No Pacts Possible on Threat Basis, Says Eden

QUITS RATHER THAN BARTER WITH IL DUCE

New Anglo - Italian Negotiations Will Be Started

LONDON, Feb. 21 (AP)—Anthony Eden told the house of commons today that he resigned as foreign secretary rather than deal with Italy in the face of Premier Mussolini's "rife and hostile propaganda" against Britain and Mussolini's "glorification" of victories in Spain.

"Agreements worth while are never made on the basis of threats," he cried.

Before the session opened, Prime Minister Chamberlain, who accepted Eden's resignation, held a surprise conference with Count Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador.

After Eden had finished, Chamberlain told the house of commons that Britain had agreed to start negotiations for a new Anglo-Italian understanding immediately in Rome.

Diplomatic quarters were stirred to unusual activity as Britain seemed to have veered to a completely new policy toward the fascist and nazi dictators.

Only yesterday Eden had been singled out by German Chancellor Adolf Hitler for attack in his speech before the reichstag. Prime Minister Benito Mussolini of Italy has long made the well-dressed Eden the target of his barbed criticism.

Eden has stood out in general against any compromise with dictators involving the sacrifice of the principles of collective security, and in particular against negotiations for Anglo-Italian friendship without specific concessions from Mussolini.

Some well-informed quarters said Hitler and Mussolini had flatly warned Chamberlain he must get rid of Eden before any progress could be made toward a general European settlement.

Viscount Halifax lord president of the council, who started negotiations for a settlement with Hitler last November, was believed

Funeral Held at 3:30 Sunday for Andrew J. Moudy

Funeral services for Andrew Jackson Moudy, 51, Dothan farmer who was accidentally killed Saturday by the discharge of a 16-gauge shotgun as he crawled through a fence while hunting near his home, were held at the First Baptist church here Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The Rev. H. D. Blair, Baptist county missionary, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the church.

Mr. Moudy, a half-brother of County Comm'r Arch Bint was discovered fatally wounded by one of the younger sons of W. B. Starr, who was en route from his home at Dan Horn to Dothan, about 5:30 Saturday afternoon. He had left his home, where he lived with his mother, Mrs. B. F. Moudy, only a short while before to hunt rabbits with his dog. He was discovered in a sitting posture against a bank a short distance from the road. He was unconscious. Young Mr. Starr endeavored to assist him into the small truck he was driving, and being unable to do so, hurried to Dothan half a mile away to summon help. Joe Donaway, who arrived at the scene a moment or two later, and J. W. Kile, nephew of Mr. Moudy who came from Dothan immediately, placed the wounded man in Mr. Donaway's car and brought him to Graham sanitarium. He died about the time he reached the hospital, never regaining consciousness. The charge had struck him in the left breast.

Burial was in Oakwood cemetery, with Green Funeral home in charge.

Pall bearers were Smith Huestis, Arlin Agnew, Paul Huestis, Joe Donaway, B. J. Camp and R. W. Mancill.

Besides his mother and Mr. Bint, Mr. Moudy is survived by one sister, Mrs. Joe White of California.

Born on February 17, 1887, Mr. Moudy had lived his entire life in the Dothan community. He was never married.

MOTHER IS ILL

Mrs. J. D. Lauderdale left this morning on the Texan for Fort Worth in response to a message that her mother, Mrs. J. L. Bullock, was ill.

Mrs. A. V. Osborn and son, Roy Little, spent Sunday in Abilene.

EIGHT NEGRO FELONS FLEE AT BEAUMONT

Jailer Overpowered; Two of Desperate Crew Recaptured

BEAUMONT, Feb. 21 (AP)—Eight negro prisoners overpowered Jailer R. W. Whitehead and fled the county prison early today.

Two were recaptured soon after as they were attempting to board a train.

The prisoners, several of them rated desperate and one known to have been armed, ganged the jailer when he took a mop and broom to their cell block for the morning cleanup.

Whitehead was not injured. The armed fugitive was reported to be Albert Summerall, under a 12-year sentence and awaiting trial in Texas and Louisiana on several charges of robbery.

Cisco Girls Hurt in Car Accident

Miss Nellie Fay Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cook, and Miss Kelsie Fern Doyle, daughter of Mrs. Julia Doyle, were treated at Graham sanitarium Sunday for severe bruises received when the car in which they were riding blew a tire and turned over on West 14th street. Neither of the girls' injuries were serious, however.

Scouters to Meet Tuesday Evening

Brother of Mayor Berry Dies at Tulsa

Death of George S. Berry, 71, brother of Mayor J. T. Berry of Cisco, occurred at his home in Tulsa, Okla., Sunday afternoon after an illness of six years. Mr. Berry had been in the real estate business at Tulsa since 1921.

Mr. Berry was a native of Louisville, Ky., and came to Texas with his father, Col. J. T. Berry, who was one of the founders of Abilene, Texas. When 19 years old, George S. Berry was appointed by President Grover Cleveland as postmaster at Amarillo.

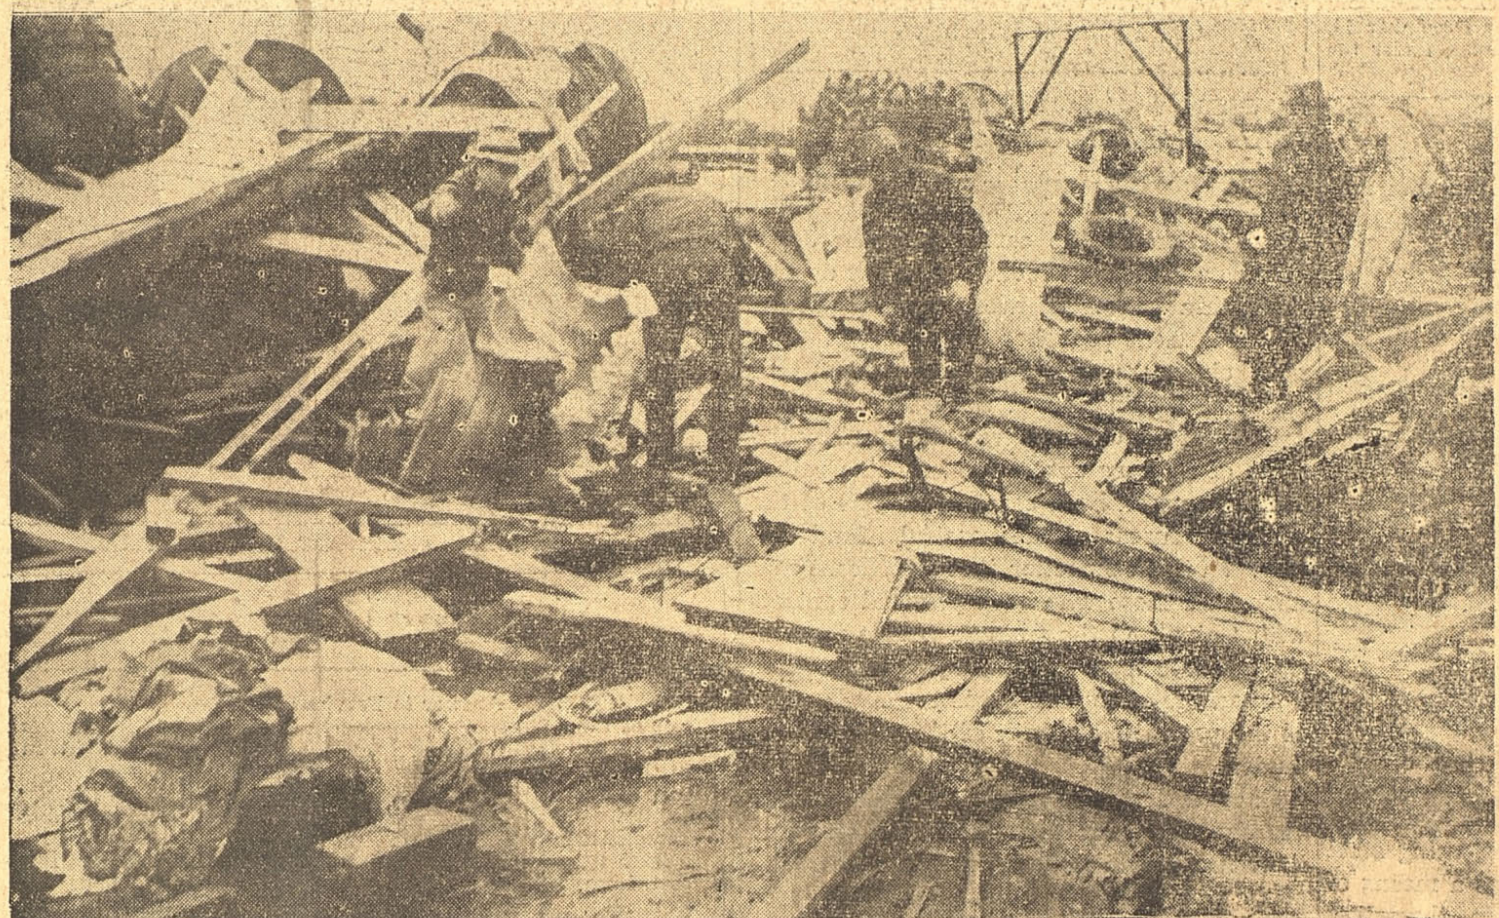

He later engaged in banking at Abilene, Merkel and Fort Worth, and served as president of the Texas Bankers Association.

While in Fort Worth he was cashier of the First State Bank and Trust company, about 1909-1912. He later was associated with the State National bank. Mr. Berry was active in the development of South Hemphill Heights Addition, and Berry Street was named for him.

Survivors, besides the Fort Worth son, are his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Seth W. Herndon, Tulsa, and Mrs. Robert C. Ashley, La Grange, Ill.; two brothers, Mayor Berry of Cisco, and W. T. Berry, Los Angeles; and a sister, Miss Alice Berry, Abilene.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at Trinity church in Tulsa. Burial will be in Tulsa.

As Storm Cut Swath of Tragedy at Rodessa

These pictures graphically show the terrific force of the tornado winds whirling at speeds estimated at 500 miles an hour which cut a swath of tragedy through the northwest Louisiana oil town of Rodessa, leaving a trail of 30 dead, scores injured and damage estimated up to $300,000. In one, is shown how the tornado treated a new car, battering it with cannon-like blows of timbers and heavy oil well machinery. Through the drizzling rain, rescuers can be seen digging in the debris, hunting more victims of the tragedy. The other picture is that of heavy pumps that were able to withstand the shock of the twisting storm. All around is what was left of "supply company row," in the center of the damaged area, with oil field roustabouts digging through the tangled mass.

Hitler Demands Colonies Return

BERLIN, Feb. 21 (AP)—Reichschancellor Adolf Hitler addressed a demand for return of Germany's war-lost colonies directly to Great Britain Sunday in a tensely awaited speech that emphasized his firm control of German military might.

"Iron and steel will speak," he shouted to the reichstag, if ever international agitation against Germany manages to upset European peace.

Der Fuehrer launched his colonial demands with announcement of the recognition of Manchoukuo, the empire carved out of China in 1933 by Japan, which is allied with Germany and Italy against international communism.

He pointed the demand directly at Great Britain with the statement that Germany has "no differences with England — except colonies."

He emphasized it by adding Germany wants no territory in eastern Asia, has no territorial demands against France and no territorial interest in Spain.

As a corollary of his colonial demands, Hitler warned the world Germans living beyond the present borders of the reich were under his protection and further ad-

CLARK DEFIES SENATE PROBE

McDonald Investigation to Dallas

DALLAS, Feb. 21 (AP)—Tom Clark of Dallas, assistant United States attorney general and former law partner of Attorney General McCraw, challenged again today the authority of the senate investigating committee to look at his private bank records.

The committee, which came to Dallas for the announced purpose of resuming its inquiry into the practices of Land Comm'r William McDonald, had asked the Mercantile National bank here to furnish records on the accounts of Clark and McCraw.

The charge previously was made that one purpose of the investigation was to "smear" McCraw, listed as a probable candidate for governor.

Miss Agnes Bearman was returned from a week-end visit in San Antonio.

Victor Hand of Olden spent Sunday in Cisco.

Anti-Lynching Bill Shelved; Filibuster Ends

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (AP)—The senate shelved the anti-lynching bill today to take up the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation measure.

The action was taken on the motion of Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky. It ended the filibuster which had consumed 29 days of this session.

The vote was 58 to 22.

Donovan Well Is Being Swabbed

Tubing was pulled in the Hickok No. 1 Donovan, six miles northwest of Cisco last night, and swabbing was under way this morning to test developments following acidization with 10,000 gallons of acid Saturday.

In the event no commercial production shows up, it was understood the Ellenberger formation would be drilled deeper.

Mrs. Joe Sepkowitz and son, Ervin Louis, of Odessa are visiting her sister, Mrs. Pete Cooles and Mr. Cooles.

TEMPERATURE FALLS TO 27 THIS MORNING

Is Second Heavy Fall of Season; First in November

Four inches of snow which fell early this morning further complicated the already complex conditions of the weather here. It was Cisco's second heavy snow of the current fall and winter season, which has so far presented the anomaly of a summer mid-winter flanked by extremes of low temperature. The first fall of the season occurred early in November and followed by a rainy December. January and the first half of February were so mild that fruit trees bloomed and shrubs and trees budded.

It was believed, however, that the current cold wave did not do great damage to vegetation. Today's temperature was not as low as the extreme of the preceding cold wave, when the thermometer dropped to 25 degrees at one time.

According to the Cisco Gas Corp. recording thermometer, it fell to 27 degrees at 6 o'clock this morning, remaining at that point until 9 when it began a rise that topped 33 at noon. Yesterday's high was 59 degrees at 4 p. m.

SNOW COVERS NORTH AND WEST TEXAS

By Associated Press
A heavy snow storm raged in north and west Texas today. In parts of central and east Texas, rain was reported.

Snow, ranging from an inch at Denton to six inches at Lamesa, fell in Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Lubbock, Abilene, Borger, Dallas, Coleman, Big Spring and San Angelo.

Snow raged unchecked in most sections all morning, but in the afternoon turned to rain in the Dallas area. Flood conditions in north Texas were somewhat improved but further rises were feared should the rain and snow continue.

Rodney Kidd New League Director

AUSTIN, Feb. 21 (AP)—D. H. Shelby, dean of the extension service of the University of Texas, announced today that Rodney Kidd, physical training director of Southwestern university, would succeed Roy Henderson, who died last week, as athletic director of the Interscholastic league.

Hill Shepard to Be Buried at Gunsight Today

Hill Shepard, 28-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shepard of Gunsight, and a nephew of Floyd Shepard and Mrs. O. R. Turner of Cisco, died in a Ranger hospital at 4 this morning of an apoplectic attack which he suffered about a week ago. He had been engaged with an uncle, Noble Robinson, of Ranger in business for about three months before he was stricken.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4:30 at Gunsight. Survivors, besides his parents, include one brother, Max Shepard of Livingston, Texas, near Houston, and a sister, Mrs. Gray Vin-nedge of Minnesota. He was not married.

Mrs. Burnell Osborn of Kennedy arrived Sunday for a visit here.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He did good, and gave us rain from Heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.—Acts 14: 17.

All praise, O Lord, to thee above,
Beisw, as 'tis above,
And may thy joys, Eternal One,
Both draw and crown my love.

A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a ten dollar note. He or she who has a radiating focus of good-will, and thus enters into a room, is as though another candle has been lighted.—Stevenson.

Interstate Cooperation In the Crime Problem

THE interstate crime commission reports progress in its survey of activities for 1937. Enactment of uniform state laws to close loopholes in criminal administration is the immediate goal of the commission, which began its labors in 1935. This program is aimed especially at the criminal who "commutes" between the states, using state lines and differing state laws as a means of evading, delaying and often thwarting prosecution.

FOUR uniform acts for adoption by the legislatures of the 48 states have been drafted by the commission as the basis for its program. These acts would make the law on fresh pursuits uniform and authorize the adopting state to cooperate with its sisters therein. They would secure attendance of witnesses from without a state in criminal proceedings and would authorize the making of states compacts for mutual aid in dealing with persons convicted of crime or placed on parole or probation.

W. B. COLLIE, state senator from our own district is one of the Texas representatives on the commission. With him serve Chief L. G. Phares of the state highway patrol and H. H. Carmichael, public safety director.

ALTHOUGH 29 states have adopted all or part of the program Texas is not yet listed among them. It is evident that the work of the commission is a distinct contribution to the solution of the national crime problem and it is also to be hoped that Texas will step into line in the near future. Failure to do so will undoubtedly aggravate the crime problem in this state despite the admirable steps that have been taken to deal with it, for the reason that "commuting" criminals will find the Lone Star commonwealth a more promising refuge than its sister states who have adopted the program.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Imagine a city with a council of 531 members to manage its affairs and you get an idea of what a sporting job it is to live and die in this city of the voteless.

There are perennial differences between members of congress from the provinces who make the city's laws and the local residents and business men of Washington. Off the record it probably is friendly enough, but it is a fact some outlying congressmen are pretty sarcastic in their remarks about local taxpayers.

Washington has no income tax (except the federal), no sales tax, and a property tax rate that is the basis of prolonged argument. Congressmen, who pay state, county and municipal taxes, not to mention highway district and sewer taxes, simply boil when Washington delegations plead for the federal government to pay a larger share of city expenses. The federal government buildings occupy a husky share of the better business sites in the district and pay no taxes. Long years ago an agreement was reached whereby the federal government was to kick in 40 per cent of the city budget, leaving the city to raise the balance by the usual tax systems. But as the years rolled along congress began nipping off its end, and now the federal government pays only about 10 per cent of a budget of some $45,000,000 annually. Congress fixes the amount of the budget after hearings and consultations with a local town board, but if the residents don't like it they have to take it anyway. They can't vote congress out of office.

Tax Trouble At various times suggestions have been made for income taxes to ease the load now borne mostly by property owners, but that idea has bogged down. An income tax would hit members of congress, since they could not keep a very straight face while they voted themselves exemptions. Last session they shouted down such a tax. This year a new proposal was advanced to require congressmen to pay income taxes based on the amount of time they spent here. That also was out. District taxpayers are a bit hot under the collar about that since the congressmen don't pay income taxes in their home states either on their federal salaries. Last year congress tacked a business privilege tax on local merchants. The merchants could not very well pass it directly on to the consumers, so now there is pressure to replace it with a sales tax which the customers would pay. But congressmen, in voting taxes for the district, have to keep their skirts clean. Sales taxes are not popular out in the states, and

Hull Defends His Program

ORDINARILY mild-spoken Cordell Hull, secretary of state, lashes out at critics of his reciprocal trade treaty policy. Opposition to the secretary's program of trade agreements with other nations, based on the bargaining of concessions in tariffs, stems from the industries which have been sheltered behind duties. It is a vigorous opposition supported with much propaganda, for those who enjoy these protections wish to maintain them. It is argued that the secretary of state is bargaining away American advantages for nothing in return. This is disputed by the fact that American exports have increased over imports in the accelerated volume of trade that has followed perfection of the 16 trade treaties which the secretary has negotiated.

THERE is one indisputable fact which supports the program of Mr. Hull. America cannot sell if she does not buy. Trade is a reciprocal process. It is also a fact that trade promotes prosperity and that prosperity promotes peace.

OTHER OPINIONS

Overrated Japan

ISAAC MARCOSSON, noted journalist and world traveler, said the other evening in a Dallas lecture that Japan is "the most overrated nation on the earth," and the Japanese as a race "are feudal barbarians despite their thin veneer of western civilization." The statement provokes the thought that most observers who have been fearful of Japanese domination of the Pacific and especially of the Orient have been awed by the noise of military explosions in China rather than impressed by a careful analysis of the actual resources of the boastful island empire. In this connection it is significant that almost all those who have personal contacts with China and the Chinese people forecast the ultimate failure of the Japanese invasion, not because of Japan's weakness but because of the potential strength of the Chinese defenders.

Current dispatches report that the cost of the Japanese war thus far has been more than two billion dollars. Further financing of the war will be by bond sales to the Japanese people, who already have bought two-thirds of a billion dollars worth of government securities. Tax increases already have been levied, and others are in prospect for the near future. Business men and industrialists admit they are beginning to feel the effects of the heavy war expenditures.

There is reason to believe that Japan has been surprised by the resistance encountered in China. The Tokyo militarists were convinced that the lack of unity in China would make it comparatively easy for the Nipponese to sweep through the country, accomplishing in a few weeks their objectives which still are not reached. Meanwhile Japan is being compelled to increase her navy far beyond her actual needs or desires, in order to maintain what she believes to be the proper ratio with American and British navies—adding another heavy expense which the government very likely did not expect. All these factors combine to emphasize the difficulty in which the Tokyo government finds itself; war costs heavier than anticipated, due to more stubborn resistance than they expected, tax increases that interfere with business and industry and add to the burdens of the people, naval construction not included in the normal budget, and a rapid dwindling of financial resources that are wholly inadequate for a prolonged campaign.

Japan, to be sure, is overrated so far as actual military strength is concerned. Time will tell just how much overrated it actually is. Egotism and suicidal patriotism can not defray the costs of a prolonged war.—Brownwood Bulletin.

The Literary Guidepost-- By JOHN SELBY

"Brandy For Heroes," by Jack Kofoid; (Dutton: $3). This reader wallowed through the first 110 pages of Jack Kofoid's "Brandy For Heroes" trying diligently to learn why the book was written. He failed to find an excuse, and being somewhat weary of the quest, he put the book down. Perhaps someone else may have an idea. It is the biography of a plug-ugly, which sounds rather amusing, until you read part of it. The plug-ugly is a fellow named John Morrissey, born to poor Irish parents and in boyhood a resident of Troy, N. Y. The qualifications with which John faced life was chiefly these: he was extremely handsome, he was a perfect physical specimen, and he was fearless. He had an ambition, not a very remarkable one. He wanted power, money and one certain girl. From watching his father he learned that day labor would never get him either of the three, and started out along another route. This was, in effect, a succession of brawls. Nothing more. Young John as a boy of seventeen (according to the adoring Mr. Kofoid) went to New York and by knocking the unholy daylight out of a flock of people got himself into the immigrant-running racket which flourished in the middle third of the last century, and perhaps longer for all we know. It is impossible to accept the stories of vast physical prowess so naively related, or at least it is impossible for this reader. It is equally impossible to believe in the essential monogamy of the eminent Mr. Morrissey when we learn that he brawled his way into the financially helpful affections of many madames, dancing girls and such like. But Mr. Kofoid, as he traces this crooked trail, believes with the de-

Anybody Could See That By IRVIN S. COBB
I RECOGNIZE all the variations had been played on stories of incidents of delirium tremens, but I find I was wrong. Today's offerings came to me from a citizen of St. Louis. According to his statement, two or three weeks ago while a very heavy rain fell on a Sunday afternoon in a small city. They established liaison with a resident bootlegger who for a price supplied them with a quart apiece of "hot liquor," and I believe the notion of the work moonshiner is called. Like I heard of the story of a still of distillation or perhaps being deceived by its lack of color, the visitors over-indulged. In the back-lumber of the local hotel which they were, they set and drank, drink for drink, until their respective faces were nearly empty. It is that evening one of the pair in a high state of agitation called to the wall telephone and got connection with the police station. The night chief answered his excited call. "Assist," begged the man at the other end of the wire, "come over here as quick as you can and bring a whole lot of ozer ossias with you. This is life-and-death mazzar, so come a'runnin'!" "What's the trouble?" "Cuzible? You'd better call it trouble! Why, my partner has gone crazy. He's gallopin' around the floor yellin' 'I don't see no leopards nowhere!'" "Well, that's no sign he's crazy, is it?"—saying he can't see no leopards in a hotel?" "Not see no leopards—hell! Why, seefer, the room's full of 'em!"

Callahan County May Call Beer Vote

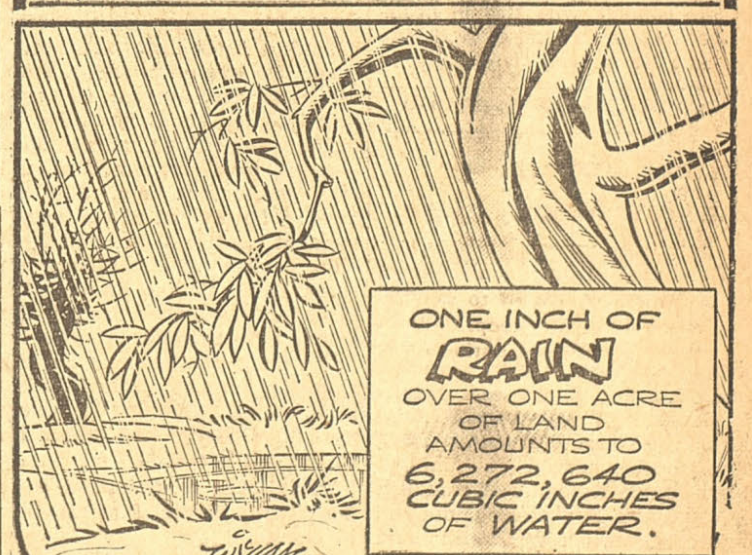

BAIRD, Feb. 20.—A petition is to be circulated in Callahan county in the near future for signatures of qualified voters calling a county-wide prohibition election to determine whether 4 per cent beer may be legally sold. Approximately 210 qualified voters must sign the petition. Promoters will present it to the commissioners court at its February session for action. At present there are 7 beer saloons operating in Callahan county—four in Baird, one in Putnam and two at Oplin. Circulators believe the county will vote "dry," while others are of opinion the election will put Cross Plains back into the wet column, as the local option election there several months ago was extremely close. A twin motored transport recently made a flight from New York to Philadelphia and return at a speed of 125 miles an hour with only one motor to prove its safety should a motor be disabled in flight.

What's The World Coming To? Home Will Be Far Sweeter in 1963 Even if It's Glass --- Or Rubber

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Many middle-class Americans will be living in "magic houses" 25 years from now.

But don't expect them, or their neighbors, to be ga-ga about it. For they took pretty much as a matter of course the transition from the cupola cutie and the bay-windowed behemoth of the Victorian era to the immeasurably more comely and livable house of 1938.

And you can count on U. S. home-lovers, already casually familiar with the flip-of-the-finger conveniences, to take in their stride the houses of 1963 with such miracles as:

Telephones that will take down the message whether or not anyone answers the phone.
Newspapers in The Home
A bedroom light that will go on automatically in the night when one gets out of bed—an important safety gadget since 39 per cent of all home falls occur in bedrooms.

An electric eye that will light the entrance to a house as one approaches it.
Concealed lighting, providing maximum "daylight" illumination night and day, and simultaneously flooding every room with health-giving rays.

Television offering home movies, baseball and football games and photo finishes of horse races. Perhaps a tabloid newspaper by radio or wire facsimile.

Chemically-treated air-conditioning which will kill germs in noise-deadened, vermin-proof, dust-free rooms.

Kitchens will go completely mechanical, and there will be a great increase in electrical devices for cooking on the dining room table. Water-softeners and moth-proof closets will be in common use.

Old Designs to Linger
There will be sundry versions of the elegant house of tomorrow. Architectural styles, exterior and interior construction materials, appliances and furnishings will come in a multiplicity of easily-assembled combinations. (Easier assembly of materials, experts say, is the key to lower-priced homes.)

Houses will have more flowing lines but many will incorporate graceful contours of classic designs. Architectural seers are confident that American and French colonials, the Georgian house, English and Cape Cod cottages still will be popular.

The trend will be toward smaller houses with maximum utilization of space and labor-saving arrangements. They will come in metals, in brick with steel supports, in fire-resistant wood with self-cleaning paint, in concrete with delicate mosaics, in cinder blocks, in synthetic stone, in glass, and, possibly, in rubber.

Pre-fabricated houses will be built of metals, brick panels, plywoods, plastics and various synthetic materials. Some occupants, moving from one town to another, will take their collapsible "pre-fabs" with them. The trailer-type home, of course, will be taken along on jaunts to woods, mountains and seashore.

It will not be fantastic to see combination tile-glass roofs affording miniature solariums in small houses. This offers a new use for attics. Special "below-basement" garages will be reached by elevators. Coming also are more basement gymnasiums and small swimming pools that can be covered when not in use.

Houses All on the Ground
Many experts believe that in suburban areas houses will be built on a ground-floor plane as far as possible. Living rooms will be shifted to the rear in many cases to escape street noises and provide a view of gardens.

Large wall sections will be devoted to windows, or to glass bricks which provide diffused light without loss of privacy. Plumbing lines will be fewer but more efficient than today's complicated setups.

Many appliances will be built into the house. Room-to-room communicating systems will be installed.

Some experts look for a large number of all-glass houses, the inside walls and partitions of which will be kept clean by the mere rub of a sponge. Floors, in winter, would be covered by a thick carpet of solid rubber made of removable squares to afford easy cleaning.

Water will be piped along the walls—to cool the house in summer and to clean the glass.

Authorities see a definite trend to planned large-scale production of single and multiple family homes for sale and rent. Limited dividend corporations will build entire residential sections providing for elaborate landscaping and freedom from traffic hazards.

Central management will insure neighborhood upkeep, recreational facilities and underground parking zones. Cities will encourage similar corporations to rehabilitate run-down residential neighborhoods.

Immigrant Colonies Keep Frontier Alive

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—"Frontier" characteristics are usually found in immigrant colonies of unskilled laborers in America, according to a social study of Pittsburgh published by the Columbia University Press.

These are usually a saloon, dance hall and boarding house. Chief center of such a community's life is the hall, used for weddings and other festivities.

The halls are found in every community in Allegheny county where nationality groups live in sufficient numbers to finance such an enterprise, the study shows.

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"... a question of interest to every smoker

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"

"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking. Camels agree with me!"

... When H. W. DALY, 34, rayon salesman, says "Yes, Camels are really different," millions of other smokers stand ready to back him up. And that explains why Camels are preferred by the largest body of smokers ever known.

A KISS FROM MARITA (Mrs. Daly) and Bill is off to catch the 7:55 on which he commutes to his job in the city. The Dalys agree about most things. Among them, Camels. Mrs. Daly smoked them first, soon noticed a difference. "Now we find that Camels agree better with both of us," she says.

A FRIEND DROPS IN to see how Bill is coming with his model racing sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question about smoking. "That all cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves."

MARITA'S PLANNING a grand feed. "We enjoy entertaining," Marita says. "I like to have plenty of Camels at the table. Camels certainly help to cheer up one's digestion."

ON WEEK-ENDS, Bill goes in for photography. Week days he "pounds the streets." "I get plenty tired," he says, "but when energy fails I get a quick 'lift' with a Camel."

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
Polly Chelsey, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out.
Jerry Whitfield, hero; the Yankee who sees her through.
Cabell Banks, privateer captain.

CHAPTER XVII
The brig Sunrise, British war sloop, spent several days cruising between England and the Netherlands without sighting any foreign sails worthy of her attention. She headed then for the Atlantic by way of the Strait of Dover.

At Ramsgate, a port at the Strait's eastern entrance, the Sunrise put in for fresh water and supplies. This was fortunate for local farmers and produce men. Bumboats carrying fruits and vegetables, fowl and even live stock swarmed around the ship's hull like dirty undersized ducks around a swan.

During their exercise period on deck the two American prisoners noted these things, though the presence of their guards prevented their discussing it. It was not until they were in the prison hold again that Cabell Banks said confidently: "This is our time to escape. But none of your leg-over-the-taffrail stuff in broad daylight."

"Not that again," Jerry agreed. His back had healed, thanks to youth and good blood, but caution had laid hold of him. He was determined to escape if his heart continued to beat in his body, but he would not again lose precious time in abortive attempts. He now asked Cabell Banks, "Ought we to get together?"

"Better together than singly, I think. It will take my brains and your muscle."
"What have you worked out?"
"A couple of well-placed blows from your fist. Followed by bribery, of course. How much money have you got on you?"

Jerry emptied his pockets and found that he had less than four pounds. This was but a fraction of what Cabell carried, but the latter generously decided that they must pool their resources.

"It's a tidy sum we've got between us," Cabell said. "We'll be lucky if it's not taken away from us. Well, bribery comes high and we'll have to bargain like true Yankees to make it reach." Tonight, they agreed, was the time to act. There'd be enough noise on board to cover a typhoon.

When a British ship put into a home port it was customary to allow shore-leave to sailors and to permit visitors to come aboard. In this way various groups managed to come on board if they were persistent enough—relatives, friends, hawkers, farmers with produce, illicit liquor dealers and other characters even less desirable. The officers of the Sunrise did not concern themselves at Ramsgate. With war ahead, they wanted the good will of the crew and no desertions. They themselves were enjoying shore leave.

On the night in question the only officer remaining on board was a second lieutenant. He, with a few midshipmen, had been left with the remarkable task of keeping order on a ship about to put to sea for a long war cruise, its decks this night more like a county fair than a gun brig.

It was no fantastic matter, then, for Jerry Whitfield with Cabell Banks' assistance to strike down, bind and gag the marine who came to lower their supper to them, and to exit by the open hatch; to treat a second sentry guarding the hatch in the same well-planned manner; to return him to the hold and bind him securely; to divest these two marines of their outer garments and to don them with more haste than taste. With the hatch then shut and looked behind them they mingled with the crowd on deck and looked about to see what fate offered them.

It was not easy for the two American prisoners to walk the deck of the Sunrise in their newly-acquired uniforms with any degree of nonchalance. The clothes fit them badly, Jerry's being too short and Cabell's too loose. But they wore them thankfully and each assured the other that he looked splendid.

The lieutenant was keeping to quarters and the midshipmen did not know them by sight, but there was danger that they would encounter some marines who had guarded them. This led them to seek out a crowd of civilians who surrounded a hawkster auctioning off a parrot. The bird could swear fluently in four languages, they were assured and so loud was the bantering that the two Americans were able to exchange mumbled words under cover of it.

"... bumboats!" Cabell said.
"... toward the stern..."
"... marines astern..." this from Jerry.
"... have to chance it..." Cabell's verdict.

They withdrew from the crowd and began to amble aft. Three girls passed them, giggling loudly and trying to attract their attention. Jerry laughed and called to them, "Breeze! We go girls!" in what he hoped was good British banter. An old man stopped them and asked where he could find his son, Tommy Smith, a bosun's mate. They could not tell him, but they were glad to listen to his Devonshire dialect while they conveniently turned their backs on some approaching marines. This group was walking arm and arm, singing a chanty between nips from a dark square bottle.

The crowd thickened astern.

They came on a country girl in tears because two sailors had come on board with a whole day's baking of gingerbread, nicely tied up in a basket. She had sold it to them, asking two shillings as her mother had told her to do, and they had paid her only one shilling. Now they had eaten the gingerbread to the last crumb, and what was she to do? The sailors laughed uproariously. Jerry was all for punching their noses when Cabell stopped him and drew him out of it.

"You've not got sense enough to come in out of the rain," he muttered. "Can't you see a female in distress without getting involved?"

Jerry smiled sheepishly. It was true. He couldn't. It was with distress in her eyes that Polly Chelsey had first come to him out of the fog, and now his whole life was dedicated to love of her. It was, moreover, his eagerness to help a pretty woman in a scrape over a hackney coach that had led him to imprisonment on this ship. Cabell was right: Let the little country girl cry for her lost shilling! One must keep an eye on the pattern, or life became a tangle.

They had reached their destination and pushed close to the deck's outer edge. A bumboat of unpur-chased fowl was about to move off from the brig's stern. They leaned over the taffrail, and Cabell hallooed to the four men at the oars:

"Wait there! There's others can buy fowl besides the commissary! We marines want six ducks for our mess! We're coming down!"

The men were looking up, their oars backing water. Cabell said in Jerry's ear. "Slide. Then jump. Make the boat."

Without more ado, what appeared to be two very prankish young British marines, one large and well built, the other as wizened as a counting-house clerk, grasped the cathead and slid down the anchor cable until they could drop into the bumboat.

Chickens cackled and geese honked. But as the noise subsided, the matter ceased to be of interest to the crowd on board the Sunrise.

Cabell Banks said to the gaping produce man in charge of the bumboat, "We want to get ashore for a few hours. We've been confined to quarters. You wouldn't begrudge an evening's fun, would you, to a couple of His Majesty's finest, about to go off and fight the Americans for you?"

"Would you now?" spoke up Jerry urgently.
"You said you wanted six ducks, grumbled the disappointed poultry man.

"So we do," replied Cabell with a wink. "But you can keep them for us. How much?"

"Three crown. 'ave you got it on you?"

"Yes. And a little over for a celebration ashore. Pull away. We don't want to be caught."

The man gave orders to his helpers; the bumboat put awkwardly about and made for the shore. Arrived there, Cabell Banks drew four silver crowns from his ill-fitting trousers and gave them to the poultry man, "One over," he said, "for good measure. Feed those ducks of ours well. We'll want the eggs to throw at Americans."

"Ye're drunk, both of ye," said the man, biting the coins and dropping them into his pocket. "Look sharp, or ye'll forget to go back to the brig tonight."

"You don't think we'd do that, do you?" Jerry asked in a horrified voice. He and Cabell Banks, laughing hysterically, put their arms about one another and went ashore.

New Farm Act All-Round One, Says TACC Head

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 21 (Spec.)—The Agricultural Adjustment act of 1938, recently passed by congress, is designed to provide an all-around national farm program which will help farmers and protect consumers of the nation, according to information received by George Slaughter, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation committee which has headquarters at Texas A&M college.

Principal provisions of the program are summarized as follows: Soil Conservation—The new program will continue and supplement the agricultural conservation programs in effect for the past two years under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act of 1936.

Five Crops—Specific provisions are made for five crops, cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice. Texas has a big interest in all of these except tobacco. The program is to provide for producing adequate supplies each year for domestic consumption, exports and ample reserves.

Ever-Normal Granary—Provisions of the Act designed to maintain supplies at specified levels are expected to bring about substantial increases in reserves, particularly in the case of corn and wheat.

Loans—The Act directs loans be made to corn, cotton and wheat producers under certain conditions, and authorizes loans on other agricultural commodities at the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture and the President. The loans are to be made by the Commodity Credit Corporation. It is not known at this time if corn loans will be available outside the commercial corn belt.

Acresage Allotments and Quotas—Acresage and commodity allotments will be made for each of the five crops. If a crop is so large that supplies reach high levels, a marketing quota will be effective. Two-thirds of the farmers, voting in a referendum of producers of the commodity, must approve the quota, however. A marketing quota for cotton only is in prospect for 1938.

Effect for Consumers—Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials believe consumers will be amply protected by the reserve provisions of the Act. The wheat supplies provided are intended to assure ample wheat at all times for the nation's bread supply, exports and reserves. The corn supplies are expected to have a stabilizing influence upon the supplies of meat.

Crop Insurance—The Act provides for crop insurance for wheat. The 1939 wheat crop will be the first to be insured.

Other Programs—Other parts of the national farm program will be continued under existing legislation. The range program, a part of the agricultural conservation program, will be virtually the same as in past years. Marketing agreements among fruit and vegetables and dairy products will be continued, as will the purchase of surpluses by the Federal Surplus Corporation for relief distribution and for the purpose of relieving temporary surpluses of perishable crops.

Some of the Reasons Why Some Land Is Never Leased for Oil

The following account revealing why some acreage is never released is taken from the Abilene Reporter-News of Sunday:

(All names in the following are fictitious.)

Some of the problems and legal entanglements incurred through the process of acquiring acreage for the drilling of a wildcat oil test are amply illustrated in the following letter, received by the head of the land department of an Abilene oil firm. It is from an out-of-town attorney.

"Dear Sir: With apologies to W. G. Blank of Houston, Texas, and in accordance with your order, I have examined the abstract of title in seven parts covering the south 25 acres out of the Finnigan survey in Blank county, Texas, which you are preparing to buy, and herewith render my opinion:

"Don't buy the G467--$! land. It has been my sorrow and burden to look over several horrible examples of a title-examiner's nightmare but this alleged title takes the cut-glass flyswatter. It is my belief that you couldn't cure the defects if you sued everybody from the Spanish government (who started this mess) on down to the present possessor of the land who is in there by virtue of a peculiar instrument optimistically designated by the abstractor as a general warranty deed.

Notes Don't Close
"In the first place, the field notes of the Spanish grant do not close. I don't think it is possible to obtain a confirmation grant since the late unpleasantness of 1898. In the second place, there were 19 heirs of the original grantee and only three of them joined in the execution of the conveyance into the next party in this very rusty chain of title, which is a major defect in the first place.

"We might rely on limitation here, except that I am reliably informed that nobody has succeeded in living on this land for a longer period than two years, before dying of malnutrition. Laches might help out, but anybody who undertakes to buy land under a title acquired by laches is, to paraphrase Mark Twain, setting out like the man who set out to carry the cat home by the tail—they are going to acquire experience that will be of great value to them and never grow dim or doubtful.

"The land has been sold for taxes eight times in the last 40 years. Nobody has ever redeemed one of these tax sales—glad to be rid of it, no doubt. The last purchaser sued the tax collector a month after he bought for cancellation of the sale for fraud and misrepresentation. He doubtless had grounds, but this incident will give you a rough idea of what kind of muzzle-loading smoothbores have been fritzing this title.

Out of Nowhere
"On Jan. 1, 1908, a gentleman who appears suddenly out of nowhere by the name of Gretzberg executes a quitclaim deed containing a general warranty of title to one Peter Perkinson. Perkinson, the prolific old billy goat, died, leaving two wives and 17 children, the legitimacy of two of them being severely contested. I am not being funnier than circumstances indicate; he actually left two wives and it seems never to have been legally adjudicated who he done wrong by.

"Each of these ladies passed away in the fear of God and the hope of a glorious resurrection and left a will devising this land to their respective brats. A shooting match between the two sets of claimants seems to have assisted the title slightly by reducing to six the original number and substituting eleven sets of descendants. One of the most prevalent causes of defects in this title seems to be the amorous proclivities and utter disregard for consequences prevailing in this neighborhood.

"Your prospective vendor deigns title by virtue of an instrument concerning which I have ty clerk with his fee prepaid. Outside of the fact that it doesn't describe the property under search, the habendum clause is into the grantors, the covenant of general warranty doesn't warrant a thing and it is acknowledged before it is dated. I suppose it is all right.

Minor Defect?
"I might mention that this land was the subject of a trespass to try title suit between two parties who appeared in the abstracts for the first time when the suit was filed and one of them recovered a judgment awarding title and possession. We may waive this as a minor defect, comparatively speaking.

"I would advise you to keep the abstracts if you can. They are a speaking testimonial to the result of notaries public drawing instruments, county clerks who would put a menu on record if a fee was tendered and jacklegged jugsheads posing as lawyers.

"You can buy the land if you so desire. There are 573 people who can give you as good a title as your prospective vendor, not counting the heirs of the illegitimate son of Prather..... who died in the penitentiary in 1898 while serving a term for horse theft.

"Yours very truly, W. H..... (unsigned)"

"P. S. You owe me two dollars more for headache powders I used."

New Device Ends Glare of Paintings

SOUTHRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 21.—Science has made it easier to look at works of art.

HOW DID YOU HAPPEN TO FIND US, UNCLE JONATHAN?
MONTHS AGO WHEN I READ IN THE PAPERS WHERE A BABY HAD BEEN LEFT IN THE CARE OF A "SYLVESTER COOK," I DECIDED TO INVESTIGATE!
I WASN'T SURE IT WAS THE "SYLVESTER" I WANTED! SO I DRESSED IN OLD CLOTHES, BEGGED FOOD HERE, AND LEARNED PLENTY ABOUT YOU!
GEE, SUPPOSE WE'D TURNED YOU AWAY?
WELL, I DIDN'T WANT YOU TO KNOW I WAS RICH! I WANTED TO MAKE SURE I WOULDN'T BE WELCOMED ONLY BECAUSE I WAS A RICH RELATION!
AND YOU WERE THE ONE WHO SENT US ALL THOSE ROYALTY CHECKS?
AND THAT SWELL ROADSTER WAS FROM YOU, TOO?
WELL, IF I COULDN'T KEEP THE WOLF FROM YOUR DOOR, THE LEAST I COULD DO WAS TO BUY HIM A MUZZLE!

Military Gives Salute

Standing before a symbolic German eagle whose gilded wings were spread wide, he said the increased nazi influence in Austria, where the majority of the population is German-speaking, had "removed differences which might have resulted in catastrophe."

Der Fuehrer declared "Germans do not desire war but they do not fear war."

His army, his navy, and his air force, he proclaimed, were well prepared, and German industry equipped for "a rearmament program such as has never been seen before."

The army, navy and air commanders emphasized Hitler's new and absolute command of Germany's armed forces when he strode to the rostrum of the Kroll opera house.

With arms stiffly out stretched they gave him the salute of the nazi party for the first time instead of the customary military salute.

"Nobody longer doubts," Hitler shouted, "that I am the authorized leader of this state."

"Every man in authority here carries the emblem of nazi sovereignty on his head."

He did not object, he said, if potential enemies found comfort in reports that his drastic reorganization of the government and army

The report stated that 5,346 persons were represented in the 1,325 cases.

Nazis Pleased

Cautious observers in Berlin were reluctant to state flatly that Hitler had talked a British cabinet minister out of office, but they rankly welcomed Eden's elimination from the government. Dispatches from Berlin said that if Halifax succeeded Anglo-German agreement.

Eden went to Buckingham palace to deliver his seal of office to King George, who returned unexpectedly from Windsor palace in the midst of cabinet deliberations that were reminiscent of the abdication crisis that brought George to the throne.

In the event that Halifax is named foreign secretary, the prime minister himself was expected to take over foreign affairs in the house of commons. Halifax sits in the house of Lords.

The 40-year-old Eden, who had been foreign secretary two years and two months, acknowledged his differences with Chamberlain in his letter of resignation. He was the youngest man in 84 years to direct British foreign policy.

The breach was opened when the prime minister, started Anglo-Italian friendship negotiations with the Italian ambassador, Count Dino Grandi, Feb. 18.

"It can not be in the country's interests that those who are called upon to direct its affairs should
