Lions Club Sponsors City-Wide Smoker for July 15th

QUESTIONS OF CIVIC IMPORT TO BE TALKED

A city-wide business and professional smoker at the Laguna hotel Friday July 15 will be sponsored by the Cisco Lions club in an effort to arouse interest in civic problems. Plans for the smoker were completed at the meeting of the club this noon.

The event will take place Friday evening, July 15, at 8 o'clock. It is not intended to be a club affair, but an occasion when all business and professional men who are interested in the civic welfare of Cisco may come together to concentrate upon discussions of questions that are deemed important by the group.

All invited. Every business and professional man in the city will be given an opportunity to attend and to speak freely upon whatever subject of civic import may be brought before the group. The general purpose of the meeting was emphasized by Lion Leach in discussion before the club today.

Howard Fuller, E. C. Giles and H. L. Dyer will have charge of all arrangements necessary for the entertainment of the guests.

Acting on the motion of Lion Dr. Chas. Jones, the club instructed the secretary to send a letter to the Cisco Public library commending the women for their achievements in the construction of a splendid library building in the face of present conditions.

Visitors present were, W. H. Patrick and A. L. Chase, both Lions from Cleveland, Texas; and Andrew Howsley, Lion from Albany, Texas.

JOINT MEET POSTPONED TO TUESDAY

Joint meeting of the city commission and the chamber of commerce to hold appropriation and budget difficulties between the two was postponed from last night until the regular meeting night of both groups next Tuesday evening, Mayor J. T. Berry announced today.

The meeting had first been scheduled to take place last night but confusion developed.

THOMAS WINS RIGHT TO LEAD OTTAWA TRIP

By HARRY FLORY United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON, July 6.—The recent announcement of the composition of the British delegation to the imperial economic conference to be held in Ottawa this month climaxed a campaign by the Beaverbrook press and a faction of the Conservative Party to have Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas once a railway engineer excluded from the delegation.

The campaign did not achieve its purpose, since Thomas will go to Ottawa, Thomas will not head the delegation although the office he holds in the national government might be expected to entitle him to that honor.

Two things apparently prompted the campaign. He speaks with a cockney accent, and drops his 's'. Anti-Thomas agitators maintained in a veiled way that an Eton or Harrow, Oxford or Cambridge man should be the head of the delegation available for speech-making and presiding at banquets.

In the second place, the campaign was undoubtedly inspired by the fact that Thomas held the same post in the labor government during the imperial conference in London in 1930, when no tangible results were achieved.

The statement by the labor government at the conclusion of that conference ruled out any question of extending existing Empire tariff preferences. It declared that the interests of the United Kingdom precluded an economic policy which would injure its foreign trade or add to the burdens of the people.

Waits Gallows

His mother's fight for his life having proved in vain, Paul Wexler, 18, waits at Hattiesburg, Miss., for execution set for July 14. He was convicted of slaying J. L. Odum, filling station proprietor, in a holding.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 6.—Smith Reynolds, 21, heir to the $20,000,000 Reynolds tobacco estate, died today of a self-inflicted bullet wound. He was said to have been cleaning a gun just before the shot was heard.

Young Reynolds, who recently had left his Broadway night club haunts to prepare for an aeronautics examination, married Libby Holman, night club and theatrical singer several weeks ago.

FLOOD WATERS SUBSIDING IN SOUTH TEXAS

SAN ANTONIO, July 6.—Flood waters from the Frio river today ebbed from the streets of Tilden, 75 miles south of here, after driving the town's residents into a Catholic church on high ground last night.

Property damage was heavy, water rising to a depth of 7 feet in homes located in the lower part of the town, which is nearly a mile from the normal channel of the river.

Several hundred miles upstream in the hill country around Kerrville, rehabilitation proceeded from a recent flood.

DAM PREVENTED FLOOD DAMAGE. BROWNWOOD, July 6.—The new $2,500,000 Brownwood dam, eight miles northeast of here today was credited with preventing possible heavy flood damage following the heaviest rain in the vicinity in 32 years.

The great dam, now nearing completion, today held more than 7,000 acres of water, an amount which under normal conditions would have required 2 or 3 years to impound as the dam has not yet properly sealed.

Rainfall at Brownwood was only 2 inches, but near Coleman and other points on the watershed as high as nine inches was reported. The dam is located at the junction of Pecan Bayou and Jim Ned creek.

Water backing up from the flooded lake yesterday had submerged the Humble Perry station to a depth of 15 feet, washing 5,000-gallon oil tanks from their grades and crushing them against one another, and washing houses occupied by the families of employees from their foundations.

Water backing up from the flooded lake yesterday had submerged the Humble Perry station to a depth of 15 feet, washing 5,000-gallon oil tanks from their grades and crushing them against one another, and washing houses occupied by the families of employees from their foundations.

Employees on these locations likewise escaped with loss of household goods. The area represented a scene of water devastation. At May, just south of Rising Star, water encroached to within 15 feet of the Humble's big station on the West Texas pipe line.

FLOODWATERS HALT TRAFFIC. AUSTIN, July 6.—Floodwaters continued to halt traffic in parts of southwest Texas today, according to reports to the state highway department.

Commissioner Joe Clements Explains His Position in Article to the News

Comm'r Joe Clements, in the following article, explains his position with respect to the criticism recently directed at the policies of the city commission by the chamber of commerce.

If the editor of the Daily News will kindly give me space, I should like to explain some of the things which were mentioned in the article written by a chamber of commerce representative, and published in Friday's issue of your paper.

I am one of the members of the city commission, who have been employed to do manual labor in connection with the executive duties as a member of that body. My reason for desiring this employment is twofold; namely, I am not free to leave home to secure employment at present, as all of you know, and there is no contracting and building to be had in Cisco at present.

Everybody in Cisco knows that the loss of about $38,000.00 in the bank failure, together with the failure of many of our citizens to pay their taxes is the reason for the depressed condition of the city finances at this time.

Moreover, every member of the city commission is in favor of our band and our vocational work, and the chamber of commerce would criticize us for not supplying ample funds when they themselves have not all paid their taxes to assist in supplying these funds.

Where is the splendid work that the chamber of commerce promised us? Not many years ago we had an active stone plant, a cotton compress and an oil mill and three gins running in our town. Now they have all left in spite of a well paid chamber of commerce. Do not think I am blaming the chamber for the hard times which caused these plants to pack up and

FRISCO PLANS FOR SHRINERS ARE FINISHED

By WENDELL BURCH United Press Staff Correspondent. SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Cheer up, America!

Playdays — three of them, July 26, 27, 28—lights, laughter, brilliant pageantry, all devoted to a demonstration of the nation's brightening outlook were anticipated as final plans for the annual Shriners' convention of North America were announced.

The grand opening parade of the convention will be held July 26. A "Mardi Gras" of industry, featuring huge floats bearing grotesque, giant-sized caricatures of convention officials, financial leaders, and industrial heads will take place July 27.

In Chinatown one of the most bizarre events of the entire program is planned. Chinese Shriners have prepared a pageant for the visitors, with such strange attractions as a banquet which may offer such a delicacy as real tiger meat and other Oriental foods.

Book Describes Famous Marshal

TOPEKA, Kan., July 6.—James Butler (Wild Bill) Hickok, the famous plain-man, will ride again, taming the "wild west" town of Abilene, Kan.

It will be through the medium of literature in a new volume spelling the list of romantic treatises of this picturesque figure.

The life and adventures of Wild Bill will be published in October. The book is entitled "Wild Bill and His Era" It was written by the late William Elsey Connelley, for many years secretary of the Kansas State Historical Society, and for two decades a close student of Hickok and the period he represented.

FLIERS AHEAD OF POST AND GATTY TIME

By HAROLD A. PETERS U. P. Staff Correspondent. BERLIN, Germany, July 6.—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, dashing over land and sea in a spectacular race around the world to beat the Post-Gatty record, landed at Tempelhof airfield at 5:42 p. m. (11:42 a. m. EST) today, already ahead of the Post-Gatty time.

They reached Berlin 31 hours and 41 minutes after leaving New York, and 18 hours and 40 minutes after leaving Harbor Grace. The Post-Gatty time to Berlin was 34 hours and 34 minutes. Thus Mattern and Griffin had made up the time they lost while wandering in the fog over Newfoundland yesterday, landing here two hours and 53 minutes ahead of the Post-Gatty time.

Since leaving New York at 4:01 a. m., EST, yesterday, Mattern and Griffin had covered approximately 4,100 miles, including 1,150 from New York to Harbor Grace and 2,950 without a stop from Harbor Grace, whereas Post and Gatty, who landed at Chester, England, and Hanover, Germany, Mattern and Griffin also passed a shorter time at Harbor Grace.

The Century of Progress made a new time record for crossing the Atlantic. They were sighted over Ireland this morning, then over England and Germany, flying at high speed.

They averaged 131 miles an hour from the Irish coast to Berlin and 157 miles an hour from Harbor Grace. They raced a rainstorm from Hanover to Berlin and just when officials decided they had been forced down without fuel they appeared low over Tempelhof and landed gracefully, rolling up to the passenger platform. They were surrounded by a cheering congratulatory crowd.

The American flag was hoisted and the Star Spangled Banner played. The United Press correspondent was the first to reach the plane, shake hands with the fliers and help them out. Both appeared temporarily dazed but quickly recovered. They said they were not tired and hoped to continue to Moscow tonight. All their papers and passports for Russia were ready for them.

The fliers were asked if they wanted to retire to a room at the airport hotel previously arranged for them. They declined.

Walters from the flying field restaurant appeared offering beer. Both declined and asked for water. The Century of Progress was rolled into a hangar and the refueling process started immediately. Shortly after the landing a rainstorm rolled over the field.

"I never doubted we would get here," Griffin said. "We merely hit a light shower after leaving Hanover and came through without a hitch."

"We had awful weather all night after leaving Harbor Grace. It was all fog and rain but we saw the sun in the morning. We want to get going in an hour, if possible," he said.

GRiffin's WIFE IS HAPPY. OKLAHOMA CITY, July 6.—"I think the worst is over now," said the pretty young wife of Bennett Griffin today, when informed that her flying husband and Jimmy Mattern had landed in Berlin in their round-the-world jaunt.

"I'm so happy to know they've got across the water."

"FINE WORK" SAYS MRS. MATTERN. FORT WORTH, July 6.—Drowsy and tired but highly elated, Mrs. James J. Mattern aroused from her sleep today after keeping watch all night for word from the around-the-world fliers to learn of her husband's and Bennett Griffin's record flight to Berlin.

"That's fine work," she said. "I feel the boys have the worst behind them now. Jimmy will make it."

REIMBURSING COUNTIES.

The state highway commission has enunciated a new policy. No longer will county aid be required in the construction of highways owned by the state and maintained by the state. The state commission, with the proceeds from the gasoline tax, will do all the building, all the paying and all the maintaining. Such a policy makes the department further independent of local influences in the routing of the state's thoroughfares. It may build roads where it pleases so long as it cannot be shown that fraud, abuse of authority or wilful discrimination are involved.

The commission has long had such a policy in mind. It agrees with the thought of the counties which want highways but cannot vote bonds to help pay for them. Many Texas counties—notably Eastland county—are oppressed by the debts they incurred in good times to build highways for the state to take over and maintain. About $1.25 of the Eastland county tax rate goes to amortize a road bond indebtedness. If that burden could be lifted from the shoulders of the country's tax-payers it would represent one of the greatest pieces of relief work that the government could perform.

For another thing, under the new policy the state commission can go ahead with its programs without having to worry with backward counties. It need not delay an important intra-state road program because one county turned down a bond issue while another voted one.

Now, since such a policy has been adopted by the highway commission it makes it all the more mandatory upon the next state administration to divert one cent of the gasoline tax to reimburse counties owing road bonds for the money that they have expended on state roads and to lift from the tax-payers of those counties the burden of the debt that is still owing. It is not fair to these counties to expect them to pay off their bonds which went into state roads while providing other counties with paved roads without obligation to the counties.

The state highway commission, with the proceeds from the gasoline tax, can build roads within the means of the state without incurring more bonds and at the same time lifting the oppressive load of taxation from the public. The day has gone when ad valorem taxes should be used in the construction of highways. If the ambitious program of roads under contemplation cannot be financed from the gasoline tax, let that ambitious program be scaled down to a level commensurate with the income. We all want superb roads but as past experience shows the price may sometimes be too high. If we cannot reach the moon let's try for the top of the Empire State building. It will be a measure of progress within our means and that, in the end, will prove the wiser policy.

HOME-GROWN PRODUCTS.

Texas retail grocers held their annual convention in Fort Worth. "Patronize home industries" was the topic discussed. W. C. Edwards of Dallas, managing director of Progressive Texans, Inc., stressed the part the retailers must play in the industrial development of Texas. He made the rather astounding statement that a recent survey showed Texas is supplying only 17 per cent of the fresh vegetables and truck consumed in Fort Worth and Dallas and other states are supplying 83 per cent. Thousands of carloads of vegetables and truck and citrus products are shipped from Texas annually to the great American centers of population. All this is a matter of record as well as a matter of fact; but why is it that the consumers of Dallas and Fort Worth prefer out-of-state vegetables and truck to the Texas-grown supply?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Those who had charge of the Fourth of July celebration arrangements were themselves surprised at the results. R. L. Fox, chairman of the committee, who was as busy as a bee in a tar-bucket, was astounded. By the time he got through pushing around among the crowds and listening to Tom Blanton and Joe Jones go at each other's political throats, he felt as if he had been through one of those Coney Island jams on a hot day that we read about.

"I didn't know there were that many people in the state of Texas," he declared.

Talk about hard times. There are still lots and lots of people in this country. And they want entertainment.

Said one man from Gorman: "Eastland county looks to Cisco to lead the way. We go elsewhere whenever special occasions are announced perhaps, but we always expect to go to Cisco when Fourth of July or another national holiday rolls around."

It takes a long time to build up tradition but with what Cisco has to offer, the peculiar advantages of the site at the lake, we have an opportunity to make that area the leading center of amusement and recreation in west central Texas.

Folks, that is about all we have left. But fortunately it is something that cannot be taken away from us. They may move our oil business, our cotton gin, our railroads and they may even kick the chamber of commerce into the limbo of the obsolete, but that lake is going to stay there. And as long as it stays we may invite the world to come to Cisco and have a good time.

Our main object now, during this depression when there is nothing else to do, should be to push the advantages at the lake, advertise it to the four winds of the earth. Special occasions should follow one after the other until the people of this section get the habit of coming. When that habit is thoroughly established we can look for crowds all during the vacation season.

Specs congratulates the chamber of commerce committee that put over such a program so splendidly, without the slightest disorder and in a way that is a standing invitation to all who came to come back again.

Another thing. There wasn't so much money spent on the program. And yet the biggest crowd that has ever come to the lake came to that affair. It cost the chamber of commerce less than $50.

I have in mind a number of occasions when more than a thousand dollars was spent to prepare for a similar program. The remarkable success of the picnic Monday was clear proof that these previous arrangements were extravagant. Several of the business establishments that remained open during the day took in more than $50 as a result of the program. The program, for once was profitable to Cisco. But the most important fact is the demonstration that the people of this part of the world want to come to Cisco. Let's give them more opportunities to come.

Removing the Deficit!

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

This depression will pass on in due time, like others have done. But in the meantime, when many need help we ask that a thought be given to the many unemployed everywhere throughout the country.

On the subject of unemployment and the need of necessities for men and women who are willing to work but who are denied that blessing, and children who need food and clothes, many of our states are doing little but passing the buck to the national government. With this thought, we beg leave to believe it is a matter for the public to take the lead, with a view to stirring official conscience.

We are aware of the argument that the national government cannot support those distressed by force of circumstances. We are aware, too, that in official circles the most stringent measures of retrenchment are imperative if this country is soon to return to normal times. It should retrench in every way except towards its disabled war veterans, who are a first charge of the national government and who should be given first consideration.

As to the various states, there is no legal liability, but we would be somewhat less than human were we not to emphasize the moral obligation of local and state governments toward those who make possible their being.

We would call attention to those citizens who are out of work, out of money and out of credit. If local governments are to justify their existence as a body, now is the time for them to act and go the full limit of their ability.

SHELTON, Wash., July 6.—In the ash pan of his furnace high school principal Loop found his cat with four newly-born kittens. Hot ashes only kept them warm.

Texas has within itself the means of greatly improving the value, saleability and demand for its county and district bonds, issued but unsold, financial authorities have shown.

When the state takes up the $70,000,000 or more county and district bonds applied to the highway system it will first prove to investors that the bonds are completely sound; and secondly will release other investment money for the purchase of other bonds.

Moral effect of the assumption will also be to put more of the reserve of Texas tax collections behind other issues; and to convince investors that the good faith of Texas is behind its obligations.

Forced sale of the road bonds will be at an end, since the state will not compel localities to put the securities on the market under the old requirements that actual cash had to be contributed to highway projects.

With his East Texas martial laurels of being one of the subjects of the campaign Gov. Ross S. Sterling has decided to open his re-election race with his first scheduled speech in the oil area or near it. He likely will make the opening speech at Longview; or if not, at Longview according to plans shaped up for the campaign race.

One of the dominant political figures in Texas political affairs of a 37-year day passed in the death of former Sen. D. A. Paulus of Hallockville.

His long life was an active one in public and political affairs. He held state office as long as he wanted it; and after he retired from the senate, he had an important share in guiding the political and public affairs of his section.

When the legislature last year adopted new rules for the "classified" long session, the rules resulted in side-tracking general legislation and of giving a great advantage to those seeking to push local and special legislation through.

Undoubtedly there will be demands next January that will assure disposition of the appropriation bills and general matters, rather than to let hundreds of important bills die unconsidered because game and fee bills and road laws had taken up time of the session.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT

United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, July 5.—At the annual Bal Blanc, held here at the Sporting Club recently, and which is one of the most brilliant balls of the season Mme. Schiaparelli designed and wore a gown that is going to be made again and shown in her next collection. Hers was of white crepe jersey, ankle length with straps crossing in the back and two pockets, woven like little baskets of narrow bands of the jersey, placed high on either side in front.

This gown creates a new line. A necklace of white crepe feathers added a formal and softening note to her costume. Its cleanest pure line made it stand out obviously from the hundreds of other white gowns at this particularly smart ball.

The Françoise Sixte de Bourbon-Parme wore a gorgeously draped gown of white tulle, and her mother the Duchesse de Doudeauville was commended upon frequently for her unusual white wrap of velvet.

PARIS, July 6.—We nominate lace as a popular favorite for summer fashions, and we have a few things to say about sleeves and shoulders and waistlines when this particular fabric is used for the frock.

Cape sleeves are very a la mode, whether they are flowing or perky and brief. Cape sleeves of seven-eighths length combine with lace to make a charming frock for semi-formal wear.

Nottingham lace is having a fling at the moment and seems to be equally smart for practically all types of tea to formal evening gowns.

Wool lace now is made in the most delicate of netweb weaves and the newer mat surfaced laces have a novel richness about them that is making them well received by the fashionwise woman of the world.

ARMSTRONG WILL RUN AS INDEPENDENT

Announcement of the withdrawal of George W. Armstrong, Dallas, from the democratic primary lists as a candidate for governor, has been received by the Cisco Daily News.

Mr. Armstrong announced his withdrawal for the following reasons:

1. I am not a democrat if the Chicago platform defines and represents modern democracy. In the face of the worst depression in history, brought upon the country by the contraction of currency by the federal reserve authorities, it proposes no relief. It stands for a "sound dollar" and not more dollars; for free trade; against the restoration of silver; against the Patman bill; against the 18th amendment; and for the rule of this country by Wall street and the federal reserve system. It represents the democracy of Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and John J. Raskob, and not my kind of democracy.

2. I entered this race primarily to establish a state currency system that would free us from the control of the arbitrary and infamous federal reserve system. I have spoken in about 150 counties, making an average of more than four speeches daily during the past six weeks, but I have only been able to touch the state in high spots and to speak to a small per cent of the people. They are deeply interested in my platform. I need more time to present it to them.

3. There is need for the organization of an independent party that will truly represent the interest of the masses of the people. Somebody must start the movement at some time. Fully realizing the difficulties, and my own limitations, I have concluded to undertake the task. I therefore withdraw from the contest for the democratic nomination for governor and announce that I will run as an independent against the nominee.

I wish to thank the country press, the war veterans and other friends who are supporting my candidacy. While I think that I might win the nomination, my election would be disappointing to me and to the people. It "big business" should succeed in electing an antagonistic legislature. I will be in the better position as an independent to campaign against a democratic nominee for the legislature who stands for control of the government by the "interests" which I intend to do. I do not care for the office of governor if I cannot accomplish the reforms I advocate.

ALL BUT ONE CONGRESSMAN SEEK RETURN

By SAM D. HALES

United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS, July 5.—With the exception of Representative Guinn Williams of Decatur, 13th district representative for 10 years, all of the 18 Texas congressmen are candidates for reelection.

Six of them have no opponents in the democratic primary. These are: Wright Patman, Martin Dies, Jr., Morgan G. Sanders, Luther A. Johnson, O. H. Cross and Speaker John Garner.

Rep. Hatten W. Summers, Dallas, and Rep. Richard Kleberg, Corpus Christi, the newest of the Texas delegation, have the distinction of the most opponents. They have three each. Three candidates also seek the post to be vacated by the retirement of Representative Williams.

The complete list of regular congress candidates by districts as reported to Democratic party officials here is as follows:

- No. 1. Wright Patman, Texarkana.
No. 2. Martin Dies, Jr., Orange.
No. 3. Morgan G. Sanders, Canton.
No. 4. Sam Rayburn, Bonham; Jess Morris, Greenville; and C. B. Randall, Sherman.
No. 5. Hatten W. Summers, Mrs. Florence Rodgers, John J. Gallagher and Walter J. Wet Reid, all of Dallas.
No. 6. Luther A. Johnson, Corsicana.
No. 7. Clay Stone Briggs, Galveston; and W. A. "Fred" Cook, Groveton.
No. 8. Daniel E. Garrett, T. B. Lewis and Joe H. Eagle, all Houston.
No. 9. J. J. Mansfield, Columbus; and Stanley Kulawik, Cuero.
No. 10. J. P. Buchanan, Brenham; and Merton L. Harris, Smithville.
No. 11. O. H. Cross, Waco.
No. 12. Fritz G. Lanham and Albert J. Baskin, both of Fort Worth.
No. 13. W. D. McFarlane and Dillard Hinson, both of Graham, and George W. Backus, Vernon.
No. 14. Richard M. Kleberg, Corpus Christi; Thurman Barrett, Ivan A. Britt and Ben L. Maloney, all of San Antonio.
No. 15. John N. Garner, Uvalde.
No. 16. R. E. Thomason and Dan M. Jackson, both of El Paso.
No. 17. Thomas L. Blanton, Abilene; and Joe H. Jones, Eastland.
No. 18. Marvin Jones and Henry S. Bishop, both of Amarillo.
Representative Williams had filed for reelection but withdrew because of illness and lack of time to make a thorough campaign against his three opponents. Williams, a banker, was elected to congress in 1922 at a special election as successor to the late Rep. Lucian Parrish of Henrietta who had been killed in an automobile accident.

Williams is chairman of the house committee on territories and vice chairman of the house committee on insular affairs. He is also a member of the house committee on elections and the house committee on expenditures of the executive department. Before his election to congress, Williams was a member of the state senate.

FINNS CHARGE LIQUOR LAW RESTRICTED

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 6.—Having abolished prohibition, the Finnish public seems to be finding the operation of its system of "restricted liberty" under the new drinking law more a matter of restriction than of liberty.

The State Monopoly Company, which was created to regulate the purchase and sale of liquor, has come in for widespread criticism. It is realized that the new administration was set up hastily, and faced a tremendous task, but it is charged, at the same time, with causing unnecessary inconvenience to the public and the retailers.

Liquor shops, for example, are open only from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., and are entirely closed every Saturday, Sunday and Monday, as well as on days preceding and following all holidays. As a consequence, sales are prohibited on 183 days of the year. An accumulation of holidays, as in June, results in the fact that the shops are open only 173 days during the whole month. Between April 29 and May 10 there was only one selling day.

Hotel and restaurant owners are subject to strict regulations governing the parts of their premises where drinks may be served, and the manner in which the service is to be carried out. Different kinds of alcohol may not be blended and special rules are given for mixing cocktails. The restaurant proprietor is not permitted to fix the profit on his drinks; the monopoly grants a 60 per cent advance to first-class restaurants, 45 per cent to second-class, and 30 per cent to public houses and clubs.

Beer and wines are expensive, while whiskey and brandy are comparatively cheap. It is charged that the consumption of beer and wines, in preference to stronger liquors, is not encouraged as was intended. The projected home production of liquor and berry-wines has not seriously begun, though more than 200,000 bottles of whiskey (already established as a favorite under prohibition), are reported to have been imported in the first five weeks of the new system.

Despite the legalized sale of liquor, rum-runners' ships have appeared off the Finnish coast carrying huge stocks, and it remains to be seen whether the new system is strong enough to keep illicit liquor away, even though the smugglers can underbid the monopoly. The cabinet realizes the serious danger, threatened by international smuggling organizations, and is taking measures to enforce coast protection more strictly.

Shot Glass Balls Sixty Years Ago

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 6.—Early days of trap-shooting, when the marksmen shot at glass balls with self-loaded shells, were recalled here by Dad (Tucker) Register, 72, Philadelphia, oldest entrant in the Pennsylvania State Championships.

Register has been shooting in matches for 60 years, or, as he said, "since I was old enough to lift a gun to my shoulder."

"When this game was young, we used to pop at glass balls. At first we used to have a spring set in the ground. We'd put a glass ball in a little cup at the end of the arm, get ourselves set, and someone would pull a string. "The ball would be flung high in the air and we'd try to bust it. It was easy for the shooter to get them if he waited until they reached the top of their curve in the air." Register said a new trap was devised to throw the ball in different directions, but the trap "was just as likely to toss the ball up behind your back."

"We used to load our own shells

these days. We'd take about four ounces of powder, and called shot," he said. "This we'd pack down hard and put on just a little bit of a wad. "She certainly used to spread plenty."

LEAP YEAR BRIDE By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

She brushed them aside, rose and went to the doorway. Pearson was sitting on a box calmly smoking a cigaret. The youth in charge of the oil station was talking and Pearson seemed to be giving him all his attention. Cherry went back to the counter. She could hear the rain beating a sharp tattoo on the window pane. The fire had gone out and the room was becoming cold. She picked up Max's raincoat and drew it around her. Then she sat for a long while staring out at the storm. IT was well after midnight when the mud splattered roadster drew up before the office of the Wellington News. The rain had stopped at last. Dan Phillips pulled the door of the car open. "Cherry!" he exclaimed. "Lord, what a time you must have had!" He grinned from the girl to Pearson. "Say, you two certainly look as though you'd had a soaking. "Climb in," said Pearson, "I think Cherry's anxious to get home." They related their adventures during the brief ride. Cherry felt Dan's arm around her. She snuggled close. "I shouldn't have gone without you," she whispered. "I'll never do it again. Oh, Dan, you don't know how frightened I was!" He didn't and he never would. Cherry was thinking of Pearson's astounding announcement. Dan said easily, "Don't think about it, Cherry. It's all over now." But was it? They spent a lazy Sunday together. The day was divinely cool. They had a late breakfast and sat about the house reading the newspapers until the middle of the afternoon. Then Dan went out for a time and returned to take Cherry to dinner. They finished the evening with a bus ride—a treat they had not indulged in for weeks. Three days of uneventful calm followed. The heat wave seemed to be definitely broken. Cherry did not see Max Pearson, tried not to think about him. She kept busy with housework. Dixie Shannon was away on her vacation and Pinky, the kitten, was Cherry's only companion. On Wednesday evening she prepared a dinner that was one of Dan's favorites—pork chops stuffed with dressing, broccoli and a fruit salad. She noticed with disappointment that he did not seem to be eating. "Is there anything wrong with the chops?" she asked. "No. They're all right." Cherry waited. After a moment she said, "You're not eating, Dan. What's the matter? Aren't you feeling well?" "I'm feeling well enough," he assured her but he pushed back his chair. "Not hungry, I guess." "Lord, Cherry!" he went on again in a burst of impatience, "don't you get sick of this sort of life? Aren't you fed up on it?" "Why, Dan, what do you mean?" "The same old thing over and over. Day after day! I've had enough of it. I want to get out of this town!" The girl was horrified. "But we can't, Dan! You don't—oh, you don't really mean what you're saying, do you?" "Of course I mean it! What chance do I have in a town like this? I want to go to New York or Chicago. Some place where there's a little life! Where a fellow has a chance to get some place!" Cherry said slowly, "You mean—you want to go without me?" (To Be Continued.)

Monocles Rule German Cabinet

BERLIN, July 6. — The appointment of Franz von Papen's "monocle cabinet," mainly composed of members of the nobility, has called the public's attention to the influence of the old privileged classes.

There are certain branches of the administration in Germany where the preponderance of the nobility never has been seriously challenged despite the revolution in 1918, which abolished all dynastic and feudal privileges. Outstanding among such traditional domains of the nobility are the army and the foreign service.

Although most of the republic's foreign ministers were simple citizens, their staff remained resplendent with aristocratic names. Thus, Germany's nine ambassadors are a count, two are barons (the third Baron von Neurath, has just left his London post to assume the ministry) four are noblemen, and only one has no "von" to his name.

It may also be recalled that many of the lesser orders belong to the nobility, especially those serving in countries where diplomatic service is most coveted among the career men.

Indians Seeking Hunting Rights

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 6. — A delegation of Seneca Indians left here recently for Washington to protest against the alleged violation of their ancient hunting and fishing rights on the land and in the waters of their reservation.

The Indians claimed that by the Canadian treaty of 1784 they were granted the privilege of hunting and fishing on specified lands and waters on and near their reservation.

They charged the terms of the treaty had been violated by the state of New York through the Conservation commission. The agents of the commission, they said, had repeatedly arrested members of the tribe merely for exercising treaty privilege

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

MANY great Italians of the early centuries are known by their Christian names, instead of their surnames. Some are known by the places of their birth, and some by nicknames. Michelangelo Buonarroti, Raphael Sanzio, Dante Alighieri, and Galileo Galilei are outstanding examples of great men whose surnames would be recognized by few persons today.

HUMAN EARS are not tuned to hear notes of exceptionally high pitch. Dogs can hear shrill notes that are inaudible to man. With a special whistle a man can call his dog by means of a sound that he himself cannot hear.

Deland Lohm, president of the Seneca tribe, led the delegation, and expressed confidence that the trip to the white man's council in Washington would result in the full restoration of treaty rights.

NEW NATION'S CUSTOMS TILL SEEKS FUNDS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Over an area as large as Germany and France, or of about the same size as Texas and New Mexico, armed forces in Manchuria are active, beleaguering cities, harrying many of the 30,000,000 persons who live there. A peace that had lasted since the Russian-Japanese War of 1904-05 was shattered last September. In this series the United Press sketches the kaleidoscopic shifts in allegiance, and the deadly irregular warfare that has resulted in many deaths, with no termination of hostilities apparent.

CHANGCHUN, Manchukuo, July 6. — In this capital of an unrecognized republic, officials today are pondering whether to declare the Japanese-leased port of Dairen the property of Manchukuo, and make formal demand that rental from customs receipts be paid to the Manchukuoan "state" instead of to the Nationalist government of China. The demand probably will be made. Harried by bandit armies and strong forces of Chinese irregulars under the general war-lord, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchukuoan officials have guided the precarious career of their "nation" without reference to tax-collecting. Manchukuo is in drastic need of funds.

Should J. Fukumoto, Dairen customs commissioner, divert the customs receipts to the rulers, gravity would be added to a situation already tense.

Await Chance Chinese leaders, deprived of their wealthiest and most-prized provinces when Japanese troops drove Chang Hsueh-liang from Manchuria and fostered a revolt from China proper, impatiently await their chance to strike back and regain Heilunkiang, Kirin, and Fengtien, the provinces in the new "state." Loss of the stream of gold from Dairen would add to their indignation.

While Chang and his superior, Chiang Kai-shek, the slender leader who rose from orphanhood in an obscure town to utmost power, await "the day," a strange war is being waged in Manchuria.

Bandit groups like the Long Swords and the Red Spears, who a year ago commanded no more power or consideration than the mounted "road agents" of America's frontier west, have grown to regimented armies. Moving elusively, striking in the night at unwarned outposts, they loot and disappear before Manchukuoan and Japanese forces can organize for pursuit.

Their motive is pillage. When Chang was ruler of Manchuria, they led precarious existences. Since the war-lord has been driven out, they raid side by side with well-drilled troops led by skilled military tacticians who once hunted them down. Part of Chang's subordinates joined the movement of the "independent state." Part remained loyal to him and from the enemy forces in the irregular but deadly struggle. Still other groups shift allegiance so rapidly that a bewildering chapter of mutiny and renewed loyalty is being written.

Auburn Prison Morale Rises

AUBURN, N. Y., July 6. — A remarkable atmosphere of contentment hovers over Auburn prison — quite the contrary to three years ago when two bloody riots broke out. Peace and quiet prevails where once a deadly ten-seness gripped the old state prison. The inmates have changed from growling, desperate convicts to placid, obedient ones.

Additional freedom better food and more recreation facilities, inaugurated by Warden Joseph H. Brophy when he assumed office last year, have brought about the improved morale.

In fact the prisoners themselves are so pleased with Brophy's administration that on his first anniversary as head of the institution they presented him with a handsome hand drawn testimonial on parchment paper framed in inlaid walnut wood.

The testimonial signed "The Boys in Gray," thanked Warden Brophy, Principal Keeper Vernon A. Morhous and the Rev. William F. Bergan, Catholic chaplain, for their co-operation in making prison life more bearable.

Better Recreation They cited "the better grade of talking pictures, the new baseball equipment the golf course (miniature), the numerous prizes awarded to further competition in the various athletic events, and last but not least the shower baths in the yard which to most of us are of inestimable value," among the new means of recreation afforded by the officials.

"You three gentlemen," the testimonial — exceptionally well written — said, "have done much toward making our lot a better one, and by way of reciprocity, we shall endeavor to prove that we are deserving of your kind consideration by deporting ourselves like the men you expect us to be."

Export Rebates Aid to Germany

BERLIN, July 6. — Germany's export of metallurgical goods was saved from a serious menace when iron and steel producers gave up their opposition to paying further export rebates to manufacturers.

As the price of raw steel and iron is about twice as high in Germany as abroad the export of manufactured steel and iron goods would be impossible if rebates were not paid to manufacturers. Therefore, a serious blow to Germany's export trade was anticipated when the iron and steel manufacturers cancelled the rebate agreements early this year.

Failure to agree on rebates would have resulted in a further rise of unemployment, as the machine industry is exporting more than half of its whole output.

The iron and steel producers' decision to resume rebate payments is interpreted as indicating the weakening of the heavy industrialists' tendency to withdraw from the world market and seek economic self-sufficiency.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 6. — Fred Bolome was knocked out of his shoes. He sued for $25,000 damage, advancing as evidence the fact that his shoes were flung 40 feet from the scene where he was struck by a street car.

It made two of the Tinies grin to see the others hidden in the crazy looking horse hide. Scouty cried, "Let's see you run. You'd better do it slow. Don't dart, or you will pull the horse apart. I'd like to try that stunt, myself. I'll bet it's lots of fun." "It's all right," Coppy said, "but, gee, we both are warm as warm can be. However, we will stay here till we've given you a thrill." And then to Windy he cried out, "You're up in front, so when I shout, gidnap, just start to run. I surely hope that we don't spill." "ALL right," said Windy. "I'm all set. I'll start off easy, you can bet." Then Coppy shouted, "Gidnap," and the horse began to go. The other Tinies laughed in glee and Scouty shouted, "Mercy me! How are we going to stop that horse? I guess that I'll yell whoa." His "whoa," however, was no use. The big horse still was run-

Odorized Natural GAS

.... To Help You Find Gas Leaks!

In order to supplement the careful inspection of gas piping in Cisco, which is now in progress, we are treating your gas supply with an odorizing product called "CALODORANT."

This imparts a distinct odor. It does not change the quality of the gas in any way, but merely enables our customers to detect any leaks that may exist in the piping or appliances on their premises.

Leaks in the piping will cause gas bills to be higher than they should be and "Odorized Gas" will assist in locating any leaks that may exist.

Odorized Natural Gas is another effort on the part of Community Natural Gas Company to assist our customers in greater economy in the use of our product.
