REPORT SELASSIE ORDERS BIG ADVANCE

Rochester Youth Held in Extortion Attempt

Through the Editor's
Spectacles
By GEORGE

As meritorious as the cause for which the game is being played is certainly, I am frankly critical of the precedent involved in the game between the Pauls Valley, Okla., state championship team and the Breckenridge Buckaroos, Texas representatives, at Fort Worth next Saturday. We of the oil belt are, of course, pleased that an Oil Belt team should be chosen for we are confident that the champion team of this section is about on a par with the champions of other districts. The Buckaroos played the Amarillo Sandies to a much better game than the 13 to 0 count indicates, equalling them in first downs and several times missing chances to score by fumbles and errors after advancing to the goal line. Amarillo was the better team, however, and deserved to win so that no regret should arise over the result. It is significant that the Buckies were defeated by the team that won the title and that they held the Sandies to about the same score that their other play-off opponents held them.

But it seems to me that the practice of carrying high school football teams into post-season games of such regional representation is placing too much emphasis upon the game for the youth of the players concerned. It is all well and good to impress a youngster with responsibility—for lacking a sense of responsibility is about the worst curse that a person can have—but boys of high school age quickly lose a sense of proportion and become "big-headed" over such spectacles.

As much as I like the game of football, it seems to me that it should be kept in its place as subordinate to the whole program of the schools. Once it is carried beyond that place and made to overshadow everything else because of the enthusiasm of townspeople and fans, those responsible certainly have no grounds to quarrel with the League authorities for the imposition of rules that operate to strangle the game. To demand reasonableness of the League authorities, we must first be reasonable ourselves.

Quarter Million Dollars Demanded by Supply House Messenger

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 30. (AP)—Roland Markell, a 21-year old Rochester artists' supply house messenger, was held in jail here today charged with attempt to extort a quarter of a million dollars from Frank Gannett, publisher of the Gannett chain newspapers, and Louis Wehle, president of the Genesee Brewing Co., of Rochester.

G-men revealed that Markell demanded various sums from his proposed victims, threatening the kidnapping of the children of the men, or death to themselves. They said that Markell wanted "easy money."
Officers said that Markell had confessed writing the notes after his arrest Saturday night at his Rochester home. Six letters were sent, while four Gannett officers described Markell as a "thrill seeker."

15th Spanish Gov't. of Republic Falls

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 30. (AP)—The 15th government of the second Spanish republic collapsed today, due to cabinet differences, and preparation was begun for congressional elections. Premier Manuel Valladares said that President Alcalá Zamora had expressed confidence that Valladares would be able to form another and suitable election.

More than 1,000 miles of Kansas state highways were built during 1935.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

Where Higher Education Would Have Landed Him

By IRVIN S. COBB

SOME fifteen years ago there landed in New York a friendless and almost penniless Russian immigrant. He was of a likable disposition, and speedily made acquaintances who sought to aid him. One of them sponsored him for the vacant post of janitor, or shammos, to use the common Hebraic word, of a small synagogue on E. side street.

But when the officers of the congregation found out the applicant was entirely illiterate they reluctantly denied him employment, inasmuch as a shammos must keep certain records.

The greenhorn quickly rallied from his disappointment. He got a job elsewhere. He prospered. Presently he became a dabbler in real-estate.

Within ten years he was one of the largest independent operators in East Side tenement-house property and popularly rated as a millionaire. An occasion arose when he needed a large amount of money to swing what promised to be a profitable deal. Finding himself for the moment short of cash he went to the East Side branch of one of the large banks.

It was the first time in his entire business career that he had found it necessary to borrow extensively. He explained his position to the manager, who knew of his success, and asked for a loan of fifty thousand dollars.

"I'll be very glad to accommodate you, Mr. Rabin," said the banker. "Just sit down there at that desk and make out a note for the amount."

The caller smiled an embarrassed smile. "If you please," he said, "you should be so good as to make out the note and then I should sign it."

"What's the idea?" inquired the bank manager puzzled.

"Well, you see," he confessed, "I haf to tell you some things: Myself, I cannot read and write. My wife she has taught me how to make my own name on paper, but otherwise with me reading and writing is nix."

In amazement the banker stared at him. "Well, well, well!" he murmured admiringly. "And yet, handicapped as you've been, inside of a few years you have become a rich man! I wonder what you'd have been in this country by now if only you had been able to read and write?"

"A shammos," said Mr. Rabin modestly.

British Anthem Revives Pugilist

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Dec. 30. (AP)—Flat on the canvas, after a straight right to the jaw, a fighter was brought to his feet by patriotism.

Police Constable Hughes of London was the victim. His seconds were trying vainly to revive him.

Then the band struck up the British national anthem.

Hughes shook his head, raised himself, and brushed his attendants aside as he stood dutifully, if groggily, to attention.

LINDBERGH SHIP NEARS LIVERPOOL

Reported Will Dock Sometime This Afternoon.

LONDON, Dec. 30. (AP)—A press association reported that the American Importer, bearing the Lindberghs, had arrived off Liverpool and expected to dock between 1 and 4 today, central standard time.

At the time of the report the boat could not be sighted.

BETTY GOW TURNS DOWN LINDBERGH'S OFFER

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 30. (AP)—Betty Gow said that the Lindberghs had asked her to re-enter their service, resuming her post as nurse, but said she would keep her job in a dress shop here.

COURT OF UARDONS IN CLOSED SESSION (BULLETIN)

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 30. (AP)—Albert Herman, court clerk, today said the court of pardons discussed the Hauptmann clemency petition, but set no date for a formal hearing. He said it would be considered at the next meeting.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 30 (AP)—

The court of pardons met today in a closed session, and was expected to limit its Hauptmann case action of fixing a date to consider his appeal. It was regarded as possible that the court would grant Hauptmann a hearing late this week or early next.

Atlantic Coast Is Covered With Snow

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. (AP)—A raging blizzard covered the middle Atlantic coast with six inches of snow today, which swept over New England, leaving 16 dead and millions of dollars damage. Falling temperatures were accompanied by a heavy snow-fall.

GET '36 POLL TAX, WARNING

Warning the voters not to be "mislead into believing" they can vote on their 1934 poll tax receipts but to "play safe" and get 1936 poll taxes, the United Dry Forces of Cisco today issued the following statement:

"Do not be confused or misled into believing that you can vote on your old poll tax receipts but play safe and get your new poll tax receipt now, so that your vote cannot be questioned. Be sure and go to the polls next Friday, January 3, 1936, and vote against liquor in the countywide election and help protect the youth and the lives of the citizens of our county.

An election to legalize 4 per cent beer in Eastland county was called for that date upon petition of the required number of voters. The election was petitioned after the state supreme court held that a wet area would not legally exist in a county that was dry under local option laws prior to prohibition.

War Declared On 'Big Time' Gamblers

AUSTIN, Dec. 30. (AP)—L. G. Phares, acting director of the public safety department, said today that the state had declared a relentless war on "big time" gamblers. He said, if necessary, rangers would be assigned permanently to certain establishments to make certain gambling was not resumed.

Martyr to Medical Science

Another martyr to science and research was Anna Pabst, (above) not yet 30 years old, a laboratory assistant at the National Health Institute at Washington, D. C. She died

Railroad Official Sees A 1936 Gain In Transportation

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. (AP)—L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central system, in a survey of 1935 declared his railroad was well prepared to meet the expected 1936 demand for transportation service as a result of extensive reconditioning in the past year.

"Cars of freight handled the first 11 months of 1935 were more than 5 per cent over the same period of 1934, more than 12 per cent over the same period of 1933 and nearly 11 per cent over the same period of 1932," he said.

Passenger traffic, he stated, was about even with 1934 in the first 10 months of 1935 but nearly 35 percent higher than the 1933 period, the first Century of Progress exposition year. Also figured into 1934 travel were reduced fares and traffic resulting from the second exposition in Chicago. "The number of new industries established on the Illinois Central system during 1935 seemed likely to reach 200, an increase of 27 per cent over 1934, of 79 per cent over 1933 and 179 per cent over 1932," he continued. "The new capital invested in these industries during 1935 was expected to reach $13,000,000."

GOATS CLEAR PASTURE

TRENTON, Okla., Dec. 30. (AP)—Two hundred goats have cleaned 100 acres of woodland pasture in three years for Mrs. J. B. Berryman near here. The undergrowth was so heavy when the goats were placed on the land that it was impossible to see across the pasture. Now it is clear with a thriving crop of native grass.

Three Ethiopian Armies Have Converged on Makale.

(By Associated Press)
Italy announced today that 52 Italian soldiers were killed and 14 wounded in Sunday's battle at Earieu. The same source announced that the Ethiopian losses were "heavy."

Addis Ababa was jubilant over the reports that Emperor Haile Selassie had ordered the armies to battle the Italians on a large scale basis.

Officials estimated that the Ethiopian had 400,000 men on the northern front for what is considered the critical stage of the war.

Three Ethiopian armies have converged on Makale as a prelude the counter-offensive.

Mussolini said the defunct peace proposals were "far from satisfactory."

Former Premier Andre Tardieu has resigned from the republican center party as a protest over the party head's action in voting against Premier Laval after urging France to stand by Great Britain.

Cisco Youth to Appear as Singer With Miss Gentry

Marion Bruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bruce of Randolph college and vocal soloist, will appear in support of Miss Olive Gentry, dramatic reader, in a concert tour of northern and eastern United States shortly after the first of the year. He is assisting Miss Gentry now in a number of programs in this section, appearing with her this week in the following engagements:

Thursday evening at the First Christian church here; Friday morning at chapel programs at the high school and two west ward schools in Ranger; and at Scranton Friday night.

He appeared with her at the First Methodist church in Strawn and the Moran Christian church in programs last week.

Engagements booked by Miss Gentry on her northern tour include appearances at Terre Haute, Ind.; Flint Mich.; Dayton, O., Old South Church, Boston, and Charlestown, Mass. Other bookings are being made. Mr. Bruce will assist in the management of the tour.

KILLING SAID TO BE HOLDUP

CHICAGO, Dec. 30. (AP)—The killing of State Representative Albert Pringano, political boss of the "bloody 23rd ward," who was shot to death last night by three men, was believed to have been a hold-up.

When the assailants said "stick 'em up," Prigano is said to have emptied his pockets and turned away, the gun-men opened fire, pouring six bullets into his body as he reached the doorstep of his home.

Prigano's name was frequently lined up with Al Capone, but lately he had been called the enemy of the racketeers.

One man, tentatively identified as Leo Panzarella, aged 25, was found shot to death in a truck near the southern boundary of the ward. Investigation has begun to determine his connection with the Prigano slaying.

Bucks Will Play Paul's Valley in Memorial Classic

The Breckenridge Buckaroos have been nominated by Gov. Allred to represent Texas in a bi-state high school football game with the Pauls Valley, Okla., team in a game at Fort Worth next Saturday for the benefit of the Rogers' Memorial Fund. The Buckaroos, champions of the oil belt and one of the outstanding high school teams of the state, have accepted the nomination.

The game will be played at Texas Christian university stadium at 2 o'clock p. m.

All of the proceeds of the game will be turned into the memorial fund.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits—without partiality or hypocrisy.—James 3:17.

Well spoke the old monks, peaceful watching life's turmoil. Eyes which look heavenward, weeping still we see God's love with keen flame purges, like the lightning's flash, Good which is purest, purer still must be. —Kingsley.

How can we know that God is our rock and defense, until we have chosen that kind of life which finally has no other rock or reason? How can we ever know what God has in store for us, so long as we are content with the store we have apart from him? How can we know anything that is worth knowing until we arrive at deep places where we must know it or perish?—British Weekly.

Is Lindbergh Popularity Fading?

THE Lindberghs may have gone to England primarily on a business mission or they may be making a visit to relatives and taking a vacation with their customary refusal to take the public into their confidence, but Lindbergh is getting a panning from many sources, just the same, which seems to indicate that the American aviation idol is beginning to turn sour.

attitude. The press and public commentators seem to be no longer awed of the popularity of the Flying Colonel. A good instance of this attitude is exhibited in an editorial by Editor Jim White of the Brownwood Bulletin, whose remarks we reprint here:

"REMOVAL of the Lindberghs from America to England in order that they may find a sanctuary in which their little son may be safe from kidnapers, and where they may be shielded against the rabble, need not inspire any of us to take down our hair and weep. If it is a blow to America, the country probably will be able to take it and even like it.

"The tragedy in which the Lindberghs nearly four years ago lost their little son will never be forgotten by the American people. With absolute unanimity they poured out their sympathy for the grief-stricken parents, and with equal unanimity have demanded that the fiend responsible for the kidnaping and murder of little Charles be adequately punished. But it is not necessary that the Lindberghs leave America in order that their other little son, Jon, may be protected against a similar fate. There is not a case on record, so far as we have been able to discover, in which a child has been snatched by kidnapers from the protecting arms of its parents. When parental responsibility is delegated to servants, almost anything may happen.

"The truth is that the celebrated flying Colonel has become, since his spectacular flight across the Atlantic, a first class snob. No other word defines his studied determination to avoid those whose only purpose is to do him honor, while concentrating his attention upon those who can bring him profit. He is by no means a cheap publicity seeker; to the contrary, he has cashed in his popularity as a national hero in a measure which has never been equalled by any other. He spurned movie contracts in order to garner air mail contracts that were involved in a national scandal. He rudely refused the plaudits of the multitude of hero-worshippers, but accepted the companionship of the Big Boys with the money bags.

"There are scores of unsung and unheralded aviators in America who are his peers, and who have done and are doing as much for aviation as he has ever dreamed of doing. If he cares to transfer his home to England, it will not be such a devastating blow, after all. We still have Roosevelt, and Hoover, and Joe Louis and the Southern Methodist Mustangs, not to mention the Army and Navy and the Statue of Liberty."

William Gibbs McAdoo, 71, and Nurse Doris I. Cross, 26. Said the senator: "Every year I am getting younger, and there's nothing I can do about it."

Mrs. Eugene Vidal, wife of the chief of the bureau of air commerce, won a Reno divorce after 13 years of marriage, three months later married Hugh R. Auchinclos, wealthy Washington investment broker.

Two orchestra leaders clashed the wedding cymbals, Eddie Duchin in marrying the socially prominent Marjorie Belrichs, and Ben Bernie marrying Dorothy Patricia Wesley of Miami.

Tomorrow—Entertainment.

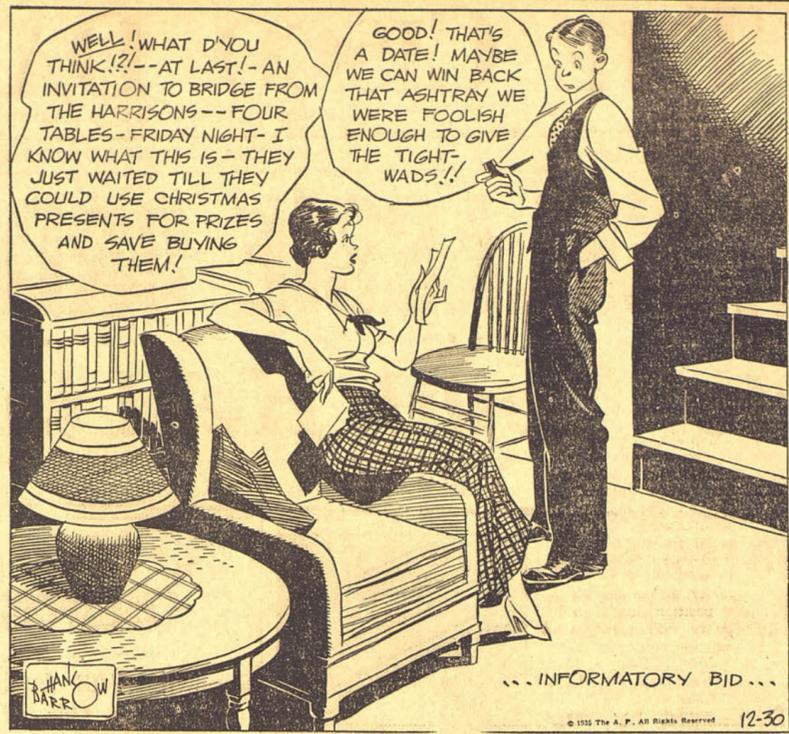

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Broadway may be eccentric but it is never non-committal. You just walk along it and see people and they tell you things.

Here is Ruth Millard who is a walking encyclopedia of toy information and who advises me that this year's Yule packages will contain an astonishing number of new games. . . . But they aren't all for children. . . . They are to slake the gambling thirst of grown-ups. . . . Games featuring big business deals lead the parade, and they're all based on quick action and big scoring possibilities.

THE GAY THIRTIES

there are streamline skates, movie projectors, electric trains, model building sets, autos, and airplanes. All in all, it looks like an exciting 25th.

In the Paramount building I meet Walton H. Marshall who is the Southern representative for the Waldorf-Astoria. . . . Marshall probably knows more southern business men than any hotel executive in New York and they flock to him when in town on business. . . . His days are in a way a tour of the southern states, for on Monday he may lunch with a Memphis cotton king, Tuesday with an industrial czar from Birmingham, Wednesday with a rice planter from New Orleans, Thursday with a rancher from El Paso, Friday with a sugar grower from Jackson, and Saturday with a lumberman from Little Rock. He is himself a Virginian.

This department's spies report that in Paris the ladies' hats are now being modeled after different types of American jazz. . . . Ozzie Nelson is the first to confirm the fact. . . . It seems the idea was born with Erik, the Danish designer, who got the inspiration while listening to American phonograph records, and now he has created a new type of millinery for every musical mood. . . . I'd be mighty pleased to have a glimpse of the new cariocha.

Confusion is upon us, if you are a friend of Jascha Heifetz and have perchance read a recent essay on him you will understand. In a blooie moment I referred to him as a pianist, which not only evoked indignation meetings, pointed epistles, and a stern rebuke from the Big Guy upstairs, but brought out seven different kinds of sarcasm. I'll quote one note just to show you what a scribe is sometimes up against.

Only, it wasn't really a note. The sender had drawn a ring around "pianist" and then scrawled on the margin: "Now that you have cleared up Heifetz's status, won't you tell us something about Max Baer. My friend insists he beats the bass drum, but I don't believe it."

Of course I could be nasty and say that the last time I saw Baer, he was beating nothing but a retreat, but I won't. I'll just turn this in and sink out of here.

While all the talk of divorce and separation was going about, Clark Gable was quietly purchasing himself some new guns. He has a regular arsenal already, numbering nearly two dozen rifles and shotguns. He is an inveterate hunter and a crack shot. At skeet and the traps he is said to be really expert.

every crevice of the old schoolhouse on the hill, we usually had one of these showers. A large stove near the center of the room would be fired up to a glowing heat on these wintry mornings. Soon a tell tale dripping began to strike the floor or sizzle against the hot stove. The pipe extended upward to near the ceiling and turned at a right angle and continued under the ceiling to the chimney on the east wall. The stovepipe then became a secondary heater. The dripping that began in a spot near the stove would spread in the course of an hour or two until the whole room was brought into its area. We were in for a day or two of inconvenient drip-drop dodging. The inconvenience was largely the teacher's, however. The children usually found it conveniently diverting. It involved shifting of seats. Standards of school management had to be waived for the time being. If such a day had any educational value it was apt to be the practice in adjusting oneself to an unusual situation that the pupils might get out of it. But they were not much interested in that lesson, nor in any lesson. The affectionately inclined would probably find themselves by the side of some favorite boy or girl as they arranged themselves in unanchored seats around the stove. They might find an inspiration to study in such companionship; more likely it as an incentive to conversation. The more aggressive ones took select positions. The rest took the leavings. The clownishly disposed found an opportunity to set the school to tittering and giggling by some odd action or some droll grimace as a pattering drop now and then hit him on the head. But a little of this was enough, and soon the children, and the teacher more gladly, were ready to return to normal school procedure.

LIFE IN 1935

7. Big Names In Marriage, Divorce News

By HERBERT YAHRAES (Associated Press Staff Writer)

The year's drama brought many a heart throb, many an ache, as the story of marriage and divorce in high places unfolded.

John Smith saw some of his real-life heroes and heroines join hands till death do us part, watched others take separate paths.

Heiress Barbara Hutton provided double excitement. First she divorced her prince, Alex Mdivani—killed a few months later in an automobile accident; then, almost immediately and still in Reno, she acquired another title by marrying Count Court von Haugwitz-Reventlow.

"Richest Girl Marries" Heiress Doris Duke, "richest girl," became the bride of James R. Cromwell, business man, writer, former husband of Delphine Dodge, in a ceremony almost provokingly unostentatious.

Another quiet wedding united Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall and John Boettiger.

Hollywood contributed plenty of throbs for those who take their romance vicariously. The first 11 months saw 44 marriages and 42 new break-ups—including divorces, estrangements, annulments—among film notables as compared with 65 marriages and 54 break-ups during the whole of 1934.

Harlow Divorced Jean Harlow won a decree from cameraman Hal Rosson, her third husband, Virginia Cherrill divorced Cary Grant, Clara Grant Ray divorced Charles Ray, Elissa Landi divorced John Cecil Lawrence, Clark Gable and Ria Langham admitted parting.

Other filmland "casualties": Kay Francis and Kenneth McKenna, Colleen Moore and Al Scott, Adrienne Ames and Bruce Cabot, Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster, Joan Blondell and George Barnes, Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay.

Barrymore Episode Perhaps cinemaland's biggest real-life thrill for John Smith came in connection with the Dolores Costello-John Barrymore parting. As the great lover sped for Hollywood, shortly before Miss Costello won her divorce, a youthful New York portage, Ealine Barrie, his guest on a cruise, chased him across half the continent, gave the country a two-day chuckle, failed to find her speeding Romeo.

Hollywood happy endings included Lois Morgan and Col. Clarence M. Young, Songstress Marion Talley and Voice Teacher Adolph Eckstrom, Producer Max Reinhardt and Actress Helene Thimig, Esther Ralston and W. W. Morgan, Errol Flynn and Lili Damita, Lyda Roberti and Bud Ernst, Raul Roulien and Conchita Montenegro, Producer Winfield Sheehan and Maria Jeritza, Helen Vinson and Racquetteer Fred Perry, Sylvia Sidney and Publisher Bennett Cerf, Norman Foster and Sally Blaine—and, climaxing an admittedly arduous wooing, Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone.

Royalty contributed to John Smith's romantic fare with the wedding of King George's third son, the Duke of Gloucester, and Lady Alice Montague-Douglas-Scott.

Joe Louis' Gesture Max Baer and Joe Louis, who squared off in the year's biggest boxing match, made quite a splash with wedding rings, too. Playboy Baer sprang a surprise by marrying quiet, pious Mary Ellen Sullivan in Washington. Louis, crown prince of boxing, staged a superb gesture by marrying Marva Trotter, toast of Chicago Harlem, just before he entered the ring to strike down Baer.

Washington offered the year's outstanding November-June romance—the marriage of Senator

NEVER MIND THE LADY by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: By accident Terry Willett finds out that Allaire West is in Washington, and gets off the New York train there with a girl he has met casually in Ray West's private car, the "Debutante II."

STOPOVER

Ray West's rather rapid name of "Debutante II" for his private car had been a polite, nose-thumbing gesture of his own toward his wife. It was no secret that he had named the car after her.

Eleanor West had been a princess among debutantes in Washington's gay social and diplomatic circle. She had been possessed of a cultivated beauty and a finishing school vivacity, and when she reclaimed the position that had been hers before she married Raybourne West, she was older in years, not in values.

She still cultivated her beauty assiduously and the effervescent and innocuous vivacity bred of French governesses, exclusive finishing schools, and bachelor cotillions was still the foundation of her charm. She blended the mode of life of two generations. She patronized the arts, gave elaborate balls, and led fashionable drives to provide starving Zulus with collar buttons.

reminded one of a corner of a smoking room on a luxurious ocean liner—the small sailing ship model on the mantel-piece, the dark rug, and an imperceptible feeling of vibration that emanated from the solid firmness of the furniture, the slow-ticking brass-bound clock, and the regularly spaced dimmed lights supported by little rods of grilled iron from oaken walls.

He lit a cigaret, looked around him curiously, and decided this "being received" business was quite evidently an ornate function. It seemed a long time before Allaire finally appeared. It was quite a time. Willett had started his third cigaret. But suddenly she was there!

She made him think of a slim shaft of silver as she stood on the threshold, an evening gown of something shimmering clinging closely about her. For a moment neither spoke. They looked at each other almost as if searching for something.

Silver is a cold color and so was an intangible current in the air—like a draught coming from some unknown place. Terry sensed that immediately. He had a crazy idea that he was being inspected like a prize bull. The girl made no move.

"Hello," he said, and grinned. "Surprised to see me?" The girl nodded her head gracefully. "I didn't believe it at first," she said calmly. "Of all people—the engineer. What are you doing in a civilized part of the world? Why, I'd rather imagine you'd be in darkest Africa by now."

She came into the room and extended a hand. A French diplomat would undoubtedly have kissed it; there was something of that in her manner. Willett held it, unresponsive, in his. Her dark eyes, capable of saying so much, seemed only politely expectant. "Yes," she said, withdrawing her hand, "I had thought of you in darkest Africa in a pitch helmet, slugging whiskey from a demijohn over your shoulder and romantically defying the jungle to put up a thirty-story grass hut for the Timbuctu Waist Garment Company, Incorporated. Do sit down."

ly disappointed—there was something vibrant and lively missing here. Surprise, he could have understood, but not this total lack of spontaneity. "I ran across your trail today," he said finally. "Met your father on the Washington train."

"He often uses the 'Old Dominion,'" she acceded. There was another silence. Well, that was that. Her father often used the "Old Dominion." Good thing that was settled.

"I thought I'd follow you up," he resumed. "Did you? I'm very gratified, but—why?" Why? Perfectly natural question of course, but this barrier of coolness was beginning to annoy him. She seemed a part of the cold reserved beauty of her home.

"I wanted to see you again. After all," he pointed out, with a brief-appearing smile, "you saved my life." He'd had his life saved and saved lives himself five or six times in the course of his hectic racing existence. It hadn't been anything particular noteworthy until this girl had covered him.

She flushed slightly, but said nothing. Again he was disappointed. "Did you get off all right?" he asked abruptly. "Very well, thanks. Mr. Fox saw to it admirably." "George is good at that kind of thing."

"I don't know what I would have done without him. He stood by wonderfully." She waved a hand to dismiss the subject. "Well, Mr. Willett, what lies before you now?" He didn't answer immediately. He was trying to figure out this strange behavior. "You know," he said slowly, "you act as though you'd seen me once in your life."

Allaire gave a surprised little laugh. "How many times, exactly, have I seen you?" "One," said Willett. "It didn't make much impression on you."

"It was a most entertaining evening," she corrected. Entertaining evening! It had been a vital evening in his life, that's what it had been. And she called it entertaining. She really was snooty!

A rich girl who had stepped off the sightseeing bus to take a little side excursion of her own and be vastly entertained while all the forces of life passed before her eyes in quick succession—lights, and shadows, and death.

He wasn't a chauffeur being interviewed for a position. He felt like that man Perry on the train had felt—seven kinds of a fool. "Entertaining?" he repeated. "You may have thought it entertaining, but I wasn't so damned amused."

Well's World of Future Is Filmed In British Work

By ELMER W. PETERSON ISLEWORTH, England, Dec. 30. (P)—The world of the future, a polished, metallic arrangement of space guns, underground cities, airplanes and glass pillars, will soon be reduced to so many thousand feet of celluloid film at the London Film studios here.

Final scenes of "Things To Come," the highly imaginative screen play which has H. G. Wells as author, are being recorded, while auditors total a production cost of more than $1,000,000.

Long Show Foreseen

Eighteen months have been required for the production. More than 1,000 separate scenes have been taken. The public may have to spend two and one-half hours in a theater to see it all.

It is to be—although American technical directors are in charge—the challenge of the British film industry to Hollywood in the matter of enormous, gigantic, colossal, bell-ringing spectacles.

It is to include such things as the razing of London by air attack, the complete destruction of the present world, and the rebuilding of a weird underground civilization.

Rubber Guards Worn

In the new civilization—assuming that Mr. Wells has it right—everyone will wear broad sheets of rubber over the chest and back—to guard against electrical shocks from the machinery of A. D. 2055.

Trousers will be outmoded. Both men and women will wear shorts.

Homes—in the underground cities—will be glistening with glass furniture and hidden floodlighting. Machines will construct a home to your taste in a day.

watch other planets as if looking across a street.

To cope with the problem of getting all this on film, William Cameron Menzies came from Hollywood to direct with Ned Mann, as head of the technical staff.

The all-British cast was selected chiefly for robust physical fitness. Pearl Argyle, ballet dancer, and Raymond Massey, stage actor, have the leads.

Odwin Cate has returned to Big Springs after a ten days visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cate.

Ex-Soldiers Overrun Capital of Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 30. (P)—This city on the Ondes plateau, one of the smaller South American capitals, is suffering from overpopulation as a result of demobilization following the Craco war with Paraguay.

The last census showed La Paz to have 160,000 residents. But since the war ended in June, an additional 20,000 have come to La Paz.

As a result rooms and houses are at a premium. Several organizations have urged the city government to oblige owners of vacant lots to build, by taxing idle land heavily and new houses lightly.

Morrison Now One of England's Dominant Men

By ROGER D. GREENE LONDON, Dec. 30. (P)—As rising star of the socialist party, brisk-mannered, Cockney-born Herbert Morrison, called "Little 'Ernie," Prime Minister of London, has become one of the powerful figures in England.

Since 1931, when he lost out in the election upheaval that saw Ramsay MacDonald "betray" the socialists to form the "national cabinet," Morrison has had a comparative back seat.

For four years, "Little 'Ernie" brooded—but actively, arraying his forces for a smashing comeback. He sat in the huge white building of the London county council and gazed across the Thames at the grimy but hallowed old halls of parliament.

"They'll hear from me," he said.

Prefers Politics to Riches

Born in poverty, former errand boy, shop assistant, telephone operator and newspaper ad solicitor, he turned down a $25,000-a-year job so he could stick close to the political machine he had built up, the London labor party.

And today, sent back to parliament, he has become the dynamo of the opposition to Stanley Baldwin's government.

He Walks the Dog

But Morrison, even his opponents admit, is not a destructive oppositionist. His aggressiveness, his irritable impatience and his fiery personality are sometimes too much for crusty conservatives, but all admit his genius as an administrator.

About Baldwin, "Little 'Ernie" says: "He's a good man in safety-first time—in times of crisis—but not so good when progress is needed. The thing about progress is to know where to begin, and where to stop."

Hobbies? "I get no time for hobbies," he said. "When I'm finished at commons, I go to labor headquarters."

Then he hesitated and began thinking hard. "I take the dog for a walk now and then," he said at last.

Approximately five times as much horsepower per mile is required to drive an automobile at 70 miles an hour as at 20 miles an hour.

Although living only 15 miles away, William John Cowdery, 79-year-old retired gardener, visited London recently for the first time in 40 years.

Cave-Bear Statue Is Found In Cave

ST. GAUDENS, France, Dec. 30. (P)—A crude statue of a bear, carved by some pre-historic sculptor 20,000 years ago, has been discovered by Norbert Casteret, archeologist, in a cavern under the French Pyrenees.

To reach the statue, Casteret had to plunge into dark, icy streams, crawl through holes on all fours and traverse huge halls where stalactites hung from the vaulted ceilings.

His only light was a candle and a box of waterproof matches which he carried in his rubber bathing cap.

The French archeologist has uncovered primitive altars where cavemen prayed and left many curious votive offerings. He also stumbled upon a cavern so vast that "it could house the whole cathedral of Notre Dame."

PLANS BIRTHDAY PARTY

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 30. (P)—A birthday party appropriate to the gigantic size of the state is planned by Texas for 1936. More than 120 towns and cities plan celebrations which will be coordinated with the year-long Centennial anniversary observance.
