The successful season that sends the Southern Methodist university Mustangs to the Rose Bowl of Pasadena, Cal., to oppose Stanford university in the big New Year football classic, is a personal triumph for Matty Bell, Mustang coach, that brings a thrill to every person who admires personal stamina and courage. Not in the ten years that he coached Southwestern conference before going to S. M. U. last year as line coach under Ray Morrison, did Matty Bell so much as win a conference championship. He came near the mark and not at any time that he coached at Texas Christian university, whose team his Mustangs defeated last Saturday, was he badly beaten. He was always at the top. His ability was recognized by A. and M. college whose teams, under Dana X. Bible had attracted national attention to the southwest. But, expected to do wonders, he was not given support consistent with the great interest that Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston suddenly developed in producing great teams, and he suffered many disappointments. SMU gave him his chance to show that, with the proper support, he could put it over, and he responded by producing the first team ever to go from the southwest to the Rose Bowl in his first year as head coach there. It is a personal vindication that is certainly inspiring. It is a tribute, too, to local talent. Matty Bell is a Fort Worth product.

Confronting the Mustang coach is a fact that the team has yet to win the undisputed conference championship. A loss to the improving Farmers would mar their record and cost them a tie for the title.

Meanwhile, football interest reverts to high school and some of it comes out our way. The Amarillo Sandies, champions of District 1, will play the Breckenridge Saturday afternoon at 2:30 to determine the bi-district championship of Districts 2 and 3. At the same time San Angelo and El Paso will be deciding another bi-district argument, the winners of the two to collide the following week.

It looks like curtains for the champions of this district, in spite of a fine season. The Buckaroos were defeated only once—by Wichita Falls in a game that upset the dope. San Angelo tied them after being outplayed the entire evening. But the Amarillo lads have a powerful aggregation which is expected to steam roller the less impressive Greenies. It will be the third time, incidentally, that the teams have met in a bi-district play-off. Breckenridge won the first and Amarillo the next.

AARON HUGHES RITES AT 3

Funeral services for Aaron L. Hughes, 27, nephew of Mrs. A. L. Mayhew, who died at Sanatorium, Texas, late Saturday, will be held from the Mayhew home, 808 F. avenue this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. David F. Tyndall, pastor of the First Christian church, will officiate. Neil Lane's Funeral home is in charge of arrangements for burial in Oakwood cemetery. Pall bearers will be Joe Allen, Less Wooten and Roy Canfield of Cisco; O. V. Cunningham and Luther Strickland of San Angelo, and Harrison Couch of Eastland.

XMAS EDITION WILL APPEAR NEXT FRIDAY

Will Time With WPA Projects, Releasing New Wages

The Christmas Shopping Edition of the Cisco Daily Press, which will appear Friday morning, is meeting with genuine approval among the merchants who are eager for a means of stimulating business for the Christmas season. Stories and illustrations designed to present the opportunities for satisfactory Christmas shopping in Cisco and draw large numbers of people to the stores here during the main period of the holiday season, are being prepared.

Attractive "lay-outs" will enhance the appeal of the advertisements and the stories that will appear about each merchant co-operating in the edition. Sufficient additional copies will be printed to cover the entire Cisco country, so that the widest effective circulation will be given the invitation of Cisco business men to the people of this section to make Cisco their Christmas shopping headquarters.

Cisco merchants have secured this year stocks of goods which for quality and variety will compare with those of any community in this area. Their service is of the highest order and their prices are right. There is no reason that this city should not enjoy a busy holiday season.

With the big work relief program of the government getting under way for the winter, calling for almost a million dollars expenditure on public works in Eastland county, money, released in the form of wages should begin to circulate in volume, bringing prosperity to everybody.

The Cisco Daily Press Christmas Shopping Edition will be an effort to get Cisco's bid for this increased business in early.

MRS. PETTIT NAMED SEC'Y

Resignation of Mrs. Alec Ward as executive secretary of the Cisco Charity and Welfare association was accepted at a meeting of the executive board this morning. Mrs. Philip Pettit was chosen in her place. Mrs. Pettit has served several seasons in that capacity.

Mrs. Ward resigned to accept a federal appointment.

SMU to Oppose Stanford in Rose Bowl New Year's

DALLAS, Dec. 2. (AP) — The Southern Methodist university today accepted a bid to oppose the Stanford university football team in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's day.

Stewart, S. M. U. athletic director, accepted the invitation in a telephone conversation with Al Masters, Stanford graduate manager.

Miss Irene Webster attended the S. M. U. - T. C. U. game in Fort Worth Saturday.

Mrs. John Higdon and children of Abilene visited several days last week with Mrs. Kate Richardson.

NORTH CHINA FATE UNSURE

PAOTING, China, Dec. 2. (AP) — North China's political future hung in the balance today as the political and military leaders of the northern provinces conferred with General Ying-Chin, minister of war.

The general came here with a most liberal formula by the national government for the settlement of the North China situation.

It was reported that the new plan would establish a northern council for controlling the affairs of the five northern provinces, permitting North China to enjoy virtual independence while remaining in the republic's framework.

German Church Put In "Subjection"

BERLIN, Dec. 2. (AP) — Hans Kerrl, head of the national department of church affairs, dealt a deadly blow to the Protestant Confessional Synod by depriving it of all authoritative and administrative rights.

The Nazi church officials are given full authority. Reverend Niemoeller said the church is being placed in "absolute subjection to the state."

Cisco Masons Attend Grand Lodge Meeting

SANDIES ARE INVITED HERE FOR WORKOUT

Facilities of Football Plant Offered in Wire by Cluck

Supt. R. N. Cluck at noon today had received no reply to his telegram inviting the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm, schoolboy football champions, to work out here Friday on their way to Breckenridge where they will play the Buckaroos, Oil Belt district titleists. Mr. Cluck wired the Amarillo school the offer of the facilities at Chesley field and the high school athletic quarters for their pause.

In 1931, when the Sandies came to the Oil Belt to play the Ranger Bulldogs for the bi-district championship, the invaders used Chesley field for their workout.

Coach of the Sandstorm is Blair Cherry, former Ranger high school coach.

The game between his team and the Buckaroos, who, as a matter of coincidence, are coached by Eck Curtis, who succeeded Cherry as coach of the Ranger Bulldogs, will begin at 2:30 Saturday afternoon in the Buckaroos stadium.

Miss Linder Dances With Lowe Orchestra

Miss Marjorie Linder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Linder, who danced in the floor show with the "Sweet" Ann Lowe orchestra who furnished music for the dance accompanied the orchestra to Ranger where she danced Saturday night and will go to Brownwood for another performance Wednesday.

Spending of AAA Tax Money Seen Also as Issue

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP) — Many government attorneys see much more than legality of the AAA processing tax hinging on the supreme court's forthcoming ruling on that measure.

Spending of tax money requires, theoretically at least, a specific grant of power authorized by the constitution; but the only clause of that document they can find which gives the AAA that power is the "general welfare" provision for improving the condition of the entire country.

It was under this clause, the attorneys say, that the Louisiana and Alaska purchases were made, that agricultural extension is carried on, that relief is given the unemployed, that the Tennessee valley authority is operating, and that the public health service, Smithsonian Institution, and other old-time government agencies, are continued.

One Argument

Thus, it is argued, if the supreme court should declare the AAA processing taxes, as such, unconstitutional, rather than merely the method of levying them, some doubt will be cast on the legality of these other activities.

Lawyers for receivers of the Hoosac Mills corporation, plaintiff in the test case asking repayment of processing taxes on cotton, are expected to argue that the levies are unconstitutional because the constitution does not specifically provide for them and also because congress unlawfully delegated its tax rate-making powers to the secretary of agriculture.

The government's petition to the court asking for a hearing of the case declared, on the other hand, that the act "represents the final decision of congress that federal assistance was and is needed to restore the normal functioning of the agricultural life of the nation and that such restoration is in the public interest."

ATTENTION IS TURNED UPON OIL EMBARGO

War Mothers of Italy Take Anti-Sanction Plea to Country

(By Associated Press) The British cabinet today debated the problem of tightening the sanctions as peace talk languished.

Great Britain turned her attention to the oil embargo to freeze Italy into submission.

Nine hundred mothers and widows of war dead, "mobilized" by Mussolini, took the Italian program of resistance to the sanctions to the nation's communities, bearing the slogan, "Resist."

An Italian communique reported a skirmish in the Tembien region resulted in the killing of 15 Ethiopians and six Italians.

Reports of the plans for the Ethiopian offensive were circulated in Addis Ababa. It was reported that Emperor Haile Selassie is in Dessye, believed to be preparing to go north to meet his two lieutenants, Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa, whose combined forces of 400,000 men, would attack the Italians entrenched along the Makale - Antola line, possibly tomorrow.

Canada disclaimed initiative for the proposed extension of the sanctions, saying such an impression was due to a "misunderstanding."

Italian business leaders said that trade was slackening and that problems of labor and business credit were developing as the result of the sanctions. Ethiopia informed the League of Nations that all Ethiopian troops are leaving Harar, important eastern city. It said it would be used in the future as a center for the care of wounded and for civilians.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

An Indicator

NO GAME in the history of southwestern football commanded as much and as wide interest as the game between the SMU Mustangs and the TCU Horned Frogs at Fort Worth last Saturday. The game was distinctive for several reasons, principal of which was that it attracted the eyes of the nation to the southwest as a sector of commanding prestige in the gridiron world. Recognition of the outstanding quality of the game as played in the southwest had already been achieved. Interest of the public was heightened because the contest was one between two nationally recognized clubs of the same conference. Rarely does it occur that two elevens, bitter rivals, come through tough schedules in the same district undefeated to battle for leadership in a great game at the end of the season. When it does, as it occurred at Fort Worth Saturday, the fever goes up.

THE southwest is rapidly achieving its merited place in the sun. It is attracting such attention on the eve of the celebration of the centennial of Texas independence that promises to increase attendance upon that celebration far beyond the expectation of its organizers. The game of football of itself may have little importance, but as an indicator of what is taking place in the southwest it cannot be ignored. The interest and enthusiasm of the people of the southwest are reflected in what they are doing to develop the prestige of their sports. The same indications are present in every activity of consequence. Texas and the southwest, conscious of inherent opportunities of the greatest caliber, are eagerly developing them, reaching for a place in the sun, happy in the limelight of natural attention that is being attracted to their part of the country. That explains the rabid interest that last week's conference classic attracted.

It is safe to predict that the next ten years will see more of industry and prosperity in Texas than ever before. The great southwest is on its way.

More Employment

ANNOUNCEMENT that treasury warrants have been issued for $500,000 in additional WPA projects for Eastland county promises the biggest winter of work relief employment for the county since the relief program began. Already more than a quarter of million dollars in WPA work for the county had been approved, exclusive of the Highway No. One relocation project in Cisco. Approval of these works is coincident with the withdrawal of all direct relief by the federal government, leaving to state and local agencies the problem of caring for indigents unable to support themselves. The amount of work relief allotted the county ought to be sufficient to take care of all who need employment. True, the wage scale is below that for private labor, and rightfully, since wages on such works equal to or higher than those on private works would tend to destroy the opportunity for private employment and initiative.

THERE is a distinction in the case of employment on the reconstruction of Highway No. One, which will command standard wages.

ASIDE from what it means in bringing the laboring classes over the winter, the WPA program in Eastland county has been wisely planned. Most of it will be devoted to "farm-to-market" roads, connecting the rural areas with market centers. Cisco will get the benefit of almost a quarter of a million dollars of this expenditure. Already a vast deal of work has been done on the construction of lateral roads in this precinct. The old dirt road, which became a track of impassable mud during rains, confining the farmer to his home, has been replaced with gravelled thoroughfares over which he may travel in almost any kind of weather. Present Comm'r Arch Bint has done a valuable work in this respect, carrying on a program ably initiated by his predecessors in office. The program of construction on which he is preparing to spend the WPA funds allotted his precinct has been wisely planned and great benefit to the Cisco territory will doubtlessly result.

toward a conflict of serious proportions. No one can tell how far it will continue along that pathway. Often in the past the party has been able to compromise perilous internal differences, and achieve finally a fairly united front. Voluntary peacemakers, recognizing the present danger, are seeking a solution. Perhaps they will find one. The only possible way to look at politics intelligently, however, is to consider the facts as they exist of hypothetical situations which may or may not develop in the future. The facts are quite plain. Mr. Hoover, whether he runs or not, is determined the party shall not come under the control of that school of thought which is symbolized by Mr. Borah. Whether he runs or not, Mr. Borah is determined that the party leadership of which Mr. Hoover is so conspicuous a part shall be supplanted.

There is a clear-cut issue, entirely aside from any question of possible candidates. It is the sort of issue, furthermore, which has to do with fundamentals, and is difficult to compromise.

Example Of Issues There is no mystery why compromise would be most distasteful to Mr. Hoover and the party leaders with whom he has been associated.

From an organization viewpoint Mr. Borah's independence of the constituted republican leadership has been a source of irritation and exasperation for years.

On the side of issues (to take a single example), Mr. Hoover looks on orthodox money as an absolute indispensable requisite to sound government, while Mr. Borah favors "reflation." How can a basic issue such as that be compromised?

Furthermore, Mr. Hoover naturally hopes for some measure of vindication, and he knows that is not any part of the plans of the western independents.

On his side, too, Mr. Borah has his reasons. He has said, in effect, that only by purging itself of the old leadership can the party accomplish its destiny.

More significant still is the fact that Mr. Borah does not believe in compromising. He has said on many occasions that no great issue ever was settled by compromise. His rugged personal independence argues more strongly than any other factor against the likelihood of such a solution.

Other Reasons Possible There is a widespread belief that if either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Borah eventually is drawn into an active presidential candidacy, it will be against his better judgment.

It is hardly possible that either minimizes the obstacles which stand between him and the nomination. Against each there exists within the party a considerable body of bitterly adverse opinions which might foment an open break in the national convention. Considering this, it is entirely credible that both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Borah have set out on their present activities without thought of becoming candidates — Mr. Hoover seeking primarily to have a major part in the selection of some other candidate. Mr. Borah determined that no such thing shall happen.

But can either hope to gather behind him the needed strength, unless he does become a candidate? And whether or not they run, is there any peacemaker sufficiently strong that can rock the party to its foundation?

For no one who knows politics speaks lightly of the potential power of either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Borah to prevent such a collision as will under the existing circumstances.

Human and Other Nature

A mild day in the midst of winter with a warm south wind may be a weather breeder. But sometimes we have a spell of settled weather with a westerly breeze, a clear sky, and a gladness about being alive. If It's a Literary Christmas Put These On Your List

By JOHN SELBY (Author of 'Scanning New Books') NEW YORK, Dec. 2. — If you have nobody else you can give "Anthony Adverse" to, and still feel like a bookish Christmas, try a bigger book still. This is the Columbia Encyclopedia. Prepared at Columbia University, it will take care of anybody who has even a beer and light wines thirst for knowledge. It's good for college boys and girls especially.

The suitable novel crop is especially good this Christmas. For those who can take their reading rough-hewn, there is Vardis Fisher's "We Are Betrayed," in which a man's tattered soul batters against life. These have their place also:

- "A House Divided" (Pearl S. Buck); "Lions Starve in Naples" (John Fabricius, and one of the good ones which was passed by); "Forgive Adam" (Michael Foster, of which the same is true); "Of Time and the River" (Thomas Wolfe); "A Few Foolish Ones" (Gladys Hasty Carroll); "Europa" (Robert Briffault; a dig at intellectual snobs); "Claudius the God" (Robert Graves); "Roll River" (James Boyd); "It Can't Happen Here" (Sinclair Lewis' best in years); "Vein of Iron" (for Ellen Glasgow's admirers); "The Wind Blew West" (Edwin Lanham; strong novel of Texas); "Honey in the Horn" (H. L. Davis; strong novel of Oregon).

what could be wiser than Vincent Sheehan's "Personal History," or Francis Hackett's "Francis the First," or, south of the Mason-Dixon line, Douglass Southall Freeman's "R. E. Lee"?

Two of the best personal stories, besides Mr. Sheehan's, are William Seabrook's "Asylum," and Walter Duranty's "I Write as I Please." Those who delve into the past should be given Will Durant's "The Story of Civilization," volume one, which is about the Orient. Or perhaps Harry Elmer Barnes' "History of Western Civilization," Walter Mills' "Road to War" is a grace to any shelf.

Murder With a Laugh We may be wrong, but some of the best humor, conscious and unconscious, seems to have been in the blood-and-thrills literature this year. Those who can take murder with a guffaw will delight in Edwin Greenwood's "The Deadly Dowager of My Aunt." Intended seriously, but quite funny nevertheless, is "Vidocq, the Personal Memoirs of the First Great Detective."

Gerald Bullet's "The Jury" is a grand crime story; the stories of a number of real life murders may be found in Fletcher Pratt's "The Cunning Mulatto, and Other Cases of Ellis Parker, American Detective."

Darrell Lester, Texas Christian's 1934 all-American center, led the consensus race for positions on the 1935 all-Southwest conference football team selected for the Associated Press by conference sports editors and coaches. Lester proved a unanimous choice for the pivot position. Bill Wallace, 1934 all-American half-back for Rice Institute, and Slinging Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian's junior quarter-back, were next in popular votes. Southern Methodist placed four players in Truman Spain, Maurice Orr, Robert Wilson and J. C. Wetzel. Texas Christian spotted four players with Darrell Lester, Walter Roach,

Tracy Kellow and Sammy Baugh. The Rice Institute Owls, 1934 conference champions, placed three men in Bill Wallace, John McCauley and John Sylvester. The all-conference backfield of McCauley, Wilson, Baugh and Wallace is perhaps the most versatile in history of selections. The race for guard positions between Wetzel, Kellow Harrison of Texas Christian and Bale of Rice, was close. Howell of Arkansas was the only end to furnish Sylvester and Roach competition. Wilson Groseclose of Texas Christian was the only tackle to threaten Spain and Orr. (Associated Press photos).

Laval Foes in Chamber Are Strengthened by Daladier Comeback

By CHARLES FOLTZ
PARIS, Dec. 2. — Edouard Daladier, the premier who slid with his government toward political oblivion to cries of "assassin," has made a comeback.

Pierre Laval, who managed to hold his government until the chamber went home for the summer and left him in peace, now faces a new parliament and a new political threat—the powerful left block called "the popular front."

Shoulders' Riot Blame
Square-faced Daladier is the guiding genius of this union of leftists ranging from communists to dissident radical-socialists.

Daladier's enemies believed they had smashed his public career by blaming him for the score of deaths in classes between police and rioting citizenry on the "bloody sixth" of February, 1934. Friends called him the "goat," but even they saw little hope for a comeback.

But less than two years after those riots the ex-premier, who "rolls his own" cigarettes, is again one of the leading political powers in France.

Daladier did it by giving up his battle to wrest leadership of the powerful radical-socialist party from Edouard Herriot. He formed "the popular front" and showed so much strength in the recent radical-socialist convention that political circles said Herriot might have to move further to the left if he hoped to block Daladier's attack on the Laval government in the chamber.

Like Laval, Daladier is close to the soil. He speaks Provincial—the dialect of southern France—like a Rhone valley farmer.

He stepped into politics from a history professor's desk when the citizens of Carpentras, near Avignon, made him their mayor. In 1919 they sent him to the chamber and have kept him there.

Excitable in Debate
His thick-set figure, his big head and long forelock have been a boon to the French caricaturists. Daladier once told a friend that "a man who can be laughed at won't get very far in French politics."

Southern France gave Daladier

a quick tongue and a quicker temper. In the chamber he says little until he is excited. Then his words tumble out in a flood, he pounds the table, he waves his arms, but what he says is invariably blunt and to the point.

He served as minister in nine cabinets, was twice premier of France. His politics have always been based on democracy, which he illustrated while minister of war by peddling to work on a bicycle from his home in the suburbs.

More than 400 farms in Manitoba are engaged in the business of fur ranching, foxes and mink being the chief animals raised.

The BOY and the NEWSPAPER ARE WINNING

The Promoter Can't Beat Him

He is in business for HIMSELF and he is making good!

During the past two months, in spite of the efforts of a promoter to foist a questionable circulation racket on the people of Cisco, the business of the CISCO DAILY PRESS Route Boy has grown constantly. He buys his papers from the company and sells them to his customers. He knows that every time you take one of the promoter's subscriptions, you rob him of his business.

He is a home boy. He makes his money here and he spends it here. He is learning and putting into effect the first principles of sound Cisco economy. The profits he makes won't go out of town.

Are you going to let the Promoter rob him of his trade, deprive him of his profits. Not much, you are! He is bringing to your door every day a real, honest-to-goodness, home town newspaper, owned, edited and published by home folks, and carrying not only ALL the local news and home-town written editorials, but the best in newspaper feature services that money can buy.

The Cisco Daily Press, under its present ownership and management, is a newspaper enterprise a year old. It has been on trial a year, and the best proof that it doesn't need to give away automobiles and radios and diamond rings, etc., and on top of that to conduct LOTTERIES to get subscribers, is the fact THAT THE OPPOSITION DOES HAVE TO RESORT TO SUCH QUESTIONABLE PRACTICES.

HIGH COURAGE by Jeanne Bowman

Chapter 42 NEUMAN AGAIN Boos greeted Farley's foolish charge against Anne, shouts of "string him up," "the coward," "Let's the girl take the fall for him." There was a mad clamor, unheeded rapping of the bailiff's gavel, the shouts of deputies...

state's prosecutor which Anne quickly stilled. "You were doing your duty," she said. And then, seated, she listened to John tell his part. "I thought from the beginning," he said, "that the will was queer. It didn't sound like Luke Farnsworth. He was a good judge of human nature. I couldn't understand his placing such trust in Crocker and Farley. Yet, every bit of evidence seemed to point out that he had..."

he seemed very glad to be able to tell the whole story to someone," John blushed again. "I guess he could tell that I was pretty much interested from the way I acted, and from the fact that I had the picture — and everything."

REVENGE!

Revenge!

Terry Willett was wedded to the South American jungle for one purpose -- to get revenge, to tame with locks and dams the stream that had licked his father, an engineer like himself. Not even Allaire West could make him forget the job he had to do, though romance called above the din of the riveters and the roar of dynamite awakening the jungle echoes.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

David Garth's serial opens in the sweltering coffee port of Propionaire, moves through the gay life of Washington and New York then back again to the jungles and to a happy conclusion. Its people are real, vital, the story itself well told.

"Never Mind the Lady," "New Serial," Starts Thursday

Adventure and romance form a combination altogether entertaining in "Never Mind the Lady," the new story by David Garth starting Thursday, December 5, in The Daily Press.

Whether the action is in the sweltering South American coffee port of Propionaire, where the story begins, or has shifted as it does later to New York, Washington and Virginia, Garth is equally at home. Readers will be absorbed by his lively account of what happens when an engineer with a serious job to do meets complications in the form of a madcap girl to whom everything seems a lark.

The engineer is Terry Willett, who has one ambition to realize before he starts "going places." That ambition is to conquer the Palva river, to build locks that will make the stream navigable and allow access to the coffee plantations in the interior. The river had beaten his father and Terry was wedded to the South American jungle until he could even the score.

It was in the lazy, sun-baked town of Propionaire, trembling ever with the threat of revolution, that Terry first met Allaire West. Almost immediately, circumstances made them partners in an adventure which separated them but at the same time drew them irresistibly together. Terry was strongly attracted to this golden-haired daughter of Senator West, a seemingly irresistible girl who, despite a dash and beauty that drew many men, was interested only in her own independence and her latest passion for flying.

"You always were inclined to be snooty," her father had told her. "You're the proudest person on this green earth." But in Terry Willett she met her match.

To tell more would be to get ahead of the story which the author relates with irresistible vigor and an inventiveness which will be welcomed for its refreshing newness. David Garth is among the newer stars in the literary firmament, but in "Never Mind the Lady" he demonstrates his ability to combine an unusual plot and smart dialog in a thoroughly absorbing way.

Follow this story daily in The Daily Press starting December 5.

Lord Burghley, Famous Hurdler, To Head B.A.A.A.

LONDON, Dec. 2. (AP) — One of the greatest of all track hurdlers, Lord Burghley, will shortly be holding the office of president of the British Amateur Athletic association.

He has not yet been elected to the post of the 80-year-old Lord Desborough, who has been unanimously nominated by the A. A. A. committee and is certain of being finally approved at the annual meeting of that body next March.

Lord Burghley commanded considerable hero worship when he was in the game actively, not only because of his talents but because he was also a good mixer. When at his best there was none to touch him over the 440-yard low hurdles and he was an unusually good quarter-miler.

Champion of Britain for several years, he set the seal on his career by winning the Olympic 400 metres at Amsterdam, beating

Chinese Links Champ Of Hawaii Will Golf For Gold In California

HONOLULU, Dec. 2. (AP) — Guinea Kop, slim Hawaiian PGA champion, who can ease his conscience in Chinese when he slices a tee shot, will pack up his raincoat and tramp across California's fairways in the winter quest for goldom's gold.

The 20-year-old Chinese professional is far wiser in links wizardry than when he left Hawaii's mountain - bordered courses for his first mainland invasion last year. Hence the raincoat; he still recalls the deluge that swept down on the Pasadena open and found him dressed for sunny golf.

Sailing on the Halolo December 14, the twice - crowned Hawaiian champion will clip his schedule closely. He will have only seven practice days before the $4,000 Pasadena open, inaugural tournament of the winter season. He plans to follow the trail throughout the state, ending with the Catalina island event, February 5-7.

Kop has been shadowing par consistently on Oahu's courses, which are sufficiently tough to worry the game's best competitors.

With long screaming wood shots and a sure putting touch, Kop has dominated the Hawaii professional field for the last two years, in a golf career that began when he caddied for Francis Brown, former California amateur champion.

He weighs around 150 pounds, but he has consistently outdriven visiting stars.
