DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THY KEEPER:—The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.—Psalm 121: 5.

FEAR DESTROYED:—Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.—Isa. 41: 10.

A PATRIOT OF FRANCE SHOT TO DEATH.

President Paul Doumer of France, patriot statesman and lover of liberty, was shot to death by a White Russian fanatic, as he was attending a war veterans charity exposition. Doumer was a figure on the world stage for many years. He came from the ranks of the people. His father was a railroad section laborer. He fought his way from the lowest rung to the top. He gave four of his five sons to the cause of the Allies while the World war was on. He was a man of the people of the French republic. Those who were close to him often said that he had never harmed a human being and did not have an enemy on earth. They were mistaken. His assassin deliberately planned and executed his plot. He shot to kill. The wounds inflicted were fatal, and this was his reason for the foul crime: "European states seemed favorable to bolshevism, so I decided to kill the president and cause France to declare war on Russia. I had no accomplices. I carried another pistol and a vial of poison in my pocket. I planned to kill myself because I knew my life had been finished." He was born in the Caucasus and trained as a Cossack. He served with the army of the czar on the Austrian front and was educated in medicine at Prague. He hated the Soviets. He was loyal to the Romanoffs. He slew the president of France in order to provoke a war of retaliation by France on Russia. Madmen are found the world over. This assassin of Paul Doumer must be as mad as a March hare.

RAIL HOLDING FIRMS TO BE CONTROLLED.

And now the senate interstate commerce committee has given its approval to legislation to place railroad holding companies under the interstate commerce commission. More-over the bill would permit the interstate commerce commission to supervise the operations and issuance of securities by railroad companies. It would prevent the further acquisition of stock by holding companies in a railroad if the commission found acquisition might interfere with its own consolidation plan. Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas is chairman of the house interstate commerce committee. He is committed to legislation along the lines given the approval of the senate committee. Are the American rails headed in the direction of government control and in the last analysis government operation? If it ever happens the people, the taxpayers of America, will have a fancy bill of cost to settle every year. Bus and freighter competition on the highways of America are taking the cream of the traffic from the steam rails as well as the electric lines.

A NAVY THAT WILL SWEEP THE SEAS.

A navy "as big as treaties will allow" has been voted by the senate. By 44 to 21 the Hale bill to authorize building up the United States navy to the limit set by the Washington and London conferences was approved and sent to the house. Those who opposed its enactment described the bill as militarism, and "a program of national suicide." If enacted by the house the program it would authorize involves approximately one billion dollars and the president would be authorized to suspend it upon the conclusion of any new disarmament agreement. Sen. Hale of Maine put it over. Sen. Hale is for peace and preparedness. He would build a navy that would sweep the seven seas, if the sweeping of the seas became necessary for the protection of American interests the world over as well as here at home. Great Britain is not going to disarm. France refuses to disarm without a security pledge. Soviet Russia is watching and waiting, and "Japan and China have signed a treaty pact." Manchuria has been taken over by the Japs. They have the loot tied to their chariot wheels and the loot is the richest of all the provinces, Manchuria. Great Britain has an Indo-Chinese empire. France has an Indo-Chinese empire as well as an African empire. Italy has regal possessions far from the land of the Romans. Little Belgium has its Congo possession, rich in rubber and ivory. "To grab and to hold" has been the slogan of European powers down the ages. Human nature does not seem to change.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

J. Crell Nuckols, advertising manager of the Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post, says:
That newspaper advertising today offers the quickest and most direct method of getting one's story to the retail buyer.

One of the things that especially affects the department stores today is that their profit line is going downward and their "costs of selling" line is going up. For this reason it behooves the advertising manager of any line of retail business to carefully budget his advertising expenditures and concentrate as much as possible in newspapers because of the low costs of reaching the masses.

While every form of advertising has its place in the general order of things, the fact still remains that newspaper advertising is the quickest medium of telling one's story, getting it read, and getting results from that reading.

All Out of Step But Gigli!

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Well, Pencil Farmer and I finally got together. We went fishing for crappie yesterday. It was our introduction to Lake Cisco for the new season. After two very enjoyable hours I went home, ate the left-overs from lunch and went to the city commission meeting.

It was like moving all Cisco to get joined up on this excursion. The number of different things that Pencil Farmer does would amaze a circus roustabout. If it is not one thing it is another with him—from killing ants in my back yard to budding walnut trees for Judge J. J. Butts and teaching boys how to grow fatted calves on balanced rations.

I did not mean to mention the anti-killing episode. It may prove of embarrassment to Pencil Farmer at home. He said solemnly to me as we poured sodium cyanide down the anti-hole, murdering Solomon's example to the sloughful by the thousands. "My wife had better not hear of my coming out here and killing your ants."

"There's an ant bed in our back yard that she has been after me for months to kill out."

That's the tragedy of being the wife of a pencil farmer. While he is devoting long hours to inculcating principles of home gardening and diversified agriculture in the community mind the table at home is left bare of those things to which his life is devoted. It's the old case of the blacksmith, the carpenter, the doctor, the editor and the preacher. The wife of none gets much benefit from the husband's profession. If he is a carpenter she doesn't get the screens up in the summer time unless she does it herself. If he is a doctor she gets a dab of iodine when she should have a surgical operation. And if he is a pencil farmer she has to dig her own gardens.

But why, in fairness to the negative side of this equation, should a man be required to devote his home hours to the profession at which he spends the day. Shouldn't his recreation consist of something different from what disturbs his gray matter during his working hours.

The champion fisherman of Cisco is not a man at all. She is Mrs. Albert Hunt. For consistent success in enticing the finny tribe from its haunts into the frying pan she knows her hooks. Some day I am going to discover the secret of her luck." She and Mr. Hunt run the Lake Cisco Amusement company and Pencil Farmer and I certainly appreciate their courtesy yesterday. Mr. Hunt was laid up in bed with an attack of "centipedia"—that is, he was bitten on a finger by a centipede,—but Mrs. Hunt saw to it that we were well equipped with all the essentials for a crappie hunt. We can't blame our luck on them.

Well, I understand the "Secret Six" held a meeting Monday night to determine what the city commission should do. Whether or not the group goes under the name of the Secret Six, as does the Chicago committee of business men investigators who aided in the downfall of Capone, I don't know, but it makes comparatively little difference. It is certainly disconcerting to learn that right here in this peaceful little city of Cisco we have a Capone or two whose circumvention demands that this patriotic group of alleged taxpayers join in the solemn councils of the star-chamber.

I gather that the Secret Six is quite economical with its funds. According to my information they sought to rent the W. O. W. hall for two meetings each month but declined it when a charge of $4 per month was assessed to pay for lights and gas. What it should want with a lodge room I don't know unless there is not so much danger of being overheard in a lodgeroom.

Probably, also, it takes lots of room when the body gets to wrestling with weighty matters and recalcitrant servants of the people. Now, whether or not the city commission pays any attention to the ponderous deliberations of the Secret Six I don't know. Its mandates may be as futile as the summer breeze that idly nods my blossoming roses, and again its frown may be as fatal to political ambitions as a draught of hydrocyanic acid.

I am at loss to explain the authority by which the Secret Six is constituted. I don't remember having voted for any candidates for seats thereon, nor have I heard any other citizen say that he had so voted. Perhaps an election was held some night when I was asleep. Perhaps, also, an invitation to attend its sessions was lost in the mails.

In the Political Arena

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Boys still run away from home and take to the road, but they are now far outnumbered by drifting youngsters forced out into the world by economic distress.

This new type of transient youth has become a major problem for social agencies, which can usually do little better than try to send the boys back home to approximately the same situation which inspired them to go away.

Hundreds of them pass through Washington, headed north or south. They tell stories of complete unemployment and dire poverty in their families and of the utter lack of hope for work or future in the towns whence they came. A tremendous increase is reported in this group between the ages of 16 and 20.

Some "Shoved Out"

SOME of them, according to Miss Beatrice Hodgson, assistant executive of the Travelers' Aid Society here, have been shoved out by fathers unable or unwilling to support them—fathers who perhaps recall that they themselves were independent and self-supporting at the age of 16 and who demand the same thing of their sons.

Many more, however, leave home because of pride, unwilling to continue as non-producing members of families when there is little to eat and no chance to work.

"The number of transient boys between 16 and 19 with whom we have had to deal has more than tripled," says Miss Hodgson. "The increase comes among young men of high school age and the period just afterward. There has been a huge increase in the unrest among young people, nearly all of which has an economic background."

Many College Boys

"WE" have had a West Point boy, scores of college boys and innumerable high school graduates from off the road, all unable to get jobs. Not only do the new graduates find no position in industry waiting for them but the newest and youngest men makers on their hands. There is a democratic nose. President Hoover and the wily republican politicians who are his advisers are doing all in their power to place the responsibility for existing conditions on the narrow back of the donkey and its trainers. Of course, twice a week the president issues a statement from the White house. This is the latest. "The issue before the country is the re-establishment of confidence and speed toward recovery, by ending these delays in balancing the budget through immediate passage of revenue measures and restrictive government expenses. It is not a partisan issue. It is also an issue between the people and the locust swarm of lobbyists who are in the halls of congress seeking special privileges for groups and sections of the congress misleading the legislators as to the real views of the people by showers of propaganda."

For more than three years Pres. Hoover has held the reins of government. For upwards of three years he had a republican house and a republican senate. He never sounded an alarm. He did not call for a budget balancing. He said "prosperity was just around the corner." He sang low on revenue measures. In came a democratic speaker was elected. That speaker had behind him a very slender majority at first and then the democratic rebels joined hands with the republican rebels and tore to tatters a revenue measure prepared by the house committee of ways and means, a measure which had received the approval of the republican minority leader as well as the democratic majority leader.

Theodore Roosevelt would have named the leaders of the "locust swarm of lobbyists who haunt the halls of congress seeking selfish privileges." Grover Cleveland would have named them. Woodrow Wilson would have taken a fancy shot at them. President Hoover missed a glorious opportunity, or rather an opening for a scorching message directed at the heads of "the locust swarm." He not only missed it but he fired his bird shot in the air. Now the senate has whipped into shape a revenue measure which carries more than a billion dollars. It will be sent to the house. In the last analysis it will go to conference. Truth is the administration did not act early enough on economy and withheld cooperation when the congress got down to it. He had more than three years to work out his plan. He failed to do it, because, as he said, he saw "prosperity coming just around the corner." Now he is calling for the defeat of "voluciferous minorities seeking selfish privileges by misleading congressmen." All the years while the republicans were in power in senate and house "the locust swarm of lobbyists who haunt the halls of congress seeking special privileges for special sections of the country," were in evidence. They are ever in evidence. Then out over the Hawley Smoot tariff bills. They put over the history of the republican party for 50 years they have put over every special privilege act which had drawn money from the pockets of the growers of things to fatten the pockets of the makers of things. With the connivance of men high in power they robbed the government meaning the American people, for the naval oil reserve. And had it not been for the elder La-Follette and Sen. Thomas J. Walsh, those the most concerned would have gotten away with the petroleum loot which had been protected by Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Woodrow Wilson, and their very efficient naval secretaries.

Well, Albert B. Fall has been given his liberty. He served a year or more. Col. Gaston B. Means, who was a star player in the days when oil petroleum conspirators flourished, is behind the bars. Col. Means as a seeker for Baby Lindbergh's whereabouts, magnetized a generous Washington mother and lured from her $100,000. He appears to have gotten away with it. According to the evidence of those who are close to Mrs. Edward B. McLean the sum of $100,000 failed to do the work and the colonel made an attempt to make a touch for another $35,000 which he did not get. Then it was that agents of the department of justice and those who were not agents of the department of justice were placed on the trail of this noted Washington playboy who flourished grandly during the Harding administration and now he is on the inside looking out preparing his alibi of innocence of any wrong doing in connection with the kidnaping of the son and heir of the world ace of the air. Col. Means was one of the chiefs of the locust swarm of lobbyists who haunted the corridors of the capitol, indeed, whose name was on the payroll when the old gang was in power.

Four years ago the democrats were quarreling over dead creeds and dead gods and giving very little attention to the living God and the creed which His gospel carries. Now they are quarreling over prohibition which was given a knock on the nose by the Wickersham commission appointed by Pres. Hoover and then the report was pigeonholed in order that it would do the least harm to the grand old party which trains in the wake of the elephant of the jungle. Now the two-third rule will bob up again in the city of Chicago and maybe the scramble will be interesting while the sham battle is on.

and the results disastrous in November.

CISCO DAILY NEWS

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY Susan Carey is in love with Bob Dunbar millionaire's son. Denise Ackroyd, society girl, tries to break up the attachment and succeeds at a house party which she gives. Ernest Heath, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of his affections but changes her mind when Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, produces an incriminating letter. Ray Flannery, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "sky" Webb has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrel on Christmas eve over some flowers Heath sent her. Waring meeting Denise, learns of her interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV

Susan's engagement had not been announced since neither she nor Heath desired the publicity but it was a definite engagement just the same. Aunt Jessie, home from the hospital, had been told of it. She had met Ernest Heath and had grudgingly liked him although she had grumbled at the idea of their marriage.

"I never thought to see you marry a divorced man," she mourned. "Especially someone so much older. Not that he isn't a fine man. Anyone with half an eye can see that. It just don't seem right."

The startled nurse Heath had insisted upon providing for the convalescent bustled into the room then and Aunt Jessie fell silent. The plan was that on the following day Aunt Jessie was to go to Florida in the nurse's charge. The marriage would take place the following month.

"It don't seem right," Aunt Jessie went on when the nurse had disappeared. "to accept so much from a perfect stranger."

"He's not a perfect stranger," Susan said, laughing, and then wondered if she had really spoken the truth. It had been strange and difficult for her to call her employer Ernest. She had finally managed it and she had learned also to like and admire the slim, quiet, aristocratic man whom she had promised to marry. There was no time for regret. The die had been cast. Heath had thought it advisable for her to continue working in the office so she was at home.

"Time for your nap" she reminded the invalid.

Aunt Jessie grumbled. "I declare never expected to see the day when I'd sleep in the middle of the afternoon. I call it shiftless."

"You're a humbug. You really like it," Susan said, her leaving to get her wraps. Heath was calling to take her for a drive.

He looked at the girl with some dissatisfaction as she got into the car.

"What on earth's the matter?" Susan asked.

"Nothing, except that I wish you'd let me give you that fur coat now instead of waiting until later," the man remarked.

Susan shook her head. On this she was stubborn. She would take anything for Aunt Jessie but nothing for herself until she was rightfully Heath's wife.

"I thought we'd go out to that little Spanish place for tea," he said. "That would be nice. I'd like that!" she assured him. The luxury and care with which she surrounded her was almost suffocating. Was she warm enough? Why had she worn those thin shoes? Susan appreciated the solicitude, at the same time finding it a little trying. Young men were not like this she reminded herself. Young men were careless and selfish and arrogant.

"What are you thinking of? You look as if you were miles away." She turned to smile at him. "Only of how good you are to me."

There! She had pleased him and little. She was almost ashamed. It was so easy to make him happy. She divined something of his former loneliness.

The drive was longer than Susan had expected and it was dark when at last they returned to the city. It had been a clear, cold, sunny day and a faint light still lingered on the lake. On sudden impulse Susan said, "Let's walk along the lake wall."

She wanted quite unreasonably to escape from the warm, luxurious car and feel the east wind on her cheeks. Heath told Simon to wait for them at the turn of the road.

"It's lovely here isn't it?" breathed the girl. She leaned against the parapet, looking down at the water. "Not as much so as some of the places you and I are going to see soon," the man reminded her. She shivered involuntarily. Inevitably he was all solace.

"No, no. It's not that," she protested. "It's only that I feel a little frightened sometimes. It had all worked out too smoothly. It seems as though something must be bound to happen."

"Nonsense." His reassurance was robust. "You're just fanciful, that's all."

"Maybe I am." But had it been fancy, Susan wondered, that had caused her to imagine the tall figure straggling past the house several nights when she had been saying good-by to Heath looked strangely at her? Somehow she had made her own money. She had refused to see Ben since Christmas eve when she had so outrageously kissed her. "What's that?" she asked for a

Eiffel Tower Is Being Painted

PARIS, May 11.—The Eiffel Tower is 45 tons heavier than it was last year.

That is the amount of paint that 45 painters are applying to the giant steel skeleton, still the third highest structure in the world. Only the Empire State and Chrysler buildings are taller.

Paris engineers went over the tower on an annual inspection and found it in good shape. Several engineers say that it can stand for another century before it will have been worn out by the elements, but most engineers agree that it may become a menace in another 20 years.

By 1950 Eiffel Tower may have to be torn down or rebuilt, the process of rebuilding being such a costly and difficult task that Paris may easily lose the most visible feature of its skyline. The base of the great tower is stronger than its top and this is explained by the fact that the top sways in high winds and twists the metal.

The tower is being painted yellow and brown, which all Parisians agree is not pretty. Engineers say that the tower has a better chance of a longer life with paint of those two colors than any other.

One American firm offered to paint the tower with aluminum paint, so that it would sparkle like silver, just for the publicity concerned but this was opposed.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 11.—Fashion is beginning to paint the town red. May be it is because Spring, taking an early peep, found it too chilly to stay and ran back under cover and left Dame Fashion to find some other way of trying to warm things up!

Red has become much more affable in recent times, getting along much more harmoniously with a larger number of other colors than ever before. It is fine with grey, beige, ecru, those rare pink inspired by Vionnet and adopted by many others recently; combinations of white and blue with red are all the rage, and with pure white, or virgineous black and red commands new admiration.

Above we referred to it as a solid color, now we suggest it in the shape of polka dots, flowers, geometric figures, stripes and prints of all smart descriptions and on surfaces of white, beige, yellow, green, grey, rose, yellow and black.

LOUISIANA MAY SOME DAY BE THE LARGEST STATE IN THE UNION... BUILT UP BY SOLE DEPOSITS FROM TWENTY-SIX OTHER STATES.

INSURANCE COMPANIES have made a study of statistics and discovered that the most dangerous time for driving an automobile is on Sunday afternoon, between the hours of 6 and 7. The time at which a fatal accident is least likely to occur is on Tuesday morning between the hours of 4 and 5.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER is slowly building additions to Louisiana, and thousands of years from now, instead of ranking 31st in size, this state may exceed even Texas. Millions of tons of choice farm land are carried down the Mississippi every year and deposited in the Gulf of Mexico.

BODIES TORRENT FOR NEW DAM

BOULDER CITY, Nev., May 11.—A year ago torrential Colorado river beat its muddy waters unobscured against the precipitous sides of Black Canyon...

Today it looked upward and knew that its tempestuous career was doomed. For overhead, ant-like, Charles A. Shea, construction director of Six Companies, Inc., builders of Hoover Dam, looked down from the portal of a diversion tunnel...

Work Progressing Work of driving the tunnels and pouring the tunnel portion of the 4,500,000 cubic yards of concrete that will go into Hoover Dam is progressing rapidly, Shea said.

After the Colorado has been diverted from its age-long course, the dam proper will be started. Up Black Canyon's sides, Hoover Dam will rear its concrete bulk 730 feet, the highest dam ever constructed. Its crest will be 1,180 feet long. Back of the barrier will be impounded 30,500,000 acre feet of water.

Waters from this late—115 miles long and twice as large as San Francisco Bay—will be used for irrigating dry areas and generating 1,200,000 horsepower hydroelectric energy. The dam will check disastrous river floods.

When the Six Companies, dam contractors, started work just one year ago they couldn't get into Black Canyon except by boat. The spiteful Colorado boils through the canyon so viciously that it is five feet higher in midstream than at the banks.

Dangerous Task. The work was as dangerous as construction work can be. There is a rumor that insurance experts estimated that 200 men would be killed the first year. So far 14 men have been killed.

After a year's activity the construction area forms a triangle. From Boulder City, seven miles away, a highway and a railroad stretch to the upper tunnel portals on the river. Another highway winds down to the lower portals, plunging the last two miles along a 10 per cent grade. Tunnels connect the upper and lower portals, 4,900 feet apart.

Bridges span the river. Cofferdams protect the portals of the diversion tunnels. Eighteen hundred men are pitting man's science against nature and the elements and soon will have changed the Colorado from its age-long course.

NEW TAXATION SYSTEM NEEDED SAYS HUNTER

EASTLAND, May 11.—"We need a new tax system in Texas, one that will remove 70 per cent of the taxes from real estate and place it on the two-thirds of our wealth now escaping taxation," declared Tom E. Hunter, democratic candidate for governor, who spoke here at 8 Monday night in the courthouse.

"There is assessed in Texas for taxes, four billion three hundred million dollars worth of wealth. Records at Washington, D. C., show a hundred billion wealth in Texas. Now it would not be fair to any that 4.3 per cent of the wealth of the state is paying all the taxes, but it is true that less than one-third of the wealth of the state is paying the state's ad valorem taxes."

"And 75 per cent of the assessed wealth is real estate. Real estate is carrying the burden in this state and it has carried it until it can no longer stand up under it. Of the other 25 per cent, half of it is upon livestock, furniture and fixtures that are akin to real estate."

Relieve Real Estate. "We must take this huge taxation load off of real estate and let it go back into its own when it will again become good collateral and have a market value."

"We must place a sales tax upon substitutes produced in competition with products of the soil. If we had had an adequate sales tax last year upon the products of the soy bean and the cocoanut, cottonseed would have brought a 100 per cent better price. We must have a tax levied upon the substitutes put out in competition with our dairies."

"It must be made a penal offense in Texas for any state official to receive pay from a corporation. Two thousand years ago the Saviour said: 'No man can serve two masters,' and it is just as true today as when pronounced by Jesus of Nazareth."

"I am unalterably opposed to a state-wide bond issue. You amend the constitution and take out of the hands of the people their inherent right to say when they shall or shall not be bonded and place that authority in official Austin and you most certainly commit your state to bankruptcy and your posterity to servitude."

Retire County Bonds. "It is not right to charge real estate for the construction and maintenance of highways. Those who use the roads must pay for them. One cent of the present gasoline tax, if used for that purpose, would be sufficient to retire the road bonds of every county in Texas as they mature."

"Why are eggs six cents a dozen, cotton five cents a pound and wheat 40 cents a bushel? Is there 'too much money in the country? Are our people half clad because there is too much clothing? One reason for the low price of our commodities is that the utilities are taking from Texas more than 70 millions of dollars annually in unfair profits, shipping it to the banks of the East where the utilities are owned, instead of leaving it in circulation in Texas as a buying power for Texas people."

"Before I announced for governor more than 90 per cent of the voting strength of Wichita county was in a Hunter club requesting that I enter the race. Since my announcement the farmers of Wichita County have organized a separate club and every farmer and every farm wife is a member of that club. More recently, Kent, my boyhood county, organized a club and every voter in the county is a signed member of it."

City Commission

Continued from page one. ation of the bills, took action to disperse with the services of the Dallas Laboratories in testing the city water each week for purity and bacteria content, and upon suggestion of Commissioner Elliott, directed that this service be secured from the state department of health. The charge of the Dallas chemists is approximately $50 per month and Elliott told the commission the state department would make the necessary tests without charge. The commission refused to take any action upon a request for permission to use diving apparatus in Lake Cisco to recover sunken motors. Although the city health officer said that there was little danger of contaminating the water, the commission frowned upon the idea as distasteful and possibly dangerous.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

ALMOST ALL MAMMALS have seven neck bones. In long-necked animals, the vertebrae are merely longer than those of short-necked animals. A giraffe has no more than a whale. In birds, however, the number is more variable. Humming birds have 14 to 15 neck vertebrae, ducks 16 or 17, and swans 25. In 1903, William W. Simpson, a missionary in China, wrote to friends in the United States for potatoes with which to develop the American potato in China. A handful of Green mountain potatoes were sent over, and it is estimated that a million Chinese were saved from starvation by eating the descendants of those first few tubers.

Students More---

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE The registration this year was 6,144, as compared to 6,039 last year. The increase at the University was partly explained because of lower fees. Many students transfers were made because of this. Six Graduates The college reporting the least number of graduates this year was Nazareth Academy of Victoria where six students will receive degrees. The schools report, like many larger institutions, said the classroom work this year had showed improvement. Majority of schools reported efforts to secure part time employment for students during the past school year had been more difficult. People are reducing payrolls, students who have had jobs heretofore are no relinquishing them to look for others and general business conditions were the reasons given for this condition. Many schools had departments of bureaus which aided students in finding parttime work. Speaking of finding permanent work for graduates, the report from Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college said: "There is no formal bureau for finding jobs for graduates, but each department in which a student majors endeavors to place the student in work after school. This has worked out very successfully, large number of students entering work on completion of study. Present economic conditions is making it self felt this year, however, as was the case in the past year in getting outside work." Several schools reported a loyal alumni body had been a help in finding work for graduates. Abilene Christian college has systematized their employment bureau which finds work for graduates, while at Rice Institute they are not entering their employment department as they feel it will not help the situation.

Final Touch Added To Coffee Shop

The Laguna Coffee Shop has added the final touch to its scheme of redecoration in the shape of attractive draperies which relieve the open windows of glare and add a touch of restfulness to the hotel's eating place. Combined with the art paper which now decorates the walls and other improvements that have been made in the shop the effect of the draperies is such that old customers hardly know the place. It can safely claim to be one of the most attractive coffee shops in West Texas.
