JAPANESE FIRE ON AMERICAN PROPERTY Cotton Acreage Reduction Law Ruled Unconstitutional

JUDGE SAYS MEASURE IS TYRANNICAL

FRANKLIN, Tex., Feb. 1.—District Judge W. C. Davis today ruled the new Texas cotton acreage reduction law unconstitutional in the test injunction suit brought by County Attorney T. L. Tyson against Fred L. Smith, Robert-on county cotton farmer, and refused the injunction sought.

The ruling of Judge Davis will be appealed immediately to the 10th court of civil appeals at Waco. "House bill No. 7, passed by the second called session of the 42nd legislature of the state of Texas, known as the cotton acreage law, is unconstitutional and null and void," Judge Davis ruled.

LOBOS PLAY RANGER HERE TUESDAY P. M.

Coach Leonard Hill will introduce his revised Lobo basketball quintet to the public tomorrow evening at 7:30 when the Ranger Bulldogs, smarting under one defeat at the hands of the Cisco boys, come to the Cisco high school gym, seeking revenge.

The squad that Coach Hill has assembled to take the place of the crack outfit that forgot to attend school a sufficient number of days last semester, has been working out briefly but the coach feels that he will be able to give the customers a real show.

Only one of the old regulars are included on the lineup. He is Cleo Ray, honor student forward Ray has been shifted to guard position in the revamped lineup. Taking Van Horn's position at center will be Billy Rutledge. At forward positions Eldon Bint and L. A. Harrison will start and teaming at guard position with Cleo will be Allen Burnam.

The Lobos forfeited one game to Ellaville and were unable to fill an engagement with the Abilene Eagles last week because of illness of Coach Hill. The Eagles were not notified, however, and claim a forfeit.

"Quit at 93?—I've Only Started!"

Wielding an ax and sawing wood to prove he is still fit, John N. Wilson, 93-year-old balliff, mail clerk and custodian of the Minnesota Historical Society at St. Paul, is shown here as he told why he instituted suit to prevent his employers from discharging him on the ground that he is physically incompetent.

CISCO WOMAN HAS AUTOGRAPHS OF IMPRISONED CONFEDERATES

By LOUISE TRAMMELL An autograph book, its pages yellowed by the 70 years that have passed since the signatures of these Confederate soldiers imprisoned at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor, Mass. were transcribed, is now in the possession of Mrs. Dan Smith, 409 West Fourth street.

The book was formerly the property of her father, Col. James M. Gee of the 15th Arkansas Regiment of Volunteers, C. S. A., who was taken prisoner at Fort Donelson, Tenn. on February 14-16, 1862 when Confederate losses were estimated at 15,829.

After a period of confinement in the Federal prison at Fort Warren he was exchanged as prisoner of war for a Northern officer—a practice which was discontinued during the later years of the war.

The book contains the autographs of some 130 soldiers—their rank, place of capture, and home, and includes also names of several members of Maryland and Tennessee legislatures who were arrested at the outbreak of the war.

One account, written by J. J. Johnston of Jesson, Ala., relates of his arrest on a Confederate ship in Tangiers, Africa, and his removal to a Federal man of war where he was confined in chains during the 60 day voyage back to the states.

A detailed map drawn in pen and ink by H. C. Lockhart, lieutenant colonel of the 50th Tenn. Reg. shows Fort Donelson, the surrounding hills and rivers, positions of northern and southern armies during the 2-day battle, and places of combat. Two Confederate bills, one of $2, the other of $100, are other interesting features of the book.

Col. Gee, a native of Camden Ark., fought with General U. S. Grant in the Mexican war, and at the beginning of the Civil War, although over age, volunteered his services in behalf of the secessionists. Captain Kellam, close friend of Col. Gee, and also a native of Camden, whose diary was published some time ago by his daughter, Mrs. C. D. Gee, makes this note that "On May 12, 1862 Gen. J. M. Gee organized and was elected captain of a horse company."

NANKING IS SHELLED BY JAP CRUISER

NANKING, Feb. 1.—A Japanese cruiser in the Yangtze began shelling Nanking tonight. Chinese artillery ashore replied to the fire of the Japanese. The entire city was darkened.

The city was terrified by the battle which was continuing at midnight. Heavy artillery, naval gunnery and machine firing made a deafening and hideous uproar.

The city enveloped in darkness heard the long feared sounds of hostilities from Hs-lakwan, which is the section between the longest city wall in China and the Yangtze river where seven Japanese warships, including two cruisers, were anchored.

With the first sound of firing the populace ran to the bomb proof shelters which had been prepared for the emergency. They were wholly inadequate having been constructed hastily in the last few days.

MOVEMENT TO REPEAL BOXING LAW STARTED

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1.—A state-wide movement to form an organization that will work for the repeal of the present state boxing law is being formed with headquarters located here in the Majestic building.

Otis G. Maertz is in charge of the organization's state headquarters here. He said the association is being formed along same and constructive lines, exempt from the taint of promoters or other interested in boxing for financial gain.

Some of the most influential citizens of Texas are said to be sponsoring the organization. Among those listed by Maertz as indorsers of the organization are: George Sealy, Shearn Moody, George Hunter, Jesse Jones, M. E. Foster, William Sterling, James Allred, Ed Fynby, John McInosh, Walter Tynan, Homer Hammonds, T. A. Kemper, J. P. McDonough, A. Sudermann and C. M. Chambers.

Maertz characterizes the present law as a hindrance to bonafide clubs who wish to stage boxing exhibitions. In many instances they have to resort to trickery to evade the law. The organization proposes to have enacted, at the same time with the repeal of the law, a statute which will safeguard bona fide clubs and citizens against fake prize fight promoters and others who have injured the sport.

U. S. STRAINS RESOURCES TO KEEP PEACE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The American government was straining every resource today to protect its nationals and preserve peace in the Orient but in the midst of this effort came the disturbing news that Japanese warships were shelling the city of Nanking.

Lieut.-Com. T. W. Rutledge, aboard the U. S. S. Simpson at Nanking, informed the navy department that the attack had been started without warning. He had been forced to move his destroyer to take it out of the line of fire.

In Washington there were these developments in the situation: Sec'y of State Stimson issued a formal statement explaining that the movement of American warships and troops to Shanghai was solely for the purpose of protection of "American lives and property and for fulfilling our responsibilities to American citizens at Shanghai and other exposed ports in the Yangtze and elsewhere in China."

The state department instructed American Consul Cunningham at Shanghai to cooperate with a league of Nations commission in its investigation of the Shanghai situation. Real Admiral Montgomery Taylor reported formally to the department his departure from Manila for Shanghai with seven destroyers, the cruiser Houston and a force of marines. The thirty-first infantry regiment will leave tomorrow from Manila to Shanghai.

TWO ESCAPED PRISONERS ARE BELIEVED WED

LANSING, Kan., Feb. 1.—Believed honeymooning a bright yellow truck emblazoned with black letters "K S T", a man and a woman who fled from the state prison here were sought today.

The principals in the unusual escape elopement were A. J. Williams 36, and Bobbie Phillips, 22. Both the man and the woman were sentenced to the penitentiary for motor theft.

Williams was a prison trusty—given the duty of driving each night in the bright yellow truck loaded with food supplies from the prison proper to the industrial farm a mile away where the women are kept.

Bobbie Phillips was kitchen worker there. She and Williams talked frequently and became good friends. Last night Williams went as usual to the farm, driving his brightly painted truck. He and Bobbie Phillips talked as usual. When he drove away the matron missed the kitchen worker. Later the two were seen driving toward Kansas City Kan., in the truck.

OTHER OPINIONS

NOT LESS, BUT BETTER POLITICS

Out of the sultry clouds of apathy which have hung over the patient investigation of the Hofstadter committee into the public affairs of the City of New York has come an arresting flash of lightning in the report of the committee's chief counsel, Judge Samuel Seabury. New Yorkers, who have felt for years that they must put up with Tammany, have suddenly awakened to a hope that at last a leader may have come to show them the way out of their civic wilderness. The stimulating effect of the report has not been produced by any of the usual means of political appeal. Judge Seabury has not revealed himself as another William Travers Jerome or Charles S. Whitman to picture with vivid and fiery metaphor the wickedness of grafters, for he has had a different situation to deal with. Having learned their lessons in the past, Tammany politicians of the latter days have seldom been caught engaging in the type of direct graft which is legally provable. Instead the Seabury report says, they conduct their operations through "the interposition of a lawyer to whom the money is passed in the guise of a legal fee." To uncover the misuse of political power when exercised in so indirect a way required a different method, but Judge Seabury has found the effective approach.

With remarkable pertinacity, supported by a staff of courageous and intelligent assistants Judge Seabury has dug out his evidence point by point discovering in whatever direction the inquiry was turned "conditions suggestive of extortion and graft." It is the restraint in the language of the report and its devastating thoroughness which have given it the force of truth. Inexorably a ring of evidence has been built around the restive but not unduly alarmed Tammany — the greater until he suddenly finds the stands clinging to his legs.

There has been revealed the purchase of pier rights through huge lawyer fees, the influence of the law firm of a former Tammany leader in the remunerative practice before the Board of Standards and Appeals, the admission of a sheriff that he helped himself to interest money which belonged to the city. The list of disclosures is too long even to outline here.

Yet it has not been these unsavory disclosures, so much as the promise contained in constructive suggestions, which has so deeply stirred good citizen in favor of a further pursuit of the Hofstadter investigation. It is not so much the uncovering of evil as the changing of conditions that has transformed Judge Seabury overnight from a prosecutor into a leader of the people.

He hints at proposals which may come if the work of his committee is continued — a proposal for a city manager plan and separation from politics of the police, health and education departments. Much more thought must be given to these proposals before they can become definite goals toward which to reach and Judge Seabury asks that the Hofstadter committee be given the opportunity to perfect its work.

When Judge Seabury asks for the end of the reign of the politician, however, he asks too much. Politicians are the price of democracy. Germany has discovered that Spain is finding it out. In a democracy the aim must be not to eliminate the politician, but to bring the most intelligent and public-spirited men and women in the community into politics. Actually that is what Judge Seabury is beginning to do.

It may take many years, perhaps a generation or more, before the pathway is clear. Children in the schools will have to be taught the conditions of the world in which they live, what must be done to put their house in order, and a new profession of politics must come into existence with training as thorough and standards as high as those of any other profession, before democracy will be freed permanently from the entrenched influence of machine control. Judge Seabury perhaps is taking one of the first practical steps toward that end in New York — Christian Science Monitor.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON E. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That enthusiastic cooperation working together, pulling together and boosting the home city together, will do much to overcome any handicaps it may have.

This kind of work will put a city on the map so conspicuously that it cannot possibly be blotted out.

Citizens should not neglect any opportunity to show their faith in the future of the home city and should labor unceasingly for the fulfillment of every worth while project.

Every city has two classes of people: Those who do things to build up the community, and others who do nothing.

The building of a city is a partnership affair. Every citizen is a partner, and when a number of the partners refuse to lend their assistance there is just that much less chance for happiness and prosperity for the community.

Every city should set a goal and work towards that goal.

Everybody should face conditions squarely and then go ahead.

Progressive citizens are so intent looking ahead, planning and forging ahead that they never take time to look backward. They believe it is best to let by-gones be by-gones and force ahead.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. — A final round of agitation before political campaigns open for a new session of the Texas legislature came into prospect at the weekend. Rep. J. B. Donnell, Hillboro, Corsicana cotton man, opened the chorus this week for an extraordinary session. Repeal of the cotton acreage control law before farmers start planting will be made a basis of the urgings. This was Rep. Donnell's motivation.

Congressional redistricting will be another.

Tax revision will be an ever-present stand-by.

New steps to prepare for a renewed oil debacle if martial law is wiped out may be agitated.

There is little prospect that any of the pleas will win a response from Gov. Ros Sterling now.

Apparently the earliest session that has any reasonable grounds of probability would be after the first primary, July 23.

As figured out now here are some of the reasons:

1. The cotton acreage law is in the hands of a court, on the test trial tried at Franklin, on which decision will be handed down early in the week and appeal taken by the losing side. If knocked out, no session is needed. If upheld, it proponents claim the law will be beneficial.

2. Congressional redistricting could not go into effect in less than 120 to 130 days. That would reach just about, or possibly beyond, the June 6 deadline for filing for the offices and cause extreme confusion. And there is no more prospect that the legislature would pass a bill than in any of the three previous sessions when it killed them.

3. The state tax rate has been reduced by law, effective with that to be fixed by the tax board July 15-20. The present deficit assures the levy of the maximum rate under this limit law.

4. The only tax legislation that can be passed now, assessing new levies can be enacted after the July 23 primary, as well as before it, and can be kept out of the political campaign to some extent.

5. Legislation on oil control is professed in Gov. Ross S. Sterling's opinion, only if the two things should occur together of martial law being stricken down by federal court and the state's conservation statute declared void by some court.

Rep. Lawrence Westbrook, a co-author of the cotton acreage law has predicted that Gov. Sterling will respond to demands for a repeal session if the courts uphold the law, but the test suit has let to go all the way from the trial judge's decision through the Waco court of civil appeals to supreme court for submission and decision.

PRODUCTION INCREASES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — The total production of gems has increased steadily in recent years. The estimated production of precious stones for 1930 was about $60,000,000. The present annual production is about 22 times that at the beginning of the 17th Century, ten times that of 1850, and three times and a half that of 1900.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ann and Cecily Fenwick have for years supported themselves, their younger sister, Mary-Frances, and their grandparents, known as "Rosalie" and "Grand." Because of this financial responsibility, Ann, who is 28, is unable to marry Phil Eckerd, young lawyer to whom she has been engaged for eight years.

Cecily, 22, loves Barry McKeel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name their wedding date or the same reason.

Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, believes herself in love with Earl De Armount, vaudeville actor whom she has met without the knowledge of her sisters. He urges her to leave home and become his stage partner.

Ann and Phil quarrel when she hears Letty King, who works in Phil's office building, address him with endearments. Ann tries to forget Phil by going about with Kenneth Smith, rich and attentive, but when Smith asks her to marry him she refuses.

Mary-Frances agrees to go away with De Armount. They set out in his car. The same day Cecily quarrels with her grandfather. When Ann and Barry are to be married that evening, Ann discovers Mary-Frances is missing, learns she has eloped with De Armount immediately a search is begun. Phil Eckerd comes to help. Ann is nearly frantic until Mary-Frances telephones from the station. She arrives home, explaining she decided to give up a stage career because she was hungry and De Armount refuses to buy her a meal.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI

The front door closed, and Cecily and Barry were standing in the lower hall. Ann called from midway of the stairs. "She's here! She's all right, Cissy! She's sound asleep. She's all right!"

Cecily's hands were cold in Ann's. Her voice, when she presently emerged from the jangling sounds which she and Ann had been making together, was chilly.

"That's all very well, Ann. But he can't be so entirely all right as all that. I mean—such an experience for a child! She must be bitter, disillusioned."

Ann laughed, the heartless thing. "She insists that she is bitter, very bitter. As for the disillusionment—I sincerely hope so for a few years at least."

Cecily refused to smile. Ann blushed at Barry. He would not smile either. He kept rolling and unrolling the do-dad on Cecily's dress. Ann wished he wouldn't. He wrinkled it. "Your own plans?" she asked. "You've had to postpone them?"

"Indefinitely," Cecily said, and smiled at last. She had to smile. A word of that sort could not be said nakedly, with no covering of any kind.

"No, dear," Ann said, and turned to go upstairs again. "You'll feel differently," she encouraged, "tomorrow when you're rested, and after you've talked to your youngest sister."

"I'll talk to her!" Cecily threatened.

"You won't scold her," Ann warned with her hand on the novel post.

Barry mentioned, "Phil's on the front porch. We forgot to tell you."

"Goodness! I thought he left ages ago when Mary-Frances came."

Barry put an arm around Cecily's shoulders. They turned together and walked toward the parlor. Barry tried to slide the door open, but it stuck after the first three inches, as it always stuck. Cecily said, "Here," and took hold of it and raised it a bit and it slid easily. The dark dusty velvet portieres dropped into straight folds, again behind them. Ann went to the front porch.

"You mean," Phil asked, agitated, incredulous, "that you don't love me at all any longer?"

Ann sighed. "Phil," she rebuked, "you don't seem to listen. I've told you twice, now, that it is only that I can't start it all over again. The waiting and the hoping, and quarreling, and the fault-finding, and the—"

"Oh, but no, Ann! No."

"But, yes, Phil. This past month I've been unhappy—goodness knows I have! But, somehow I've dragged something out of it and I'm going to keep it—something that almost approaches peace. Suppose we were to begin again? After a while, but it wouldn't last eight years this time, you'd grow tired and hopeless, and all this—or something very much like it—would happen right over again."

"Ann, dearest, I swear to you—I have meant nothing to me. Nothing but misery. I've been a thousand times more wretched than you could have been."

"No, I think not. That doesn't matter, though—our comparative wretchedness, I mean."

"Could you tell me, dearest, exactly what it is that matters—if your love doesn't matter, and our misery doesn't matter?"

"I can't tell what is important for you. For me—my peace of mind, and something I might call dignity, or—strength perhaps. And that I can't, again have to live through that Sunday and this month."

"It means, only, that you haven't forgiven me."

"Oh, Phil! Forgiving is such a little thing, it scarcely seems worth above! Does Grand think he is performing a marriage ceremony? This is worse than anything he's ever done. This is the sort of thing that can't be endured. It is Phil's fault. He should have gone when I asked him to."

"Will you please answer my question, Ann?"

Still, she couldn't stand there and say she did not love Phil. It would be a lie, and it would be letting Phil down in public. "Of course I love Phil!" she said. "But—"

"But me no buts," said Grand. He evidently was in a mean humor. No wonder Cecily pushed him over this morning—though she hadn't. What would he do when he went into the house and found Cecily and Barry in the parlor? He was cross with Cissy, anyway.

"And to you, Philip," Grand went on, "recalling again the lateness of the hour, goodnight."

"Goodnight," said Phil, and bowed a neat bow.

Grand and Rosalie crossed the porch to the door. "Sir," said Grand, "I have bidden you goodnight," and stopped and waited.

Ann murmured, "You'll have to go. I must go in and help Cissy. Goodnight, Phil. Goodby."

"No," said Phil.

"Ann are you coming?"

"Yes, Grand. Goodby, Phil."

"No."

"Yes," said Ann, "Goodby," and thought, "It is silly to say it three times, and went with the old people into the house.

Plane Fares 6 Cents a Mile

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — If a person wanted to fly a round trip from the Pacific Coast to New York two years ago, it cost $600 and the trip was made in a single engine mail plane.

Today you can make the same round trip in a tri-motored passenger transport with meals furnished and with deluxe service comparable to anything found on the European continent for $288. The one way far has dropped from $200 to $160.

The above is typical of what has happened to airplane fares in the last six months, until today the average cost in the United States is six cents a mile and the cost in regular schedule of operations is approximately rail plus Pullman.

One of the largest air transport lines in the world, in point of daily mileage flown, whose planes fly a million miles a month touching 45 cities in 19 states, started off the year by announcing plane plus Pullman fares. This was followed by similar announcements of other lines.

The average in 1931 was slightly under seven cents a mile. Today the average is less than six cents a mile.

A survey shows that the need for air travel by executives and business men is increasing. Sixty per cent of 784 corporations capitalized at $100,000 or more have executives and representatives using airplanes regularly.

One-Tenth Coyote Population Killed

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1. — The weird call of the coyote in the brush country of southwest Texas will be heard less often in 1932.

Over one-tenth of the state's coyote population was killed last year by the 83 men employed by the Texas division of the Predatory Animal Control, U. S. Biological Survey. C. R. Landon, supervisor of the eradication program, reported 10,342 coyotes killed and 1,428 coyotes poisoned last year.

Most of the work centered in southern and southwestern border sections of the state where coyotes prey on sheep, goats, poultry and stock. The wolves are the boldest marauders of the state, often slaying sheep and chickens apparently for the sport of it, Landon declared.

Houston Plans to Welcome 'Ironsides'

HOUSTON, Feb. 1. — Mayor Walter Montelich's committee on preparations in connection with the visit of "Old Ironsides" to Houston Feb. 24 is making plans to accommodate the thousands of visitors expected here to view America's historic warship.

Notices already have been received that a number of delegations from over the state will come to Houston to see the vessel, which will be in port through March 1. Many schools and Patriotic organizations will send representatives.

WOLF INVADERS TOWN.

VAN NUYS, Cal., Feb. 1. — The wolf isn't at the door yet, but he already has invaded the streets of this town. Well, maybe it was a coyote, but at any rate, Patrolman L. C. Stammers ended the career of a big four-footed animal, which was trotting along the downtown section, recently.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist (adv.)

SOCIETY GIRL FAILS TO FIND RENO GAUITY

RENO, Feb. 1. — Night life? Certainly not. Mrs. Nancy Hoyt Curtis, authoress and member of a New York and Philadelphia family, has found Reno an ideal spot to "go domestic."

"I'm decidedly not a victim of Renoitis," she declared. "Why, instead of giving me the 'jitters,' Reno has given me — the calmness I've been going to bed every night at 11 and not a day has passed that I haven't cooked at least one meal, myself or unaided."

Mrs. Curtis, who professes to be called Mrs. Hoyt, is preparing to divorce her Reno husband. She is the author of "Cupboard Love," as well as numerous articles appearing in Vanity Fair, Vogue, and the New Yorker.

"I can't recall anything which has been written about Reno that captures a true picture of the town," she said. "Probably a true picture wouldn't even begin to tell the nearest thing was an article by Irving Cobb's daughter, and even it started out: 'Beside the brawling Truckee—'

"I've been here two weeks, slept with my window open nights, and haven't heard the Truckee bawl once."

Mrs. Curtis is a sister of Morton Holt, former husband of the actress Tallulah Bankhead's much-married sister, Mrs. Eugenia Bankhead Hoyt. But Lee Smith-White while in Reno she is reading proof of a new book, "Try Again," which has no connection with marital adventures, she insists.

Her career has just begun, she feels. She is proud of the fact that she has had "five novels, one baby and two husbands — and is still under 30," she said. She has great plans for the future, after 30.

Last of Famous Quartet Dies

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. — Howard H. Long who sang with William Sidney Porter (O. Henry) in the famous capital city quartet in Austin 40 years ago, has joined his comrades, the last to be called by death.

Word of Long's death in Nyack, N. Y., was received by relatives.

Others in the famous group of Austin singers in the 90's were Dick Edmondson, H. B. Hillyer and O. Henry.

When O. Henry was still a land office clerk, before his literary name was created, the quartet was widely known as music-makers and sang at many gatherings and celebrations for years.

PACIFIC COAST GRAVEYARD HAS BIG SHIP TOLL

By LEICESTER WAGNER

United Press Staff Correspondent
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 1.—Seafaring men call it "The treacherous stretch of coastline 60 miles north of Santa Barbara, where Point Conception and Point Arguello stretch into the Pacific.

It is not the smooth ocean Magellan called "Pacific." Its churning, treacherous currents have claimed some 74 lives and 23 ships in 100 years.

The greatest peace-time naval disaster since the Spanish armada was driven ashore on the west coast of Ireland in 1588, is recorded on the long death scroll of Point Arguello.

Seven United States destroyers were wrecked on the rugged coast line here late on the night of Sept. 7, 1923, with a loss of 23 lives and $15,000,000.

Thirty destroyers, moving in parallel columns from San Francisco to San Diego, rounded Point Arguello long after sunset. The flagship, Delphy, was in the lead. It struck a jutting reef with a crash.

Following the Delphy onto the shoals were the destroyers Young Marcel Robins, Jane Moore, Bobby Grantham, Chas. Yates, Tom Morrison, Bill Morrison, J. C. Paschall, Howard Robins, Joe Desteiger, Robert Smith, and the honore.

The Yankee capsized within 30 seconds, carry 23 sailors to death. Fifteen hundred survivors, cut and bruised, made their way to safety.

Although many ships were driven ashore on this jutting coastline in the 18th and early 19th centuries the first recorded casualty was the beaching of the S. S. Edith in April, 1849. Its crew, hurrying to the gold-fields, deliberately grounded the shipload of passengers to hit for the hills. There were no deaths.

The Yankee Blade was the first to record loss of life. Twenty members of the crew and passengers together with $154,000 in gold bullion, went to a watery grave at Arguello on Sept. 30, 1854.

One of the most noted of Arguello shipwrecks was the grounding of the S. S. Santa Rosa in July, 1911, when 20 passengers and six sailors were drowned.

The most recent disaster was the grounding of the liner Harvard on Decoration Day, 1931. The 497 passengers and 135 members of the crew were removed by the U. S. S. Louisville then undergoing speed trials nearby.

FIND COAL VEIN.
MONTGOMERY, Pa., Feb. 1.—A five-foot vein of semi-anthracite was discovered by well diggers on Frank Stover's farm, near here. It was the first coal reported found in Lycoming county. Stover awaits opinion of geologists as to the commercial possibilities of the deposit, which lies within 20 feet of the surface.

There's one Right Size for Cigarettes

● Examine various cigarettes, and you'll find they are not all alike in size. Yet our scientists say their tests and research fix one definite size standard as the best. For a given length, our experts say, there is one right diameter . . . to make the draft right . . . to make the cigarette burn right.

Not only that, when the size is right, the cigarette lasts longer, and smokes cooler. And that "right" size is exactly the standard Chesterfield size.

A detail? Of course—but a mighty important one, figured in extra coolness and comfort. It's by constant attention to just such details that Chesterfield sets cigarette standards.

Notice how round and full each Chesterfield is—how firmly packed. There are two "electric detectives" on every packing machine, to check this detail also!

The right size . . . and the right quality. Chesterfield never changes either one. Measure them any way you want—with ruler, microscope, or test-tube.

Or measure them in the surest way of all—by milder and better taste. And you'll find—They Satisfy! Good, they've got to be good!
