

CISCO DAILY NEWS

CISCO, TEXAS—1,614 feet above the sea; 5 lakes of water; 5 rail exits; 6 paved highway exits; 127 blocks of brick streets; good hotels; A-1 public schools and Randolph College; no mosquitoes; no malaria or typhoid.

EASTLAND CO.—Area 925 square miles; population 33,981; cotton, fruit, poultry, dairying, natural gas and oil; Cisco is headquarters for operators of the great shallow oil field; churches of all denominations.

VOLUME XIII CISCO, TEXAS, SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1932. SIX PAGES TODAY NUMBER 259.

OCTOBER TRADE BALANCE HIGHEST

World War Air Ace Is Again Held as Liquor Smuggler

IS CAPTURED AFTER NIGHT AERIAL CHASE

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 19.—William T. Ponder, second ranking World war air ace, as held in custody today for the second time in recent months for transportation of liquor by airplane from Mexico.

Ponder was arrested last night by a United States customs aerial patrol after a race from the Mexican border to 30 miles east of here.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

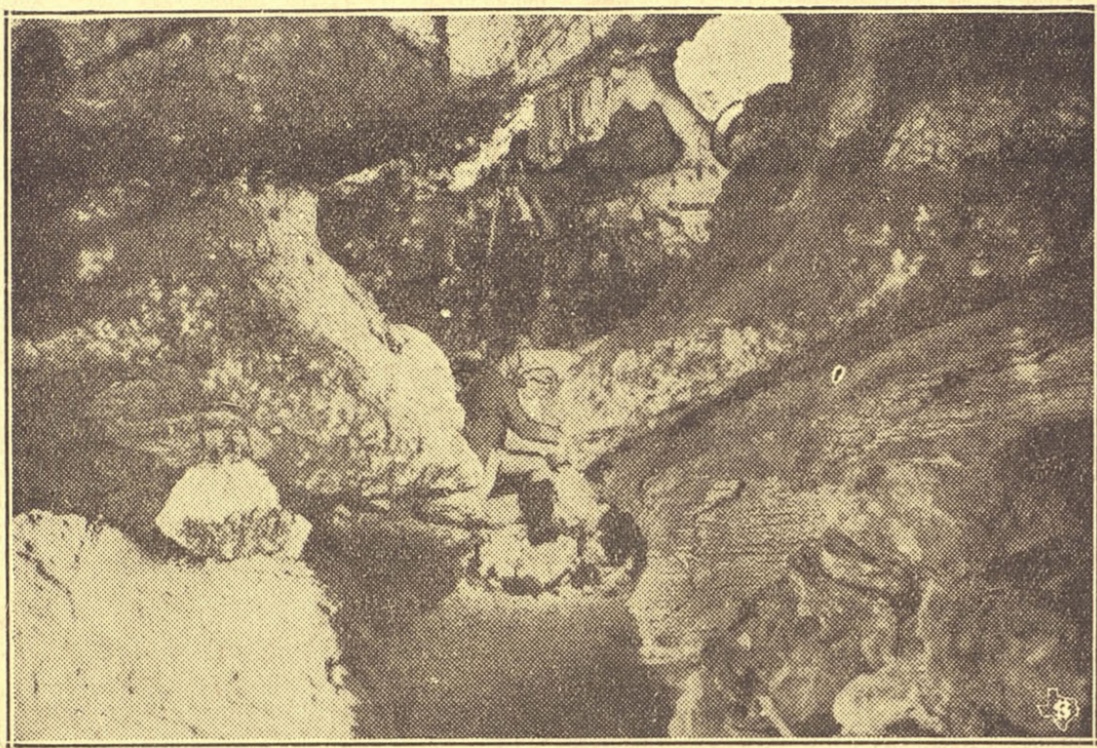

As in May, last night's chase was in bright moonlight over rough, semi-desert country.

Federal officers reported seizing 90 gallons of alcohol and Ponder's 300-horsepower plane.

The flier, whose reckless courage once sent him into combat single-handed against 13 German planes, was under $1,500 bond on a charge of aerial beer smuggling from Mexico filed against him at San Antonio last May.

San Antonio is in another federal court district and the exact procedure against Ponder here was undetermined.

One of World's Great Wonders Found in Texas

Here's a real "look-see" at the wonders of Pluto's realm, taken in the newly discovered and explored Longhorn Cavern, right at the center of the State of Texas — at Burnet, 50 miles northwest of Austin. Dr. Frank

E. Nicholson, famous as the explorer of Carlsbad, had definitely established this Texas wonder to be the third largest cavern in the world. When fully explored, it will be larger than any other, he says. Note Nicholson in the photo, with his wife, Peggy, standing just above him, almost in the "Dragon's Mouth," Longhorn Cavern State Park, with the cave as the feature attraction, will be opened to the public for the first time Thanksgiving day, with a big four-day celebration.

MISSING MAN, FOUND, DENIES HE IS ROBINS

WHITTIER, North Carolina, Nov. 19.—Col Raymond Robins, prohibition advocate who was found here yesterday after he had been missing 77 days, today was taken from his hotel room to a sanitarium at Asheville, 70 miles from here.

He still reiterated his denial that he is Col. Robins, insisting that he is Reynolds Rogers, the name by which he was known here. His nephew, however, is certain that the man is his uncle.

Carl Fisher, an alert youngster of 12 years, was responsible for the solution of a national mystery and the discovery of the long-missing Col. Robins.

The boy, intrigued by the presence of a stranger in town, made friends with the newcomer, went on hikes with him and compared his features with those of a photograph in a magazine. He notified authorities of his suspicion that his friend was the missing man.

The militant prohibitionist, missing since September 3, when he was on his way to visit President Herbert Hoover, was discovered by federal officials in a shack which he had used as his headquarters while "prospecting" for gold in the North Carolina mountains.

Indications were that Col. Robins was suffering from amnesia. Robins had spent two months here by going hiking in the mountains, leaving at dawn and returning in the evening. He wore overalls and jacket, and carried a staff two feet taller than himself.

Robins had built himself a tower on a nearby hill. In his wanderings about the mountain he discovered seven or eight moonshine stills. Apparently he did not report them, however.

PHYSICIAN'S VERDICT IS WITHHELD. ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 19.—John Dreier, nephew of Col. Raymond Robins, announced formally today that Col. Robins had entered a hospital here. Dreier was certain of the identification of his uncle.

"Dr. Griffin, who is now in charge of the case, states that it is absolutely impossible to give a correct diagnosis of the case until after further observation," Dreier's statement said.

CABINET GIVES HOOVER PLEDGE OF ECONOMY. WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Hoover today called the first extraordinary cabinet meeting of his administration.

In an hour and 40 minutes session he received pledges of support in a determined drive toward new economies in the operation of the federal government.

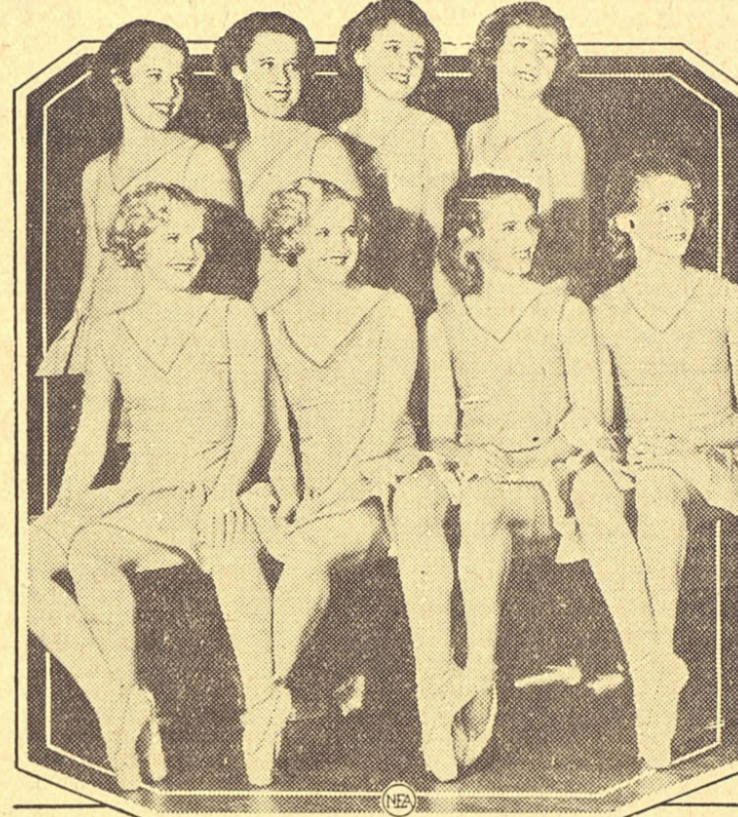

One cabinet member told the United Press that the question of war debt revision did not arise. The threatened $2,000,000,000 deficit was discussed and the demand for economy laid before the cabinet officers.

The government is running in debt at the rate of about $5,000 a minute, according to democratic estimate. The questions of whether foreign governments will pay another installment on their World War debt and of what is to be done about beer have become minor matters in view of the huge deficit.

While the administration is working on proposed economies in the new budget members of the house and senate are considering what can be done about taxes. After laboring to pass the tax increase bill in the last session, congress now returns to find it has failed to raise sufficient revenue.

Mathews Bags Wolf Northwest of Cisco. State Trapper F. B. Mathews brought in another wolf Friday, an old female caught about 10 miles northwest of Cisco. Mathews said the wolf had evidently been trapped before, for a part of the right hind foot was gone. This wolf proved somewhat difficult to outwit, Mathews said.

They're Terpsichorean Twins

Four sets of twins are learning ballet dancing in a Los Angeles studio. In each case the twins bear such striking resemblance to one another that ballet instructors are mystified trying to identify them. The four sets of twins are, left to right, standing, June and Jean Sharp; Pauline and Mermine Miller; seated, Betty Mae and Beverly Crane; Marguerite and Kathryn Andersch.

EXPORTS ARE 47 MILLIONS OVER IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The highest favorable trade balance for any month of the year occurred in October, the commerce department reported today.

Exports for the month amounted to $153,000,000 and imports $106,000,000, giving a favorable trade balance of $47,000,000 for the month.

The department report showed imports and exports had increased over the preceding month. Cotton exports, for example, were valued in September at $32,000,000, while in October the value was placed at $39,000,000.

The report was generally regarded by business leaders as the most favorable sign of returning prosperity.

STOCKS MOVE INTO HIGHER GROUND. NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Failure of a drop of 51,290 cars in the weekly car loadings report to upset railroad shares helped restore confidence on the stock exchange today and prices moved up easily under head of the recognized leaders.

Trading started off light and did not pick up to any extent until near the close when there was a brief flurry of short covering and prices reached their best levels of the session. The list was mixed at the outset, slipped back in the early trading. Firm wheat prices contributed to the upswing and several other favorable news items appeared as the session wore on.

Considerable interest was manifested in the October foreign trade figures, which registered the third successive increase in both imports and exports. The increase in exports for October of nearly 21,000,000 was the second largest for the year and were close to the high for the year.

Word from Youngstown showed steel operations there rising at 12 per cent of rated capacity, against 11 per cent this week. That helped push U. S. Steel across 36, against a previous close of 35 1/2.

American Telephone & Telegraph appeared to be giving belated recognition to the declaration of the regular dividend several days ago. It rose to around 110 against a previous close of 107 1/2. Utilities generally were steady to firm.

Railroad shares moved up when the car loadings report was issued, indicating that the decline had been anticipated correctly and discounted. The loadings were for the week ended last Saturday which included the election day holiday throughout the country and the Armistice Day holiday celebrated in several states.

Oil shares gave a demonstration of strength near the close. Seaboard Oil featured with a long string that carried the price from 17 1/2 to 18 1/2 where it closed. That was a new high for the year and a rise of 1 1/2 points over the previous close.

J. I. Case followed wheat into higher ground. Chrysler was a feature of the automobile group, aided by pool operations.

Not a little of today's short covering was done by traders afraid to remain short as the time approached for conference on war debts between President-Elect Roosevelt and President Hoover next Tuesday. Any method to alleviate the debt burden at this time would be considered highly bullish for the street experts.

Thanksgiving Service at 7 A. M. Dr. J. Stuart Pearce, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, called attention Saturday to an error in the time for the Union Thanksgiving service at his church Thursday appearing in the Daily News Friday.

The service will occur at 7 o'clock Thursday MORNING and NOT at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

It will last an hour, closing promptly at 8 a. m. Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church will preach, and there will be special music by a union choir.

WEATHER. West Texas—Sunday partly cloudy somewhat colder. East Texas—Generally fair Sunday.

City Federation to Sponsor Stunt Night

The City Federation of Women's clubs will sponsor a stunt night program Feb. 2, according to an announcement from Mrs. G. B. Kelly last night. The proceeds will go to help pay the indebtedness on the new clubhouse.

Mrs. Kelly asked that all the clubs and organizations begin work on their stunts. A prize will be awarded for the best one, she said.

Ask For Donations Of Children's Books

A reading list of 60 books has been selected for the pupils of the grammar schools of the state according to Mrs. G. B. Kelly, president of the City Federation of Women's clubs. Of this number there are 20 in the Twentieth Century club library on Sixth Street and C. avenue.

The city clubs have asked for donations of the books on the list from anyone having any of them. The books should be sent directly to Mrs. Roy Wilson, librarian, or to Mrs. Kelly. A list of the books will appear in the Daily News Monday.

FUNERAL FOR TOM W. SMITH AT 3 TODAY

Funeral services for Tom W. Smith, pharmacist at the Moore Drug company who died suddenly of a heart attack at his home on West Tenth street, Thursday evening, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Holy Rosary Catholic church. Rev. Father Collins will conduct the services.

Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery with arrangements in charge of Wippen Funeral home.

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow and one son, Lloyd, 17, a graduate of Cisco high school. He had been in Cisco with the Moore Drug company for five years, having come here from Ranger.

Active pall bearers are: Howard D'Spain, Dr. Hubert Seale, Dewey Moore, V. Donovan, J. J. Collins, Dr. H. A. Hoy, K. H. Pittard, Henry Drumwright.

Honorary pall bearers are: Connie Davis, J. C. Mayhew, Dr. Charles Hale, A. M. Worley, C. C. Gorman, W. H. Craddock, O. L. Tidwell, W. N. Tanner, L. C. Moore, Jess McCannles, Bob Mancill, Jimmie Allen, E. J. Poe, C. G. Rosenthal, Jack Leech, Oscar Clett, S. B. Wright, George Hartness, P. L. Ullom, O. P. Crimm, M. D. Paschew, Dr. Sr. and E. F. Crawford, all of Cisco, Dr. L. E. Clark and Bob Hesser, of Ennis, H. Snoddy of Weatherford, Ed Morrow, of Dallas, and Charles Connelly, O. L. Phelps, and Dr. Stafford, all of Ranger.

LEE HALEY TO BE BURIED AT CROSS PLAINS

Funeral for Lee Mervin Haley, 32, oil well driller, formerly of Cisco who died Saturday morning at Baird after an illness of six months, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Cross Plains.

Mr. Haley was associated with his brother, Ray Haley, in the Exkide Battery and Electric company here for a year, leaving in March 1929 for Brownwood. For the past six months his home has been at Baird. He was born and reared in Cross Plains.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Allyn Haley, and a daughter, Wanda, he is survived by his mother and father Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Haley, of Cross Plains; five brothers and four sisters. The brothers are Carl Haley, Big Spring; W. E. Haley, P. W. Haley, all of Baird, and Ray Haley, Cisco. The sisters are Mrs. R. B. Hart and Miss Iolise Haley, Big Spring; Mrs. Lonnie Ray and Mrs. James Ross, of Baird.

Co-Author of Jones "5 and 10" Law Dies. SEATTLE, Nov. 19.—Sen. W. L. Jones, veteran member of the United States senate from Washington, died at a hospital here today.

His death followed a physical breakdown after his defeat for reelection in last week's election. He had served this state in congress for 33 years.

Jones ranked high in the councils of the republican party. He was chairman of the senate appropriations committee and was co-author of the drastic "Jones five-and-ten" act, which put teeth in the federal prohibition enforcement laws.

"Women's Exchange" To Be Opened Here. Mrs. M. E. Goldberg will open a "Women's Exchange" in the old Moore Drug building on Main street Monday, she announces and will be glad to explain her business to all women who call. She thinks that many women in Cisco have things that they will be glad to sell while others will be only too pleased to buy them.

Mrs. Goldberg formerly conducted a woman's store known as Blanchess, but ill health forced her to retire from business. Her friends will be glad to know that she has recovered sufficiently to reenter business.

COLLEGE GAMES. T. C. U. 16, Rice 6. Baylor 19, S. M. U. 0.

LIBRARIAN COMPILES UNIQUE SOURCE BOOKS OF CLIPPINGS

By FRANK LANGSTON. It's human interest that counts in education, as in other places, according to a theory Mrs. Alfred Irby, high school librarian, has been working on. It's the interesting sidelights that make high school pupils and older people as well, read history, biography, and all the rest.

The Washington - and-the-cherry - tree incident has been disputed, but it still helps to catch and hold the interest of the pupils in the national hero.

Finding her library lacking in human interest material of the type which is instructive as well as entertaining, Mrs. Irby set about acquiring it. Before she became librarian, she had been an English teacher and a devotee of literature. For many years she had patiently collected copies of The Mentor, National Geographic, and other literary, historical, and artistic magazines and now donated her magazines and pamphlets to the school, but even that was not entirely satisfactory. The boys and girls, knowing that they were expected to do some research on some subject, were at a loss to know where to find material.

Mrs. Irby began to use her scissors and paste, taking an article here and a picture there, putting the material together into book form. She takes all the material she can get on a certain subject from magazines pastes it on sheets and puts them in covers, making books of current material. Already, in two years, she has compiled 200 of these booklets, all containing valuable material.

"Priceless" This type of work is unusual in high school libraries, and has been pronounced "priceless" by the head librarian at the University of Texas. A great part of the material is taken from magazines which are not now published which makes it doubly valuable.

Mrs. Irby has been invited to send some of her work to Fort Worth next week for exhibition at the meeting of the Texas State Teachers' association. She has chosen a dozen of the books, dealing with as many different subjects as possible. "The boys and girls like this new way of studying history, or literature, or science. They like to get away from the fact that Bethlehem is a small suburb of Jerusalem in Palestine, important to the people of the United States because it was the birthplace of the founder of Christianity. They want to know what the place is like, how its buildings look, what sort of people live in them, how they dress, what they eat, and what they do for amusement. They have the information in a small book which has been compiled. It is all together where they can get at it.

Science, Too It does not particularly interest students of science to know that the penguin belongs to the class of vertebrates known as aves. But the fact that these antarctic birds look like quakers from a distance makes an impression. That they build no nests, but hatch their eggs on the ice, holding them on their feet to prevent them from becoming chilled is interesting to the average science student who will probably never spend the greater part of his life in a laboratory.

Recently much has been said about President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt's hobbies, one of which is the collecting of naval books and pictures. Mrs. Irby has a book dealing with his collection, showing the pictures and telling the interesting facts about each one.

"Singing Towers" Another of the new books deals with the famous "singing towers" of the world, and the chimes in them. Still others portray little-known incidents in the lives of famous men. They make people of history and literature live for the students, especially writers who are known only through their books. For example, there is a book which deals with modern writers, one of whom is Christopher Morley. A page describes Morley as jovial and carefree. Morley has shown his humorous turn by drawing a ring about "jovial and carefree" and adding, "Not always. Gosh, folks, he's human, ain't he."

Mrs. Irby has always been interested in boys and girls in education. She is happiest when helping the students to the finer things. When asked why she gives her magazines to the school for the library, she explained her whole philosophy of life in terms of making someone else happy through giving him a higher ideal, and said, "Well, they're not doing me any good. I suppose I'll finally bring them all over to the school."

OLD CLOTHING REQUESTED BY CHARITY ASS'N. Old clothing, still serviceable, shoes, bedding and so forth, are sought by the Cisco Charity and Welfare association for distribution to shivering needy this winter.

Contributions, no matter how insignificant, are urgently wanted. These may be brought to the Welfare headquarters each afternoon between the hours of 3 and 5. If the donor is unable to bring the gift to the office, he or she may call Mrs. Phillip Pettit, 73, or Mrs. Charles Brown, 798, at hours other than those named, and these women, secretaries of the association, will see that the contribution is received.

THE CISCO DAILY NEWS

Phone 80.

Published By
THE CISCO PRINTING & PUBLISHING COMPANY,
304-306 D Avenue, Cisco, Texas.

MEMBER UNITED PRESS.
MEMBER ADVERTISING BUREAU.
TEXAS DAILY PRESS LEAGUE.

W. H. La ROQUE, Manager.
B. A. BUTLER, Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice in Cisco, Texas, as Second Class Mail matter.

Publication Days: Afternoons (except Saturday) and Sunday mornings.

Subscription Rates: Per Month (delivered in Cisco), 50c, if paid in advance, Twelve months, $5.00 in Texas; $6.50 out of state.

Obituaries, Cards of Thanks and Classified, 2c per word.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of this paper will be gladly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the editor.

Any error made in advertisements will be gladly corrected upon being brought to attention of the publishers and the liability of this paper is limited to the amount of the space consumed by the error in the advertisement.

CHRISTMAS CHEER IS COMING.

Christmas is on the way. There should be glad tidings the nation over. There should be Christmas cheer for all. More than $441,000,000 will be distributed in the next few weeks to 10,500,000 members of Christmas clubs by 12,000 banking and other organizations. Herbert F. Rall of New York is the president of the Christmas club, Inc. He predicts that average distribution would be $42 per person as against $47 per depositor last year. Furthermore he said that $160,400,000 would be used to purchase Christmas presents; $123,000,000 for permanent investments or savings; $48,000,000 to take care of year-end bills and other commitments; $44,000,000 for taxes; $26,000,000 for mortgage interest and similar charges; $22,000,000 for insurance premiums; and the balance of $9,000,000 for education, charity, travel, and similar purposes.

This is Red Cross membership enrollment season, and the Red Cross is the greatest organization for relief of stricken humanity that time has known. There should be huge enrollment in the Southwestern empire. There is relief work to be done everywhere. A dollar membership will carry a dollar's worth of financial aid to those who are worthy of assistance in this richest and freest and most generous of all nations.

A second relief loan for the principal cities of Texas, including Dallas and Houston and San Antonio, has been approved by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It totaled $281,497. Previous relief loans to Texas have totaled $1,161,966, bringing the total to $1,443,463. A reminder that these relief sums appropriated are loans. They must be repaid. They are not gifts. They are not in the nature of doles. They are money advanced by the American taxpayers for the relief of those who need relief during the bitter winter and spring months to come. Is it glorious to be an American citizen? Yes.

FORD CLOSES HIS IRISH PLANT.

Henry Ford has closed the plant of the Ford Motor company in Cork, Ireland, for an indefinite period. Incidentally the Ford plant had been making tractors for export to every country in Europe. Indeed, the business was of such importance that in 1930, shortly after the plant started, the Free State started making its own commercial treaties with European countries in order to facilitate the exporting of tractors. In an Irish village not far from the city of Cork there is a cemetery where the forebears of the wizard of Michigan sleep the last sleep of mortals. Pres. De Valera appears to be playing havoc with the industries and the foreign commerce of the Irish Free State. This old world appears to be upside down, and the Free Staters had to be in the huddle.

"AMERICA NOT COCK-EYED OVER COMMUNISM"

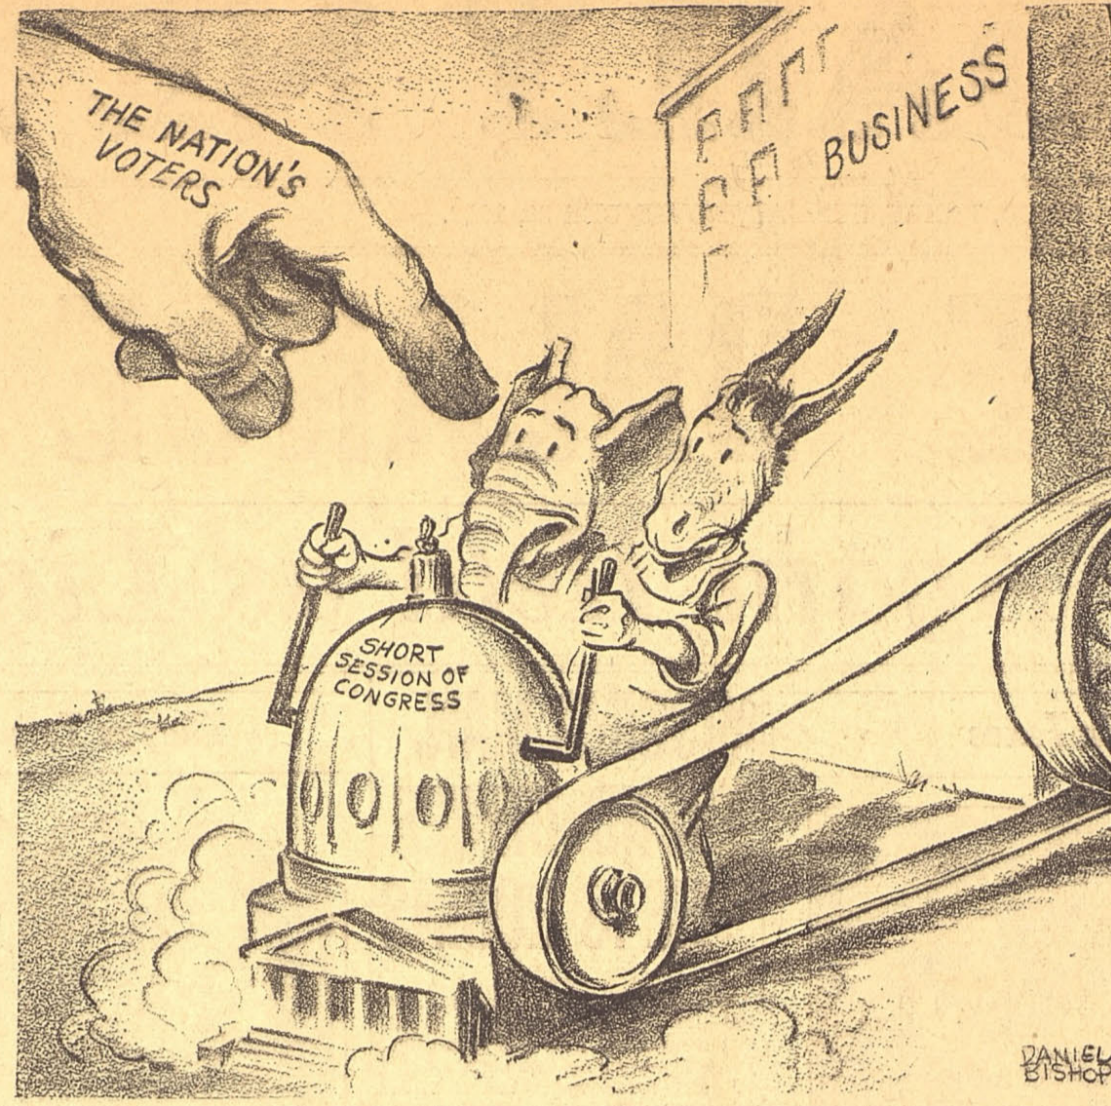

Col. Maco Stewart of Galveston delivered himself of a hot address before the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Indeed, the colonel made vigorous denunciation of "activities of communistic organizations on the campus of the University of Texas." He made the additional charge "that the communists were responsible for the defeat of a bill in the 42nd legislature to make syndicalism a criminal offense." Dr. C. P. Patterson is a government professor at the University of Texas. He is a very level-headed and well-poised American. He reviewed the Stewart address, and in conclusion he placed this in the record: "Youth is pretty idealistic and likely to consider the older generation crooks and a few names like that. Youth in every generation at every college has gathered in small meetings and surreptitiously preached communistic doctrines. Then the members of this group go out into the world to earn their living and find themselves so busy they have not any longer to worry about whether the world owes them a living or not." Very direct and to the point. American communists had national standard-bearers in the field. The showing that they made in the grand round-up for ballots was a reminder that communists qualified to cast ballots are as scarce in the republic as the visit of angels from the world invisible. All of which reminds the well-poised and well-informed university professor that "America is not particularly cock-eyed over communism." Let it go at that. Socialism showed a slump in the nation-wide balloting. This is not all; ten million Americans qualified to vote, according to registration figures, boycotted the polls November election day. They were too lazy or too indifferent or too timid to cast ballots in the great presidential classic sweepstakes race.

Flowers! Why, Marty!

It's quite a step from the rough, tough game of football to the gentle job of arranging tender flowers in delicate display—but that's what Marty Brill is doing now. Remember Marty? He was one of those Notre Dame immortals who played on the last team Knute Rockne coached. He's opened up a florist shop at Ardmore, Pa., and here you see him trimming up a flower basket.

"Start It by Pulling Together!"

SOVIET "FIRST LADY" IS EFFICIENT FARM MANAGER

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—How the "first lady" of the Soviet land, Ekaterina Kalinina, wife of President Michael Kalinin lives and works on the distant farm under her management in the Altai region, is recounted by her first American visitor, Anna Louise Strong, of Seattle.

Miss Strong visited the Altai village, Chermal, where Mrs. Kalinina runs a rest home for the native Oirats, and a State-owned farm and cattle ranch.

"No one in Chermal thinks of her as Madame President," Miss Strong declares. "They seldom even call her Kalinina. Employees of the State farm and guests of the rest home alike follow the familiar Russian habit of calling her Ekaterina Ivanovna. To her 3-room cottage which combines office, bedroom and guest-room, come constant committee meetings.

"Sitting in these conferences or at her desk in the farm office, she looks the efficient administrator. But there are times when strolling along the edge of the foaming Kacton river or emerging from the Russian bath where she has been "steaming" with the other women employes, she looks, with kerchief knotted above rosy face, like the village beauty of former years."

Mrs. Kalinina began her rest home and farm enterprise about a year and a half ago. She had been in Soviet Oiratia, however, for some years before that. She dislikes the cities and the official routine, to which her standing as wife of the president would tie her in the Kremlin. The beauties and primitiveness of the Siberian hills of the Altai, north of Mongolia, touched both her esthetic sense and her sense of duty.

The enterprises under her control—ranging from a well-kept rest home to chicken farms and bee hives and carpentry shops—cover some 20 kilometers of hill and dale. This year, Miss Strong says, Mrs. Kalinina had to her credit 1,600 acres of grain 2,500 acres of hay, a farm with 300 cows 2,500 sheep, 125 hogs 250 horses 100 chickens and 100 bee-hives. A 30-acre truck garden, keeps the rest home well supplied with fresh vegetables.

The farm is 180 kilometers from the nearest railroad station and can be reached only after negotiating a difficult muddy road. The automobiles and tractors which occasionally traverse the road to reach Mrs. Kalinina's farm are among the first vehicles of any kind that the natives have seen. Civilization has scarcely touched this edge of Mongolia.

What Mrs. Kalinina has done, according to Miss Strong, is to build an outpost of culture in one of the most backward regions under the red flag, her school young natives obtain their first inkling of modern life and methods. Nomad hill folks come in wonderment to look at the miracle of an electric light.

Thompson to Speak To Independents

FORT WORTH, Nov. 19.—Colonel Ernest O. Thompson of the railroad commission of Texas will deliver one of the important addresses at the annual convention of the Independent Petroleum association of Texas at Fort Worth on December 9th.

His subject will be "Texas and Federal Control." Col. Thompson has had a rapid rise to prominence in the oil industry and his analysis of this subject should be of interest to all oil men in Texas.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The Cisco Welfare association needs clothing. It needs shoes, clothing for people of all ages, bedding and other necessities of life. Mrs. Phillip Pettit and Mrs. Charles Brown, secretaries of the association, issued their appeal yesterday.

They will receive the gifts either at the Welfare association offices from 3 to 5 each afternoon or donors who cannot deliver the garments may call Mrs. Pettit at 73 or Mrs. Brown at 798 at other hours.

The present year, as his Humorous Majesty Will Rogers so aptly remarked, presents the ironic spectacle of well-fed poor people freezing to death. Clothing is at a premium while food may be obtained with comparative ease. Most of those who have in the past contributed clothing have either denuded their wardrobes of garments past use, or have taken to wearing the old garments themselves. Hence, if there are among you folks who think that one insignificant piece of wearing apparel is not enough to justify the trouble of getting it to the Welfare association, please disabuse your thoughts of the idea and get it into the hands of these good women with dispatch. They have a use for it. It may keep some kid from getting a bad case of pneumonia.

The prospect is that the coming winter is going to be a hard hump. But fortunately it is equally reasonable to expect that after the hump the old machine is going to have easier sailing. Next spring we have reason to look for better times. A good deal is going to depend upon what is accomplished in the way of national policy for the restoration of confidence and international good feeling which will set the old trade channels to flowing again, but I think that the situation is in good hands.

Meanwhile we can quit worrying about affairs elsewhere and start taking care of our home situations. This will require some earnest sacrifice, but we can do it.

Such help as is administered through the Welfare association, the Red Cross and the Federal relief committee must be carefully used, however. Straight out donations of food, money and clothing tend to destroy a sense of self-dependence unless the donations are made wisely.

There are too many people in this world whose economic conditions are what they are because the people are what they are. These are the type who think the world owes them a living and that the fellow who developed his talents and worked hard to fit himself for a useful and profitable place is hanging on the sugar tart of a sinecure. They have the distorted idea that this fellow ought to pay for their idleness. They are the ones who make it the most difficult to take care of the worthy class who are the victims of misfortune and ought to be cared for.

Every person has the right to work but no person has the right to be lazy.

A local furniture dealer the other day entertained an applicant for a job with a promise to give him employment on his farm the next day. He offered the applicant his food and $1 a day for cutting brush and doing other odd jobs on the place, and directed him to report the following noon. At the time the applicant did not show up. Thinking he had forgotten, the merchant sent in search of him. The messenger returned with the report that the man thought it beneath his dignity to work for $1 a day and his food. This attitude deserves no sympathy.

Thursday of last week a "boomer" printer—a stout, husky fellow—showed up in the mechanical department of the Daily News seeking a job. He was "re pluribus unum" and he wanted a day's work. Foreman J. B. Hunter said he had no work but that a merchant up the street wanted some workmen and that he might apply there.

The visitor regarded Mr. Hunter in amazement. "I'm a printer," he said stiffly. He asked if he might pass his card around the office for donations, and the foreman refused him.

Hunter made a few pointed remarks about a husky fellow batten-ing off his fellow printers when he had a chance to earn an honest wage and the man left in a huff.

That is a situation that is becoming increasingly common. The lazy devils make their approach for charity under the guise of wanting a job. When the job is offered they crawfish and go elsewhere to practice their deception.

It was demonstrated in the response to the appeal for turkey pickers during the Thanksgiving season here. There were plenty of people who wanted to eat but few of them wanted to work for it.

Quite in contrast to this was the trainload of deadheads who shelled off a Texas and Pacific freight train during the past summer "rainy season" when a washout tied up traffic here. Fifteen or sixteen of them congregated at the city hall to await resumption of service. The railroad sent out an appeal for hands to push the restoration of the damaged rails, and the entire group almost broke down the city hall getting to the job.

Dr. J. Stuart Pearce is ready to swear that I don't know straight up from straight down. The business of the church is to teach the vital difference between these two directions, and if I failed to appreciate that teaching then there is something wrong with the Methodist church.

If that is true then I can never attain the Valhalla of the Presbyterians, of which sect is the eminent Doctor, for it is required that one shall have already reached the blissful state before being admitted to the exalted plane of predestination. Oh, worry, worry. Has my tuition been placed in negligent hands, or has my attitude been one of fatal truancy to the admonitions of my spiritual monitor? To be thus indicted by one whose advance in predestination has outstripped the lalty, is to place a serious authority upon my fears.

It all came about because I misread Dr. Pearce's notes upon the union Thanksgiving service which his church is sponsoring.

The article in Friday's Daily News said that the service would occur at 7 in the evening. It is to occur at 7, all right, but not in the evening. The communicants are directed to assemble before breakfast. The service will start at 7 a. m. and conclude at 8 a. m. Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach and there will be special music by a union choir. Pardon us, Dr. Pearce.

INSURE NOW

Winter weather increases the danger of fires. It is well to see that your insurance does not expire and leave you without protection. It is poor economy to carry your own insurance because the average man does not lay away a reserve fund to reimburse himself in case of a loss. A few dollars will protect you from a loss of thousands.

E. P. CRAWFORD

Real Estate. Insurance. Loans.

Back to Work With Arthritis Overcome by Crazy Water Company Mineral Wells, Texas.

Words cannot express the good that Crazy Crystals have done for me. After having suffered for three years with Arthritis and Kidney disorders, I can truthfully say that today I feel like a new person, thanks to Crazy Crystals. My occupation is seamstress and my fingers were all swollen and I was unable to continue with my work, but now am able to work every day. I cannot say too much for Crazy Crystals, because I think they put me back in the land of living again.

Signed: MRS. JESSIE HUTTON,
409 East 17th St.,
Des Moines, Iowa.

Just add Crazy Crystals to your drinking water. They are a NATURAL product from America's greatest mineral water. See your local dealer or write to The Crazy Water Company, Mineral Wells, Texas.

Let Health begin today—The Crazy Crystal Way!

USE DAILY NEWS WANT ADS.

Austria

HORIZONTAL

- 1 People racially allied to the Huns
- 6 Last royal rulers of Austria
- 14 Feather
- 15 Chart
- 16 Spirit
- 17 Flower leaf
- 18 To slash
- 19 Horizontal band on an escutcheon
- 20 Half an em.
- 21 Great lawgiver (Bibl.)
- 22 To ascend
- 24 Data
- 26 Instants
- 28 Mesh of lace
- 29 Small fish
- 31 Monkey
- 33 Dogma
- 34 To trample, as under the foot
- 38 Urchin
- 39 Not spiritual
- 41 To wager
- 43 Venerated
- 45 Twice

Answer to Previous Puzzle

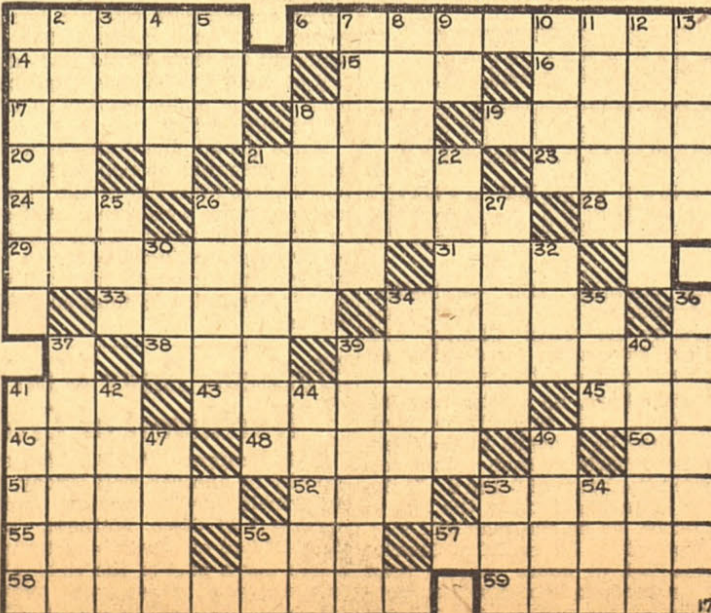

CORAL GENET
LORE YEN UNIT
LAME STRAP DRAG
IYA RETIRED ELI
VA HERO LAIC LB
RESIREN STERN R
REEVE TIARA
P WEDGE SCAMP L
OS SOAR TARE RT
OAT STUPEFY TEA
LIEN SPIRE PEAR
LEER TEE HERD
MEALS STEAM

with a nebulous train.

- 21 Wealthy
- 22 Auto device
- 25 Work of skill
- 26 Person under full age
- 27 Celerity
- 30 Debutante
- 32 Organ of hearing
- 34 Playing card
- 35 A dip
- 36 Long loose overcoats
- 37 Constellation pictured as the twins
- 39 Housekeeping
- 40 Passageways between tiers of seats
- 41 Augured
- 42 Serves
- 44 Chooses by ballot
- 47 To grate on violin bows harshly upon
- 49 To scorch
- 53 To harden
- 54 Beer
- 56 Pair

VERTICAL

- 1 To pacify

Electric Refrigeration Assures Safe and Healthful Foods

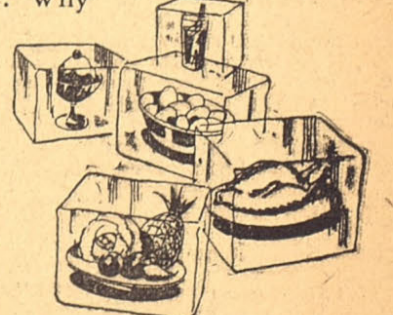

LEADING food and health authorities have found that foods are most healthful when kept at a constant temperature of less than fifty degrees.

This constant low temperature effectively retards bacterial growth, prevents spoilage and assures safe, healthful foods at all times. Foods kept at temperatures higher than fifty degrees quickly become tainted. This early stage of food-spoilage is dangerous to health—for it is hard to detect, yet dire results follow its use.

Actual tests have shown that the modern Electric Refrigerator dependably and inexpensively provides this vital constant cold. Why take chances when it's so easy to be safe?

Drop in at the Merchandise Show-room or your nearest dealer, and make your choice from one of the attractive models now on display. A Convenient Payment Plan simplifies buying—and enables you to enjoy the many Electric Refrigeration advantages without delay.

West Texas Utilities Company

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant weekend he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of Linda and Tom Averill, married three years and much in love. The Averills have five guests for the weekend: Cousin Amos Peabody, elderly distant relative of Linda's; Captain DeVos, handsome perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; Mr. Statlander, middlewestern manager of the firm Averill works for; Marvin Pratt, former suitor of Linda's and Lian Shaughnessy, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

The house party gets off to a bad start. Cousin Amos gets into a heated argument with Shaughnessy whom he denounces as a dangerous rebel for defending Gandhi's work in India. Next morning Bundy, the watch dog, is found brutally killed. Cousin Amos, Statlander and Tom begin a game of golf. Cousin Amos criticizes Statlander's playing until, infuriated, he breaks his club and starts. Linda fears there will be a riot.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Driving to the Country club that afternoon, Tom reflected that there had been no trouble for at least three hours. The dip had done them all good—cooled them off and relaxed the tension.

Through the several sets they watched—the semi-finals of a good amateur tournament—there was little chance for Cousin Amos to make trouble, though his blandly audible comments caused some suppressed annoyance to others near them. When the match ended Linda led the little group, now well baked from the sun, to the clubhouse porch where their hostess was ready with liquid hospitality.

Somewhat to Linda's surprise Cousin Amos did not spurn the cool drink offered him. Gradually it was borne in upon her that innocence was responsible for this. Mummuring, "Delicious delicious! So stimulating and refreshing!" Cousin Amos grew steadily pinker, more wide-eyed and apparently more blandly indulgent. But unfortunately De Vos, not suspecting the state of affairs, helped him to a fourth glass with a jovial reference to Bacchus and the vine.

"Your remarks are ill chosen sir. I take them very much amiss!" Cousin Amos drew himself up with sudden and intense dignity. "Never in my life—and I am an older man, sir than you might suppose—have I indulged in spirituous liquor. It is an insult to the ladies present to class this cooling punch with dangerous and illegal intoxicants."

The Belgian laughed lightly. "To the ladies—to the ladies!"

Cousin Amos grew beet red, and Linda started forward anxiously. But there were others between her and the angry old man, balancing pompously on his toes, and before she could reach him he spoke.

"You will not, sir, while I am present, presume to suggest that our hostess would supply or that Mrs. Averill and her guests would accept the type of beverage with which you—and perhaps the ladies of your acquaintance—are probably all too familiar. The suggestion is, I repeat, an insult and your apology is called for at once. Your remark was unworthy of a gentleman."

Hushed surprise fairly quivered in the air. No one had had any idea of the depths of Cousin Amos' innocence. Linda tried desperately to think of some way to smooth over his deliberate affront to the Belgian. Tom stepped forward, hastily starting to speak. But the words never came for Cousin Amos suddenly be thought himself of an even stronger climax and added with dogmatic finality:

"Even one who is a foreigner and indifferent to the pollution of body and mind which indulgence in alcoholic drink inevitably brings! Yes, I repeat, you have insulted the ladies of the party and I am waiting for your apology—and your withdrawal."

Instantly Tom had stepped between the two men, facing and close to the Belgian. Linda, he felt, could handle the other better. From the corner of his eye he saw her put a hand on her cousin's arm and knew all was well there.

But he himself had need of all the nerve and poise and courage he possessed, for he was facing a man temporarily out of his senses. There was no sign, however, of the excitable "foreigner" who might have listened to and gradually soothed. Here was that terrible chill fury which Linda had momentarily glimpsed. The man's face was actually gray to his lips—including his lips. Gray—infinity more menacing, more terrible than angry red. In the eyes was a look that for all his solid, healthy courage Tom shrank from meeting.

"Captain DeVos!" Instinctively he used the military title, as though appealing for discipline and control. "I'm sorry for that—more sorry than I can say. I apologize—for myself and for my wife—for her cousin who is not I think you see, responsible for what he says or does. He does not understand our—customs here nor realize that he himself is— She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.

"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.

"Have you decided which one?" she asked.

(To Be Continued.)

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

reconsider, DeVos I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."

Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still peevish Cousin Amos—Tom wondered an agonized uncertainty what he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how they would manage tactfully to get rid of the older man.

Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

For the first time he realized another growing cause of discomfort—the rising ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.

Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised DeVos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—

She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.

"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite wretched, poor thing!"

She smiled a little. "It bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"

"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."

"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kowtow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."

"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"

"He will darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"

"Yes, I hate to bundle him of that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, Binks."

"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."

"You forget Bundy."

Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his

EASY MONEY

ROY CRANE'S LATEST WASH TUBBS GAME.
LOTS OF FUN, FOLKS, AND DEAD EASY. POSSIBLE
TO MAKE AS HIGH AS $25.55 IN ONLY A MOMENT.

DIRECTIONS:
DRAW from deck of cards, containing nothing above the sixes (or use dice, or spinner) and move marker as far as indicated. Buttons or other small objects may be used as markers. Two people play, traveling in opposite directions.
OBJECT of game is to make more money than your opponent. Write down, on a piece of paper, each amount found or earned. When both players finish, total earnings.

START FINISH

Tasks and Values:

- CHANGE AUTO TIRE 50¢
- WASH WINDOWS 50¢
- CLEAN CELLAR $1.50
- BEAT RUGS $1
- HELP FARMER $2.50
- LOSE $1
- BURN TRASH 50¢
- SPLIT KINDLING 50¢
- CLEAN YARD $1
- TAKE CARE OF BABY 50¢
- DELIVER GROCERIES $1
- RAKE LEAVES 50¢
- LOSE $1
- OBVOY! FIND $5 BILL
- RUN ERRAND 50¢
- MOVE FURNITURE $1
- MILK COWS 50¢
- HELP SCOTCHMAN 5¢
- CLEAN BASEMENT $1
- MEND FENCE $2.50
- CADDIE 50¢
- DELIVER CIRCULARS $1
- CLEAN FURNACE 50¢
- TRIM HEDGE 50¢
- RAKE LEAVES 50¢
- WASH CAR 50¢
- CHOP WOOD $1.50

11-20
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE WILLETS

Out Our Way

By Williams

Panel 1: THERE, NOW, THIS VACUUM CLEANER WON'T WORK AND I DON'T KNOW THE FIRST PRINCIPLE ABOUT MACHINERY.

Panel 2: YEH, I MIGHT BE ABLE TO - THERE'S A COUPLA SCREWS LOST OUTA TH' HOLES - I 'N SEE AT MUCH, RIGHT NOW.

Panel 3: WELL, SEE IF YOU CAN MAKE IT WORK TILL PA COMES HOME.

Panel 4: I'LL FIX IT, IF YOU'LL HUNT FER MY SKATES FER ME - I WANNA GET 'EM SHARPENED.

Panel 5: ALL RIGHT, I THINK THEY WERE PUT UP IN THE ATTIC.

Panel 6: WELL, WHAT'S THAT ELECTRIC IRON DOING ALL APART?

Panel 7: AND THE TOASTER!

Panel 8: AND WHAT'S THAT ON THE DINING ROOM TABLE?

Panel 9: OW OO! THE ELECTRIC FAN!

Panel 10: AND MY SEWING MACHINE DISSECTED!

Panel 11: WILLIS, STOP! STOP WHATEVER YOU'RE DOING! WHERE ARE YOU?

Panel 12: STOP! I SAY, STOP!

Panel 13: WHAT IN THE WIDE WORLD ARE YOU DOING?

Panel 14: TRYNA FIND PARTS TO FIX TH' VACUUM CLEANER - YOU WANT IT FIXED, DON'T YOU? WELL, IT'S SHORT A COUPLA SCREWS, AN' I'M HUNTIN' FER SOME THAT'LL FIT.

Panel 15: HELLO - VYNE ELECTRIC COMPANY? WELL, SEND OUT AN ELECTRICIAN - TWO OF 'EM! YES, RIGHT AWAY.

Panel 16: SHE BETTER BE CAREFUL, HANDLIN' ME LIKE THAT! I'LL BE TWENNYONE SOME DAY AN' BE MISSIN' 'ROUND HERE.

J.R. WILLIAMS 11-20
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

DIARY TELLS HISTORY OF BUCKY BARRY

DALLAS, Nov. 19. —Bucky Barry, two-fisted pioneer and Texas Ranger who fought under every Texas flag, rides again across the Texas plains, this time not in person but in the form of a first-person story told in his own words.

Although Col. James Buckner Barry died in 1906 at Walnut Springs, the tales of how he sold a negro slave for $370 in North Carolina to get money to come to Texas to give his life's work to the south-west, have lived on and are reproduced in the volume entitled "Bucky Barry, Texas Ranger."

The book has been republished from the manuscripts and diary which Barry assembled. More than 30 years ago a similar volume was published but the issue has long since become depleted.

Barry came to Texas before the Texas War of Independence. Son of a family of Revolutionary War veterans and pioneers, he put the negro woman on auction block to satisfy his adventurous spirit with a taste of the wild west.

His first meal in Texas, after a trip by boat up the Red River, was bought from a group of campers served on a tree log. Journeying southward through the wild region, he joined Col. Jack Hays' band of Texas Rangers. Then came the war with Mexico and Barry went with the expedition into Mexico.

Became Sheriff

After the war, he returned to North Carolina, married and hastened again to Texas. He settled in Navarro county where he became sheriff, not by his own choosing but by popular demand.

When the Civil War came Barry joined the now famous Texas Mounted Rifles. Their duty was primarily to meet the assaults of the vicious plains Indians incited by agents of the Union. The Confederacy commissioned Barry a lieutenant-colonel. Disbandment of the Mounted Rifles, called for organization of the Frontier Regiment, Texas Cavalry, in which Barry had charge of the North Division, with headquarters at Fort Belknap.

Years spent in public service, with little or no remuneration, gave Barry little chance for private fortune, although he as a rancher of considerable success and might have achieved financial independence but for a loss of $25,000 in a note on a Corsicana merchant.

Undaunted, however, in his elderly years, Barry ran for the state legislature in 1882 and was elected. He served one term. In 1898 he joined the Populist movement and was defeated for state treasurer on the People's ticket.

For several years before his death Barry was blind. Much of the time during the last years of his life he spent reconstructing his diary and writing his experiences.

The book is published by the South-west Press of Dallas.

CLOSING TIME FOR MAILS.

Waco and Stamford train No. 3 (S. Bound) 3:50 p. m.
Fort Worth and El Paso Train No. 16 (E. Bound) 9:50 a. m.
Fort Worth and El Paso Train No. 3 (W. Bound) 11:45 a. m.
Waco and Stamford Train No. 3 (N. Bound) 10:45 a. m.
Fort Worth and El Paso Train No. 4 (E. Bound) 4 p. m.
Fort Worth and El Paso Train No. 1 (W. Bound) 4 p. m.

All night mails close at 9 p. m. with exception of Sunday when night mails close at 6:45 p. m.

News want ads closes regular.

CHICHESTERS PILLS

THE DIAMOND BRAND Ladies' Ask your Druggist Chichesters Diamond Brand Pills in Red and Gold Metallic boxes, sealed with Blue Ribbons. Take no other. Buy of your Druggist. Ask for CHICHESTERS DIAMOND BRAND PILLS for 40 years as best sold. Beware of cheap imitations. SOLE BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

SPECIAL

To get rid of Dandruff and stop falling hair use Maroil Shampoo.

Maroil Shampoo Set $1.00
Facials $1.00 and up
Manicure 50¢
Eye Lash and Brow Dye 75¢

Get your hair cut the Nu-Way before you get your permanent by Lewis Linder.

Hair Cut, Shampoo Set $1.00
Permanents $1.00 up to $8.50

PHONE 2.94

Nu. Way Beauty Shoppe

Job Printing

REASONABLE PRICES

CISCO DAILY NEWS
CISCO AMERICAN and ROUNDUP

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Sen. George W. Norris of Nebraska is responsible for the lame duck amendment. Twenty state legislatures have ratified the amendment. Thirty-six are necessary to complete the count and place the finishing touch on lame ducks. Speaking of presidents defeated and senators and representatives who have been thrown on the out side of the political breastworks. Every time the roll has been called in state legislative halls the Norris proposal has been ratified.

Many legislatures will be in session after Jan. 1, 1933, but the lame duck amendment will not be over the top as far as the inauguration of a president-elect is concerned for four more years to come. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner will qualify in the month of March 1933. Power carries with it responsibility. Herbert Hoover and his administration and policies were given the most thorough repudiation by the American electorate ever administered to a political party or a federal administration. It is well for people to recall high points of the Chicago platform on which the democrats swept to an overwhelming victory in the nation at large. Read the pledges and place the high points in the scrapbook:

An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government. Maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced. A sound currency to be preserved at all hazards. A competitive tariff for revenue with a fact finding tariff commission free from executive interference reciprocal tariff agreements. A repeal of the eighteenth amendment enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloons, and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states. Immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages. Oppose cancellation of the debts owed to the United States by foreign nations.

Restoration of agriculture, better financing of farm mortgages, conservation, development and use of the nation's water power in the public interest. Regulation to the fullest extent of federal power of holding companies, which sell securities in interstate commerce; rates of utilities companies operating across state lines; exchanges in securities and commodities. Full measure of justice and generosity for all war veterans who have suffered disability or disease caused by or resulting from actual service in time of war and for their dependents. A firm foreign policy, including peace with all the world and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration; no interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

Pres. Hoover, defeated, has extended an invitation to Pres.-Elect Roosevelt, victorious, to sit in and assist in defining a policy of war debt settlement. This in the immediate future. Well, the plank of the Chicago platform opposes cancellation of the debts owing to the United States by foreign nations. Repeal of the eighteenth amendment is another convention demand. Immediate modification of the Volstead Acts is said to cover all the ground.

Most important of all the high points of the Chicago platform is for the saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government and the maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced. This sweeping democratic landslide from coast to coast and from the Mexican border on the south to the Canadian border on the north calls for the faithful fulfillment of all platform pledges. It will be a democratic administration from top to bottom.

New sources of revenue must be tapped in order that the budget may be balanced annually. Well the racketeers and the bootleggers and illicit rum makers should be knocked out of business and the millions or billions that have been flowing into their pockets should be turned into a channel that flows direct to the federal and the state treasury.

Yes, power carries with responsibility. In a few short months the democrats will be in power. In words taken from the vocabulary of the plain people: "They must pledge or another story will be written at the close of the national campaign after the votes have been counted in the month of November four years hence." Platform pledges are not made to be broken. They are sacred promises given to the men and women voters of America, whose ballots returned the party of Jefferson to power in the nation.

Daily News and American and Roundup want ads are a good investment - Phone 80

ESTES RADIO SHOP

Repair on All Makes of Radios
112W 6th St. Phone 505.

MOM 'N POP

BY WOOD COWAN

WHEN POP STOPPED TO ASK A COP THE WAY HOME, HE WAS UNAWARE THAT THE TWO HITCH-HIKING YEGGS, WHOM HE HAD GIVEN A LIFT, JUMPED OUT OF THE CAR AND BEAT IT, LEAVING THEIR GRIP BEHIND...MEANWHILE POP GOES BUMPING ALONG TOWARD HOME

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

By Blosser

© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

MAGIC CORNER

721	594
127	495
594	1089

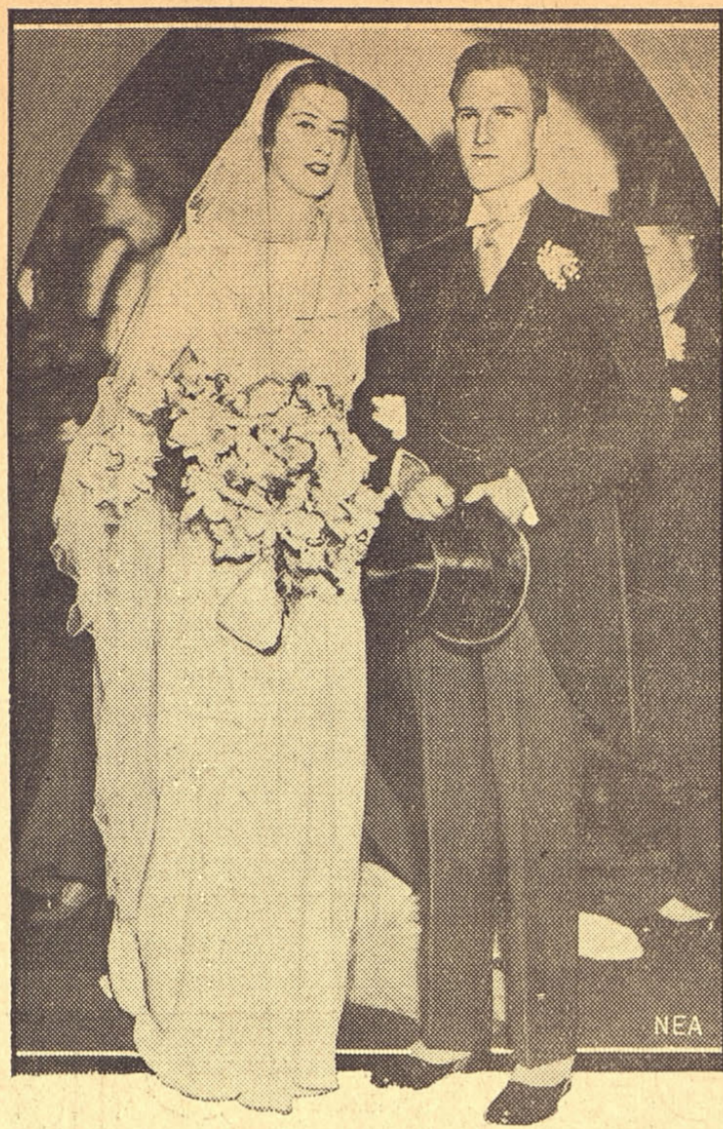

THE MYSTIC SUM

HAVE A FRIEND WRITE DOWN ANY NUMBER CONSISTING OF THREE DIFFERENT FIGURES... WHEN HE HAS DONE THAT, TELL HIM TO REVERSE THE NUMBER AND SUBTRACT THE SMALL NUMBER FROM THE LARGE ONE... THEN REVERSE THE REMAINDER AND ADD THE TWO NUMBERS... THEN ASK HIM IF HIS TOTAL CONTAINS THREE NUMBERS, OR FOUR... IF IT'S THREE, TELL HIM HIS ANSWER IS 198... IF IT'S FOUR, HIS ANSWER IS 1089

© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

John D. III Weds

John D. Rockefeller III, grandson of the founder of the oil fortune, is shown here with his bride, the former Miss Blanche Hooker of Greenwich, Conn., after their marriage in New York. Young Rockefeller is 26, his bride 23.

About Cisco Today

Society Editor, Miss Marjorie Noell—Phone 80.

CALENDAR

Tuesday
The circles of the W. M. S. of the First Baptist church will meet Tuesday as follows:
Circle 1 with Mrs. S. B. Parks West Eleventh street.
Circle 2 with Mrs. C. E. Taylor, 502 West Second street.
Circle 3 with Mrs. L. A. Harrison, 603 West Fifth street.
Circle 4 with Miss Pearl Bryant, 402 I avenue.
Circle 5 will meet at 9 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. J. Poe on West Ninth street to work on a quilt for the Y. M. A. Members are requested to bring a covered dish for luncheon.
Circle 6 will go to Ranger to visit Rev. Pender and Rev. Taylor.

Marzelle Robbins, Raymond Evans, and Betty Doty.
Members present were: Paulette Ruppert, Noma King, Mackie McGowan, Nellie Sanders, Loreta Litchfield, James Waters, Grace Pollard, Dorothy Jean Walker, Cyril Falkner, Robert Franks, Dorothy Tucker, Billy Donohoe, Velsie Wood, Thurman Mosely, Tom Morrison, Aline Ward, Winifred Parmer, Donald Swartz, Otis Lomax, Robin Boon J. C. Paschall, Elizabeth Bailey, Joyce Rainbolt, Salvador Frieno, Leo Phillips, Betty Doty, Marie Simpson, Marzelle Robbins, Velma Smith, Brinley Thomas, George Meglason, Vada Belle Tomlinson, Raymond Evans, Bernice Doyle, and Juanita Parker.
Mrs. Edward Lee sponsored the meeting.

SEWING CLUB MEETS IN HOME OF MRS. HICKMAN.
Interests were centered on the making of quilts at the regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. E. Hickman on Bullard avenue. Each member of the club is making a quilt of the "odd fellow" pattern. At tea time, the hostess served jellied meat salad, wafers, bread and butter pickles, baked apples, with whipped cream and nuts, and tea.
Present were Mesdames C. H. Parish, Dewey Moore, Ernest Lennon, Rudolph Schaefer, P. B. Hudlow, R. D. Midgley, Dee Saylor, J. P. Culpepper of Alvarado, and the hostess.

DINNER PARTY GIVEN FOR 8 CLUB MEMBERS.
Honoring members of the 8 Bridge club, Miss Ora Bess Moore was hostess at a lovely dinner and bridge party Thursday evening at her home on West Seventh street. Seasonal flowers and autumn leaves graced entertaining rooms. At seven o'clock, a sumptuous dinner, with turkey and accessories, was served buffet style. In games of bridge, the dinner aftermath, Miss Laura Lou Waring won the high score, and Miss Odean Byrd received the low score prize.
Members and guests present on this occasion were Misses Catherine Cunningham, Katherine Pettit, Tita Bell Simmons, Virginia Dabney, Odean Byrd, Marian Mayer, Eileen Wilson, Laura Lou Waring, Ester Hale, Mesdames R. N. Cluck, and Arthur Cunningham.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE CLUB MEETS WITH MISS BUTTS.
Miss Mary Jane Butts entertained for members of the Wednesday bridge club at the regular meeting this week at her home on West Sixth street. Mrs. J. A. Bearman won the high score in the game. The hostess served a delightful salad course during the afternoon.
There were twenty members and guests present.

MRS. MOREHART HOSTESS TO ARTS CLUB.
The Industrial Arts club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. B. E. Morehart at her home on West Eighteenth street. Mrs. J. D. Barker gave a description of the new club house in Austin, and a report on the meeting of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs held last week in Corpus Christi, was given by Mrs. G. B. Kelly. The Morehart trio rendered several musical selections. A letter from Mrs. A. J. Olson to Mrs. H. G. Bailey and club members, concerning the federation meeting at Corpus Christi, was read by Mrs. R. N. Cluck. Refreshments of salad, cookies, and tea were served to Mesdames J. E. Wilson, Hubert Seale, H. L. Dyer, J. B. Pratt, J. D. Barker, Roland, C. Jordan of Texas City, G. B. Kelly, M. E. Goldberg, Stuart Pearce, O. O. Odean, T. C. Williams, R. E. Grant-ham, Jack Leech, W. W. Wallace, E. H. Varnell, E. J. Poe, H. H. Davis Rex Moore, R. N. Cluck, N. A. Brown, F. J. Connally, H. G. Bailey, E. L. Smith, and the hostess.

MRS. TRAMMELL ENTERTAINS 1920 CLUB.
Entertaining for members of the 1920 bridge club, Mrs. Charles Trammell was hostess at a lovely party Thursday afternoon at her home on West Fourteenth street. Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums were lavishly used to ornament rooms where tables were arranged for the game. A dainty salad course was served at the refreshment hour.
Mrs. J. A. Bearman won high score in games with Mesdames J. H. Erie, Rex Carrothers, Ford Hubbard, P. E. Logan, Smith, Nick Miller, Guy Dabney, E. P. Crawford, Oscar Clett, T. F. O'Brien, R. L. Ponsler, Will St. John, W. J. Leach, and L. A. Harrison.

MR. AND MRS. LEVERIDGE ENTERTAIN "12" CLUB.
Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Leveridge were hosts at the regular meeting of the Twelve club at their home, 1512 N avenue. Interest in the team scoring contest, which is being carried on the club, is at a high peak. Less than one-thousand per centage points separate the two divisions. There is yet one round to play. Mrs. Paul Hudlow won the individual high score for the evening. Contrary to previous announcements, Mrs. C. E. Hickman was the winner of the high score at the preceding meeting. A delicious carrot-sweet potato pudding with whipped cream introduced as a "mystery" pudding the guests trying to identify its ingredients, was served with hot chocolate.

The following members were present: Messrs and Mesdames Paul Hudlow, C. E. Hickman, Ernest Lennon, C. H. Parish, Joe Price, the host and hostess. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Parish, 1107 West Ninth street, on Monday evening, November 28.

MRS. MULLER ENTERTAINS WITH BRIDGE PARTY.
Mrs. Edgar Muller was hostess at one of the most delightful affairs of the week on Friday afternoon when she entertained for a number of friends with a bridge party at her home in Humbletown. A variety of flowers, with autumn leaves were artistically used in decorations, and a Thanksgiving motif was effectively carried out in every detail of party appointment. Autumn leaves, arranged in a manner to display their gorgeous hues, made an unusually attractive centerpiece for the dining table. The high score prize, two plaques, went to Mrs. C. E. Hickman. Mrs. C. H. Parish, winning the low score, was presented a flower bowl, and Mrs. Ernest Lennon received the cut prize, a deck of cards. A delectable refreshment course with chicken-a-la-king in patties, cranberry salad in heart shapes, pralines and coffee, was served.

The guest list included Mesdames C. E. Leveridge, C. E. Hickman, C. H. Parish, J. P. Parish, Joe Price, Ernest Lennon, Paul Hudlow, I. J. Henson, and Arthur Cunningham.

POW-WOW CLUB MEETS IN HOME OF MRS. BENDER.
Mrs. E. E. Bender was hostess on Thursday afternoon to members of the Pow-Wow club at her home, 605 Harris avenue. Pink rose buds and fern added floral charm to rooms where tables were arranged for games of forty-two. It was announced that there will be no meeting of the club next Thursday because of the holiday. Fruit salad with whipped cream, hot chocolate, and cakes were served during the afternoon. There was a full attendance of members.

MRS. McDANIEL HUMBLE CLUB HOSTESS.
Mrs. W. C. McDaniel entertained to honor members of the Humble bridge club Wednesday afternoon at her home in Humbletown. Bouquets of chrysanthemums, together with autumn leaves were artistically arranged in rooms where games were played. Mrs. F. D. McMahon, winning high score, and Mrs. H. E. McGowan the low. Salads and sweets were served after the game hour.
Present were Mesdames W. J. Armstrong, J. R. Henderson, F. D. McMahon, H. E. McGowan, M. L. McGannon, I. J. Henson, Lloyd Surles, Rex Carrothers, W. B. Herr, W. W. Wallace, Edgar Muller, and R. B. Carswell.

20TH CENTURY CLUB HAS MEETING.
The Twentieth Century club, with Mrs. A. Spears hostess for the afternoon, met in regular session Friday at 3 o'clock in the clubroom at the Library building. A federation and preliamentary program was given. Mrs. J. J. Butts and Mrs. G. B. Kelly gave reports on the state Federation convention recently held in Corpus Christi. A parliamentary drill was conducted by Mrs. C. H. Fee. It has been announced that a list of books, to be used in a supplementary reading course in the grammar schools, is posted in the library, and anyone who has any of

BUSINESS SUCCESS

This is the BANK that SERVICE is Building is largely dependent upon financial confidence, and this, in turn, rests on the right kind of banking connection.

Wherever bankers can be of service to the individual, you will find our officers and directors doing the utmost consistent with sound banking practice.

Modern Safety Deposit Service

First National Bank

IN CISCO, TEXAS

Member Federal Reserve System

these books is requested to donate or lend them to the library so that the children may use them in their courses.

Members present were Mesdames J. T. Anderson, Charles Brown, J. P. Burnett, J. J. Butts, J. B. Cate, E. P. Crawford, T. J. Dean, C. H. Fee, George Fee, S. E. Hittson, C. G. Jones, G. B. Kelly, J. C. McAfee, Wm. Reagan, Hubert Seale, P. P. Shepard, Homer Slicker, A. Spears, J. E. Spencer, and C. R. West.

Miss Dorothy Harlan of Fort Worth was the guest of Miss Ora Bess Moore Friday night.
Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Springer of Bremond are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Bob Key.

Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Pippen were visitors in Abilene Friday.
Burl Comer is expected in from Ballinger for a short visit here.

Miss Laura Rupp has returned from a weeks' visit in Lovington, New Mexico.
Mrs. J. F. Culpepper has returned to her home in Alvarado after a visit with her niece, Mrs. C. E. Hickman.

Miss Mary Jane Butts left Thursday for a several days visit in Dallas and Ennis.
Mrs. N. J. Garvin, Mrs. I. G. Smith, and Mrs. N. A. Brown spent Friday afternoon in Ranger.

Mrs. P. B. Glenn and daughter, Jean, returned to their home in Breckenridge Friday after a several days visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Mayhew.

W. D. Smith of Abilene is a patient at the Brown sanatorium.
Mrs. Billie Armstrong of Ranger was in Cisco Saturday.
Judge J. D. Baker and daughter, Mrs. Roland C. Jordan and daughter of Texas City, are spending the weekend in Rotan.

Mrs. T. F. O'Brien has returned from a visit in Fort Worth.
Mrs. D. Ball and L. G. Ball, who were injured in an automobile accident on November 11, were removed to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ball, 606 West Seventh street, Thursday.

Dr. Howard Brown and H. H. Ford were visitors in Putnam Friday.
Mrs. F. D. Wright returned Saturday from a visit in Fort Worth.
Mrs. Lee Brown and Mrs. Ben Landreth of Rising Star were visitors here Friday.

O. E. Hawkins and Capt. Wharton of Albany and Miss Nadine Sonrick.

er of Breckenridge were guests of Miss Ova Brown Thursday evening.
Mrs. Leith Morris has returned from an extended visit in Lovington, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Johnston were visitors in Eastland Friday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Lewis of Desdemona are spending the weekend here.

Miss Sarah Jetton of DeLeon is spending the weekend with Miss El Dora Cooner.
Miss Helen Clark and Joseph Clark, students of T. C. U., are spending the weekend with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clark. They will have as their guests, Miss Elizabeth Worley, Lloyd Honecutt, and Jimmie Laurie, of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Grady Jenkins and children, Violet and Emylou, of Breckenridge are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Parker.

CARD OF THANKS
To every one of the many friends who were so kind to us in our bereavement with the loss of our husband and father, C. A. Bennie and to all who expressed sympathy through floral offerings or in any way sought to give comfort we acknowledge our deep appreciation.

MRS. C. A. BENNIE AND FAMILY.

Train Schedule

RAILROAD TIME TABLE

T. & P.

West Bound.

Effective Sunday, October 30th.

No. 7—Will leave Cisco at 1:50 a. m.

No. 3—Will leave Cisco at 12:23 p. m.

No. 1—"SUNSHINE SPECIAL"—Will leave Cisco at 4:55 p. m.

East Bound

No. 6 4:13 a. m.

No. 2—(Formerly No. 16) — Will leave Cisco at 10:55 a. m.

No. 4 4:25 p. m.

C. & N. E.

Leave Cisco 5:00 a. m.

Arrive Breckenridge 6:30 a. m.

Arrives Throckmorton 9:20 a. m.

Leaves Throckmorton 10:00 a. m.

Arrives Breckenridge 11:50 a. m.

Leaves Breckenridge 12:20 p. m.

Arrive Cisco 1:50 p. m.

SUNDAY

Leave Cisco 5:00 a. m.

Arrive Cisco 10:55 a. m.

M. K. & T.

North Bound

No. 35 Ar. 11:00 p. m.; Lv. 11:10 a. m.

South Bound

No. 36 Ar. 4:20 p. m.; Lv. 4:30 p. m.

News want ads bring results.

EAT FAMILY STYLE DINNER

MOBLEY HOTEL

Bring your family and eat Sunday Dinner — The things you want cooked like you have them at home.

MR. and MRS. J. C. DONICA, Props.

MRS. BEN KRAUSKOPF

Teacher of

VIOLIN AND PIANO

Pupil of Christian Thaulow of Simmons University and Fort Worth Conservatory of Music.

Studio at Jensen's Music Store.

SOMETHING NEW

Car upholstery cleaned with a Spic Span Vacuum Cleaner and disinfected Di-Chloride against moths and other upholstery insects.

Complete Service, 50c

FREE

With each Wash and Lubrication Service.

MAGNOLIA Service Stations

3rd and D. 9th and D. RIG EDWARDS, Mgr.

LAGUNA COFFEE SHOP

Eat your Sunday and Thanksgiving Dinners in home atmosphere.

Minimum Price. Excellent Foods.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to announce that we have secured the services of Mr. O. W. Statham as pharmacist succeeding Mr. Tom W. Smith, deceased. Mr. Statham has had many years experience in this line and each prescription brought to our department will receive the same expert and careful attention as in the past.

"Try Us First"

MOORE DRUG COMPANY

Nyal Service Drug Store

Service. Quality.

Garner's BIG THANKSGIVING OFFERING

Ladies and Misses Ready-to-Wear RUNS FOUR MORE DAYS

Thanksgiving BARGAIN TREAT

BEAUTIFUL FUR TRIMMED COATS

There's no question about the smartness of these coats. Look carefully . . . you'll see all the new color treatments, the newest in cuffs, all in the silhouette that makes women so attractive! At a price as inviting at the styles!

$11.85 Coats, Sale Price $ 8.95

$16.85 Coats, Sale Price $13.95

$19.85 Coats, Sale Price $15.95

$27.50 Coats, Sale Price $21.95

$29.50 Coats, Sale Price $22.95

$34.50 Coats, Sale Price $24.95

$39.50 Coats, Sale Price $29.95

$49.50 Coats, Sale Price $39.95

LADIES SWAGGER SUITS

$19.85 Suits, Sale Price $15.95

$27.50 Suits, Sale Price $19.85

LADIES and MISSES DRESSES for DRESS or SPORT

SPARKLE! That's what these dresses have, and what puts them in the front ranks of fashion! And our low price puts them well within your reach!

$ 3.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 2.95

$ 4.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 3.95

$ 5.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 4.45

$ 6.85 Values --- Sale Price $ 4.95

$ 7.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 5.95

$10.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 6.95

$11.95 Values --- Sale Price $ 7.95

$16.85 Values --- Sale Price $12.95

MILLINERY

300 ladies latest style Felt hats must go the next six days. We have arranged them in three groups for quick selection.

GROUP NO. 1 | GROUP NO. 2 | GROUP NO. 3

50 HATS | 150 HATS | 100 HATS

Choice 49c | Choice $1.29 | Choice $3.69

These Hats Value from $1.95 to $10.00

Garner's THE DEPENDABLE STORE

Cisco's Big Department Store