FACT-FINDING REPORT ON WHICH TO BASE PLAN FOR BONDED DEBT SOLUTION PRESENTED CITY

A fact-finding report, incorporating recommendations for an equitable revision of city tax and service charges and a more economical administration of city affairs, as a basis for a plan to service the city's bonded debt, was presented to the city commission last night.

The report was prepared by the firm of Wood, Powell and Waggener, Dallas consulting engineers with an international reputation. R. G. Waggener presented it. The commission was asked to approve the report as a fact-finding instrument as a basis upon which to erect a proposed plan for solving the bonded debt question here, or to criticize it. It was explained no obligation would be incurred except that the commission would agree that the city, in undertaking to solve its debt situation, could effect the recommendations submitted. When, through the medium of the report and the commission's criticisms, it can be determined what the city can do, a plan for refunding the city's debt will be submitted for the approval of the citizens, it was stated.

Underlying Idea. The underlying idea of the proposed program is a decrease in lump sum tax payments and an increase in city service charges. By this means, the report explained, the burden on the home owner is not increased, while a larger share of the city revenues are placed upon a monthly basis where they will be paid regularly and more easily.

"BUSINESS IS BUSINESS," SAITH PRES. PARISH.

There is another commotion in the Texas oil fields. Atty. Gen. James V. Allred is responsible for an injunction granted the state of Texas specifying that Humble must purchase crude oil ratably in East Texas, North Texas and Panhandle fields. In a very pointed statement President Parish of the Humble Oil and Refining company said "We cannot and will not purchase any more crude than we can consume and sell." Isn't business business? Litigation is ever the order of the day. Now that the state executive committee of the democratic party has decided by a vote of 15 to 5 that Gov. Ross S. Sterling should appeal to the courts for a recount of the ballots cast in the August finals, as the governor has filed his contest, there should be plenty of copy furnished the representatives of newspapers before the coming of the general election in November. All the facts and figures and by-plays and high points have been given by the correspondents who covered the Lubbock convention. Now the courts and the lawyers are promised a very busy fall and perhaps winter season.

BROOKHART READY TO STAGE A COMEBACK.

Iowa farmers are very active and very restless. They are demanding an embargo on foreign food staples. They are organizing a holding movement to keep farm staples off the market until price levels are satisfactory. Col. Smith W. Brookhart isn't dead. Defeat did not kill him. He is staging a comeback movement and an early announcement is expected of his candidacy for United States senator as an independent republican. He has had a most unique political record. He was accused of having kept the name of six Brookharts on the government payroll. He was defeated by Henry W. Fields, a millionaire seed merchant. Fields was an amateur in politics. He had never been a candidate for office until he invaded the political arena of the candidates for senator against the noisy colonel, who is said to be the best rifle shot in America. There are many political upheavals coming in November, and many of Josephus Daniels' elderly statesmen are marked for defeat.

RAYMOND ROBINS "A MAN OF MYSTERY."

Col. Raymond Robins is a man of mystery. For more than 30 years he was a man of action. A scholar and a thinker and an orator and a reformer, he was ever in the big picture. In youthful manhood he invaded the Klondike. Wanderlust and goldlust got him. He was successful beyond the dream of avarice. He grubbed a large fortune out of the earth. He returned to the states. He became prominent in politics. He followed the fortunes of Theodore Roosevelt in the Bull Moose campaign which threw Taft out and let in Woodrow Wilson—in the election of 1912. He was one of the most noted and eloquent pro-orators and active workers in the cause. He was a battler for the down-trodden and ever a champion of the so-called rights of the wage workers. He was for the recognition by this government of Soviet Russia. He was a hard hitter, but a very merciful and humane man. He was widely known the civilized world over in the ranks of those ever clamoring for the uplift of the lowly and the purging of mankind of its lust of the flesh and the throat. He had an appointment with Pres. Hoover. No doubt he was called to the White House to be given advice as the best plan to adopt to placate the ultra-dry. Then he dropped out of the picture. Did he lose his mind and wander away? Was he abducted by hijackers? Is he dead in the slums of some great city? Or is he hiding out for a much needed rest and planning to score a sensational comeback?

CHEERING NEWS FOR COTTON GROWERS.

Two million farmers are interested in the price levels of cotton. They are reminded that sensational improvement in the cotton textile industry of the United States was revealed in figures issued by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of America. For instance: Records were smashed during August when sales of cotton cloths ran up a huge total of 510,581,000 yards, the largest monthly amount since comparative figures became available in January, 1928, the year previous to the great financial crash and coming of the depression. This is the story as given by the bulletin of the textile merchants: Cotton mills were unable to turn out goods fast enough to keep up with the pace of the textile demand that sprang up during August, and the month's sale was 282.4 per cent of production, or, in other words, 182.4 per cent above the output. What happened as a result of the publication of the report? As a result of the scramble by merchants to snap up all the cotton goods in sight, needing to replace stocks depleted by three years of business depression, a large backlog of unfilled orders developed in the cotton mills of the United States during the month of August. All this should be encouraging, to say the least, to the cotton growers of the Southland and the Southwestern empire.

MOM'N POP.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Mayor J. T. Berry claims that he has been slandered. He lays the charge at the doors of the fair sex. Recently at an informal home gathering where the mayor indulged his penchant for "84" with negligible success, the accusation was made that the mayor takes his coffee in bed every morning. The mayor elevated his eyebrows in stark amazement.

"Why I don't even drink coffee," he exclaimed. In such a controversy Spectacles is forced to take a neutral ground. Even a newspaper writer must be careful that he does not get caught between such a Charybdis and Scylla. With the majority on the one hand and the invincible better half of the genus human on the other side, it behooves me to be circumspect. Consequently the mayor drinks his coffee in bed when he drinks his coffee. Isn't that an exemplary fence-straddling act? It out-weazels weazling. I trust it satisfies both sides of this volcanic equation.

R. W. (Bob) Mancill has the laugh on Henry Stubblefield. Several days ago the telephone at the police desk rang and an excited voice garbled a message. The voice wanted police and wanted them quick. Someone had gone berserk. Henry nearly fell out of his chair. He called W. B. Statham. He called several others.

"You boys are friends of Bob," he pleaded. "Go to his house and see if you can't quiet him down. It would be a shame to send police up there."

Soberly and sorrowfully the group went to Bob's home. They investigated the house. "W. B." got behind a tree.

"Bob," he called in soothing, sympathetic tones, "let's go fishing."

Bob came out. He stared at this strange seige. "What on earth's the matter with you boys?" he demanded. "Are you crazy?"

Statham peeped from behind his tree. To all evidences Bob was perfectly normal. He ventured out a step or two. "No," he said dubiously, "but we thought you were."

Bob blinked in amazement. "Look here," he inquired with some indignation, "what kind of a practical joke is this?"

W. B. explained. Bob sank down, overcome with laughter.

Since then Henry gets a "repeat" on all messages for police.

POCKET IS PICKED.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—Leslie J. Lyons, republican leader, paid well for any votes he garnered for his party when he spoke at a county fair near here. Lyons' pocketbook, containing $14 and some papers, was stolen as he descended from the platform.

LAMP COLLECTION.

RACINE, Wis., Sept. 16.—A lamp from a turkish harem, another from a ship that blew up in Racine harbor and killed seven men, are included in the collection of Barney Richter, restaurant owner and former pugilist. Two large lamps, believed to be more than 100 years old, are from this city's first hearse; another illuminated one of the first railroad stations in the state.

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS

Helps Correct Constipation with "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Has Iron

Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation. It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming? Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Of vital importance to business and family, the automobile requires a wide variety of products and skilled attention. If it runs and looks well, it will cost less in the long run. Humble quality products are especially designed for all needs and all purses. Humble men are doubly trained—first, to be expert at their work; second, to be courteous and helpful to the motorist... ## ACTIVITY IN LUMBER MILLS SPEEDED UP

AUSTIN, Sept. 16.—An unusual speeding up of lumber activity, not what might be termed "in line" with the continued pessimism in the building industry, occurred in the southern pine mills reporting to the Southern Pine Association, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. During the past five years there has been little or no change in production schedules between July and August; yet this year, average weekly output per mill rose from 153,920 feet in July to 163,615 feet in August and week ending August 27, the Bureau's report said. The average for August was only 17 per cent under that for August last year, by far the most favorable showing which has been made in many months. This extra-seasonal increase in production was not only the only sign of increased activity at southern pine mills, it was pointed out. Average weekly shipments per unit, for instance, were greater by 24 per cent in August than in July; and, at 218,045 feet, average weekly shipments during August were 45,000 feet greater than average weekly output.

Unfilled orders on August 27 amounted to an average of 592,344 feet per unit, an increase of 39 per cent as compared with bookings a month earlier and only 3 per cent below those at the close of August a year ago. Unfilled orders were only 8,000 feet below the high established on March 26.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
STAN BALL, an agent for cattle interests, faces ASPER DELO in his office in the city. Asper is accused by the cattle men of intruding on their range with his timber-cutting. Ball accuses DeLo of having men shot who try to check up on him. Ball says he is going up to make a check himself. DeLo retorts that he will personally see that Ball does not stand before the office building. Stan Ball sees kidnapers slip a girl into a car. He catches the car and saves DONA DELO, Asper's daughter. When he learns who she is he slips away after telling her he is STANLEY BLACK.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

DUDLEY WINTERS tapped the cork tip of his cigaret on the arm of his chair and smiled. He had just delivered himself of an order and he was expecting it to be taken with some weight. The person to whom this mandate had been directed was curled up in a deep chair, gazing meditatively out the nearest window.

"Don't be antique, Dud! Engaged men don't rush around telling their fiancées what to do in this age," Dona DeLo turned impatiently and pursed her lips in a most tantalizing manner.

Winters arose and strode across the room. He bent over the easy chair and gazed at its occupant in a mock fit of anger. "Want me to drag you out of that chair by your hair, woman?" He bent over and tried to steal a kiss but Dona evaded his lips and pushed him aside.

"Pull your cave in after you," she retorted. "I have things on my mind."

Dudley straightened and a defiant frown clouded his handsome face. His mouth drooped a little at the corners when he frowned and Dona fancied he could readily pout.

"You're thinking about that wash-out, Black, when you should be listening to me." Dudley could not help but speak the thoughts in his mind. "The way he vanished shows what he thinks of you."

Dona uncurled and let her little heels click on the floor. "He certainly took a great deal of pains not to make himself unpleasant." Her eyes showed that she had not liked that remark of Dudley's.

Sensing a quarrel, the young man grinned and changed his tactics. After all, why worry about this fellow Black? He was plainly a fellow visitor to the city and already punching cows back in the hills hundreds of miles away. He drew Dona down among the cushions and pinched her arm. "Mr. Black is a true knight and I shall thank him for saving you when you find him."

"Dad will locate him when he gets back," Dona flashed moodily.

"Your Dad must be out for big game on this trip," Dudley said, seating himself upon the arm of her chair. He sent a thin spiral of smoke ceilingward before he continued. "He had his rifle and one of those portable cannons commonly known as six guns out on his desk and all oiled up."

THE girl stirred and straightened. This was news to her. She had been so busy checking up on the whereabouts of a certain Stanley Black that she had forgotten all about her father's trip to Three Rivers. "Guns?" she echoed.

"Sure. A young arsenal and whole pile of cartridges. He had all the accessories, too. A sleeping bag and a pile of regular western paraphernalia." Dudley was glad he had struck upon a topic that had no fire in it.

"Where did you see him?" Dona demanded unasily.

"I stepped in upon him at the office when I was looking for you. He told me all about the man hunt you're on."

Dona looked at Dudley appraisingly. She saw a slender young man of athletic type. Square shoulders, fine head and dark eyes that held a lurking flicker of amusement. Then she saw the mouth with its tendency to droop a bit at the corners. Dudley Winters was plainly capable but not accustomed to being called upon for any kind of action demanding effort.

"Why don't you go up to Three Rivers and talk Dad out of this wild idea, whatever it is?" Dudley grinned and inhaled deeply. He let the smoke trickle out of his mouth before he answered. "Aw, D, he'll make it by himself. I never shot a bear in my life."

"But he's not after bear. He's after a man," Dona spoke earnestly. "You could talk him into coming back, giving up the whole thing."

"A man?" Dudley halted the spiral of smoke abruptly. "You're crazy, D."

"You don't know Dad! He comes from a family of hard fighters. Honestly, Dad, this is serious." Dona caught the young man's hand impulsively. "Can't you see we have been lurking in the back of her mind.

"Your answer first, my little lady." He caught and held her tightly.

"Whatever you ask, but you must get father to give up this wild idea of shooting someone." Playfully she shoved him away as he tried to gather her slender shoulders in a close embrace. "Your reward, Sir Knight, must wait upon your success."

Dudley shook her lightly and released her. "You are a hard taskmaster, Princess." He bowed with a wide sweep of his arm. "But your knight rides forth at dawn to do your bidding."

"At dawn and in my roadster. I am going to Three Rivers with you, sir."

"No you don't! This may be a case of hog-tying your fond parent and shipping him back by express. This is a man's job and I refuse to allow the future Mrs. Winters to be involved in it. You will sit right here and await the boy from the telegraph office. Once every hour or oftener he will deliver a report on the progress at Three Rivers."

STANDING before her in his faultlessly tailored suit, his hair combed back smoothly and his tie knotted with careless perfection, Dudley Winters looked more capable of braving the dangers of a bridge party among dowagers than embarking upon a dangerous and rough mission.

"Just the same I'm going. I'll stay at the company hotel and be perfectly safe and I may be able to help. Don't you want me where you can see me every day?" She arose and moved nearer with her face upturned.

"You go, lady," Dudley grinned. Secretly he was glad she was going. If she stayed she might locate this stranger, Black, and that was far from his desire. He was a little nervous and a great deal jealous of the dashing cowboy who had rescued Dona. Of course it had been his own luck to be playing golf at the precise hour when she had been kidnaped and the luck of a stranger to be standing on the sidewalk to see what happened.

"You'd better toddle home now and get ready. We'll have to start early." Dona patted his cheek and escaped before he could catch her.

"This is one morning when I'll have something to get up for," Dudley smiled as he moved toward the door. After picking up his hat from the chair into which he had tossed it he faced her. "It would be fitting and proper for me to search until I find a murderous weapon like the one your Dad was oiling. I suppose." He grinned as he slid his hat firmly over his smooth hair.

"It would not. You are to prevent shooting—not to help or do any yourself." Dona spoke severely and earnestly.

"No danger of me shooting anyone! I'm no plainsman. Gunning is out of my line. If there is any tough stuff I'll have to use my fists or a club." He opened the hall door. "Got one for a good night?"

Dona slipped forward and placed a swift kiss on his lips, then turned to the stairs and ran up to her room. Dudley Winters walked down the white stone steps of the DeLo town house as though the hard slabs had been cushioned with air. He poked the sleeping chauffeur in the car at the curb and shouted happily. "Step on her Tom! We're headed home."
