

SURPLUS FARM CROPS TO AID SOUL SAVING

CHICAGO, July 28. — America's farm surplus is to be salvaged and canned to feed Chicago's destitute population this winter, according to plans announced by Dr. Paul Rader of the Chicago Gospel tabernacle.

"You can't preach to a man on an empty stomach, and so we're going to feed him first and save his soul second," Dr. Rader explained in announcing the organization of Paul Rader's Pantry.

Rotting on Ground

From one end of this country to the other, fruits and vegetables are rotting on the ground because there is no profitable market for them; and yet hundreds of thousands of people are faced with starvation. Let the politicians give hungry men what they wish; the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle is going to give them bread.

In a dozen or more cities and towns throughout the country, Dr. Rader is preparing to organize huge "canning camps" manned by volunteer workers who will gather up the surplus produce in nearby counties and prepare it for shipment to Chicago. Several manufacturers, he said, have donated canning equipment and the volunteer workers will be supervised by experts furnished by the National School of Pressure Cooking, Eau Claire, Wis.

Canning Camp

"Our first canning camps," the evangelist explained, "will be located in cities where the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle already maintains other tabernacles; but we are also planning to establish camps in many other cities before the summer is ended. Meanwhile we are making an addition to the Chicago tabernacle to serve as headquarters for the Pantry and we are setting 6,000,000 cans of food as our goal. More than 24,000 needy Chicago families were fed by our organization last year, we will have more than this number, as the need is greater.

Dr. Rader explained that in addition to the canning done in the canning camps, his workers also would solicit canned products from housewives and field produce from farmers throughout the country.

Artist Defends Young People

WATERFORD, Conn., July 28. — The younger generation today is "not a darned bit worse — and in many ways a darned sight better," than it was in 1900, says Walt MacDougall, 73-year-old dean of American cartoonists.

Throwing a log of wood on the fire at the MacDougall hermitage on the Niantic River here, the man who drew the first newspaper cartoon in America told the United Press:

"All you have to do to prove it is to see what bright children there are today and observe what chumps their fathers and mothers are."

His eye "winkled when he was asked his opinion of prohibition.

"Dry rot," he remarked.

The creator of the comic characters Absent Minded Abner, Hank the Hermit, and Fatty Feix, and who, with Homer Davenport, wielded telling power with editorial cartoons, has little respect for the modern comic strip.

"It's a manufactured product of the commercialized newspaper," he said. "The political cartoonist has retired, except in a few places, because newspapers have become commercial."

A question about the depression reminded the artist about the days when bicycles sold for $100, that were manufactured for $9. "That's the trouble today," he said. "Things manufactured for a few dollars have been reaching the consumer at enormously high prices."

TRIED TO CHOKO COW

MERRILAN, Wis., July 28. — A Jackson county farmer had one more cow today because of the quick action of his son. The lad noticed one of the cows on the ground, investigated, and found a large pine snake around its neck, strangling her. He beat the snake off.

BUILDS PLAYGROUND

DETROIT, July 28.—Jack Thomas, a 16-year-old Detroit high school boy, has built a playground for the 100 children who live on his street. The playground, constructed on a vacant lot donated by the owner includes two swings, a see-saw, sand-box, tennis court and two horseshoe courts.

If J. T. Anderson will bring his car to Gustafson's Texaco Station at 14th and Avenue D he will receive a free grease job.—Adv.

Mde. Curie Urges Vote for Women

PARIS, July 27.—The following letter addressed to the President of the French Senate by Madame Marie-Sklodowska-Curie comes as a revelation to many of her friends who, because of her retiring nature and unobtrusive personality, never dreamed that she would ever take a definite stand either for or against the movement of votes for women:

"Monsieur the President of the Senate: I have been told, during the course of a discussion relative to the subject of votes for women, that my name had been mentioned as being one of those by whom this movement was not approved. Certainly, whoever made this statement was misinformed. I have, it is true, customarily absented myself from all public discussions of this nature, as well as from all others not of a strictly scientific nature. However, without going into the rights and technicalities of the law, in principle I believe it to be just and that it should be recognized.

"I shall be very pleased, Monsieur le President, if you will, therefore, inform the French Senate of your receipt of this letter and convey to the members the sentiment it contains.

Madame Curie." Always ready to stand by her opinions and to correct any false belief attributed to her, whether in the field of her scientific researches or her private life, Madame Curie is said to have given a decided impetus to the "Votes for Women" movement in France.

NEW DANGER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 28. — That it may be possible before long to recognize and classify criminals by their facial peculiarities and shape of their bodies has been indicated by research conducted by Prof. Ernest A. Hooton, Harvard anthropologist, whose studies of 16,000 inmates of penal institutions and insane asylums throughout the country disclosed that certain physical features tend to be associated with specific types of crime.

DIED AT 114

LA JUNTA, Col., July 28 — When Mrs. Rafaela Ballegos, of Las Animas, died, it took considerable arithmetic to calculate the age of the Bent County resident. The coroner finally decided she was 114 when she died. Family records that had been preserved made the calculation comparatively accurate.

SPADES GARDEN AT 87

TONIA, Mich., July 28. — At 87 years of age, Mrs. Jennie DeYoung Douse, mother of 11 children, still helps earn her living by spading in her garden. "Grandma," as she is known here, is convinced girls of today could live to be her age if they followed her example of hard work.

RUSTLING BOOMS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 28.—Because cattle rustling is more prevalent this year than for years past, the Devil's Head Livestock association has joined with the Sedalia Livestock association in offering a reward of $250 for information leading to arrest and conviction of any rustler.

FISH LANDED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 28. — It required two and one-half hours for Lorenz Meines to land a 32-pound fish at Black Lake. He used only a small steel casting rod, with an 18-pound test line and a small plug. Whether the fish was a Great Northern pike or a muskie was not determined.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, July 28. — A plain dark blue bathing suit with a sun-tan back and large dark brick-red scarf and coat-trock in heavy shantung to wear over it is just one of the excellent combinations being shown by Worth to Riviera bound clients. Red sandals of the same shade and a large sun hat, if desired, make an interesting new color note on the neutral beach. Striped materials for sports wear are frequently seen on the Mediterranean coast, but plain white, worn with dark blue or brilliant colored accessories is smarter than anything else and is chosen by those who know the real value of simplicity in achieving chic. Another beach costume that has caused rather a sensation lately consists of a white bathing suit covered with red dots the size of poker chips. It is cut away here and there so daintily one gapes at first slight wondering what manner of magic holds the pieces together. The material is jersey. ### French Style Dreamers Spend Days Evolving Styles for Future Years

By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, July 28.—It's a blessed thing that the majority of Parisian couturiers are dreamers, for the past and the present have little chance to mean anything in their busy lives. It is always the future in which their days are spent, and that future has little, if any, relation to the present and none whatsoever to the past.

Today, for instance, while the sun seems to burn freckles and blisters to the very bones of many and turn their hair to a golden brown with the aid of beauty oils and whatnot, these geniuses of the dressmaking world are literally up to their eyebrows in the pelts of the newest furs, and the fabrics of the firmest weights and weaves for the dead of winter.

Cool Summers

Fortunately, for the past two years, Paris has been relatively cool most of the summer, with only occasionally hot days to bring one back to the knowledge that the summer is summer, so that their fur work behind locked doors, where their secret dreams become still secret realities, does not require the use of electric fans and refrigerating systems in order to make possible the continuation of their mid-winter work.

The first minute that the winter collection of finery is exhibited, the last of this month and the first two weeks of August, these men and women, whose brains and dreams furnish the universe with the wearing apparel that keeps the wheels of commerce turning, will dive immediately into a sea of chiffons, laces, and the delicate business of creating new fabrics that will imitate Nature's finest cobwebs and moonlight shadows on garden walls.

Greater Skill

Every year a greater skill is required of these millions upon which millions of women depend for the effectiveness of their wardrobes, and every year the public becomes more exacting in its demand for new colors, new fabrics, new lines, new well, new life to everything it wears and sees. The pendulum of fashion swings backwards and forwards, stopping for a short time at this period and skipping blithely over others, to arrive at a new combination of extremes that culminates in a happy medium for the mode.

We may safely say that the collections now going through their final dress rehearsals for July and August performances will not characterize past history. They are going to be like old wine and skillful seasoning; they will remind you of something so intangible that, for the life of you, you will not be able to discover whether it is something out of the long gone years, or the sudden blossoming of some sleeping dream.

Anyway, they will be the picture-ization of many aspirations and will eliminate the undesirable faddy

MONA MORAN who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, STEVE, and her old well-to-do mother, GED, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

Mon's brother announces that her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCCARELLI, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison, though Mona never believed this.

She meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve is handsome, well dressed and well mannered. Mona is not anxious to renew the friendship but agrees to dine with Steve. Later in the day she meets BARRY TOWNSEND, a young man of wealth and social prominence. She refuses Barry's dinner invitation, telling him she never makes engagements with clients or employers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

AFTER leaving Mona at the office Steve headed his car northward with no plan except to go home until time to call for her at five. His hand lay on the wheel mechanically, the car responding to his slightest touch with a sensitive race horse. He had not been to bed. Three years of loneliness coupled with that sense of security provided by sufficient money honestly come by had added a piquant flavor to New York's night life.

Before Steve had gone away he had seen only the outskirts of that life. Today he could take part and fling foolish gold with the others.

And Steve wanted to show Mona this New York to which he had ascended. He had acquired an ease of manner, a sense of dress, an air. It stirred his vanity to be able to show Mona the new Steve, to walk on Broadway the Park Avenue way.

It was true, as he had told Mona, that before he had disappeared he had been involved with gangsters, innocently enough at first, had driven what the tabloids refer to as the "hold-up car," though as far as Steve knew he had been involved in no gun-play.

It seemed to be easy money. All Steve had to do was pick up his fare as prearranged, drive to a certain hide-out and collect his split. That the gang held out on him frequently made little difference. What he received was velvet and his risk was slight.

When he came to realize that the gang which hired him was not bound on pleasure parties, that the cash they handed him in furtive though generous amounts was offered usually after newspapers had printed accounts of this robbery or that along the jewel centers of the town Steve tried to pull out.

He was approached carefully and warned. Leave town and they'd get him. Or let the cops get him for a stretch at Sing Sing.

"You haven't anything on me, buddies," Steve insisted.

"Yeah? Tell that to the judge and see what it gets you!" They spoke glibly of accessory before and after the fact, of receiving she didn't have the things to wear. Not that he would mind—but she would. He had been away from civilization for three years but he knew women. It was no cinch these days for a girl to support herself, let alone her family. That good for nothing brother of Mona's—

Steve himself had bushels of money. Why not send her a gown just to wear that evening?

It did not occur to him that Mona's code might fail to include the acceptance of gowns sent to her by men friends, however well intentioned such a gift might be.

Steve closed his eyes and thought—as he had often thought—of Mona in a costume really befitting her beauty. That graceful figure, that hair, that creamy skin, the gray-green eyes, the wifeliness of Mona's smile, strangely at variance with its setting—

Steve laughed aloud as an idea occurred to him. Go to Pilgrim's and make old Pilgrim dress Mona up!

"They don't have anything too good for her, at that," Steve told himself.

Two hours consultation with Henri at Pilgrim's did much to deplete Steve's ideas as well as his bank roll.

He slipped five dollars to the model displaying the gown because her coloring approached Mona's and because she had shown untrusting patience. The messenger boy got another five to insure prompt delivery.

Then Steve dropped into a florist's, left an order and took his way to his mother's for a nap.

On the way up he recalled the proposed visit to the hospital. That necessitated other purchases and when a dressing gown, a steamer basket of fruit and some tobacco had been added he nosed the car at last toward the little Third avenue flat.

Maybe Mona wouldn't like his buying all these things. That idea suddenly occurred to Steve. He dashed for a telephone and only by a series of threats did he get the magnificent Henri on the wire.

"Say," Steve said wildly, "slip a note in that box, will you?" Something to the effect that I'm only lending the stuff. She might not take it otherwise, see? Fix it up, you know how. And sign it "Steve."

"Ze box for Mees Moran?" Steve has gone already. Henri waved an apologetic hand unseen over the phone.

"You are a liar," Steve told him cheerfully. "If it has, then get it back. I want that note enclosed."

"Yes Sair."

Marveling at the innocence of the gentleman—an innocence already perceived and exploited when the bill was presented—Henri did as he was bid.

Henri's acquaintance with young ladies had not included those who required an apology for sending around ermine wraps and Patou gowns.

Cards of Thanks

THANKS TO CITIZENS.
The returns of Saturday's primary indicate that I have received the greatest number of votes of any of the candidates for the office of District Judge of the 88th district.

For this manifestation of preference I am truly grateful and will greatly appreciate the continuing support and votes of my friends and all other citizens of Eastland county in the run-off primary, August 27th.

BURETTE W. PATTERSON.

CARD OF THANKS.
I want to sincerely thank my friends in Cisco and surrounding communities for their loyal support they gave me in my race for Tax Assessor and I earnestly solicit your vote and influence in the second primary August 27.

Sincerely,
TOM HALEY.

OSCAR HAS THE GANG GUESSING ABOUT A MOTORLESS AUTOMOBILE WHICH HE CLAIMS TO BE INVENTING.

SAY! NO AUTO CAN RUN WITHOUT AN ENGINE... HE OUGHTA KNOW THAT MUCH !!

YEAH! THAT'S WHAT I TOLD HIM, TOO... BUT HE SAYS IT CAN!! HE'S EITHER GOOFY OR WE ARE !!

THERE HE GOES, NOW... LET'S TRY TO GET MORE OUT OF HIM!

HEY, OSSIE! JUST A MINUTE!

WHAT'S THE IDEA TELLIN' US THAT YOU'RE INVENTIN' AN AUTO WITHOUT A MOTOR?

WELL... THAT'S THE TRUTH !!

G'WAN! IF THAT COULD BE DONE, THESE BIG AUTO MANUFACTURERS WOULDA THOUGHT OF IT !!

THAT'S JUST WHERE I'M SMART--THINKIN' OF AN IDEA THAT NOBODY ELSE EVER THOUGHT OF !!

AMERICANS TO LEAD ARTISTS FOR CONCERT

CHICAGO, July 28.—Native American artists will perform in the majority of concerts next season 25 singers, violinists pianists and ensembles, Miss Dena E. Harshbarger, originator of the Civic Music Plan and president of the National Civic Music association has announced.

Artists already have been selected by 200 leading United States cities with 57 yet to make their choices. In each of those where selections have been made, the civic music membership committee has completed 1932 campaigns and the officers soon will be chosen. Funds derived from these memberships is budgeted for each city's season thereby assuring a season without a deficit.

The Artists
Coe Glade and John Charles Thomas, of the Chicago Civic Opera and Aurelio Baggioni, famous American tenor with the Royal Opera of Rome, head the list. Each has a schedule of 50 or more concerts.

Other Americans with numerous bookings are Cyrena Van Gordon, Mario Chamlee, Charles Hackel, Gladys Swarthout, Boguslavski, Marion Claire, Dusolina Giannini, and Francis Macmillen.

Foreign stars who will appear frequently include Maria Jeritza, Claudia Muzio, Beniamino Gigli, Florence Austral, and Nina Koshetz, among the singers; Fritz Kreisler and Paul Kochanski violinists; Rachmaninoff and Levtzki, pianist; Mary Wigman and Escudero dancers also will find full bookings.

Annual Meeting
Representatives of Civic Music associations meet annually here to discuss the artists and their abilities, ignoring the publicity frequently used to build up a star. Each local association chooses its own talent but by mutual conferences, the best artists are made known. Desiring good music and not caring much for high sounding foreign names as such, at the National Civic Music association convention each local organization reports on the success of artists before their audiences. By thus relating their experiences with all artists, American artists of ability have been placed on an equal footing with imported prima donnas and virtuosos.
