 0.

Ranger Scores in 4th
Ranger scored shortly after the opening of the fourth quarter. Mixing a dangerous passing attack with a running game, Walsh, star of the Bulldog eleven and a consistent ground gainer, broke away over his right tackle with a great run from midfield to 15-yard line where Stansbury forced him out. Walsh waged a personal campaign against the Cisco defense, cracking it wide open for the score in five or six plays. Then, not to be denied the fullest satisfaction, he kicked the point after touchdown, making the score 14 to 7.

Cisco threatened in the first minutes of the first quarter. Ranger had received and punted. An attempted lateral to Beasley lost Cisco several yards and Stansbury kicked, Ranger missing making a first down by inches. Stansbury brought the Bulldog punt back eight yards from the Cisco 35 and Beasley got loose around right end for 18 yards. Woods, hard driving Cisco back who was the only Lobo able to gain consistently against the Ranger line smacked out two yards and then Beasley circled left for nine more and a first down. Stansbury picked up four but McCanlies lost two and Wendt took a long pass from Stansbury just inside on the one-yard line. He was hard pressed by Ranger defenders. Woods ploughed to the one foot line. But attempts to circle Ranger's ends caused losses and Stansbury's pass to Wendt in the end zone was batted down.

Reverses Situation
Taking the ball on his 30-yard-line, Walsh cut loose with a 14 yard center off his left tackle, beginning a Ranger drive that completely reversed the situation and had the Bulldogs pounding at the Cisco goal. Walsh drove the attack to the five yard line where a pass was batted down in the end, ending the threat and giving Cisco the ball on their 20.

First downs were eight and eight. The victory was the first that the Cisco team has won in the conference race and it placed the Ranger team on the bottom rung in the standing without a win to its credit. Cisco having previously tied Eastland 0-0, is standing in a tie with the Mavericks for fourth place.

Only the Abilene Eagles are ahead of the Cisco team in conference play. Ranger has yet to play the Breckenridge Buckaroos, who practically cinched the district title with a 21 to 0 victory over Abilene Armistice day. Cisco will play the Eagles Thanksgiving day at Abilene. Next week they will meet the Childress high school team here next Friday afternoon.

Wild-Fowl Hunters Enrich Bird Lore Of U. S. Survey

By SIGRID ARNE.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. (AP)—The dim paths that birds travel across the skies will become a little better marked as the crack of hunters' guns sound across marsh and woodland this fall.

Some of the fallen birds bear on one leg a little aluminum band with the request, "Notify the biological survey, Wash., D. C.," followed by a serial number for identification purposes.

Those numbers will be mailed to the survey with description of the place where each bird came down. The survey files tell where the bird was marked, and, by comparing the facts, the survey staff will know how far the bird has flown, just about in what direction, and about how old it is.

It's a Year-Around Job.
Such records flood the department during hunting season, for the most part concerning birds which are sought by sportsmen. But all year long the trails of hundreds of other species of birds are traced through trapping or through their death.

The grandfather of them all so far was an aged osprey, a species of hawk, which died at Gardiner's island on June 1 of this year. He had been banded in the same neighborhood on June 19, 1914. Whether he lived there all his life or flew away at different seasons there is no way of telling. But that he lived to be 21 years old, they do know.

Some birds go back to the same neighborhood each year. Trappers catch them five and six years running. Some of the birds are so canny they seem to use the survey traps as free lunch counters, acting as if they know they will be set free again.

Others, in particular the terns, hitch-hike their way across the Atlantic probably following boats, taking rests either on deck with the cash customers or huddling on the water, since they are a species of sea-gull. Two have been taken in Africa bearing markers which had been placed on them in Maine. Some, found in Greenland, had been marked in Denmark.

Trans-Atlantic Fliers!
Two black headed gulls which set out from Germany were found five months later on this side of the ocean, one near Vera Cruz, Mexico, and one in the British West Indies.

Through this method of marking the biological survey has checked the meanderings of more than a million birds. In the fiscal year ended July 1, 1935, records of 249,829 birds were acquired.

It has been found that migratory birds of North America travel four great air highways. They are listed as the Atlantic, The Mississippi, the Central and the Pacific fly-ways. Somehow, each year the birds travel north and south by the same route.

The facts have been uncovered bit by bit through the work of volunteers who are instructed and granted a federal license for banding birds by the survey office.

There are 1,800 who hold such permits now.

Unlike hunters, their primary purpose is to turn the bird free as soon as possible, unharmed. The farther he flies, and the sooner he is trapped again, the sooner another illusive fact is gathered for the history of the feathered wanderers.

TURKEY CROP SO FAR WORTH $12,000 TO CISCO, ESTIMATE

By R. W. H. KENNON

The turkey crop this fall has been worth around $12,000 to farmers and others in the Cisco country, according to estimates of J. H. Ballard, Cisco poultry dealer.

In connection with the Western Produce Co. of Abilene, Mr. Ballard said they were loading out a third car of dressed turkeys Saturday evening, and could easily have handled the fourth car had the market not closed Saturday, as another car was in prospect when the message came to cease buying.

"Whether the market will open again for Thanksgiving I am not advised," he told the Daily Press Saturday. "But I feel certain it will re-open for the Christmas holiday trade."

"A car load of turkeys weighs from 20,000 to 22,000 pounds, or an approximate average of 21,000 pounds, making a total of about 63,000 pounds of turkeys that left Cisco for other markets during the turkey season. This means a cash income of about $10,740, as the price will average 18 cents per pound. Then we easily paid out $2,000 additional for pickers, helpers and others, such as truckers, graders, classes and other helpers.

"I don't think I have ever seen such fine specimens of birds as those produced this year. They were fat and well developed.

"We were badly hampered for lack of pickers. We just couldn't get them. Pickers were paid five cents per turkey. Experienced pickers could handle as many as 40 turkeys a day, while green hands could take care of from 15 to 20. In addition to the pickers we have to employ eight or ten others during the turkey season. All the week, starting Saturday, November 9, we had from 75 to 100 pickers, and could have used many more if we could have gotten them. But at that, $12,740 is no mean sum to be distributed among the people of the Cisco country."

The Ballard Poultry Co. moved out of the D avenue location at the beginning of the turkey season as the slaughter equipment is located at that stand, but he stated he will return to this location January 1.

Owing to the illness of B. D. McNutt, who has been representing the Western Produce Co. here, W. R. Andrews arrived in Cisco Saturday to take charge of the local plant. He stated most of his records had been sent in to Abilene, and he could not supply the actual figures, but those given the Daily Press by Mr. Ballard, while quoted from memory, he said were practically correct.

his holes well, and rarely was he stopped without a gain.

T. G. Caudle, the new vocational ag teacher in Cisco high school, has arrived and we are about to see the last of the Bird. If Jim can make a satisfactory explanation of what he has been doing here this long, so that Caudle will have an opportunity to overcome the handicap he has been placed under, Bird will leave in about a week. But Caudle looks plenty able to take care of himself in any premises, so I anticipate no difficulty in his getting over all right.

Really, we are sorry to see Bird go, as much as it is a relief to welcome somebody with a sense of humor and less of acquaintance with the gentleman cow. Caudle is coming back to the country he likes, having been reared at Stephenville, and for that reason he should feel more at home.

Mrs. Mashburn, Widow of Pioneer Cattleman, Dies

Death of Mrs. J. A. Mashburn, 84-year-old widow of one of Cisco's pioneer cattlemen, occurred at 5:20 Saturday afternoon at the family home, 1699 A avenue. Mrs. Mashburn was 84 years, 6 months and 12 days old at death.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the East Side Baptist church with the Rev. T. J. Sparkman, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood with the Neil Lane's Funeral home in charge.

Survivors include four children, Mrs. W. T. Malone, Mrs. Alma Brazell, Bedford Mashburn and Tom Mashburn; 13 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

INJURED IN ROAD MISHAP

Miss Minnie Henry, 23, Moran, Texas, is in Graham sanitarium with a fractured pelvis bone sustained when the car in which she and a Moran group were returning from a football game late Friday afternoon struck another machine and ran into the ditch on Highway 23 five miles south of Cisco.

The accident occurred when the second machine drove upon the highway from a side road, it was said. Miss Mohila Henry, 17, sister of Miss Minnie, was driving. She said she saw the second machine, a trailer attached, driving toward the highway and sounded her horn. She slowed down, but when it appeared the other driver was going to stop, drove ahead. When it failed to stop, she swerved the car to avoid a collision, the front fender of the Moran machine struck the rear fender of the other, and the Moran car ran off the road and plunged over the dump into a 12-foot ditch, filled with water. It did not turn over.

Miss Margaret Chambliss, another occupant of the car, was severely cut by broken glass. Mrs. Theodore Henry, sister-in-law of the Henry girls, and Miss Gladys Nell Thomason were other occupants, neither of whom was hurt.

The women were returning from a Moran-Pioneer football game at the time. J. D. Collingsworth, also returning to Moran from the game, brought Miss Henry to the hospital. Miss Chambliss was given treatment at a local doctor's office. She returned to Moran with others of the group.

FD APPROVES COMM'N DRIVE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—Presidential approval of an aggressive securities commission fight to win holding company conformance with the new utility law was reported given today at a White House conference.

James Landis, commission chairman, talked at length with Roosevelt. Landis was noncommittal on the parley, describing it as "general in scope," but conceded the utilities situation was "mentioned."

The capital understanding was that Roosevelt had approved the commission's warning to stockholders and its generally aggressive attitude toward holding company registrations. Companies must register within 15 days for supervision or face a court fight.

NEW HEAD OF PRISON DIES

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 (AP) — Dave Nelson, 48, manager of the Texas prison system since November 1, died early today.

Death followed a heart attack coming after Nelson had showed signs of gaining strength in a critical illness with pneumonia.

Nelson, a war veteran and a native of Texas, was widely known in the business and political circles of the state. He was a director of the First National bank of Orange, had been president of the Orange chamber of commerce and the Orange Rotary club, a Texas democratic executive committee member, state prison board member and chairman of the Texas Livestock Sanitary commission.

Members of the family left Huntsville this afternoon with the body for Orange where funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon.

Nelson had planned several changes in the prison system, including segregation of convicts and a full athletic program.

Texas Plans Hunt for Lost Public Domain

AUSTIN, Nov. 16. (AP) — Texas plans a hunt for some of her lost acres.

Somewhere along the line, it was estimated, 6,000,000 acres of public domain have been lost in the state's vast area. It is proposed to recheck Texas real estate through a federal works relief project, now tentatively approved.

With oil discoveries, vacant Texas land has assumed added importance.
